School board splits over non-district pupil charge

A long hassle over whether or not to collect transportation money from tuition students attending Cass City High School capped a long wearying session of the Cass City School Board Monday night at Evergreen

Supt. Donald Crouse reported that the Michigan Department of Education requires that each student living outside the district be billed for transportation. This year the figure

What Crouse suggested was that the families be billed and then notified that they would not be barred from attending school next year if they failed

The reason that the superintendent wants to keep these students at Cass City rather than their home districts is because of the $600 in State Aid that is paid for each.

For the 10 students in question the maximum loss in transportation costs would be $750. the superintendent said, while the district receives $6,000 in Crouse also maintained that the students didn't cost anything additional to educate because they were spread over various grades and all costs would remain constant whether they attended or not.

But the board refused to buy this reasoning. A motion to allow students to attend whether or not they paid for transportation died by a 2-5 vote.

Trustee Don Reid was the spokesman for the dissidents. He said that since the State required payment on out-ofdistrict students he felt that it was proper that they did so. . . . only that the families should be notified in advance.

Reid also said that just because an added 10 students didn't add to the direct school operating cost was no reason to house and educate them for

There is a cost, he insisted, the same as there is for district students. Students from out of the district are not charged tuition. One reason is that only pupils who live on the border between districts come to Cass City and students transported are those who live on the regular school bus routes. Buses do not travel extra miles to pick them up.

After about an hour of discussion and a second motion requiring families to pay or be booted out next year died for lack of a second, a compromise was reached.

By a 5-2 majority the board decided to allow tuition students to attend during the 1971-72 school year if transportation money was not collected for the current year. If money is not paid for transportation for the 1971-72 year, students will not be accepted for the following year, Against the measure were Elwyn Helwig and Dean Hoag who wanted to allow students to attend whether or not they paid the transportation costs.

If all of the pupils decided to return to their home districts the net reduction in revenue would amount to over 1/5 of a mill of local taxes.

CURRICULUM CHANGES

Principal Russell Richards received quick approval for the addition of three new courses at the school. A second year in drafting will be offered for the first time. A new course in ecology featuring man's relationship to his environment is planned and a course in electricity and electronics

An interesting feature of the electronics course is that the teacher selected will take a correspondence course, Richards said, to learn about the subject and then in turn teach it to the students.

County valuation jumps $4 million

Tuscola County Supervisors met with the County Board of Commissioners Tuesday morning and in an hour they completed a task that had taken three days in other years and they reached acceptance of the county tax rolls at the equalization meeting. One of the key reasons for the ease of the morning is the fact that all townships are now on an equal footing with each other and the state, assessing property at fifty per cent of true cash value for a tax base, Mac O'Dell, former Cass City assessor, is now the county assessor. The general picture of the county's taxes for this year shows an increase of nearly $4 million for a total valuation of $192,237,273 compared to

WILLIAM ZIMBA lashes out at the Cass City School Board because of the lack of a complete program for the deaf in the county.

Train kids like dogs

William Zimba: educating deaf away is heartbreaking

Handicapped children have been forgotten. . . . why do you suppose

The problems and the heartache of caring for and educating handicapped children were poignantly aired Monday night at a meeting of the Cass City School Board at Evergreen

William Zimba, the father of a deaf child, told the board bitterly that handicapped children have been forgotten; that all the handicapped received for years is the run around.

The deaf need to be trained from infancy, he said, and the only place I can place her now is in a special school at Flint.

They do a fine job, he said, but they train these kids like dogs and every night they cry theniselves to sleep. Four-yearolds want to be loved, need to be loved, he added. "Why else do you suppose that I had to chase my daughter through a corn field when it came time to go back to Flint to school?" If we can spend two mills for a vocational education building, why can't we spend a fair share for the deaf, he asked the board angrily. Zimba vented his feeling at the meeting after a discussion about a room for the hardof-hearing in Cass Cityby Supt. Donald Crouse and the board. Crouse told the board that he had spoken with Al Mahan, director of the program for the deaf, who works for the Intermediate School District.

they cry themselves to sleep every night? It was my impression, Crouse told the board, that he would like to see a second room for the deaf established in Caro. There is currently a preschool class for the deaf in Zimba and Mrs. Andrew Eubank, another parent with a deaf child, would accept another room for the deaf in Caro if it served only Tuscola county. However, Mrs. Eubank said, if it is for the three-county

City. . . . and a really successful program will need three-county cooperation, she believes. Crouse told the board that as Aid promises are kept the best that could be hoped for is that area, then it should be in Cass the district would break even. If a building should become necessary, he said, Idon't think it is fair to ask our district to pay taxes to build it if it serves children from several districts.

Another question that remains is who would administer the program and come to final decisions.

Despite these problems, the board is determined to take another look at a room in the district for the deaf.

Certainly, said Don Reid, if Caro is going to provide this service they should do so. Everyone agrees that the rooms together are best. But if Caro hasn't the space or won't, we should investigate. The trouble is, he continued, like Dean (Hoag) says, we don't know anything about this program. Mahan should be present to talk to us. Mrs. Eubank promised to have many interested parents at the next regular meeting to talk about the program and to see Mahan about coming, too. Mrs. Eubank says that she is confident that there are enough pupils that need the program to form the class. We are especially interested because there is now a teacher willing to come if there is a program here.

Reid said that in his opinion. the district should do whatever it can to help after the facts are known.

Even if it's only for one year and we were forced to eliminate it, it would be a start, he pointed out.

No statement about the situation was available from Mahan, who this week is away from the office on vacation. But since most of the school board seemed to endorse Reid's position of further investigation, a room for the hard of hearing will probably be one of the first discussion topics at the May school board meet-

FROM THE Lditor's Corner

My life style never has left much time for just sitting around. When I'm free from the demands of the paper there always are myriad things to do. . . . none of them connected with just sitting around and enjoying life leisurely at home.

All that changed for most of last week when grounded by the flu. I alternated looking out the window with being too sick to care.

I've lived on South Seeger for about six years and the only birds I knew were around was a flock of Starlings and It's okay if you're too sick to do anything else, but I found as I recovered, my interest in nature diminished in direct ratio to my illness.

The better I got the more chafing staying at home became.

New techniques helping patients return to society, say Dodges

THE FLOYD DODGES tell how treatment has improved at Caro State Hospital.

Grim conditions, forgotten and near criminal neglect of patients in State institutions have headlined many story in recent years in Michigan. And no doubt there has been much cause for concern at many hospitals, but not at all. . . things have never been better for the patient at Caro State Hospital than they are right now.

That's the opinion of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dodge of Cass City, And the Dodges should be in a position to know, Both have been employed at Wahjamega for 18 years.

Today we are doing things to treat the resident. . . make him ready to move out of the hospital. When we came 18 years ago nearly every patient was figured to be a resident for the remainder of his days. It was turn the key and forget That's a lot different from what we do today, the Dodges agreed. In the past year we've been able to release 65 patients into society.

It has been in the past year that the facility has zeroed in on an educatable training program. We've got better medication today than ever before, Dodge says, but that's only part

The big thing is that the teaching has changed. New methods are paying off.

Dodge likes to point to the four seclusion rooms that once were part of the cottage where he works. Now three of them have been transformed into coffee and day rooms. When I first came to this section, he said, we would use as many as three of these at a time frequently. . .now the one seclusion room we have left is used maybe two or three times a year. Techniques are constantly changing, the Dodges said, A new innovation started just this year. The residents have their own government and elected officials. We act as advisors and the self-government eliminates myriad problems and has been a big boost in training, they say. Like most workers at the facility, the Dodges just drifted into employment there. Both are natives of the Cass City area. Floyd and his wife, the former Nora Maharg, graduated together from Cass City High School in 1939. After they were married they farmed and were in the poultry business for 6 years. But one year the market dropped out of sight and "out of curiosity" Floyd dropped into the hospital to see about a job. It was easy to get jobs there then, he recalled, but I didn't hire in because I couldn't get the hours I wanted.

But a few months later they called me and I went to work . .never intending to stay, he said with a grin. What changed his mind was an accident in which he suffered a broken neck. I was trying to farm and work at the same time, Dodge said, and with my injury I found that I was popping way too many pain pills so I quit farming. Dodge started working at and his wife followed him into the hospital in May of 1953. Both have worked steadily ever since. Both took on the job training and were successful in passing the State Board to become licensed psychiatric In the 18 years the two Dodges

Letter to Editor

Donate land use for pheasant nests

April 5, 1971

To the Editor

To Thumb Area Farmers and Sportsmen:

Last week at a meeting between Michigan Deer Hunters Association and the Department of Natural Resources, I had an opportunity to engage in a lengthy discussion with Mr. "Pete" Petosky, the new head of the game division.

During the course of conversation the subject of pheasants in the Thumb Area came up. Mr. Petosky stated that the DNR was going to spend between $300,000.00 and $400,-000.00 in the Thumb Area to purchase nesting sites in an attempt to re-establish the ringneck pheasant in this area. I told Mr. Petosky, I thought it was quite foolish for the DNR to spend our tax dollars to purchase more land in the Thumb area for nesting sites, when I knew several people who would be willing to donate the use of their land for nesting sites and, I was quite sure there were many others in the Thumb who would be willing to donate the use of their land,

Mr. Petosky challenged me to find out who these people were and submit a list of the land available, to him and his department and they might consider using this property instead of spending the $300,000 to $400,000 to buy property. It is my understanding that the property does not have to be made available to the public for hunting. The only stipulation is that it must remain uncultivated and be suitable for a nesting area If you have any land or know of anyone who does have, from a 1/4 acre swalle to 40 acres in the soil bank which you would like to make available for a

A new State-wide baseball tournament is planned in Michigan starting in late May and Cass City High School is entered. It couldn't have come at a better time for local fans. Cass City's one strong sport is baseball. CCHS won the Thumb B Crown last year and figure to be even stronger this spring because of excellent pitching and added experience.

Wouldn't it be something if the school won the State title. That's dreaming, of course, but it doesn't hurt to fantasize a little on a balmy spring day.

List seeds

This has presented several questions which have been asked in regard to the merits of treatment of seed and drill box treatment. We have summarized the following suggestions for the Tuscola county

BARLEY: Good sound seed will usually not justify a seed fever -- a severe disease that has wrecked many an army. cause the soldiers had become During the Second World War, one of the biggest jobs of the so worn out by the itching that medical staff was to frequently was produced by abundant body spray DDT inside the wounded soldiers' shirts. Today, the problem of body lice and crab lice (which live around a person's crotch in the pubic hair and scabies (caused by the mange mite), is becoming increasingly serious with so many youngsters living communally, under less than sanitary conditions, and bathing infrequently. Until recently, if an American physician had a patient with "crabs" or scabies, the person was likely to come from a poverty area; today, however, the parasites are just as likely to plague the rich as the poor; one of the main factors in this new development is today's sexual permissiveness, although unlike syphilis gonorrhea, scabies and crabs can be passed from one person to another not only by sexual contact but merely by physical closeness or by handling such objects as clothing and

According to an article I read recently in the journal Family Health, when dealing with crab lice and their nits (barely visible transparent eggs), the victim's clothing must all be removed and discarded, One should avoid previously-worn apparel for at least 48 hours, just in case come crabs or their nits might be lodged in the hairs caught in the fibers of the cloth. Each day it is advisable to change into dry, clean clothing, and sleep on freshly laundered linen. Sheets, toilet seats, and other articles should be washed and scrubbed. It is reassuring for now that crab lice and their eggs cannot live away from the host.

Because of late the problem has reached serious proportions, some hospitals are using medicated shampoos, and any patient who shows any signs of lice is thoroughly scrubbed, and often the hair is clipped

The scables mite tends to grow in the spaces between the fingers, and that can cause severe itching, especially at night. Some of the mites will grow around the wrists and elbows. They will also grow around a woman's nipples.

Apparently it is the fertilized female mite that is the culorit. She bites and digs her way beneath the skin, there depositing from 10 to 25 eggs. Within two weeks these eggs hatch and grow into mating adults, and the newly fertilized females set out to repeat the cycle. Many a person with scabies goes to a skin specialist, thinking he has some rare kind of skin disease. The louse, which is no larger than the head of a pin, likes to clamp his forelegs around the victim's hair, close to the skin, and there voraciously suck blood. An adult louse can keep this up for as long as a month, although without the continuing supply of blood, he cannot live more than 24 hours. I'll never forget a man who came to me, back in 1906, when I was admitting officer at the great San Francisco City and County Hospital, and said, "Doctor, for God's sake, help me; I am in a terrible fix.' He pointed to his clothes, and I could see lice crawling all over his coat and pants. He said, "I have no money, and I've been living in box cars down on the railroad tracks. I didn't have any chance to bathe or change my clothes, and I got these lice. They're driving me crazy." So I took the poor fellow out into the back yard, and I got one of my favorite orderlies, as a favor to me, to remove the man's clothes and burn them, then bathe him and clip off all his hair. Then we put the man to bed. Unfortunately, never recovered his strength, and in a few days he was dead. We were not sure why; perhaps he had been badly

4-H serving needs of youth

BY BERNARD JARDOT

Our 4-H youth program is serving the needs of youth in the 1970's. The need to belong, to be a part of an active group, has always been a need for most young people, and our 4-H clubs are serving this need.

Young people need change and an opportunity to be creative, plus a way to satisfy endless curiosity. The 4-H project is a way of using this energy in a practical way.

4-H is the practical youth organization, preparing tomorrow's youth to meet tomorrow's problems today. Ibelieve adults are missing an important part of living if they're not involved with young people and the things our youth are doing.

Volunteer your services to be a 4-H leader, and you'll see what I mean. Encourage your friends to do the same. Your extension office will help

erty is worth. I ain't never been to strong in this matter, Mister Editor, but I know enuff to know that Nader is right. I figger they is as many ways as they is valuaters, and ever one of em uses different ways in different places, I allus wonder, fer instant, if a farm is worth the same fer a four-lane road to be built acrost it, as it is fer farming, Fer dead certain it is sudden worth a heap if a gas station wants to go up on a acre or two after the road is

I don't know how fer Nader plans to take his study, but it ought to give us some interesting reading if he goes into how all the guvernments sets value on land fer tax purposes. They git some experts to ride around and decide what the country is worth, then they set the tax rates based on these market prices. But they use all kind of per cents fer taxing purposes, so a feller has to be a Philadelphy lawyer to figger how much tax he actual pays on how much value. Actual, Mister Editor, I give up trying to understand the ways of Guvernment a long time ago. It has got to the place where dealing with Guvernment agencies is like the newspapers gitting a picture of Howard Hughes. You got to git em both stopped afore you can do much with em. And what makes it worse fer Guvernment is that the more they try to make things simple the harder it is to make sense out of em. I recollect onct where this plumber figgered out that hydrocloric acid would clean out drain pipes, and he wrote to the Department of Agriculture about it. He got a nice letter back that sounded to him like his idee was good. He wrote em back and thanked em. It was a long while and a lot of letters afore somebody that hadn't been working fer the Guvernment long got aholt of his letter and wrote him not to use the acid, cause it would eat up the pipes. The plumber said that was the first thing he had ever understood in a Guvernment letter. A few weeks back when that national alert went out by mistake, I thought about how the more we think we know the more danger we're in. With all the fancy alert equipment we got, we still had a human man hooking up the wrong tape recording that sent out a real alert instead of a test.

We ought to keep in mind that Guvernment saying, "What is past is Prologue." I hear that translates "Brother, you ain't seen nothing yet."

The day this column appears Random House will publish a suspense novel by a young writing friend of mine,

His name is Bill Pronzini and his book, THE STALKER, is a first novel. All his friends knew that

Bill was prolific because Bill -- a San Franciscan now living in Germany -- had supported himself for five years by writing short stories, a nearly incredible feat in this day of drying-up short story markets.

Bill wrote mystery short stories, suspense short stories; science fiction, fantasy, adventure, western, and men's magazine short stories. It's a safe bet that of the popular magazines on newsstands today Bill Pronzini's short stories have been published in the majority

So the evidence was always there that he was a professional; that he could turn it out. to order if necessary; that he invoked not inspiration but perspiration; that he developed his technique in the only way possible, by working at it.

Now the evidence is at hand in the form of this first novel, THE STALKER, a soundly-constructed, boldly sweeping, meticulously detailed book, that Bill Pronzini can do a great deal more than turn it out. The story is imaginative, believable, and gripping.

Its plot can be capsuled simply. Eleven years before the opening of the story, six men fresh out of the service, with no criminal backgrounds, conceived and executed the perfect crime, an armored car robbery netting the group $750,~ 000. They made a pact never to visit each other, not even to keep track of one another; the legal punishment accompanying a misstep evaporated with the statute of limitations: and they were in the clear.

Until three of them died in mysterious "accidents" in home towns many miles apart in a brief period of time. Until it became evident to the survivors that a madman was stalking them, too, with macabre vengeance in mind for their part in the crime. Until there was only one survivor left, running, trying to save his wife's life and his own.

Upon this skeleton-structure Bill Pronzini has woven some very effective scenes. His sense of place is impeccable; when he describes a riverbank marshy slough in Marin County. the reader can feel the mud, the icy particles of wind-driven rain, and the dripping-wet, three-foot-high tule grass.

The book is more than a suspense novel. Upon a different level it's an acute evocation of the disintegration of a group

cars and dates

Let's talk a moment, parent to parent.... It's quite an adjustment, isn't it? Your daughter, Jill, is on cloud nine because Jack asked her for a date. Jack's driving his dad's car. That is, you hope he drives it. Maybe he just aims it and takes off. Yes, it's quite an adjustment. And all the books say there's nothing you can do about it. Kids date. So, watch television, read a book, listen for the muffled "Good nights" and the click of the doorlatch, then stop worrying and go to sleep. Until her next date....

The churches of our community have no simple solution for this problem. They have a complex solution: Through moral and religious training, develop in every boy and girl a mature sense of responsibility, a respect for life and Christian character.

The young people we'll have the greatest confidence in tomorrow are going to church

AROUND THE FARM Plan marketing program for barley

By William Bortel

A malting barley marketing program has been materialized in Tuscola county by the barley committee last week. The committee, Roy Hickey, chairman; Karl Ewald, Al Merchant, and Howard Russell, met with the Rickel Company of Detroit and developed a marketing program for the barley growers. John Longe of Rickels and Charles Allendorf of Fleischmann's Malting Company, Inc., represented the company. Fleischmann's are the new owners of Coho - The Rickel Company is very much interested in the Coho barley as Stroh's has made commitment for 45,000 bushels of malt for experimental purposes. If the experiment is favorable this year, many additional acres will be needed next year. The growers of Coho this year will be able to deliver their barley to Detroit any time from harvest need the total Coho supply of barley by December 1 to run their test. The farmer will have free storage of his Coho and may sell it on any date after harvest or before March 1 with the following premiums over six-row barley.

15 cent premium on 85% plump; 16 cent premium on 90% plump; 17 cent premium on 95% plump or over. Rickel's have agreed to ac-

Larker - There will be a price established on Larker barley a few weeks prior to harvest this year. A grower may store in the elevator or at home and be sure of a sale at a later date. Have your barley checked at your local elevator before storing to see if the barley is of malting

The 30 traits are listed in an_advertisement in this issue. To enter the contest all that is necessary is to rate the community in 50 words or less. McConkey explained that it is not necessary that the opinion be laudatory. Constructive crit-

-PUBLIC WELCOME-

Success will never come to any man who tries to make both week-ends meet.

Cass City Village Council was held on March 30, 1971 at the Municipal Building. All the Trustees except Arthur Holmberg were present.

The minutes of the regular February meeting were read and approved.

Tom Thompson and Bob Gentner, CPA's from Yeo & Yeo were present to review the 1970 financial report in detail. Several comments and recommendations were made by the CPA's in the accompanying letter. The Council was also informed that the Village will be going to the new state-required bookkeeping system.

The applications for Cass City Taverns for Class C Liquor Licenses were reviewed by the Council. After considerable discussion, it was decided that legal advice would be needed before any action on this matter would be taken. It was moved by Trustee Rawson and supported by Trustee Jones that the approval of the applications for Cass City Taverns for Class C Liquor Licenses be tabled until the next Council meeting. Motion carried. The Financial Report for the month of February was re-

Trustee Rawson reported that four townships have signed applications for the Park Expansion Program. There is still the possibility of one other township participating in this program. President Althaver commended Trustees Rawson and Albee for the tremendous amount of time spent towards the Park Expansion Program.

It was suggested by the Police Committee that the 1968 Chevrolet police car be sold by public bid. After some discussion it was decided to investigate this matter further before action is taken.

A resolution was brought before the Council for their approval for Federal Revenue Sharing which would support a nationwide campaign to return a portion of the federal income tax to the communities from which it is collected. After a review of the resolution by the Council, a motion was made by Trustee Albee and supported by Trustee Christner that the resolution as included in the minutes be adopted. Motion car-

With the vote just 12 days away the upcoming vote has caused remarkably little discussion in the community. The reason is probably twofold. The first is that the taxpayers will not be asked to authorize any increase over present levies, and the second is that the school board is not launching a drive to publicize the upcoming election.

Most members probably feel that the measure will pass without too much difficulty because it is an extension, not a new

However, all agree that it is essential to the program that the funds be made available again in 1971-72.

Mr. Blades also reported that nine new homes will soon be under construction, along with an addition to the First Baptist miles south of Sebewaing, According to Huron County Sheriff's Deputies, Jackson was heading north with three companions, Julia Craig, 15, and Nancy Craig, 18, of Elkton and Dennis Rasmussen, 19, of Sebewaing. At the same time a pickup truck driven by Carl Wildner Moyer, 61, of Unionville was heading west on the McAlpine Road with his passenger, Law-rence Claerhout, 46, of Unionville. The report states that Moyer stopped for M-25, saw the Jackson car coming, but thought he had time to cross the highway. The collision occurred as Moyer entered the highway, and Jackson died of a broken neck. None of the other persons involved were serious-

The most serious incident of the week end occurred near Pigeon late Saturday morning when a bridge collapsed on the Berne Road one mile north and a quarter mile west of Pigeon, immediately after the bridge had been crossed by a stone truck with a load of stone, The driver of the truck was 20-year-old Jack Stanley Schubach of Elkton who was hauling a load of stone from the Bayport stone quarry, Deputies say that he crossed the bridge and looked in the rear view mirror to find the bridge collapsed as he stopped for the Caseville Road. The road commission was to determine today if Schubach had exceeded the load limits when he left the stone quarry. The western three quarters of the span was knocked completely into the water, closing that road for some time.

In an accident reported last week the Chronicle listed Dennis Clara as a driver in a mishap with Sharon K. Allen. Dennis Clara was not involved. The driver ticketed for not yielding the right-of-way was Dennis Francis. The mishap occurred Thursday, Mar. 25.

Lost purse finally finds

way to owner

Sometimes it's hard, very hard to be a good Samaritan. So hard, in fact, that it might not have been worthwhile for an honest Cass City High School student and members of the Chronicle staff,

It all started Saturday, April 3, when Miss Barbara Creason found a pocketbook on West Street in Cass City and turned it into the Chronicle intact with folding money and a host of papers in it.

A quick inventory revealed that the purse belonged to a Pat Bills with an Owendale phone number. The Chronicle called and was informed that the owner had no phone, but lived on Main Street in Cass

A letter addressed "Main Street" was returned undeliverable and another round of investigation revealed another address.
