"If It Fitz. . ."

Church is improving

BY JIM FITZGERALD

This man said maybe God doesn't exist in a human form, maybe He's a mass of electricity. I judged my wife and whispered: "Is our Edison bill paid?" Another man said he believed in God OK but he had a hang-up on Jesus Christ. The resurrection is a lot of malarkey

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Clinton Law believes a good ad is worth repeating and repeating and repeating. In this week's farm section his ad for Cass City Crop Service is the same as it was when the special section first started eight years ago. It was designed by Dave Kraft, Clint says, and we haven't had any reason to change it since.

My favorite pigeon, Jim Hyde, has bet $5 that the weather Saturday, May 8, will be between 47 and 55 degrees at 1 p. m. I know, Hyde says, because that's the day of the Gavel Club relays and I've been wet or frozen at that meet for years. I didn't have the heart to tell him that the meet has been scheduled a week later than ever before this season.

The Western show in Caro Saturday hurt the gate at the Lions club show the preceding night. . .cutting deeply into profits. It's too bad, too, for the Lions put a lot of time and effort into trying to bring a good show into town while working to raise funds for the club's many civic projects.

It's Monday afternoon and a warming trend has set in. The sun is pouring through the window at my back and it just may be by tomorrow (Tuesday) spring will reappear. All of which makes it absolutely positive that I won't weaken a year from now and attend another trout season opener in Michigan.

Cruising towards the north country Friday evening we were halted by C. R. Hunt and Les Ross as we passed by. When it snowed later that night and the next morning I consoled myself by thinking that I wasn't the only damn fool from Cass City caught in the snowstorm.

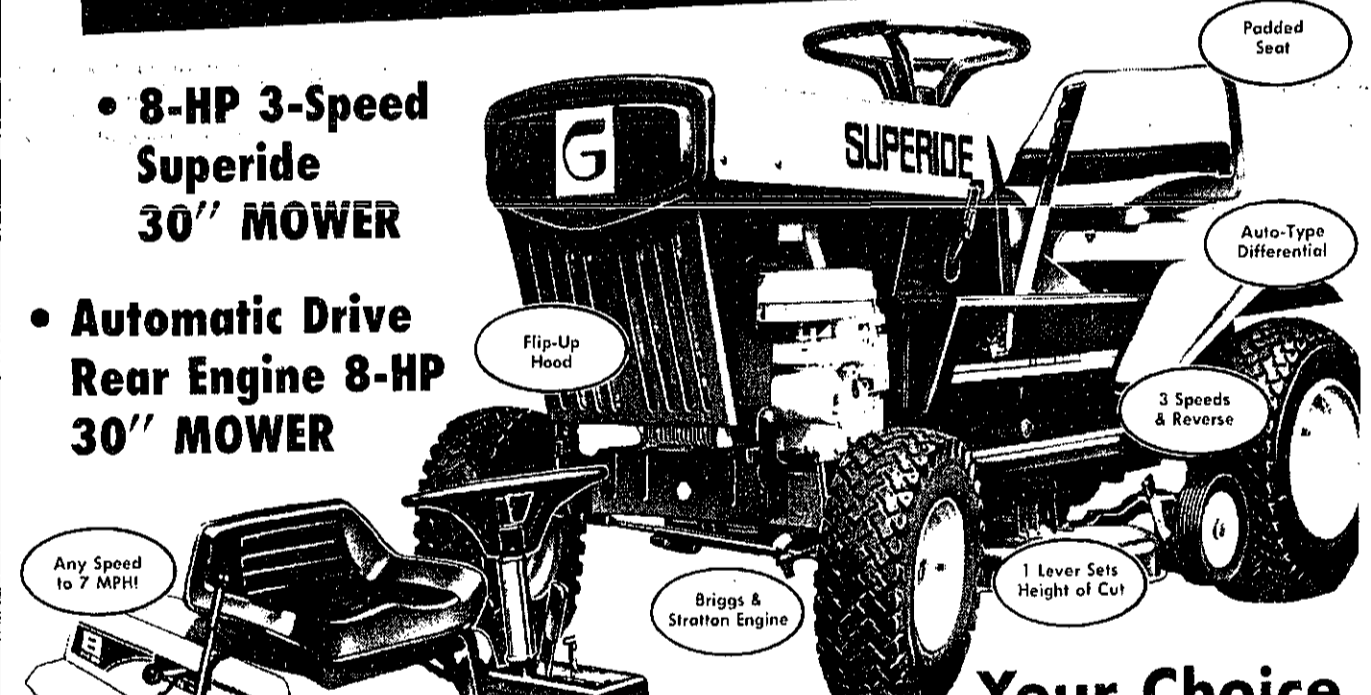

But even this small pleasure withered away when I got back and found out that Hunt had caught a 16 1/2-inch trout.

Horace Bulen sends his thanks, elsewhere in the paper, to everyone who has written him. It's pleasant to be able to report that his condition has improved enough now so that he is able to get around in a wheel chair. It is expected that he will be taking therapy at the Chicago hospital for about a year. He has been there 10 weeks.

ONE FOR THE ROAD
Cleaning out the file drawer

By Dan Marlowe

This is the week to clean out the file folder of unused items accumulated during the year preliminary to filling it up again with items that will be unused next year:

The ladder of life is full of splinters, but some people never begin to realize it until they start sliding down.

A dollar may not do as much for us as it used to, but maybe we don't do as much for a dollar, either.

A man displays character when he listens to someone describing the same ailment as his own and fails to mention it.

A garageman said a customer complained the other day about the noise coming from the back of his car. After checking around, the garageman suggested to the customer that he make her sit up front.

And since we're on the subject of the ladies, if exercise eliminates fat, as so many physical culture fans insist, how come women get double chins?

A prime fault with being punctual is that everyone thinks you have nothing to do.

Large sign outside nudist camp: Come on inside where the peeling is mutual.

Definition of a bachelor: A man who would rather wash a pair of socks than a pan full of dirty dishes.

Sometimes it's necessary to speak plainly as in the case of the following ad: "Wanted: Man to work eight hours to replace man who didn't."

Wife to husband reluctant to help his small son with his home work: "Help him now, dear, while you can. Next year he goes into the fourth grade."

Ladies: Marriage begins when you sink in his arms. And ends with your arms in the sink.

As every parent knows, it never hurts a child to miss a meal. It's the parents who get the indigestion, though, listening to him wailing upstairs.

It's said we're approaching a moneyless society, in which case some of us are ahead of the times.

And did you know that high-heeled shoes were invented by a girl who was kissed on the forehead?

Are you one of the thousands of Americans who has been eyeing animal fats suspiciously? Maybe you cut way down on your use of milk, eggs, cheese, butter, and meat products to hold your cholesterol intake down.

I have good news for you! The final report of a 20-year study says there is no discernible association between reported diet intake (of animal fats) and serum cholesterol level in the group of people studied.

The Framingham study began 20 years ago. Scientists wanted to make a long-range study to find out if there were a relationship between diet and coronary artery disease.

Two groups of men agreed to change their eating patterns for 20 years in order to conform to a diet low in saturated fats. One group had a history of coronary artery disease, but the second did not show any such symptoms. Doctors made regular medical examinations.

At the end of the study, comparisons between these two groups and others who had made no diet changes whatsoever showed there was "no suggestion of any relation between diet and subsequent development of coronary heart disease.

Milk, meat, and eggs are good, wholesome and healthy foods. They deserve a place in your family's meals.

Clinic to discuss color in the home

What is color? What does it do? What colors go together? These questions will be answered at a home design meeting to be held Wednesday, May 5, at 7 to 9 p. m. in the Civil Defense Center, Caro. Those attending the meeting will learn how color affects our mood and how colors react with each other.

All 4-H home design leaders and members are encouraged to attend. Several examples of the home design project will be on display.

This lesson is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Sanilac registered Holstein sale termed outstandingly successful

Quality consignments from area dairymen, excellent attendance and a beautiful Spring day, made the 1971 Sanilac County Spring sale a memorable success. The sale managed by the Sanilac County Holstein Association (Michigan's largest dairy county) continues to grow. The idea of a yearly sale featuring registered Holsteins selected for dairymen by fellow dairymen is well received by Michigan dairymen as shown by the fine attendance.

A Paclamar Astronaut daughter, Blomside Dark Millie, was the highest selling individual, at $1,200, and went to Francis Wessinger, Howell. She was consigned by Earl Warner of Sandusky. Following closely at $1,100 was Larsland Star Lucky purchased by Ronald Brown of Yale and consigned by Douglas and Shirley Crawford of North Street. A Kingstead Ivanhoe daughter, Larsland Ivan Burke was the high bred heifer at $800 and went to Harold Barber of Peck. She was consigned by Stewart Larson of Crosswell. In the calf department the August, 1970 Thumb-Pride Captain Venus, consigned by Jack Kaufman, Sandusky, was high at $460 and went to Bill Ludwig of Lum. The January junior calf Woodylane Rube Beauty went to Jeff Johnston, Applegate, for $390 and was consigned by James Osborn (Woodlane Farm) Applegate. The sales committee consisted of Harold Barber, chairman; Stewart Larson, secretary; Milt Osborn, Leonard Dorman, Alex Ferguson, Al Davis, Bill Nesbit, Don Chard, Earl Warner and Jack Kaufman.

The Auctioneer was Bob Shore, Glanworth, Ontario, and reading pedigrees was John Smith, Williamston. The sale was held at the Sandusky 4-H Fairgrounds April 16.

Test parasites to control insects

By William Bortel

One of the oldest methods of controlling insects and related pests is by using their natural enemies -- parasites, predators and disease organisms. Man has known for many centuries that insects attacking crops were in turn attacked by many kinds of natural enemies that at times and in certain places exerted a high degree of control over the pests. Not until recently were deliberate attempts initiated to use these enemies in control activities, either by introducing new ones into the environment of a pest or by increasing the effectiveness of species already present. This deliberate use of natural enemies for pest control is now known as biological control.

The last few years have seen increased attention in the American scientific community turned toward the control of insect pests by parasites. One reason is the increasing resistance of many serious insect pests to the chemical controls. In addition, interests in practical biological controls is now becoming fairly widespread among the more informed public. This interest is the result of a paradox created by the need to control insect pests and the need to protect the environment from possible insecticide pollution. It can be said right away that in a number of cases, biological control has met with undoubted success and been very spectacular.

Here in Tuscola county we are also trying insect control by the use of parasites on the Warren Van Horn farm and the Henry Forstle farm, south of Mitlington. We have placed a wasp parasite to control the alfalfa weevil. We are anticipating a build-up of these wasps to feed upon the alfalfa weevil and within a few years the alfalfa producer will not have to spray his alfalfa fields. This spring will be the evaluation period to see if the wasps were able to winter over this far north and will be effective in their small number on the alfalfa weevils in their respective fields.

The wasps have been extremely effective in the states of Pennsylvania and New York where the alfalfa weevil originated. We are anticipating equally effective results here in Michigan.

We are also working with a parasite for cereal leaf beetle control here in Tuscola county. These parasites were brought into the county last year and released on the John Graham farm, north of Caro. These parasites feed on the cereal leaf beetles and are strictly new in the experimental basis. We will be making surveys to see if these parasites will be able to keep the cereal leaf beetle count down in the areas that they were placed.

In time biological control eventually help solve the paradox between the need to control insect pests and the equally important need to protect our environment.

Tips for rejuvenating sick lawns offered by MSU experts

Rings of dead grass and lawn areas speckled with white powdery material are indications of two lawn diseases that plagued Michigan lawns last year.

The circles of dead grass, usually ranging in size from 6 to 18 inches, are probably caused by fusarium blight, a fungus disease that can take a heavy toll of shaded bluegrass lawns.

The areas that look like they have been sprinkled with flour or lime or some other white powdery substance are suffering from powdery mildew. It usually occurs in damp, shaded, bluegrass lawns. Merion bluegrass is the most susceptible.

"There is no chemical guarantee to control fusarium blight," says David Martin, Michigan State University turfgrass specialist. "Chemical control of powdery mildew is impractical because it requires applications every 7 to 10 days. But home owners can correct both problems with proper management techniques."

Severe cases of fusarium blight will require resodding or reseeding between August 15 to September 1 in southern Michigan and August 10 to August 25 in northern Michigan. Less severe cases -- where dead areas are only about the size of your hand -- will recover when the grass begins to revive again under good growing conditions.

"Fusarium blight can usually be minimized by not allowing the lawn to be under stress," explains Martin. "In other words, the lawn should be adequately watered and fertilized with nitrogen."

"At this time of the year, you should put on water insoluble forms of nitrogen. During early September and the spring months, any form of nitrogen will help the lawn to thrive and resist blight."

Powdery mildew can cause extensive thinning of bluegrass, particularly Merion. If it has been heavily thinned, Martin recommends reseeding the area with Pennlawn red fescue in late August. This can be done by vigorously raking the area, loosening the soil, removing the dead grass, seeding and firming the seed into the soil.

"Red fescue is not susceptible to the disease and will provide a long term prevention of the disease," comments Martin. "The mixture of fescue and bluegrass will give you a nice looking lawn that is much more disease resistant."

Martin says Karathane or sulfur can be used to control powdery mildew, but applications need to be repeated every 7 to 10 days.

ALWAYS BE ALERT WHEN DRIVING

Traffic conditions are constantly changing. When driving from the country to the city or from an open highway to crowded expressways, you must also change your driving pattern.

The Highway Traffic Safety Center of Michigan State University offers the following advice:

Be aware of a false sense of security, particularly in changing to lower speeds. Force yourself to concentrate on all important details in the traffic scene. It keeps you alert to changes you might otherwise overlook.

THE STANLEY WALK farm has been in the family for 65 years and the Walks still are farming in the traditional way.

SPECIAL SPRING FARM SECTION

Walk farm operation turns back clock to another era

There is an overpowering impression that the clock has been turned back 30 years when you visit with Stanley Walk of the rural Kingston area. And, truthfully, things haven't changed much for the 59-year-old mild-mannered Walk in a lifetime spent on the sandy 80 acres nestled near the DeFord State Game Area, southwest of Wilmot.

You won't find any tractors or modern hydraulic operated implements on the place. They just don't fit with horses and horse-drawn equipment.

The horses blend in well on the Walk farm. A little past their prime, they bend to their chores with a sort of weary resignation... working out another day and waiting for it to end.

Walk is one of eight children born on the farm. Five have died and now he lives on the family homestead with his 83-year-old mother who does the cooking and keeps house.

It's much the same as it has always been on the farm. There isn't much cash, or much need for a lot of money the way the family lives.

There are 11 cows but only one is milking. "We're at a low ebb right now," Walk said, "but it will pick up soon."

About the only crop raised is hay.

But there are chickens running around the yard and barn so there are always eggs. A year ago we had some bees but they died, Walk said a trifle sadly.

In a field adjacent to the house is an orchard... which used to give plenty of fruit, but they are too old now and we don't get much off it, Walk said with a resigned grin.

But don't think things are so bad, he added. After all, we make a living and what else is there?

We get along fine here. We have a power pump for water now and a milking machine.

Wood for the winter is chopped from nearby woods and there isn't much need for cash. When we have to go to town, my brother drives us in his car to pick up what we need, Walk said, and you don't need a car to get the mail. It's only a little over a half mile to the mailbox from the house.

Walk says that he doesn't do much of anything these days during his time off. I used to like to hunt, he said, but my eyes aren't so good anymore.

There used to be a lot of deer close by, he said with a spark of anger, but the hunters come tramping up and down the road from before daylight until after dark and chase them all away.

But the spark lasted only an instant and Walk readily posed for a picture with his mother before turning slowly back to his horse and starting again with the work on the farm that has occupied him for most of a lifetime.

BETTER HEALTH

Haste imperative in cornea transplant

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

I was just reading that today there are 50,000 blind persons in the United States who could be seeing and reading tomorrow, if only they could have a corneal transplant operation. The cornea is the clear window in the front of the eye, and is the part of the eye that can be successfully transplanted from one person to another after the death of the donor. Unfortunately, many of the eyes that are promised are not actually given. When the person dies, the family, in their grief, often forget or do not know that in order for the promised cornea to be usable, the eye must be quickly removed; after four or five hours the cornea becomes clouded.

The Eye Bank Association of America, 1111 Tulane Avenue, New Orleans, La. 70112, and every Lions Club in the United States, is interested in the giving of corneas. They have been interested ever since it was first learned that corneas can be successfully transplanted.

The Ham Radio Operators headquartered in Iowa City, contact some 80 eye banks throughout the country every morning in order to check eye availability. All services of eye banks are entirely free. The eye tissue is distributed without discrimination based on race, color, or national origin. Eye age makes no difference. Eye tissue can be taken from a person of any age and can be useful to a person of any age. Curiously, a cornea that has been transplanted can be used again.

The permission to remove the eyes for transplantation of the corneas must be indicated by a special card in the person's pocket. It is not enough to have it in the will, because by the time the lawyers settle the will, or even read it, the cornea of the eye will have been destroyed.

I have always been much interested in this type of transplantation, if only because back around 1930, my good friend Dr. Ramon J. Castroviejo of New York City, came to the Mayo Clinic, where for two years he kept transplanting corneas from one small animal to another, until he could do it easily and perfectly.

If I ever get blinded in such a way that I could benefit from a new cornea, my good friend Dr. Castroviejo will put another cornea in, if he can find a donor -- a kind person who has properly arranged to donate a part of his body immediately upon his death.

People who would like to learn more about the transplantation of corneas can read an article in the March, 1971 issue of the journal Family Health, entitled "The Priceless Gift of Sight".

Family Health is a fine monthly journal, and anyone interested in subscribing can write to 1271 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N. Y. 10020.

SNORING CAN BRING MARITAL TENSIONS

Many a time I have had a recently married woman write me, begging me for help and saying, "If I can't find a way of stopping my husband from snoring, I am going to have to leave him. I am getting desperate over the amount of sleep I lose. My husband doesn't seem to take the thing seriously. We have a double bed, and he becomes angry if I leave to sleep in another room. But even there, I can still hear him."

The husband should know what I know -- that lack of sleep can often push a person to the edge of a nervous break, so it would be wise for him to be concerned about his snoring and his wife's distress. He should have his nose and throat well examined, because if there is obstruction there, when he falls asleep, his mouth is likely to open up, and that can keep the snoring going. Some people snore because they tend to sleep on their back. Such persons have sometimes cured themselves by taking a baseball, and with surgeon's tape, fastening the baseball on their back. Then, if they roll over onto the ball, they wake up.

Another method that can be used by the chronic back-sleeper is to put a roll of soft cloth, or a small pillow, under his neck in such a way as to cause his head to fall back slightly. This opens up and widens the air space between the soft palate (the fleshy part of the roof of the mouth at the back) and the glottis, just below it. Then the rush of air will be less likely to produce the vibrations and rattles that make snoring such a noisy problem for everyone except the sleeper.

Probably the best treatment I have ever heard of is to take a scarf and fasten it under the chin and around the top of the head in such a way as to hold the mouth closed, which will not only cut down on the snoring, but allow the person to wake up in the morning without an uncomfortably dry mouth.

A copy of Dr. Alvarez' booklet, "How To Safeguard Your Vision," may be yours by simply sending 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope along with your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. CCC, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

KEEP ALERT FOR SLOW VEHICLES

When you suddenly find yourself close behind a vehicle with barely time to turn out or brake, you know that you're letting down your "Circle-of-Safety," according to the Highway Traffic Safety Center of Michigan State University.

Ask yourself the following questions in order to keep alert for slower moving vehicles ahead: How fast is the vehicle ahead growing larger? How fast is distance between vehicles shrinking? How fast are you passing reference points along the roadway? Sharpen your speed judgments.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor: With cars filling up the world twice as fast as people, it ain't no wonder planners is working on ways to cut back on both. I saw this piece in the paper where they is about 6,000 youngsters born in this country every day, but that Detroit turns out 12,000 cars a day. This matter of the car explosion come up at the country store Saturday night during a discussion that started out on vacation season. Ed Doolittle commented that people hibernate just like animals, and with spring busting out all over folks are out scrambling for places to go and sights to see. Ed said it looked to him like everybody was tired of being wherever they are. What got him to thinking about folks stirring all over the country, Ed said, was this piece he had saw about ways to cut down on travel that clogs the roads and causes all the cars to clog the air. The best way to reduce travel, according to this article, Ed reported, was to travel without moving.

Ed said serious study is being give to "pseudo travel," which he said means traveling without going anywhere. Folks do a lot of this now, Ed went on, like when they watch television or use the telephone. What would we have, said Ed, if we had to deliver ever message or see ever ball game in person that we can take care of without getting out of our easy chair.

The fellers said that Ed was on to somepun big, but that it wasn't all that new a idee. Folks has been pseudo traveling ever since the first mail order catalog come out, and writing a letter is a kind of travel, allowed Zeke Grubb. As fer traveling around fer pleasure, Zeke said he is of the mind that seeing new places and faces is overrated. Fer instant, he said, a family on vacation sets in a car all day and lives in a motel at night. They ain't that much difference in cars, he said, and onct you're inside a Howard Johnson, you can be anywhere in the world. Farthermore, Zeke said, youngsters on a trip usual is just interested in stopping where they is a swimming pool and when you see one pool you seen em all. Serious, Zeke said he was agreed with the feller that said too much energy is used up in this world jest moving human freight from one place to another.

Practical speaking, Mister Editor, I think a heap of this travel is taking care of itself. I see where airlines is having a tough time because of a drop in business, and a passenger train soon is going to be as handy as a stagecoach. Buses is the cheapest way to move people, I hear, and they are doing such a business they've took to putting hostesses on em like airplanes.

Now, if we can keep the Government out of the bus business, we might have somepun.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Legislature fears doubling of Michigan's income tax

Despite all the talk about abolition of the property tax for schools spurred by Gov. William G. Milliken's recent education reform message, Michigan homeowners will find it prudent to not start budgeting their property tax money for other purposes too soon.

For hard-pressed property owners who must bear the burden of soaring millage rates, the Governor's speech seemed like a light at the end of the tunnel. Indeed it might be exactly that.

But even Milliken was quick to urge school officials and taxpayers not to take their eye off the place where the ball is still located--on the property tax.

The Governor said in districts with millage votes scheduled: "I strongly urge that those millage votes go on and that they not be considered to be affected by the proposals which I'm now making."

Quickest possible time that the proposals could take effect if they are adopted is Jan. 1 of next year. Most realistically early date is July 1 of next year.

The Governor's proposals depend on a statewide vote in November--on his proposal to discard the use of the property tax to finance part of the day to day operations of schools. If the Legislature calls for that vote to be taken and the proposal passes, it still would not go into effect for practical purposes until the start of the next school year.

It is also possible--perhaps even probable--that a compromise will be reached between Milliken and the Legislature where the constitutional amendment put before the people establishes a limit of 12 mills or somewhere in that vicinity rather than wiping out the use of the property tax entirely.

INJURIES ADD UP

On the job accidents knocked more than 50,000 Michigan residents off the job for varying periods of time last year, according to the Michigan Department of Labor.

The department says most of the accidents could have been avoided through the use of safe work procedures and by correcting unsafe conditions.

But, the department also admits there are a few accidents that just weren't foreseeable.

For example: --there was the automobile mechanic who suffered severe burns on his hands when he accidentally discharged a tear-gas gun which had been concealed in the car he was repairing.

--and there was the store clerk who suffered a severed wrist artery when a customer knocked over a lamp display on him.

--and then there was the unfortunate saleslady who was minding her own business behind the counter in a jewelry store. She suffered head and back injuries when a car crashed through the front door of the store and hit her.

More than a few legislators get nervous about the idea of completely discarding the property tax. There are two main reasons for this.

The first is a fear that a dependable tax source like the property tax is needed to make sure the schools get a certain amount of money no matter what the economic conditions. Advocates of this view say a sharp downturn in the economy which cuts down on income tax revenues could bankrupt schools if they depend solely on the income tax for their support.

The second is a fear of what the voters might do to lawmakers who more than double the state income tax in two years. The rate is now 2.6 per cent and a raise to at least 3.6 per cent is needed just to keep the state operating.

The additional 2.3 per cent rate Milliken says will be needed to make up revenues from individual property taxes would push the total income tax in Michigan to 5.9 per cent.

"At some point the people are just going to get fed up and refuse to pay," says one worried lawmaker. "I don't know what that point is and I don't think anybody does. But when you start doubling the income tax, you'd better be sure of what you're doing."

These fears are just part of the reason there's going to be a lot of talking and a lot of bargaining in Lansing before the Legislature and the Governor can come up with a program they feel they can present to the public.

Large tool shed razed Friday

Fire developed Friday night on the South Bayport Road, about a mile north of Bach, and destroyed the large tool shed owned by George Prich. The shed had housed a running tractor as well as two other machines and a quantity of tools and it was believed that the operating tractor was the cause of the fire. It had been left alone for a short time.

Fire departments rushed to the scene from Sebewaing, Owendale and Cagetown, but the building and contents could not be saved. Owendale fireman Donald MacCallum was taken to Schuerer hospital in Pigeon and held overnight, suffering from smoke inhalation.

said that he had planned to fix up his bar anyway. He informed Rawson that he has established an inflexible rule in his bar that anyone fighting would be banned from the bar for good.

The owners are expected to detail remodeling plans and meet again with the council in about two weeks.

The two liquor by the glass licenses are probably all that will be allowed by the liquor control commission in the foreseeable future as the village would not be eligible for a license until the population reached over 4,200 persons.

OTHER BUSINESS

The council authorized the purchase of a new police car to replace a broken down police vehicle. It was to have been traded in for less than $300, but after an objection by Fred Martin, the vehicle will be advertised for bids and the car then sold or traded depending on which is most advantageous to the village.

Al Witherspoon, the insurance agent who handles the village's retirement-insurance program for employees, reviewed the village's plan and suggested that part of the funds be switched into equities for long term appreciation. Witherspoon represents a front load equity fund with a sales cost of 8 per cent. His proposal will be reviewed by the finance committee for recommendation. Currently the retirement program costs the village slightly over $4,000 yearly.

Jim Johnson and Vic Guernsey, representatives of the Little and Minor leagues, appeared before trustees and asked for "home run" fences around the new ball diamonds at Cass City Recreational Park.

After discussion, it was de-cidied to use the fence that was used around the former diamond this year with the intention of establishing permanent fences for the 1972 season.

The reason for the delay is to see if the present locations of the diamonds will prove to be the best available before establishing permanent fences for the two fields.

Another reason is that the estimated $800 the new fences would cost was not in the budget. However, it is secondary reason as money can usually be found somewhere in the village budget if the demand is critical enough.

Liquor license debate Council cracks down on bars

DOING THE JOB — Clusters of plastic barrels, partially filled with sand, are proving effective in preventing serious accidents at several exits on Michigan freeways. 31 large trees destroyed by vandals

Sandusky State Police are investigating one of the oddest incidents of malicious destruction of property to occur in some time in the destruction of 31 beautiful aspen trees, each about 40 feet high and 6 inches in diameter, belonging to Raymond Willitts of Detroit.

The trees were cut down about 3 to 4 feet above the ground by someone with a chain saw.

The trees were trimmed as though to be used for fence posts. The incident occurred in a grove on Willitts' property on Hedley Road, north of the Deckerville Road about 6 miles east of Deford.

$50,000 loss in fire at Caseville

Fire, breaking out about 1:30 Monday morning, completely destroyed the Caseville Amusement Park with the loss estimated at between $40,000 and $50,000. The amusement park operated a miniature golf course on the north side of M-25 in the middle of the community and the building also housed a restaurant, pool tables and pinball machines and was owned and operated by William Kowawski of Port Austin. The Caseville Fire Department fought the blaze.

Reese school awaits verdict from hearings

Reese school problems developed in another area last week while both the Reese Teachers Education Association and the Reese Board of Education wait for court developments in circuit court.

Hearings began in Saginaw's court house on an unfair labor practices charge brought by the association against the board of education and Superintendent Bruce Dunn.

The hearings took place Tuesday, April 20, and were continued to May 10 before Sperka of the State Employment Relations Commission. If they are not completed at the May 10 hearing, other hearings will be set for May 25 and 26. According to teacher attorneys, the board of education, if the hearing goes against them, could be cited for any punishment from a reprimand to an order to rehire the fired 44 teachers.

Judge Norman Baguley also set Monday, May 10, as a date for a conference to determine progress of the case toward a pre-trial conference which would precede the full scale, three-judge hearing which has been ordered in the future.

Council learns

Safety lights at corner expensive

The street safety program for students which was first suggested over four months ago inched forward a little Tuesday at the regular meeting of the village council.

The village received cost estimates from the Michigan Highway Department for walk, wait signs at the corner of Seeger and Main.

The cost is $2,750 and the state and village would share it on a 50-50 basis.

The council voted to table the project until the entire pupil safety program can be tied into one package.

Trustee Dr. D. E. Rawson said that the latest cost estimate should be taken to the school and the issue of plowed sidewalks, crossing guards and other related items discussed with an eye of establishing the responsibility of the school district and the village in the overall safety program.

Pair escapes

serious injury in smash up

Harold Langlois, 46, and his brother, Richard Langlois, 41, both from the Gageton area miraculously escaped without serious injury in an accident that occurred Tuesday morning on Barnes Road, east of Millington.

According to Sheriff's Deputies, the Langloises were heading east when Harold, the driver, fell asleep. They went off the north side of Barnes Road, traveled 344 feet, including 60 feet in the air, hit a group of fence posts, went over a pile of rocks and came to rest after hitting two Detroit Edison utility poles.

Only Richard suffered some minor bruises.

Michael Leon Zawerucha, 56, of Gifford Road, Cass City, and Ann Elizabeth Wilkinson, 51, of Rossman Road, Kingston, were both taken to Caro Community Hospital Monday morning about 8:30 when their cars collided at the intersection of Hurds Corner Road and Bevens Road.

Mrs. Wilkinson was heading west on the Bevens Road and Zawerucha north on Hurds Corner Road. The accident was under investigation by Sheriff's Deputies.

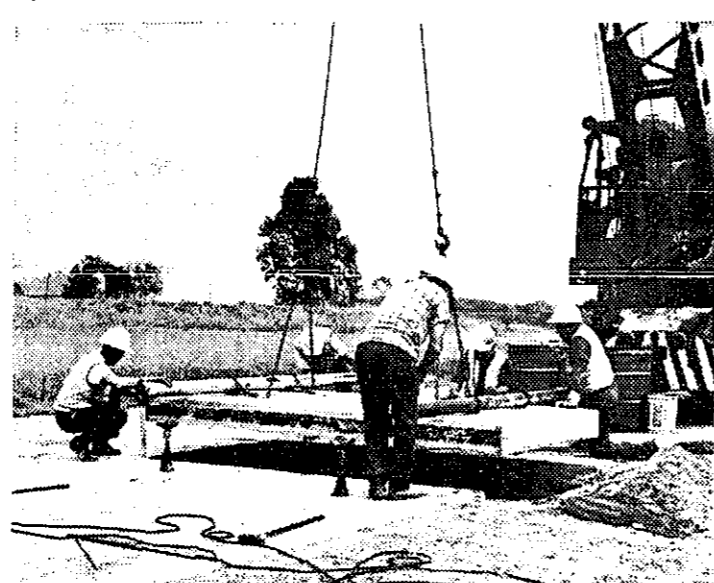

Chief Wilson reports wave of shoplifting

Police Chief Gene Wilson announced this week that there had been three shoplifting incidences reported early this week and all the thefts were by teen-aged juveniles. One of the youths was stealing easily picked up small items such as small tools in packages and then reselling them, Wilson said.

Another annual spring problem is with the village, Wilson said. Several complaints about dogs running loose have been received.

Wilson warned that the dog warden had been in town and was to return. Dogs must be kept fenced or tied on the property of the owner, the police chief said.

There has been a minor epidemic of lost or stolen wallets in town, Wilson said. The most recent occurred when Carol Gage of Bad Axe reported the loss of a wallet with a $100 check and about $30 in cash Friday night in a local tavern.

ANOTHER FIRST FOR MICHIGAN — In an attempt to decrease shut-down time during repairs on busy Interstate 75 Freeway in the Flint-Bay City area, the Department of State Highways for the first time will use pre-cast slabs of concrete to repair more than 20 pavement blow-ups. The slab repair method, developed by the Highway Department's Testing and Research and Maintenance Divisions, consists of cutting out an area of the damaged pavement, lowering the slab of pre-cast concrete into the slot and then sealing the joints. One repair operation can be completed in two hours, compared with the previous method which shut down highway lanes for several days. (Highway Department photo)

Eagles jolt Hawks' title quest, 4-1

Cass City's hopes for a repeat championship in Thumb B Conference baseball were severely jolted Monday afternoon when an opportunistic Frankenmuth nine defeated the highly favored Hawks, 4-1, at Cass City Recreational Park.

Monday's defeat came after the Hawks topped Bad Axe, 1-0, in the conference opener at Cass City Thursday as Rob Alexander pitched a no-hitter.

The Hawks pounded out seven hits off two Frankenmuth hurlers, but couldn't connect when it counted. The Eagles scored a run on a walk and an error in the first inning and then touched Kim Hopper for two hits in the fourth to drive him from the mound and go in front 2-0.

The Hawks got one back in the fourth on a single by Alexander and double by Gene Hopper.

In the sixth Cass City wasted a golden opportunity when they loaded the bases with one away only to fail to dent the plate and a similar rally died in the seventh.

In the top of the seventh a couple of walks and a timely base hit by Sanders netted the visitors two more runs. They were charged against Alexander who relieved Hopper in the fourth.

The Hawks outhit the Eagles seven to six, but Frankenmuth collected their hits when it counted.

Pitching was the name of the game against Bad Axe, Alexander shutout the Hatchets without a hit, but allowed six walks. Meanwhile, Cass City notched the winning run in the first Inning when Kip Hopper was hit by a pitch, Kim Hopper singled and Alexander followed with a hit to drive him home. Cass City notched just four hits in the victory.

New format for Gavel Club meet

There will be several changes this year when the annual Gavel Club Invitational track meet is held Saturday, May 8, at Cass City Recreational Park.

One is that there is sure to be a new team champion crowned. Flint Kearsley which has had a stranglehold on the title will not be present because the meet this year bans class A schools for the first time.

Another change is the May 8 date which is a week or two weeks later than the meet has ever been held before.

Authorities are hoping for better weather and less competition from other meets with the later starting time.

There will be 19 schools participating. Athletic Director Robert Stickle said, and team trophies will be presented to the winners of Class D, C and B. An over-all championship trophy will also be presented.

As always, medals will be presented to the top performers in each event.

Already signed to enter are: In class D - Dryden, Port Hope, Caseville, OwenGage; class C - Reese, Brown City, Uby; class B - Bad Axe, St. Louis, Cass City, Vassar, Frankenmuth, Marysville, Caro, Flint Bentley, Sandusky, Marlette, Port Huron Catholic and Flint Atherton.
