

Adamant Harvey Kritzman ready to fight for "his" road

A long smoldering feud between Harvey Kritzman of Cass City and the Cass City 4-H Wranglers Club headed by Al Seeley has reached explosive proportions that nearly resulted in violence last week and is far from settled today.

The squabble is over the ownership of Koch Road, 1 1/2 miles south of Cass City.

The road leads directly to the Kritzman home, about a half mile west of Cemetery Road. It is also the only access to land owned by Dr. Edward Scollon and donated to the club for use as a corral.

Kritzman claims that he has a deed that shows he owns the land. He's lived at his present home for 27 years and says that the road was nothing but a lane until he hauled gravel for a road bed and made it passable.

The road commission never touched this road. I did it all myself, the grizzled farmer added.

...he pointed a shotgun at me. Kritzman admits this and says "I should have shot him and got this over with."

"I own this road and I have three lawyers waiting to prove it," he said.

Access to the 4-H corral is from Koch Road only. Kritzman has tried just about everything to keep the kids and their leaders from using "his" road.

He cuts deep holes in the land in front of the entrance to the corral so that cars cannot enter and when Seeley smooths them over, he digs them again. He has posted signs saying "private road" and Seeley has taken them down.

The other day, Seeley said, he pointed a shotgun at me. Kritzman admits this and says, "I should have shot him and got this over with."

Despite the deed which Kritzman owns, the County Road

Commission believes that Koch is a public road.

Members passed a resolution to this effect and instructed the prosecutor to initiate action against Kritzman.

But the prosecutor has been dragging his feet, the 4-H leaders believe.

While the controversy swirls, the Wranglers Club have been using the corral "only with a great deal of difficulty, if at all."

Prosecutor Leo Maki is not deliberately stalling, but the wheels of the law sometimes grind exceedingly slow. Especially if you are a youngster trying to start preparing for the county fair this summer.

Before Maki could act, he needed an official resolution from the Tuscola County Road

Commission saying that the road belonged to the county and asking the prosecutor to take legal steps to keep it open.

This delayed action for a couple of weeks and now Maki is involved in the murder trial of Samuel Villarreal.

He promises to take action as soon as this case is concluded.

Meanwhile, the 4-H club members are in the same position that they have been on and off in the three years or so that they have been using the corral; not certain at any time just what the reception will be when they arrive.

Since Kritzman is adamantly determined to keep the road for his very own, and is ready to fight any take over, either in court or out, it is probable that another summer will slip by leaving the club still in limbo. . . or at the very least, using the facilities while keeping an eye open for trouble that could come at any moment.

THIS IS THE ROAD that is at issue in a case that almost certainly will end in the courts if not in violence.

It's unfair, that's what it is. They won't let me claim our dog, Snookie, as a dependent.

If that mongrel isn't dependent, I just don't know the meaning of the word.

He's not only dependent, he's dependable. Oh, how he is dependable.

You can positively unequivocally depend on that mutt to show up at mealtime and to figure out a way to get himself into some mess that requires the service of a veterinarian.

Our dog might not be man's best friend, but he has to rate right up there with Dr. Harry Crandell. A couple of more dogs like Snookie and he could forget about caring for cows.

I don't say that I've had him in to Harry all that often, but when he sees the good doctor he wags his tail and goes bounding forward like Lassie heading for home.

A year or so ago we had a horse and as I look back at it now, that horse has become a beautiful animal.

Sure he cost $25 a month to keep and of course he was seldom ridden but...he never came whining at my bedroom door at 4:30 a. m. to get out of the house or almost ram the screen door in, a half hour later to get back in just as I am pleasantly getting back to 'reamland.

Our dog probably costs as much to keep as our horse did. Maybe more.

Impossible you say? Not for a dog with talent.

Our eldest hadn't sneaked him into our house for more than a couple of days when it was decided that he simply must have shots. Rabies shots, distemper shots. . . all the shots that dogs can possibly get our dog has had.

He's a mongrel but he's medically protected right up there with the blue bloods of the kennel set.

And have I told you about the drapes he's ruined and the shoes he has chewed? We finally figured out why leaving a pair of shoes lying around the floor at our house is like leaving an open bottle of booze before an PICKETS LIKE THESE stood at all the entrances to General Cable Saturday as workers walked off the job after last minute negotiations failed to bring agreement. One source reported there were about 20 votes difference in the balloting in the package presented to the membership. Cable hires 350 or more area persons.

5 seek 3 open Cass City school board positions

The five candidates seeking the three open Cass City School Board positions have two things in common. All have several children and all have been interested in school affairs for many years.

Most of the five are non-committal about any other reasons for wanting to help direct the activities of the school district.

Two of the five have been involved in school affairs for many years as incumbent members of the board and are asking to be allowed to continue to serve.

The candidate with the most previous service is Donald Reid. He first joined the board in 1960 when he was one of four elected from among nine candidates. Reid is a dairy farmer, the father of four children and is active in the Presbyterian Church.

He has been a member of the board as the school went through several money crises; seen the rise of teachers' unions, and participated in the planning for construction of the new high school.

The second candidate with long experience is Mrs. Geraldine Prieskorn. She has completed 8 years on the board. She was born in Cass City in 1931 and moved to Bay City as a young girl. She returned with her husband in 1959. She is a graduate of Northwestern University and has five children. While on the board she worked through the construction of the new high school and has been a diligent supporter of curriculum improvement.

The third incumbent has served only briefly on the board. Dean Hoag was appointed Feb. 8 to replace Horace Bule. He is in charge of shipping at General Cable Corporation and has been interested in school affairs for many years. He is the father of five and is a native of the Cass City area.

Challenging Hoag for the two-year term to fill the vacancy is Victor Guernsey. Guernsey is a 1952 graduate of Michigan State University and is vice-president of fuel pump sales at Walbro Corporation.

Union strikes: rejects Cable's final offer

Employees at General Cable Corporation, members of local 6222 of the United Steel Workers, turned down a "final offer" of management Friday and went on strike Saturday morning.

The offer was termed by Richard Rinaldi, plant manager, as the most expensive ever worked out at any General Cable plant at any time.

Mrs. Grace Nemeth, local president, termed the offer inadequate and said that the union and management are quite far apart.

She said that the basic areas of disagreement were the incentive standards and the company's vacation policy. At Cable the plant closes in the summer and all employees take their vacation at this time.

Meanwhile, Rinaldi said that the total cost of the wage package over the next three years works out to over 80 cents per hour.

In the first year the pact called for at least 19 cents per hour for all employees, plus upgrading of job classifications at a cost of 6.3 cents per hour.

In addition, the company agreed to increase the spread between jobs from 9 1/2 cents to 10 cents per hour for all grades six through 19.

Life insurance and accidental death or dismemberment insurance was upped from $4,000 to $5,000. New provisions for life insurance on retirement that allows $1,000 the first year and decreases 20 per cent per year after the first year, was authorized.

For employees actively working over the age of 65, Cable would have paid medicare and insurance premium costs of Blue Cross, Blue Shield filler insurance.

In the second year the company offered 15 cents per hour with the day after Thanksgiving as an additional paid holiday. Management offered two weeks' vacation after three years instead of five years.

The company also agreed to start a pension plan patterned after one now in force by the Steelworkers. It would have been fully company paid, Rinaldi said.

In 1973 another 15 cents per hour would be added to salaries and health and accident insurance weekly benefits increased from $65 to $70.

The plant manager also said that significant changes were offered in the incentive rate. The majority of the incentive workers were in grade three and these workers were to have been placed in grade four and in some cases, grade five.

Cable employee rates started, before the new wage offer, at $1.95 for incentive workers and would have been increased to $2.30 1/2 cents in the first year.

Machinists were at the top of the wage scale and were receiving $3.73 1/2 and would have received $3.99 in the first year under the new pact.

The union and management bargained 36 straight hours before giving up Friday morning at 10 a. m. In anticipation of the strike that was officially called at 1 p. m. Saturday, about 10 per cent of the workers staged a wildcat strike the day before the official strike began.

Mrs. Nemeth said, "no comment," when asked in what areas she felt the incentive pay was inadequate.

She said that she felt that the employees should have a right to take vacations "when they wanted it, not when the company wanted to give it to them."

Rinaldi stressed that about 80 per cent of the work force would be eligible for vacations if the new pact had been accepted by the workers.

To schedule production realistically, we must be able to plan for vacation periods," he said.

Representatives for both union and management say that there are no prospects for an early resumption of negotiations.

Rinaldi said that the company has made its final offer and will wait until the union requests discussion about it.

The strike is the second to hit industry in Cass City. Earlier this spring, Walbro Corporation, the community's second largest employer, was idled for seven weeks.

Indications are that the current strike may well be as lengthy.

Tight fisted land control seen in Elkland zone laws

Members of the Elkland Township Zoning Board reviewed a final revision of the proposed township zoning ordinances and ordered several changes.

Meeting in public session at the Cass City Cultural Center, the entire ordinance was carefully reviewed by Chairman Grant Hutchinson and the zoning board.

The new zoning law, together with a junk yard ordinance, will give the township tight fisted control over all building, all business and all industry located in Elkland township.

Among the provisions of the ordinance that will have wide effect are:

The restriction of any single family home built outside a subdivision to a minimum of one-acre lots.

The restriction of any two-family home to about 1 1/4 acre lots.

Setting a minimum of 10 acres to classify land as being a "farm". This is important, authorities say, because under the new law no farm animals will be allowed on any property that is not classified as a farm.

The ordinance also makes adequate off-street parking a must for all new buildings and establishes rigid rules for building on property. . . requiring set amounts of space between buildings and the edge of the property.

Under the new law, the zoning board will have final approval of land use for schools, colleges, parks, taverns, race tracks and other similar "secondary" uses.

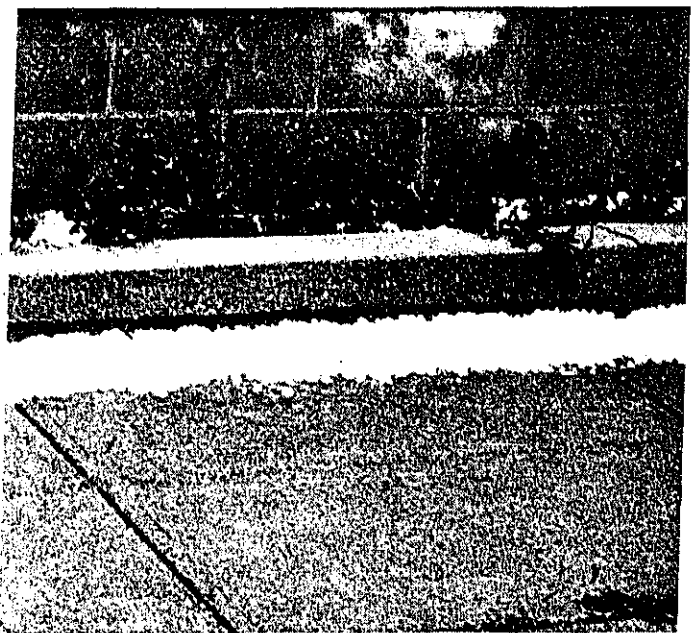

The changes authorized in the meeting Monday were in the areas of business and industrial zoning.

A half mile of land east and west of the village limits fronting on M-81 was set aside for business expansion.

An estimated 180 acres near the railroad tracks and adjacent to land owned by the Cass City Development Corporation in southwest Cass City was set aside for industrial expansion.

An important facet of the new zoning law is the establishment of the right of variance to the code. In effect this gives the zoning board the right to allow building that does not conform to the new code, judging each application as it is presented to the board.

Members of the zoning board working on the final draft Monday included: Hutchinson, Bob Tuckey, Jack Laurie and Tom Herron.

A FENCE OF hail immediately after the storm struck. For more pictures and story turn to page 17.

The bride is an RN and is employed in Bay City. Her sister, Debbie Cooley, was one of the bridesmaids and also sang "The Lord's Prayer." Frederick Carlton Cooley of Owendale, cousin of the bride, was organist.

Mrs. Glen Mellendorf

The First Baptist Church, Bad Axe, was the setting for the May 29 wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Mellendorf. The couple were married in an evening ceremony by the Rev. G. Steven Baker, pastor.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Binder of Bad Axe and Mrs. Erma Mellendorf of Owendale and the late Stanley Mellendorf.

Candelabra and vases of white gladioli and pink mums flanked the church altar.

The bride wore a traditional gown fashioned of organza over taffeta, detailed with Venice lace. The high Victorian neckline was laced with satin, also banding the Camelot sleeves and circling the raised waistline. Her bouffant illusion veil was held by a semi-crown of organza and Venice lace.

Given in marriage by her father, she carried a white Bible with a white orchid, stephanotis and ivy. Maid of honor for her sister was Janice Binder of Bad Axe and bridesmaids were Joann Binder of Caro and Mrs. Richard Binder of Bad Axe.

The honor maid, bridesmaids and junior bridesmaid were identically styled gowns in pink double chiffon, designed with white lace banding the high neckline and accenting the bodice with full double chiffon sleeves. Matching pink floral looped veils completed their ensembles. Julie Helwig was junior bridesmaid and ring bearer was Jeffrey Binder.

Gary Mellendorf of Cass City was best man for his twin brother. Groomsman were Daniel Binder and Richard Binder, both of Bad Axe.

Mrs. Binder, the bride's mother, chose a matching pink coat-dress ensemble with lace trim. Mrs. Mellendorf wore a beige dress and matching accessories. Both mothers had white rose corsages.

A reception for about 200 guests was held at the Farm Bureau Building, Bad Axe. The couple left for a northern trip and are making their home in Cass City.

The groom is a graduate of Owendale High School and the bride, Harbor Beach Community School. She is the former Judith Ann Binder.

The couple are employed in Cass City. He is with the Sunoco Station and she is employed by Walbro Corporation.

Guests attended from Port Huron, Flint, Richmond, Harbor Beach, Memphis, Detroit, Fairgrove, Bay City, Cass City and the surrounding vicinity.

The 22-year-old soldier is a clerk with Headquarters Company of the 1st Signal Brigade, near Long Binh.

His wife Janet lives on Route 1, Kingston.

Mrs. Larry King

Saturday, May 29, the United Methodist Church in Cass City was the scene of the wedding when Miss Cheryl Whittaker and Larry King, both of Cass City, were married. The Rev. Clem Schott officiated at the double-ring ceremony. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Whittaker of Cass City and he is the son of Mrs. Vera King, Cass City.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a satin gown with a floor length train. Her veil was a floor length mantilla, accented with Belgium lace. She carried a white Bible with a white orchid, purple asters and lilies.

Maid of honor was Diane Whittaker. She wore a light lavender floor length crepe dress with dark lavender accessories. She carried an arm bouquet of dark lavender and white asters.

Bridesmaids were Kathy Whittaker and Wanda Whittaker. They wore dresses identical to the maid of honor. They also carried arm bouquets of dark lavender and white asters.

Linda Whittaker, Lori Whittaker and Rita Whittaker were flower girls.

Larry Guilds was best man and Bob King and Jerry King were ushers.

Mrs. Whittaker wore a turquoise crepe dress with matching accessories. She also wore a corsage of white carnations and yellow rosebuds.

Mrs. King chose a pink crepe dress with a lace overlay. Her corsage consisted of pink rosebuds and white carnations.

Special music consisted of the songs, "Because," "The Lord's Prayer," and the theme from "Love Story."

A reception for 300 guests followed in the Deford Elementary School.

The bride is a graduate of Cass City High School and Delta College. She is now a registered nurse. The groom graduated from Cass City High School and is employed at General Cable.

The bride wore a mint green pantsuit when they left for their honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls and New York State.

The couple now reside on Sherman Street in Cass City.

A racial confrontation

BY JIM FITZGERALD

There were over 53,000 people at the ball park that Sunday, which meant waiting in a long line to buy a beer. I came away from the counter wondering if a race riot could be caused by a barmaid who had only Stroh's, no Budweiser. It was the guy in front of me who wanted a Bud. He was a fat black man who smiled at my redheaded son and made friendly conversation as the line edged slowly forward. The trouble began when Fatty finally reached the barmaid and requested a Budweiser.

"Go to the next stand," she said curtly, "all we have is Stroh's." She was white.

Many of the concession stands at Tiger Stadium sell only Stroh's on draft. It is no coincidence that Stroh's sponsors the baseball broadcasts. And it is probably no coincidence that there is no large sign at these stands, warning thirsty patrons that they shouldn't waste time standing in line if they want something besides Stroh's. An uninformed customer is good for Stroh's business. By the time he reaches the counter he has already missed 2 home runs and his thirst has grown fatter while his patience has thinned. He'll take whatever the barmaid is handing out, as long as it's cold and quick.

That's how black Fatty felt about the situation. He told the barmaid he'd buy whatever she was selling, rather than buck another long line. But he couldn't resist commenting on her impolite dismissal. "That's no way to talk to a man," he told her. "Don't tell me to go somewhere else. Ask me if I want a Stroh's."

The barmaid wasn't going to take any of his lip. She lipped right back. With great nastiness, she informed Fatty that he couldn't tell her what to say, and what she had said was perfectly OK, she had no Budweiser, and so on. . . .

Now Fatty was angry. He out-nastied her. He accused her of talking down to him because he was black. He said "you people better get off your high horse or we are going to knock you off." He looked ready to climb over the bar and start knocking right then.

So all of a sudden, there it was: a racial confrontation in all its ugliness. Dozens of people, black and white, were crowded around the 2 antagonists. Thousands of people, black and white, were just a few feet away. The sun was hot and the booze was flowing. I wished my son were someplace else — and I were there with him.

Crystal Horn drowns in Bay Port Channel

Crystal Horn, 16, daughter of Mrs. Thelma Horn of Bay Port, drowned Friday evening about 5:30 south of Bay Port when she apparently stepped in a six foot hole in the Bay Port, Channel. Miss Horn and a companion, Maryann Strong of Bay Port, were wading in the area when the accident occurred. Miss Horn was just learning to swim and Coroner James Colgan ruled the death an accidental drowning.

It makes the second drowning victim in Huron county in this young summer season.

But there was no riot. Not this time. The barmaid's boss whispered in her ear and she quickly shut up. Someone told Fatty that overworked barmaids, with 53,000 customers, are often rude to everyone, regardless of race, creed or religion, and he shouldn't take it personally. He took his Stroh's and left. Whew!

It was true about the barmaid. I observed her twice more throughout the double-header. She was nasty to 2 youngsters — both white — who had innocently sweated out a long line only to reach the dragon at the end and learn that she wouldn't sell them pop: "Y'er in the wrong line, kid." (But there's no sign warning the kids.)

I told my son there was something important to be learned from what we'd seen. It is the importance of politeness. Everyone should smile more. They should always say "please," and "thank you." They should be kind to each other. Why not? It doesn't hurt. Actually, it makes you feel good.

There's a lot that's lousy in this world, and God knows good manners are no cure-all. "Thank you" said a million times isn't going to take the sting and unfairness out of bigotry. But politeness is certainly the Onward and Upward way to go.

Thanks for listening to the sermon. Please come again.

Select 14-member jury in Villarreal murder trial

The trial of Samuel Villarreal, 59, of Kingston, began Tuesday morning in Tuscola County Circuit Court on a charge of first degree murder. Villarreal, a Mexican-American farmer, is a resident of the Plain Road area southwest of Kingston. He is charged with the slaying of his common law wife, Millie, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 27, 1970. A 14-member jury was selected by noon to hear the case with two of the jury members to serve should any members take ill during what is expected to be a fairly lengthy trial.

Before the jury begins deliberating the case the number will be cut to twelve by lot. The indications from Judge James P. Churchill today were that the court will convene for about five hours a day and the prosecution began its presentation of the case Tuesday afternoon.

Propose State control of schools

Legislation has been introduced in the Michigan House to turn over full responsibility for financing public education to the State by the 1973-74 school year.

The measure also would require all school districts in Michigan to submit their budgets a year in advance for State scrutiny.

House Republican Leader Clifford Smart of Walpole Lake introduced the proposal Monday.

The bill also calls for a statewide teachers' salary scale based on the number of years in the profession and the educational attainment of the individual teacher.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM C. O'DELL

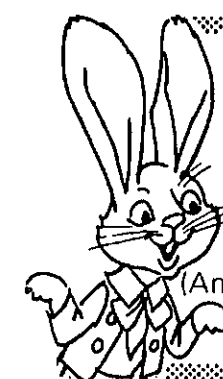

The family of Mr. and Mrs. William C. O'Dell will hold an open house honoring their 40th wedding anniversary Sunday, June 13, from 1:00 p. m. to 7:00 p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Miller, at 425 W. Lincoln, Caro.

William O'Dell and Loraine Bogert were married at Vassar June 12, 1931, by the Reverend James Priestley. At that time Mr. O'Dell was manager of the Vassar A & P Store. Later they opened their own store, known as O'Dell's Food Shop. They lived in Vassar about seven years after their marriage. After two years in Chicago they moved to Cass City.

Mr. O'Dell is a building contractor and Mrs. O'Dell, who worked as a secretary for over 15 years at the Cass City High School, is now assisting her husband in the building business.

They have six children: Mrs. Joel (Donna) Hurley of Ann Arbor; Keith O'Dell of Owosso; David O'Dell of Colorado; Jack O'Dell of Grand Ledge; Mrs. David (Judy) Johns of Grand Rapids; and Mrs. William (Arlene) Miller of Caro. They also have 11 grandchildren.

All friends are invited to attend the open house. Please, no gifts.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Most any fiction writer would reject this plot as unbelievable. Last week Diane Asher wore her mother's jacket to school and lost the glasses from one of the pockets.

A while later an area resident found the glasses and turned them into the Chronicle.

Mrs. Joann Asher works at the Chronicle and was grousing about losing the glasses and was told to check the glasses turned in and (you've guessed it) they belonged to her.

Manual James Saplen, the motorcycle rider involved in a crash last week, reports some interesting sidelights about the crash.

While he lay over the hood of the car where he was thrown on impact he could hear the people around him and understand their questions, but was unable to utter a sound.

When he arrived at Hills and Dales General Hospital he felt fine and was treated for minor bruises and released.

He went home to bed and the next day was unable to get up. He checked back into the hospital again and after several days of treatment was up and around with the help of crutches.

Most of the action in baseball is not in each individual play but the anticipation of the play ahead. Although the crowds were small at the high school district tournament and student support almost non-existent, the fans who did trek to Essexville were rewarded with a tight contest and staid old baseball was showing its wares to best advantage.

I guess what I'm trying to say is that everyone was swept up by baseball's drama and that the games were more interesting because of the new tournament aspect of the game.

There are five candidates for three open posts on the Cass City School Board this year. The vital statistics appear elsewhere in this issue.

But if you want to find out why these people want to serve you will have to ferret it out for yourself.

It's traditional in smaller communities to mask real reasons for seeking public office. It's the rare candidate that speaks out and tells his real motivation for running or how he feels about issues.

The reason for this deplorable condition is that the candidate who speaks freely about what it is he's up-tight about rarely is elected.

CASS CITY VILLAGE COUNCIL MEETING

The regular meeting of the Cass City Village Council was held on May 25, 1971 at the Municipal Building. All Trustees except Gary Christner were present.

The minutes of the regular April meeting and a special May meeting were read and approved.

The water and sewer rates increases were discussed in detail. A motion was made by Trustee Ross and supported by Trustee Jones to increase the water and sewer rates to: 0 to 5,000 gallons -- $5.00; 5,001 - 15,000 gallons -- $5.00; 15,001 - 25,000 gallons -- $5.00; 25,001 - 300,000 gallons -- $5.00; over 300,001 gallons -- $5.00. Also the following recommendations: (1) that the Village be divided into three sections and the billing period be adjusted so that one section be read and billed each month; (2) that a $5.00 water turn-off-turn-on and special meter reading fee be assessed; (3) that the water and sewer tap-in fees be increased $100.00 each; (4) that users outside the Village limits be charged a $10.00 per quarter per user extension fee and water rates double those of Village residents; and (5) that the basic quarterly charge be maintained regardless of whether the water is turned on or off.

Before action was taken on the above motion, a motion was made by Trustee Rawson and supported by Trustee Albee that the above motion be amended to include a 10% penalty charge for payments occurring 30 days or more after the end of the quarter. Motion to amend carried.

The motion to increase rates as amended was then passed. The Financial Report for the month of April was reviewed. The Finance Committee reported that they met with the members of the employee's pension program in detail, but that no changes were recommended at this time.

Mr. Blades reported to the Council that new building permit applications are being used, which are put out by the Building Officials and Code Administrators International, Inc.

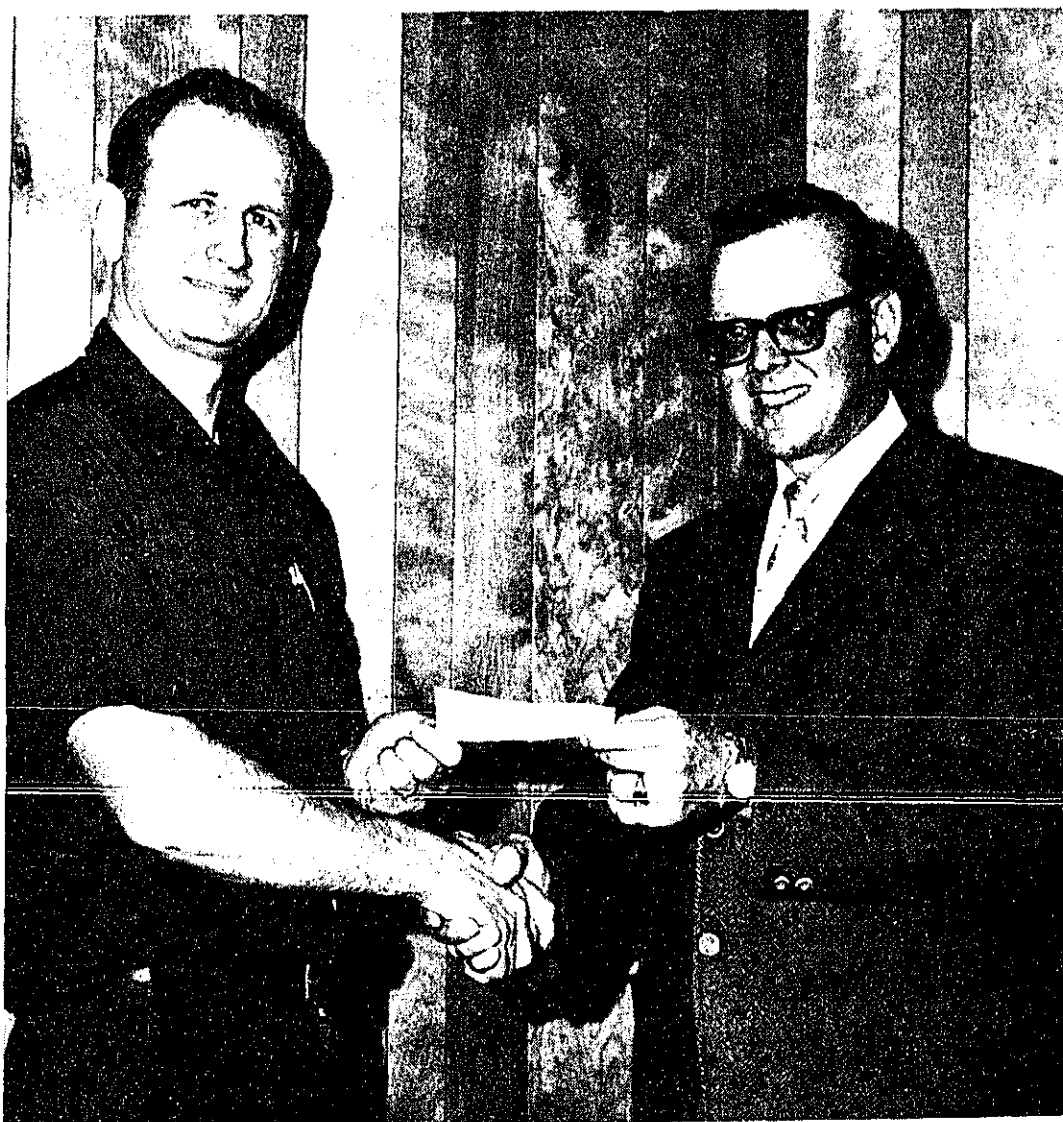

Mr. Blades also reported that the new 1971 Chevrolet Biscayne police car has been ordered and it should arrive in approximately two weeks.

The Street Program was discussed briefly. The possibility of double seal coating Maple Street from Third Street to the south Village limits as an experiment was discussed. The overall street program including costs and projects will be discussed further in detail at the June meeting.

A motion was made by Trustee Ross that the bills as examined by the Finance Committee be approved for payment. Motion carried.

There being no further business, a motion was made by Trustee Albee and supported by Trustee Rawson that the meeting be adjourned.

He has served on many school committees including the curriculum study committee, the defunct Home and School Council and the Band Boosters. He participated in several voluntary fund raising drives for the school. He is the father of five children.

He says that he is running to be of service to the community; to try and help the community that has been of great service to him.

Seeking to upset one of the incumbents for a regular four-year term is Dr. Edward Scollon. Scollon says that he has no axes to grind. I would like to see a little more harmony among the teachers, administration and the citizens, he said.

Scollon, the father of five, points to a continuing interest in education. He was a candidate for the Tri-County Community College Board before it was voted by voters. Scollon has been a resident of Cass City for seven years. He was born in Laingsburg, Mich., and is a 1961 graduate of Michigan State University.

Corn averages 83 bushels per acre in county

Tuscola county farmers harvested 41,500 acres of corn for grain in 1970, according to Arvin Budge of the Michigan Crop Reporting Service. Production amounted to 3,444,000 bushels, an average of 83.0 bushels per acre. This compares to the 1969 crop of 2,260,000 bushels from 31,800 acres.

FEDERAL FUNDS FOR KINGSTON DELAYED

Tuscola county's Department of Public Works held a progress meeting last Thursday and learned that no federal funds are available at this moment for Kingston's proposed sanitary sewer development. Reese is 50 per cent of the way to completion on their work and Millington is also ahead of schedule. Kingston's half million dollar project requires nearly $200,000 in federal help. While the purse strings are tied at this time the project is expected to be funded in a short time.

Chaplain S. Beach selected for study

Navy Chaplain and Mrs. Stan Beach and their two children, Laurie and Randy, recently returned from Cubi Point Naval Air Station in the Philippines, where Beach completed one and 1/2 years of duty.

Beach spent the month of May as a patient in the Philadelphia Naval Hospital, attending a Hearing Rehabilitation Clinic. The family has now moved to Winston Salem, North Carolina, where Beach will begin a year of study, Hospital Clinical Training, at the School of Pastoral Care, North Carolina Baptist Hospital.

Beach was one of ten chaplains, selected by the Navy Chaplains Corps, to attend post-graduate school.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Beach of Gagetown.

Snoodle's a glue sniffer and he rips out heels, soles and insoles to get at the glue underneath.

About every other day he cuts a paw or is scratched somehow and needs doctoring. That's so common no one pays much attention any more.

But that dismal dog did something last week that caught our attention right now and is keeping it. . . how long we can only guess.

He lost a bout with a skunk and believe me there must have been a lot of in-fighting.

Don't you believe that tomato juice baths will solve this problem. It helps. But every time the fur gets a little damp you'd swear that our Snoodle had gone back for a rematch.

He's just dumb enough to do it.

As he grew older he began chasing all over town so we had him turned into an it to solve our problem.

But this dog defies all laws of canine (or any other kind) of behavior. He gets into trouble anyway.

He is just smart enough to get in solid with both the kids at home.

He'll probably remain a non-deductible liability at the Haires for years and years.

Like old soldiers, I suspect he'll never die, just fade away at the veterinarians. . . at $5 a day.

What makes our Fury automatic transmission better than any other automatic transmission?

It's free.

Buy any specially-equipped Plymouth Fury V-8 and we can offer you the automatic transmission free.

Chrysler-Plymouth puts a lot of care into the building and engineering of their cars. And when you've got a good product, you go out of your way to get people to buy it.

They're doing that by not charging us for automatic transmissions on specially-equipped Furies. So we can now offer you an automatic transmission free.

Specially equipped? That means ordering your Fury V-8 with the popular kind of equipment you'd probably order anyway.

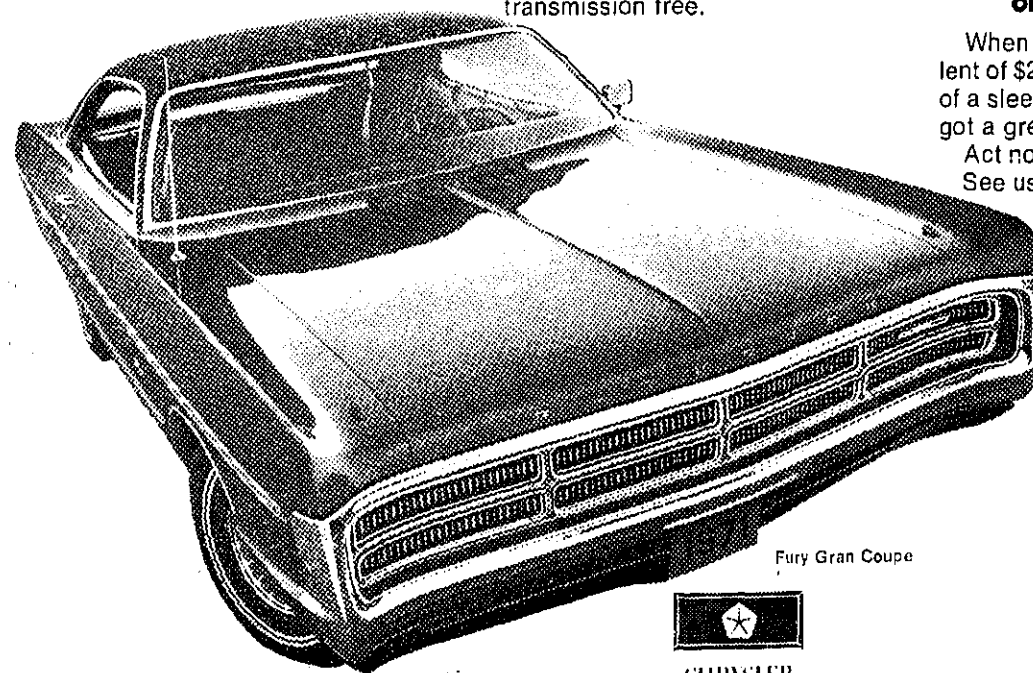

Powersteering, power front disc brakes, Chrysler Airtemp air conditioning, AM radio, vinyl roof, white sidewalls and more.

It's like shaving $216.40* off the sticker price.

When you can cut the equivalent of $216.40 off the sticker price of a sleek, roomy Fury V-8, you've got a great deal going for you.

Act now. See us.

4 keys to top alfalfa yields

By William Bortel

There are four management "keys" to top alfalfa yields. They are: (1) Harvest early June 1-10, (2) Topdress with fertilizer, especially potassium, (3) Use a Flammande, early-maturing variety and (4) control alfalfa weevil if serious enough to spray.

Earlier cutting of the first cutting permits three cuttings instead of two in Tuscola county and provides a higher quality feed. Milk production per cow lowers proportionally with the date of alfalfa harvest after June 10.

Top dressing with 200 pounds of 0-20-20, 0-15-30 or a similar fertilizer with boron after first cutting is a starting point for a good fertilizer practice. Use 200 pounds of 0-0-60 after the last cutting and this will complete the program. However, a soil test would be of help to fit the right program to your alfalfa fields.

Saranac alfalfa has been the best yielding most consistent variety in Tuscola county. Saranac is winter-hardy and bacterial wilt resistant and stands 4-5 years. The best variety for longer stands is Vernal.

The alfalfa weevil is moving into Tuscola county and some farmers have been forced to spray their alfalfa fields. However, don't spray until the first cutting is off and then use an insecticide immediately if the Infestation of weevils warrants a spray.

Good alfalfa harvested at the proper stage of maturity means more milk and more milk means more dollars return per cow.

BETTER HEALTH

Is a sore throat serious?

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Usually, when a person gets a sore throat, it is not a serious matter, and it quickly clears up. But sometimes, if the soreness does not quickly leave and perhaps does not disappear even after the person has taken penicillin, it may be a symptom of some infectious disease, such as measles or scarlet fever or infectious mononucleosis.

Sometimes the physician can see at a glance that the sore throat is due to, or associated with, tonsillitis, which may be accompanied by a fever and a headache. Sometimes because of their continued state of infection or repeated spells of tonsillitis, the tonsils have to be removed surgically. If the tonsils rarely get infected, it rarely helps to have them removed.

When I was a child, I had at least four terrible attacks of tonsillitis a year. Sometimes, when there was an abscess in a tonsil, I had what people called quinsy in those days. I should have had my tonsils out when I was a child, but in those days the operation was seldom performed. Eventually, when I was in college, I had the offending tonsils removed. I still went on having my four colds a year, but after the tonsillectomy, they were not so hard on me.

Many years ago, when I was a young man in medicine, it was the fashion to remove the tonsils from almost every adult -- perhaps because he had some pains in his joints, or perhaps he just felt tired and miserable and the doctor thought he was getting poisoned by his tonsils. After questioning 257 persons who had had their tonsils removed, not in childhood, but in adult life, I found that 32 per cent of them said they were glad they had had the operation, and another 27 per cent said they felt they had received some benefit. Unfortunately, 8 per cent were much worse after the operation, and it is sad that often after the tonsils had been removed, the person still got his sore throats.

Some sore throats can be due to an allergy; excessive smoking can cause the person to get a cough and a sore throat; it can also result from the habit of sleeping with the mouth open.

Every so often a young person, perhaps a college student, will have a sore throat associated with infectious mononucleosis, which is sometimes called glandular fever and causes him to feel very fatigued and achey, to develop swollen glands, and to take to his bed for awhile. Fortunately, without treatment, the disease clears up, and the youngster can get up and go back to work when he no longer has a fever.

Another possible cause of a sore throat is a "deviated septum," in which the thin strip of bone separating the two halves of the nose is crooked, or has a spur growing out from it, blocking half of the nose and forcing the person to breathe through his mouth. A good nose expert can easily repair the trouble.

A particularly painful sore throat can be caused by the streptococcus germ (thus it is called a "strep throat"). This infection can be very dangerous, because it can produce fever, arthritis, and a serious injury to the heart valves -- a disease called "rheumatic fever". Fortunately today, penicillin can protect the person from these dangers, and perhaps someday the disease will be wiped off the face of the earth.

Another disease that is rare today, thanks to the antibiotics, is scarlet fever; this disease once struck down thousands of children every year and was greatly feared because of its tendency to produce a serious and sometimes lasting infection of the kidneys.

When a person is suffering from one sore throat after another, and can't seem to get well, it is a good idea to go to a laboratory where an expert makes a "swab" of the throat. He grows the germs that are on the swab and finds the one, perhaps a streptococcus, that is most likely to be causing the trouble. Then he grows this in a dozen different test-tubes, each containing a different antibiotic which will tell him which best combats the germ. The patient then takes this antibiotic, and usually he is soon rid of the bad germ and the distressing chronic sore throat.

NOTICE OF MEETING OF DRAINAGE BOARD

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Notice is hereby given that on the 12th day of April, 1971, a Petition was filed with Stuart Armstead, County Drain Commissioner of the county of Sanilac, asking for the cleaning out, relocating, widening, deepening, straightening, extending and relocating along a highway.

And Whereas the Drainage District of the Clark and Branches drain includes lands within the Township of Evergreen, County of Sanilac, Township of Novesta, County of Tuscola.

And Whereas, a certified copy of said Petition was served upon Leslie Lounsbury, County Drain Commissioner of the County of Tuscola, and the Director of Agriculture, by Stuart Armstead, County Drain Commissioner of the County of Sanilac.

Now, Therefore, in accordance with Act No. 40, P. A. 1956, as amended, a meeting of the Drainage Board of said drain will be held at Southeast corner of Lamont and Severance Roads, Section 19 in the township of Evergreen, county of Sanilac, on the 17th day of June 1971, at 11:00 o'clock in the forenoon, to determine the practicalness of said improvement.

Now, Therefore, all persons owning lands liable to an assessment for benefits or whose lands will be crossed by said drain, or any municipality affected, are requested to be present at said meeting, if they so desire.

Dated at Lansing, Michigan, this 19th day of May 1971.

CLASS PROPHECY

The Law Firm of 'Patnaude and Guernsey' was well established by 1985. The two of us were spread to both sides of the nation. Jude was in New York City and I was in Los Angeles, California. I was slaving away at my typewriter when he should walk in, but Jude himself. Jude was heading for Hollywood to do a picture. He was doing a little Broadway acting in New York and was spotted by a talent scout, who was quoted in saying, "He'll be another John Wayne."

Before Jude did his shooting of his picture we decided to tour the country and try and find all our old Cass City High School chums. We headed toward Salt Lake City, Utah, where we were greeted by Ted Lauria, who was the director of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir. Then back down to Las Vegas where we were pleased to find Clint Warner running the Golden Nugget Casino and right next door, giving him real competition was Gwen Bills running the Pink Flamingo.

We hustled down to Houston to talk to Larry Whitaker, Nuclear Physicist, who was mainly responsible for the space shot going off the next day at Cape Kennedy. We whipped to the Cape and had a chat with astronauts Chuck Hewlett, Jim McCreedy, and Rodger Pugh. Stopping at Miami Beach, we had dinner with Mike Sherman and Sue McDonald, who were celebrating their 14th anniversary.

Going up through Kentucky, we came across Duane and Doug O'Dell and their horse empire that covered a large chunk of the state. Another interesting thing we saw was Ray Smutek running around like a crazy man trying to find out why Blue Grass isn't really blue. We traveled to the Eastern Seaboard where we were approached by those two traveling salesladies, JoAnn Peters and Sally Groombridge. That evening we saw a rousing game of Roller Derby, with the leading stars, Judy Snear and Pat Bean. The next day, we were very disappointed to find out that Bob Hennessey was still in his quest for his long lost love. Over to the ocean where we found Cindy McClorey owning a quaint fresh milk stand and right in front of the stand was Randy Kozan who had just turned hippy and was all freaked out, sprawled on the beach. Up the beach a ways there was a big ruckus. It seems that Mardi Auten, famous for her Virginia Slins ad, lost her prescription sunglasses. You've come a long way, baby.

New York City was our next stop. Jude's home town. He showed me around where the riots took place that our Class had started when we were on our Senior trip. Marty LeValley took over the Tonight Show from Johnny Carson and Mick Kirn replaced Ed MacMahn. Margie Sattelburg ran a tug boat on the Hudson River. Lona Fox gave tours of the Statue of Liberty. Terri Freeman was the United States Ambassador to the United Nations. Patty Doerr was a professional student and specialized in writing love letters to teachers. Les Merchant was a painter in Greenwich Village. Donna Sugden, Carol Tuckey and Kathy Urban were social workers in Harlem. Jan Glaspie had a taxi service and ran a car wash on the side. Rob Alexander was holding out for 1 1/2 million dollars from the Mets.

We headed up to Niagara Falls where we found good old Zike Miller, who had just gone over the Falls in a barrel, the Canadian side of course. We stopped and saw Chuck Mester who was the director of a rehabilitation program in New York State. Getting closer to Michigan we just had to stop and see the Indianapolis 500 winner, Charley Almas, in Indiana. But finally we arrived in Detroit. Tom Crow and Al Rodgers co-owned the Strohs Brewery. Chuck Hughes built the tallest building in Detroit because of his tremendous reputation of being a carpenter in Cass City. Cindy Strickland had somehow become mayor of Detroit; she just moved there two weeks ago and already someone appointed her mayor. Cheyenne Turner was arrested for trying to play Cowboys and Indians down the middle of Michigan Avenue and shooting arrows at the stores. Marsha Ball and LouAnn Kolb ran a Nurses Home.

Going up the main trunk line M-53 toward Cass City we saw the farms of Randy Hampshire, Gary Pringle, and Gerald Muz. Bill Brown had a milk route up and down 53. A little building caught our eyes; it was a barber shop and Dan Caister was running it. Sharla Crawford rented rides on her steamboat on the Cass River. Sharon Crawford is another story, ever since graduation, nobody has heard from her--she vanished out of existence.

We finally arrived at Cass City. Cass City had grown out to M-53 and right there on the corner was that good old traffic cop, Gary Lindahl. We drove slowly by Tom Hunt's Bumper Shop and Sue McRae's Beauty Salon. Lynn Johnston and Jim Maharg were competing for a monopoly on the drug stores in town. Libby Hillaker was the center for the Cass City girls' basketball team. There were a lot of guys that ran farms around the area: Joe Cooper, Eldon Hutchinson and Tom Russell.

Sue Koepfgen tried to bring some culture into Cass City by starting a concert orchestra, but it passed out of existence because you know how much culture there is in Cass City. There were a lot of kids out of our town that became nurses. They are: Carol Clarke, Joyce Karr, Kaye Smith, Sherry Bacon, and of course Ray Hendricks. An interesting side light about Sherry Bacon, she happened to marry Denny Jensen and had four kids, Physical, Mental, Social, and that little hellion, Religious. We went up to visit the High School, and were met at the door by Bob Mika, the janitor. One of the 4 people in Cass City had taken over the Michigan History class, Pat Pasanski. Clara Bauer was an English teacher, Mary Jane Croft was the Astrology teacher, and to our surprise the "Bean Queen" of that year. Linda Smith taught Typing and Business Training. Janice Hurd and Nancy Austin were art teachers of Cosmology. We had small talks with the principal, Ralph Retherford. The students called him by his nick-name, Uncle Rutebaga, and the Sergeant-at-arms, Kim Hopper, called by his nick-name, Field Marshall Hopper. Sir. Patty Wood was hiding out in Uncle Rutebaga's office because she had stolen ham from Yvonne Eria's Meat Shop. Jill Johnson and Karen Martin were top grease monkeys at their gas station and right next to it, Becky Parrott ran the best restaurant in town, called the Greasy Spoon. We were really entertained by Anne Bulen, the top-less waitress at the Greasy Spoon. Duane Englehart gave Becky some real competition with his chain of A & W Rootbeer stands. Jim Rogers was the local radio announcer. His best show was Jeff Spencer playing the harmonica and John Zawilinski playing the musical beer bottles. A new civic center was erected near uptown Cass City, headed by Matthew Wasserman. He hired Shari Geiger to find all the problems involved in building, and she found so many that she had to be fired. When it finally got built, Sharon Hartel was the head of the weight reducing department. Henry Wilson ran a miniature horse racing derby in one corner of the building. Diane Rabideau and Janet Weipert were lifeguards at the pool. Robbin Hoffman almost drowned trying to swim the length. It could have something to do with Diane and Jan beating her over the head with the lifesaving poles. Nancy Bigham and Kathy Dorland were receptionists for George Martin's Plymouth dealer. Dick Heronemus and Dennis Powell ran a successful Flower Market. Kaarina Vilppula went back to Finland and became a star of stage, screen, and television; another Zsa Zsa. Sally Whitaker was a missionary to Pakistan and it was nice to see Deb Turner had joined the clergy and became a Nun. Veronica Hewlett and Judy Pallas were the only ones on the Board of Directors of Lee Doering's John Deere store. Linda Dillon ran the local Alcoholics Anonymous and Kay Dillon was the first one to pass through with flying colors. Mike Papp stuck with his Gambles Store, and Jean McCreedy sold sod. Bob Kloc sold grass which made him rich. Jeanne Daley and Cindy Cooper investigated the mysterious story for the police that a man had turned into a Petosky Stone. Helen Whittaker ran a clothing store behind Carol Miracle's basketball supply shop. Cathy Pierce and Becky Creason were clerks for the J. L. Hudsons in town. Bob White entered for the black market. Kathy Hillaker followed Lee around all her life and Rita Zimba ran a successful worm farm. Harv Frederick got rich from selling all his gold medals from the Olympics.

After that harrowing experience, I looked back on it all and decided our Class of '71 is the best in the world. Every kid in our class will be a success in anything they do. I know I will never forget all the great times I've had. Ah, I have almost forgot, Ruthie Rayl. . . well Ruthie had to stay home this time, I didn't have enough money to take her with me. She wanted to stay in California anyway because she likes it there. Funny things happen to you when you go to California.

CLASS WILL

I, Charleyne Almas, will my stool underneath the vent in the bathroom and my ability to never get caught to anyone who smokes.

I, Mardi Auten, will my "backfield in motion" to the football team.

I, Sherry Bacon, will to Ron Crandell my ability to leave South Seeger Street at 8:32 and still make it to school on time. He needs it!

I, Marsha Ball, will my Shorthand II class to anyone unfortunate to have mistakenly taken it.

I, Clara Bauer, will my first hour government class to the poor Seniors of next year.

I, Pat Bean, will my ability to play basketball for five minutes without getting hurt to Peg Schwartz.

I, Nancy Bigham, will my dad's milk service to Louie Salas so that he will start drinking the right stuff.

I, Gwen Bills, will to Jeff Profit a package of Electric Kool-Aid.

I, Bill Brown, willfully will a case of Right Guard Extra-Dry to Fred Nolan.

I, Anne Bulen, will my license to Greg Hampshire so we won't have to walk on our dates.

I, Dan Caister, will lend the back seat of my car to Fred Harbec and Craig Guernsey anytime they need it.

I, Carol Clarke, will my 24 in Michigan History to anyone who takes the class.

I, Cindy Cooper, will my job as assistant editor of the Hawk Herald to anyone who is dumb enough to take Journalism.

I, Sharla Crawford, will all I have (and more) to my one Ugly guy.

I, Becky Creason, will my seat on Bus 22 to anyone that has nerve enough to take it.

I, Mary Jane Croft, will my body to next year's Biology II class so they'll have something to do.

I, Tom Crow, will my ability to come to school drunk and not get caught to Gerry Hartman and Mike Buniak.

I, Jeanne Daley, will to Mr. Hansen the Deford swamp---it's a beautiful vacation spot.

I, Kay Dillon, will to Carla Stine my freedom during the summer months at Caseville, and to Ken Marker lots of patience.

I, Linda Dillon, will my quietness to my cousin Doris Dillon.

I, Patty Doerr, will to Jim Landholt a gift coupon redeemable for twenty wedgies.

I, Kathy Dorland, will sit on Mr. Woody's lap anytime to take shorthand.

I, Yvonne Eria, will my ability to have parties when my parents go up north to my brother Rick. . . "Hope you don't get caught!"

I, Duane Englehart, will to Mr. Kuntz one over-size cork for his over-sized mouth.

I, Harvey Frederick, will my speedy track shoes to Randy Kelley so he can get enough points for his letter next year.

I, Terri Freeman, will nothing to nobody.

I, Shari Geiger, will the ability to remain loyal to one guy to Deb Chippi.

I, Jan Glaspie, will to Penny Copeland my "Helpless Female Act" and a flat tire so she can have all the guys she wants stop to help her fix it.

I, Sally Groombridge, will my ability to drink to Deb Ahern in hopes someday she'll be able to handle more than a beer cap.

I, Scott Guernsey, will to Mr. Ackerman some flaming arrows for his calvary fort.

I, Sharon Hartel, will to my brother, Scott, a girl big enough to block a pass, tall enough to sink a basketball, cute enough to fool the refs, and fast enough to. . .

I, Ray Hendrick, eagerly will Mr. Ackerman to the wolves on Isle Royale.

I, Bob Hennessey, will my beer mug to Tim Stickle.

I, Dick Heronemus, will my ability to keep quiet in an argument in Government class to Mr. Logan.

I, Veronica Hewlett, will my quietness to my sister Ginger.

I, Kathy Hillaker, will my ability to be loyal to one guy to my sister Karen.

I, Libby Hillaker, will my ability to get a snowmobile stuck in a ditch and caught in a fence to Deb Chippi.

I, Robbin Hoffman, will to Pamela Sue Kilbourn, Willy. . . if he were mine to will, but he's not mine to will, so I won't.

I, Janice Hurd, will my ability to go to the library without getting kicked out to Bonnie Flemming.

I, Jill Johnson, will my ability to stay out of school and not get caught to Romayne Bassett.

I, Lynn Johnston, will to my sister Kathy, my trips to Deford so she can get a "Deford Drip", too.

I, Joyce Karr, will to Mr. Carroll free lessons on how to ride a horse since he taught me how to drive a car.

I, Mick Kirn, will my shop ability to Mr. Dillon.

I, Sue Koepfgen, will my talent to carry a tune to Meb Esau, B.J. Haire, Nancy Kerbyson, and Joanie Russell because they're flat, and to my sister Linda, I will all my great skiing adventures. . . inside the lodge.

I, Lou Ann Kolb, will my cafeteria work to anyone who wants the exercise.

I, Randy Kozan, will my Phys-Ed whistle to Kip Hopper so he can call them as he sees 'em.

I, Branda Lawrence, will to my sister my good grades and my ability to stay out of trouble.

I, Marty LeValley, will my ability to stay out of trouble to Bill Chippi.

I, Gary Lindahl, will my big lips to my "soul brothers".

I, Sue MacDonald, will my contacts to Becky Loomis so she won't have to squint and blink anymore.

I, Jim Maharg, will my goofy laugh to Mr. Ackerman because he needs a laugh once in a while.

I, Cindy McClorey, will my false eyelashes to Linda Zawilinski, my body to Melody Thompson, my smile to Mr. Kuntz, and my mouth to Linda Ballagh. . . sorry, Mr. Woody, that's all I have left.

I, Jean McCreedy, will my ability to stay out of trouble in choir to Karen Koepf.

I, Sue McRae, will not willingly will my snowmobile to anyone! (Except Mr. Claubesch).

I, Les Merchant, will my artistic ability to Mrs. Wallace.

I, Carol Miracle, will to Pamela Sue Kilbourn, all my ability to stay out of trouble because when you are after five guys at the same time it could be dangerous.

I, Gerald Muz, will my ability to get out of school at three o'clock every day to Janie Speirs.

I, Doug O'Dell, will my can of DDT to Mr. Ackerman's plants.

I, Pat Pasanski, will my hair to Mr. Logan.

I, Jude Patnaude, will my shrunken pullover sweaters to Diane Asher.

I, Jo Ann Peters, will my ability to skip school and have my mother call in, and be able to get away with it to Deb Ahern.

I, Cathy Field Pierce, will my maternity clothes to the Salvation Army.

I, Dennis Powell, will my height to Mr. Logan so he can be a "little big man".

I, Gary Pringle, will my Ford to anybody who has lots of money, spare time, and tender loving care to devote to the poor thing.

I, Ruth Rayl, will my sewing ability to my sister Lynn so she won't wear my clothes.

I, Ralph Retherford, will a case of Budweiser to Mr. Richards to drink while he's watching the bathtubs.

I, Al Rogers, will my new track record in the cross-country beer run to Marty Osentoski.

I, Jim Rogers, will my talents in the dark room to John Brewton.

I, Margie Sattelberg, will a year's supply of gum, a bottle of aspirin, and subscriptions to all the newspapers in the world to Mr. Logan.

I, Mike Sherman, will my Chrysler to Jim Strattebug because he needs a big car.

I, Judy Snear, will make it because I want to, not because I have to!

I, Jeff Spencer, will myself to Miss Olding for one or more nights out on the town, if she'll drive.

I, Cindy Strickland, will my poor memory in remembering jokes to B. J. Haire, so she'll forget her B. J. punnies, and also my dealing ability to my brother Curt so he'll play his cards right.

I, Donna Sugden, will Mr. Logan a new clock in hopes that it will run faster than his does now.

I, Carole Tuckey, will Mr. Palmer the ability to let his next year's government class hand in extra credit, because they, like us, are going to need it.

I, Cheyenne Turner, will my fighting chickens to Mr. Poppycock.

I, Deb Turner, will my pack of cigarettes to Mrs. Brown so she can come out to the parking lot and join the crowd.

I, Kathy Urban, will my ability to work a long time at the Cass Theatre and get along with the boss to Mary Martin.

I, Kaarina Vilppula, will my blintzes to the east of the Spring play of '71 because "I can't take them with me."

I, Jan Weipert, will my "hot pants" to anyone with rosy cheeks.

I, Bob White, will the Largest Light Bulb in the World to Mr. Gengler, because he never was too bright.

I, Helen Whittaker Vinney, will my ability to get along with Mr. Richards to Mike Buniak.

I, Sally Whittaker, will my Sweetheart title to next year's candidate from Cass City to make it three in a row.

I, Rita Zimba, will my typewriter eraser to next year's Typing II class.

And, last but not least,

We, the Senior Class of 1971, will to the Juniors all our support in anything they may choose to undertake throughout their reign as "mighty Seniors".

AGENT'S CORNERFight drugs with knowledge

Mrs. Margaret Ross - Extension Agent

If you think your child might be taking drugs, "Don't panic." Let your child know you can accept this piece of information without doing anything rash, like turning him over to the police. He has a reason for his actions, so let him explain it. And listen to him. Be willing to talk to him on his level about this.

At this point in his turmoil, he needs parents who'll give him advice, information, support, and love -- not long lectures. He needs someone to trust him, to believe in him and to help -- not someone to investigate all his goings-on. The most dangerous drug problem is when a teenager is regularly abusing the use of anything, whatever type of drug it may be.

As a parent, if you think something is going on, wait until you know for sure. It will come out soon enough if what you suspect is true. Making sure of your ground makes talking with your teenager less difficult.

To help you understand his situation, search out someone who knows something about both children and drugs. Doctors, psychiatrists, social workers, schools and hospitals are all places you might check for information on your role in your child's difficulty and how you can help him. Some communities have inter-agency committees on drug abuse which could help.

Just remember, if your child has this problem, someone else's does too. So talk and read about it. Learn everything you can about drugs. Try to get this situation out in the open and in this way move closer to finding a solution to the problem underlying the drug abuse.

The future is a reflection of today's acts and accomplishments.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

The fellers at the country store got to looking fer good news Saturday night, and they come up with a pritty good report. They studied the May postage hike up one side and down the other, and they couldn't find much to be happy about, special fer you fellers in the newspaper business.

Clem Webster said he couldn't see how papers make a go of sending folks news by mail. With the paper rate going up 20 per cent in May, and more of a 142 per cent increase over five year to come, Clem said papers soon will come out ahead paying people not to subscribe by mail.

But Zeke Grubb was able to look to see one candle in the dark. He said now that the postal service is a private outfit, maybe they could help the papers out by paying fer some of the advertising they've been getting free all these years, special since they got competition now in parcel delivery. And if the papers have to cut back, Zeke said, they allus can leave out all them ads about savings bonds and Government services that run free.

And good news was heard about the Army, where they were plans to spend $24 million on paid newspaper ads to get people to join up. Bug Hookum, that served stateside in the first world war, said he had saw some powerful good Army news. He said by the papers where 500 civilians showed up to apply fer jobs on KP at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, when that Army post decided soldiers shouldn't have to work in the kitchen.

The best news Ed Doolittle could come up with was the trouble all them countries in Europe is having with the dollar. He was of the mind that gitting them folks scared of the Yankee dollar was the best thing that could happen to our giveaway program that has been going full blast since 1945. Fer all these years them people have been crying fer our dollars, and we've been flooding their market with em, Ed allowed, and now he was calling fer a Bring Home the Dollar policy that will set all them folks' mind at ease that is sudden terrified over spending our money.

Turning to good news close to home, Bug allowed he was happy that today in this country we've got a headache remedy fer ever kind of headache invented so far, but he was worried about getting his male headache pills mixed up with his old lady's pills that fix headaches caused by wimmen's special emotions.

Final, Zeke was glad Paris police won't let folks use field glasses to watch a play with naked actors, but he wondered why it's agin the law to watch clost up but not far away.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Conrad Higdon tells of OEO work to Trinity WSCS

The Women's Society of Christian Service of Trinity United Methodist Church met at the church Monday morning, June 7, for a 9:00 breakfast and program.

The 40 attending heard Conrad Higdon, of the Family Counseling Service for the Office of Economic Opportunity program in the Thumb area. He stressed his work with Family Counseling, helping people learn to help themselves.

Higdon stated OEO is not welfare but one step further, in which they try to get people out of welfare by assisting with job training, education, seek adequate housing and encourage a better nutritional program.

He said that two-thirds of the people have to live on what one person receives from social security and cited their greatest problem as the race between food and life.

A typical low-income family under assistance, the Counselor said, is one of few skills, a drop-out from school, lacking the ability to read and write and a high rate of sickness.

The three upper Thumb counties, Huron, Tuscola and Sanilac, have an average rate of 15 percent unemployment. He voiced the benefits from vocational training to low-income families. This training, he said, will mean six times as much to the area in a few years because it costs six times as much to train a person for meaningful employment.

Mrs. Gilbert Albee, program chairman, gave the devotions and Mrs. Donald Shagene presented a solo.

Plans were announced for various summer activities. Bazaar workshops, under the direction of Mrs. Delbert Rawson, are scheduled periodically and members are asked to watch the church bulletin for dates. Mrs. Keith McConkey announced plans for making bandages for missions and requested usable sheets.

Mrs. William Ruhl and Mrs. Howard Rexin, with their Group 5 committee, served the breakfast.

The group will have a summer recess and reconvene in September.

Novices tend to follow the path, especially when it is straight and narrow. But even with experienced riders there can be unexpected turns, and it's possible to get lost.

In life there are very few straight paths. It is extremely easy to come upon an unexpected turn, and to encounter doubt, confusion, even despair.

Horseback riding is not compulsory. But you do have a life—and you have to live it. The way is up to you. If we get lost, we can give up, but with the help of the Church, you will find a trustworthy guide which will renew your faith and clear the way to the path of eternal fulfillment.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Teens: here's how to talk to parents

By Dan Marlowe

Young people, following are some tips on communicating with parents as laid down by Henry Muller, a 23-year-old who has pondered much recently on the declining art of getting through to parents. Communications, he insists, remain a two-way street, and here are some tactics he uses that have proved successful in lessening conflicts.

1. Chances are that parents will never like Janis Joplin or Country Joe and the Fish, no matter how many times you insist they're outasight. So save your confrontations for topics you consider important.

2. To someone over 30, "raping" means knocking on wood. Steer away from contemporary jargon that can easily alienate those who don't understand it. And lay off the word "facist" unless you're describing Mussolini.

3. Look for opinions you have in common. Talk about ecology, for example.

4. When you do decide to have it out on an issue, make sure you know what you're talking about. There's no quicker way to lose credibility than to be caught with unresearched facts or specious reasoning.

5. Everyone knows this generation is supposed to be better educated and more intelligent than the last. If you find yourself often mouthing this cliché, then it could be because your talents aren't all that obvious.

6. Avoid emotional antics, like losing your temper. They play into the hands of parents looking for an opportunity to brand the Woodstock set immature and incapable of being dealt with on an equal basis.

7. Try seeing it from their point of view occasionally. They've been around for 40 or 50 years and may be having trouble keeping up with the accelerating pace of events. But imagine what you'll be like after enduring half a century on this globe.

8. There is a limit to how much you can proselytize. After a certain point, you have to assume that most parents are educated, intelligent people able to make reasoned decisions. Your task isn't to convert everyone to uniform thinking, but to provide insights by which different points of view can be judged on their merits.

9. Give yourself the ultimate test of open-mindedness. If you're 20, see how easily you can talk with someone 15. And if you're 15, try it with a twelve-year-old.

10. Finally, don't patronize your parents. TALK to them. The peace of mind you save may be your own.

Letter to EditorNo situation calls for cussing says*Steve Wells

June 6, 1971

Dear Mr. Haire,

In reference to a letter in your paper referring to cussing at a teacher. The writer said the boy had a good reason to cuss or as they put it "if you were pushed just so far". The writer also contends that "cussing is the thing today", but some say that nudity is the thing today also: does that mean we should indulge in this. There is an example in the Bible (the Book of Job) where a man is tested by God, he lost his family, all his worldly possessions and suffered with boils over his entire body, but when tempted by fellowmen to curse God he said, "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh."

Thank You
Steve Wells

Michigan MirrorZero population growth: an idea whose time has come

The idea that the world must stop the increase in its population and achieve a state of Zero Population Growth (ZPG) is looking more and more like an idea whose time is arriving.

Where it once was talked about only in a few circles, the concept is picking up more and more backers in places where something can be done about it.

Among the newer advocates of ZPG are the members of Gov. William G. Milliken's Advisory Council on Environmental Quality. The council, in fact, recently told Milliken he ought to put together a team of experts and give them the responsibility of drawing up a program through which ZPG could be achieved in Michigan.

As man learns more about disease and what can be done to combat it; and as the wide open spaces become more and more congested, actively working to control births becomes the only way left to prevent overcrowding, the council said.

"Most animal populations utilize migration and high death rates to serve as population controls," it said. "Human populations are no longer utilizing either of these two mechanisms. Population can only be obtained through the regulation of the number of births per family unit in human society."

And it said a goal of ZPG must be adopted as soon as possible since it could be 70 years before ZPG became a reality after it was adopted as a goal. That's because it wouldn't occur until the number of deaths equal the number of births in a given year, and that won't happen until today's babies reach old age.

"We will have Zero Population Growth," said one scientist recently. "It's just a matter of using man's intellect to achieve it or leaving it to the traditional population controls: war, starvation, disease, pestilence. We must take our choice."

Two changes must be made in man's thinking if ZPG can become a reality by using our brains, say the Council.

The desired size of families must be reduced. It said large families traditionally have been desired "because of the uncertainty that any one child will survive to adulthood, because of the value of children as old age security to parents, and because of the economic value of children as income producers for the family." But it said all three reasons for wanting a large family "no longer prevail in modern American society."

Social pressures to marry and have a family must be reduced. For those who already are affluent, "larger families can be made an economic liability by increasing the luxuries for and the costs of advanced education for their children," it said.

The council concludes "an unescapable trade-off exists between quantity of people and quality of life. The cost of retarded responses to the population crisis will be measured in a reduction in the quality of life."

The same analysis of the situation came recently from an entirely different perspective--Nobel Peace Prize recipient Dr. Norman Borlaug, Dr. Borlaug, who won the peace prize for his work in increasing the world's food supply, said his work is being nullified by the population explosion.

"With our current situation, every time you make gains in food production, the monster--population growth--reaches out and destroys everything you've done."

Borlaug also had a warning for those who don't like the idea of endorsing ZPG.

He said it will be achieved sooner or later and that if it isn't sooner, one of the first casualties of continued population growth will be democracy.

"I feel population control will be achieved sooner or later," he said. "Hopefully, it will be achieved sooner and hopefully it will be decided on democratically. If not, it will be later and it will be decided by a government under disaster conditions. It is a decision that must be made."

LICENSES CHANGE

If you hate to show anyone your driver's license because of that awful picture of you that was taken when you got it, there's hope for a better future.

As of June 1, Michigan drivers began receiving a new, all-plastic license which Secretary of State Richard H. Austin says has several advantages, one of which is a better photo.

"Many Michigan drivers will be happy to learn that this new process should produce clearer, larger, sharper and more professional photos," he said.

That's not the reason it was adopted, however. Austin also said the new license is next to impossible to alter in any way since all the writing and the photograph are contained in the plastic.

The new licenses are being phased in as old licenses expire, meaning it will take three years before all Michigan drivers have one.

Slate tea &plan breakfast

St. Pancratius Women's Council held their meeting June 7 with 17 members present. Guests were Sisters Anne and Grace of Caro.

Joann Asher and Chris Erla are chairmen for the Mother-Daughter Tea, which is to be held June 27.

A Father-Son breakfast is planned in July. Chairmen are Mary Ellen Plaskowski and Lorraine Martin.

Rawson Libraryadds 38 volumes

The board of trustees of Rawson Memorial Library met Wednesday, June 2, at the library. All members and the librarian were present.

The library will sponsor a summer story hour. Details are to be announced later.

Mrs. Lucy Auten, trustee, and Mrs. Alice McAleer, bookkeeper, will go to Lansing June 11 for an accounting procedure meeting for libraries.

The library purchased 38 volumes during May. "Throne of Saturn" by James Drury, "Passions of the Mind" by Irving Stone and "The Antagonists" by Ernest Gann, all current best sellers, were added. Others are "The Enduring Hills" by Janice Holt Giles and "News From Thrush Green" by Miss Reid.

For non-fiction readers, added were: "Boss, Mayor Charles Daley of Chicago," by Mike Royko, "My Life With Martin Luther King" by Coretta King, "Listening To America" by Bill Moyers, "The Wartime Journals of Charles A. Lindbergh" by Charles A. Lindbergh, "Bird of Jove" by David Bruce, and Newsweek's "National Museums - Tokyo."

The following craft books were received: "Woman's Day Book of American Needlework," "Romance of the Patchwork Quilt," "Complete Guide to Embroidery Stitches," "Woman's Own Book of Cake Decorating," "Our Daily Bread," "Making Useful Things of Wood" and "Painting Materials and Techniques."

Seven youth books were added as well as four mysteries, four westerns and several light fiction titles.

Circulation for May was 1,635 books.

The little carefree car. Pinto is sized small, like the economy import, but it's bigger on value. And price is only the beginning. Pinto calls for only half as many oil changes as VW. One-sixth the chassis lube. So easy to service that you can do most routine maintenance yourself. And Pinto is bigger on performance. It has a 75-hp engine that has averaged over 25 mpg in simulated city/suburban driving. Sports-car type rack-and-pinion steering. Wider stance and lower silhouette.

The Simple Machine. Maverick's price makes it simpler to own than Nova. But that's not the only reason we call it the Simple Machine. Maverick's simple to drive and park because of its shorter wheelbase and smaller turning circle. Simple to service because it's been designed that way. Maverick offers a 4-door sedan for a low price of $2235* ($145* less than Nova 4 door). Or choose the sporty Grabber model. A choice of an economical V-8 and three thrifty Sixes.

*Ford's suggested retail price for Pinto and Maverick. However, the models shown are equipped with accent group (Pinto $50; Maverick $52) and white sidewall tires ($29). Destination charges, dealer preparation charges (if any), state and local taxes are extra.

A freak hail storm confined to a small area in Elkhart and Elmhurst townships Monday caused severe damages to homes and farms in its path. The hail evidently hit in an area about a mile wide and perhaps 10 miles long. It was accompanied by a very heavy rainfall.

Estimates of total damage are unavailable but will probably be several thousand dollars.

Jack Laurie who lives in the northwest corner of Elkhart township reported that the hail dented his house and shredded about .50 acres of hay ready to be cut.

Damage to crops was lessened because most were not mature enough to be severely hurt.

The hail did result in several broken windows and other minor damage to homes and buildings.

Babe Ruth hit his first home run at Fayetteville, N. C., in 1914 and a marker denotes the site of his schoolboy feat.

Cass City only district not seeking millage Monday

Most school districts will have to return to the voters for more operating funds for the 1971-72 school year and eight of the nine districts in Tuscola county are asking for millage renewals plus added tax funds.

Cass City will not be seeking more operating millage as the voters earlier this spring okayed the renewal of 2.5 mills special operating taxes.

Cass City now raises a total of 16.5 mills which places it among the most economical districts in the county for taxpayers.

If all millage is approved Monday, Cass City will be next to the lowest in operating millage from among 15 Thumb school districts with its total operating levy of 16.5 mills.

Only Uby with a levy of 16.25 is lower, while Vassar will be the same.

Millage paid by area districts vary from Kingston's top levy of 23 mills. Eight of the 15 districts in the Thumb raise 20 mills or more. Four raise from 18 mills to 18 1/2 mills. A mill is $1 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

The figures will be changed, of course, if voters decide not to approve requests submitted Monday.

Kingston is asking for 12 mills renewal and two mills additional. Akron-Fairgrove needs nine mills renewed and 2.25 additional. Caro seeks to transfer 2.5 mills from debt retirement to operating millage.

Reese asks for 3.5 mills renewal and 2 mills additional and also wants permission to use debt retirement funds to pay the school's share of the new sanitary sewers.

Mayville needs 9.5 mills renewed as well as 1.5 mills in new taxes while Millington needs 9 mills renewed and Vassar, 2.5 mills renewed.

Unionville-Sebewaing asks a total of 7.95 mills renewed and 3.9 mills in additional operating funds.

Lengthy bargaining brings little progress in school-union contract

Representatives of the Cass City Teachers Association and the Cass City School District spent six hours in nearly fruitless bargaining Thursday night at the high school.

The session that stretched until 1:30 a. m. Friday continued into the wee hours because it appeared as if settlement might be reached on two knotty side issues: personal business days and binding arbitration.

After a half hour of verbal sparring, the two parties had each altered positions. The teachers agreed to give up binding arbitration in exchange for two personal business days.

Personal business days are days off for teachers without explanation to the administration and at the request of the teacher.

A single day was offered by the school and in a last minute attempt to get the issue settled, the offer was increased to 1 1/2 days. It was turned down by the union and all offers made in the lengthy session are now null and void.

Al Luce, school negotiator, told teachers that as far as he could see, there is no possible way that the school board will accept binding arbitration.

When the session opened Thursday Dorland Kuntz, CCA chief negotiator, tossed out some bitter statements.

Saying that he felt that many of the ingredients of another Reese were present in Cass City.

He did not outline them. Robert Logan said that he felt that it was the consensus of the teachers not to return to work in the fall without a contract, but quickly added that he was not speaking for the union when he presented his opinion.

But later in the evening, the bargaining atmosphere thawed and the two teams started going over the issues.

The teachers presented their proposals for salaries and payment for special services. No serious discussion of the basic wage proposals will be held until the board counters the union's offer with one of their own.

The teachers' initial request asks for an increase of $1,000 on the beginning scale and an increase of $1,800 at the end of 11 years for all teachers.

The proposal is $8,500 to $12,000 for bachelor degree teachers and $9,000 to $13,000 for teachers with masters' degrees.

This, of course, is a bargaining figure and is certain to be reduced before a final settlement is reached.

There was a discussion about payments for special services. Several supplementary payment rates were unchanged from the previous year. They were quickly accepted by the school board.

IT LOOKS LIKE SNOW but actually it's hail in the yard of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ertman, left, and Mrs. Ralph Whittaker who are neighbors on North Cemetery Road.

Register now for college week

Next Tuesday, June 15, you can be one of the 500 or more women from Michigan who will converge at Michigan State University for College Week for Women. What is College Week?

It is a chance for you to be a coed for a week - and a chance for a break from housework. College Week for Women is an opportunity for you and your neighbors to get up-to-date information in a variety of areas. You select classes on such topics as "The Consumer and the Environment," "Your Clothes; Fascination to Function," "Drugs," "Children in a Changing World," and many, many more.

College Week is June 15-18.

In addition to classes there will be assemblies, tours, shopping trips and other excursions for your enjoyment. The total cost of the four days is $40 including room and board. If you can only go on visitors' day, June 17, the cost is $4 including lunch.

Last year about 15 women from Tuscola county went. Among them were Mrs. Alvin Crittenden, Mrs. Paul Findlay, Mrs. Walter Jackson, and Mrs. Leonard Russell, all of Caro. If you would like more information and a pre-registration form, write to me at the Civil Defense Center, Caro - 673-3161. I hope I'll see you there.

$1,000 for varsity football, basketball and instrumental music have been suggested. Other coaches' salaries will be increased from $100 to $200 under the suggested schedule.

The board negotiators told the union that these payments will have to be considered in the light of the total salary package negotiated.

Meanwhile the summer break deadline of June 18 draws near and with the next session not slated until Wednesday, June 16, it's unlikely that there will be any teacher contract before fall.

HARRY LENDA, owner of Cass City IGA Foodliner, presents a schedule of the fabulous California trip ahead for Durrell Caister. Durrell was the winner of the annual IGA contest sponsored by the local store. The trip will last six days. Mrs. Arthur Caister watches her son receive the prize.

Artist friend paints memorial to E. J. Smith

An oil painting, in memoriam to Edwin J. Smith, was presented last week to the Rawson Memorial Library. The painting is a still life, depicting items which would have been significant to Mr. Smith. The painting, a canvas 16 by 20, is a vase of Scotch heather and thistle and also books, poems by Burns and the Dairy Report. In the background hangs a picture of the Smith farm home.

The artist, Fred Papsdorf, was a long-time friend of Mr. Smith and has paintings at the J. L. Hudson galleries and the Artists Market in Detroit. He has had a one-man show in New York.

The Smith memorial fund also provided for the library, a bin for recordings and a check for equipment or books.

Four officers from the Cass City Pre-School Nursery attended the Annual Meeting and Administrative Clinic of the Mid-Michigan Council of Co-operative Nurseries in Midland Saturday.

Attending were Mrs. David Stafford, Mrs. Richard Wallace, Mrs. Lynn Albee and Mrs. Clint House.

The Epworth Nursery at the First United Methodist Church hosted the meeting. Included in the meetings attended were workshops for incoming presidents, treasurers, program chairmen and teachers.

Fifteen children are now registered for the Cass City nursery next year and board members are now interviewing teacher applicants.

According to Mrs. Stafford, president, the class size is limited to 20, and anyone who is interested in enrolling a pre-schooler is urged to contact one of the officers soon.

Mrs. Gerald Prieskorn will host the next parents' meeting at her home Monday, June 21, at 8 p. m.

The University of North Carolina opened its doors to students in 1785 and is the oldest state university in the United States.

4-H ACTIVITIES

Outstanding 4-H'ers

By Bernard Jardot

Several outstanding Tuscola county 4-H'ers were selected as District 4-H winners in the State 4-H youth programs. These 4-H members will have to complete State Award records to be considered for State Awards, says Bernard Jardot, Tuscola county 4-H Youth Agent.

Also an opportunity will be open for these district winners to attend State 4-H Exploration Days, June 29 to July 1, as volunteer workers at MSU. They will be recognized at a special dinner Wednesday, June 30, at Union Building, Michigan State University. The State project winners in each program area will be selected at this evening program.

The selected district winners from Tuscola county are as follows: Tim Schmidt, Conservation; Shelbra Brinkman, Field Crops; Alice Wildner, Food Preservation; Anita Stoll, Health; Cynthia Robinson, Home Improvement; Terry Schmidt, Horticulture; Angela Barry, Photography; Linsey Karpovich, Rabbits; Rebecca Roller, Safety; James Koch, Sheep; Donald Boyne, Swine; and Kimberly Gosson, Veterinary Science.

The 4-H youth program is made possible by the volunteer help of the many adult and teen leaders working with our youth on their projects and other activities.

Aid children in Kentucky

Over 1,200 pounds of clothing, books and various items, which included record players and toys, were picked up June 2 at the Clair Tuckey home by Rev. E. W. Dean and two assistants, Stuart Price and Aaron Dykes, which were taken to the interdenominational children's home at Bethany, Ky.

Mr. Dean is superintendent of the home which houses about 90 children. The donated items came from many persons in the Cass City area who wanted to help in this project. Pick ups are made about twice a year.

County escapes with minor traffic mishaps

The accident picture around the area was an improvement over the troubles of last week but three accidents were reported by Tuscola County Sheriff's Deputies or State Police from the Bad Axe post.

Deborah Kay Harbec, 20, of Cass City, was taken to Hills and Dale's Hospital Sunday night about midnight when her motorcycle went out of control on the Elmwood Road three-tenths of a mile west of the Cedar Run Road.

According to Tuscola County Sheriff's Deputies, Miss Harbec had a blanket wrapped around her and the ends of it caught in the back wheel causing the cycle to flip on its side and bike and rider to go skidding down the road.

Injuries included cuts and abrasions and a possible ankle injury.

Robert John Bleri, 18, of Crescent Beach Road, Pigeon, lost control of his car early Saturday morning and skidded it into the McCormick Shell Station in Cassville. According to Bad Axe State Police Bleri was heading south at a high rate of speed on M-25 at 4:20

a. m. when he slid into the station shearing off two gas pumps and hitting a light pole. Measurements showed that Bleri skidded a total of 153 feet and slid 216 more feet before the impact.

He had been ticketed earlier in the evening by Cassville officers for traveling 100 miles an hour. Bleri and his brother, Kenneth, 17, were treated and released from Scheurer Hospital in Pigeon.

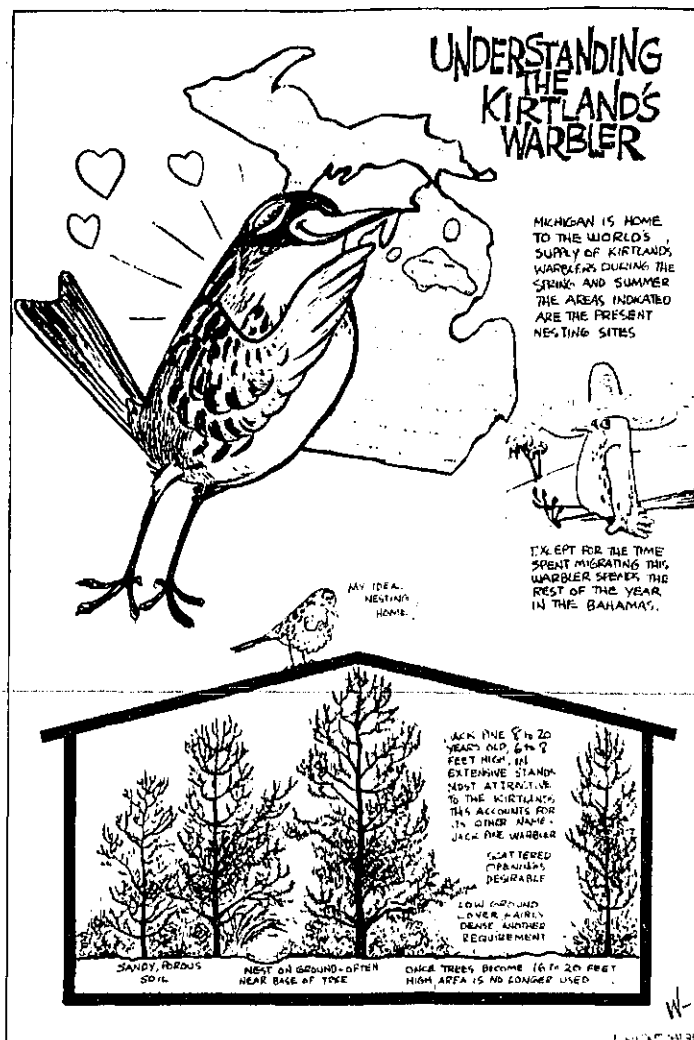

The car of Donald Hendrick Finkbeiner, 39, of 6571 Elizabeth in Cass City, was hit Friday at 10:40 p. m. by a car driven by Raymond Edwin Dockery, 22, of Detroit, as Finkbeiner was making a turn at Elizabeth Street and Cemetery Road.

Both vehicles were headed south when Dockery attempted to pass the Finkbeiner car. Both vehicles could be driven away.

Gerald A. Priskorn, Cass City, has been charged in Tuscola County District Court with driving an automobile involved in an accident resulting in property damage without notifying the owner of the other car involved.

The case was filed May 28 by Arthur R. Bean and Priskorn appeared before the magistrate June 4. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered for him.

No date has been set for the trial.

Proctor tells of 12,000 mile trip

Tom Proctor, Rotary's District Governor, described a few of the highlights of his over 12,000 mile trip around the Pacific to Australia and the Far East Tuesday noon at the Cass City Rotary Club.

In an informal presentation, Proctor told of some of the highlights of his trip in the month he spent in the various countries.

Besides the usual tourist observations, Proctor came away with two impressions.

One is the over-population and the poverty in many places in the Far East and the other is the aggressiveness of businessmen in foreign countries.

They are out after business and are working to get it, he said. They are providing solid, unrelenting competition for the United States and perhaps we should become aware of it, he suggested.

Lakers end Hawk quest for district baseball toga

PLAYERS AND COACHES gathered around Jay Dubey of Lakers Saturday after he was hit a glancing blow on the head on a pitch by Rob Alexander. Dubey was able to continue and came back to haunt the Hawks with a single that drove in two runs.

Cass City's bid for a district baseball toga fell by the wayside Saturday as Laker High School defeated the Hawks for the second time this season. The score was 4-3.

All of the scoring action was wrapped up in the last inning when the Lakers scored four times and the Hawks came back to score three times and put the tying and winning runs on base before Gene Hopper struck out to end the threat.

Rob Alexander wasn't as sharp Saturday as he was the previous week, but he still overpowered most of the Lakers' hitters, striking out 16.

It was a combination of events that spelled disaster for Cass City. Alexander broke off a curve to the lead-off batter in the seventh that broke down into the plate. It completely fooled the batter, who struck out, but it bounced high out of the reach of catcher Kip Hopper and the runner was safe at first.

After one man was retired a hit placed two men on to set the stage for Jay Dubey's hard hit to center to score the first two runs of the game. Dubey nicked Alexander for two hits and was hit by the pitcher twice as he turned in a fine game for the Lakers.

The rally was not yet over. With the infield in, an error and a walk loaded the bases. It looked as if Alexander would escape without further damage as he whiffed a batter for the second out and had two strikes on the next hitter.

But Kip Hopper overthrew second trying to pick off a runner and two more runs scampered home before Alexander struck out the batter for the third out.

Cass City knocked out Laker starter Jim Neurath in the seventh with a three-hit assault that netted the three runs the Hawks scored. But Carl Deming came in to put out the fire and end Cass City's chances.

It looked as if Cass City might get to Neurath early. Kip Hopper opened with a single. But he was thrown out at second on a run and bunt play. A second hit by Cass City after Hopper was thrown out was wasted.

After the first Neurath was invincible until the seventh. The Hawks out-hit the Lakers, 7 to 5, and committed three errors to one for the winners.

Cass City High School, Thumb B Underclass track champions, boasted a host of fine performers, according to Coach Dale McIntosh.

In the conference meet Don Karr led the way with 21 points while Ed Stoutenburg was second with 19 points. Other big point producers were Ron Spencer with 15 3/4 points and Dan Mellendorf with 11 3/4 points.

For the season, Stoutenburg edged Karr for top honors. Stoutenburg garnered 73 points while Karr ended with 61 points.

Spencer totaled 59 1/2 points and Mellendorf, 55 1/4 points. Greg Decker earned 21 1/2 points and Tom Marker produced 15 1/4 points for the Red Hawks in 1971.

Thomas J. Cybulski, 29, was found dead of asphyxiation in his car Wednesday, June 2, in Howell.

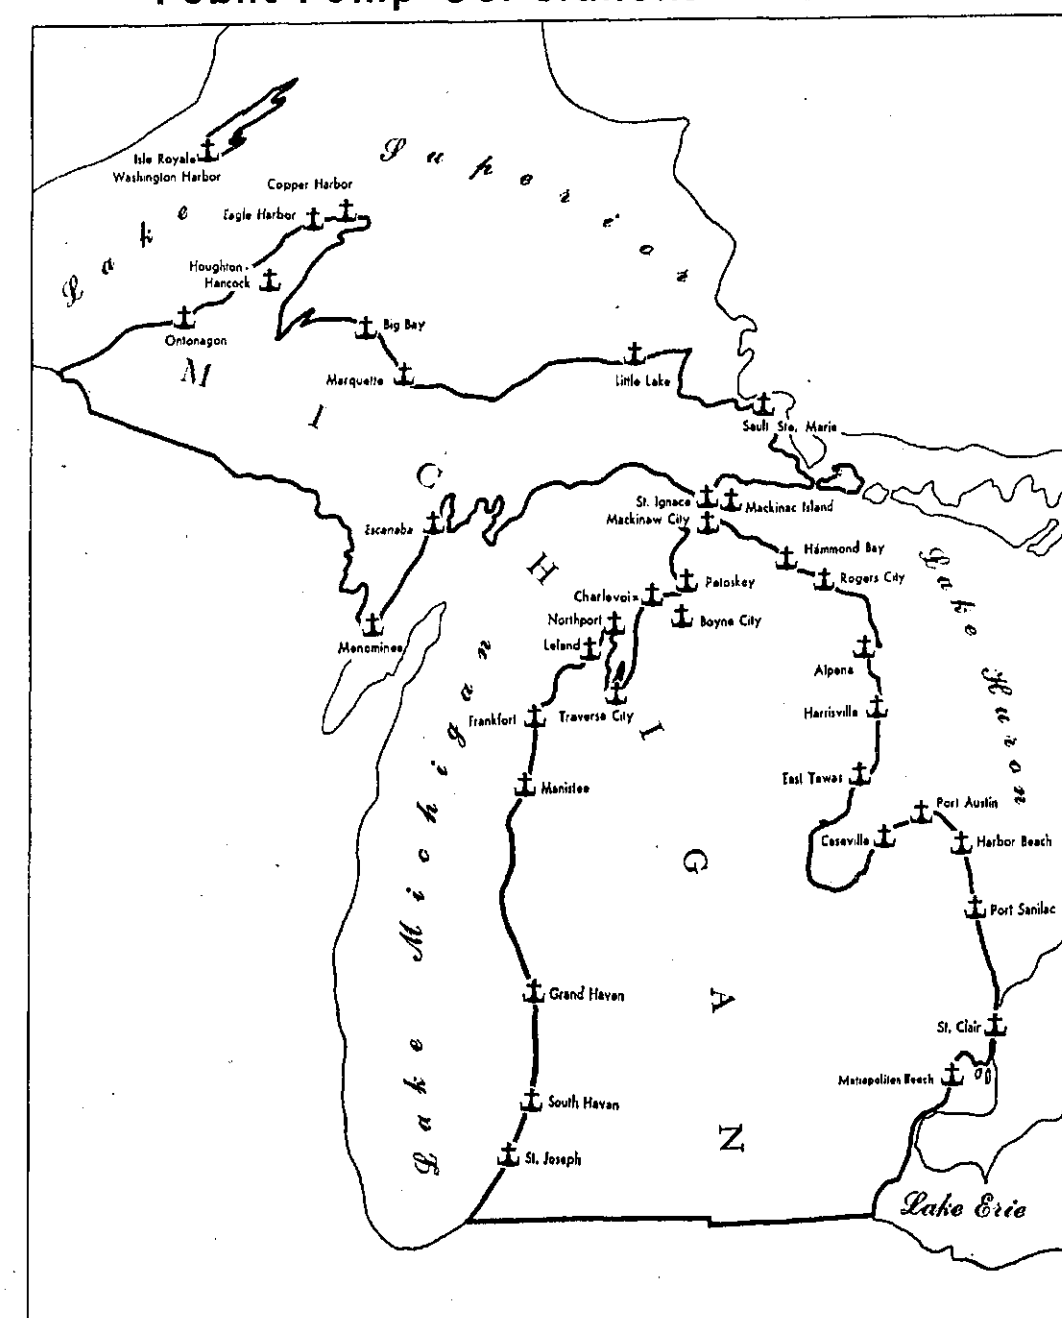

A native of Cass City he was born Aug. 10, 1941, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cybulski.

He moved to Detroit in October where he lived at the time of his death. He was a member of Tyler Lodge, 317, F & AM of Cass City.

Surviving are: a daughter, Cynthia Marie of Pontiac; his parents; two brothers, James and Ronald, both of Cass City, and his maternal grandfather, Jay Hartley of Caro.

Funeral services were held Saturday at Little's Funeral Home, the Rev. Roger Burk, pastor of the Colwood United Brethren Church, officiated. Burial was in Elkland cemetery.

Public Pump-Out Stations for Boaters

Shown on this map are 36 public harbor sites along Michigan's Great Lakes shoreline where pump-out facilities are available to serve recreational boaters with toilet-equipped watercraft. Boaters plying the Great Lakes will also find more than 100 pump-out stations at private marinas along this shoreline. Lists pinpointing the locations of these private facilities are available free from the Department of Natural Resources' Water Management Bureau in Lansing. Both the public and private pump-out stations are major service centers for meeting requirements of Michigan's new Watercraft Pollution Control Law. That measure, enacted in 1970, outlaws sewage discharges into Michigan waters from recreational and commercial boats. It also provides that all such watercraft moored or operated on this state's waters must be equipped with sewage holding tanks, recirculating self-contained marine toilets, or incinerators which reduce all watercraft sewage to ash. Any boater failing to comply with any of these provisions of the law faces a possible fine of $500. —Michigan Department of Natural Resources
