Paul Kerbyson

No nerves, says 11-year-old organ maestro

By PAT DROUIN

E sharps, C majors and chords don't usually enter into a conversation, unless you happen to be talking to Paul Kerbyson.

Paul, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Kerbyson of Cass City, is the official organist for St. Pancratius Catholic Church.

Paul is an 11-year-old all-American boy.

He has a unique philosophy as well as a unique talent at the organ. The small, slim sixth grader just doesn't believe in becoming nervous. No way.

"There is no such thing as being nervous," Paul firmly said. "I think you make more mistakes if you are nervous, so I'm not nervous."

"When I make a mistake, I don't shake, I don't do anything, I just keep going that way they don't know I've made a mistake."

Perhaps Paul's philosophy accounts for his success and talent at the organ.

Paul has been playing the organ at church for a year and a half during Mass on weekdays, Saturdays and Sundays and also at weddings and funerals.

Although he played the piano by ear at five, his lessons began when he was six when he could read the instructor's assignments. The mere fact Paul never played an organ before didn't stop him from tackling the job.

Within a week he had mastered the chords and was ready to tackle any music put to him.

"It just comes easy, but knowing how to play the piano helped a lot," Paul said.

Paul's talent appears to come easy, but practice is important.

One hour every day is spent at the piano and organ with piano lessons once a week and organ lessons once every two weeks.

Whereas most children dread practicing, Paul appears to enjoy it, with a goal to do better.

Judging from the five statues for best lesson that line the piano, Paul isn't kidding.

When asked which instrument he preferred, Paul said the organ because "I get paid," he shyly noted.

The shrewd businessman manages his money as well as his busy schedule. Besides being an accomplished musician, Paul is an athlete.

Listing the Cub Scouts, swimming and a member of the swim team he helped to organize, the Little League and singer in the choir, Paul couldn't remember everything he belonged to because, "I'm involved in so much."

His many activities have helped him to become more responsible he admits, but hasn't stopped him from being just a boy with lots of friends. "They aren't jealous," he said, "they encourage me to do better."

One of six musical children, Paul has managed to stay unmoved by his "stardom" and enjoys playing church music with help from his mother.

"My mother played piano and had a lot of influence on me," Paul remarked. "She tells me when I do good, but my brothers and sisters usually don't, I think they're afraid."

If it's possible to reflect on an 11-year lifetime Paul managed to when he said, "I'm glad I started young, because I wouldn't be too good if I just started now."

Ranking Love Story and Laura's theme from Dr. Zhivago as his favorites, Paul hopes to play piano in high school when he gets there.

Adding up the sharps and majors, Paul comes out to be all boy, very talented and determined to have a musical future.

Chamber endorses proposed park for downtown face-lifting

A proposed plan for a park in downtown Cass City received unanimous approval by the Chamber of Commerce during a special meeting Tuesday night at the Cultural Center.

The plan will be presented to the Village Council in the July meeting for its approval.

In a sketch drawn by Superintendent James Blades, the park will be situated behind the Coach Light and Wood drug stores, where the old library and fire department now stand. Mike Weaver, chamber president, called the park "a downtown rest area" where public restrooms, benches, trees and flowers would be situated.

The idea, conceived by Ed Bergman, Chamber member, will rely on donations as a community project, Weaver said, with the Chamber's approval of the plan.

Before any action can be taken the July 12 fire hall vote must be passed in order for the present fire hall to be torn down.

A second proposal by Roger Little was passed to decorate Main Street. The proposal was in keeping with the general "beautify Cass City" theme endorsed by the Chamber.

It calls for the testing of one hanging flower box with artificial flowers from a street light on Main Street.

The flower box, made from inch-thick redwood, will have artificial flowers stuck in holes drilled in the top. Brackets or chains will hold the boxes to the light posts.

If the boxes can withstand the weather, the plan will be put into action with the Chamber making the boxes and decorating them for the seasons of the year.

In the general "think session" that followed, ideas to get the Chamber actively involved in community projects were kicked around.

The session was open to the public with only one local resident present other than the Chamber board.

A proposed treatment of downtown Cass City, drawn some 12 years ago, was resurrected as a possible starting point for the long range project.

The original plan called for the closing off of several side streets off Main Street to be used as parks. The alleys behind the stores would be used for off street parking.

The adoption of a new downtown plan is needed, according to the Chamber members, to modernize and change Cass City's appearance.

Little said that a master plan needed to be drawn, "so the plan could be carried through by future Chamber members."

Other ideas thrown out for discussion was a proposal to

Senator cuts red tape for Smiths

Chronicle stories have a way of reaching officials in high places. For the David Smith family of Decker it meant making life a little easier.

Due to a brain tumor operation that disabled Smith since February, the 7-member family has been surviving on $39 a week from his sick pay.

During the past week Sen. Robert Griffin's office announced that governmental tape had been cut. The Smiths will begin receiving social security benefits totaling $400 a month.

Attention was called to the matter when State Sen. Alvin DeGroot sent a letter to Griffin, enclosing an article that appeared in the Chronicle dealing with the family's plight and a Lamotte 4-Star 4-H-benefit for them.

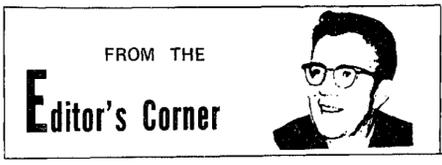

The letter was presented to Griffin by his caseworkers. He in turn gave the official go-ahead and told the caseworkers to do everything they could.

Peter Teeley, an aide to the senator, said in a telephone conversation, that social security benefits would become effective from April for the family.

Checks for April and May for the Smiths and the children have been sent totaling $817.80. From June on, two checks will be sent a month, one for $252.90 for Mr. and Mrs. Smith and another check for $156 for the children.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

There is an adage in business that says if the decision makers in any company prove to be right 75 per cent of the time, the company has excellent management. Decision making is a risky business. Shakespeare said it better: to err is human, to forgive divine. Last week the council passed an amendment to an ordinance allowing the sale and drinking of booze in the park. I believe the council erred.

Most folks who know me at all know that I'm not against social drinking and, in fact, enjoy it. This is irrelevant to this discussion of booze in the park. I mention it so that cynics will know that I'm not presenting these views as a hard line prohibitionist. It does seem to me that a park that is peculiarly orientated to children is better served without booze than with it.

But maybe I am wrong. Maybe the true feeling of the majority is that booze should have been allowed under controlled circumstances long ago. Judging by the comments aired by village trustees last Tuesday it appears to be the council's intention to keep a tight reign on permits issued to peddle beer at the park. Regardless, it's the opinion here that when the beer flows the kids will be around watching, if only from the corner of their eye.

It's fine that the beer busts will be supervised by a special officer...but doesn't the mere fact that an officer is needed tell you something about the party? I've yet to see an officer at a lemonade stand.

There are counter arguments to this theory. If you don't want your child to see a beer bust, keep that day. If a man wants a beer instead of lemonade at his picnic, he should have it. It's a free country. I believe mine are the better arguments...folks on the other side of the fence will stick with theirs.

That's not the point here. At issue is the timing. Any question concerning liquor in Cass City is a tender one. The council knows this, but in one quick swoop passed enabling legislation. The proposition was presented and the ordinance changed in a single session.

One more month or week can't make that much difference in a park that has been dry since the year one. It could be that if the community was given a chance to consider, the council would have learned that the majority feel as I do: that the best place to be drinking is in the home or a licensed, regularly operated bar.

STREET WALKERS can save money in Cass City Friday and Saturday, July 16-17, during the giant sidewalk bargain days. Plan to browse around yourself for the many bargains.

On-the-job training takes Phyllis Ewald to Africa

Some persons pack up and head north for their vacations, but Phyllis Ewald of Cass City preferred to be different.

She hopped a plane and some eight hours later landed in Liberia, Africa, to begin a six-week Missionary Apprenticeship Program from the Baptist Bible Seminary in Clarks Summit, Pa.

The trip is now a year old, and in fact Miss Ewald recently graduated from the Seminary with a BA in religious education, and with experiences not easily forgotten.

She recalled the memories with freshness and a bit of longing to return to the land of bananas, goat's meat and ant eaters.

"The purpose of the program is to get a feel of what the missionaries do and how they win souls to the Lord," Miss Ewald said.

The trip, which cost $1100, earned three credit hours toward her degree in the study of missions.

To see the missions in action, Miss Ewald roomed with a six-member missionary family at Monrovia, the capital of Liberia.

She helped with the Bible clubs, worked in the office and also assisted in the dispensary, work she is well qualified for as a 1967 graduate of Hurley School of Nursing, Flint.

"The people were very friendly and went out of their way to help you," Miss Ewald said. But she also noted that the people will "say they understand when you tell them a story only because they know that's what you want to hear, in all probability, they really don't understand."

Miss Ewald traveled into the interior of Liberia to several branch missions, including such places as Surakoko, Duai Tah, Ylla and Zondo.

Traveling to these places wasn't quite by conventional means. Miss Ewald remarked that some places could only be reached by plane, others by car until the road ended and then by foot the remainder of the way.

Living among these people, Miss Ewald also sampled their food.

She ate such things as cassava, a starchy substance like potatoes, palm nuts, goat's meat and ant eater.

"I think it was partly psychological not to like some of the food, she quietly said. But the only times there was reason to be sick was when "I went up in those little planes. I just got pretty pale the other times," Miss Ewald jokingly remarked.

The country, which was begun by liberated blacks from America, has English for its national language but also has some 22 different dialects.

These dialects present some problems for the missionaries, Miss Ewald said, and the manner in which they conduct services.

Although the people maintain their own customs, the missionary work has grown and is drawing more natives to the faith, Miss Ewald continued.

"I had expected the people to be more primitive than what they actually were," she said. They do, however, like to take advantage of the "rich" Americans when they sell their wares.

"One native tried to sell me a parrot for $35 when parrots really sell for around $2," Miss Ewald said.

The people also have an odd custom of naming their children after days of the week, objects, such as pencil or paper, as well as after the missionary workers.

But Miss Ewald felt they were a happy people, who work hard, raise their families and enjoy playing soccer.

Although her mother worried, as most mothers do about their daughter's safety, Miss Ewald never really was afraid.

There are certain precautions that must be followed, such as boiling the water, she said. Since Monrovia is also by the ocean, you have to be careful about where you swim and the Portuguese Men-of-War that can sting, she continued.

On one occasion she recalled going into a village where several days earlier a cobra was killed.

"I just wore sandals, but if I had ever seen a snake, I probably would have worn hip boots," she emphasized.

But such precautions were all taken into stride by the 24-year-old Bible student.

Whether or not she will return to Africa as a missionary, remains a question for Miss Ewald, who presently is a nurse at the Hills and Dales Hospital. She has considered working with children, combining her nursing and teaching background, with perhaps an emphasis on African travels.

PHYLLIS EWALD glances over some of the souvenirs from her trip to Liberia, including a hand painted picture, native currency and African cloth.

"If It Fitz. . ."

Bury me not

BY JIM FITZGERALD

And then I wrote . . . A Massachusetts man has been buried beneath the 18th green at his favorite golf course. I guess he was dead. If I am ever buried on a golf course it will be because I committed suicide there and no one would drag my body away.

Golf is an incredibly stupid game. Hit a ball and then look for it and then hit it again. I don't know why I play. Tennis is really my game but I can never get a court. It has been 24 years since I played tennis which will give you an idea how crowded the courts are - and how hard I've tried to get one.

I often tell people I was once tennis champ of Port Huron. Usually, I tell them after I play golf with them. I want them to understand that golf is too slow a game for an athlete of my vigorous abilities. Any old man can play golf, I tell them with a sneer as I pay what I owe for losing 18 holes, 3 balls and 1 friend who was my partner.

"Yes," the golfers with my money usually say, "but fat old men can't play tennis so it is easy to see why you switched to golf."

That's another thing I've discovered about golf - a lot of wise guys play it. They are always saying things that upset my game and my stomach.

For instance, Islam my usual drive smack down the center, at least 50 feet. "That won't hurt you," says Harvey Hustler. What he means is that lousy drive won't kill me, it will just leave me maimed and limping. It is the louisiest shot he ever saw and 15 more just like it might get me on the green which is that pretty patch of grass with the hole in it in case I've never been there before.

Another thing Harvey often says is, "You had the distance." This means I should have hit the ball 200 yards and, by golly, I did hit it 200 yards. The trouble is I should have hit it north but I hit it south.

The reverse of this comes when Harvey says, "You hit it right on line." This means I pounded that ball straight at the hole, 350 yards away. But the ball went only 20 yards.

And at the end of the game as he takes my money, Harvey explains that I got a lot of tough breaks out there today, while he was lucky, and if a couple of putts had dropped for me it would have been a different story, fella, and my game is getting better all the time and I'm sure to get my money back next week.

Harvey knows it wouldn't help my game if I were Arnold Palmer's little brother. He knows if a long putt had dropped for me I would have got 7 on the hole, instead of 8. He knows I have been playing the stupid game for 15 years and I still address the ball as if I'm afraid it will attack my right foot. He knows all these things but he still mouths the bologna-for-fear I might quit playing him and he'd have to get his booze money by some more honorable means - such as pawing his mother's wheelchair.

The only time Harvey's language gets precise is when he asks for my score on a hole.

"Let's see," I say, and then I get a faraway look in my eyes and move my lips slowly as my mind backtracks through 2 traps, the right rough, the woods on the left, a bushpile, the freeway, the rocks by the pro shop and that lake where 2 fishermen threatened to sue.

"I think I got a 5."

"You got an 11," Harvey says, and writes it down - in ink. I don't know what bugs me worse, his fountain pen or the money changer he wears on his belt.

But back to the Massachusetts man. I wasn't kidding. His name was Edward Faber and his ashes are buried beneath the 18th green at Stow Acres Country Club in Stow, Mass. Cremation was necessary because the greenskeeper didn't want lumps in the green.

Faber requested the unusual burial site in his will. "He just loved the game so much and this is what he really wanted," his widow explained. Owners of the club are so enthusiastic about the idea they plan to erect a plaque to mark the grave. The possibilities do appear promising. Why not a grave or two at every green, and perhaps some by the traps and rough? A guy wouldn't mind attending a funeral if he could chip up onto the burying surface. Of course, the undertaker would have to add a few services - such as caddies for pallbearers - but I'm sure all such problems could be solved with a minimum of keeping. Just so long as slow funerals allow faster funerals to play through.

Onward and upward.

Guard your leisure time always—keep others from using it.

Lt. R. Freiburger wed in Nebraska

Mr. and Mrs. Alger Freiburger held open house Saturday, June 26, in honor of their son and his bride, Lt. and Mrs. Robert Freiburger. About 75 guests greeted the couple who spent the week end in Cass City.

Miss Taffy Robacker became the bride of Lt. Lt. Robert Freiburger May 29 in St. Luke's Catholic Church, Ogallala, Neb. The Rev. James Whalen received their vows in a 10 a. m. nuptial mass.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Robacker of Ogallala and Mr. and Mrs. Alger Freiburger of Cass City.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length white organza gown designed with an Empire bodice, bishop sleeves and stand-up collar appliqued with Venice lace. The A-line skirt of the gown featured lace applique throughout and the lace hemline fell into a chapel train. The bride wore a camelot cap with matching lace and an attached bouffant illusion veil. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls that had belonged to her maternal great-grandmother, Nora Walkenhorst. She carried a colonial bouquet of white daisies and baby's breath.

Miss Candy Robacker served her sister as maid of honor. Mrs. E. Charles Robacker III was bridesmaid and Miss Heide Robacker was her aunt's flower girl. The three attendants were gowned in yellow, lilac and pink, respectively, and their dresses were floor-length, of dacron-voile, embroidered with white daisies. The gowns featured an Empire bodice and bouffant sleeves. Both bodice and sleeves had French lace appointments. Each attendant wore a matching cap of velvet and net and carried white daisies arranged in French baskets.

The bridegroom's best man was his cousin, Bill Freeman, and his groomsmen were John Coleman, both of Detroit. Terry and Tim Robacker, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

The altar of the church was decorated with white baskets of white and yellow daisies and the church pews were adorned with lavender bows holding large white daisies. Altar boys were Mark and Tom Reimers, cousins of the bride.

Karen Ostroil accompanied by Jim Turner, sang the "Love Theme" from Romeo and Juliet and "We've Only Just Begun" by the Carpenters.

The mother of the bride wore a mint green coat dress to her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Freiburger chose a pink ensemble.

Following the ceremony, a reception luncheon was given by the bride's parents at Grammy's Pancake House. Punch, cake and coffee were served by Mrs. Rudy Reimers, Mrs. Frank Kersenbrock Jr., and Mrs. William Craig. Miss Joanie Freiburger, sister of the groom, was at the guest book.

For a wedding trip to Denver and then back east, the bride chose a red pant suit with navy accessories.

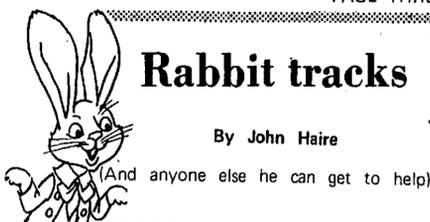

Lt. and Mrs. Freiburger will be at home in Trenton, N. J. Lt. Freiburger has a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering and is currently working on his master's degree. He is presently a 1st. Lieutenant in the U. S. Air Force.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

It must have been five years ago that the vote in the village to buy for a fire hall the building now housing Schneberger's was presented to the voters.

At that time, residents with a long memory will recall that the Chronicle opposed the purchase on the grounds that any building of this nature should be a joint responsibility of the village and township.

Monday another vote will be held to raise money for a new fire hall. The Chronicle recommends that you approve it. The building will be paid for by the entire township. What's more the tax load will be no heavier than it presently is. A mill will be continued for five more years making a total of eight years for the special assessment.

It's probable that the new fire hall isn't all that the firemen would like to have. Maybe the township would like to see changes also.

But it is a realistic building, one that will serve the needs of the community at a cost within reason for the taxpayer. It deserves your vote Monday.

Chief Gene Wilson of the Cass City Police force wasn't needed to help control the 5,000 kids camping near Saginaw Bay over the week end but he was involved in service above and beyond the call of duty. Service that may have taken more raw courage than facing a bunch of kids throwing rocks.

He handled a smelly affair last week end at the home of Charles Damoth on Church Street. The mission: dispatch a skunk caught in a trap.

It was a time for steel nerves and accurate shooting. Wilson was equal to the task. He killed the skunk with a .22 pistol. The chief did it all as part of his regular job. No extra pay. Not even one scent for his efforts.

The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak. Some 30 persons signed for the Polar Bear swim club which meets for an hour every morning at 6 a. m. After a week of this, those who attend each session are qualified members of the club.

When the fateful day arrived Monday just 10 kids showed up for the morning refresher.

Leave it to the young. When Rolling Hills scored its first hole in one last year it was a youngster, Jerry Toner, who did it.

Over the Fourth of July, the first ace ever scored at Gagetown Country Club was recorded. It was registered by L. Ackerman of Elkton who is old enough to celebrate but still a comparatively tender youth.

The once-in-a-lifetime shot at Gagetown came on the long par three eighth hole instead of one of the easier holes. . . . and that's another similarity to Toner's shot which also came on a longer hole rather than the course's short par three.

BETTER HEALTH

Treatment of cleft palate

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

I just read in a release that one in every 700 children is born with a cleft palate, or lip, sometimes called a hare lip, because for some reason, during the infant's prenatal development, the two sides of the face failed to come together properly, and an opening was left in the upper lip and the palate (the roof of the mouth). This disfigurement, besides being distressing in appearance, may cause the child to have trouble with breathing and eating; his speech and hearing may be affected, and his teeth may be malformed.

to have the kind of care that they can receive at the Long Island Jewish Medical Center in New Hyde Park, N. Y., which serves as headquarters for cleft palate children from Queens, Nassau, and Suffolk. A team consisting of a pediatrician, a plastic surgeon, a psychiatrist, an orthodontist who straightens teeth, a prosthodontist who makes appliances to facilitate eating and speaking, an ear specialist, a social worker and a speech therapist all work together to help the child and his family to adjust to the problems that come with this condition.

When a child is born with a cleft lip, it should be repaired in the first few weeks of life. If there is a cleft palate, however, the start of reconstruction must wait until the child is between a year and 18 months old. Later, as his features mature and change in shape and size, he will require plastic surgery. By the time he is 18, he can look like any other teen-ager.

The state of New York has a fine program which provides that the state will pay for the child's first pediatric examination in the hospital's Cleft Palate Clinic. He will also be given psychological tests without charge, if indicated. In addition, Medicaid or state aid for handicapped children, will pay ensuing fees, including those for speech therapy, if his family's income level is within the proper range.

I am sure that there are other hospitals in cities all over the country that do this fine service for these children who so desperately need help. If I had a child with a cleft palate, I would want to take him to a large clinic or a university hospital where he could be seen by a team of experts, like the one at the Long Island Jewish Medical Center, who would work together to help him overcome his various difficulties. I would also want to learn to face the problem philosophically and cheerfully, because, as many experts have said, the parents can greatly influence the way that the child adjusts to the situation and learns to overcome the obstacles and frustrations that he will have to face.

Corn...a look at the situation

By William Bortel

Corn: It is time to take an objective look at the crop situation. Future prices have shot higher than present crop information justifies. Markets are extremely over-reacted from each bit of news.

The corn market is a victim of circumstances regarding information that is becoming available during the early part of the growing season. Most of the news to date has been pessimistic for the crop report and optimistic for the price report. Any reports on crop progress or blight development have been interpreted on the gloomy side.

However, let's look at the facts today. More corn was planted than the early intentions and it appears as if the crop has been progressing real well in spite of drouthy conditions in some localities of the country. Even with average yields such as was reported last year when the southern corn leaf blight struck, the additional acreage will give us adequate corn to keep pressure on the price.

Here in Tuscola County, it has already been reported that we had southern corn leaf blight. However, the true facts are that there was one leaf from a sweet corn stalk that a specialist thought to be blight. However, after culturing the specimen even that single leaf did not have blight. So to the best of our knowledge there is no southern corn leaf blight in our area. In summary we believe there will be a good corn crop and that corn producers should be thinking about finding a market for their corn. This may mean contracting or hedging like several growers have already done.

Corn has been a good commodity and we should treat it like a business. Let's not all wait and sell our corn at the low dollar this fall.

Learn to gauge the future by what has happened in the past.

Boys have ideas about home changes

If your home includes an active boy, you would be wise to check with him before starting your home-improvement program. He may not appear to notice how the house looks — but he does. He has strong views and practical ideas.

This, at least, is the case with members of the Boys Clubs of America. Many of their 600,000 members belong to Club classes in painting, woodworking, or ceramics. They are very definite in their feelings:

First, about furniture. It should be sturdy, practical, sturdy, simple in design, and sturdy. Especially sturdy. "It's nice to have things they don't tell you to be careful of and . . . step your feet off" is a typical comment. Washable slipcovers are the best — for obvious reasons. There was even one vote for keeping the old furniture because "Mom didn't care how rough you were with it".

Next on colors: Boys like paneled walls. Wallpaper is "Okay, I guess, but not too many flowers". Painted walls should be light and bright. But in their own rooms or the playroom, proceed with caution. "They painted our playroom

"PINK", was one disgusted comment. "I didn't ask my friends over for a long time. It wasn't so bad after the walls got a little dirty".

About the rooms themselves: Nearly every youngster wants a room of his own. Naturally, this is often impossible. (Many feel they can find more privacy — and a quiet place to do homework or read — at their Boys' Club.) This is especially true of boys from large families.

Appliances? Lamps that are not easy to tip over, with the pole version much in favor. Rugs you can wipe clean when you spill things. (Even a vote for linoleum throughout the house.) And — you guessed it — a TV set in every room!

Eavesdrop

Our verb "eavesdrop" comes from the Anglo-Saxon custom of building thatched roofs well out from the walls so that dripping water from the roofs would not splash close to the building itself. Persons seeking shelter from the rain would get in under the extending eaves, close to the doors or windows as if to listen to what was being said indoors. In time the term came to mean "to listen secretly, to overhear intentionally."

THERE'S DECOR 'GOLD' IN FAMILY PHOTOGRAPHS

For years, modern furniture styles held the decorating world captive. But with the rise of eclecticism, homemakers from coast to coast are once more decorating with family heirlooms and treasured furnishings.

Eclectic decorating allows for a mixture of furnishing styles — Mediterranean and modern, English and Spanish, Louis XIV and Queen Anne. The one rule is that each piece must coordinate with the others so that the total effect is pleasing to the eye and meaningful to the home owner.

This decorating trend has brought with it an increasing popularity for decorating with portrait photographs and other family mementos. Most people have portraits taken to mark their great occasions — from births to graduations, weddings to career days. These professional photographs are too meaningful to let languish in a drawer or album.

Portrait photographs are more than decorating accessories. No one selects a particular portrait because the colors in it blend with those in the wall-paper. Photographs are chosen for display because of their intrinsic value. However, there are ways to accessorize any portrait so that it can become a decorative part of a room.

Where to Display

Good photographs can look well in almost any place in the house. Traditionally, large portraits have been hung above the mantel in a living room. But, interior decorators today suggest hanging portrait photographs wherever there is enough well-lit space.

If the family collection of photographs yield several prints 11x14 or smaller, they can be grouped in one gallery display. One thing to remember in selecting a location for the photographs: make sure there is enough room for people to see the portraits.

Accessorizing the Portrait

Whether color or black-and-white, any portrait can be accessorized to fit a room. Select mat colors and fabrics that "pull out" a particular color in the photograph; this same color should be one that goes with the room's decor, or black-and-white photo arrangements; colorful mats can liven the display.

Mats are available in a number of materials — from the traditional mat board to elegant velvets or the more imaginative upholstery fibers. The mat should be selected at the same time as the frame to ensure compatibility.

For large portraits chosen for solitary display, select a frame that has wide molding. For groupings, narrow moldings are better. The style of frame is largely dependent upon the room's furnishings. It may be elegantly carved to blend with a Louis XIV chair or to bring a striking contrast to the modern furniture.

To ensure an attractive portrait display, consult the local studio photographer who is an expert on framing professional pictures.

Mother Nature seems to endow every man with the ability to size everybody up but himself.

Re-roofing? Don't overlook color & design

Planning to reroof this year? Remember that modern roofing materials offer advantages that didn't exist when the original roof was installed.

- Shingle styles and colors are more varied.
- Roofing material is designed for longer wear and less maintenance.
- Shingles have increased fire and wind resistance.

As the single largest expense of the house, the roof has great color and design potential that shouldn't be ignored. Color-keyed roofing can individualize your home, set the mood for total house appearance, add dramatic visual impact, reflect the site and surroundings.

Asphalt shingles offer the widest range of colors, including black, white, pastels, blends, and new "earth" and "forest" shades. One of them is bound to suit your house style, color taste and particular location.

Color treatment of these shingles has also been improved, so shingle color is fade-resistant, and many "natural" shades, which blend perfectly with building products, have been developed.

Today's shingles also have greater durability than they used to. The biggest advance is, again, in asphalt shingles. The best grade shingles are now designed to last at least 25 years with no maintenance, almost twice as long as a standard quality roof.

To be certain you're getting a fire-resistant roof, make sure the shingles have a UL Class C rating. It means the material has been laboratory-tested for resistance to fire, flame spread and the burning brands, embers and sparks from other fire sources.

Create comfort in living room

Despite talk of more leisure time, the truth is we have much more choice of activities to fill our leisure and too little time to really relax in our own homes.

When we do find the opportunity to put our various activities aside, we want real comfort and a pleasant atmosphere. This, then, is the basic purpose of today's living rooms. The average homeowner's goal in buying furnishings is to create an atmosphere of gracious comfort for her family and their friends.

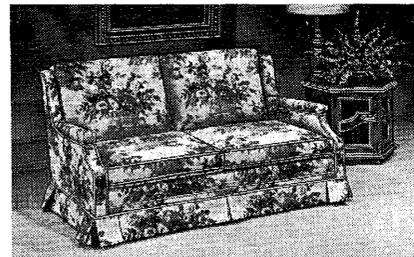

She doesn't look at a sofa as merely an attractive or fashionable item. She sees it as the place where her husband may stretch out to take a nap or read the paper, perhaps forgetting to take off his shoes.

A chair to her may be just the item to complete a conversational grouping, as well as serve as a touch of just the right color to complete her decorating scheme.

In summary, the homemaker is creating a living room, not decorating a parlor. Although she wants it to be attractive, she doesn't want to sacrifice comfort for beauty. Today, with space age materials, the modern homemaker can have beauty, style and comfort. Fabrics are elegant in appearance, yet completely practical for the active family because they are protected by stain repellents. Comfort and durability are assured by such cushioning materials as foams and polyester and dacron.

Even comfortable reclining chairs have evolved into sophisticated stylish designs. These new chairs are available in just about every style to fit into formal as well as informal rooms; modern and traditional designs.

The mechanical apparatus for rocking or reclining is cleverly concealed and fabric coverings come in a wide choice of colors and patterns.

FOR SMALL SPACES

As rooms shrink in size, there is an increasing demand for small sofas. This one, by Conover Chair Co., is available both in loose pillow backs and semi-attached backs.

BUTLER TRAY

Marlborough butler tray by Virginia Galleries is as functional as it is graceful, proportioned to coordinate with today's sofas. The table reflects the current trend among prestige manufacturers, Henkel-Harris among them, of combining veneers with solids.

SNOVER

Many Tuscola county families who were living in rented quarters a few years back have found it possible since then to satisfy their dream of owning their own homes.

As a result, the proportion of local homes that are now owned by their occupants is high and stands comparison with the ownership rate in many parts of the country.

According to the latest findings, some 75.3 per cent of all dwellings in the local area are now owner occupied.

By way of comparison, the home ownership rate in the rest of the United States is 58.9 per cent and, in the State of Michigan, 69.5 per cent.

Much of the progress in this direction was made before the sharp decline in building that occurred in the last few years.

Home buying became possible for more families during the period because of better incomes and because mortgage money was readily obtainable at reasonable rates.

The figures on home ownership, released by the Department of Commerce, are based upon data gathered during the recent Census of Housing.

They show that out of a total of 15,197 year-round housing units in Tuscola county, some 11,446 are now owned by their occupants.

The slump in residential construction in the past 10 years is indicated in the official figures. They show an increase of only 9.5 per cent in one-family homes in the period, although the national population rose 13 per cent.

Most of the new construction that did take place was multi-unit housing -- to accommodate two or more families.

Families that were unable to acquire houses in recent years, because of the shortage or because of the high prices asked, turned to renovating and remodeling their present homes. Nearly $15 billion was spent for such improvements in the past year, the government reports.

The value of homes in Tuscola county rose sharply in the last few years, the figures show. The median asking price for homes is now $12,800, compared with only $8,400 in 1960.

The overall worth of local homes, on that basis, comes to $146,509,000, considerably more than in 1960.

A Favorite Household Aide Can Renew Furniture's 'Complexion'

Only antique furniture is granted the privilege of looking its age... and it has to be a hundred years old or better to qualify. So if any of your furniture, particularly that of recent vintage, is getting to look antique-y... it's time to restore its youth.

Tables, most vulnerable to wear and tear, seem to age the fastest. Usually finished, as is most wood furniture, with varnish lacquer, or sometimes shellac and rubbed to a high polish, they're prone to scratches, alcohol stains, heat marks and bloom (a gray discoloration), or the affliction may be nothing more serious than a build-up of old furniture wax that has turned dark and spotty.

Unupholstered chairs come second in terms of aging. Here you have a direct contact of problems. Tops, where chairs are grasped to be pulled away from the table, discolor. Legs and rungs get scuffed, particularly when there are youngsters in the house who like to either swing their feet as they sit so that heels hit the rungs or wrap their feet round the legs.

Now while professional restoring is costly, the do-it-yourself variety calls for little more than an expenditure of your time. It's time you won't begrudge when the job is done and you see the results and count your savings.

The most tedious and time-consuming part of the operation is removing the old finish. While most amateurs associate this step with special narrow-store-bought products, the professional restorers who work on fine old pieces prefer the common household cleaner, sal soda concentrated, which you find in the laundry supply section of your local grocery store. This offers some distinct advantages to the do-it-yourselfer. Since it's odorless you don't have to work outdoors or in large airy, probably chilly quarters as a precaution against toxic fumes. It's far less hard on your hands and you'll need... you simply pour sal into hot water... is determined by the malady. For a simple case of wax build-up, three tablespoons of the sal to the quart of water sponged over the surface, rinsed with fresh water and wiped dry is the prescribed cure. For varnish, lacquer or shellac, use a cup of the sal to the quart of water and apply the solution to a small area at a time with medium steel wool. Rinse, wipe dry. Run over the surface with fine sandpaper. Wrap the sandpaper around a block of wood for tables, and around a hard, dry cellulose sponge for chairs. The sponge has just enough give to let sandpaper dig into the rounded and fluted areas. Work on chairs on a newspaper-covered table to eliminate back-bending. Since you'll be in a comfortable position, you'll do a better job.

As for the best type of finish to use, consult your hardware dealer from whom you buy it. Just be sure the wood is completely dry before you apply it.

SPRAY PAINTING

To get the smoothest possible finish with a spray paint the home handyman should avoid holding the spray can too close to the work surface. Hold it at least eight inches away and keep it moving steadily. It should be remembered that two light coats will always cover better than one heavy one. In addition, there will be much less likelihood of dripping or running because too much was applied.

Service in Depth

Two-thousand feet below the surface at the International Nickel's Creighton mine in the Sudbury District of Ontario, a fully equipped garage has been built to service diesel-powered mining equipment. A grease job, oil change, tires and parts replacement can be performed.

FIND SOLUTION

Face life's problems honestly — learn what's wrong and what you can do to improve them.

TYPICAL OF the trend in building today are these developments springing up outside the corporate limits of villages and cities. The trailer home complex above is located on Decker-ville Road, 2 1/2 miles west of Deford. More and more city dwellers are buying small plots like these and erecting small homes or moving in trailer homes for use as week-end hideaways from the city.

In addition to the retirement - vacation homes under construction there has been a rapid growth of homes built by permanent residents. Typical of this construction are these homes on Kelly Road, near Cemetery Road, south of Cass City.

Michigan Mirror

Splinter parties cause for concern

Michigan voters may have a substantial selection of candidates to choose from when they go to the polls to pick a U. S. Senator in November, 1972.

There will, of course, be incumbent Republican Robert Griffin, who will be seeking a second term in the Upper Chamber. And there will also be a Democratic candidate chosen in the primary after what many observers feel will be a bitter struggle involving Attorney General Frank J. Kelley and former Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh. There will probably be a candidate put up by the American Independent Party -- the group formed in 1968 to get George Wallace's name on the presidential ballot.

In addition, you can expect a candidate or two from such splinter groups as the Socialist Workers Party or the Prohibition Party.

Ferency says his party will have its own U. S. Senate candidate as well, unless it likes the candidate put forth by one of the other parties. And he says the only potential candidate who has much support among the Human Rights Party membership is Cavanagh.

"If the other parties do the things and nominate the candidates we can support, then it's our intention to support them," he says. "We're interested in results rather than any selfish interest in political activity."

When he looks at the potential candidates, he says, "None of them is very exciting." He says if Kelley wins the Democratic nomination, "Then in all likelihood the Human Rights Party would feel constrained to nominate somebody in opposition."

"We're no longer interested in the argument of picking between the lesser of two evils," he says. "It is a question of the greater good. The idea of working for the greater good is what's attractive about it."

Thus, both major parties face potentially disastrous revolts from within their own ranks; from two men who have run statewide contests before and who have shown they have sizable followings.

Huber and Ferency are considered about as far apart on the political spectrum as two men can be, yet as mavericks they may have more in common than they do in opposition to each other.

Ferency put the desire of both men and their followers very succinctly when he said:

"We're trying to find ways of external political pressure within the system to get the other parties to move our way. Our bargaining point will be if the various parties nominate candidates that are supportable from the human rights interest, then we'll work for them. If they don't, we won't." It should be an interesting election.

But the real spice for the voters and the real threat to the two major party candidates will come from a group of disillusioned conservative Republicans and a group of disillusioned liberal Democrats.

Conservative forces, headed by former State Senator Robert Huber, are now forming a Conservative Party in Michigan much the same as the one New York Sen. James Buckley used to mount his victorious campaign.

Huber says he hasn't made up his mind whether he himself will run or whether the party will put forth another candidate. But he promises the party will have a candidate. And if it is he, it could prove a serious problem for Griffin, who needs all the conservative support he can get.

Huber and his followers feel the Republican Party has gone too liberal in its attempts to win elections in Michigan and has forgotten its conservative members.

"I would hope the Republicans would understand that without conservative support they are deadlier than last year's fish," he says. "It's about time we remind them that conservatives carry some weight yet in this state."

Huber has proven he can pull votes, as he drew 262,938 in his primary bid against Le-nore Romney in 1970, only 14,000 fewer than she drew in winning the primary.

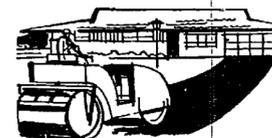

While Huber's move would normally be cause for rejoicing among Democrats, they can't enjoy the situation. They have their own dissident faction to worry about.

It's led by former party State Chairman Zolton Ferency and calls itself the Human Rights Party.

Building booming in Cass City: construction up 150%

With the change in the money market and easing of mortgage rates, Cass City has experienced a 150 per cent increase in the total dollar value of area construction in a comparison of building permits issued from July 1970 to July 1971 and those issued from July 1969 to July 1970.

In the period from July 1969 to July 1970, a 42 per cent decrease in total dollar value of area construction was reported which accounted for only $178,392.

The figures for this year show a total of $479,125 spent in new construction, an increase of $300,733 over last year. Of that $479,125 figure, however, $324,800 was spent during the last six months.

Of the 36 building permits issued, from which the above figures are derived, 14 permits were for new homes. Last year at this time, 22 permits were issued but only one was for the construction of a new home.

Coupled with the increase in home construction, including five new homes under the federally financed HUD program, the village of Cass City has begun work to produce a comprehensive building code to replace the 1947 building code it now has on the books.

The code is part of an effort being experienced by Elkland and Greenleaf townships and possibly could extend to the county level to revamp and revitalize zoning and building codes to meet today's needs.

Besides the 14 permits issued for home construction, six building permits were also issued for commercial use, including the $90,000 addition and renovation of the First Baptist Church.

During this time the Pinney Bank, the Rawson Memorial Library and the four unit apartment building were constructed as well as renovations to Eria's and the bowling alley. The remaining permits were for renovations and remodeling of homes.

In direct relationship to Cass City's growth, sales of five to ten acre lots have gone up 10 per cent. The sale of the land has been primarily for home construction and has caused the value of the land around Cass City to go up at least 10 per cent over last year.

The boom in construction, however, is not complete for the area. It is anticipated by the end of this year some $800,000 will be spent in total value of new construction in Cass City.

Update that Bathroom!

Bathrooms rank high on the list of most wanted and needed — home improvement projects. According to the trade publication, Building Supply News, 16.5 million bathrooms in the United States are badly out-moded, too small and inconvenient.

If cost is inhibiting your immediate plans for bathroom modernization, the editors remind you that the bathroom demands consideration because it can do so much to improve the home and increase the family's comfort. What's more, says the magazine, a wide variety of new plumbing fixtures, accessories and materials that are both decorative and utilitarian, allow you to choose features that will suit your budget as well as your taste.

The three major disadvantages of older bathrooms are lack of privacy, space and modern convenience features. The tendency toward larger families means that one bathroom per house is simply not enough. Most families require at least an additional powder room.

If you can't manage a second bathroom yet, there are some things you can do to make present quarters more sensitive, comfortable and attractive.

Compartmentalization is one solution to the daily bathroom traffic tie-up. It can be achieved by closing off the lavatory area from the rest of the room with a partition, thus permitting two people to use the bathroom at the same time. The room can also serve double-duty if you add a second sink or install a new double-lavatory unit.

Since the bathroom takes hard, daily abuse, it should have facilities, walls and floors that are easy to clean. This is no problem if you select the right materials. Plastic-coated wall paneling that resists heat and humidity is inexpensive, sponges clean, and gives the room a warm, unusually good-looking decor. Washable wall paper that comes in a variety of colorful, attractive patterns is another practical way to relieve the cold, antiseptic appearance of old-fashioned bathrooms. If you decide to paint, use a washable enamel finish and get away from the traditional white, pink or blue shades with interesting new combinations of browns, yellows or greens. In addition to floor tiles, there are now many vinyl flooring materials that offer beauty and low-maintenance.

New fixtures make a big difference in bathroom remodeling. Don't choose them hastily. Take a look at the wide variety available at local building supply dealers, many of whom feature full bathroom displays to give you sound and interesting remodeling ideas.

It pays to get good quality fixtures and facilities that can take daily use. The trend now is towards wall-hung toilets because it's easier to clean under and around them, built-in vanities, and round or oval lavatories with adjacent counter-top space. Colored fixtures are popular, and single-handle faucets get the nod because of their convenience.

There are also a host of accessories that will update your bathroom. These range from practical double medicine cabinets, which give you twice the storage space and mirror area, to pretty matched tissue holders and waste paper baskets. Where cost is no problem, bathrooms can go exotic with sunken tubs, water-resistant murals, and built-in sun lamps.

NOW GET BEHIND THE BOARD to locate and hold the washers in place while screws are being installed. Here is a "natural" for the glue gun, when mounting pegboard with spacer washers. Place a dab of hot glue on the spacer, then attach it to the board, centering it over the desired hole. Repeat until all spacers are installed, then hang the board. Model No. 250 electric glue gun comes with 60 sticks of glue; the smaller pistol-shaped gun comes with four sticks of glue and three for caulking. By USM Corporation.

Electric glue gun lets you get behind board

Here is a natural for the glue gun: When mounting peg board with spacer washers, a person would have to be 1/8 inch wide and about 10 inches tall to get behind the board to locate and hold the washers in place while screws are being installed. (Spacers must be placed every 12 inches throughout the board.) Solution: with rear of board exposed, place a dab of hot glue on the spacer then attach it to the board, centering it over the desired hole. Repeat until all spacers are installed, then hang the board in the usual manner. Either version of USM Corporation's electric glue gun will work effectively at this job and many others around the house. The new professional model (No. 250) offers additional control-features such as trigger for glue flow and thermostat to temper glue heat. Interchangeable tips are an available extra. The "No. 250" sells for under twenty-five dollars, and comes packaged with 60 sticks of glue; the smaller pistol-shaped gun sells for around eight dollars and comes with four sticks of glue and three for caulking.

There's one part of your house you should leave open all year.

The attic. Crawl space, too, if yours is a home without a basement.

Leave the space or attic vents open even when it's cold outside. If you don't, excess moisture is apt to collect on rafters, roofing, joists or sub-floor and cause them to rot.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Ever now and then someone comes along that lifts the spirits and helps us get through all the other news in the paper. Clem Webster came to the meeting at the country store Saturday night with a clipping that made the world look brighter.

Clem had this piece that told about a 14-year-old girl that had collected nearly three million coupons off food packages, enough to get three kidney machines for people that would die without em. The little girl got some publicity and now thousands of people is sending her coupons.

The piece said the food outfit would buy the machines in exchange for coupons from their products. The little girl, whose brother died of kidney disease, started collecting coupons and her idea grew fast.

They is a lot good about people, Clem said, and a story like that jest reminds us that we care about one another, but we have to be showed what we can do together that we can't do alone. Clem was of a mind that all them people that sent coupons to the little girl got reward for their kindness. They reminded themselves, Clem said, that helping build someone better allus is better than tearing down what we got.

Ed Doolittle said he was happy with the coupon story to, but he couldn't help thinking that they are more people needing kidney machines than they are machines. Money, said Ed, really makes the difference sometimes in life and death.

On the subject of gifting sick, Ed said that was one thing nobody can afford to do nowadays. Hospital costs are shooting sky high, said Ed, and doctor fees are going up jest as fast. And you can't outfox the doctors by putting "doctor clothes" on the younguns like you use to. If you put wore out clothes on younguns now hoping to get a break from the doctor, his office people will figger you're a Medicaid case and his prices will go even higher.

But general speaking, said Ed, doctors are about as overworked as they are overpaid. And compared to health services in most of the world, Ed said we're lucky to have the kind of care we got.

feller said if you treat a cold it'll go away in seven days, and if you leave it alone it'll last a week.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Mike Hoffman YFU student in the Netherlands

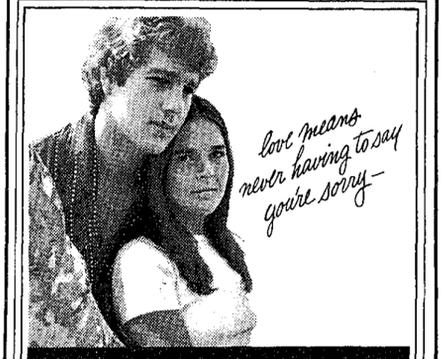

Speaking of health, Zeke Crubb said he had saw where the Government claims folks in this country spent $1.8 billion last year on laxatives and mouthwash that ain't worth a penny fer they good they do. Zeke was thinking of all the ways we waste money on health aids, and he wondered if the Government had anything to say about deodorant. They ain't much worst odor than two-day old deodorant on a feller, Zeke allowed.

Personal, Mister Editor, I take a lot of these aids with a grain of salt. I recollect the Mike Hoffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garry Hoffman of Gageton, left for the Netherlands June 21, to represent Owen-Gage-High-School as a Youth for Understanding foreign exchange student. He is staying with a pharmacist and his family, along with another American boy, and is expected to return home the last week of August. He is a Senior student at Owen-Gage.

Local police on stand-by to handle kids at shore

Apparently the word went out around the Detroit suburbs that "Caseville's where it's at" . . . At any rate crowds of young people ranging from an estimated 4,000 to 7,000 persons kept the police busy all week end with about 75 officers pressed into service from the Huron County Sheriff's Department, assisted by others from Bay, Saginaw, Sanilac, Lapeer and Tuscola counties. Also helping were police departments from Caro, Vassar and Millington with Cass City department standing by in reserve in case there were any accidents. Bad Axe State Police, of course, were also called for assistance throughout the boisterous two days. The trouble began to get out of hand Saturday night when large groups and motorcycle gangs began to camp at the dunes area and infringe on private property. Four miles of M-25 were cordoned off for a time as the police broke the massive crowd into smaller individual groups Sunday night and got them on their way with blanket rolls early Monday morning. About 40 persons were arrested over the week end with most of them posting bonds. Except for one or two who requested more time, the group went before Judge John Schubel in Bad Axe paying fines ranging between $35 and $75 on various charges of disorderly conduct. Judge Schubel admitted to having a headache by mid-afternoon. In a report issued last week Tom Dewey was listed as drunk and disorderly. The charge was actually disorderly only. He paid a $25 fine, $10 costs and $4 judgment fee.

Few auto mishaps over Holiday

This Fourth of July week end was exceptionally quiet as far as Tuscola county and the Cass City area were concerned. Accidents were held to a minimum and the area seemed to take a mid-summer breather. The most serious accident sent John William Partlo, 23, of 3505 School Street in Akron, to Saginaw's General Hospital, where he was in critical condition. Partlo had been heading south on the Sheridan Road about 3 a. m. when he veered to the left and struck the bridge at the Hoppe Road with his car tumbling into the dredge cut. Partlo suffered a fractured skull but he was not found until shortly after 6 a. m. when the accident was reported. Water accidents continued to crop up in the county with Jennifer Jill Kruse, 24, saved at Anderson Park and James Wallace Ruppert, 29, of Akron, losing his life at a farm pond. Jennifer Kruse disappeared in the water of the deep gravel pit last Wednesday afternoon but the quick work of sheriff's deputy Robert Fox with mouth to mouth resuscitation helped revive her. Sunday evening James Wallace Ruppert, 29, of Akron, apparently drowned when he dove into the pond at the Wesley Karpovich farm on Dixon Road and failed to come to the surface. Sheriff's deputies with scuba gear recovered his body about an hour later at 7:30.

The need for medical specialists, the possibility of a professional building, promotion of the arts and local artists and the expansion of the cultural center were also presented to the Chamber during the meeting as possible projects to bear the chamber's approval.

In other action, the Chamber initiated a collection of $4 from local residents along Main Street for the cost of the petunias planted on the street. The door-to-door collection will begin Wednesday night.

4-H ACTIVITIES
4-H'ers topic
Ecology...

By Bernard Jardot

Today, ecology, conservation and environmental preservation are words voiced by Americans of all ages, wherever they reside. The reason, of course, is obvious for there is more and more concern about the future of this planet we inhabit. This includes a growing number of 4-H'ers and 4-H clubs that are doing something NOW.

As newspapers and television carry the frightening statistics concerning the dwindling numbers of alligators in the Florida Everglades and the story of the death of Lake Erie, Americans realize they must do something right now to protect their heritage of beautiful, for spacious skies and ambers waves of grain.

4-H'ers are working in California, in Wisconsin, in Florida and Maine. In fact, East, West, North and South, in all 50 States, in the cities and suburbs, in rural areas and on the farms, conservation has become the resounding theme of 4-H.

Yes, here in Tuscola county more and more 4-H'ers and 4-H clubs are getting involved in environmental conservation and ecology. If you wish more information on any of our many 4-H projects and activities, contact us at the County Extension office in the Civil Defense Center, Caro.

Summer means many things to many people. To many homemakers, summer means more laundry. Often the laundry will contain garments that may have reminders on them of a summer picnic or an exciting ball game. Grass, mustard, fruit or vegetable stains often make their way into the family's laundry unnoticed - only to be discovered at a later date.

Many stains become almost impossible to remove after they have gone through the wash. The secret to stain removal is to catch them before they go into the wash. Here are some easy at home methods to remove those unwanted stains. These methods are to be used before the garment is washed. Grass - work moistened soap or detergent into stain, then rinse.

Ice Cream - Sponge stain with cool water. Or soak in cool water for 30 minutes or longer. If stain remains, work soap or detergent into the stain, then rinse thoroughly. Allow article to dry. If a greasy stain remains sponge with grease solvent. Allow article to dry. Repeat if necessary.

Fruit, fruit juices - sponge stain with cool water. Or soak stain in cool water for 30 minutes or longer, some stains may require an overnight soak. If you find the stain remains after sponging or soaking, work a soap or detergent into it, then rinse.

A free bulletin "Removing Stains From Fabrics - Home Methods" explains how to remove many different kinds of stains. If you would like a copy of this bulletin, please contact the Cooperative Extension Service Office in Sandusky, Caro or Bad Axe.

Tuckey reports a fowl deed

A fowl deed was committed Friday, July 2, when someone apparently couldn't resist a chicken and duck dinner, courtesy of Mark Tuckey.

Tuckey reported to authorities that five chickens and one duck were missing from the coop on Koepfgen Rd. The situation wouldn't have been so bad, but the missing fowl were of a rare breed valued at over $3 each.

Trying out a new golf swing can be dangerous, especially if a window gets in the way. Mrs. Kenneth Elsing reported a golf ball broke a window in her home on Huron. The incident was reported as accidental with no mention of who was swinging the club.

In more usual business, vandalism was reported at the Detroit Edison Co. on Main St., where a meter on the back of the office was broken. The case is still under investigation.

for six months before he can be considered for benefits. An application is then filed with the social security office in Baltimore, where it is screened.

The screening, request for further information and more screening may take months, unless the red tape can be cut. Mrs. Smith had waited over a month since applying for the benefits. When acceptance of the application was confirmed by Griffin's office, she said she was pleased and grateful that the senator took such interest and added, "I can sure use it."

Letter to Editor

Discipline not parents' fault

Dear John,

Well you did it again, and as usual I have to give my side of the argument.

I must disagree with Miss Garety when she states that children aren't trained at home. As parents we train our children to follow the rules we set at home. But when they get on the school bus or enter the school door we can not follow them. If a teacher or bus driver cannot handle his discipline problem then that teacher or bus driver should be investigated. Our greatest generation gap is between our ears, we refuse to listen.

Lu Ann was the only one of our children to attend Jr. High at Cass City. Do you think she would dare break water balloons in my house? But she came home from Jr. High more than once with her clothes soaking wet. During her 7th and 8th grade we always heard stories of the kids locking the teacher in the science lab. Boys sewing across books with the sewing machines. It was a rare week when she didn't visit Mr. Stickle's office. The usual punishment that seventh grade class got was to be told "If you don't behave we'll have to do something about it." They even had a class song, "Hippity Hop to Stickle's shop to get our daily lesson." You even published a letter in the Chronicle from one Jr. High girl about the discipline.

Don't sell our kids short. Today's kids are brighter than we were. The school packs them like sardines in a school bus. Keeps them from 8:30 to 3:45 with only 1/2 hour break. No father works those hours with out a lunch hour and 2 coffee breaks. A parent can't teach a child to respect a teacher. That, each teacher must earn. The teacher you remember most is the one who made you want to learn.

You know what I would like to see when this 18-year-old vote is settled. For some 18-year-old to run for the school board. Sure they have some kookie ideas, but if you listen and really listen they have some good ideas. We have some outstanding young people in our school district if we will just listen to them.

Most of our poor readers hate American Government including our Kenny. He took his American Government class in the Detroit school system while at rehab. It was the same book as CC uses but divided into two books with large type. He really enjoyed that class and it mainly consisted of reading and answering questions by himself. He only had a teacher once a week.

The teachers should punish the child but make it a fair punishment. The only thing you're going to get out of making a teenager write 1000 times is a look of "what do you think I am, a baby." How about a 1000 word essay on fairness in the school system.

Sorry it's so long

Catholics—Deford show way in Cass City Church League

Two weeks into the Cass City Church League season the defending champion Catholics and Deford are still undefeated. Most of the other teams in the league have shown that they are capable of winning or losing on any particular night they play.

Monday, June 28, the Novesta Church of Christ topped the Lutherans in a tight game, 7-5. Don Englehart found his control and had enough to outlast Willy Nelson. "Moose" Willy.

In the nightcap, the Methodists outslugged the Missionary-RLDS, 16-9. Eldon Stoutenburg went the route for the winners and Fred Martin took the loss. A grand slam home run by Rob Alexander and a triple and single by Randy Brown helped the Methodists to victory.

Shabbona found a new way to lose a tight game in the June 29 opening game. The team was done in by the curfew which halted the game after six innings with Colwood in front, 8-7.

Dan Calster took the loss and Dave Smith chalked up another Church league victory. It was a good night for the Smith boys. Dave and Lowell each collected two hits to pace their team to the win.

In the second game Deford used some clutch hurling by Ron Nicholas to shutout Owen-Gage, 4-0. Victim of the classy mound job was Gary DeVore who pitched an acceptable game himself.

But Martin solved his slants for a single, double and triple to lead the Deford attack. Nicholas struck out eight.

Thursday the Cass City Baptists rolled over Ellington Nazarene, 14-1. Gary Mellendorf coasted to the win while Tim Andress was tagged with the loss. Gary Mellendorf swung the big stick with a pair of home runs. Dave Brooks and Dan Mellendorf chipped in with a pair of hits to help the Baptists to victory.

In the second game the Cass City Catholics demonstrated why they are the most feared team in the league with a 23-5 victory over Missionary. John Maharg was an easy winner over Joe Mellendorf on the mound as he coasted behind his team's hitting attack.

Smentek lashed out a home run among his three hits. Three hits were also collected by Dave Asher, Maharg and Paul Bliss. Father Leo Gengler collected 4 hits to show the way.

Friday The Church of Christ rolled over Snover-Laing, 8-1. Englehart topped Gene Dorman on the mound as burly Ralph Zinnecker smashed a long home run. Englehart pitched a three-hitter.

In the nightcap the Lutherans measured the Cass City Methodists, 7-2. Willy topped Joe Merchant. Ken Martin slashed three hits with Jerry Guinther, Rich Lowe and Frank Butler collecting two hits each for the winners.

John Hacker helped Willy over some rough spots with a pair of catches over his shoulder of hard-hit line drives. Mike Murphy was a human vacuum cleaner at shortstop for the Methodists turning potential hits into outs with fine plays.

The standing as of July 2:

Deford	4	0
Catholics	3	0
Snover-Laing	2	1
Church of Christ	2	2
Lutherans	2	2
Baptists	2	2

ONE FOR THE ROAD

What's ahead in 2001

By Dan Marlowe

Excerpts from a speech by the man who gave you 2001 - A Space Odyssey, Arthur C. Clarke:

"In terms of the changes we may expect, the year 2001 is really about as far from us as the 1890's. It was around the turn of the century that a great revolution was taking place in our ordinary way of living in our homes. The elements of that revolution were quite few: piped water, indoor plumbing, gas cooking and heating, electric light, and the telephone.

"When you think what those have done to us, can you imagine what the technological revolution of the future will bring. There will be some great changes in the home and outside it. The kitchen is already doomed by the deep-freeze and TV dinners, because in another decade or so you will be able to purchase a kind of home automat in which a month's meals will be delivered frozen in a package weighing about 100 pounds for the average family.

"This might not seem like much food, but may I remind you that 90 per cent of most food is water--90 per cent of YOU is water. Why should you pay for this, when you can simply add water to food as the astronauts do now?"

"Natural meat production is so inefficient that it will prob-

CMU names 3 to honors list

Approximately 2,300 students were named to the academic honors list at Central Michigan University for the 1971 spring semester. Of that number three were from this area.

They were: Joanne Greenlee, a senior from Argyle; Nancy Jean Walkowski, a sophomore from Decker; and Carol J. Kreger, a junior from Snover.

To be eligible for the academic honors list, a student must have a cumulative grade average of "B" or better for his entire college career.
