

State Health Department closes Cass City wading, swimming pools

Theodore D. Coyer, a sanitary engineer from the State Health Department, closed the Cass City pool Tuesday because it failed to meet the department's health standards.

Coyer told the Chronicle that among the nine reasons he named for closing the facility the major ones were the lack of a chlorinator, flow meter and gutters that function properly.

Coyer said that the inspection was made at the end of the season because it was the first time that the department had available to tour the various pool facilities in the county. He said that the State department took over the job because the Thumb Health Department did not have the necessary people to do the job.

The action of the health department cut short the most ambitious pool plans for pool use in recent years. Tentative plans had called for extending the pool use after the opening of the school year, the traditional closing time.

The chlorinator specified by the health department has been on order for 2 1/2 months, Village Supt. James Blades said and the function the machine is designed for has been completed by hand.

Blades pointed out that there has not been one serious injury or illness traceable to the pool in the 34 years it has operated.

While the pool closing came at an inopportune time for the village program, it is the consensus of persons close to the scene that the facility had become obsolete.

In addition to closing the pool, Coyer put the lid on the wading pool. Demanded repairs would require a new circulating system that would necessitate tearing up the present wading pool to install.

The most costly pool repair item required by the health department would be repairing the gutters. This request effectively closed the pool for the remainder of the year.

The basic problem may well be that the pool has just grown old.

It was originated in the depth of the depression in 1935 by Dr. H. T. Donahue and the late Otto Prieskorn who started a drive to raise the money.

It was completed in 1937 and state-inspected in 1938. It has served without interruption since that time.

Meanwhile, an attempt is being made to switch some of the nearly completed swimming courses to local private pools to complete requirements for certification.

Launch drive for Red Cross blood bank

Two resolutions asking for assistance in getting a Red Cross Blood Program in Tuscola county have been sent to the Tuscola county Board of Commissioners by the Medical Staff of Hills and Dales General Hospital.

The resolutions, made on two different dates by different people, stated "Present blood needs are not being met on an adequate basis" and "To continue to deny the citizens of Tuscola county this basic service is not in the interest of good government."

A Red Cross blood bank for Tuscola county would mean that the hospitals would get blood free and so would the residents, no matter where they were when they needed it.

Byron Landholt, administrator of Hills and Dales General Hospital, explained that Hills and Dales now buys on the average of 72 units of blood per year.

Blood costs the hospital $25 a unit, which is what the hospital charges the receiver. This is about $1800 a year just for Hills and Dales.

Their prime source is the blood bank in Bay City, but it is not able to supply all their needs, so they have to scrounge around to blood banks in Flint, Ann Arbor or other municipalities.

"When we ask for blood (from Bay City) we get 1 unit for every 6 we ask for. Blood is good for only 18 days, and much of that blood we get is almost out of date when we get it. It's non-returnable, so the hospital loses," explained Landholt.

The Red Cross blood bank, which is located in Flint, would provide fresher blood that would be returnable. And the Red Cross is involved in a program whereby the blood that is returned can be processed into many useful products such as red cells, serums, medicines and for use by service men overseas, the administrator went on to explain.

A real bonus of living in a county which has a Red Cross blood bank is that you can get blood free, anywhere in the world.

All the counties in the Thumb except Tuscola are members of the Red Cross blood bank. This means, said Landholt, that a person from Sanilac or Huron county, who is treated in a Tuscola county hospital, can receive blood free because the hospital can request it from the Red Cross blood bank.

But a Tuscola county resident would have to pay for blood if he were treated in either of those counties because he is not covered.

The program costs residents 3 cents per person the first year, 6 cents the second year and 9 cents the third year. There are 48,285 persons in Tuscola county, which means that it would cost $1448.55 the first year, $2897.10 the second year and $4345.65 the third year.

These are national figures set by the National Red Cross. It now costs Hills and Dales alone more for blood than it would for the whole county under the blood bank program.

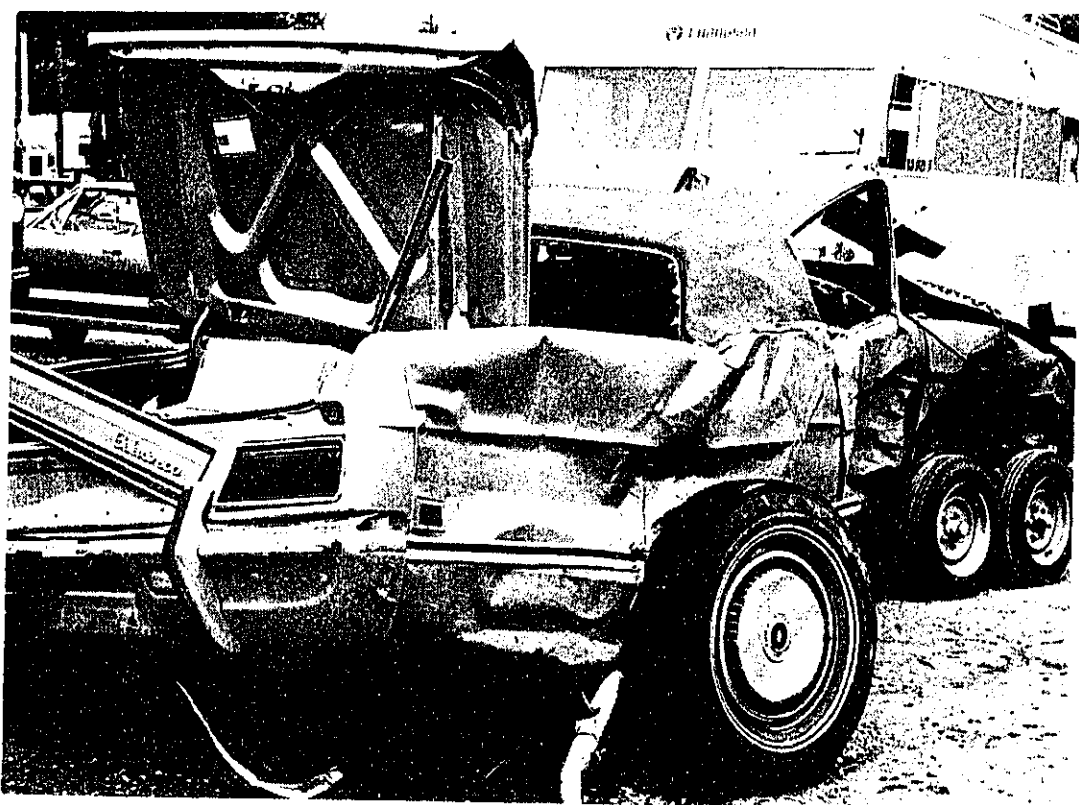

"We talked to the Red Cross last spring, but got no results," Landholt said, and then explained why they were seeking the commissioners' aid.

"The commissioners provide the salary and lease space to the Red Cross," he said. He hopes that they will be able to use their influence.

The Red Cross gets its money by community fund drives each year.

"Since we went in with United Fund, we get less than $1000 for the whole year," said Mrs. DeBoer, executive secretary of the Tuscola County Red Cross.

The reason given to the hospitals last spring was that the program would be too expensive.

THE DAMAGED AUTO of a Pigeon couple killed in a Monday afternoon accident was almost bent in two after striking a telephone pole. The accident occurred at Elmwood and Colwood Roads.

Pigeon couple dead, girl hurt in 2-car accident Monday

A late Monday afternoon accident took the lives of an elderly Pigeon couple and hospitalized a 19-year-old Akron girl.

Lawrence Hobart Bartholomew, 75, and his wife Margaret Wilhelmina, 63, 9303 Points Charity Drive, Pigeon, were killed when the car they were in was struck by an auto driven by Karen Elizabeth Dewald, 19, 3673 Emery St., Akron. The fatal accident occurred at the intersection of Elmwood and Colwood Roads at 4:38 p. m.

The girl was listed in fair condition in Caro Community Hospital while doctors were still trying to determine the extent of her injuries late Tuesday.

The Bartholomews were going north on Colwood when they were struck by the Dewald car. Karen Dewald failed to yield the right of way at the stop sign as she was traveling west on Elmwood. Her car left skid marks 24 feet long. It was raining at the time of the accident.

The Bartholomew vehicle was severely damaged and had been jammed against an electric pole, knocking some wires down and electricians had to be called to ground out the wires.

Lawrence Bartholomew was dead at the scene of the accident. Mrs. Bartholomew died at Saginaw General Hospital at 7:30 p. m. Monday.

Tuscola County Sheriff's office is still investigating. They do not know yet who was driving.

I carried the mail—a short (not so sweet) career

By PAT DROUIN

Monday was an eye opener. I became Cass City's second lady letter carrier.

As a mail lady, I had to be to work by seven, attempt to learn some of the names and addresses of Cass City residents and conjure enough stamina and dexterity to handle stacks of letters while walking 13 miles a day.

Getting up at 6:30 a. m. is the middle of the night, so guess who walked in late her first and last day of work?

Mrs. Millie Miracle, my teacher for the day, was already swiftly sorting mail into slots. Somehow in the mass of letters, magazines and other assorted goodies, a system prevails. I never quite got the hang of the system, but Cass City residents do get their mail so it must work.

I stood around for an hour and a half, just watching the system in operation, amid comments from various male members of the post office department, whose identities I will not reveal. I was offered several chances to go with the rural carriers, covering some 80 miles on back lonely roads in order to see the post office in its "full operation." Comments about the rain circulated profusely—all for my benefit.

Naturally it was cold, damp and rainy the day I went with Mrs. Miracle. I will probably go to my grave with the thought that I could have been the one to stop the drought, if I planned this little escapade sooner.

At 8:40 a. m. on the nose, the mail was ready for distribution. Mrs. Miracle was out the door followed by a bumbling girl reporter, turned letter carrier.

"It's a light day," she kept saying, only two-thirds of the usual 1600 pieces of mail delivered daily on the City two route. You couldn't prove it by me; that bag was heavy.

Maybe the light load caused her to move faster, as she zipped in and out of the businesses on Main St. This tiny RICHARD ROOT had little trouble convincing Basil Bigham of the advantages of purchasing a ticket to the Ox Roast Dinner Saturday, Aug. 14, at the village park. The all-day affair will feature a horse pulling contest, a dinner and dance and rides for the children. Tickets are available from any member of the Lions, Rotary or Gavel Clubs and the firemen.

Ox roast sales spurt after ticket selling blitz

Area residents will be able to take out their anxieties by smashing a car, or watch horse teams compete in a horse pulling contest or maybe just eat a hearty meal as part of the Western Round-up to be held Saturday, Aug. 14.

With some 150 hours of work behind them, the Cass City Service Clubs are moving into the final phase of preparation for the all-day affair to be held at the village park.

The Round-up will feature rides for the children, starting at 10 a. m., a Little League All-Star game and all-events day in the afternoon.

A special feature of the afternoon activities will be a horse pulling contest under the direction of Clair Auslander at 4 p. m. The service clubs have donated $250 in money prizes for the event.

Several area women's groups will have booths as well as a car smashing sponsored by the Men's Club of St. Pancratius Church.

Evening activities will commence, with an Ox Roast dinner, from 5 p. m. to 9 p. m., featuring barbecued beef prepared on a spit, potato salad, coleslaw, baked beans, rolls and coffee or milk.

Dick Erla, food chairman, said that although ticket sales are not yet definite, close to a half a ton of meat will be needed for the dinner.

For just the meat alone, it will cost at least $1,000, Erla said.

"There is no profit in the food angle," Erla noted, "if we break even we will be lucky." Twenty-five men will be cooking and serving the meal, complete with Western hats. Erla said that meat preparation will begin at 7 a. m. in a pit especially prepared for the event.

103rd Huron fair to open Sunday

The 103rd Huron County Fair begins Sunday, Aug. 8, with a choir festival at 2 p. m. Admission is free.

Happyland is sponsoring the midway, which features several new rides and shows.

A championship horse pulling contest begins at 7:30 p. m. Monday, following setting up and entry registration.

Tuesday is 4-H and PFA Day. The judging of exhibits starts at 9 a. m. The Bad Axe High School Band plays at 1:30 and 7:30 p. m. Harness Beginning at 9 p. m. and running until 1 a. m., a dance on the tennis courts will complete the day's events. Music will be provided by Rick Erla's band of Cass City and the Noblemen from Deckerville.

Ed Bergman, president of the service clubs, as well as several other members of the clubs, said they were disappointed over the recent Council decision to ban beer in the park.

"Without the beer we just won't make the profit we had hoped for," Bergman said.

The primary goal of the "big picnic" Mike Weaver, vice-president said, was to draw the town out to get some annual event going and to make a profit. The Lions Club, Rotary Club, Gavel Club and Fire Department that combined to form the service clubs, will divide the profits evenly among the clubs for various projects.

The Fire Department plans to spend the money on new equipment for the new fire house. The other groups have not yet decided, but Weaver noted that most of the profits would go back to the village.

A door to door ticket sale was held Tuesday night by the clubs to spur ticket sales. Tickets will also be sold at the door for the event at $3 for adults and $1.25 for children.

Stricken 82-year-old survives ordeal

Mrs. John (Nell) Mudge is doing very well after an ordeal that many a young person might not have survived so well. She laid outside in her yard for over 24 hours in cold and rain after suffering a slight stroke until relatives found her late Saturday evening.

Nell Mudge is 82. She is now recuperating in Hills and Dales General Hospital. It is the first time she has ever been in one.

Sometime Friday she was hanging up clothes in her yard when, she told her rescuers her knee buckled, causing her to fall flat on her face, injuring her nose. She couldn't get up so she lay there until Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Sherman found her.

She lives alone on Severance Road, about 6 miles south of Cass City.

The Shermans, who live down the road, said they went to see if anything was wrong after Mrs. Sherman's mother, Mrs. Norman Herr, told them that Mrs. Mudge had not answered phone calls since Friday.

The woman was supposed to go to church with Mrs. Herr Friday evening. When she didn't show up, Mrs. Herr became anxious about her aunt and telephoned but received no answer. She called all day Saturday and even called Detroit to see if she might have gone there to visit relatives.

She finally asked her daughter to check on her.

It was about 9:30 p. m. when the Shermans knocked on her door. They saw the laundry still on the line and became suspicious that something had happened.

"She's very neat and would never leave clothes out overnight," explained Mrs. Sherman.

Mrs. Sherman explained to the telephone operator what had happened and soon police and an ambulance arrived.

In the meantime, they had gotten her into the house. She was apparently suffering delusions after spending so long in the cold and rain of Friday night, because she didn't readily recognize that she was in her own home.

"What I wouldn't give for a cup of coffee," she told her great-niece. So while they awaited the ambulance, Mrs. Sherman made her aunt coffee. She said Mrs. Mudge seemed to be coming out of the ordeal and told them she didn't want to go to the hospital, that they should just put her to bed.

In spite of her protests, she was taken to Hills and Dales, where she is listed in fair condition. The doctors said she had suffered a slight stroke but was otherwise okay. Relatives said she could move her arms and legs.

She is an independent woman who has lived alone for some time. She had a brother who was living in a trailer near her, but he died recently. One of her 4 children or another relative always comes to visit her on the week ends, but this week end her nephew, Glenn McClorey, who was going to look in on her, couldn't because he had become ill.

"She's a tough woman," said Mrs. Sherman. "She still drives a car and looks more like she's 55 or 60. She's strong, and it's really incredible that she survived that ordeal."

FROM THE Editor's Corner

I can't think of one lousy thing to enlighten all of you with today.

I'm in a writing slump. Just like a ball player who can't buy a base hit, a golfer who runs into a string of bogies or a chess player that can't win a game.

As I look back through older issues it seems to me that column writing was easier and results better than they have been in recent weeks.

There hasn't been anything happening this week that excites the interest or spurs my imagination.

There has been a little stir about the law granting majority rights to 18-year-olds.

You'd think that the younger set would rejoice and feel that it's about time. But among many in the early twenties, there is a feeling that the new law may not be all that good.

Really this shouldn't be surprising because the young often have dogmatic views and intolerant attitudes...many times to a greater extent than the older generation.

They haven't lived long enough or been thwarted often enough to be uncertain.

Most of the adult rapping about the new 18-year-old privileges centers around the right to booze it up when 18 instead of 21.

But making 18-year-olds legally responsible financially could be of more importance. Still it's certain that the kids are going to find that being legally able to sign is totally different from actually having a loan approved.

It will be surprising if dad's signature isn't required on most notes before money is forked over, regardless of what the law allows. I suspect that after the first ripple things will go along substantially unchanged. I'll confess that one of the arguments presented for passing the new law made me slightly nauseous.

That's the one that claims if a man is old enough to fight, he's old enough to be legally an adult.

That's pure hogwash. In fact, it's probable that youngsters

Cass City's Mort Orr succumbs at Fort Worth

Cass City's Mort Orr died Monday. He succumbed from complications of a stroke suffered May 19. The 82-year-old area pioneer had been in ill health since suffering a heart attack in 1965.

He died at the Watson Nursing Home, Fort Worth, Texas. Orr farmed the family homestead for over 50 years and was a cabinet maker in the community for another 20.

He was born at the home where he lived on East Main Street Mar. 8, 1889.

The remainder of the Orr farm is adjacent to the Cass City Recreational Park and it was from the Orr family that the park land was secured. The original park site was purchased from Mr. Orr's father for use as the Cass City Fairgrounds and the most recent addition to the park purchased from Mort Orr.

Mr. Orr loved the land and long after he gave up farming refused to sell his property because as he put it "I like to look out the back porch and see the land and the woods".

Orr's woods was a place for youngsters to explore and the community to visit long before it became a part of the village park.

Mr. Orr received wide acclaim for serving 50 years on the Elkland Township Fire Department dating back to the days when the village was served by primitive equipment including water hand pumped from cisterns through seven feet of sound hose.

For his service to the community he was made an honorary member of the Cass City Rotary Club in 1960.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Orr. He married Lottie McQueen in Cass City June 17, 1919. She died Feb. 22, 1968.

Surviving are: two daughters, Mrs. Edwin (Margaret) Sassan, 68, of Fort Worth, Tex., and Mrs. C. C. (Winifred) Bauman of Pleasant Ridge; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday at 1 p. m. at Little's Funeral Home. The Rev. Melvin R. Vander, pastor emeritus of the Presbyterian Church, will officiate.

Interment will be in the family lot in Elkland cemetery.

Dad and George were gyped

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Make way for youth. And all that jazz.

But sometimes it gives me a pang. Not a pain; a pang. You get a pain in the neck. The pang plings your heart.

The other day Mark Beltaire, the Detroit Free Press columnist, wrote about short railroads. He mentioned the Port Huron and Detroit Railroad which, he said, is privately owned by George and Jim Duffy of Port Huron.

I stopped reading in mid-paragraph so as to indulge in some incriminating nostalgia. About 30 years ago, I delivered newspapers to George Duffy's home in Port Huron. He was my best customer because he always paid several weeks in advance. The charge was 20 cents a week but, when Duffy owed 20 cents he'd give me a buck so I wouldn't bother him again for 5 weeks. But he never marked a calendar and he had a poor memory. I'd come back in 3 weeks, or whenever I was broke, and he'd give me another buck for 5 more weeks. And then I'd be back in 3 more weeks and so on. . .

I didn't consider this stealing. Stealing was copying dimes from your mother's purse, which I also did. But with Duffy, I simply owed him some newspapers. I figured that some day I'd be flush and I'd skip collecting from him for several months, but keep delivering papers, until my route book balanced. But I still haven't got flush and I had to give up the newspaper route to protect my eligibility for Social Security. I still owe Duffy 1,347 copies of the Port Huron Times Herald.

While nostalgizing, I remembered that Duffy is about 7 foot tall and I immediately thought, columnist Beltaire should hear how my late dad once introduced Duffy to a friend. "This is George Duffy," Dad said, "the only railroad owner in the world who is longer than his track."

Then I returned to Beltaire's column and discovered that, by gosh, he had heard about Dad's wisecrack. There it was, in print for the first time. But Beltaire credited it to "Eddie Fitzgerald of the Lapeer Fitzgeralds."

And that's when I felt the pang.

There is an Eddie Fitzgerald who lives in Lapeer but he is not my father; he's my son. The Eddie Fitzgerald who knew George Duffy never lived in Lapeer. He was of the Port Huron Fitzgeralds and he never lived anywhere else in all his 71 years. His swinging widow still lives there, attending she was his daughter.

All of which is a small mistake, and certainly understandable. Writing this weekly nonsense has gained me a certain amount of notoriety and "the Lapeer Fitzgeralds" has a valid enough ring to it, I suppose. But it makes me feel uncomfortable, like a usurper of the throne.

My father was quite a guy and I've always been pleased to be recognized as his son. I love to be told that I look like him. To me, it could never be right that he be remembered as my father. He accomplished a lot more important things than to help produce me, as any of my 4 sisters would be quick to tell you.

Dad wouldn't be miffed by Beltaire's mistake in geography. He'd just laugh. On the other hand, he'd be madder than hell to learn about me gyping George Duffy. Just thinking about his anger makes me feel like a little boy.

Which isn't a bad way to feel.

I guess I just want to be my father's son for a few more years, anyway.

Make way for my youth.

Speak softly and thoughtfully investigate is today's substitute for the big stick.

The world might get better results if diplomats were paid on a peace-work basis.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hennessey

Miss Linda Lou Periso, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Periso of Deford, became the bride of William Hennessey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hennessey of Cass City, in a double ring ceremony at the First Baptist Church Saturday, July 24.

The Rev. Lloyd Streeter officiated the ceremony in a church decorated with white glads and light blue pompon mums and white bows. "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because" were sung by Mrs. Shirley Shaw.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a white chantilly lace gown with a bouffant ruffled tiered skirt, a sash, a neckline, tapered sleeves and a chapel train. Sequins trimmed the front neckline. A bridal illusion fingertip veil held by lace loops trimmed the gown. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white carnations, red roses, purple star-flowers and ivy on a white Bible.

Bonnie Periso, of the bride, served as maid of honor. Susan Hennessey, sister of the groom, and Jean Spence, cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids.

They wore powder blue organza over taffeta dresses with Empire waists and A-line skirts. The high mandarin collars and long puffed sleeves were trimmed with ruffles at the necklines, cuffs and down the fronts of the bodices. Belts complimented the outfits with bows in front. Matching bows with veils formed the headpieces. They carried bouquets of white and blue pomps with purple star-flowers and streamers.

David Hennessey, brother of the groom, was best man and Jim and Rod Wentworth, cousins of the groom, served as ushers.

The bride's mother wore a tangerine knit sheath gown with matching accessories. A corsage of yellow roses and white carnations complimented the outfit. The bridegroom's mother wore a pastel pink knit sheath gown with long sleeves of alencon lace and matching accessories with a corsage of pink roses and white carnations.

The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School and is employed at Walbro Corporation. The groom graduated from Cass City High School and works at Saginaw Steering Gear. Following a honeymoon to Niagara Falls, the couple are residing in Cass City.

Wrecks, thefts investigated by village police

Several minor traffic accidents and two breaking and entering were reported by the Cass City Police during the past week.

Frank J. Jordan, 50, of Germania Rd., Cass City, backed into a car owned by Larry J. Hartwick at Seeger and Leach Saturday, July 31, at 8:10 p. m. No enforcement action was taken on the matter.

Roger L. Nicholas of Bay City reported to police that someone had backed into his car, jamming the left door, while he was visiting his wife at Hills and Dales Hospital. The case is still pending.

A car operated by Anita Silvia Santos, 20, of Elkton, rolled back with the right door open and dented a parked car owned by Ralph G. Behwke of Harbor Beach. The incident occurred at the Walbro parking lot Friday, July 30.

Candy thieves struck the Cass City concession stand for the fifth time Saturday, July 31, escaping with 38 packages of gum and one box of ice cream bars.

Entry was made by prying open the north door with a screw driver and bars sometime between 11:45 and 1:30 a. m. Saturday. The case is still pending.

Six kitchen cabinets were reported missing by Art Morall of Rodarte Builders Friday, July 30.

The cabinets were taken from two homes being built on Garfield and one on Woodland sometime between Thursday night and Friday morning.

ing personal neatness, Basic Rifleman's marksmanship, in which he scored expert, being highest in his company. Rabbit tracks
By John Haire
And anyone else he can get to help!

Is there a difference between blueberries and huckleberries? For years we've called them huckleberries and now about every other person you ask say that huckleberries aren't blueberries at all.

Some folks have told me that huckleberries are the wild berries and blueberries the cultivated variety. I'm sure that this isn't so after reading a little about them, but I'm unsure if there is a difference at all.

Your response to our reader survey has been gratifying. We've received some interesting comments and we will pass along the results when the project is completed. Naturally, the more questionnaires returned the more significant the survey will be in terms of telling what you want in your paper.

We've re-printed the survey questionnaire and if you haven't filled one out, why not do so now?

Around the coffee table the other day Ralph Hanby had the floor. Now retired, Hanby spent most of his life working for Railway Express.

His stories of special shipments and special problems while he worked filled a pleasant half hour interlude. The insider's view of most any job makes interesting listening to the novice and when it is enhanced by someone with that rare knack for telling a story it's rare fun to listen to.

Hanby has the knack. Get him to tell you how the employees reacted when a VIP was riding the rails on a "surprise" inspection tour.

You'll chuckle, too.

The recently concluded strike at Bell Telephone prompted a story by one phone official recently.

He'd always been curious about the phone girls with the seductive voice and after entering the business got on the inside.

It was shattering, he said, to find that the girl with the most seductive voice was a middle-aged matron, married and motherly. . . and not the young swinger that she just had to be when you heard her say sweetly, "number please."

Operators are trained to have pleasing voices, he needlessly added.

I don't want to bore you with figures but wade through these for a moment. In 1969-70 the cost of education per student in Cass City was $408.50. The average cost state-wide was $728. Ten districts per student costs were over $1,000. Remember, these figures are for 1969-70, the latest available. They were higher for 1970-71.

If schools are financed state-wide will Cass City be allowed the state average?

If so and we paid the taxes locally it would be the equivalent to adding 20 mills and that's almost double the 20.6 we pay today for both operation and debt retirement.

And regardless of where the money comes from it all originates from the same source and it's hard to see how any state or region-run systems could end not costing us all more money.

There's really no mystery why more and more X-rated films are appearing in theatres these days: people pay to see them. It would be astonishing if more aren't shown at the Caro Drive-In in the near future. A sex twin bill there sold out over the week end and a line of cars about a mile long jammed Caro streets trying to get in. It took police units nearly two hours to get traffic moving again.

Plan Nuclear plant

Consumers Power Co. announced early this week what could eventually be a nuclear power development centered at Quinacasee at the western Bay-Tuscola county line.

The power company indicated that the development had been in the planning stage for some time and was not to be considered as a substitute for the controversial Midland nuclear power plant.

Any development would, of course, have to be approved by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Jail again rated tops by inspector

Those who have to spend time in the county jail can take comfort in knowing it is one of the best in the state.

The state jail inspector, Robert J. Russell, inspected the Tuscola county jail and sheriff offices on July 27, and reported to Sheriff Marr, "it shall continue to carry one of the highest ratings in the state."

The sheriff said this was the third straight year they had received such a good rating and explained that the inspectors go over everything in the operation, from sanitation to book-keeping.

You can't always judge a man by the company he keeps, but it's a good indicator.

Little damage in Connolly's sawmill fire

An early Monday morning fire at Connolly's Sawmill did little real damage when it burned completely a large pile of waste wood.

The mill is located on Crawford Road south of Kelly Road, about 4 miles southeast of Cass City.

The 2:50 a. m. alarm was put in by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Office after an area resident saw the fire. James Connolly, owner, said he was awakened at 3 o'clock by the sheriff's office.

"I live in Deford and could see the blaze lighting up the whole sky," he said.

Sixteen firemen answered the siren call to fight the blaze. They remained at the scene until 6:50 a. m. while the wood continued to smolder.

The cause of the fire is unknown but Connolly said he thought perhaps someone had dropped a cigarette which had started the blaze.

The slabs that were burned would have been burned anyway, "but not like that," Connolly said. The waste was from hardwood trees cut at the mill and had been piled up for three or four years. There was no damage done to any other wood.

They had not burned it recently because it was too close to a sawdust pile, the owner explained. He said they would rake the ashes down after the fire was completely out.

ACCIDENT

ing the Bartholomew car. Their deaths raised the fatal accident toll to 15. Last year at this time 19 persons had died on Tuscola roads.

Three area persons were injured in another accident.

Mrs. Helen Copeland, 47, Cass City, was released Monday, Aug. 2, from Hills and Dales General Hospital. She had been admitted with injuries sustained in a two-car accident that occurred Thursday, July 29, 4 miles east and 4 miles south of Cass City at the intersection of M-53 and Argyle Road.

She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Harold J. Copeland, 51, who also received minor injuries but was treated and released. The accident occurred at 5:25 p. m. as Copeland was backing out of his driveway onto Argyle and collided with a northbound car driven by Albert J. Bennett, 36, 6253 Main St., Cass City. The Sandusky Sheriff's office reported that Copeland said he thought he had time to cross the road after seeing the car, but when he looked again, the vehicle was right in front of him.

The front end of his car collided with the left side of the Bennett auto.

Bennett also received injuries, but he sought his own medical treatment. No citations were filed.

Former governor heads court procedures committee

"COURT REVAMP STUDIED"

What could be one of the most important assignments in his new spot on the Michigan Supreme Court was handed to former Gov. G. Mennen Williams.

He was named head of a new committee to bring Michigan's court procedures into the latter part of the 20th century. The technical title is the Court Procedures Technology Committee. It was created by Chief Justice Thomas M. Kavanagh.

Kavanagh has said he wants the committee to report back to him by January so that he can incorporate its findings into his annual report to the legislature.

"The administration of justice in the State of Michigan, as elsewhere throughout our country, is typified by courts that are under financed, poorly housed, undermanned and overworked," stated Kavanagh.

"Obsolete procedures have added to the burden of the courts, already overburdened with an increasing amount of litigation," he said. "What our system needs, in the words of the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice, is a willingness to re-examine old ways of doing things, to reform itself, to experiment."

The committee, in pursuing that goal, will analyze existing court procedures and find out what can be done to give all courts the ability to operate with the most efficient procedures.

The Williams committee will search for new methods, such as state-wide computerization of court cases, new rules, new equipment and personnel training to overcome the "old way of doing things."

Among the answers it hopes to provide are more efficient methods of determining attorney availability for trial, assignment of cases, record-keeping, jury availability, processing of estates and maintenance of payments to friends of the court.

Since the worst problem now exists in and around Detroit, the first investigation will be conducted there, Kavanagh said. At the same time, he said, computer studies are already in progress in Genesee, Kalamazoo, and Washtenaw counties as well as the city of Southfield.

"MOTORBOATS PROLIFERATE"

If it seems that you've seen more motorboats than ever in Michigan waters this year, the secretary of state's office says you're right. There are more than ever.

But chances are you'd be wrong if you were asked to name the year in which the second highest number of motorboats were registered in the state.

Give up? It was 1938. Secretary of State Richard Austin says the registrations of motorboats passed the 446,000 mark by the end of June. But the previous high before this year was 437,000 back in 1938.

Nearly 500,000 motorboats will be registered in the state before the summer is out, says Austin. And he has a sneaking suspicion there are already more than 500,000 boats in the state that some owners have been lazy enough, forgetful enough or just unwilling enough to part with the $5 registration fee to license their boats.

"No matter how many times we say it," he says, "there are some boat owners who just don't seem to get the message or choose to ignore it. It's a physical impossibility for sheriff patrols to inspect every boat in all of Michigan's more than 11,000 inland lakes, and scores of rivers, brooks and streams."

"But the owners of those boats that are not registered risk several penalties and unnecessary embarrassment for failure to comply."

"MINK COATS GROWN"

Along with millions of cars, millions of quarts of cherries, peaches and other fruits, and millions of dollars worth of tourist related items and services produced in Michigan last year, there were 3,000 mink coats "grown" in the state.

Those 3,000 coats came from a total of 110,000 mink which were raised for their fur. It takes an average of 37 mink pelts to make one full-length coat, according to the State Agriculture Department.

And if you're wondering why mink coats cost so much, the department says an efficient mink ranch can produce mink for a cost of about $12 per pelt. That means that before it leaves the backs of those 37 mink, the coat is already worth $444.

The time the mink farmer, the garment industry and the stores cover expenses and profit, the cost grows greatly.

The high price takes toll. The U. S. produced 85 per cent of the world's ranch-grown mink 20 years ago. It now produces only 20 per cent.

Urges support of Career Center

EDITOR'S NOTE: Gremlins crept into the Chronicle composing room when this letter was printed last week and the result was a series of mixed lines. This is the way the letter should have been printed.

Dear John,

We have discussed many things in Cass City this summer some of which are liquor in the bars, beer in the park and a very few and in my opinion. Limited discussions of the future of our young people. I have heard very little if any comments around town of the vote coming up on Aug. 23 about the Vocational School. The school would help many young and older people alike to prepare themselves for useful jobs not only in our community but in other places as well. It is a school devoted to the training of a labor force for the future, where people can be trained in trades that will be useful to them in their working careers.

Not everyone can or even wants to go to college but they do have to work at some trade or another or end up on the relief rolls.

There is plenty of talk about our sons and daughters going off and becoming hippies but why aren't we talking about how to train them for useful work with honest wages? This should be our main concern when we go to the polls on Aug. 23 and cast our ballots for the vocational school.

FROM THE LITTER BOX

Did you know you were lucky?

By Kit McMillion

At the last village council meeting a number of persons showed up to tell the council what they thought of the ordinance allowing sale of beer in the park.

I think their presence is an indication that the citizens care about their community, and I think that sort of action is very commendable.

The couple dozen men and one woman who crowded into the chambers and voiced their opinions were exercising one of their rights under pluralistic

Kot accepts Clio band offer

James Kot, band director at the high school, resigned Friday, July 30, pending official acceptance by the School Board, Monday, Aug. 9.

Kot will become the instrumental director at Clio High School assuming the directorship of three bands of 230 students.

JAMES KOT

His decision to leave was based on "professional advancement," Kot said and noted there would be a lot of people he would miss as well as a cooperative administration.

Kot joined the high school staff in 1969 after teaching positions at Flint Beecher and Holland High Schools.

Superintendent Donald Crouse noted the loss of "a real fine band instructor" and is presently interviewing people to fill the vacancy.

With four weeks away from the opening of school, "it doesn't give us a whole lot of time," Crouse said.

Four interviews are scheduled for this week. Band practices normally start a week before the school opens with some 90 students signed up for this year's band.

AROUND THE FARM

Seed alfalfa now for good crop

BY WILLIAM BORTEL

Alfalfa seedlings made in the first week in August in Tuscola county will yield about as much as seedlings made in oats this past spring. We are finding that this is an excellent time to seed alfalfa for a good hay crop next year. Michigan State University tests have shown that spring seedlings in oats yield seven tons the following year while summer seedlings yield 6.2 tons. In the second harvest year, yields were the same for both the seeding dates. Several farmers last year had fall seedlings with excellent success since we normally have adequate moisture for the alfalfa to grow following planting in August. We believe after the extremely dry summer that many dairymen will be forced to make fall seedlings so as to have good alfalfa for next year.

If you are one of the many farmers planting alfalfa this August, we suggest you try the new variety called "Sanilac". Many dairymen have found the Sanilac to be the best yielding and the most winter hardy of the varieties that we now plant. Sanilac is an early maturing and rapid growing alfalfa. Sanilac alfalfa normally will stay in your rotation approximately five years.

Many farmers are asking about seeding rates of alfalfa. We find that 12 pounds of alfalfa seeded per acre is just about right. We have seen alfalfa planted from 2 to 25 pounds per acre and there was no additional yield after the usage of 12 pounds per acre.

Band seeding is preferred to broadcast seeding because of greater seedling vigor and winter survival. The soil should be compacted before seeding. Press wheels or a cultipacker after seeding helps emergence and gives a better stand.

Oats should not be used for summer seeding. They compete for water and nutrients and severely reduce the following year's alfalfa yield. If brome grass is seeded with the alfalfa it can be mixed with the fertilizer and seeded no deeper than one-half to three-quarters inch.

Many dairymen with alfalfa experienced poor yields this year after improper fertilization last fall. Don't forget, alfalfa needs to be fed after harvesting.

democracy, which works far better in a small community like Cass City than in a big city.

However, as soon as the beer question was cleared up, everyone left.

Several years ago I attended a similar meeting in Urbana, Illinois, as a student reporter who had an assignment to do. The issue then was whether the town, which was wet on any other day of the week, should also be wet on Sunday.

After about one hour of listening to citizens either condemn or approve the measure, the council passed it, but only after stopping discussion and prohibiting some persons from voicing their opinions.

After that vote was completed, the over-packed meeting room was immediately emptied and the only persons remaining were a group of professional and student reporters.

Now, I realize that people with families are busy and that there's never enough time to do everything you want to.

And I realize that many of you don't really care about what happens at council meetings because it is often very dull and very routine and sometimes technical to the point where it is difficult to understand exactly what is going on. But you have a responsibility to be there.

If anyone had been there in June when the amendment was first voted upon, they might have questioned the action before it was made into an ordinance and thus saved tempers and a great deal of trouble for everyone.

WERE YOU THERE???

I don't know how many of you have ever been to any other city's council meetings, but I have attended quite a few. Every one I went to was chaotic and disorganized, and the aldermen were often downright rude to the citizens.

Maybe if you've never seen a mayor tell the people that they will have to stop talking now, or deny them the opportunity to speak about an unexpected item not listed on the agenda because they have already had their chance to talk for a few minutes in the allotted time before the council began business, you can't appreciate what it is to have the opportunity to interrupt or bring up your own personal problem before the council, as one man did last Tuesday, and have it heard.

The citizens of Cass City are a whole lot luckier than they realize.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Chastity belts
made to order

By Darr Marlowe

A man named Beau Hickory of Colma, California, a suburb of San Francisco, has an occupation which would challenge the ingenuity of the panel members of the long-running television program, What's My Line.

Mr. Hickory is a blacksmith and horseshoer, but he has an interesting sideline.

He makes chastity belts.

No, reader, that's not a mistake or a misprint. Mr. Beau Hickory of Colma, California, makes chastity belts. And business is flourishing.

He forges the belts to order out of stainless steel, iron, or any other metal of his clients' choice. And why would people want these relics of the Middle Ages?

"I never ask questions," declares Hickory. "I just ask if they're intended to be worn or not, because that affects the way I make them. Some men have volunteered that they just don't trust their wives, some women order them for protection if they work late at night in risky inner-city neighborhoods, and some women order them to wear over their clothes as bizarre ornamental jewelry."

He reports that the wearing of chastity belts has continued right along in Europe, and that the revival is new only to the United States. Chastity belts are anything but new. They originated in the Orient and in Africa and were also worn by gypsy women in Moorish Spain via whom the custom was transmitted to Europe.

Hickory makes three basic types of belts. The first is purely decorative and is usually made in the form of a wire sculpture. It is thin and ornate and sells for $45 and up.

The second is truly protective and is constructed out of stainless steel with chain mail covering the vital area. It is custom fitted over a leotard, and sells for $70 and up, depending upon the ornamentation desired.

The third style is much more elaborate and is designed to be worn as a piece of jewelry over a pantsuit or skirt. They are decorated with gold, silver, and jewels, are as thick as a cummerbund, floral in design, and made of heavy steel. The price of belts in this category is determined by the amount of steel engraving, precious metals used, and other extras. The most expensive one Hickory made sold for $600.

Queried as to whether the belts were practical and really worked, Hickory replied: "Certainly they work if I make them to work. The customer is in complete control. I make the belt so that any lock can be fitted to it. The customer buys his own padlock."

boys and girls enjoyed a party at his home. Ice cream, cake and cookies were served the youngsters. Freddie received many gifts.

Mrs. S. P. Kirn returned home Sunday evening from Lakeside Park, near Brighton, where she had attended the annual convention of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Evangelical Church. Mrs. Kirn was re-elected secretary of the Gulldis.

Harold Perry, local agricultural teacher, who had attended 7 weeks of school in Lansing this summer, is attending a conference for agriculture teachers this week and will return home this week end, having completed the summer term.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The seventh annual reunion of the McCrea-O'Kelly families was held at the home of Mr.
and Mrs. Ray Hulbert of Cass City Sunday, Aug. 2, with 40 people present.

Arthur Jenkins, editor of the Farm Journal, said that "contrary to the general impression, the present drought conditions are by no means injurious to agriculture as a whole but may even be slightly favorable."

Horace V. Pinney, who has been employed at Indian Trail Lodge at Traverse City for several weeks, has returned to his home here. He will be employed at the store of the Pinney Dry Goods Co. until he resumes his studies at the University of Michigan in the fall.

Blueberries are bustin' out all over! Michigan ranks second in the nation for blueberry production. There are usually 900 plants to an acre, and a good yield is 8,000 pounds per acre.

About 95% of Michigan's cultivated blueberries are marketed under the Michigan Blueberry Grower's Association label. They sort berries by size. "Great Lakes" brand are the larger, with a count of "40 to 175 or less" berries per pint. "Lake States" brand
"175 to 250 or more" berries per pint. (Old-time wild blueberries ran 370 to the pint).

Size is one of the qualities researchers continue to improve. With some of the newest experimental berries, it takes only 35 to fill a pint. They are really "big as the end of your thumb," as poet Robert Frost claimed.

The ultimate in quality is the large berry covered with powder-blue bloom. The more bloom, the lighter the color, the more nearly perfect the berry. Ripe berries are tartlysweet, their color light to dark blue depending on variety. Reddish tinged berries are unripe and sour.

A pint of berries yields six servings, 1/3 cup each. Or divide a pint, using half for muffins or cereal; snitch a 1/2 cup to garnish melon rings for salad or dessert; and fold the rest into your favorite pancake batter or toss over ice cream.

If you enjoy blueberry syrup on pancakes, try this recipe for your homemade variety:

BLUEBERRY SYRUP

1 cup blueberries, fresh, frozen, or canned, unsweetened
1/4 cup water
1/4 cup sugar

Combine ingredients and bring to a boil. Crush berries with the back of a spoon. Simmer two to three minutes. Serve hot. Makes about 1 cup. 20 calories per tablespoon.

just because he fell in with the right kind of people.

Strifflers and Benkelmans hold reunion

The Striffler-Benkelman reunion was held in the Masonic Hall Aug. 1 with 60 attending.
After a potluck dinner the meeting was conducted by President
Don Buehrly and Secretary
Mary Beth Esau.

The oldest member present was Fred Joos, 89, of Caro.
The youngest was John Ruth,
3, of Saginaw.

owes you - it is your ability to collect that counts.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

I thought when scientists came up with a mechanic pig mama a few years back that we had gone as far as we could go, technical speaking.
But just when a feller starts thinking that way, somepun comes along that shows marvels never cease.

Saturday night at the country store, Zeke Grubbs give a report on a invention that puts em all in the shade, the 40 hour week, the moon buggies, the music fer hens to lay by, all of em. Zeke said it looks like we got the answer to the question the first man ask when he set down aside the first cow and started to milk. What to do about that tall?

Zeke said he had saw buried back in one of his farm journals last week where this feller in Florida had been give a patent fer a cow tall holder.
Zeke allowed it was one of the most important news items in the history of the world, and he was terrible shocked it wasn't on the front page. Zeke said the papers was full of stuff about President Nixon going to China to play Ping Pong so he won't get clonked by the Vice President's golf balls, when they could be telling folks about the cow tall holder.

The fellers was true excited about Zeke's report. Bug Hookum said folks have had about as good luck controlling Bos-sie's tail as the Government has with Jap imports. Ever time a feller figured a angle on that tall, the old gal come up with two new ways to hit him with it. Bug said we has tried everthing from tying a brick to Bossie's tail to tying the tail to the barn door. The cow would overcome gravity and flap the brick up side your head, or she would get upset cause her tail was stuck and kick over the milk bucket or step in it.

That was it, broke in Zeke,
the Government patent said this

My sons, Jack and Freddie, are great surfboard riders.
They can outride me any day, and because there's not much at which they can beat me (yet), they are tickled pink about it.

I don't mind. I remember how proud I was the day I beat my Dad at golf. He shook my hand and acknowledged that I was growing up.

I learned much from Dad. He was a lot of fun, and yet
I valued just as much his serious moments. There was no doubt about his deep and abiding love for God. The memory of his quiet voice speaking of God steadied me through several rough spots in my life.

That's why on Sunday mornings I start to church with a boy on each side of me. I want God to be a reality in their lives as He has been in mine.

Spray to get rid of corn borers

Tuscola county corn producers may be faced with a corn yield reducing factor not seen for many a year. This possible corn yield reduction factor is the European corn borer which is in greater numbers this year.

"I have been observing the corn borer larvae damage in the tassel portion of the corn plant since mid-June," reports Don Kebler, extension agricultural agent. At this late date, nothing can be done to eliminate this first brood already in the corn stalk.

Your worries may not be over, however, because this corn borer usually can have a second brood yet this year and, if so, this second brood could do far more damage than the first.

"We should not become jittery, but we should be alert for the second brood to come and then judge whether to spray or not," remarks Kebler. Here is what to look for. As far as we can decide the adult moths of this first brood should begin emerging this week, and continue to do so until peak emergence around the second week in August.

These moths will be laying white egg clusters on the underside of the leaves. The eggs will develop and look like blackheads in the egg mass, then hatch within five to eight days. The young hatched-out larvae will eat through the leaf and feed their way on the upper surface of the corn leaf toward the stalk. Upon reaching the stalk they will bore into the stalk to feed inside.

We can spray to control this second brood corn borer, but we must do it while the eggs are in the blackhead stage or the larvae are still on the leaves. Once the larvae have entered the corn stalk, it is too late to spray. Aerial spraying is the only method.

It pays to spray only when one or the other of these situations occur: (1) When there is one egg mass per corn plant present and the eggs are in the blackhead stage and, (2) when three-fourths of the corn plants have white pinpricks or feeding streaks plus larvae present on the leaf surface.

Materials recommended to control the European Corn Borer in active ingredients per acre and days after application before harvesting are: (1) Sevin, 2 pounds (no time limit); (2) Parathion, one-half pound (12 days); (3) E. P. N. one-half pound (14 days); (4) Dieldrin, 1 1/2 pounds (12 days for forage, no time for grain); (5) Sevin, 1 1/2 pounds and Parathion, 1/2 pound (12 days and use only if there is both aphids and European corn borers present.

Be sure to read the label of the chemical you plan to use. Some are more hazardous than others to you as the applicator. By all means follow the directions.

BETTER HEALTH

Can enemas be dangerous?

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

I have often been puzzled when one of my good friends, possibly an excellent stomach and bowel specialist, spoke of the dangers of taking enemas. He would always scold a patient of his when he learned that she had been taking enemas, and he would warn her against taking any more. If he gave her a reason, it would often be that he did not want her to get the "enema habit", or that he feared that the bowel would be harmed and lose its ability to work on its own.

I have never been able to sympathize with this fear of enemas, because although in my long years in medicine I have seen many persons who were confirmed enema-takers, I have never seen anyone whose colon seemed to have been injured by the practice. One particular woman I remember well, because she told me that she -- in her 30's -- sometimes took three enemas a day, until she felt comfortable. A while ago I saw her again, and she told me that she was 76 and was in excellent health. During all the years of taking enemas, she had never had any bad effects.

I can give one hint about enemas, and that is that instead of using plain water, one had better add a tablespoon of table salt; the salt makes the water less of an irritant, and thus the experience is much more comfortable and easy.

In the past few years, it has been possible to buy in a pharmacy an already-prepared device consisting of a small, plastic enema bag - as big as a tennis ball - filled with a solution of sodium phosphate and sodium diphosphate, both mild laxatives. It is very easy to use, and can be disposed of afterward. It works very well.

Mild laxatives constitute a convenient form of treatment for many persons. I have seen many an old man or woman who apparently was none the worse for taking a cascara or aloin pill every other night for many years. I think laxatives might work better if they were used only two or three times a week rather than every day. When a pill has cleaned out the colon, there is no logic in taking another one that night.

The most important point I ever learned about constipation I learned from Dr. W. H. Olmsted and his associates who wrote several fine papers in 1934 and 1935. They noted that if a person will take some stewed fruit for a week or ten days, every day, it may work beautifully as a laxative; but then the colon gets so used to it that it pays no attention to the fruit. Then what the person must quickly do is change to some other source of roughage. When I became 60 or so, I became constipated, but when I read Dr. Olmsted's papers, I changed every week from canned pears to canned plums and back again, and during the past seventeen years I have had no constipation.

drug might bring about a "rock bottom" type of experience which sometimes has made an alcoholic decide to quit drinking.

The 176 men patients studied received ordinary treatment for a month before they were given a single dose of LSD. Then half of the patients were also given a six-month supply of disulfiram, a medicine which causes the stomach to be violently upset if a man drinks. No matter which treatment was given, about 85 per cent of the patients went back on alcohol within 3 months, and 90 per cent were back on alcohol by the end of the year.

I have read several reports of men who thought that LSD had helped alcoholics, but now the doctors have found that although it may seem for a while to have helped spectacularly, follow-ups showed that this enthusiasm was usually short-lived.

Dr. Alvarez has written a 25 cent booklet titled "Older Person's Health" which is available to his readers. If you would like a copy send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with 25 cents and your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. CCC, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

4-H ACTIVITIES

4-H judges are just people

By Bernard Jardot

Why do we judge in 4-H? To determine worth of a piece of work, how well it was done and how closely it conforms to standards of quality; and to contribute to growth and development of 4-H'ers and others concerned with helping boys and girls learn.

Who are these judges? People! They're asked to be judges because they have special training or backgrounds in certain subject areas like livestock, foods, clothing or photography. Not all judges in even the same subject area have the same training and same background. And this is why their opinions sometimes differ in their opinions and ideas about how something should be done. We adults need to help young people understand this.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION
GENERAL

State of Michigan.
Probate Court for the County of Tuscola. File # 21294.
Estate of Guy W. Landon, Deceased.

It is Ordered that on August 19th, 1971, at 11 a. m., in the Probate Courtroom in the Village of Caro, Michigan a hearing be held on the petition of Delbert M. Landon, administrator for allowance of his final account.

Publication and service shall be made as provided by Statute and Court Rule.

Dated: July 22, 1971.
C. Bates Willis, Judge of Probate.

A true copy.
Beatrice P. Berry, Register of Probate.

7-29-3

The process of judging will never be perfect. Judges can evaluate only what they see. They don't know how hard one member has worked or what obstacles another may have had to overcome.

We have to learn to accept judging for the best it can do for us as adults to teach our young people to do their best. We need to encourage our youth to learn what they can from judging, but don't tell them to consider judging as an adventure to stimulate them to greater achievement.

Please keep this in mind when you visit our 4-Hand FFA youth exhibits at the Tuscola County Fair this week. Encourage our youth to learn new ideas, methods and activities that they can use in their 4-H program next year.

It takes something special to come up with a Vintage Year. But that's what '71 has been for Chrysler-Plymouth. Our slogan "Coming Through" had a lot to do with it, because it's our pledge: To come through with the style, size, price and quality you can live with for years to come. Two good examples are Plymouth Fury and Chrysler Royal.

OUR FINEST OF THE BIG.

Plymouth Fury and Chrysler Royal are big ways to go for people who want the comfort and space befitting their style of living. Both have Torsion-Quiet Ride (which not only quiets road noise but gives you firm, sure handling). Both have a large interior and trunk space. And both turned out to be the finest cars of their kind in this vintage year.

County fair time is show time and just plain fun time

CLEANING THE ANIMALS for show time is one of the back stage operations few people see, but even in the chilly weather of Tuesday this man soaped up his heifer and her mother for the afternoon's shows.

A PONY RIDE is always a treat, as this child's smiling face shows. There were many other rides for the kiddies, too.

THE MIDWAY is one of the exciting parts of any fair, and this one is crowded already with fairgoers who had a large number of rides and sideshows to choose from for entertainment.

Fair race horse electrocuted

Amidst the fun of the fair Tuesday tragedy struck. A harness race horse was killed by electrocution when a water pipe was accidentally turned into a ground wire for a hot water heater.

The mishap occurred about 9 a. m. at the entrance from the stables area onto the track. Vern and Barbara Newell trained the bay, two-year-old stud horse called M. T. Creed. Barbara explained that at first they didn't know what had happened and only realized he had been electrocuted after she got a shock.

"The horse was wearing shadows and had never been in a draw where he had to go up hill," she said. Shadows prevent the horse from seeing anywhere except straight ahead.

"Vern told me to watch him because he might trip," she added.

Newell was in the sulky, and Barbara was leading the colt.

"He started out like he had tripped. I grabbed him. The second time he fell I couldn't get him up. We had found out later that he had laid right on the pipe. He groaned and squealed, but we couldn't move him," Barbara told.

The pipe M. T. Creed had fallen on was a temporary water pipe which someone had broken, starting a chain of events that resulted in his death.

Fair officials refused to comment on the accident, but the fair electrician, who refused to give his name but was identified by a gate man as "Tomlinson," explained what happened.

A water heater, he said, must be kept full of water or it will burn out the unit. This water heater had been drained when someone broke a pipe leading from it. This made the unit burn out and sent the ground into the water pipe.

Less than 110 volts was coming through the ground, but animals can withstand less shock and M. T. Creed was wearing horseshoes.

An electrician was called to repair the heater and ground out the unit properly.

The Newells could not say if the horse, owned by James Gautz of Ann Arbor, was insured or what its monetary value was.

"He showed a lot of promise," they both said.

The colt had raced the first time last week at Harrison where his time was 2.17 for a mile. He was to be started in what is called an Overnight at the fair this week. He was bred in Ohio and wasn't eligible for the two-year-old stakes.

The horse's blood carried racing. He was by Rhythm Might out of Marianne Creed, who was sired by Jimmy Creed. Rhythm Might had a record of 159 wins.

The loss of the Standardbred pacer upset the trainers who had helped pick him out as a yearling and been with him since. They were from Fowlerville, east of Lansing, but recently bought a farm in Deford, where they will live and train horses.

MAIL LADIES aren't supposed to sit on the job, but when your learning that's all you can think about. Mrs. Millie Miracle, left, coaches her pooped protege, Pat Drouin.

I carried the mail for a day

five-foot-one woman handled the mail bag as well as any man, knows all the shortcuts and hidden stops along the way. She usually got a big "good morning" and funny stares.

"Who's that, Millie, a new protege?" someone asked. I don't think the merchants were too sure of me. Woman's Lib had gone far enough with just one female letter carrier. Cass City didn't need two.

Since everything is done on a neatly timed schedule, we stopped at the post box to pick up more letters to be delivered and had time for a 15 minute break.

Somewhat recovered, I was ready to start again. By mid-morning we had walked half of the north side of town. I needed a pair of mittens and was sure to be coming down with pneumonia. My legs and feet were holding up except for one toe that kept rubbing against the side of the shoe. My back had begun to ache and I wasn't even carrying the bag.

At 11:15 a. m. the announcement came—lunch, 30 minutes just to sit. After a half a day on the job, I was firmly convinced some changes should be made. The post office should either provide motorized carts for its letter carriers or require all residents to place their mail boxes on the street. After our trip to "snob hill" I was even more convinced.

The distance up to and down from a house in the Hills and Dales subdivision had to account for at least 12 miles of the 13. Few shortcuts across the lawns are used, but the temptation was great. Mrs. Miracle held firm to the "no shortcut rule." I will always have a great deal of admiration for her will power.

After hours of just watching, my turn came. Mrs. Miracle handed the bag and package of mail over to me. I was officially the "fe-mailman."

We stopped to pick up the mail at one of those neat looking boxes. I have often been curious to see what's inside them. I was rudely disappointed. No snacks, glass of ice tea or little man sitting in there smiling and saying "keep up the good work." -- nothing--just mail--and it all had to be delivered.

I discovered quickly that being a letter carrier is a lot harder than it looks. You need three hands, a strong shoulder and two sets of eyes, one set to read the numbers on the houses and letters as you go bounding along and the other set to watch where you are going.

During the half hour span that I delivered, I tripped, dropped letters, almost got hit by a car and suffered from a slipped shoulder blade.

No way would I ever do that for a living. As Mrs. Miracle said, "I canceled all my subscriptions because I know what work it is to deliver." I had to agree. The next letter I planned to mail, I'd telephone.

One last 15 minute break and one final round of houses marked the end of the day--or so I thought. Instead I traipsed back to the post office "facing the mail" all the way, and watched Mrs. Miracle sort the "junk" mail for the next day's delivery.

At 3:30 p. m. on the button, Mrs. Miracle checked out. She returned to being just a plain housewife and mother. For me, it meant my return to the Chronicle as girl reporter.

Going back to the office, several thoughts slipped through my tired brain and feet. I won-

The sentiments created by the circuit court decision to dissolve the temporary restraining order and injunction against Harvey Kritzman have, apparently, been unhappy all around.

Kritzman, owner of a piece of land known as Koch Road, refused to say anything to the Chronicle except that he would say nothing further and that the first story in the paper had cost him a lot of money to go to court.

The temporary injunction was dissolved Wednesday, July 28, after a hearing before Judge Norman A. Baguley in the Tuscola county circuit court.

The hearing began at about 9:15 a. m. and lasted three hours. The petition for injunction was entered by Tuscola County Prosecutor Leo Maki, on behalf of the Tuscola county road commissioners and a temporary restraining order had been put into effect July 19.

The road commission presented as its evidence against Kritzman, minutes of a 1935 board of road commissioners meeting which stated that the county had passed a resolution taking over the control of certain township roads from Novesta township, including Koch Road.

Robert Wellington, county road engineer, testified that the county has received state funds every year for Koch Road. The funds are divided according to how many miles of road the county owns.

Kritzman, represented by William Drillock of Marlette, showed the court tax receipts paid on the road for the past 20 years and a deed specifying the road as his property. He also said that he had maintained the road alone and once when he had asked the commission to take over the road, he was refused.

Upon cross-examination Wellington was unable to say how much maintenance the county had done on the road. Judge Baguley said that Kritzman had shown cause why the temporary order should be dissolved. Kritzman clearly owned the road, and the county road commission was in error, because they could not give proof that they owned the road, Baguley explained. When Novesta township gave up its roads, it had not owned Koch Road.

"I respect his rights, and he owns it," said Al Seeley, "so I won't use it anymore."

Seeley is the leader of the Wrangler's 4-H Club whose corral has access only by way of Koch Road.

The Gerald Whittaker's corral will still be available for the Wranglers.

Kritzman had told them many times in the past year and a half that the road was his private property and they were not to use it. He had obstructed the road to deter use.

The land is owned by Dr. Edward Scollon, who donated use of the land for a corral to the club.

He said he has no plans for use of the land right now, but is waiting to see what can be done. He had bought the land about 4 years ago and was under the impression then that he had legal access.

Mrs. Scollon said she was upset with the road commission, and feels that Maki "dragged his feet" about filing the petition in the first place because they knew they didn't have a very strong case.

"We're very upset with the road commission. We checked up before we bought the land, and the road commission said it was okay."

She said they would never have bought the property if Koch Road had not been public.

They don't know what they'll do yet, but according to Maki, there may be a civil remedy for the owner, although he declined to expand on that.

"I didn't agree, but what can I do," he explained.

In spite of the court's decision, the county still considers Koch Road to be public, according to Wellington.

He said that any property owner, if they examine their deed carefully, will see that they own to the center of the road, but that it is still public.

"We're exploring what further we can do," he said.

Charge 3 in county district court

Three area persons were arrested by Tuscola county sheriff's deputies this past week.

Donald James Hoppe, 30, Cass City, was arrested Aug. 1 for being drunk and disorderly. He was released on $100 bond.

Norman Morris Magel, 34, 4646 Leslie Road, Decker, was arrested in Deford July 28 on a District Court bench warrant. He appeared before Judge Kern the same day and pleaded guilty to a charge of violation of the Financial Responsibility Act. Injured cyclist regains speech Norman Emmons Jr., critically injured July 10 in a motorcycle accident, has regained his speech and stood on his feet for the first time Sunday, Aug. 1.

The 18-year-old Owendale youth had been unconscious as a result of an accident that sent him somersaulting down McEldowney Road. He was removed from intensive care at Mercy Hospital in Bay City, Thursday, July 22.

Mrs. Norman Emmons, mother of the youth, said that he has been given therapy and stood up for the first time to get into the wheelchair.

"Everything seems to be OK," Mrs. Emmons said. "It's just a matter of time."

Doctors would not say, however, when the youth would be released, Mrs. Emmons said.

Enthusiasm, progress keynote summer program

By PAT DROUIN

Success comes in all shapes and sizes.

For 100 children in grades one through six, success was learning the fun of reading, the challenge of adding 2+2 and getting the right answer and most of all, the enthusiasm to keep trying.

The children were involved in a five week Title I summer extension program, climaxed Friday, July 30, with a program and fair.

Planning Patio

A Full-Color Patio Planning Kit illustrates use of multi-colored translucent fiberglass patio roofing sheets, includes photo-swatches of all patterns and complete building plans for patio and porch roofs, fences and other home improvements. It is free at lumber and building supply dealers, or send $5 cents to cover postage and handling to: Dept. MNS, Filon, 12333 South Van Ness Avenue, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

Under the direction of five teachers and teacher aides, the youngsters presented skits to about 50 parents and relatives that they had put together through the five weeks.

Following the program, the children were treated to games and prizes by using "Snoopy dollars" that they had accumulated through the weeks.

Mrs. L. C. Bauer, director of the summer program, explained that a "Snoopy dollar" was given to a child once a certain goal had been achieved. The money was kept in a savings account, not only for the eventual use at the fair, but also as a means to teach the children simple banking and arithmetic techniques.

The federally funded program focuses on culturally and educationally deprived children to strengthen individual students for next fall's regular school program.

"Our goal was to increase the child's basic skills in math and reading within the time allotted," Mrs. Bauer said.

The children were also exposed to environmental studies through two side trips, one to the creamery and another to the dump and sewage disposal plant to see what happens to a piece of paper and waste.

Based on teacher recommendations, test scores and other educational needs, the children were admitted to the program from the Cass City, Evergreen and Deford school systems.

By uncovering the weaker spots in a child's educational needs such as comprehension in reading or vocabulary, the primary aim of the program is to show a three to fourth month grade growth in at least one area of his education.

"On the whole we do show a gain," Mrs. Bauer said. She cited examples of several students that had been involved in the program for a year and by the end of the summer program had jumped one to as high as four months in grade growth.

The program is geared to giving individual instruction, Mrs. Bauer said, in a pleasurable atmosphere with no report cards.

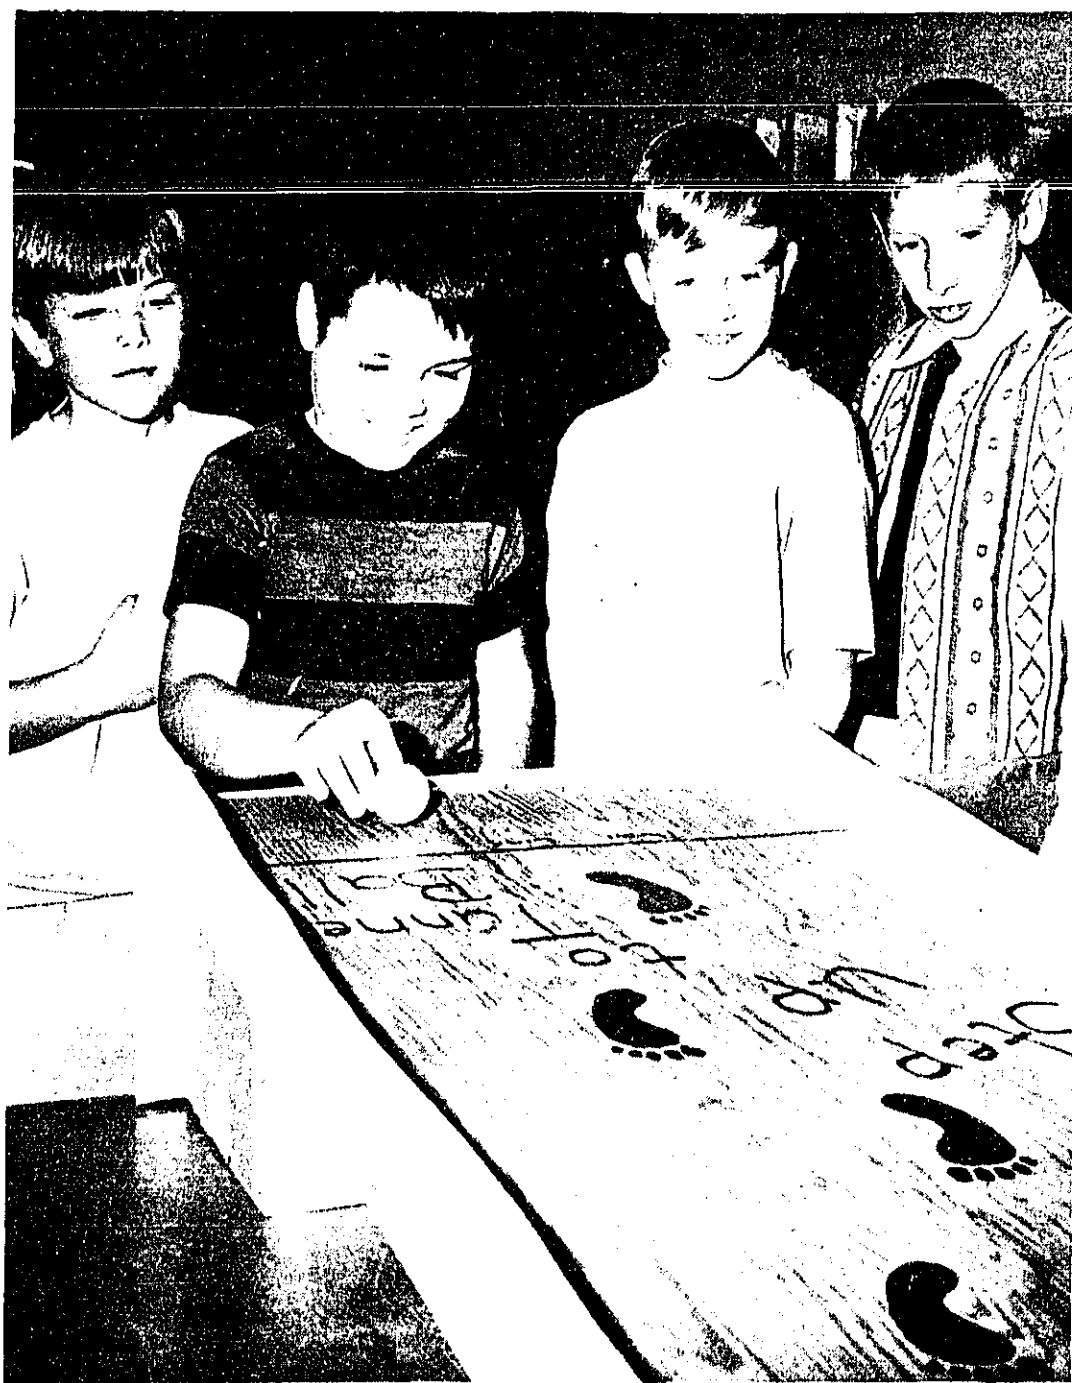

"Some children were ready to go to work at 7:45 a. m.,"

Mrs. Bauer said. "There was that much enthusiasm."

Through this method of instruction, Mrs. Bauer said, the children could be successful and appreciate their success as well as find out "that school isn't all that bad."

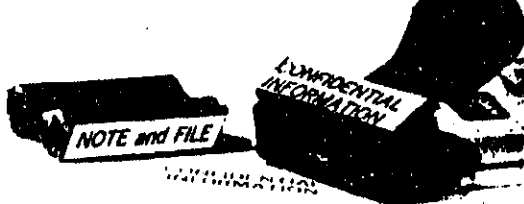

THE FOURTH and sixth grade students involved in the Title I summer program show off their athletic prowess during a program they presented to parents, climaxed the summer session.

CHARLES DAMOTH tries his hand at a ball rolling contest during a fair that climaxed the Title I summer program as friends look on. "Snoopy dollars" that the students had saved during the 5-week course were used to win prizes at various games set up around the elementary's school gym.

JANE TRISCH'S pet raccoon, Rascal, wasn't quite so sure of all the dogs and cats in the recreational program's pet show. The two-month-old raccoon likes Gainsburger for its meals.

"MRS. BROWN", a goat owned by Louie Arroyo, won a prize for having the biggest horns. There wasn't too much competition for the prize - Mrs. Brown was the only goat present.

Everybody wins at pet show

There were assorted sized dogs tugging with assorted colored cats, kids yelling and a lot of confusion, but it all added up to the annual recreational program's pet show held Thursday, July 29.

Amid barking dogs and hissing cats, some 30 youngsters attempted to show off their pets. At times it wasn't easy. Jerking on leashes or cuddling frightened pets, there existed a general state of confusion as judges tried to find pets to fit the right category.

There were the usual pets and the unusual—a raccoon, a pony and "Mrs. Brown", a goat. Awards were given for the funniest name, the brightest gold fish, the longest ears, the curliest hair and numerous other categories.

By the time the judging was completed, every pet had won a ribbon and a candy bar for its master. There were some pretty proud pet lovers as well as some pretty pooped pets.

The secret of happiness is not in doing what you like, but being able to like what you do.

The fellow with the so-called magnetic personality sometimes gets his poles switched.

A VISITOR came to town and showed the natives how to catch the big ones. He is Odell Fee of Flint who was visiting his son, Ronald, of Schwegler Road, Cass City. Fee said that the large Northern struck a red and white Daredevil during the early evening hours. He had been fishing for about a half hour. The fish measured 36 1/2 inches and weighed 12 1/4 pounds. It was bagged on the south branch of the Cass July 27.

Church league heads into showdown stage

The Cass City Church League is heading into final games prior to the post-season play-offs and results indicate that the league is better balanced this season than it has been for several years.

While the Catholics have the inside track for the title, they are still challenged by several teams and if they lost again the race for the title would be knotted.

It is not merely at the top that the league is even. Outside of Owen-Gage and Ellington-Nazarene, the teams are close in ability through the first 10 places.

In the first game of the week, Tuesday, July 27, Shabbona-LaMotte edged Cass City Missionary, 7-6. Les Severance chalked up the win over Rinerd Schemmer. Deford won the nightcap over Shover-Laing.

Thursday the Lutherans topped Ellington-Nazarene in a slugfest, 10-7. Ken Martin topped Mark Lewis on the mound. Martin and Bill Ziedler collected two hits in four tries for the winners.

In the nightcap, Novesta Church of Christ edged Owen-Gage, 5-4. In overtime, Don Englehart was credited with the win and Gary DeVore was the loser.

Chuck McConnell smashed a double to drive in the winning run in the eighth inning.

Friday the Catholics topped Colwood, 4-1, in a well played game. John Maharg pitched for the winners and Dale Smith hurled for the losers. Paul Bliss slapped a home run. Turner and Asher had two for four.

Maharg had a no-hitter until the seventh when a triple was hit to right field and the runner scored when the Catholic's catcher dropped the ball.

Cass City Methodists continued its late charge that have resulted in a string of victories after a slow start.

Friday the victims were the Baptists, 14-4. Don Galbraith and Clyde Wells slapped home runs and Jerry Toner slapped a pair for the circuit and added another hit to make it easy for Eldon Stoutenburg to pick up the victory. Wayne Brooks had three hits for the losers.

make better soldiers when they don't reason too well.

Good combat troops are trained to react. . . not think. It's inevitable that there will be 18-21-year olds swindled and hoodwinked and jailed for drunkenness. . . but it's hard to believe that three more years would make much difference.

They probably would have anyway.

If you are having trouble drawing any conclusions from this rambling, don't say you weren't warned.

I told you I didn't have one lousy thing to write about today.

Erila's fall to Bay City nine

It happens to the best of pitchers and Saturday it happened to Al Bosch, premier hurler for Erila's softball team.

Ordinarily when Bosch has a one-run lead going into the final inning the game is all but decided. Against Bay City Roma Inn he was coasting along on a two-hit shutout with a three-run lead going into the final frame when the roof fell in.

After the smoke cleared the visitors had emerged with a 4-3 decision.

The 1970 Class B champs combed Bosch for an incredible five hits and four runs to wipe out the lead and take the victory.

Key hit in the winning rally for the visitors was a three-base blast by Fick.

In the nightcap, Erila's was evidently still shell shocked from the results of the first game. Roma Inn combed Don Englehart for nine hits and two walks and coasted to a 7-0 decision.

Erila's were to have returned to the softball wars Wednesday with a game against All Sport Tavern of Saginaw.

Manager Dan Erila said that attempts are being made to play at Mayville Tuesday as the team girls for the District 8 tournament at Port Huron that is slated to start Friday, Aug. 13.

Arraign 2

in county

circuit court

Linda Mae Lesoski, 20, formerly of Gagetown and now of 2025 Sand Beach, Bad Axe, was given over to the custody of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Office Monday after she appeared before Circuit Court Judge Norman A. Baguley for a violation of probation.

She violated her parole June 25 when she was picked up for shoplifting at the Caro IGA food store. She appeared in District Court before Judge Richard Kern, and was found guilty of larceny.

She had been put on 24 months probation by Baguley after pleading guilty April 26 to stealing a chain saw valued over $100 from a Cass City hardware store on March 11.

Sentencing has been set for Aug. 16. In the meantime, she will remain in jail, ball having been denied. She faces a possible prison sentence.

Geoffery Glenn Gale, Rt. 4, Tin Bill Road, Caro, was arraigned on a charge of willfully and maliciously destroying a plate glass window of the J. C. Penny Co. in Caro resulting in $244 damage.

He was released on a personal recognizance bond of $1000. The offense occurred July 24. He pleaded not guilty when he appeared before District Court Judge Richard Kern July 26.

Blooper ball tourney set in Gagetown

It's blooper ball tournament time at Gagetown and the eight teams in the league all have at least an outside chance for the championship, league officials said this week.

The tourney opens Monday as the last games of the regular season were to have been played this week. The title chase is going down to the wire and the regular season champions won't be determined until the final games are completed.

The tournament opens Monday, Aug. 9, at 8 p. m. when Mud Creek meets Pigeon. In the late game, Bay Port plays Owendale.

Tuesday, Aug. 10, Caseville swings into action against host Gagetown at 8 p. m. while Sebewaing-Colwood plays in the nightcap.

The tourney is a two-defeat and out affair. Wednesday evening, Aug. 11, winners play winners and losers play losers of the Monday night games.

Thursday night the Tuesday night winners and losers meet.
