

School costs creep higher as board sets tax rate

School costs crept higher for the 1971-72 school year this week following action by the Cass City School Board Monday night in its regular meeting.

The board set the school tax levies and established a new price schedule for hot lunches. While no new taxes were voted this year for school operation, a 2 1/2-mill levy authorized last year and renewed in April, will be fully levied. Last year the school was able to operate on just two mills of the 2 1/2-mills authorized when State Aid was higher than expected.

This year increasing costs have made it necessary to levy the full amount authorized. However, a reduction in the debt retirement will reduce the total by .2 of a mill. That's because the 1964 bond issue has been retired.

The debt reduction makes a net increase in taxes of .3 of a mill (30 cents per $1,000 of assessed valuation). Also increased by the board in a split vote was the price for hot lunches. Last year the lunches cost 40 cents for elementary school pupils, 45 cents for high school students and 60 cents for adults. Each price was jumped 5 cents.

The program lost $1,000 last year and costs of salaries will increase the total bill next year another $1,180. The lunch price increase is expected to handle the costs for the next two years. As usual, the prices were not increased without a hassle.

Trustee Don Koepfgen said that he was concerned because the elementary students were not getting the same menu as the high school pupils.

Three trustees remarked that the kids were not handled with courtesy at the elementary school and Mrs. Geraldine Prieskorn said that she just "hated to see the prices of lunches increased at this time."

Supt. Don Crouse said again that it was his philosophy to have the hot lunch program be self-sustaining. I feel that taxpayers vote taxes for education, not lunches, and it is unfair to use these taxes to subsidize the lunch program, he said.

After the discussion a show of hands vote revealed that Trustees Elwyn Helwig, Dr. Ed Scollon, Gerald Hicks and Arthur Severance were in favor of the increase while Mrs. Prieskorn and Koepfgen were against it. Dean Hoag abstained and a yes vote was entered for him.

A change in the election board for the Aug. 23 vocational-technical school vote was authorized. Ruth Spencer is unable to work and will be replaced by Florence Carpenter, an alternate. Replacing Mrs. Carpenter will be Joan Little. Earl Harris, another alternate, will not be available and he was replaced by Mrs. Shirley Wagg. Contracts were signed for Miss Sudie Hicks, fourth and fifth grade at Evergreen; Jan Thomas, first grade at Campbell; and Martha Butcher, Kindergarten at Deford.

Crouse reported that the school is interviewing hand men to replace Jim Kot and still is seeking a librarian. Librarians are still in short supply, he said, when a position is open late in the hiring season.

Because Eloise Kuntz, Robert Roth and Marilyn Wendorf have not completed requirements for State certification their contracts were terminated by the board.

TWENTY-FIVE western hats will be filled by service clubs members for the first Western Round-up Saturday, Aug. 14. Ed Bergman, right, president of the Service Clubs, samples one of the hats for proper head fit while Mike Weaver, vice-president, holds the other 24 that will be filled by volunteers.

Fun filled program slated for Round-up Saturday

The Cass City Recreational Park will come alive with excitement, games and rides Saturday, Aug. 14, as the service clubs finalize plans for the first Western Round-up.

The all-day affair is featuring a horse-pulling contest at 4 p. m., a Tuscola County Firemen's Water Battle Championship and an Ox Roast dinner, followed by a dance on the tennis courts.

Firemen from 13 different departments will be on hand for the championship beginning at 5:30 p. m. A first and second place trophy will go to the winning departments.

In a meeting held Friday night, Aug. 6, service club leaders decided to charge 50¢ for parking. For those without dinner tickets 50¢ will be charged to see the horse pulling contest and $1.00 to get into the dance.

Tickets for the day cost $3, which includes dinner, dancing, and entry into the horse pulling contest.

After a door-to-door campaign some 550 tickets have been sold. Ed Bergman, president for the service clubs, said they are estimating the food for 1,000 persons.

In order to break even, Bergman also noted, the clubs would have to sell $3,000 worth of tickets.

Besides the featured events, local organizations will set up booths in the park featuring games, food, and a car smash.

Among the organizations are the Business and Professional Women's Club, which will have a white elephant sale, the AAUW with a penny pitch, the Catholic Women's Council with a coffee and bake sale and the Little League will sell foot long hot dogs and Polish Kielbasa.

The Jaycees will sell hot dogs and drinks, the Catholic Men's Club will have a car smash and the Service Clubs will have a dunker's tank, pop stand and silver dollar game.

The Service Clubs, comprised of the Gavel, Rotary and Lions Clubs and firemen, are under the direction of Ed Bergman, president, Mike Weaver, vice-president, Jack McDaniel, secretary, and Bob Wischmeyer, secretary.

Committee chairmen are Dick Eria, food; Dick Wallace, table and chairs; Richard Root, ticket sales; Dave McNaughton, advertising; and Tom Woody, entertainment.

Park event first in Cass City since 1961

Fairs, festivals and reunions just seem to go naturally with the summer months. Cass City is no exception as plans for its first Western Round-up are finalized.

Although the Western Round-up is a "first" in over a decade, Cass City has seen many such annual events comparable to the Round-up.

Through the years such events were called fairs, homecomings and in 1971 a new name—the Western Round-up.

The idea is not original to Cass City, just the names and faces have changed. Tradition never seems to completely die, it just lies dormant for a few years until ambition and energy combine to revive it.

Tradition began in 1889, when during the month of October the village got together for its annual fair.

From reports that appeared in the Cass City Enterprise and Chronicle "the weather was the finest and the turnout one of the biggest yet."

Such fairs usually ran for three days with livestock exhibits, handi-work, baked goods, ball games, races, band music and professional acts.

In 1910, Fred Leslie's educated barnyard animals performed for Cass City residents. Concluded on page 16.

SECOND GRADER Jeff Childs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Childs, says he will be happy when school starts again in 3 weeks. Vacation time is fast coming to an end as schools announce opening dates.

August opening dates set by 3 schools in area

The Cass City, Owen-Gage, and Kingston schools have set opening dates.

The Cass City public schools open Monday, Aug. 30. All students except morning kindergarteners report for a half day session at 1:20 p. m.

The buses will run on the same routes as last year. Since schools normally start at 8:20 a. m., those who usually take a 7:45 a. m. bus will be picked up at 12:45 p. m. the first day. Elementary and intermediate students, grades K through 8, will report to their respective buildings. Room assignments for grades K through 6 will be posted at the buildings and those grades should report directly to their assigned rooms the first day.

A general meeting for all 7th and 8th graders will be held in the intermediate gym the first afternoon.

Grades 9 through 12 will meet in the high school gym.

All 6, 7 and 8 grade students from Deford and the 7 and 8 grade students from Evergreen will attend school in Cass City.

School will be in session for the full day, Tuesday, Aug. 31.

During the first week of school children in the kindergarten will attend only three days. The afternoon kindergarten will be Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The morning kindergarten will meet Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. Kindergarten parents will be notified by letter when to come for parent conferences. At that time they may pay the milk and cookie charge of $4.00 per semester.

New students should make appointments to register. Mr. Richards, Mr. Stickle, Mrs. Freiburger, Mrs. Smith and Mr. Kelley will be in their offices from 9-12 noon and 1-4 p. m. from Aug. 16 to Aug. 27. All students entering Michigan schools for the first time must show immunization records.

Owen-Gage area students will begin school Tuesday, Aug. 31, for a full day session starting at 8:35 a. m.

High School Principal John VanWinkle announced that seniors are to report Aug. 23 from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m. for class assignments, lockers, etc. Juniors report Aug. 24, sophomores, Aug. 25, and freshmen, Aug. 26, from 9 to 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m.

Friday, Aug. 27, anyone who couldn't make it at the scheduled time is to report to the principal's office. All new students to the school should report during this week at the superintendent's office.

Kingston schools open Tuesday, Aug. 31, also.

Grades 1 through 12 should report for a half-day at 8:30 a. m. The first session will last until 11:30 a. m. Kindergarten classes meet for the first time Sept. 1, Wednesday. There are two sessions.

The bus routes are the same as last year.

New students are asked to register as soon as possible if they have not already done so at the Kingston High School or Elementary School. Offices are open 9-12 a. m. and 1-3 p. m.

Pool reopens; future status still uncertain

The public swimming pool was reopened Saturday, Aug. 7, and will remain open for the duration of the season after being closed Aug. 3 by the state. The wading pool, however, will remain closed.

Village supervisor Jim Blades said that some of the deficiencies of the pool were met and some suspended for the duration of the season after he talked with Paul Hodges, chief inspector, and Ted Coyer, inspector, of the state department of public health in Lansing Wednesday, Aug. 4.

Blades said he explained to them that the pool had been satisfactory since 1938 when it was built, and that they would make amends for the deficiencies before the pool was opened in the spring.

There are several structural problems which have been suspended for the time being. The gutters, which are 2" x 3", do not meet the required 6" x 6". Also, the gutter does not recirculate water that has collected in the gutter fast enough.

The slope of the decking around the diving board is not sufficient to provide fast enough drain off. For the time being, it will be swept frequently, Blades said.

Another problem that has been suspended temporarily is the rate of circulation. The present rate is about 100 gallons per minute. The required minimum is 200 gallons per minute. Also suspended were the requirements of a rate of flow indicator and two thermometers on the recirculation pipings, and the elimination of air that is getting into the recirculation system.

Other requirements that were satisfied were the provision of a drinking fountain, and the cleaning of the drain to the footbath to eliminate the standing water. A chlorine and pH test kit have been provided, and a new chlorine pump was put into the pool the latter part of last week.

While the pool was emptied of water last week village workmen scrubbed the bottom with algae poison. Blades said the build up was not very bad, although there were several spots that were heavier than wanted. He explained that the chlorine pump had broken during the four very hot days in

Mrs. Koepf finds Germany the same 23 years later

By Kit McMillan

Germany and Austria haven't changed much for Mrs. Joseph Koepf since she left in 1948 as a "war bride."

She and her 19-year-old daughter, Linda, returned recently to visit the old country. They left July 8 and returned July 22.

The main object of the trip was to visit Linda's fiancé, who is stationed with the Army at Fruda, near Frankfurt.

They began their trip pleasantly at Fruda, but when they reached Frankfurt, Mrs. Koepf said both she and Linda received stares and giggles every time they walked down the street.

"I went out to buy a magazine one night, just a nice clean magazine like Look or Life, and every one I saw was pornographic, every one," said the woman. She still speaks with a slight accent but it is hardly noticeable.

"Frankfurt is terrible," she said, "but the little towns are darling. They haven't changed much. It is still eat, drink and be merry."

Even so, the prices for food are not cheap.

"Coffee was 35¢ a cup, but every cup was delicious," she explained. "And meat. For a person there who takes home about $100 net in U. S. dollars, meat costs between $4 and $5 a kilo, which is about 2 pounds, roughly. That is about $2.50 a pound!"

While food was high, rooms were not so bad.

"We stayed the first night in a charming little inn in Fruda, and it cost only $2 a night. It was clean and comfortable, nothing fancy. But then in Frankfurt it was $20 a night, and no better," said Mrs. Koepf.

Gasoline was also expensive. Seventy-five cents a gallon in Germany and 52¢ a gallon in Austria. There are no speed limits.

"We followed one car that had a sticker on the bumper saying, 'We have the best brakes in the world,'" she related.

"The best part is the people. There is no tension, no nervousness. I came back to work at Cable (General Cable Corp.)

and immediately, the tension and nervousness.

"We want things. There they save little by little to buy things. Their middle class is like our low class. But they are happy," she explained.

"But I wouldn't want to go back to live. I like the comforts here too much. But I love to visit," she said.

The Koepfs live in a modern and brightly decorated home at 5380 Severance Road. Mrs. Koepf has worked at Cable for 9 years, and her husband works in Saginaw for General Motors.

"In Europe there is always plenty of leisure time. At the restaurants there is serenity and lots of time to eat. We were done quick and the waiter told us to take our time," Mrs. Koepf said. "There is plenty of time," he said.

She explained that the stores often close down for two hours at noon so the people can rest and eat in leisure, too.

Relating the experiences they had, she laughed when she told about trying to get money back for some train tickets.

"We bought the ticket coupons as part of a package deal from the travel agency. We found out we had to use them all at one time. Concluded on page 14.

"Coffee was 35¢ a cup, but every cup was delicious."

"I wouldn't want to go back and live, but I love to visit."

"Every magazine I saw was pornographic."

"If It Fittz. . ." Hypocrisy is allowed

BY JIM FITZGERALD

In historic Yankee Stadium, where Babe Ruth, smacked all those home runs, there is an unusually graphic display of hypocrisy. It boggled my small town mind and I didn't know whether to laugh or cry. So I simply stifled my emotions with another beer. There was no sense making an ass of myself in front of all those blasé New Yorkers who obviously weren't even aware of the 3 signs that had prompted me to grab my son and say: "God God, look at that!"

The first sign, and the biggest, extols the virtues of OTB - Off Track Betting. In New York, you don't have to go to the racetrack or patronize the corner bookie to get a bet down. You can march right up to one of the caged windows at Grand Central Station, among other public places, and pin your money on the horse's nose.

The second sign, almost as big, urges you to buy a ticket on the New York State Lottery. You can win $1,000 a week for 6 zillion weeks, or something like that. The tickets are sold at every cigar counter and in every church vestibule.

The third sign is small and rather weather-beaten. It advises the baseball fans: "No

Gambling Allowed."

This is similar to putting up a "No Eating" sign in a restaurant.

The New York government is bombarding citizens with neon pleas to "please place your bets with us, your state needs the money." But if you bet the guy next to you $1 that the Yankees don't score in the 5th inning, you can go to jail, you dirty gambler.

The important thing to remember is that nothing is wrong unless your government says it is wrong. But keep your eye on the atlas. Be sure you know where every freeway exit is spitting you out. It is illegal to bet with a bookie in Michigan. You can't even play bingo there without risking arrest. But in Las Vegas you can shoot crap in the wedding chapels. In New York, Governor Rockefeller will bet you 10 to 1 that Mayor Lindsay won't collect your garbage before it can be smelled in Florida.

The day after the Yankee game we went to NBC to watch the taping of the game show, "Concentration," and we did the usual mugging when the camera swung our way. We were back home a month before that show appeared on the tube.

It was the same day Apollo 15 took off for the moon. My son Eddie was terribly concerned that "Concentration" might be pre-empted by coverage of the space launch. Thus he would be gypped out of seeing himself on TV.

His values were obviously out of whack. A moon shot is certainly more important than a silly game show, even if it does star Red Ed and His Waving Hands.

After all, it's been months since anyone brought back a bag of rocks from the moon and the supply must be running low.

But anyway, moon trips are becoming ho-hum things, restricted to the regular news shows. "Concentration" appeared as scheduled and, if you looked closely for 1 second, there was the Fitz family, waving at the world and wondering how long it would be before Ed Sullivan phoned. So there was no immediate need to talk to Eddie about the warp in his values.

Besides, it would have been a hypocritical thing to do. I didn't want Apollo 15 knocking us off TV either. I'm against moon trips anyway, even if they pre-empt Doris Day. The fare is way too high for a lot of people who can't afford to go downtown.

No father wants to be a hypocrite to his son, so I was glad to escape the sham. If I did want to be a phony, I'd aspire to much higher things than pious lies about moon trips. I'd want to work for the New York government, painting signs. I just thought of 3 pips:

1. "This Is A Library." 2. "The Books Are Free." 3. "No Reading Allowed in This State."

The 1972 reunion will be held at the same location, the first Saturday in August.

All officers were re-elected, which include the Rev. Clayton Turner of Vassar, president; Calvin Childs, vice-president; Mrs. Harriett Rayl of Deford, secretary-treasurer, and Shelley and Cindy Lauderbach of Davison as the recreation committee.

Relatives for the reunion came from Ann Arbor, Ithaca, Pontiac, Davison, Lum, Bay City, Akron, Unionville, Caro, Mayville and Deford.

People who expect to have their own way often travel alone.

Pvt. Klinkman completes Army course

Army Private William R. Klinkman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dorus Klinkman of rural Cass City, recently completed nine weeks of advanced individual infantry training at Ft. Polk, La.

During the course, he received guerrilla training and lived under simulated Vietnam conditions for five days, fighting off night attacks and conducting raids on enemy villages. He was taught methods of removing booby traps, setting ambushes and avoiding enemy ambushes.

Other specialized training included small unit tactics, map reading, land mine warfare, communications, and firing the M-16 rifle, M-60 machine gun and the 3.5-inch rocket launcher.

Library plans fall story hour

Because the summer library story telling sessions were such a success, there will be more in the fall.

Beginning Tuesday, Sept. 14, a story hour for pre-school children will be held every Tuesday at 10:00 a. m. at the library.

Mothers interested in reading should contact the library.

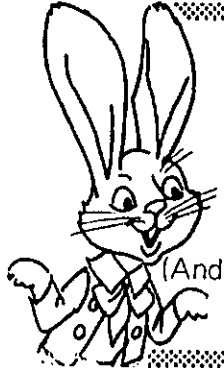

Tuesday, Aug. 10, was the last story hour of the summer series.

"It was a great success," said librarian Barbara Hutchinson. "We averaged about 35 kids each time."

Four seventh grade girls read the stories to the youngsters. They were Laura Smith, Lou Ann Galloway, Ann Whittaker and Laurie Hampshire.

The month of July proved to be very busy in other ways, too. The circulation was 2488 books, the highest ever. In June it was 1958 books. Mrs. Hutchinson said it is usually about 1800.

The library board met Aug. 3 and voted to order two sets of children's books suitable for the second to fifth grade level. They bought "Stepping into Science" and "Tizza." The latter is a horse series.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

The numbers almost got the best of me Monday. It took a telephone man, Bob Buttery, to bail me out and he had trouble.

It was Ma Bell, not Gen-Tel, at fault, I hasten to point out just in case I need Buttery's insider expertise again.

I called the seven-digit number of Bingham Roller Co. only to be switched to an operator who informed me that the number was now an Enterprise number (calls charged to the firm called).

Fine. Ring that number and let them pay, I naively retorted.

That started it. "I'm sorree-e but Cass City is not authorized to use the Enterprise number," she said.

Okay, give me another. "I'm sorree-e, we don't have that number listed."

Well, how am I to contact Bingham Roller Co?

I don't know, I'll connect you with our supervisor.

Yes, I already told your operator I did call information. They don't have the information.

Yeah, I know. . . you're sorree-e.

That's when Buttery came marching in and in dulcet tones kept insisting to every operator that answered that since the firm had a phone there must be a way to call them.

About 15 minutes later someone, somewhere dug into a little black book and presto a new seven-digit number was reported and my phone call completed about 15 seconds later.

Ah! This computer age.

Flame throwing Rob Alexander, Cass City's pro baseball hope, has turned down an offer to attend a baseball-college "Academy" run by the Kansas City Royals.

The Royals made Alexander an offer after he tried out recently at Port Huron. He was one of two from over 2,000 candidates that could have made the grade.

But after considering the offer, Rob turned it down, his dad, Robert, said this week, and instead is accepting a "free ride" at Port Huron Junior College.

The thought behind the move, the senior Alexander said, is that after a couple of years at Port Huron which runs an ambitious baseball program, if Rob has the stuff he'll get other offers. If he doesn't, he wouldn't have made it anyway and he'll have two years of college behind him as he goes on to other things.

The young pitcher had been ready to sign the KC offer, but when all the details were revealed the proposed college education was in reality a guarantee of just one year and Rob decided to wait and see if better things would come his way in the future.

He's still committed to giving pro ball his best pitch.

Speaking of athletes, Cass City has a coveted diver on its swim team. He is Tim Stickle. When Cass City's pool was reported closed both Caro and Marlette tried to recruit him for their squads. He's probably the best around even though he's had no coaching from any trained diver.

Ron Rogers, administrator for the Tuscola County Department of Social Welfare, spoke at Rotary Tuesday. He told how one family purchased food stamps at over 30 different counties piling up benefits worth over $15,000 before being caught. He also said that a rule of thumb of cost to local taxpayers of all the various welfare programs is roughly $3 for every man, woman and child in the county.

Mrs. Shaw hosts Baptist Society

Nine members and two guests attended the monthly meeting of the Baptist Missionary Society Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Richard Shaw.

Mrs. Myrtle McComb conducted devotions and presided at the business meeting. Members voted a $25.00 contribution toward the purchase price of a car for Marge McMillan, who will be going to Africa to do missionary work.

Prayer-time was in charge of Mrs. Fay McComb. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. McComb.

You'd probably love to have a car like this to fool around with. But suppose you had to drive it day in and day out?

We Americans are used to having the latest, and we don't like to live with what seems out-of-date to us. For that reason, a good many of us don't go to church. We tell ourselves that church was great for Grandma and Grandpa, or maybe even for Mom and Dad, but it has no place for us in this jet age.

If we believe this . . . then it is we who are out-of-date! The Church today is a modern institution in touch with the world around it. It helps us cope with the problems of modern life, teaching us to change with a changing world. Let's catch up with the times. Let's attend church.

Triskaidekaphobia!!

Cass City folk scoff at Friday 13

By Kit McMillion

Triskaidekaphobia. Although it sounds gruesome, it is only a fear of the number 13. Cass City folks apparently do not have it.

Twenty-five persons were asked randomly if they thought Friday the 13th was unlucky. Not one of them admitted to any fear, many laughing and scoffing at the very idea of being superstitious.

"I never give it a thought," said Jim Gross of Gross Meat Market. "Everybody mentions it and are aware of it being superstitious, but it doesn't bother me. We just joke about it."

That was the consensus of everyone asked. One young girl just looked puzzled wondering why Friday the 13th should be unlucky anyway.

"The good Lord above is the best luck charm," said Nelda Irwin. "What will be, will be and being superstitious won't change anything."

No one seems upset at all about 13 and for the like Parsches it seems to be lucky. Mrs. Parsch said they get merchandise in lots of 13 and they are still in business.

The only person to admit to any fears was Mrs. Keith McConkey.

"I don't like black cats or ladders, but Friday the 13th doesn't bother me," she said. Apparently, superstitions are a thing of the past and have faded along with grandma's cooking. In the age of science and knowledge, the fears of the unknown are no longer with us.

Friday has been considered an unlucky day by many people, however, and falling on the 13th day of the month is even worse. The ill luck of a Friday is believed to have originated among the Norsemen of the Scandinavian countries where Friday was considered to be sacred to the Goddess Freya, the Northern Venus, Roman goddess of beauty.

Anyone who undertook a journey or devoted himself to business projects on a Friday was looked upon as dishonoring her, and she was known to avenge herself by overwhelming him with misfortune.

Among Christians it is probably associated with the death of Christ. It is interesting, however, that Friday is the Moslem Sabbath, and among the Mohammedans the day is regarded as lucky.

The number 13 is considered to be unlucky in all civilized countries, both by the educated and the ignorant. Its origins are probably connected with the number of Christ and his disciples, one of whom betrayed Him. Traces of the fear of 13 are also found in Norse and Hindu superstitions. The Turks, French, Italians and Latin races also have a strong aversion to the number.

Many hotels have no rooms numbered 13 and buildings often have no 13th floor.

The superstition of that day being unlucky is but one of many that flourish around the world.

In England it is considered unlucky to kill crickets because they will cut holes in the stockings of the family that kills them. Along the French sea coast, it is believed there will be no catch if the waters are not strewn with flowers by the fishermen's wives and daughters.

A curious superstition among the Gypsies of Paris and other large cities is that it is unlucky to pass a priest. To break the ill luck, the passer must touch a piece of iron. No one knows how that got started, but the Gypsies carry a piece of iron in their pocket for handy use.

In Rumania mothers tie red ribbons around the ankles of their children to preserve them from being harmed. In Scotland it is considered unlucky for a mother and baby to go outside until the baby has been baptized.

It is also considered unlucky to be married in a month with the letter 'a' in it or for wedding guests to wear green or black.

On the Isle of Man, off the English coast, there is a custom to go to bed early on a stormy night so that the good fairies may enter and find shelter.

A man who has made enemies of cats in Germany is supposed to go to his grave amidst a storm of wood and rain. And carrying a 4-leaf clover on Christmas Eve lets one see witches.

Cures of rheumatism is a common object of superstitions, and there are many supposed cures. In this state carrying a double knot of cedar in the pocket is said to do the trick. In New Hampshire, it's a gall from a golden rod. Also hickory nuts, buckeye nuts or horse chestnuts carried are said to be cures. An interesting one is wearing a ring made from a potato. This one is supposed to work even better if the potato was stolen.

The deputy at the other end of the phone said, "We pushed the wrong button. The fire is in Caro."

Meanwhile, fire trucks with lights flashing were zipping down Main Street to the fire department where 8 or 9 men had answered the call. The siren died, and the men went back to work.

They answered that alarm just like they do any other alarm.

When the saw mill burned recently, I woke up to the tune of the siren at 2:50 a. m., and I groaned again, but went back to sleep instead.

Sixteen volunteer firemen answered the call, however, which lasted until the early morning.

I have a great deal of admiration for the men who fight fires, especially the ones who volunteer their time away from work, who risk limb and life to save your property. I suspect you do too.

But it upsets me to watch them wielding hoses and axes against the flames, all the time hot having anything to relieve their hunger or thirst.

Fighting fires is a very wet job. Water is sprayed everywhere, and drips all over the men. But all that smoke, heat and dust also dries the mouth. Nothing tastes better than a cup of hot coffee or an iced drink.

I know because I have reported fires and I get very thirsty just standing there doing nothing more than watching or taking pictures.

Imagine how the men doing the work must feel!

At every other fire I've been, a woman's group or the Red Cross or Salvation Army makes sure there is coffee and maybe cookies or doughnuts for the firemen. I've never seen any around here.

Maybe I just haven't been to the right fires, but I don't think that is a very nice way to treat your firemen.

If I'm ignorant, someone please enlighten me. If not, let's get busy.

If you have any money left over from fairs and sidewalk sales, you might be interested in taking advantage of August sales. These items are traditional August sale items: furniture, tires, coats and furs, curtains, garden and lawn equipment, paint, hardware, camping equipment, cameras and white goods.

All sales have a purpose. The retailer reduces his stock to make room for new goods or to dispose of discontinued lines or damaged goods. Sometimes he uses them to get you into the store to introduce a new product or to stimulate your buying. Sales are great opportunities for you to save provided you know these rules:

*Be sure the sale price is an actual reduction from the regular price.

*Watch for imperfect or damaged articles, or merchandise that is below the store's usual quality.

*Be sure to know if the store has a policy during sales of "No Refunds, All Sales Final."

*Shop at the start of the sale for best selection.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

State lotteries

successful

By Dan Marlowe

At the risk of sounding like a stuck record, let's return to a subject touched upon several times previously in this column.

The Michigan State Legislature is struggling desperately to unearth new sources of revenue while at the same time ignoring an obvious source: a state lottery.

The State of New York—first of the large states to have a lottery, and second only to New Hampshire in initiating the experiment—has just produced another report on the success of its lottery. After an initial stumbling-around period, all systems are now go.

"It's producing more money than two or three of our smaller states," State Tax Commissioner Norman F. Gallman says. "And it's doing it without costing the taxpayers anything. If the money wasn't coming from the lottery, it would have to come from state taxes or higher local income taxes."

New York has learned from the success of its neighbor, New Jersey. Instead of the cumbersome manual tickets, New Jersey went to a vending machine operation which was phenomenally successful from the outset. Now New York is using the machines.

"So far, the result has been a tremendous boost in sales," a spokesman for the Tax Commission says. "We have three in the Albany area that sold tickets manually before. One store is doing twice the volume, another three times, and the third, which normally sold 300 tickets a month, sold 1500 the first month with the machines."

By law, all the proceeds from

The New York State lottery are required to go for education. The same is true in New Hampshire and New Jersey. All three states have saved individual taxpayers hundreds of dollars in lessened property taxes.

Commissioner Gallman points out another factor in connection with New York State lottery sales. "We get a little more than 35% of our sales from out of state," he says, "and that's money we'd never get a shot at otherwise. And we found no fall-off in sales to commuters from New Jersey after that state started its own lottery."

This year revenue to the state is expected to hit the $40,000,000 mark in New York. That's aside from prize money paid out and cost of operation.

And tucked away in a footnote of Commissioner Gallman's report is an interesting item. "We've had inquiries on our operation, and sometimes visitors, from 12 states and a few provinces in Canada," Gallman states. "California, Manitoba, and even the City of Detroit have expressed strong interest."

Wouldn't it be something if the City of Detroit beat the State of Michigan to the starting line in this race for one of the last sources of untapped revenue available to tax-levying bodies?

Triskaidekaphobia!!

Cass City folk scoff at Friday 13

By Kit McMillion

Triskaidekaphobia. Although it sounds gruesome, it is only a fear of the number 13. Cass City folks apparently do not have it.

Twenty-five persons were asked randomly if they thought Friday the 13th was unlucky. Not one of them admitted to any fear, many laughing and scoffing at the very idea of being superstitious.

"I never give it a thought," said Jim Gross of Gross Meat Market. "Everybody mentions it and are aware of it being superstitious, but it doesn't bother me. We just joke about it."

That was the consensus of everyone asked. One young girl just looked puzzled wondering why Friday the 13th should be unlucky anyway.

"The good Lord above is the best luck charm," said Nelda Irer. "What will be, will be and being superstitious won't change anything."

No one seems upset at all about 13 and for the like Parsches it seems to be lucky. Mrs. Parsch said they get merchandise in lots of 13 and they are still in business.

The only person to admit to any fears was Mrs. Keith McConkey.

"I don't like black cats or ladders, but Friday the 13th doesn't bother me," she said. Apparently, superstitions are a thing of the past and have faded along with grandma's cooking. In the age of science and knowledge, the fears of the unknown are no longer with us.

Friday has been considered an unlucky day by many people, however, and falling on the 13th day of the month is even worse. The ill luck of a Friday is believed to have originated among the Norsemen of the Scandinavian countries where Friday was considered to be sacred to the Goddess Freya, the Northern Venus, Roman goddess of beauty.

Anyone who undertook a journey or devoted himself to business projects on a Friday was looked upon as dishonoring her, and she was known to avenge herself by overwhelming him with misfortune.

Among Christians it is probably associated with the death of Christ. It is interesting, however, that Friday is the Moslem Sabbath, and among the Mohammedans the day is regarded as lucky.

The number 13 is considered to be unlucky in all civilized countries, both by the educated and the ignorant. Its origins are probably connected with the number of Christ and his disciples, one of whom betrayed him. Traces of the fear of 13 are also found in Norse and Hindu superstitions. The Turks, French, Italians and Latin races also have a strong aversion to the number.

Many hotels have no rooms numbered 13 and buildings often have no 13th floor.

The superstition of that day being unlucky is but one of many that flourish around the world.

In England it is considered unlucky to kill crickets because they will cut holes in the stockings of the family that kills them. Along the French sea coast, it is believed there will be no catch if the waters are not strewn with flowers by the fishermen's wives and daughters.

A curious superstition among the Gypsies in the existence of supernatural forces that operate for good or evil, arose from ancient times when a real or fancied relationship between persons, things or events were formed to explain happenings.

How many of you still-- Believe you'll get 7 years bad luck when you break a mirror?

Knock on wood? Carry a rabbit's foot? Toss salt over your left shoulder if you spill some? Think it is bad luck to walk under ladders or have a black cat cross your path?

Avoid cracks in the sidewalk? If you do, maybe you should stay in bed on Friday.

On the Isle of Man, off the English coast, there is a custom to go to bed early on a stormy night so that the good fairies may enter and find shelter.

A man who has made enemies of cats in Germany is supposed to go to his grave amidst a storm of wood and rain. And carrying a 4-leaf clover on Christmas Eve lets one see witches.

BETTER HEALTH

Relieving pain of disease

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Dr. Raymond N. Miller of Houston, Texas, recently wrote an interesting article on helping patients who have chronic diseases that cause them much pain. As he points out so wisely, the patient's response to pain is influenced by a number of different factors, such as the acuteness of the pain, or whether it is chronic or intractable (unable to be stopped). The worst pains, of course, are the intractable ones which do not respond easily to any treatment.

Anxiety states and depressions add to and magnify the already existing physical distress. An intractable pain is bad because it tends to produce a depression. Long-continued pain can have a demoralizing effect on a person's mind and spirit; I have found that persons with a cancer of the pancreas or with a duodenal ulcer eating into the head of the pancreas, can be particularly demoralized and sometimes can become almost psychopathic as a result of their suffering.

Sometimes fear of pain or fear of death can heighten the suffering of the patient considerably. Years ago a pathologist at the Philadelphia Zoo wrote on the injurious effects that the fear of impending death can have on the individual. The pathologist suspected that such fears have much to do with the disability and prostration seen in the last stages of fatal diseases. He suspected this because animals, from their inability to understand what is happening to them, do not get frightened; often they will keep running about until the day of their death. One day a monkey will be climbing about his cage, apparently as well as ever, and the next morning he may be found dead with every tissue of his body riddled with tuberculosis. The pathologist will then wonder how he ever kept going.

Certainly such an observation strengthens the impression that often comes to a doctor such as me, that if only his patient were not so alarmed over his disease, he would hardly be ill. This can be seen even in a person who is not upset by approaching death. Thus, I remember several able and dynamic and fearless men who, though jaundiced and with the liver full of metastatic cancer (cancer that had spread through the body), felt well and worked cheerfully up to a day or two before their deaths.

Also, people differ tremendously in their sensitivity to pain. There are many people who have practically no ability to feel pain. Anyone who doubts this should go to an arena some night where he will see two big heavyweight wrestlers banging each other about, or two powerful boxers hitting each other with all the strength they have. The average man couldn't stand that sort of thing for 20 seconds, but the professional wrestler or boxer may stand half an hour of it. How different such a man is from the highly sensitive woman who, if her hand is squeezed too tightly or enthusiastically, will cry out with pain.

Dr. Miller, in his article, points out that too often the "treatment group" (attending physician, nurse, staff, and other personnel) taking care of a sick person in a hospital, is not as concerned with the patient's comfort as it should be. A wise physician will learn details about the pain, and will try to adjust the treatment to that type of pain. Many of us physicians do not realize that when giving pain-killing drugs, we cannot just "go by the books"; different patients vary in the amount of a drug that will bring relief. Some of them are highly sensitive to drugs and need only a little to produce the desired effect, while others are markedly insensitive to drugs, and hence will require a larger dose.

The best example of this difference in sensitivity to drugs can be seen with alcohol. A friend of mine once ordered four martinis and drank them in quick succession. When I asked him why, he said, "I don't feel anything until the fourth." And yet another person may "feel high" after only one or two sips.

I'll never forget the time in San Francisco when I was first assistant to one of our most brilliant diagnosticians, Dr. Emil Schmolli. One day I found a man who said he felt very ill; he had a fever, and he had some discomfort in the right lower quadrant of his abdomen. He had a high white blood count, and my impression was that he had an acute appendicitis, but he hadn't the least tenderness over his bowel and he had no pain. Puzzled, I asked my chief to look at the man. He checked the reflexes and found they were gone, and he soon concluded that the man had no ability to feel pain in his abdomen. Dr. Schmolli immediately called a surgeon who, on operating, found an acute appendicitis. The man had no warning pain, because he could not feel pain.

One of my strongest crusades during my years in medicine has been that we doctors should be kind enough to try to give our patients relief from their pain. If a patient has, let us say, a terrible pain due to a scattered cancer or a bad arthritis of the spinal column, we should give him enough medicine to give him relief, especially so that he can sleep at night. A good drug that I have found extremely helpful is oxy-codone; it is supposed to be slightly habit-forming, but while giving it to many patients in the past few years, I haven't seen any sign of habituation.

If you would like to learn more about arthritis, send for Dr. Alvarez' booklet "Arthritis and Rheumatism." Include a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents with your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. CCC, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

4 Holsteins found

Four Holstein heifers apparently felt "the grass was greener on the other side of the fence" when they wandered away from the Jeffrey Davidson farm on Williamson Road in rural Gagetown, Saturday night.

The heifers, valued at $1800, were found Monday morning standing at the side of Leonard Kurr's barn, three miles from the Davidson farm.

Davidson, who feared someone had stolen the animals, reported to State Police the animals were in the field at 7 p. m. Saturday but were missing at 8 a. m. Sunday.

He had checked with neighbors all day Sunday, but no one had seen the animals. Karr, who heard the report on the radio, had been gone Sunday. The heifers, weighing about 1,300 pounds, each, had apparently wandered through a section of a broken down fence in the pasture, Davidson said.

To study new zone laws

The Village Planning Commission will hold an open meeting Thursday, Aug. 19, at 8 p. m. at the Elkland Township Cultural Center.

Purpose of the meeting is to consider the language and revision of the proposed zoning ordinances and subdivision regulations.

Warren Wood, chairman of the commission, said the public is welcome to attend the meeting.

Copies of the proposals are available for review at the Municipal Building and are on file at the library.

The commission, with the aid of Vilcan-Leman and Associates, consultants of the village, have been working on the revisions for over a year.

The zoning ordinances, which deal with the use of land, have been revised two times since 1947. This will be the first revision since 1960 for the subdivision regulations, which controls the division of property.

County votes

$400 for signs

The county board of commissioners voted to appropriate $400 for signs and necessary expenses for the opposition of the antlerless deer season at its regular meeting Tuesday.

The motion was made by Floyd Ducker of Mayville and supported by Charles Woodcock of Vassar. It was approved unanimously.

The commissioners also accepted unanimously the letter from Hills and Dales General Hospital requesting their aid in getting a Red Cross Blood Bank for Tuscola county.

Commissioner Ed Golding said the commissioners agreed that it would be a good thing for the county and that they referred it to the Health Committee for study and recommendations.

Absent were William Tuckey of Caro and Donald Graf of Unionville.

ELIZABETH VARGO of Cass City was awarded shears for Junior showmanship by Fred Black, right, from the Tuscola County Farm Bureau.

CARL RUSSELL of Cass City won the market lamb Senior Showmanship award and was presented a pair of sheep shears from Fred Black, left, of the Tuscola County Farm Bureau.

Gail Rogers dies in fair accident

The body of a young girl who died from injuries received in a horse race at the Tuscola County Fair Wednesday, Aug. 4, was buried Saturday in Almer Township Cemetery.

Gail Rogers, 12, was fatally injured after being thrown from her horse during the girl's half-mile race at the annual Horse Gymkana performed for children from the Caro State Home and Training School.

She died at 4:17 p. m. at Saginaw St. Mary's Hospital in the emergency room where she was rushed for treatment of serious head injuries.

The accident occurred shortly after 2 p. m. when Miss Rogers was thrown over the head of her horse, which went down with her. The forelegs of the animal gave way as they reached the third turn at the north edge of the track.

Suzene Kirk of Fairgrove reached her first and grabbed the reins of the horse. She gave mouth to mouth resuscitation until the ambulance arrived.

Born Sept. 1, 1958, she is survived by her mother, Mrs. Florence Rogers of South Murry Road, Caro, her father, Charles Rogers, and a sister.

Several citizens were present to discuss the recent amendment to Section 9A of Ordinance No. 48. There were both citizens opposing the amendment and those in favor of it. A petition along with several letters opposing the new ordinance were presented to the Council.

After a lengthy discussion, a motion was made by Trustee Albee and supported by Trustee Rawson that the Council table the policies governing the allowance of liquor in the park until the issue is put before the public at the next annual Village election in March. Motion carried.

A motion was made by Trustee Rawson and supported by Trustee Jones that the Service Clubs be allowed the use of the Village Park on August 14 for the Western Round-up. Motion carried.

Mr. Frank Mosher was present to ask the Council's permission to repair his cesspool. The Council informed Mr. Mosher that this was out of their jurisdiction and he should seek further advice from the County Health Department.

The Financial Report for the month of June was reviewed.

A motion was made by Trustee Christner and supported by Trustee Albee that the bid from Frank Strausberg & Son for 1,800 tons of asphalt at $9.85 a ton for blacktop on Church and Oak Streets be accepted. Motion carried.

It was reported that bids on curb and gutter on Garfield Street will be reviewed at the regular August meeting.

Superintendent Jim Blades reported that he should be receiving the subdivision regulations and zoning ordinances from Villac-Leman within the next few days.

It was recommended by President Althaver that the Planning Commission receive the zoning ordinances and subdivision regulations immediately for their review before a public hearing will be held.

Mr. Blades informed the Council that the annual Michigan Municipal League Conference will be held on Mackinac Island on September 2, 3, and 4.

A motion was made by Trustee Albee and supported by Trustee Jones that Mr. Blades be allowed to attend the annual Michigan Municipal League Conference with voting privileges. Motion carried.

It was reported that the 1953 Street Sweeper is in poor condition, but that repairs are being made to get it back to working condition.

President Althaver read a letter from Mr. John Little in which he requested permission to purchase a portion of the Village property located on Brooker Street at Houghton Street. This request will be tabled until further study can be made of this piece of property.

A motion was made by Trustee Rawson and supported by Trustee Christner that the bills as examined by the Finance Committee be approved for payment. Motion carried.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

I see by the papers where this outfit in England has come up with somepun they call a "Charter of Children's Rights." The piece said they was dead serious about setting down the things younguns has freedom to and from, such as freedom from "religious indoctrination" and freedom of "speech, both written and verbal."

Mister Editor, I am full agreed with the feller that said as a feller gets older he ought to worry less about life, on account there is less of it left to worry about. But when I see where grown people can serious perpose that stuff like a "Charter of Children's Rights" be made the law of the land in any land, I can't help worrying what kind of world we're passing down to our younguns.

General speaking, I think grown people are trying to get rid of their own job as ma and pa by perterding their younguns want to think and act like them. Furthermore, I am full of the mind that younguns would rather be looked after, told how to dress and what to say, instead of having "freedom from excessive claims made on them by their parents."

This matter come up from another angle Saturday night at the country store when Ed Doolittle allowed we has took this big time sports thing so serious til we got boys playing league football practical in di-pers. Ed was strong of the opinion that boys ought to be left alone to be boys, and that girls ought not to be hurried in their growing up neither.

All the fellers is well into the age of Social Security Medicare and all them aids fer folks the Government calls elderly, Mister Editor. Probable, our opinions is bent some with the weight of our years, but we was full agreed that this country is gitting the wrong idee on freedom.

Fer instant, we give our younguns so much when they're little that when they git up some size they keep thinking they're free to do and git everything they want. I was glad to see the court ruled that girl that wouldn't mind her pa couldn't collect support from him, but it's sad such a thing can git to court. I was glad to see the court rule agin the drunk driver that said his rights was violated cause he was too drunk to be able to decide if he ought to take the police breath test to tell how drunk he was, but I worry cause we ain't got no sure way to keep drunks from killing folks on the roads.

Actual, Mister Editor, they is a lot the fellers ain't worried about. Fer instant, Clem Webster said he had saw where scientists was sending out signals to other planets that would take 50 year to git there and, if somebody or somepun answers, another 50 year it git back. Clem said he ain't setting up nights waiting on that one.

I see the average age in this country dropped from 29 to 27 in the past 10 year. Let them worry. I ain't gitting no young-er.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

While some years are good car years, 1971 has been a

VINTAGE YEAR FOR PLYMOUTH DUSTER

ONE OF OUR BEST YEARS.

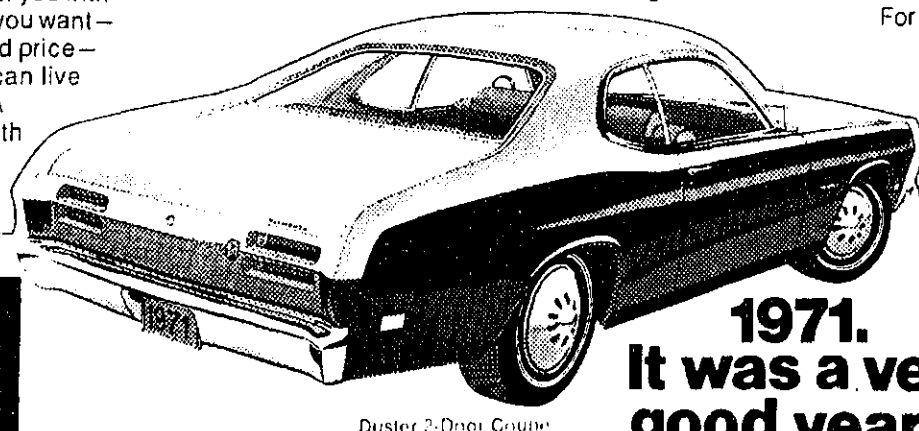

It takes something special to come up with a Vintage Year. But that's what '71 has been for Chrysler-Plymouth. Everything—from drawing board to final assembly—has come together in great fashion. We like to think our slogan "Coming Through" had a lot to do with it, because it's more than a phrase. It's a pledge, a dedication to one purpose: To come through for you with the kind of automobiles you want—not only in style, size and price—but also in quality you can live with for years to come. A good example is Plymouth Duster.

ECONOMY CAN BE BEAUTIFUL, TOO.

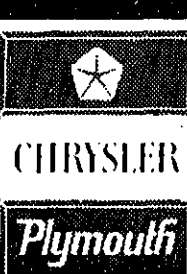

Plymouth Duster is a rare breed of economy car. It comes through small enough for easy handling and good gas mileage, big enough for families with baggage. Now add Duster's high resale value (a leader in its class, along with other Plymouth compacts), and you have a rare breed of economy car indeed.

NOW, A GREAT SELECTION COMING THROUGH FINAL CLEARANCE PRICED.

'71 has been a Vintage Year for Chrysler-Plymouth. Quality shines and shows in every line. Drive a Plymouth or Chrysler. Prove how our '71 models have come through. Check our great selection. We think you'll agree: quality cars at final clearance prices is what "Coming Through" is all about. For us. For you.

It was a very good year.

Coming Through.

Mrs. W. Waun celebrates 93rd birthday July 21

Mrs. William Waun, former resident of the Shabbona community, quietly observed her 93rd birthday July 21 at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Waun of Pontiac.

MRS. WILLIAM WAUN

Mrs. Waun, who is a member of the Shabbona United Methodist Church, lived on a farm in the Shabbona area for many years. She has three sons, six grandchildren, 28 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren. She is enjoying fair health, as relatives and close friends helped her to celebrate the day.

New arena to showcase gala 1971 Sanilac County Fair Aug. 16-21

The Sanilac County Fair will open Monday, Aug. 16, and run through Aug. 21, complete with a midway, "Quacky", the world's tallest clown, and a new $25,000 show arena.

The arena, which seats 500 people, is 60x104 feet in clear span space and has 24-foot wings that hold 45 stalls for beef cattle and 20 pens for sheep and swine.

Used for judging and selling, the cost of the arena took much of the $25,840 the fair committee had on hand, but Marjorie Tereschuk, secretary for the 4-H fair, said "it will have a good year we will be O.K."

Last year the 4-H county fair received $29,392.88 in receipts, making close to a $3,000 profit from the week's events.

With the construction of the new arena, more exhibit space is available outside for merchants to display snowmobiles, trailers, and even construct a home, Mrs. Tereschuk said.

Although the number of entries has increased slightly over last year, a new open class for barnyard children has been added. Two entries will be taken in each classification and fair goers will be able to view the mothers and their offspring.

The midway, sponsored by Crown Amusement, Inc., will remain the same with 16 rides and the return of "Quacky", who will roam the fairgrounds, Mrs. Tereschuk said.

Kicking off the activities will be Merchants Night, in which tickets from participating merchants entitle the holder to midway rides at 10 cents off the regular price. Two performances at 7 p. m. and 9 p. m. of Gene Holter's Movie-land Wild Animal Show will also be held.

The show will feature racing ostriches with local men doing the racing, racing camels, chimps, a trained Hippo and many other animals.

Open horse judging will begin at 10 a. m. Tuesday as well as a tractor pulling contest beginning at 9:30 a. m. The judging of exhibits will take place at 1 p. m. following set up and entry registration. The evening program will feature the Sanilac Saddle Club Show at 8 p. m.

Wednesday is Children's Day on the Midway beginning at 1 p. m. and running until 6 p. m. All children will be admitted to the midway rides at reduced prices. Judging of the sheep, swine, beef, poultry and rabbits begins at 9 a. m. and the remaining exhibits will be judged at 1 p. m. An all-girl Auto Thrill Show will highlight the evening's activities beginning at 8 p. m.

Thursday is Senior Citizens Day, as Sanilac county senior citizens will be admitted to the Grandstand at reduced prices. Judging begins at 9 a. m., and at 1 p. m. the 4-H and FFA Livestock Sale will take place at the livestock barns. The 4-H King and Queen will be crowned as part of the evening activities with the Cathedral Quartet from Akron, Ohio, performing at 8 p. m.

Friday is the second Children's Day at the Fair, with free bicycles being given away. The 4-H Horse and Pony Show judging will begin at 9 a. m. At 6:30 p. m., the tractor pulling contest will take place in front of the grandstand.

Saturday from 1 p. m. to 3 p. m., "Quacky" will be on stage to entertain as a magician, balloon sculptor, pantomimist and other things. Horse pulling and pony pulling will conclude the fair's events Saturday night at 7:30 p. m.

There is no charge for admission and parking until 4:30 p. m. for the fair. After 4:30 p. m., parking costs 50 cents and admission is 50 cents per person.

time, but we couldn't. So like a stupid American, I went back and asked for my money back. The man there said I couldn't have it because I had bought the coupons in the States."

Some things have changed since 1948.

"When I was in Vienna my brother wanted to know about my work, but I didn't know the German words for computer and other things. They weren't in the language when I left," she said.

She visited her family in Vienna in 1967 and again this year, but Mrs. Koepf is anxious to return again next year.

Rabideaus host Hill reunion

The 32nd Hill family reunion was held Sunday, Aug. 8, at the Dean Rabideau residence. Around 30 attended and potluck dinner was served.

Officers for next year are: Dennis Rienstra, president; Myrtle Rabideau, vice-president; Betsy Sowden, secretary, and Lorene Rienstra, treasurer.

The reunion is scheduled next year at the same place the second Sunday in August.

ON GUARD

Don't be misled—two and two still make four, no matter what the other fellow promises.

AROUND THE FARM

Store crops to get better prices

By Don Kebler

Government loan and storage is one way to give the renter cash to work on and a marketing breather. Government loan and support prices were intended to put a floor and not a ceiling on commodities. Unbalanced marketing force support prices to become ceilings. Some farmers place their commodities under loan, re-invest this money, and gain enough interest money difference to make storage costs very low or nil.

Whichever way we go, the sooner total orderly marketing is accomplished the better the chances will be for a more uniform price structure throughout the year.

Perhaps if any one single reason for a reduction in income to our farm operators was given it would be improper marketing. Our commercial farmers have proven their ability to use good agricultural research and their experiences to produce an abundance of food and fiber. They have done a good job in production but an orderly marketing system has not been accomplished.

In the past our farmers have followed a general procedure of marketing most of their products at the time of harvest or maturity. We know the outcome is generally one of lowering prices as the elevator storages bulge and their sales are less than their purchases. Basically, the only recourse an elevator, or any business which buys farm products, can do when this situation occurs is to lower its price. A lower board price is their way of saying they do not really want to buy that product at that time, but will do so to meet the needs of a customer. The opposite holds true when the elevators are short and processor demands are high.

I have heard it said that if our farmers would market their products in equal amounts once a month over a period of at least ten months each year, they would see average higher returns than normally found.

I am sure some who read this article will say they may sell at harvest time to pay some bills, or they don't have storage. This is so in some cases, but certainly not in a majority of instances. Past sales histories show for instance that in some years over 65 percent of our navy beans have been sold during harvest. Most of these harvest sales were made for convenience and not for the sake of monetary necessity.

If the picture were reversed and this 65 percent didn't sell at harvest time but was stored, the price trend would have been higher, especially if the sales had been spread out over several months.

Storage and unified farmer cooperation must be obtained before orderly marketing of products can be achieved. Storage is the lesser problem as one either rents or buys storage; however, in the long run storage is bought whether the money is paid as rent or as principal and interest.

EDITOR'S CORNER

It's not that I'm ready for Florida. I'm sure that if I went south for the winter, I'd be biting my nails to get back within three weeks.

In this respect I have an empathy for M. B. Auten who in his younger days would take a week's vacation to visit Florida with New York and half of the deep south thrown in.

There was always something that he had to get back home for... a football game, a school play, a reunion. Any excuse.

The real reason was that he liked to be in Cass City more than any other place.

Winter, spring, summer, fall. As a non-native (I've only been here 20 years) perhaps I don't feel quite that strongly, but I don't know of any place I'd rather be.

I know that there are many, many communities with our advantages, and people are the same everywhere, given the same environment.

Really what I'm saying is that I'm a small-town midwesterner at heart.

Certainly, Michigan and the Midwest has some stinking weather... too hot and too cold.

But after a while I get as tired of warm weather as I do of cold. It's exhilarating to experience a rare "Indian summer" day in late October or a 70-degree day in early April.

A soldier back from a couple of years in the Pacific expressed it well when he said after a few months of 70-degree weather you wish that once, just once, you'd wake up and find it was too hot or too cold to be comfortable.

I know you'd like to try it for a year and see.

Not me, I like Michigan and Michigan weather.

I'd like it better if I could only sneak away for the dog days of March and early April.

But if I did that how could I watch the basketball tournaments?

I felt this way at 20, 30, 40 and now at 49 years old. How will I feel when 60? Maybe I'll be adding February to the dog days of March and early April.

I still don't think I'll want to winter anywhere except right here at home.

Maybe at 70?

Civilization adds to comforts, but reduces liberties.

German in death brush

A Deford man narrowly missed death when a pipe he was pulling out of a well attracted electricity from a high voltage wire and severely burned his feet.

Carl German was on vacation at St. Ignace, where his wife runs the Lake Shore Trailer Camp, when the incident occurred Thursday, Aug. 5.

Mrs. German said the "freak accident" nearly cost German's life.

German and Walter Heck, Mrs. German's uncle, were doing some repairs to the well when the pipe attracted the electricity from the wire and threw them to the ground.

The uncle, who was wearing gloves, only received a shock. German underwent surgery Friday on his feet and he will be laid up for six weeks, Mrs. German said.

Mrs. German noted her husband never lost consciousness during the incident and even walked to the ambulance before being taken to Mackinac Straits Hospital.

Physicals for gridders Aug. 21

Football physicals will be given at 1 p. m. Aug. 21 for all boys who plan to play in grades 9-12, at the high school gym. Practice starts on Aug. 23, coach Bill Philbin announced this week.

8 injured in 3 area accidents

Eight persons were injured in three separate accidents this week.

Seven members of the Villabos family from Weslaco, Texas, were injured Saturday, Aug. 7, when their car collided with one driven by Edward James Labelle, 29, of 4224 Maple, Cass City.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Sheridan Road and West Cass City Road in Akron township at 6:40 a. m. Passenger in the Labelle car was Daniel Monvil, 36, of Akron. Neither was injured.

Pedro Mireles Villabos, 40, was driving south on Sheridan, a black top road, when his truck collided with the east bound Labelle car on the gravel Cass City Road, Homes and trees on the northwest corner of the intersection obstructed the view of both drivers, and they were unable to see each other. It is an open intersection with no traffic controls.

The Villabos truck came to rest 70 feet from the point of impact in a ditch on the east side of the road. It flipped around and spilled the four children riding in the back into the ditch.

The Labelle car came to rest 61 feet from impact facing north in the ditch on the south side of Cass City Road. Maria, 10, and Alma Della Villabos, 4, were listed in good condition in Bay City Mercy Hospital. The others were treated and released from Caro Community Hospital. Besides the driver, there were: Marie Villabos, 42, Janie, Lupe, 15, and Pedro, 7.

Alvin Werschky, 26, 5911 N. Cemetery Road, Cass City, was injured in a one car accident Thursday, Aug. 5, when he fell asleep at the wheel of the car he was driving.

He was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital for treatment and was later discharged.

The accident occurred at M-138 Unionville Road 138 feet east of Dickerson Road at 11:40 p. m. There were no skid marks, and Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies concluded his account was correct.

The vehicle came to rest 137 feet from the eastern edge of M-138, damaging a lawn, tree and shrubs.

Another accident Thursday occurred on M-11 Bay City-Forestville Road, one-tenth mile west of Colling Road. A car driven by Lee Ann Bills, 18, 2816 S. Brown Road, Owendale, was hit in the rear by a car driven by James Francis Gokey Jr., 33, Loomis Road, Unionville.

Both were heading west on M-25 when the accident occurred. The Bills car landed in a ditch.

Gokey was cited for failure to stop in assured clear distance.

Erla's draw bye in "C" tourney

Erla's has drawn a bye in the Class C District softball tournament at Port Huron which opens this week end and will play the winner of McDonald's and MacTaggart's Saturday evening at 8:30 p. m.

There are just three teams in the tourney and the teams play a two-game and out elimination. If Erla's win Saturday they will play at 8 p. m. Sunday. If they lose the game will be played at 5 p. m.

If necessary, the final game will be played Sunday at 9:30 p. m.

All games will be played at Pine Grove Park.

Meanwhile, Erla's was to have tuned up for the tourney with a game at Mayville early in the week.

POOL OPENS

June and the algae had gotten its start then, although they scrubbed everyday with a brush.

The wading pool cannot be reopened because to repair it would necessitate completely rebuilding it. Up to the time it was closed running water was put through it constantly, but it was chlorinated by hand. State requires that the chlorine be circulated with the water.

To close the pool and reopen it cost about $1000, Blades said. Most of that was in man power expenses. About $100 was spent on the new chlorinator.

The inspectors will be back after the season is over, Blades said, at which time everything will be inspected. When Coyer came this time he did not examine the bath house or the heater.

After this complete inspection the cost of meeting all the requirements will be determined and a course of action decided upon.

The closing of the pool is just one of many incidents where the village fails to meet state requirements, Blades said.

The inspection several months ago by the Bureau of Safety and Regulations of the state department of labor resulted in about $450 worth of repairs or purchases.

The bench grinder was gotten rid of because it was deemed too dangerous; a certain type of safety helmet was bought, and the workers must now wear them under certain specified conditions; and a railing around the Imhoff Tank at the water treatment plant had been bought. This last cost $300 alone and had been that way since 1936.

FAIR HISTORY

delighting the crowds with the animals' talented antics.

It was also a time to compare horses with the annual horse races and later on in years the residents were thrilled to fireworks.

The fairs lasted for about 40 years and were dropped perhaps because as the village got bigger and county fairs were organized, interest in local fairs slowly died.

But tradition never completely dies and so in 1935, the fairs were revived, this time bearing a new name and month -- the Cass City Homecoming held in August.

The Chamber of Commerce was the key instigator to the revival with few changes in the events. Tradition was only altered.

There were horse pulling, bands, dancing, a stock show, an amateur hour, parades and fireworks.

In 1935, there was an all-star game between the Huron-Tuscola League and the Colored Buicks of Pontiac.

The weather was still the finest and crowds were record breaking.

A swimming pool had since been added to the park and a calliope was played for the first time in 1951. McConkey's Jewelers made a dramatic gift giving demonstration that year as an airplane flew over dropping packages on the park.

Midway rides were added and floats and queen turned homecoming into a pageant.

The 12th annual Homecoming was held in 1961 and it marked the last such event until 1971. Homecoming has turned into the Western Round-up with rides, games, dancing, food, horse pulling and water battles. Although it will be a first for many area residents, Cass City's tradition continues, altered just a bit by time and people.

Little League all-stars to play 2 games

Managers of the two all-star Cass City Little League teams announced this week that the double header against Elkton will start at 1 p. m. Saturday.

The games will be one of the features of the Western Round-up at the Cass City recreational park and will wind up the season for the Little Leaguers.

The all-star teams are composed of four players from each of the six teams in the league.

Too many people use abuse as a substitute for logic.

Catholics up lead in Church League

All that is left in the Church League are the rained out games and as the season winds up the defending champion Catholics are perched securely on top of the standings with a 7-1 record.

The league leaders added to their margin this week with a victory over Ellington-Nazarene Tuesday, Aug. 3, while Deford and Cass City Methodists were losing.

Paul Bliss hurled the victory for the Catholics over Ellington as his teammates slugged their way to a big lead and coasted to the win.

In the second game, Church of Christ knocked off second place Colwood, 12-6. Don Englehart tossed the win and Dave Smith was charged with the loss. Lee Hartel and Englehart crashed home runs for the winners.

Thursday the Methodists edged Owen-Gage, 4-1, as veteran Elden Stoutenburg chalked up another victory. Gary DeVore took the loss.

In the nightcap, the Baptist rolled over Snover-Laing, 13-3.

Gary Mellendorf pitched a one-hitter for the winners and Gene Dorman took the loss. Elwyn Helwig and Lee Taylor

FINAL PROGRAM EVENTS SCHEDULED

A treasure hunt Thursday, Aug. 12, and an All-Events Day, Aug. 14, will climax the Cass City Recreational summer program.

The treasure hunt will begin at 2 p. m. at the elementary school gym for children 15 and under.

All-Events Day will begin at 1 p. m. and will feature races, ball tosses, a watermelon battle and penny scramble in the pool.

The pool will remain open until Aug. 29 and will then be open on the weekends if weather permits.

collected three hits each.

Friday Colwood got back on the winning track with a 9-7 decision over the Methodist who saw their winning streak cracked. D. Smith tossed the win and Stoutenburg took the loss.

In the second game, Ken Martin tossed a shutout to lead the Lutherans to an easy 10-0 decision over Deford. Gary Kelley took the loss. The game was marked by two inside the park home runs. Martin hit for the circuit with the bases loaded.

Police seek youths on driving charge

A Cass City youth was apprehended Sunday, Aug. 8, for the breaking and entering of a Cass City home with the intent to commit a larceny.

Phillip A. Wright, 20, of the Cass City Hotel will appear in Circuit Court Monday, Aug. 23, on the charge. He was arraigned in District Court Monday, Aug. 9, before Judge Richard Kern. Bond, which was set at $4,000, was not posted.

The youth apparently entered the home through an unlocked garage door where he attempted to open a safety deposit box that was in one of the bedrooms.

Hearing a noise, the youth fled by way of the front door. He was spotted by a neighbor leaving the house.

He was later picked up by local police and after questioning admitted to the charge.

Wright was on probation at the time for breaking and entering some 13 houses which he committed a year ago.

Police are also investigating the malicious destruction of several Cass City residents' lawns.

One case in circuit court

Michael Duane Jobson of Sheridan Road, Vassar, was arraigned before Circuit Court Judge James P. Churchill Tuesday, Aug. 10.

He stood mute and a plea of not guilty was entered for him to a charge of resisting an officer. A pre-trial is set for Sept. 7.

He appeared before District Court Judge Richard Kern July 23, when bond was set at $300. The incident occurred April 30 against Henry Morton of the Millington police department when he was investigating an accident.
