Not many women in area have abortions

Area doctors do not favor pending abortion bill

By KIT McMILLION It is difficult to determine exactly how many women from Tuscola county seek abortions, and it is even more difficult to try to estimate how many go to other states or have them done illegally.

According to the area doctors and health and social welfare officials, there isn't much of a problem of illegal abortion or of traveling to other states from Tuscola county.

It is enlightening, though, that, according to a Jan. 26 story in the Detroit News, at least 30,000 of the 150,000 women who got abortions in New York within six months after the law there was liberalized were from Michigan.

Dr. J. H. Ballard of Cass City said he occasionally has women ask him about abortions. He said he tells them that it is illegal in Michigan and that he does not perform them. "It doesn't seem to be as frequent now as it used to be. Several years ago it was about once a week or so, but now it's about once a month or less," he said.

"Many of them are desperate women," he continued. They are older women who do not want any more children; they're often middle aged and many times pregnant for the 5th or 6th time.

He explained that part of the diminishing number may be because women simply go to New York on their own or the wider use of birth control. Another area doctor said he thought the number of abortions has remained about the same, which he said is about 3 in 6 months. He said he'll give patients information about New York, but tells them he doesn't do abortions.

A caseworker for the county said that "off the top of her head" she thought that they had had about 3 requests in the past 6 months. These are low income persons, and they are told the county can't help them.

A Caro doctor told about the same story, that he had 5 requests in the past year, but he tells women that he does not do it and that it is illegal. He said he refers them to agencies in New York or to the Michigan Clergy for Problem Pregnancy in Detroit. The question of legalizing abortion drew another set of responses. While some were in favor of the present bill, many hedged a little and said they were in favor of some reforms, but not all the bill proposes "I may be old fashioned, but I don't think it should be legalized as it is in New York, where they can get them with no strings attached. I think for sound med-of the mother is endangered or because the infant may not be perfectly healthy, or for certain psychiatric reasons, abortion could be legalized,' said Ballard.

Said another doctor: "I don't want demand abortions. I couldn't do it in my own conscience, but I would have to weigh each case individually. think I would do it if I knew the woman was exposed to the measles, because I have seen what happens." Another doctor said it should be legalized to some extent and thinks that each case should be considered individually by a board of perhaps a doctor, lawyer and psychiatrist Nevertheless, he said he thinks demand abortion is not far off.

The abortion bill still pending before the legislature says basically that pregnancy may be terminated by licensed physicians in a licensed hospital approved by the director of public health, that a woman must give her written consent, that she must be a resident of the state for 90 days prior to termination, that if she is single and under 18 she must have the written consent from her parent or legal guardian.

The bill also provides that the physician to perform the termination must determine and ical reasons, when the health certify that the period of gestadanger to the mental and physical health of the woman or (2) that a significant risk is that the fetus will be born with serious mental or physical impairment, defect or deficiency. Another clause says that "If the woman is married and living with her husband at the time of termination of pregnancy, the physician shall obtain the written consent of the husband prior to the termination. The physician shall make a reasonable and diligent effort to notify the husband and afford him an opportunity to give his written consent. In the event the physician is unable to locate and notify the husband his written consent shall not be required." There is also a provision to protect those medical employees who refuse to participate in an abortion proceeding.

The bill was passed in the Senate on March 11 by a vote of 20-17. It came into the House where it was assigned to the Committee on Social Services and Corrections, probably the least friendly towards it. It was passed out of committee without a recommendation to pass, and thus automatically tion at the time of termination became a tabled bill. should not exceed 90 days, or To bring it before the house when he determines and certifor consideration a majority of fies (1) that continuance of the members (56) must vote on such pregnancy would constitute a a motion. Only after that can significant risk of serious there be discussion and a vote on the bill.

Mrs. Paul Megge of rural Kingston township is a firm opponent of legal and liberal abortion. She became interested in it as a chairman of a church committee.

The mother of three children, she advocates responsible sex and birth control.

There are many loop holes in the proposed law, she said, and cited the determination of the physician that the pregnancy was no more than 90 days is faulty because women lie and doctors are not able to tell accurately whether a woman is 89 or 91 days pregnant. "This turns the bill into a demand abortion bill," she said. The clause referring to the written consent of the husband and prospective father is another flaw, she says. "What is a reasonable effort?"

The present law says that a woman may get an abortion only if her health is in danger. The advocates of a more liberal law say that a girl or woman should not have to bear the child of incest or rape. "There is a series of 5 hormone shots you can take within 48 hours of intercourse that will prevent pregnancy," Mrs. Megge retaliated,

She told of three public hearings she went to on the bill where she heard men testify that they were in favor of abortion because they did not want added financial burden.

"近 you can't respect life, what is there left?" she asked. In response to the argument that the unborn infant may be deformed, she said: "If you need to be perfect to be formed, the corollary is that you need to be perfect to live,"

She stresses the need for education of responsible sex and birth control.

As the situation is now, many women are disappointed that they cannot get abortions. The doctors said they don't know what happens to patients after they leave their office. Some return with minor complaints that could result from abortion. Some are not so lucky, Ballard said he recently had a young girl who came in suffering from a mental breakdown after having an abortion in New York. She told him she didn't know the fetus would be alive when it was aborted. and she ended up in a hospital for a month.

There are four methods of abortion. The easiest to perform is the D and C (dilation and curettage), which is easily done in the first tri-mester or 90 days of pregnancy. The doctor scrapes away the lining of the uterus after dilating the birth canal, Vacuum extraction is another method that can be used to empty the uterus in the first 9 weeks.

If the pregnancy is after the 14th week a saline solution is injected into the uterus, which kills the fetus and causes the mother to abort within 24 hours. Or a hysterotomy, similar to a Caesarean section, can be performed, but this is major surgery.

Complications sometimes occur, such as hemorrhage, infection, perforation of the uterus or even sterility. Mrs. Megge calls this lucrative business. An abortion in New York varies from $300 to $500 usually, and according to the July 19 issue of Newsweek magazine has earned doctors there $100,000 to $150,-000 extra the past year.

The abortion debate has called many people to produce evidence favoring their position, which is still of interest. Some call abortion murder. The time of quickening, usually ascribed to about the fifth month or 120th day, is the time when the fetus is said to be alive, when its independent movements can be felt. Proponents of legalized abortion declare that the fetus is not alive up to this point, There is, however, evidence that refers to the fetus as being alive before that time. The unborn is recognizable as a human by the 6th week of pregnancy.

There are also legal considerations. In the common law of property and inheritance, an unborn child is regarded as a legal entity from the moment of conception and acquires legal rights at that time. In cases of injuries sustained while unborn, most states now allow for collections and classify the unborn individual as separate from the mother.

-Under-the-United States-Constitution, the due process clause guarantees that no person should be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of the law. Proponents say that a woman should be able to have the right to govern her own body and the right to bear children or not bear them.

Other arguments are that the present laws discriminate against poor women because the rich can now go to New York where they can get an abortion, and that the result of an unwanted pregnancy is an unwanted child.

While abortion doesn't seem to be a problem in Tuscola county, it is an issue that requires each person to decide for himself how he feels.

Everyone these days seems to be writing question and answer columns. You know the kind - the writer asks the question, then answers it. Nothing ventured, nothing gained. Q. - You took the easy way when you sided with the churches on the question of beer at the park, didn't you? And do you enjoy being arabble rouser?

A, - No. Really the easy way would have been to ignore the question completely. I don't call it rabble rousing and it's one of the harder parts of weekly editing. But like any job there are parts you do because they should be done and this is one of them in my field. A newspaper can't always confine its editorials to the endorsement of mother love and flag saluting. Q. - Is football as a high school participant sport dying? A. - Not dying, but not as robust as it once was. That's especially true in Cass City. but it's also a trend in Thumb B Conference high schools, and probably throughout the State. Just take a look at the athletes not reporting and it's apparent. Q. - If what you say is so. how come more persons come out to see the football teams than any other sport in Cass City?

Vote Monday to decide fate of new Career Center

Tuscola county and Sebewaing area residents will go to the polls Monday in their respective school district to decide the fate of a proposed Career Center, a vocationaltechnical school.

In order to make the new facility proposed for erection in the Caro area a reality, voters will be asked to ap-prove an open end 2.5 mills ($2.50 per $1,000 valuation) tax levy.

The levy will continue as long as the school operates. However, cost to taxpayers will not be the full 2.5 mills. Presently levied is .3 of a mill for a building for the Intermediate school building at Caro. The building is paid for and the .3 of a mill will not be levied next year. If the Center is approved the net increase in explained that it would not mean a reduction in staff but could perhaps enable the school to get by without adding a teacher as the student population grows. While the bonding proposition is the important one, the voters will actually be asked to approve two proposals, Proposal I gives the district the right to establish the Center and Proposal II authorizes the bonding for $2,800,000 for defraying all or any part of the cost of erecting and equipping the Center.

A. - I didn't say that interest in football was waning. Just interest in PARTICIPATING in football is on the decline.

 Q_i – Is the reason for this too many cars and too much money in the pockets of the students?

A. - Partially. Another is that the athlete is no longer the student hero he once was. Q. - It seems to me that there is more breaking and entering and more crime in Cass City than there was as little as five years ago. Care to comment? A. - Yes. Our police force has been forced into two-man patrols on week ends and has the largest staff ever and still could use another officer if the budget could stand it. The days of never locking the door and carefree confidence on the streets is going the way of the dodo bird here. Q. - What do you feel is the direction we should be heading to keep Cass City with a pool?

A. - Ideally, what we should have is an indoor pool attached to the school. But a facility like this means an investment approaching $1/2 million and I can't see how we could raise the money.

If granted that this is out of reach, I think the very least that we can have is a new outdoor pool. Tom Proctor's plan presented several years ago looks pretty good to me now. Q. - I suppose that you're going to say that you knew this all along and that the only reason we don't have the pool is that no one would listen? A. - No. When our present pool was operating I wasn't for a new one, but I should have been.

Q. - Is that the only mistake you ever made? A. - How did you know?

Another facet of the plan is adult courses. Industry especially is continually sending employees to schools for advanced training in job skills.

June is traditionally the month for weddings. But not for the Cass City High School class of 1969. The month for this class is September. . .or rather Sept. 11. That's the date that three girls in the class will be married. The three: Kathleen Turner, Barbara Ballard and Karen Kerbyson.

Robert Tuckey is big, big, big. He's also good natured which is lucky for Eldon Stoutenburg and John Haire.

Tuckey spent Friday afternoon driving six steel fence posts into the rock-hard clay next to the track so that a rope could be strung to keep the spectators away from the performers in the horse-pulling contest at the Western Round-up. Friday evening we were called in to help with the fence post driving for the other side of the track.

When we saw the position of the posts Stoutenburg and I agreed that the pull used to be on the grass. So we promptly pulled the driven posts to place them in the "proper spot". The posts we pulled were on the ground when Clair Auslander breezed in and told us positively that the pull used to be on the track.

Tuckey didn't say a word and even helped us pound them back in again.

Stoutenburg and I are still convinced that at one time the contest was held on grass and another old-time former village employee, Dean Toner, agrees,

It's hard to argue with Auslander about horse pulling contests. He's been at it in Cass City, off and on, since 1935. The reason he says he knows the pull was on the track before is he can remember veteran teamsters saying that it was the finest place in the world for a pull.

Is Cass City starting another string? For 12 years the village staged an annual Home-coming for one day. And for 12 straight years rain never interfered. Saturday was bright and clear for the first annual Western Round-up,

Of course, the way the weather has been this year it's not surprising that it didn't rain Saturday. In our area this summer it has scarcely rained at all.

OF A LIFETIME

As old as childhood itself is the game of surprise.

"Close your eyes, Mommy!" And Jimmy places his precious gift on the table. "Now, open your eyes, Mommy!" And Jimmy watches rapturously for the flash of surprise on Mother's face.

But surprise isn't always a game. Parents whose eyes were closed to their own and their children's deepest needs have often beheld the shambles which religious indifference can make of promising youth.

The essential duty of parents is to provide thorough religious instruction for their children . . . and its natural ally, parental example. The Church is enriching the spiritual life of millions of families. But your Jimmy's opportunity for religious training and a Christian home depends on how much you SEE of his soul's need - and yours.

Harvest tips for

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN

corn silage

For best corn silage harvest at 35 per cent dry matter (DM) or 65 per cent moisture, use an air-tight silo, do a good job of compaction and chop your corn plant as fine as possible, states Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension Agent.

These guides come from Michigan State University scientists who claim that available silage losses can be put into two classes: seepage and spoilage.

The higher the dry matter, the lower the seepage. Anything over 70 per cent moisture in an upright silo will have a seepage loss, usually about 10 per cent dry matter and consisting of ash, organic acids and some nitrogenous material. All except ash is material the animal can use.

Spoilage losses will vary with the tightness of the silo, type of cover put over the pack and degree of compaction. These losses will run 7 to 10 per cent of the dry matter.

So. . .start harvesting when kernels are in the early dent to late dent stage and finish harvest as soon as possible. At this time, dry matter of the plant is about 30 to 40 per cent while the kernels will run from 50 to 65 per cent.

To eliminate excessive seenage dry matter in tower silos should be about 35 per cent; in bunkers, 30 per cent.

Another plus from harvesting at this stage; yield per acre increases until the plant reaches approximately 35 per cent DM or until the first killing frost. Then it levels off for 5 to 10 days (depending on the extent of frost, wind and rain) and begins declining at a rapid rate. That's because it's losing leaves and tassels and, in the case of lodging, the entire stalk.

Research at Michigan State and Ohio shows digestibility of protein is maximum at the 30 to 40 per cent DM level. In two feeding trials at MSU, steers gained faster and required less feed to produce 100 pounds of gain when fed 28 per cent DM silage than when fed 48 per cent silage.

Corn silage should be chopped at 1/4 to 3/8 inch irrespective of the stage of maturity or DM content. Fine chopping improves palatability and fer mentation, increases the amount of dry matter stored per cubic foot (compaction) and reduces the amount of oxidated losses during storage.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

The fellers at the country store Saturday night got to talking about some of the words we use and how some of em jest don't fit our style of living. The feller that runs the store said the first word needing some work was "housewife." He said that word was used way back when wimmen's place was in the house. He figgered nowadays the word fer them is "carwife." Ed Doolittle said he couldn't judge by his old lady, cause she was good about the house, but from what he sees up and down the road, Ed said, he would agree with the feller that runs the store. It seems wimmen spend more time hauiing younguns around and going from one meeting to another than they do in the house, Ed said.

Actual, went on E:1, they is a lot of words that don't mean what they say. Fer instant, he said, a permanunt wave really is a temperary wave. And you got a little word like "fix," said Ed, that means you can do it or you're in it. And we git new ones all the time, Ed went on, like the feller that saw a friend when he got on the airplane, said "Hi, Jack" and they arrested him fer trying to make em fly him to Cuba. Course, broke in Clem Webster, you got some words that git it said fast. Clem said he had saw where scientists is working on a Z bomb. This is a bomb that blows everthing to zero, And Clem recalls seeing a sign posted on some land near his place that said "No Huntin, No Fishin, No Nothin," and that don't leave no wrong meaning, he said. General speaking, said Ed, the Guvernment has more trouble saying what it means than anybody. When you hear a Congressman say they is looking fer "new revenue sources," you know they really is looking fer somepun new to put a tax on. And when you see where a project has been "referred to committee" you can figger its been buried. What you can be sure of is that taxes is like cutting the dog's tail off a inch at a time with the idee it's easier on the dog, was Ed's words. Clem said he had saw by the papers where the Guvernment is making meat packers call goat meat that, instead of chevon, which means goat meat. The packers claim they say chevon cause people won't buy stuff they know got goat meat in it.

That's the way it goes, allowed Clem, and he was waiting to see some of the things

But among immigrants to Hawaii -- most of them from our Northern states and from of Cass City. temperate parts of foreign countries -- the incidence was more than five times higher. In another paper Drs. Olivera-Rabiela, Rabiela-Cervantes, Feria-Velasco, Marquez-Padilla, and Gonzalez-Angulo, in Mexico, report on two cases of MS -- one, a woman of 65, and the other, a man of 20. PARK The doctors wrote up these cases because MS is extremely rare in Mexico City, and according to the doctors, is totally absent in young people living in tropical areas. A very interesting finding was that when the two Mexican patients died, and their brains were sectioned and carefully studied with the very powerful electron microscope, peculiar gravish plaques were found in several parts of the brain. The Mexican doctors say that their observations are similar to those reported by two other groups of men. This is a helpful finding, but we don't know what caused the plaques. The big thing is that if we can ever find out what is the factor that makes the geographical differences in the incidence of MS, we may begin to understand what the cause of the disease is. The National Multiple Scler-

Highway Fund collections are being distributed to Michigan counties, cities and villages, totaling $886,080 for Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties. The State Highway Commission reported that net receipts of the fund during April, May and June of 1971, amounted to $91,275,495, an increase of $4,129,009 or 4.7 per cent, compared to the same three months

Funds distributed to Cass City were $6,914, which was an increase of $144 over last year. Other villages to receive funds were Gagetown, $2,364; Kingston, $1,728; Owendale, $1,811, and Ubly, $3,064. The Motor Vehicle Highway Fund, which is made up of all state gasoline and diesel fuel taxes and license plate fees, is distributed after deduction of collection costs, 1.5 per cent of gasoline taxes to State Waterways Commission and other fixed costs.

The show was held at the High School Cafetorium following a buffet luncheon.

Sixty girls, women and children modeled the latest fashions for fall. Pre-school age children showed off the tots' clothes that were furnished by Ben Franklin Store, Snowmobile sufts were worn by Fred Hurlburt and his two girls, Heidi and Heather, and were provided by Kritzman's clothing store, The Clothes Closet presented its newest fall fashions. The products of home sewing were also modeled.

About 200 women and girls attended the show, the first ever held. Secretary Mary Albee said they hoped it would be an annual affair.

The co-opnursery has capacity for 20 and already has 3 on the waiting list. Anyone interested in being on the list should contact Mrs. Albee.

New controls in proposed zoning, subdivision ordinances

The proposed zoning and subdivision ordinances, which will be discussed at an open meeting Thursday evening, Aug. 19, at 8 p. m. in the Cultural Center, present a modern approach to village planning, ac-Superintendent cording to James Blades.

Each ordinance is related but will be considered separately by the village council, Public hearings will be scheduled at the next regular meet-

The proposed zoning ordinance is basically the same as the old one, although there are some important changes, including a new type of zoning district. The proposed subdivision ordinance is new because the village has not had one since Jan. 1, 1968, when the state regulations superseded the 1960 village ordinance. Under the proposed zoning ordinance, several areas of village land will be rezoned. Although the maps have not been available, they will be on display at the Thursday evening meeting. Blades said that the two blocks fronting on Main Street, between Oak and Sherman Streets, would be changed from small lot residential (RA-2) to commercial. They now contain business. Part of the northeast quadrant of the village will be rezoned RA-1 from RA-2, which means that any houses built on it would have to be built on larger lots as well as meet> ing several other specifications. Also several areas will be rezoned multiple residential (RC) near the apartments already in existence on Seeger Street and near the Hills and Dales subdivision. Parking regulations have also been amended in the new regulation so that many new categories have been developed. The old ordinance specified that there must be a certain number of parking spaces related to square footage area for each retail business unless excepted. The new regulations detail space so that it is related to the intensity of use, not square foot area and also list many more retail businesses as well as other possible uses.

A significant change in the code is the family dwelling parking. The new code specifies that there be two parking spaces provided for a single family dwelling, whereas the old ordinance requires only one space per single family dwell-

In general, less parking space is required under the proposal than under the old ordinance, tions. Blades said.

Another change pertaining to family dwellings is the raising of the minimum floor area per unit from 720 to 850 square feet for RA-2 single-family residences. The minimum yard set back is also increased from 20 to 25 feet.

The proposal is not retroactive, Blades stressed, "Anything that was legal before the new ordinance is legal after it," he said.

The proposed zoning type of Planned Residential (RP-1) is new. Its purpose is to permit development of a mixture of layout of trailer parks, access types of residential units, in and parking are set down, Mobile homes under the proposed accordance with a comprehensive plan establishing functional ordinance are designed to be placed in industrial districts use areas, density patterns and a fixed system of residential when they are not surrounded on more than three sides by collector streets.

Basically, anyone who would want to develop a piece of land would have to submit preliminary plans to the Planning Commission. If those were satisfactory, a final preliminary set would be submitted. Those would then have to be approved by the council.

There are provisions allowing for public hearings during the various stages. Also, certain state and county agencies must approve the plans, before they can be initiated.

There will be plat fees required for subdivision plans, They are $50 and $.75 per lot for a preliminary plat, and $50 and $1 per dwelling for the final plat. Other fees will be set by the council for the final plat, engineering review, municipal review, inspection and administration fees, attorney fees and water and sewer connections. Today, Blades says, he knows of no charge.

> Any-proposed-building or subdivision must meet all village requirements and be in accordance with the master plan. The water and sewer connections in subdivision developments are now and will be entirely paid by the proprietor.

The ordinances have been on review at the library and municipal building the past week. The zoning ordinance has been changed in 1947 and 1960 since its original adoption in

Explosion wrecks McIntosh home

A Shabbona man remains in fair condition at Hills and Dales Hospital recovering from burns received when LP gas exploded in his home.

Floyd McIntosh, 31, of 5583 Shabbona Road, received first, second and third degree burns over his body, when a spark from a sump pump set off an explosion that twisted his house off its foundation Wednesday night, Aug. 11,

Mrs. McIntosh and four children, who were in the house at the time of the blast, told her husband she smelt gas when he returned from work about 9 p. m.

checking, McIntosh On smelled gas in the basement. He shut it off and began opening windows in the house and a back door to allow for ventilation

About 20 minutes later he placed a fan at the top of the stairs and then went down to the basement. He told State Police that as he reached the basement, the sump pump started, throwing a spark which ignited the gas.

Mrs. McIntosh said that her husband then crawled out of the basement while she gathered the children and sought help from neighbors.

The explosion caused the north and east wall of the house to be pushed back eight inches and a back porch to be blown off the house.

It's probably not going to make anyone feel better, but Michigan taxpayers should at least know that they're not alone in paying higher taxes this year. For example, the financially hard pressed state of New York raised its sales tax from 3 to 4 per cent. That means in New York City a total sales tax of 7 per cent is collected on purchases.

Texas also raised its sales tax to 4 per cent, equalling Michigan's rate.

 The cigarette tax has received most attention recently. Just last year, Michigan's tax was raised to 11 cents per pack. But with the rates being adopted in other states that appears very moderate.

been drinking. The State Highway Department says an analysis of all the "wrong-way" accidents which occurred in Michigan from 1966 through 1970 showed that between 50 and 75 per cent involved drivers who had been drinking. A total of 219 wrong-way accidents were reported on state freeways during the period. They claimed 50 lives. That total does not include the nine persons who died recently near Grand Blanc south of Flint in the worst accident ever to occur on Michigan highwavs.

A large portion of the accidents are caused by drivers who enter a freeway on an exit ramp, says the department. Others occur when vehicles cross a median or, and this is very rare, go the wrong way when leaving a freeway rest area.

The building of median guard rails has helped prevent some wrong way crashes, but no practical method has been developed yet to prevent vehicles from entering exit ramps, though

Catholics win season Name sponsors for Cass City title; play-offs start Little League

Regular fans of the Cass City Little League were impressed this year by the spanking new uniforms that each of the six teams in the league were outfitted with this year.

Although there were no advertisements appearing on the uniforms this year, the uniforms were made available by various businesses and community organizations.

Among the businesses were Auten Motor Sales, Cass City State Bank, B. A. Calka, Ben Franklin, Wood Rexall Drugs, Croft-Clara Lumber, Inc. and Anrod Screen Cylinder Co. Among the groups helping pay the uniform and league expenses were Community Chest, Gavel Club and Rotary Club.

Each of the sponsors will receive plaques from the league in recognition of their donations to the league.

The new uniforms were on display during the Little League All-Star game Saturday at the Western Round-up.

The Stars played a team composed of All-Stars from a league in Gagetown and Huron county communities. The result was a tie The visitors won the first game and lost the nightcap.

The regular season race in the Cass City Church League is history and the question now is can the Catholics repeat as regular season and play-off champions of the loop? They are defending titlists in the regular season race and post season play-offs. Last week they clinched the regular season toga for the second year in a row and ended the year with a 10-1 record, two games ahead of second place Deford.

While the Catholics will reign as favorites in the play-offs which started Monday they are by no means lead pipe cinches to win. Any one of a half dozen teams in the league could upset them. 9, Church of Christ

Erla's lose in district

Erla's got off to a rousing start with a 14-inning decision over Big Mac in the District Class C tournament at Port Huron Saturday but the victory proved to be a costly one. The reason is that Al Bosch, Erla's premier chucker, hurled the distance Saturday, allowing just three hits and striking out

It was the first game that provided the fireworks for Cass City fans.
