

FROM THE

Editor's Corner

What's your hang-up?

My guess is that if you think about it somewhere back in the remote recesses there is something that makes you uncomfortably uneasy if not out and petrified.

My wife can't stand even a picture of a snake, let alone the real thing. A girl in the office was visibly shaken because a praying mantis landed on her back. . . how many of you are afraid of mice, or bats, or rats, or dogs, or cats, or squirrels or any of an endless parade of small harmless animals.

None of these cause even the remote hint of a nervous tremor?

Well, how about looking down from a high building, or confinement in a closet. Personally, I'm mildly neurotic about jumping into an elevator without an escape hatch or locking the door of a small windowless room if the hinges aren't on the inside. I'll do it but I don't like it.

Every time I think about those hordes of persons stuck in New York City elevators for a day when the electricity went out I get the cold shakes.

For me, that would have been the end.

There are theories that such unreasoning fears date back to some childhood trauma. If that's the case with me it's well buried.

As far as I know I was never sent into the closet with my face to the wall as a kid and I never felt any concern until the last 20 years or so.

If you're feeling superior about all of this read on.

Maybe you have a little trouble sleeping during a violent electrical storm. If a tornado watch is on do you stay nervously alert and close to your radio or TV until it's over?

I don't care for closed rooms but thunder and lightning lulls me to sleep and I always did want to see what a tornado looks like.

Do you read the daily horoscope, even if you don't "believe" it? Do you cross your fingers, knock on wood, pick 4-leaf clovers, gather horseshoes, avoid black cats and walking under ladders or stay home on Friday the 13th?

What are all these superstitions except mild forms of anxiety peaking out from under layers of civilized veneer?

Superstitious fears are as unreasonable as fears of small, harmless animals or small rooms with closed doors. Look deep enough and everyone likely has one or more.

The odd thing about all these fears is that for someone not afflicted they seem mildly ludicrous, if not ridiculous.

It's a very human failing to laugh at others while completely ignoring a different symptom of the same affliction. The next time you are tempted to hoot and laugh when a lady jumps on a chair when a mouse walks by, better hold it.

You probably are really only laughing at yourself.

Career Center voted down in light turn-out

A light voter turnout voted down the proposed career center for the Tuscola Intermediate School District Monday, Aug. 23.

A total of 4549 votes was cast, with seven spoiled.

Proposal I, which asked if the intermediate school district should adopt the provisions of the state school code to permit a career center, went down with 1731 yes votes to 2811 no votes.

Proposal II, which requested a 2.5 mill levy, or $2,800,000 per year, for an indefinite period to defray the cost of the center, was turned down with 1675 yes votes to 2874 no votes.

The vote in the Cass City School District was very close: 208 yes to 212 no for Proposal I and 202 yes to 219 no, Proposal II. That was about 14.5% of the approximately 2900 registered voters in the school district.

The proposals passed in both Mayville and Caro. The vote in Mayville was 190-159 for Proposal I and 186-165 for Proposal II. Caro voted 433-368 for Proposal I and 427-386 for Proposal II.

The vote was strongly negative in the other districts. Akron-Fairgrove: 152-408 for Proposal I and 146-412 for Proposal II, with three spoiled.

Kingston: 78-109 for Proposal I and 77-110 for Proposal II.

Millington: 276-465 for Proposal I and 233-488 for Proposal II.

Reese: 70-386 for Proposal I and 67-388 for Proposal II.

Unionville - Sebawaing: 147-425 for Proposal I and 141-423 for Proposal II.

Vassar: 177-279 for Proposal I and 176-283 for Proposal II.

Don Crouse, superintendent of the Cass City schools, said the vote shows that the people are willing to operate under the present system, which includes some vocational schooling, but not as much as a new center would have had.

John Kirk, president of the Tuscola Intermediate School District, said that the board will review alternatives for a career center the next few months.

"We are firmly convinced that the continuing need exists for the career center, as it will be able to offer direct benefits to the 65% of our high school students not going on to college," Kirk said.

Township opens Fire hall bids

Bids for the new Elkland fire station and township hall were opened Tuesday night during a meeting of the township supervisors at the Cass City Cultural Center.

Following the opening and reading of bids, the supervisors moved into a closed meeting to review the bids received. Awarding of the bids will be made Tuesday, Aug. 31, according to Supervisor Maynard McConkey.

McConkey said that the three lowest bidders will be contacted and asked to submit another price, eliminating several costs included in the original bid. Seven contractors placed bids on the general construction of the building with five of those contractors giving bids for the total construction as specified by the architects.

Bids on proposal "A" for the general construction, covered by bonds, were placed by: Tyler Jenkins, Inc., $107,375; Charles C. Englehardt, $92,400; Clements and Kirk Construction, $91,000; Serenus Johnson and Son, $94,425; Booms Construction, $79,000; Guardian Builders, $84,156; and R. C. Hendrick, $104,400.

Bids on proposal "D" for the total construction were: R. C. Hendrick, $146,245; Tyler Jenkins, Inc., $142,280; Clements and Kirk Construction, $120,500; Booms Construction, $114,000; and Guardian Builders, $119,625.

Proposal "B" for the plumbing, heating and ventilation received bids covered by bonds by: Davanay, $23,968; James Johnson, $28,235; Evans and Thomas Corporation, $34,680; and Goyatt Heating, $30,900.

Proposal "C" for the electrical work had bids covered by bonds from: Franklin Electric, $8,831; Wagner and Paten, $11,593; and Local Electric, $13,390. Atherton Electric also placed a bid not covered by a bond for $11,139.

The funding of the building was approved by voters in a special election July 12. The vote called for one mill levy for the next five years which will bring $64,000 to be added to $25,000 that the township already has on hand from the present millage.

Area ripped by storm causing extensive damage

By Pat Drouin

High winds and thunder storms ripped across the Cass City area Sunday evening, Aug. 22, leaving trees uprooted, electrical and telephone wires down and unestimated amounts of damage to area homes, cars, barns and farm machinery.

According to the sheriff's department in Caro, the wide range storm hit hardest in the northern part of Tuscola county including the Cass City, Gagetown, Deford, Unionville, Decker and Colwood area.

Most damage was limited to property owners in the area and the storm caused "mostly general havoc," according to sheriff officials.

Will Holland of Detroit Edison reported that crews had worked through Sunday and Monday nights to repair broken wires caused by fallen trees.

Some residents were without service from 5:30 p. m. Sunday until 3 a. m. Monday morning. By 1 p. m. Monday most service had been restored as crews from Ann Arbor and Huron county were brought in to triple the number of men working to repair lines.

There were, however, some isolated spots in Cass City that were reported without electricity until early Tuesday morning.

Falling trees brought down telephone wires and in four or five cases whole cables were downed according to Bob Buttery of General Telephone.

Some 400 residents had been without service and as of Monday afternoon half of the residents were still without service. Buttery stated that it may take three to four days to restore things to normal.

The tornado-like winds left four trailers overturned and seven barns between Caro and Gagetown were reported to have been blown down, according to sheriff officials.

Countless tree limbs crashed down on houses, damaging roofs, knocking over television antennas and breaking windows.

Whole trees were uprooted by the winds, including one next to Frances Kline's house at 6624 Church St. that literally split and tore the kitchen away from the remainder of the house.

Extensive damage by the high winds was also reported by Mrs. Rosemary Patera at 3137 Cemetery Road. Three-fourths of the barn was blown away, 20 feet of an 80 foot steel shed was taken off, the door of the shed landed in a tree and a circular granary was blown an eighth-of-a-mile down the road.

Mrs. Patera said damage was done to the roof of her home, and three huge trees were literally uprooted, just missing the house. A beam from the barn went through a car being driven by Roger Parrish with Betty Jo Agar as a passenger, breaking the windshield and cutting the two passengers.

The high winds caused approximately $5,000 worth of damage to the back end of the sausage department's roof at Erla's Food Center and Packing Inc. The roof of the connecting building of the Cass City Industrial was also damaged by the high winds.

A plate glass window was also blown out of the Hahn

Ken Churchill of Deford received a double dose of the storm when two trees toppled over on two of his sons' cars. Damage to the cars may be total, according to Churchill.

The high winds caused a bell from a Colwood church steeple to be knocked down, hitting a car occupied by two persons.

A parsonage at the Novesta Baptist Church, which was unoccupied at the time, was also hit by a tree.

Firemen get food

The Cass City firemen got a bonus for their work Sunday evening following the storm that ripped trees and wires down throughout the city.

Dick Erla brought them some food.

"I just took it upon myself. I figured it was the least I could do for them. Most of them missed their dinner like I did, and I thought they'd be hungry," he said.

He brought them meat, cheese and bread so they could make sandwiches.

The firemen worked until about 1 a. m. checking fallen trees and electric wires all over the city.

Erla said that he had not been influenced by a recent column in the Chronicle, but thought the firemen should get some credit for their work. They appreciated it a lot.

THIS CAR WAS badly crushed and an electric wire torn down when a large tree crashed over at 6315 N. Main Street.

Credit union offers members convenience, informality

The Cass City Federal Credit Union doesn't look like what it is.

It isn't coldly formal, it isn't particularly dignified and the chances are, if you didn't know, you'd walk in and out without ever realizing that a small scale financial institution is operating there every Tuesday and Friday.

In Cass City Federal Credit's office is a slightly worn desk tucked in the corner of the Steelworkers' Union hall.

Right now FCU and its sister organization, Walbro Credit Union, are not likely to make big waves in the community's financial seas.

Walbro, organized for employees only in 1957, and FCU have combined assets of about $100,000 in comparison to local banks which have combined assets of $15 1/2 million.

Still as one local banker put it, the credit unions are competition. For some borrowers they answer a need.

On the open days in the office in the Hahn building on West

Main Street most of the borrowers are looking for small loans.

And since all of the borrowers have to be members most appear to have a close feeling towards FCU.

They use the money they borrow for special unforeseen needs, for household appliances or for "luxury" recreational items.

The loans are small. . . . Mrs. Kathy Martin, FCU manager here, says that there isn't enough money available for lending to make larger loans. We've only made one loan for a new car, she said, simply because it would take too much of our cash away.

Art Calster, Cass City, is one of the estimated 120 area residents to use FCU services yearly. He's had several small loans because he feels that the FCU offers "reasonable interest rates".

Another is Mrs. Elizabeth Kinney, a General Cable worker from Harbor Beach, who says that she borrows from FCU for convenience and low interest rates. "It makes it much easier for me," Mrs. Kinney said, "as the money is automatically taken from my check to repay the loan."

Whether or not the interest rate is actually low depends on who wants the money and what they want it for.

Bank rates vary with the credit rating of the person and the use of the money and could be lower or higher than the standard 12 per cent per year charged by credit unions.

It's sure that for most borrowers the credit union way is the easy way. That's because of automatic payroll deductions that take payments from workers' checks before they are issued.

After the loan is approved the money automatically flows back to the credit union as long as the borrower is working.

Collections are by payroll deduction handled without charge by participating companies.

Another advantage for members using credit unions is free insurance on loans, up to $10,000. Investments are insured to $20,000.

One injury was reported from Hills and Dales Hospital due to the storm.

David Keller, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Keller of Uby, was struck by lightning while milking cows. The youth was taken to the hospital where he was treated for arm burns and shock.

Although residents were busy cleaning up the mess Monday, insurance companies were even busier handling claims.

As of 10:15 a. m., the Harris-Hampshire Insurance Agency had received approximately 30 calls during the first several hours of business.

Roger Root Insurance Company had received some seven calls, State Farm, 15, and Pete Rlenstra, approximately 30 calls during the first several hours of business.

Sam Wallis of the Farm Bureau reported some 30 calls had been received, which meant an estimated $300,000 worth of damage in the Cass City and surrounding area, he said.

The general clean-up continues. Cass City residents may move limbs and trees out to the curb to be picked up by village maintenance workers, Superintendent James Blades announced.

The men will be hauling the debris away all this week and next and residents are asked to cut up the wood for easier handling. Superintendent Blades also asked residents not to burn leaves or branches on the street.

The sanitary landfill will be open all day, everyday, for those who wish to haul away their own debris.

FERRIS WARE, township clerk, left, and Maynard McConkey, supervisor, examined opened bids for the new Elkland township fire station and hall during a meeting Tuesday night at the Cultural Center. Final decision on the bids will be announced Aug. 31 in order to begin immediate construction of the new building.

by Congress. So don't wait.

If you've been holding off on that new car because you're not sure how the proposed repeal of the excise tax affects you, we've got great news.

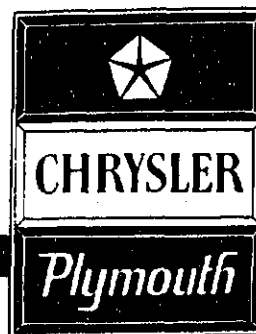

We have been informed that if Congress repeals the tax, retail purchasers who have taken delivery of new cars between the effective date of retroactivity (President Nixon proposed August 16, 1971) and the date on which the tax is repealed will receive refunds from the Government through Chrysler Corporation of the amount of any excise tax included in the price of the new cars they purchased.

The refund will be made automatically and won't require a claim on your part.

It is estimated that refunds will average approximately $200. This, of course, is only an average, with actual amounts depending on the model you select.

down from $40, at Genesee Valley," my wife answered. "It was a wonderful bargain. And then I found these shoes. . . ."

Thus is World War 3 forgotten. When I write things like this, my wife always accuses me of "putting women down." Not true. I'm only reporting the facts, the way I learned in journalism school. And it is a fact that women are obsessed by clothing.

I grew up with 4 sisters who would trade sweaters with total strangers rather than wear the same outfit to school twice in the same month.

Now I have 2 daughters who live apart but visit each other's closets regularly. They spend entire weekends simply trying on each other's clothes. If men behaved that way, their wives would write worried letters to Ann Landers (Dear Ann: Oswald's brother Jack visited us last night and he spent 3 hours trying on Oswald's t-shirts. Do you think I should have a talk with my minister. . . .)

But the strangest thing is when my wife appears in a new dress.

"That's a new dress," I say. "Don't be silly," she says, "I've had it for months."

For the first few years of our marriage, this fooled me. Then I gradually became convinced that I couldn't be wrong that many times. So I added a question:

"Have you ever worn it before?" I ask.

"No," she admits. And so continues my education in Species Female. It turns out that Mabel doesn't buy a new dress because she needs it. She buys it because she went shopping with a friend, or because there's a sale, or because the store is air conditioned, or because her husband lost $200 playing poker, or because it's 2 p. m. Monday and yesterday was Sunday. Mabel then hangs the dress up in her closet and may not wear it for months, even years. In fact, she may never wear it at all. It may go out of style, just hanging there.

This is difficult for most men to understand. When I buy a new suit, I wear it home from the store. I don't take it off for days. I want everyone to know that I could finally afford a new suit. I wear it because I don't have anything else to wear. Otherwise, I wouldn't have bought it. That makes sense, doesn't it?

Not to the woman who gave me a pair of red slacks for my birthday and then was disappointed when I assured her I liked them and would wear them.

She was disappointed because she had been certain I'd reject the color. She'd bought them in the big city and had already planned a 3-day shopping trip built around the necessity of having to return the slacks.

2 weeks later I was telling her about a terrible auto accident I'd just seen. "12 people were killed, limbs were scattered all over the street," I said, "and I think I saw a body I recognized. . . ."

She interrupted me: "Are you sure you like those red slacks?" Onward and upward.

Commission to reapportion; changes based on '70 census

An eight-member commission, split equally between Democrats and Republicans, is working on the laborious task of reapportioning Michigan into 38 new Senate districts and 110 new House districts. This is a result of the 1970 census which shows newer population trends.

They won't finish before late this year or early next year because of the delay in receiving block by block population totals for the state's urban areas. It's already apparent most of their problems will have come from the exodus from the state's urban centers into the suburbs, particularly in the Detroit area.

Wayne county presents the toughest problem for the Democrats on the commission, since they are going to have to tell several of their party's members in the legislature that they can't come back for another term. The best estimates of those involved are that Wayne county will lose four or five seats in the House and at least one seat in the Senate.

Since all of the Wayne county members of the legislature are Democrats, it's their problem. Nearly all of the population which left Detroit and took those seats with them went to either Oakland or Macomb counties. That is where the gains will be made. As a result, when all the work is done, that tri-county area should have about the same total representation in numbers as it does now. The census figures used in drawing up the present districts, which were collected in 1960, showed 48.1 per cent of the state's population in the tri-county area. The 1970 census shows 47.3 per cent of the population there, a drop of only one House seat at the most.

The U. S. Supreme Court's "one man-one vote" ruling means the commission draws up districts on the basis of only one criterion—population. If perfectly even districts were drawn up, each House district would have 80,663 inhabitants and each Senate district would have 233,555 residents.

With the commission split 4-4, however, it is a distinct possibility the matter will eventually end up in the hands of the Michigan Supreme Court.

Though nominally a non-partisan body, five of its members are staunch Democrats. The high court set the current boundaries in 1964 when it ordered into effect a plan drawn up by now Secretary of State Richard H. Austin, then a re-apportionment commission member, and commission member A. Robert Kleiner of Grand Rapids, a Democrat who is on the commission again this time and is serving as co-chairman with Paul Goebel, Sr., of Grand Rapids, a Republican.

"TAX CHANGE PROPOSED"

The latest proposal for changing the state's tax laws to give single people and married couples without children a tax break has been put forth by State Rep. Richard J. Allen, R-Ithaca.

Letter to Editor

Hospital should add more staff, too

Mr. Haire:

Recently, while a patient at Hills and Dales Hospital it would be very hard to ignore the construction of the new addition. It's badly needed everyone will agree but while building, the annex it would be wise for the administration to also be building a new program for added nurses and etc.

The cutting back of personnel from a year ago is certainly noticeable as a patient. I should think added help in the house-keeping department would be in order while the addition is being built, rather than a cut back. Can curtailment on cleanliness really be safely permitted?

There is a notable difference in cleanliness and care at the hospital based on previous visits and comments from others. However, this can not be blamed on present employees. They are as efficient and capable as possible under present staff deductions. Although the language overheard in the surgery room was most distasteful. It is neither the time or place for such expressions.

The hospital carries a heavy patient load and should require more employees to properly care for those confined. There should also be one set of rules as nurse to patient which adheres to all three shifts, not different practices for each one. It's very annoying and confusing for patients to follow new orders set down by each head nurse on each shift.

Mr. Farmer!

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

When you read this the chances are I'll be pulling in a B-I-G trout from the Madison River in Montana. We left Tuesday for the wide open space of the west and the trip that we've wanted to make for years. When I say we left, I mean my younger daughter, my son, Dorothy and me. When I say a trip that we always wanted to make I'm using the editorial "we". What I actually mean is the trip that I always wanted to make.

I also have the 11-year-old convinced but the women in the family have a skepticism about it all that's hard for any hard working husband to comprehend.

We did a little doctoring of a picture that appeared in the Aug. 12 issue of the Chronicle. It was the picture of the Willis Campbell Elementary School.

The problem we were trying to solve was to get an identifiable picture of the school with a boy in the foreground.

If the lettering "Willis Campbell Elementary School" was included the boy looking at the school shrunk so much that he was almost indistinguishable. What we did was cut away part of the building so that the lettering appears right next to the entrance, enabling us to make the boy in the foreground larger.

Honest now, did anyone notice our architectural revamping?

For a long time now I've been going to ask what those pipes hooked over phone wires are for. Just to make sure that everybody but me didn't know I checked around before calling. Wayne "Buck" Rabideau speculated that they might be static arrestors. No one else I asked would venture a guess.

Well, what those gadgets are, Bob Buttery, Gen-Tel manager, says, are dampeners. They are pieces of lead hung on the wire to keep the wires from whipping in the wind.

Without the weight the wires will whip enough in a strong wind to uproot the telephone poles.

That's an ordinary strong wind, Buttery added. Nothing helps much when winds reach the velocity they did west of town and in Deford Sunday afternoon.

It's no wonder that more and more students are spending the summer or longer abroad these days. Our eldest departed Monday for Europe with the money needed for a ticket. The cost: $213 for the round trip.

You can't hardly get to downtown Wilmet these days for that much.

Bicyclemania can be hazardous

By Kit McMillion

I raced down the road and whipped around the corner. The car in front of me backed out fast and I heard someone yell, "Look out!" I swerved sharply to the left, almost lost my balance, and just missed having me and my bicycle crushed by that automobile.

I turned around and flung a curse at the driver who just kept on going as if nothing in the world had happened at the same fast rate of speed. I realized that my bicycle was becoming dangerous to my health, but I was also infuriated by the way people in big shiny cars treat people on little dusty bikes.

That sort of escape has happened to me many times in my bicycle-riding career, which began, incidentally, when I was six years old. I've been lucky. But it still amazes me that more people aren't getting killed.

The drivers of the automobiles have a responsibility to drive safely, especially when there are so many cyclists around. But cyclists had better start being more careful, too. I am very pleased to see so many families riding about town with the little ones tucked in baskets or seats attached to the back of the bike. The fresh air, exercise and sun are wonderful for both the soul and the body.

But the youngsters who race and dart in the streets without even so much as looking for cars, or people for that matter—I wish you luck because you are going to need it.

Bike riders have to be careful for their lives and safety, but they are also the cause of many accidents. Cars run off the roads trying to avoid kids on bicycles, and it's the driver of the car who lands in the ditch and gets hurt.

Riders on highways also cause problems. They ride on the road while cars line up behind them, each one itching to pass. Or they ride one on each side of the road, making it very difficult for the people in the cars to drive between them.

I don't even have to mention the dangers of riding at night without a lamp on the bike.

There are several pamphlets at the Tuscola county sheriff's office which explain how to keep a bicycle in good operating condition and how to handle it carefully on the road.

Police Chief Gene Wilson gave a lecture on bicycle safety as part of the recreation department's arts and crafts program this summer. In the spring a unit on repairing bikes and safety is offered to the 4th grade class, and the local police talk to the lower classes, too.

This is a wonderful start, but I think it should be strengthened to include classes for adults, too. If you've never changed a bicycle tire, it can be sort of tricky, believe me. And parents should know the rules so they can teach their children.

Bicycling is a fun way to bring people together, but I hope the people in the cars and the people on the bicycles start looking out for each other.

To err is human, perhaps, but that won't change the score.

Self-pity is a state of mind that always leads to misery.

Spawning Alaskan Coho to set record year in Michigan

The introduction of early spawning Alaskan coho and the prospects of latching onto a 60-pound chinook should give Michigan a record-setting salmon year to rival such dominant West Coast fishing states as Washington and Oregon, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

And if salmon fishing success so far this season is an indication of things to come, anglers could catch one million coho and chinook for the first time since salmon were planted in Michigan waters five years ago. Last year, nearly 860,000 salmon were caught in the state.

The Department of Natural Resources increased 1970 spring salmon plantings in the state so that 31 streams—three more than last year—will have mature runs. Included are the first adult runs ever in the Thumb.

Last spring's plantings of Alaskan cohos at the mouths of parent streams in Lake Superior and northern Lake Michigan have encouraged heavier than normal fishing pressure during the low-yield times of late July and early August.

Even though high westerly winds brought warmer waters into shore and forced salmon into the deeper, cooler depths of Lake Michigan through much of July and August, catches on the big lake were running well ahead of last year at this time.

A major reason for this salmon fishing success is the presence of the early spawning Alaskans, which began concentrating at the mouth parent streams in late July.

Gathering spots for the Alaskan coho for spawning are at the mouth of these streams: Falls, Anna and Dead rivers off Lake Superior; Big Cedar, Whitefish, Manistique, Bear and Little Manistique rivers, Thompson, Porter and Brewery creeks off Lake Michigan, and Carp River off Lake Huron.

Regular salmon runs also have started with the peak expected to begin in mid-September on the Great Lakes and continuing through the first two weeks of October. Heaviest activity in streams will be during October.

Although 13 streams have now been planted with chinook, the best chinook catches will be from 1968 plantings since this king-sized partner of the coho usually takes three to four years to mature. This variety will run 20 to 40 pounds with 1969 plantings weighing from 15 to 25 pounds and '70 plantings between five and 12 pounds.

A few giant chinook in the 50 to 60-pound range may be taken from Lake Michigan. These are from 1967 plantings. Coho, which mature at three years, generally will run eight to 18 pounds with a few four-year-olds at 25 to 33 pounds.

The state record for chinook is a 42-pounder caught in Lake Michigan near Manistee last September. The largest coho caught by hook and line is a 27-pound, 12-ounce fish from Lake Michigan off Leelanau county last December. However, a 33-pound, three-ounce coho was taken in Little Manistee River weir below the Six Mile Bridge last October.

Coho and chinook pressure once again will be heaviest along Lake Michigan, where 3.1 million coho and 1.5 million chinook were planted in the spring of 1970 compared to only 500,000 coho and 600,000 chinook in Lake Huron and 500,000 coho and 150,000 chinook in Lake Superior.

Not only will salmon concentrations be largest on Lake Michigan and its tributaries, but the fish are bigger than those from the other two lakes because of the abundance of their food supply—alewives and smelt.

Lake Huron, which had its salmon population reduced approximately 50 percent in 1969 by Canadian commercial fishermen and suffered through its worst lamprey attack in 20 years, is making a comeback and should have improved fishing this fall. However, next season will be an even greater year for Lake Huron when the adult salmon population will be increased by one million from last year.

With the lamprey problem now under control due to the chemical treatment of all Lake Huron streams planted with salmon, the DNR is stepping up its salmon release program there.

Lake Huron received a record 1.2 million coho and 900,- 000 chinook in spring plantings this year. A total of 2.8 million coho and 1.8 million chinook were placed in Lake Michigan with Lake Superior getting 430,000 coho and 250,000 chinook.

Three areas in the Thumb will have mature coho runs this fall. They are Diamond, Elk and Lakeport creeks. Since the plantings were small, there will be no buildup of fish on Lake Huron. Unlike Lakes Superior and Michigan, most of the fishing will be near shore by wading or from small boats. This is an advantage to anglers without boats or sophisticated salmon gear.

Salmon catches on the Great Lakes will come mainly by trolling with plugs, flatfish, daredevils and flashflies ahead of lures to attract the fish. In the streams, snagging at the base of dams where it is legal and stillfishing will be most popular. Heavier line is needed for the rivers because of rocky and log-filled bottoms which snag lures.

Anglers are advised not to fish the Great Lakes in anything smaller than an 18-foot boat. Since coho often are fished five miles or more from shore, fishermen should keep a watchful eye on the weather.

While salmon fishing is allowed year-around on many major rivers and the Great Lakes, the season ends on December 31 on most small streams.

Report one theft,
minor accident

One traffic accident and one breaking and entering were reported by the Cass City police over the past week.

A radio-tape recorder combination and alarm clock were reported stolen from Mary Flores' apartment at 8424 Main Street sometime during the night Friday, Aug. 20.

Miss Flores had left the door open to have a phone installed when the theft occurred. The incident is still under investigation.

Theresa Spence, 21, of Deford, was involved in a minor traffic accident at the corner of Main Street and Seeger Wednesday, Aug. 18.

Miss Spence had stopped at the light and was turning on the caution, when she bumped into a car being driven by Ralph Retherford of Cass City. No ticket was issued.

Seddon family meets in Caro

The annual Seddon reunion was held Aug. 15 at the Caro Fairground Pavilion with 36 members present from Brown City, Caro, Davison, Detroit, Elkton, Flint, Grand Lodge, Kingston, Mayville, Millington and North Branch.

Information was received from some of the families to update the family history, copies of which are available from Mr. and Mrs. James Seddon of Grand Lodge, who were elected president and secretary, respectively.

The 1972 reunion is scheduled to be held at the same place the third Sunday of August.

BETTER HEALTH

Meniere's disease causes dizziness

who, in 1861, described the trouble.

This is a frustrating disease, because we doctors do not as yet have any really satisfactory treatment for it. During an acute attack of Meniere's, when the person is unable to stand, feels nauseated and as if he is going to vomit, and has an unpleasant roaring sensation and a pressure in his ears, the best thing to do is to go to bed and rest there until the spell passes. Anti-motion sickness drugs, such as Dramamine, Tigan or Bonine, may help to relieve the immediate symptoms.

The big thing is to try to prevent the sudden attacks of vertigo and dizziness and to cut down on the unpleasant ear noises that often accompany the disease. Some physicians suggest a "low salt" or "salt-free" diet. Actually there is no such thing as a completely salt-free diet, and the best the person can hope for is to keep from adding salt to the food in the kitchen or at the table.

Most physicians try giving drugs such as nicotinic acid and histamine, which tend to dilate the arteries in the head for a few minutes, and thus to throw much blood into the ears. Some physicians give anti-histaminics or they try, with slowly increasing doses of histamine, to desensitize the person to this substance, hoping that this will bring the person some relief. If the unfortunate person becomes desperate and becomes so miserable that he cannot work, he may consider an operation in which the nerve to the balancing mechanism in the ear is cut. Unfortunately, there are some unpleasant aspects of the operation.

As I said, we physicians can try a number of different types of treatment for Meniere's disease, and hope that one works, but as yet, no completely satisfactory treatment has been found. Some persons notice that when they are under emotional pressure, or when they become upset or angry, their symptoms seem to be worse. The best thing for them to do is to try to live as sensibly and with as little tension as possible. The doctor may prescribe one of the tranquilizing drugs for them.

Ordinary dizziness without deafness or ear noises is not Meniere's disease, and so it should not be called that. Often it takes a very good ear man and perhaps a neurologist or artery specialist to decide what has gone wrong, perhaps in the ear or in the brain or in an artery in the neck.

As some people know, within the ear there is a peculiar mechanism consisting of three "spirit levels", such as a carpenter uses, which, with the nerves that run from the levels to the brain, tell us human beings what our position is in space. When something goes wrong with that so-called vestibular apparatus, with its three semicircular canals, we can get dizzy. The person may also get a feeling of uncertainty, of poor balance or "top-heaviness", or wooziness, or a fear of falling.

Always when a patient is dizzy, I ask if the trouble came slowly or suddenly. If it came suddenly, and especially if the patient is past middle age and has lost some of his memory and much of his drive and joy in life, I suspect that a tiny artery has plugged up either in the brain or in the ear. Many a brief spell of marked dizziness, lasting half a minute or so, can also be due to a little stroke -- usually so small that all it may do, if it does anything, is to lessen the excellence of the person's memory for names.

Occasionally, dizziness can accompany a menopause, or may be the remnant of an old migraine, or may be due to high blood pressure. Many thin and sensitive persons with a low blood pressure get very dizzy for a moment on quickly changing position -- as when they stand up suddenly after squatting down to pick something up off the floor or from a low shelf. This dizziness is not a danger signal and can be ignored. It can be troublesome throughout a long life-time. Unfortunately, the treatment of dizzy spells is not easy.

Head noises often arise in the brain, not the ears. Dr. Alvarez describes some of the treatments for dizziness vertigo and little strokes in his booklet "Head Noises and Dizziness." If you would like a copy send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. CCC, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Residents were warned not to do their washing Wednesday, Thursday or Friday as village authorities would be flushing hydrants causing the water to be filled with rust.

Dale Auslander of Decker and the Evergreen Guys and Gals 4-H Club showed the grand champion and the champion pen of lambs at the Sanilac County Fair.

Gary Cummings and Jim Rutman, both of Gagetown, were winners of the first annual Calcutta golf tournament.

Mrs. Jim Rabideau of Gagetown cans over 600 quarts of vegetables for her family of 11.

The Art Club had dinner at the Fraser church Wednesday, Aug. 17, and met at the home of Mrs. John Juhasz for a business meeting.

Cliff Ferguson injured the second finger on his right hand last week in an accident at the former Tusco building. He is expected to regain complete use of the finger.

TEN YEARS AGO

The Michigan State Tax Commission denied Aug. 15 the appeal from Cass City Public Schools for another mill of the Tuscola county tax money.

Miss Judith Huff, 1957 graduate of Cass City High School, has been awarded the Chemstrand Corporation Scholarship for the academic year of 1961-

62 at the University of Florida, Gainesville.

The Mill-End Stores, with headquarters in Bay City, have leased the building formerly occupied by Hulen's and will open an outlet in Cass City.

Hal Willard, who graduated from Cass City High School in 1949, has been named head football coach at Wayne State University in Detroit.

Janet McConkey, 18, will serve on a panel as part of the 33rd annual national farm business conference of the American Institute of Cooperation at the University of Minnesota.

A 10-ton bar shattered the left thumb of Clarence "Bud" Kirkpatrick. His hand and forearm will be in a cast for five weeks.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Footings have been poured for the Municipal Building at the park which will house the new water softening machinery and other village equipment.

Keith McConkey plans to open a jewelry and gift shop, terminating his employment with the Great Atlantic and Pacific Co.

Ray H. Lapp, a discharged veteran of World War II, has been named as a member of the committee from Tuscola county to assist in administering the Michigan Veteran's trust fund which is to be used for veterans in emergencies.

F2/c Richard Root, who served 18 months in the Navy, has been discharged at Great Lakes, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Millard Ball entertained 30 relatives and friends at their home in honor of the birthday of his mother, Mrs. Ernest Ferguson.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Delbert Henry, playing "Did I Remember?" and "There Isn't Any Limit to My Love" as piano solos at the Cass Theater Monday night, was awarded first place in the College Revue.

Clare Stafford broke his arm and received a severe cut on his lip when he fell from the roof of his home while repairing it.

Mrs. Alice Moore is making extensive improvements on the Wheeler residence on Seeger Street, which she recently purchased.

Mr. and Mrs. Watson Spaven entertained on Sunday in honor of the first birthday of their daughter, Geraldine Mae.

The annual reunion of the Palmateer family was held Sunday, Aug. 16, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Colwell in Saginaw.

AGENT'S CORNER

Father's role richer today

Mrs. Margaret Ross — Extension Agent

Fathers need to be seen as more than "the fellow who brings home the paycheck" or "the guy who punishes when he gets home from work."

Ann Ross, Thumb Extension's home economist, says times are changing in that direction. It is no longer easy to say that this family responsibility is a "father-job" and another one is a "mother-job."

Dad is sharing in many more of the home chores and responsibilities today. He's just as likely to be cooking as mom is. He's no longer afraid to change diapers, take a turn at doing the laundry, or comforting an injured child. This different picture of father at home is good - especially for little boys. Children need to know that men, as well as women, can be warm, loving, and understanding. They need to see that men can be both strong and tender.

These things are learned through many of the ordinary routine tasks at home - where the action and interaction is!

Fathers play a richer and more significant role when they can demonstrate responsibility and caring in the ordinary home life activities. And - they'll prepare their sons and daughters to eventually do likewise.

You can beef-up a skimpy lawn by "seeding-in"

Best way to add new life to a thin lawn is to plant grass seed right into the existing turf. And Fall is the ideal time to do it.

Scotts FAMILY Brand lawn seed is America's longtime favorite. Why? Because it is a versatile blend that does well in sun or moderate shade. And it's priced right too. So if your lawn needs "beefing-up," get a box of Scotts FAMILY seed this week end.

SOLITUDE
SOLITARY

Quiet moments in solitude are good for the soul. Each of us needs those moments apart from the busy world—where we can distill our thoughts, reshape our purpose and revitalize our spirit.

This is not the same as living a solitary life—to be shut off from society, aloof and alone. We must remain in touch with the rest of mankind, or we will become lonely and selfish. We must be a part of the common flow of life.

In a society filled with patterns and cross-currents of both good and evil, where we dare not live in isolation, every person needs a strength greater than his own. That strength, derived from the presence of God in our lives, is the central concern of the Church. Spend some time in solitude with God before you attempt to meet the rush of life.

Bean growers to compare crop

Bean acreage, yield forecast and the outlook of the Thumb bean growing area will be summarized at a twilight bean meeting Monday, Aug. 30. The meeting sponsored by the Tuscola County Bean Growers' Association will be held at the George Eigner farm starting at 6:30 p. m.

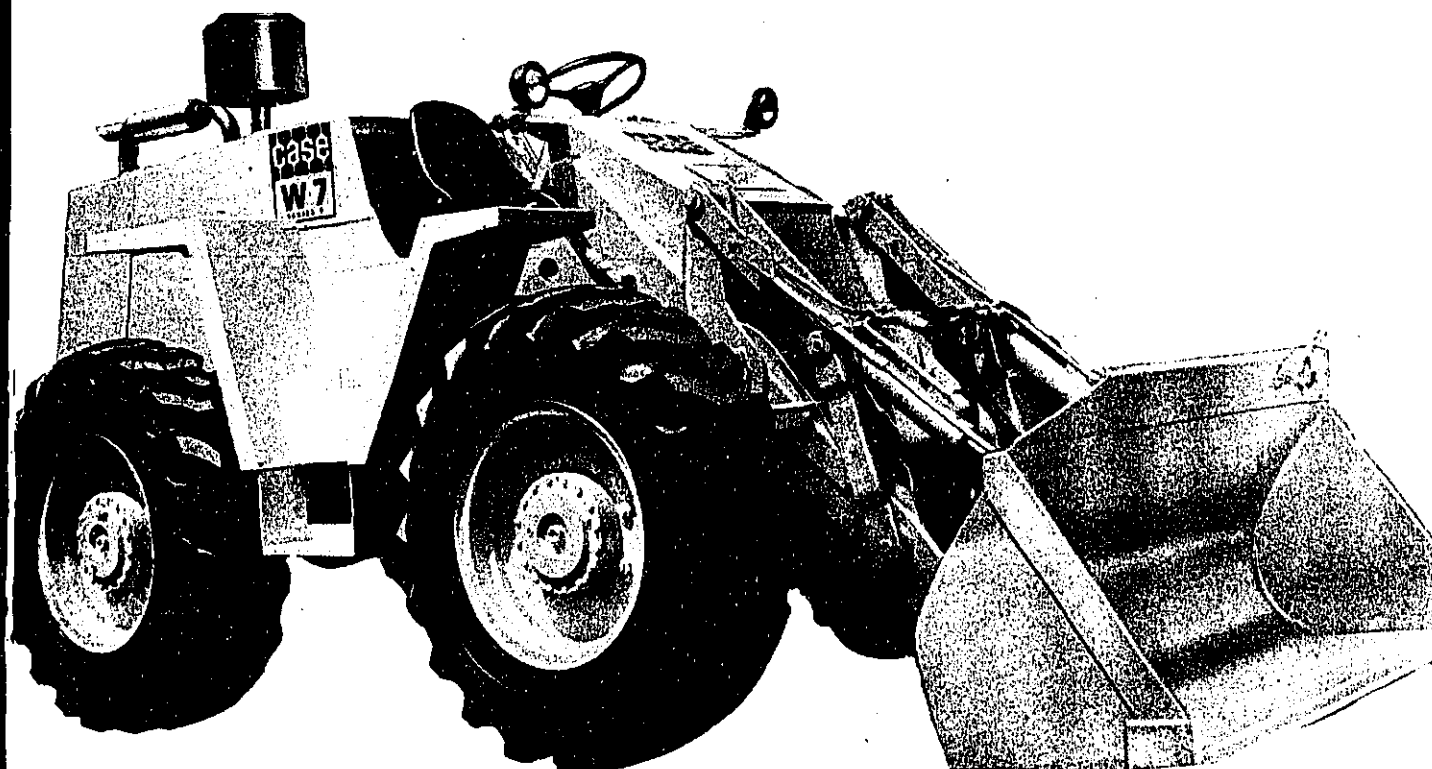

The bean growers will also have an opportunity to look at narrow (20-inch) bean rows compared with our standard 28 inch bean rows. The beans will be nearly ripe at the time of the twilight meeting so the growers can make excellent comparison prior to yield determination at harvest. Reports will be given by growers from other areas of the Thumb on bean yield outlook and summarized by Quentin Osterlander, District Marketing Specialist.

The George Eigner farm is located two miles south of Quanticasee on Dutcher Road or two miles north and six and one-half miles west of Fairgrove, states Bill Bortel, Tuscola Agriculture Agent.

FARM BUREAU

The Laing Farm Bureau met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Wheeler Tuesday evening, Aug. 17. There were six families present and one visitor, Mrs. Clarence Bullock.

Officers elected are: Alex Wheeler, president; Frank Pringle, vice-president; Marie Meredith, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Arthur Severance, Mrs. Alex Wheeler and Mrs. Luella Smith, members of the Women's Committee; Miss Grace Wheeler, discussion leader, Mrs. Laurence Hyatt, minuteman; Mrs. Grace Peterson; Farm Bureau package reporter, and Laurence Hyatt, assistant discussion leader.

The package report was given by Mrs. Peterson on Michigan City Gulf Service and Michigan Bean of Cass City; Lee Putney of Yale; and Muehl Implements of Sandusky.

Discussion on Federal Government Reorganization was led by Grace Wheeler. A card was signed by the group and sent to Mrs. Nora McLean, a patient in McKean Memorial Hospital, Sandusky.

A cooperative lunch was served. The September meeting will be at the Laurence Hyatt home.

The Senior Citizens will meet Thursday, Aug. 26, at the Decker Masonic Hall, Decker. A cooperative dinner will be held at 12:30. Those attending are to bring a dish to pass and table service.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Josh Clodhopper, that usual does more listening than talking, had his spring wound tighter than a $2 watch when he got to the meeting at the country store Saturday night. The feller knowed Josh was busting to say somepun, so Ed and his clippings was moved down the agender, and they told Josh out with it.

It was his old lady, allowed

Josh, that last week give him the shock of his wedded life, and he said he had lived thru some doozies. Josh reported where he come in fer supper Thursday night to find his old lady in a pair of them reducing bloomers that you blow up like a Innertube. Josh swore the sight come powerful close to taking his appetite.

It ain't that his old lady couldn't stand to drop a few pounds, went on Josh, cause she allus has been on the plus side of plump. And Josh said it wasn't that them reducing bloomers made her look like a walking sawsage. What really shook Josh to his bones was that his old lady had took it in her head to lose weight in the first place and to take him with her in the second place.

What she had laid out fer his supper wouldn't keep the cat alive, said Josh, and he couldn't git his old lady to tell him why she counted him in on her one way trip to starvation. All she would say was that it was to much temptation to cook. She told Josh that she and a bunch of wimmen was holding a contest to see who could lose the most weight, and the winner got took out to supper. Josh said she didn't make no mention of taking him along fer a square meal in case she won.

Josh said he'd been sneaking down to the store fer between meal snacks that was bigger than the meals he was getting at home, and if things got any worst he might even have to do some cooking hisself. The only hope Josh said he sees is that his old lady still is putting up all kinds of stuff from the garden like she allus does, so he has a good chance of getting some of that to eat this winter, if he can last that long.

Bug Hookum was agreed with Josh that all the fellers and their old ladies was at a time in life when they might as well let the pounds stick where they fall, but Bug said Josh ought to admire his old lady fer trying. Bug said his old lady bought some reducing candy some years back, and all she done was eat the candy between her regular meals.

General speaking, said Bug, folks don't want to put out the effort. They play golf fer exercise, then they rent carts to ride around the golf field in. We even got gadgets to run our televisions from our easy chairs, allowed Bug. As fer reducing, Bug said his old lady has six girdles and she's out-grown five, but she figgers the end justifies the means.

Personal, Mister Editor, I agree with the feller that said we don't want no ups and downs in our lives, jest ups.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Agricultural agent's role changes

By William L. Bortel

What do agriculture and agricultural agents mean to you? Milking cows? Feeding pigs? Gathering eggs? Baling hay? or Planting a garden? Agriculture can mean any of these; however, the list continues to grow day by day.

Agriculture used to be many generalized farms with chickens, cows, pigs, horses and sheep. However, the scope of agriculture has seen much specialization in one or two commodities and the farmers have become highly efficient businessmen.

The agricultural agent's role has also changed just as rapidly as the farmer's role. The agents continue to work with the farmers and their many perplexing problems facing agriculture today. This would include formulating a complete and balanced dairy ration, engineering a building plan, diagnosis of a disease problem or making a recommendation to curb an insect infestation.

Balancing a ration used to be very simple as we fed the same grain ration to all livestock on the farm. However, now a ration is formulated for the pregnant cow, fresh cow and milking cow for all minerals, vitamins, carbohydrate needs and protein requirements. Cows are now in several cases better fed than many families.

As the farmers left their farms and moved to suburbia, another role for the agricultural agent developed. Lawn diagnostic problems, insects invading the yard and home, trouble with diseased ornamental shrubs and many other associated problems.

Yes! Agriculture has changed and the agricultural agents mean different roles to different people.

Residents oppose pool tax

Cass City residents appear to be in favor of the village having a pool, but if a special tax had to be levied to build

Fred Buehrly dies at grass fire

A minor grass fire at 7183 Reed Rd. resulted in the unexpected death of Fred Buehrly, 82, when too much excitement apparently resulted in a heart attack, Tuesday, Aug. 24.

Firemen from Cass City arrived at the Buehrly home to find neighbors, a rural mail carrier, and Buehrly's wife, Mary, fighting the grass fire. It had started when some burning willow branches spread out of control.

Elwyn Helwig, fireman, said he asked Mrs. Buehrly where her husband was. She found him lying in the kitchen by the back door.

Helwig, a former Army medic, felt for a pulse, but said he could find nothing. He then radioed for an ambulance. Buehrly was pronounced dead on arrival at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

A lifelong Cass City resident, he was born March 9, 1889, to Leonard and Catherine Burke Buehrly.

He married the former Mary Mark Sept. 22, 1915, and was a lifelong member of the Salem United Methodist Church.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter, Mrs. Leonard (Alice) Elliott of Uby; a son, Keith, of Livonia and four grandchildren.

Also, two brothers, Edward and Lawrence, and a sister, Mrs. Elsie Anthes, all of Cass City.

Two sisters preceded him in death.

The funeral will be at 2 p. m. Friday, Aug. 27, from the Salem United Methodist Church, with the Rev. Ira Wood officiating. The body will lie in state at the church beginning at noon.

Burial will be in Elkland cemetery.

Little's Funeral Home is handling the arrangements.

a new one, few residents were willing to commit themselves to supporting such a tax.

These conclusions were results of a random survey conducted by the Chronicle this past week of area residents. The Cass City pool has provided many cool afternoons for area children and adults, but its continued existence is one big question mark.

Although temporary adjustments were made to keep the pool in operation after state health officials found it outdated and unsanitary, a crucial decision period may be facing area residents within the next several months.

The present pool fails to meet a number of requirements set down by state health laws which may mean the construction of a new pool to rectify the situation. Area residents will likely be making decisions concerning the future state of a swim-recreation program in Cass City which will more than likely affect their pocketbooks.

The majority of those asked knew the pool was outdated and felt a pool was necessary in Cass City, even if it meant building a new one.

Mrs. L. A. Binder regarded the pool as good exercise and therapy for children. "The children have to have something to do during the summer," Mrs. Binder said, "but I have to think in terms of my own pocketbook and what's good for the children."

Several other residents agreed with Mrs. Binder that a pool was a necessary summer item. Robert Wells said that there was not enough for young kids or the public in the line of entertainment in Cass City. The pool is therefore "a well needed thing," he said.

Mrs. Chuck Peasley, who recently moved to Cass City, found the pool a means to keep the children occupied.

"I don't think the town can stand to be without a pool now that it already has one," one resident said. She supported the idea of Cass City's need for a pool.

A number of residents felt Cass City needed a pool because the present one was too small.

Although all the residents were in favor of a pool in Cass City, few firmly said they would support a special tax to build a new pool if such a tax was necessary.

Out of the 16 people asked, only six said they would support a special tax to build a new pool.

The remaining 10, although they supported the idea of a new pool, were unsure whether they would vote for such a tax to put the idea into operation.

Several residents didn't like the idea of more taxes, including John Moore. "People on the whole don't want more taxes," Moore said. "There are a lot of things we need and like but can't have, such as a pool. We have to draw the line somewhere," he said.

Others remarked that because they didn't have children using the pool, they weren't that interested in its outcome.

Andrew Donnelly, who no longer has children using the pool, felt differently, however. "I like to see kids have a good time. I would support a tax," Donnelly said.

Mrs. Louis Pierce, Wells, Mrs. David Knight and William Scott also said they would support a tax if it was necessary to build a new pool.

Such pool issues still remain questionable. Area residents were answering hypothetical questions that have yet to be officially asked.

As summer draws to a close, however, such questions may turn into reality. Residents may soon be forced to provide an answer to the basic issue--does Cass City want a pool?

CREDIT UNION

that it is open only to company employees.

In larger cities, credit union members who buy shares can expect to earn about 5 1/2 per cent for their money. Walbro credit union has been able to pay this amount.

FCU shareholders haven't had it this good. The reason, according to Mrs. Martin, is FCU isn't large enough and there were bad accounts to be cleaned up when St. Pancratius merged.

Whatever the reason, share holders in 1970 received only 3 per cent on their investment. Why continue to invest when the return is less than it would be in many passbook savings accounts? The answer, judging from the comment of members, is that it's an induced, if not a forced saving plan. It's easy to put a little away for a rainy day this way.

Albert Weippert, Cass City, says, "It's a good savings plan. I don't see the money and I never miss it. Mrs. Wava Hollock of Owendale says, "It enabled me to save and helped out when I needed cash."

Others may have been attracted by shareholder savings insurance and FCU auto and life insurance plans.

Probably one reason that credit unions have shown large growth nationally and modest growth locally is that as a non-profit organization they enjoy tax exempt status not available to competing organizations.

Nationally, in 1934 credit union assets were $50 million. Today they are $17 1/2 billion with 22 million shareholding members.

Michigan ranks sixth in the nation with 1,145 credit unions and $1.5 billion in assets.

Cass City's $100,000 credit union investments come from 458 members.

The future for credit unions here is difficult to forecast. Strikes and cuts in employment could spell disaster while increased employment will mean more savings, more money to lend and a higher return to shareholders.

Like the rest of the community credit union health will depend on community health. FCU is likely to grow if Cass City grows and die if Cass City dies.

2 arraigned

before Churchill

in circuit court

Two persons were arraigned in Tuscola County Circuit Court Monday, Aug. 23, before Judge James P. Churchill. Two trials are scheduled to begin Tuesday, Aug. 31.

John Michael Stadler, 20, of 135 E. Huron, Vassar, pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny from a building at his arraignment. Sentencing is set for Sept. 20.

The charge was reduced from breaking and entering. He pleaded innocent to that charge at his district court arraignment July 9.

The offense occurred June 18 at a service station-restaurant called the Halfway House on M-15 in Vassar, owned by Willard Leach, when about $400 was taken from the premises.

Blas Roche Ortega, of 93 1/2 Orchard Lane, Pontiac, was arraigned on two counts, of concealing a weapon and felonious assault. He pleaded innocent.

He was arraigned before District Court Judge Richard Kern on Aug. 13 and 19 for the two charges and pleaded innocent then, too. The preliminary examinations of those dates stated that Ortega and two other men came to a house at 6639 S. Phillips Road, Kingston, at about 8:30 a. m. July 8 for the purpose of repossessing a car.

While there he threw a knife in the direction of Sheryl Ann Kwasniewski, 16, of that address. When Tuscola sheriff's deputies came, he tried to conceal the knife between his belt and shirt in the small of his back, the records said.

His $750 bond was reduced to $500.

The jury trial of James Kenneth Miller, 1434 Twelfth St., Port Huron, is scheduled to begin Tuesday, Aug. 31.

He is charged with assaulting an officer and concealing a weapon. He stood mute at his circuit court arraignment April 5, and a plea of innocent was entered for him on both counts.

The trial of Duane Frank Barczak, 1410 S. Chilson, Bay City, will begin as soon as the Miller trial is completed.

He is charged with intent to commit larceny and wilfully injuring a safe containing money at the Akron Elementary School, Akron, May 25.

He stood mute at his June 14 circuit court arraignment and a plea of innocent was entered for him.

The offense carries up to life imprisonment.

FIRE HALL BIDS

According to architects Laitala - Nuechterlein - Fowler of Lansing, total cost of the building was to run about $100,000. McConkey said that the bids received were disappointing to the board members since the bids exceeded the original architects' plan costs.

McConkey explained that many of the bids did not come from local contractors, which could mean the transporting of men and materials bringing the cost up for the building.

Site for the new building is to be directly west of the village park at Church and Ale Streets. It will be able to accommodate six fire engines, as well as a radio room, showers and a storage area for fire equipment.

There will also be a partially fire-proofed 16x16 foot room for township records, a storage area for the township and a 23x28 foot meeting room.

The over-all building is 60x90 and should provide enough space for present and future equipment, according to a study of the town board and fire department.

ONE-WAY

It's a poor rule that won't work both ways, but the fellow who drinks to another's health never improves his own.

No injuries in local accidents, cow killed

Four local accidents resulted in no injuries, but a Saturday morning 3-car accident in Sandusky sent 6 persons to the hospital.

A car driven by Melvin John Pasanski, 45, 5102 Schwegler Road, Cass City, hit a car driven by Catherine Ann McDonald, 38, 6051 Elmwood Road, Cass City, at the intersection of M-81 and Crane Road Friday, Aug. 20, at 12:40 p. m.

Tuscola county sheriff's report said both cars were heading east on M-81 when the Pasanski car, which was passing several cars, failed to see the McDonald car turning left onto Crane Road.

Two witnesses stated the left turn signal was blinking on the McDonald car. There were no injuries.

Robert Ezra Hutchinson, 25, 6573 Seed St., Cass City, hit a cow Tuesday, Aug. 17, on Mushroom Road, 3/10 mile east of Cemetery Road at 8:45 a. m.

The car was going west when the cow, owned by Herbert Bucher, Deford, came from the north side of the road and ran in front of the car.

Hutchinson was not injured. A car driven by Maurice Frank Taylor, 49, 6351 Greenland, Cass City, was damaged when he was sideswiped by a car while going south on Cemetery Road near River Road Friday, Aug. 20, at 2:30 a. m.

He was not injured, but the driver of the second car did not stop and his identity is unknown.

The accident is under investigation.

Two mail boxes and a house were damaged Wednesday, Aug. 18, when a car that had been parked at 4135 Seeger Street, by Christiana Lee O'Dell, 16, 4465 Brooker St., Cass City, rolled away.

The incident occurred on E. Elizabeth Street, 100 feet east of Seeger Street.

The car had been in park, but when Miss O'Dell came out about 8:30 a. m. the car was rolling backwards on Elizabeth Street.

Six persons were injured in a three-car accident Saturday, Aug. 21, on North Sandusky Road, 1/8 mile south of Custer Road in Sanilac county at 12:15 p. m.

Sandusky sheriff's report said that a north bound car driven by Ronald D. Hartel, 18, of Snover, was parked partly off the road. He had run out of gas and was trying to fill his tank from a can.

A car driven by Dennis J. Anderson, 19, of Carsonville, stopped in the south bound lane opposite the Hartel car to ask why he had stopped.

Soon after, another north bound car driven by Joseph M. Hirzke, 18, of Deckerville, came along at a high rate of speed and crashed into the rear of the Hartel car.

The gas tank of the Hartel car exploded and both cars spun around into a ditch, hitting the Anderson car in the opposite lane.

Hartel, who was standing outside his auto near the front fender, said he saw the Hirzke car coming and dove into the ditch. Charles Lossing, 18, of Snover, also jumped out of the car and into the ditch. Both escaped injury.

Hirzke and a passenger, Richard McEachin, 18, of Deckerville, were taken to McKenzie Memorial Hospital in Sandusky, where they were treated and released.

His other two passengers, Richard A. Doerr, 20, and Clark B. Coulter, 18, both of Sandusky, are listed in satisfactory condition at McKenzie Memorial.

Anderson was not injured in his car, but two of his passengers, Joseph Groul, 17, of Carsonville, and Lewis O. Burgett, two months, suffered minor injuries. The child's parents, Leonard Burgett, 24, and wife, Leonard, 18, of Carsonville, were uninjured.

The fire was extinguished by the Sandusky Fire Department.

Extensive damage in area caused by storm

A LARGE TREE was uprooted in front of 4391 S. Seeger Street, ripping up the sidewalk.

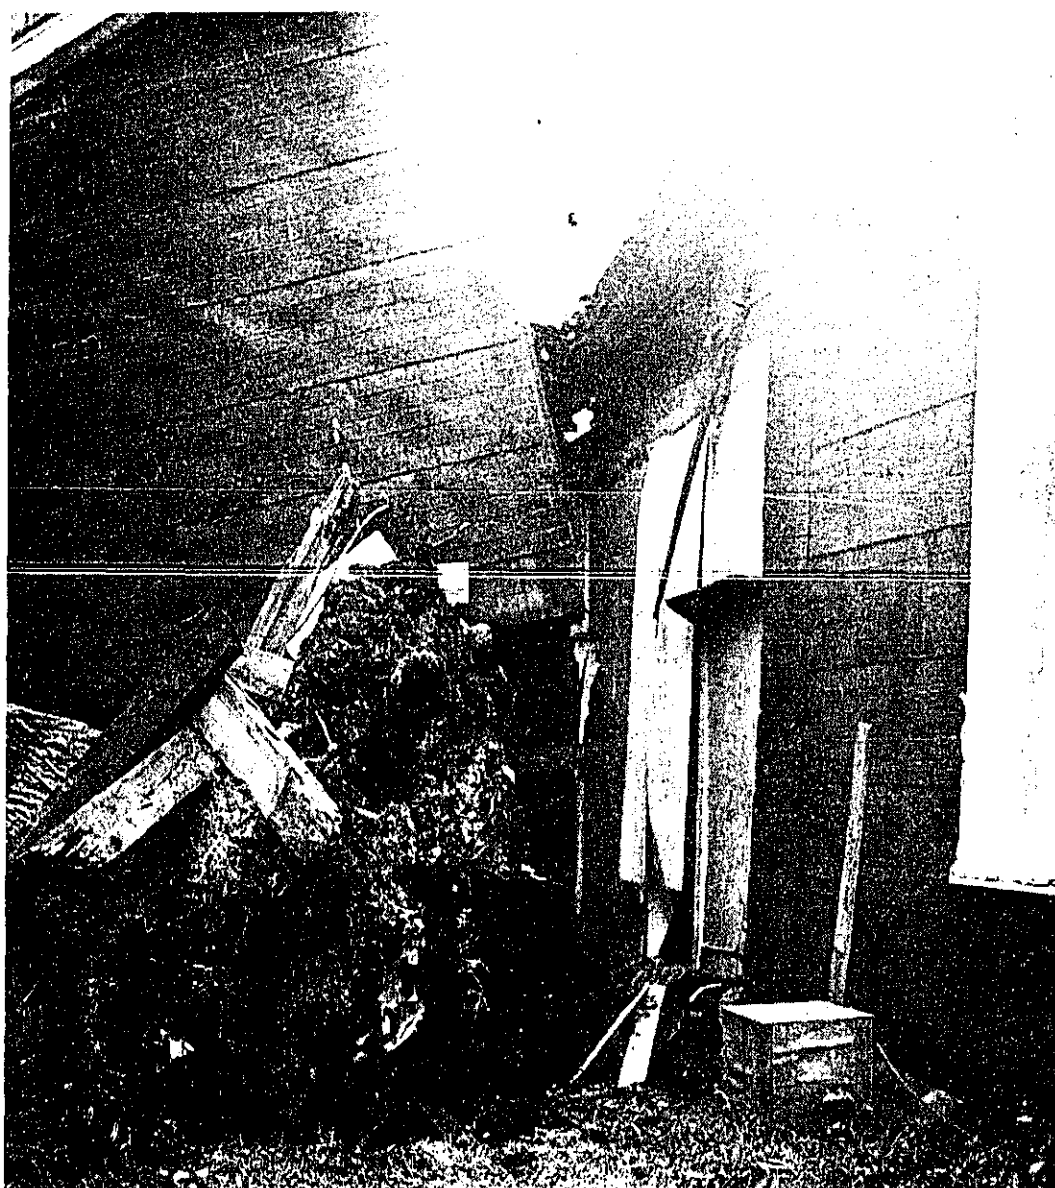

A BARN DOOR was blown into a tree at the Rosemary Patera home, where it perched high above the ground.

THIS GRAIN BIN was carried from the Rosemary Patera farm at 3137 S. Cemetery Road to land in her neighbor's front yard, about 500 feet away.

ANTENNAS LIKE THIS were down all over the area. By 10 a. m. Monday morning one dealer said that he had 26 homes waiting for antenna repair or replacement. This antenna is at the home of Mrs. Ilene Kendall.

FRANCES KLINE'S KITCHEN was literally split and torn away from the remaining house on Church Street, when a tree was uprooted during the recent storm.

Karen Folsom acquitted of 1st degree murder

Karen Sue Folsom, 25, was acquitted Thursday afternoon, Aug. 19, of the willful and premeditated murder of her husband, Allen Folsom.

The charges against Mrs. Folsom were dismissed when Circuit Court Judge James P. Churchill said that he found beyond a reasonable doubt that the victim had been murdered. However, he said he was not convinced beyond a reasonable doubt who the human agent was who had committed the crime.

The court room was filled during the 4 days of the trial, which began Wednesday, Aug. 11. Mrs. Folsom had waived her right to trial by jury. She was represented by James Brishols, of the firm Brishols, Sturtz and LaDue of Saginaw.

Allen Folsom died Dec. 3, 1970, as the result of four blows to his head with a blunt instrument. He was found at the foot of the stairs in the Folsom home on Sanilac Road, Caro, 1 1/2 miles west of M-24 on M-46, by sheriff's deputies, and was pronounced dead at the scene by Tuscola County Coroner Ben Collon.

Dr. Kremski of Central Lab in Saginaw and Dr. Richard Olsen of Luzerne, both pathologists, testified about the medical findings from the autopsy performed on Folsom's body. Colored slides of the complete autopsy were shown to the court.

John Versailles of the State Police Crime Laboratory in East Lansing told of the criminal examination. Glenn M. Moore of the Department of Public Health, a blood expert and Criminal Laboratory Analyst, also testified.

It called several witnesses, including the defendant's father-in-law, Ward Folsom.

A warrant for Karen Folsom's arrest was issued April 13 following an extensive investigation. She appeared before District Court Judge Richard F. Kern May 14, when he placed her on a $50,000 bond and bound her over to circuit court.

The testimony of the preliminary investigation was repeated greatly in the trial. Records of that investigation said that the coroner was called for an ambulance by Mrs. Folsom about 9 p. m. the night of the killing. Mrs. Collon relayed the message to her husband. When he arrived at the scene, Deputy Walker was already there.

They found the victim in the midst of a great deal of blood at the foot of the stairs leading to the basement, wearing a jacket and only one boot over his clothes. An electric fan lying on its side was also at the bottom of the stairs, which witnesses said had been taken into the house from the barn that evening by Folsom.

Evidence was presented placing Mrs. Folsom in the barn with a sick colt and several other persons on the night of her husband's death.

A search was made for the murder weapon, but none was ever found.

In that search a box and 13 reels of film were taken from the home. Mrs. Folsom's attorney moved to suppress that as evidence because he said it was taken illegally without a search warrant without the defendant's consent and did not qualify as evidence. The motion was denied by Judge Churchill July 13.

He said that at the time the investigation was made and the items taken, the authorities were seeking the weapon and cloth used to wipe up blood because they had thought a homicide had been committed. The search was incident to an arrest, he said.

Mrs. Folsom was not called to the witness stand at any time during the trial. By law she does not have to testify against herself.

To err is human—not to air another's errors is divine.

Standing are: Don Galbraith, Randy Kozan, Rick Lorentzen, Rob Alexander and Mike Murphy.

The Cass City Methodists behind the two-hit shutout pitching of Eldon Stoutenburg walked off with the play-off championship of the Church League by defeating Colwood Monday night, 5-0.

While Stoutenburg's pitching was a highlight of the game he was ably assisted by a near perfect defense that was guilty of just one error and some timely run producing hitting. Jerry Toner, in right, and Andy Kozan, in center, turned in sparkling defensive plays.

The Methodists touched Smith of Colwood for two runs in the first after two were out. Don Galbraith walked, moved up on a double by Rob Alexander and both scored a moment later on a line drive double by Mike Murphy.

In the fourth the Methodists scored three more to ice the contest. Randy Brown knocked in a run with a single, Stoutenburg helped his own cause with a hit and Alexander lofted a high fly over the right field fence for a home run.

After that it was all down hill for the post season classic champions.

The Methodists moved into the finals by scoring a pair of victories in previous games.

In the opening game Tuesday, Aug. 17, the Lutherans were bombed, by 16-7. Randy Kozan pitched the win and Nelson Willy was charged with the loss. Rick Lorentzen was a leading stickman.

In the nightcap, the Catholics, regular season champions, walked over Snover, 22-8. John Maharg tossed the win and Mike Denton took the loss. Palmer had a pair of home runs.

Friday, Aug. 20, Colwood notched its second victory on the way to the finals with a 9-3 decision over Les Severance and Shabbona. Dale Smith was the winning hurler. C. R. Smith cracked a pair of hits for the winners.

In the nightcap, the Methodists scored their biggest victory of the season by upsetting the Catholics, 15-6. Veteran Eldon Stoutenburg pitched a four-hitter to best John Maharg. Mike Murphy cracked a home run and Stoutenburg helped his own cause with a pair of hits. Clark Erla banged a pair of hits for the losers.

In the opening game of the tourney, Shabbona edged Church of Christ, 10-9. Severance out-pitched Don Englehart for the victory. Lee Hartel hit a home run for the losers.

In the nightcap, Colwood notched an 11-8 decision over Deford as Dale Smith won over Gary Kelley. Lowell Smith hit a home run while collecting two hits. Others with two hits were Dave Smith, Roger Burk, Dale Smith, John Graham and Don Smith.

FOR THE SECOND STRAIGHT year the Catholics won the regular season championship. Their name will be on the large traveling trophy and they will keep the smaller season's championship trophy.

Funds allocated for food program

The U. S. Department of Agriculture announced that $115,020 has been allocated to Michigan this fiscal year (July 1, 1971-June 30, 1972) to assist in administering the food distribution program for low-income families.

Michigan's portion is part of $19.7 million which will be made available to 35 states, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, Samoa, the American Trust Territories, and Indian reservations designated as distributing agencies. The total amount, provided under Section 32 funds, is the same as that allocated last fiscal year.

Play it cool
this summer...and benefit next winter, too.

How? With good insulation, properly applied.

How much insulation? More than the usual one or two inches, certainly. Full insulation is anywhere from three to eight inches thick depending on structural details and location. A well-insulated home is especially important if you've decided to install electric heat. Keep heat at home during the winter and outside all summer with good insulation.
