Diet Watchers tackle 'weighty problem' weekly

By Pat Drouin

The crucial moment had come. A simple scales stood between agony and happiness for some 30 Cass City women involved in the Diet Watchers program.

As the women drifted in for the meeting, they anxiously watched as Mrs. Judy Eskilsen adjusted the weights. For some, a general sigh of relief went out. They had lost anywhere from a half pound to three pounds. For others, only a groan.

Phase one--the weigh-in--had ended.

Now the women would confront the other dieters and receive a hearty applause for their success or strong disapproval for their cheating.

Such is a typical Diet Watchers meeting every Thursday night at the Campbell Elementary School gym.

Through a supervised diet plan some 25 to 30 women are attempting to help one another lose weight. For the majority of them it seems to be working.

Betty Carmer has lost 68 pounds since the program first started in March. She attributes part of her success to the group therapy.

"The group therapy has helped a lot," Miss Carmer said. "It's all fat people getting together. We can laugh at one another, because we all have the same problem."

Miss Carmer joined Diet Watchers because she was just too heavy. "I couldn't tie my shoes," the attractive, now slimmer woman said. But, she emphasized, "I wouldn't have lost it by myself."

Many of the other women made the same statement. Alone the diet meant nothing. Combining determination, will power and group therapy, it worked.

"It's fun just listening to everyone," one dieter said. The women have discovered they have similar eating problems, dislike certain recipes and can help one another from cheating.

Mrs. Esther Reagh received a chorus of "boos" from the group when her three pound weight gain was announced. She explained to the dieters she had been on a vacation.

It didn't help.

Mrs. Reagh was declared the winner of Squiggle Wiggley, a rubber monster that has to go on the refrigerator door for a week. It serves as a visual reminder of her weight gain.

Mrs. Reagh has lost 15 pounds since joining July 8 and told of the typical meals she eats on the diet.

For breakfast, she may fix a poached egg, toast, orange juice and coffee. Lunch consists of tuna fish, five vegetables and fruit, and dinner may be beef or fish, more vegetables and fruit.

Mrs. Reagh said she sometimes "gets tired of some of the food," but never really discouraged.

The diet stresses about 24 vegetables that can be eaten in unlimited quantities and certain vegetables, beverages, fruit, meat and fish that are to be eaten a specified number of times during the week.

Noticeably missing from the diet are sweets of any sort.

Although the diet is not hard to understand or follow, Mrs. Donna Terrill said it takes about three weeks before it all fits into place for a dieter to know what to eat when, why, and how much.

Mrs. Terrill, who started Diet Watchers in Cass City, is presently on a maintenance diet that allows her to eat some of the "do not foods."

"It is much harder than the diet because it isn't so much can I have it? -- as should I have it?" she said.

Her husband was the prime motivator in Mrs. Terrill's decision to lose weight. He told her she was getting fat.

In most cases it has been the husband, family or friends that encouraged many of the women to stick to their diets.

Mrs. Eskilsen, assistant instructor for Diet Watchers, noted that her daughter gets mad at her when she cheats. She has lost 55 pounds through the diet since starting March 18.

She proudly wears a Diet Watchers pin with three diamond chips marking her weight loss achievement.

Health reasons brought some of the women to Diet Watchers, and even the simple task of not being able to cross their legs caused several to seek dieting help.

During the meeting, helpful hints are given to the women in the form of recipes, airing new ideas or just plain joking about their weight problem.

One woman explained how she disliked a cookie recipe given at a previous meeting. "I didn't like them nor did my family. In fact even the dog wouldn't eat them," she said.

To further stimulate weight loss, a contest with prizes was held and next week the women were told to wear a dress they wore when they first started on the diet.

Clothes have presented somewhat of a problem for most of the women. They refuse to buy new clothes until they quit losing. Since most of them don't know what their goal is to avoid discouragement, the future size is doubtful.

"I broke down and bought a pair of shorts a month ago and I've taken them in four times so far," Miss Carmer said.

A score card is maintained by the dieters that marks their progress in the program. The card is carefully tabulated and consulted each week as the women work toward the secret goal with enthusiasm and determination.

The program is not limited to just the female sex or a certain age group, although there are no men in the Cass City Diet Watchers.

Mrs. Terrill explained that a $5 membership dues is paid

Police report 4 robberies in 5-day span

Four robberies were reported to Cass City police within a span of five days.

Everett Phillips from the Western Auto Store, reported a .22 caliber revolver missing from a showcase, Friday, Aug. 27.

Tuesday, Aug. 31, Phillips again reported to police that four watches were missing from the same showcase. The watches and the revolver might have been stolen at the same time, Chief Gene Wilson said, but it is still undetermined.

The watches were valued at $90. The case is still under investigation.

Joe Pitowski of Detroit, reported that his All-State motorcycle was taken from a barn on the Porritt property at 6068 River Rd., Cass City, sometime during the night Friday, Aug. 27. The case is still under investigation.

A purse belonging to Sharon Pannunzio, of Ontario, Canada, was taken while she did her washing in the King Wash Laundry.

Police received a report from Miss Pannunzio that a young person had been using Canadian money in the area. The case is still being investigated.

Save milk as tanker overturns

A milk tank truck, driven by Gary Diebel, 19, 5319 Stein Road, Elkton, overturned on Koepfgen Road, one-tenth mile north of Cass City Road, north of town Friday, Aug. 27, at 8:00 a. m.

Diebel was not injured in the mishap and told authorities he lost control of the truck on the slippery pavement when the brakes apparently locked upon approaching the stop sign. It was raining heavily at the time.

"Things happened so fast, I can't remember just what did happen," Diebel said.

Bill Bliss of Cass City, owner of the truck, said the three tons of milk the truck was carrying at the time of the accident was saved when it was pumped into another milk truck.

Tuscola county sheriff's report said Diebel was driving too fast for conditions.

Michael A. Jackson, 18, Cass City, also escaped injury when he lost control of his car and struck a telephone pole at the intersection of Rescue and Moore Roads, seven miles southeast of Owendale.

Jackson told State Police from Bad Axe that he was headed south on Rescue Road and in the process of turning east onto Moore Road when the accident occurred.

Three persons were slightly injured Wednesday, Aug. 25, when a car driven by Olivia Torres, 49, N. Dodge Road, Gagetown, ran a stop sign at the corner of Koepfgen Road, hitting a car driven by Melvin Alvin Bukoski, 48, Munford Road, Uby.

Passengers in his car receiving minor injuries were Walter Parkaka, 55, Uby, and Harry Bukoski, Munford Road, Uby. The woman also received injuries.

She was going north on Koepfgen Road and hit the east bound Bukoski vehicle. She told authorities her brakes failed and she couldn't stop. The brakes were later checked and nothing was found wrong with them.

She was cited for failure to stop for a stop sign.

come homes and the proposed development codes.

The discussion took 1 hour and 20 minutes and at the end the codes were again tabled for further discussion by the council.

There are four codes--housing, plumbing, electrical and building--that were proposed at the June meeting. They are written by a national group and called the BOAC codes.

The present building codes of the village were adopted in 1947.

Discussion centered around the Rodarte homes and the permit for an OEO low-income home that is proposed to be built at 4711 N. Seeger Street. The permit was issued several weeks ago for the $21,000 federally funded home, to the Thumb Area Non-profit Housing Corp.

It was discovered at the meeting that the floor plans for the house do not meet the minimum requirements of the large-lot (RA-1) district in which it is to be built, and the permit was ordered to be held in abeyance until corrections are made.

The minimum floor area for that district is 1200 sq. ft., but the OEO home is only 1056 sq. ft.

The crux of the problem was inspection. The village cannot afford the skilled persons to do the job, but the council is going to investigate it further.

Adoption of the BOAC codes would have up-graded the low-income homes, but would not eliminate them, Superintendent Jim Blades explained, but the council and citizens agreed they wouldn't do much good unless there were inspectors to enforce the building code.

In other action the president, Lambert Althaver, appointed Dr. D. E. Rawson and Gladys Albee and Jim Ware, of the Chamber of Commerce board of directors, to a study committee for the purpose of investigating federal funds for building a new swimming pool after Ware spoke to the board about his own investigation of new swimming pools.

Superintendent Blades told the board that an inspector had made up a complete list of deficiencies Thursday, Aug. 26, but that the letter had not arrived yet.

There is a choice of reconstructing the pool or building a new one, after the State Department of Health recently closed the pool down. Talks with state officials have allowed it to remain open until after Labor Day, but in its present condition, it cannot be opened in the spring.

"It would seem like a wasted step and a waste of money to reconstruct," Blades said, and explained that 50% matching funds are available through the federal land and water conservation fund.

"If we move with diligence, we stand an excellent chance . . . I was advised a significant amount of money is available and no one has applied for it," he said.

The council also opened bids for the Garfield Street curb and gutter project, authorized the purchase of a gas tank for the village, and the purchase

Call right away, chief asks

Police Chief Gene Wilson told the village council Tuesday evening, Aug. 31, that the citizen complaints of noise have been coming too late for him to do anything.

Councilmen agreed that they had gotten complaints from citizens about noisy motorcycles, but usually a day or two after the incident.

A meeting was held Tuesday night, Aug. 24, between local police and half a dozen young men from Cass City who claimed they were being harassed by the police. A Chronicle reporter was barred from the meeting.

Wilson also said that most of the vandalism and theft done in the village was done by local kids.

Wilson urged that citizens call the police immediately when they see something wrong because he can't do anything afterwards.

Delay choice of fire hall bids

Announcement of bids for the new Elkland Township Fire Hall have been postponed to allow bidders to have more time in determining new prices for the building's construction.

Bids were opened at a meeting Tuesday, Aug. 24. Township supervisors then moved into a closed meeting to review the bids and decided to contact the three lowest bidders for new prices.

Township supervisor had hoped to announce the bid winners Tuesday, Aug. 31.

of a mobile Radio Extender unit for the police department, if federal funds can be obtained.

Lasky Construction Co. of Bad Axe had the low bid of $3 per lineal foot for the approximately 2600 feet of curb and gutter. It was unanimously accepted over a $4 per lineal foot from Barthel Construction Co. of Northville.

A special assessment roll will be made, and a hearing will be held Tuesday, Sept. 28, at 7:00 p. m. before the regular council meeting.

The council unanimously agreed to purchase on a bid basis a 1000 gallon gas tank and pump facilities for premium gasoline at an estimated $600 for use by police and village vehicles.

Blades said it would save about 10 cents a gallon. The gasoline is not included in that figure but will be contracted separately.

The mobile Radio Extender units will be purchased if federal matching funds of 75% are approved. They will allow the police officers to be in contact with both the Caro Sheriff's department and the base office at all times.

At the present time, whenever an officer leaves the patrol car he loses contact with them.

A letter of intent has been filed and accepted by the state, and Superintendent Blades said there was a good chance the

FROM THE Editor's Corner

The Tuscola County Career Center has been defeated by a substantial majority.

After the decision was in Supt. Don Crouse of Cass City said that the vote showed that the people are willing to operate under the present system rather than pay for an enlarged system.

I hope that he was right and this was the reason.

Certainly, every taxpayer has the right and obligation to weigh costs against benefits of any new program.

And if it's not worth what it costs, well fine.

Frankly, I lost my vote on the career center but the results don't shake me much. I was for it, but it was not a do or die issue with me.

But that's beside the point. What I fear may have been one major reason the facility was spanked so soundly at the polls was not that many of the voters weren't convinced of its worth but simply that they wouldn't even consider it reasonably.

There appears to be a growing group who look only at the cost. If it increases taxes, they say, vote no. Never mind the issue, never mind the program. Just consider, does it raise our taxes?

In these days of drought for the farmer, increased costs for businessmen everywhere and inflation taking a bigger bite out of weekly checks it's hard to be objective about digging down deeper for more money for taxes that seem to be sucked in like a leaf in a whirlpool leaving no visible traces before being gone forever.

It's hard, but we all should do it. If for no other reason, our own self-interest.

Economically and socially most of us are dependent on one another.

Our hospital, schools, industry, recreational facilities and business are interdependent.

They make up the community. One attracts the other for the mutual benefit of all.

That's why an adamant "no" vote on every issue is of concern.

If the taxpayers who carried the load before us had this same outlook there wouldn't be a Cass City.

It's fairly sure that the automatic no vote bloc isn't as strong in the eastern edge of Tuscola county as it is in other parts.

We have supported our local schools satisfactorily except for a brief period when we were on half days in the elementary school. All in all our track record is good.

Let's keep it that way. Vote on the issue on the ballot, not simply on the basis of the tax load.

That way we will all be ahead.

Freeze quandary - to pay or not to pay ?

School officials are in a state of "limbo" due to the recent freeze on wages and prices, Superintendent Donald Crouse said.

Although contracts were signed prior to the freeze announcement, teachers, administrators and other school employees will not receive their pay increase until attorneys can provide school officials with a legal ruling.

"We are taking a temporary position until something is declared," Crouse said.

In an unofficial communique to the school and a Sept. 6 article in the U. S. News and World Report, it would appear that school employees could qualify for the increase since at least one school administrator or employee had been working under the new pay scale as of July 1.

But until the official word is given, school employees' salaries will be based on last year's figures.

In terms of dollars and cents, it is impossible to give figures, but a first year teacher with no experience and a BA degree would have received $300 more or $25 per month.

On the other end of the scale, a teacher with a MA degree and 10 years' experience would have received an $800 increase or $66 based on a 12-month period.

In addition to the confusion over employees' salaries, the school budget remains questionable.

Normally by this time, officials have finalized the budget, but Crouse said, "we haven't even started work on it."

State aid, which has not yet been determined, may also come under the freeze, which is complicating the budget matters, the superintendent noted.

The scheduled increase in hot lunch programs also qualifies under the freeze. The five cent increase will not go into effect until official word is given, as prices remain at last year's level.

Arrest local for reckless driving

Several area persons were arrested this past week.

A 17-year-old Cass City boy was picked up with Thomas and charged with being a minor transporting beer. He was released on a $50 bond.

There were two winners in the snowmobile raffle sponsored by the Cass City Senior Class and ramrodded by ebullient Rick Erla, class president.

The winners were the class ($400) and Chief Gene Wilson, who held the lucky ticket in the drawing conducted Tuesday night. Susan Schott drew the ticket.

Every cloud has a silver lining. The recent storm that swept through the area causing damages estimated at $1 million or more has been a headache for property owners, utilities and insurance companies.

But it has been boom time for local appliance dealers in the antenna business. Cliff Croft of Croft-Clara said that his yard had been on a quota for roofing before the big blast and this week the demand was just too big for the supply.

Here's a twist. The Elwyn Helwig family has become golf bugs. . . so much so that Elwyn found a bargain in a 1968 model golf cart and promptly snapped it up for cruising Rolling Hills.

The family had it on the course the other day and you know what happened. The two kids rode and mom and pop walked.

Tentative figures released this week by Mike Weaver indicate that the first annual Western Round-up will net the Gavel, Lions, Rotary and firemen a profit of about $400. Figured on a time basis for the persons who planned and executed the whole event that should figure out to be about a penny an hour.

Don't infer by this that the men responsible don't think that it was worthwhile.

But in every successful event there has to be a small group willing to take charge and devote more time from regular jobs than they really can afford. . . and the Round-up was no exception.

Since I just got back from vacation Tuesday morning I didn't have the time to bore you with a story about an unusual Montanan and my fishing experience. But just wait until next week.

Rotary discussed ways of getting an added doctor in the community Tuesday noon. It was agreed that any attempt is doomed unless the entire community becomes involved enough to participate in a campaign.

The acuteness of the problem was driven home for me later Tuesday evening when one of the TV broadcasters reported that in Saginaw, Bay and Midland counties there is also an acute shortage of physicians.

What this means, of course, is that adding to our medical staff in Cass City should be regarded as a continuing program and one where results will appear at once.

We have to make the effort and continue making it regardless of the immediate lack of progress.

Teachers ratify new contract at Owen-Gage

A new two-year contract was ratified by the teachers association for the Owen-Gage school system Monday, Aug. 30.

The board of education had ratified the contract Tuesday, Aug. 24.

It provides for the same minimum starting salary of $7400 for a bachelor's degree and a maximum of $10,600, an increase over last year's $10,125.

For a master's degree, the starting salary is the same, $7900, with a maximum of $11,600, over last year's $10,625.

The contract has openers for salary and extra-curricular items only for next year. Everything else is set for two years.

The only other change is raising the insurance allowance to $40 per month for a family for health insurance only. The old contract let the teachers use their maximum $17.50 per month for any kind of insurance they wanted.

Superintendent Allen Fennell said he doesn't know if the new wage scales can be put into effect immediately or not, due to the economic freeze, but added that they are trying to determine the correct legal status.

Granaries predict low bean harvest

A grim winter may face the farmers as a result of too much rain too late.

With the bean harvest just beginning, the yield is yet undetermined, but area grain elevators predict it to be lower than usual.

"All crops are down this year," said Frank Schott of J. P. Burroughs & Son, Gagetown. "Usually a farmer can count on one good crop, but not this year," he continued.

The recent heavy showers following a summer of drought may result in a second growth of the bean crop, said Bob Wischmeyer of the Michigan Bean Elevator, Cass City.

"They'll be worse off because there will be green ones mixed with the regular harvest," he said.

But all this rain may not be bad. Schott said that the corn harvest might be helped a little, and the soil may be in better shape for wheat planting.

The farmers will just have to wait and see.

Never try to dictate the right-way in traffic—give it.

"If It Fitz. . ." Crop 'harvested' with guns

BY JIM FITZGERALD

"They are warm-hearted generous men who do not want to see lady deer and baby deer killed. And they are willing to put their money where their hearts are," said Frack.

He was talking about the commissioners of my favorite county. They had just given $400 to the local deer hunters association. The money will buy "No Doe Hunting" signs which will be distributed free to landowners who agree that women and children should be last when they are deer.

Frack is full of deer droppings. That $400 was tax money — my money. And the commissioners were not acting out of sympathy for poor Mama Deer and the kids. They were acting under pressure from a bunch of sports who are angry because they've had to drive home from too many deer camps without bleeding trophies strapped to their fenders.

The Great White Hunter's theory is that there aren't enough bucks for him to kill because the dumb state lets hunters kill does. If all the does are killed, who is going to mother the bucks? Not the game warden, by damn.

But the state says there are too many deer and "the crop must be harvested" before it starves to death, or dents fenders, or eats some farmer's corn (After the St. Valentine's Day Massacre, Al Capone explained that the victims had to be harvested before they fell dead of malnutrition, possibly in traffic, or started swiping the cops' apples off fruitstands). A pox on both the he-man sports and the "harvesting" state.

I don't begrudge the $400. In fact, I'd rather see 'em spend $800 and forbid all killing of deer, male, female or convertible.

To each his own sport. And I can see where shooting a gun is a sport. But why not shoot skeet or empty bottles on top of a fence? In my most liberal moments, I cannot understand the person who looks through the sight of a high-powered rifle, sees the soft eyes of an innocent deer, and pulls the stupid trigger. Look Ma, no head! Whoopie.

Would you believe golf is no fun unless you can hit a cow in the head with the ball?

And please, Mr. Hunter, don't ask me if I eat hamburger and prime rib. I can understand a slaughterhouse and it won't bug me until the butchering is featured on TV's American Sportsman with Rock Hudson knocking the steer's brains out with a golden hammer.

There's gotta be a difference between killing for pleasure, glorying in the bloodshed, and killing for food because there's no other way.

Some of my best friends go hunting but most of them insist they head north for the fresh air, fellowship and picturesque taverns. They wouldn't shoot a deer unless it attacked their waitress. God bless them, one and all. Waitresses should be preserved, even if not tipped.

But the animals should also be preserved. They should be killed only in self defense. (You can quote me at the next meeting of your neighborhood deer hunters association. But remember, there is no open season on newspaper columnists. We are at the top of the endangered species list.)

Maybe the state is right. Maybe an unharvested crop of deer will some day gallop down the freeway and eat all our food. I would only ask that you don't shoot until you see the whites of their tails in front of you in the A&P checkout line.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Draper

Miss Linda Kay Hicks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hicks of Decker, became the bride of Pfc. Edwin Lee Draper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draper of Clifford, Saturday, Aug. 14, at 8 p. m. in the Lamotte Missionary Church. The Rev. Fred Becknell officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, approached the altar wearing a white floor-length gown fashioned in lace and taffeta with a natural waistline and long lace sleeves. The veil was elbow length with petals of lace, trimmed with tiny seed pearls. The bride carried a white lace Bible with a white orchid on it.

Barbara Hicks of Decker, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. Ellen Moore of Kingston and Judy Zink of Farmington, cousins of the bride, were bridesmaids. Laura Hicks of Decker, sister of the bride, was the flower girl.

The attendants wore identical floor-length gowns in blue, pink, orchid and yellow satin and carried bouquets of mums to match their gowns.

Pfc. Jim Schoenauer, friend of the groom, was the best man. Ron Draper of Silverwood and Chuck Draper of Clifford, brothers of the groom, were the groomsmen. Billy Hicks of Decker, brother of the bride, was the ring bearer.

The altar was decorated with bouquets of mums and glads and candelabra. The organist for the ceremony was Mrs. Fred Becknell of Marlette. Soloist was Fred Walker of Kingston who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "We've Only Just Begun."

The reception immediately followed the ceremony in the church fellowship hall. Approximately 150 guests attended the wedding.

The groom is presently in the United States Army and the bride is employed at Marlette Homes in Marlette.

Stick shift is NOT obsolete!

By Kit McMillion

For most people, driving a car isn't hard once you get the hang of it. I've never had any trouble—until I came here, that is.

I had to learn how to drive a stick shift.

This sounds trivial to anyone who learned how to drive with one, but I was one of those pampered driver-training students. We had a super-automatic, power steering, power brakes, beautiful new car.

Mr. Haire has one answering the same description, but he took it with him on the family vacation last week.

So—I decided it was time to master the "Tank," as I have affectionately dubbed the Ford. It drives just like one.

I first took the Tank out about a month ago. Pat, the other reporter here and my friend, sat beside me while I practiced in the high school parking lot. Like a good reporter, she went beyond the call of duty, laughing with me and giving me instruction and encouragement, but I think she was a little scared at times, like every time I killed the engine at the stop signs or tore away from the traffic lights.

Ignition—"We're rolling backwards!" I yelled, laughing. Push in clutch, slam on brake. She started the car finally, after I killed the poor thing several times.

Now—push down on the clutch, shift into gear, give it a little gas, E-A-S-E up on the clutch—chug, chug, spurt.

And there I was slowly chugging around the lot in first gear, with the Tank sputtering its protest at my ungentle handling all the while.

I finally got going fast enough to shift into second gear, which isn't really so hard, then third.

Pat and I took the Tank out again a week ago, and after chugging around the countryside, I was beginning to feel very proud of my accomplishment.

Then it was back to the school parking lot to learn how to put the Tank into reverse.

The next day I had to take it alone to Caro. I stalled around most of the morning, but finally I decided that if other people could master shifting a car's gears, well, so could I.

So I got into the Tank, started her up—no problem—put her into reverse, and promptly killed the engine.

When the day was over, I'd only killed her about five times, and shimmy-shammed out of first gear about the same number. Not bad I thought.

I came back all smiles. I like the Tank now because it's always a contest to see which of us will get the upper hand. In fact, I like standard shift better than automatic. I can hardly wait 'til I can try four-on-the-floor.

Meow.

It's too bad life's problems can't hit a man in his teens when he knows everything.

Difference of opinion is no problem to people who know enough to split the difference.

Depend on your own initiative—too many people expect to get up in the world on the shoulders of their associates.

VINTAGE YEAR FOR CHRYSLER ROYAL

1974 Chrysler Six

ONE OF OUR BEST YEARS.
It takes something special to come up with a Vintage Year. But that's what '71 has been for Chrysler-Plymouth. We like to think our slogan "Coming Through" has had a lot to do with it, because it's our pledge, a dedication to one purpose: To come through with the kind of automobiles you want—in style, size and price—also in quality you can live with for years to come. A good example is Chrysler Royal.

OUR FINEST OF THE BIG.
Chrysler Royal did what few luxurious cars can do. It allowed people who put a premium on comfort and space to move up with ease. For despite its full Chrysler size and quality, here was the opportunity of driving Royally at our lowest Chrysler price.

NOW, A GREAT SELECTION COMING THROUGH FINAL CLEARANCE PRICED.
'71 has been a vintage year for Chrysler-Plymouth. Quality shines and shows in every line. A drive in a Chrysler Royal, Plymouth Duster, Satellite or Fury will prove how tight and sound our '71 models have come through. See our great selection. We think you'll agree: a quality car at a final clearance price is what "Coming Through" is all about for us. For you.

Clark Knapp gives library historical books

Twenty-one volumes of the Michigan Pioneer & Historical Collections were donated to the Rawson Memorial Library by Clark M. Knapp of Kalamazoo, former resident of Cass City.

The historical volumes, which record the early years and development of Michigan, were given in the memory of Dr. and Mrs. Sheldon B. Young.

The Youngs came to Cass City in November, 1918, from Caseville. Dr. Young practiced medicine here until his death in 1935, and was an active person in civic affairs.

The set was owned by the Youngs, who gave them to Knapp's mother, Mrs. Belle Knapp.

The old blue-bound books are available at the library, but will not be checked out because of their value and slightly fragile condition.

First hand accounts of events and life style are entered in the books, which begin with 1874 and continue to 1892.

Unfortunately, volumes 22 to 36 and three indexes to the set are missing.

Librarian Barbara Hutchinson said if anyone had these volumes, the library would be very pleased to get them.

The books were compiled by the Pioneer Society of Michigan for the purpose of recording this history.

They are interesting reading for those who like history or folklore, and will probably be of use in making family trees, as deaths and brief autobiographies are recorded.

There are also accounts of the Michigan area before 1874 that go back to the Revolutionary War, as well as copies of original documents dating far back.

Mrs. Hutchinson said that the library is also interested in obtaining copies of old high school year books as part of the historical collection in the library.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

With Labor Day coming up, Bug Hookum got to thinking about work, and this led him to consider all the folks out of work in this country. Bug allus has worked hard to steer clear of hard work, and he admitted to the fellers at the country store Saturday night that he found the hole subject painful.

But Bug allowed he had saw his duty and done it. He had come up with the Hookum Full-Employment Plan that was quicker than the old WPA and a sight more rewarding all around than the guaranteed income. Bug said his idee was going to pick this country up by the scuff of the neck, shake her good and set her on the road to greater glory. When Bug gets to sounding like he let some of the last revival meeting rub off on him, you can know he's on his high horse.

What Bug come up with is nationalizing that plan used by that bank this summer. Bug was of a mind if one bank can create 70 jobs, the country can pull together and clear out this logjam of unemployment. Bug was talking about the bank that got 8,000 checks chopped up by mistake, and had to put on 70 people to stick em back together.

Mistakes is the mother of inventions, said Bug. He explained that his Full-Employment Plan calls for chopping up the records of all the Government freeloaders. All we got to do, explained Bug, is to run all the records of all them give-away programs through one of them paper chompers like that bank's got, and then send out the word that we got to put the papers back together afore anybody can git any more dole.

According to his staties, Bug said, the money saved in payments would be enuff to pay the paper pickers more than the minimum hourly wage, with plenty left over to finish the interstate road system and do more than talk about clean air and water. And better than that, Bug went on, the paper pickers would have a real desire to put in a honest day's work cause the next record they got stuck back together might be theirs.

Ed Doolittle throwed cold water on Bug's plan. He said with the freeze in wages and prices, nobody was going by records. Everybody is just doing what they done yesterday and the day afore, Ed said, and he figgered handouts was froze at their present level like everthing else.

Practical speaking, claimed Clem Webster, we'd do better to make paper pickers out of ex-Congressmen. Clem said he had saw where practical all the Congressmen that got beat last year still was on the Government payroll, most of em at a higher wage.

Actual, Mister Editor, its allus been if you're in the party that's in and you know the right people, you can keep your head at the public trough.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

AROUND THE FARM
Grain contracting
2-way street
By William L. Bortel

Advance contracting of any farm commodity between the producer and buyer is a two-way street.

Both persons take risks and both have equal opportunity to gain extra dividends.

Generally, advance contracting advantages outweigh the disadvantages to both producer and buyer as this marketing system allows far more uniform marketing management practices.

Over the last two years we have seen more widespread participation in advance contracting of grain and navy beans and especially corn.

New corn contracts for the 1970 corn crop were lower than the board price after contract time due to a bullish corn market in 1970. This year's corn contracts guarantee a higher price than is presently on the board. These two cases really point out how and to what extremes in price one commodity can follow in one year's time.

Fortunately this type of extreme is not the rule but the exception. On one side of the ledger the corn producer would have been ahead not contracting in 1970 and contracting in 1971. If one had had the foresight and contracted corn in '71 but not '70 he could have possibly made fifty cents more a bushel in each of these two years. Realistically, it is doubtful this producer would have contracted his full corn crop regardless of price because generally a safe limit to contract is about 1/3 the possible total farm production annually. This 1/3 rule is not hard and fast, especially if the producer has a large carry-over of previous years corn. In this case he might contract a larger percentage of new corn. This contracting also guarantees a seller's market price and a chance to hedge on the futures market. At the same time the buyer is guaranteed a known quantity of corn at a known value. This allows the buyer to hedge also on the futures market plus negotiating with the people who buy from him.

Another advantage to advanced contracting is it can help prevent harvest time overflow at the elevators at this critical time. Experience has shown us that bogged-down, over-filled elevator storage caused depressed grain prices. Before you go off the deep end and contract wildly, adequate knowledge of and use of crop and livestock outlooks, future projections, etc. should be the rule. Lastly, always remember these contracts are legal and binding to both seller and buyer.

The big hazard which could cause the termination of advanced contracting will be where the buyer or the seller reneges on the contract. So, like I say, advance contracting is a two-way street—good for both buyer and seller.

4-H ACTIVITIES

4-H year begins soon

By Bernard Jardot

In order to have happy, active, interested 4-H members, we must be resolved to have happy, active, interested parents and leaders.

Now that our summer 4-H activities are nearly over and school is rapidly approaching, we would like to start off our fall program with a lot of enthusiasm and encouragement. To do this we must have the cooperation of the whole team - the member, the parent and the leader.

There are many areas for our youth to get involved in, and we hope they include much flexibility, innovation and individuality to be expressed and encouraged with our young people. These project areas include knitting, clothing, crafts, cultural arts, electrical, weather, woodworking, home design, veterinary science, conservation, safety, recreation and many others. Also a new project in the last year or so has been the snowmobile project that includes snowmobile operation and safety.

A wide variety of interest can be developed through our 4-H youth program. Young people eligible to enroll as 4-H members must be between the ages of 8 and 19. The new program year runs between October 1, 1971, and September 30, 1972.

If interested in getting more information about 4-H, contact your local 4-H club or contact me at the County Extension 4-H office, Civil Defense Center, Caro.

SMALL CHANGE

The only bright spot in these inflated times is that it's still possible to get five pennies for a nickel.

AGENT'S CORNER

Teach skills of parenthood

Mrs. Margaret Ross — Extension Agent

More children would grow up with a healthy, happy, responsible disposition if all fathers and mothers were taught the skills of parenthood.

Research has shown, for example, that the little things a mother does as she's rearing a small child definitely affect the development of that child. Effects show up about the second year. So much depends on the mother-toddler relationship during this early period.

The "most adequate" mother has skills which help her raise a child who is able to cope with the world. She encourages the child to be himself. She is an instinctive teacher. She helps him to grow to independence and responsibility.

In contrast, the "zoo-keeper" mother is tremendously organized but communicates poorly. She's concerned about the "right toys" for the youngster, but then goes off and leaves the child to play alone, untaught. The tender nurture of a mother is supported by the accompanying companionship of the child's father. Each parent can play a loving, teaching role. Most parents need training for this important job of parenthood.

Consumer protection not new; began 100 years ago

CONSUMER PROTECTION NOT NEW

Though many persons may have the impression the consumer protection sentiment now prevailing in many areas is a new concept, it really is not. Actually, it's been 100 years since state government first entered the field of consumer protection. Back in 1871 the Legislature established an Insurance Department in state government to regulate about 100 insurance companies which were doing business in the state worth $75 million annually.

Today, that department is part of the State Commerce Department and keeps tabs on more than 1,000 insurance companies which now do nearly $3 billion worth of business in the state.

Michigan voters were first presented with the idea of consumer protection back in 1870, when a constitutional amendment was placed before them giving the Legislature authority to "pass laws establishing reasonable maximum rates" for passengers and freight on railroads in the state.

The proposal was adopted by the voters and the state's first railroad commissioner, Stephen S. Cobb, took office on April 23, 1873.

Today, seven of the nine bureaus and commission of the Michigan Commerce Department are responsible for enforcement of hundreds of consumer protection laws which the Legislature has passed since it set up an Insurance Department 100 years ago.

One of these seven—the Public Service Commission—is a direct descendant of the office of railroad commission. It is responsible for policing all the public utilities in the state.

Four other agencies have their duties spelled out clearly in their names. They are the Cemetery Commission, the Financial Institutions Bureau, the Securities Bureau and Liquor Control Commission. The seventh agency—the Aeronautics Commission—has some regulatory powers but is principally considered a "developmental" agency.

The Financial Institutions Bureau would be the oldest agency in the Department of Commerce were it not for the fact that nearly every bank in Michigan folded soon after it became a state.

Michigan's first state Legislature established the office of Bank Commissioner in 1835 but abolished it in 1840 after most banks had failed in the panic of 1837. Nearly half a century went by before the office of Bank Commissioner was re-established in 1888.

COMPUTERS HELP GUIDE TRAFFIC

Small computers, no larger than a window air conditioner, are now at work providing an accurate, up-to-the-minute picture of traffic on urban highways in Michigan.

Three of the computers already are operating on highway installations in Detroit, Ann Arbor and Saginaw. Nine more will be installed over the next two years in major cities of southern Michigan where traffic is heaviest.

Statistics gathered by the computers, which are being paid for with federal highway planning and research funds, are used by the State Highway Department to plan and design highways, determine locations for traffic controls and estimate future highway usage.

The computers monitor traffic flow by picking up signals from loops of wire buried beneath each lane of a highway. These loops also serve for traffic signal control purposes. The vehicle count is stored in the computer's memory and is periodically transmitted by a telephone line to a central computer at department headquarters in Lansing. Traffic engineers can obtain the latest traffic counts merely by dialing a number.

Each computer can be connected with up to 16 different highway locations and will scan them simultaneously, thus making the system less expensive to operate than counters which must be attended individually by a person.

CONVICTION RATE HIGH

Tempted to hedge a little on your income tax return? Remember this statistic:

During fiscal 1970, the U. S. Justice Department's Tax Division secured convictions in 95 per cent of the tax cases it filed charges on.

Sentences for the more than 600 persons who were convicted during the year totaled 251 years in jail, 349 suspended years and 838 probation years. Fines totaled $1,652,043.

BETTER HEALTH

The human brain is the best computer

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Anyone who is scientifically inclined and is able to read fairly technical English might find much to interest him in a book called "Man and Memory: Breakthroughs in the Science of the Human Mind," by D. S. Halacy Jr. The "Most wonderful computer in the world is our brain -- a highly complicated apparatus with many of its workings not understood. As Halacy points out, we do not yet know much about the connection between the structural brain with its billions of microscopic cells, and our processes of learning and remembering and thinking and having ideas.

I have often been amazed by the fact that a man with a brain tumor can have an operation in which almost half of his brain is removed, and still he is able to go back to practicing medicine or law, performing almost as well as he did before his operation. And then I will see another man who, after a "little stroke" in which a tiny artery in his brain probably got plugged up with a clot and a very small amount of brain tissue was destroyed, may be unable to think clearly and may be so mentally dulled that he can never again do a day's work at his office or store. In many a case his wife will tell me that he is so changed in his personality that he is no longer her old friend and lover.

The memory is an amazing thing; for example, I have been blessed all my life with an excellent memory, but now at times, since I have reached 80, it takes me a couple of minutes to remember the name of a dear friend or the name of a commonly used drug. But still, many a time I will have an experience such as I had the other evening. My wife was working a cross-word puzzle and she said to me, "As a boy, you lived in Hawaii; what is the word for 'skill' in Hawaiian?" And instantly, I said, "Akamai." And then I marveled, because I left Hawaii in 1903 and I am sure that since then I have had no need for the word. How could it have been stored for 68 years in my brain, unused, and then how could I find it and express it as a word, all in a few seconds?

Also amazing to me is how I can remember with great vividness a fever dream I had when I was 3 years old. Also, when one patient, perhaps in a thousand seen at the Mayo Clinic some 30 years ago, interested me much, he made such an impression on me that I can still see him sitting in a certain room, and I can remember the essential details of the medical story that he told. Just how such memories are recorded and stored in the brain is still not understood.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION GENERAL

State of Michigan.
Probate Court for the County of Tuscola. File No. 21389. Estate of Jay C. Hartley, Deceased.

It is Ordered that on November 4th, 1971, at nine a. m., in the Probate Courtroom in the Village of Caro, Michigan a hearing be held at which all creditors of said deceased are required to prove their claims. Creditors must file sworn claims with the Court and serve a copy on Fred Auten of Cass City, prior to said hearing. Publication and service shall be made as provided by Statute and Court Rule.

Dated: August 19, 1971.
C. Bates Willis, Judge of Probate.
A true copy.
Beatrice P. Berry, Register of Probate.

My friend, Dr. Wilder Penfield, one of the greatest neurosurgeons today, found that if he touched and stimulated a certain area in the brain, the person would have a certain memory -- the same memory -- over and over again, similar to replaying a tape or reshooting a portion of a movie film. One day Dr. Penfield was operating on the brain of a man who complained that sometimes when his nerves were working badly, he heard a hallucination in the form of a man's voice that he came to know as "Charlie." When Dr. Penfield saw a bit of brain that looked diseased, he stimulated it electrically, and the man, under local anesthesia, said, "Hey, there's Charlie!"

Halacy tells of all the efforts that are now being made by able research neurologists to improve the memory and intelligence, especially of aging people. He tells of a drug -- magnesium pemoline -- that is now giving promise of someday being able to improve the failing memory of an aging person. Scientists are also trying to understand the brain better as more is learned about computers and the chemistry of the nervous system. The author tells also of astonishing experiments in which scientists have shown that some of the training that has improved the intelligence of one little animal can be passed on to another little animal simply by injecting some of the material of the brain of the first animal into the second animal.

This book will be fascinating to anyone who, like me, has often been amazed by the strange and wonderful things that the mind and the memory can do. "Man and Memory" was published by Harper and Row, 49 East 33rd St., New York, N. Y., and it costs $6.95.

What, if anything, can be done about those "little strokes" that can change personality so much? How do you recognize them? Dr. Alvarez answers these questions and many others in his booklet, "Little Strokes," include 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. CCC, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

A resolution to allow male jail occupants to help pick up debris after an emergency was authorized by the county during a delayed commissioners' meeting Tuesday, Aug. 31.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Can writing be frozen?

By Dan Marlowe

We've already had the joke about the man who, when asked if he was bothered by the wage-price freeze, replied: "The only thing that bothers me about it is being asked if I'm bothered about it."

The only thing that bothers me about it is wondering how they're going to police it in areas not highly visible by virtue of a fixed wage being paid, in the case of salaries, for instance.

Take writers, for example. I happen to know one. I've known him for 58 years, and his income—the varieties of it—has been known to amaze the Internal Revenue Service.

He gets paid for writing a newspaper column, a fixed wage, so in that category he's frozen just like everyone else.

But then he gets paid for writing short stories for magazines, varying from 3-8¢ a word, depending upon the magazine and his association with the editor. Presumably none of these magazines can pay him more per word than they have formerly, but it's difficult to establish a criterion, because two short stories of the same length by the same writer received by an editor on the same day might be paid for at different rates, depending upon how he liked them.

When this man writes books, his rate of payment depends upon two factors: The cover price of the book, and the size of the printing. A 75¢ cover price would return him 4% on each book sold up to the first 200,000 sold; 6% thereafter. Nothing too difficult there, but suppose a publisher decides now to re-issue a ten-year-old book? Must the cover price be the same as it was ten years ago, due to the freeze, or can natural ten-year inflation be applied? Or some part of it?

Sometimes the writer's books are condensed or serialized in magazines, usually for a flat fee. Presumably even on a book on which he can realize more money now his condensation or serialization fee is frozen at the amount last paid him.

But the real can of worms is opened when foreign sales are considered. For ten years his books have been translated steadily in major European markets: France, Germany, Italy, Sweden, etc. Again, presumably there would be no increase in sale price on books sold to these markets; but do foreign publishers abide by the U. S. price freeze?

And what about sales to new countries? Since April the writer has negotiated sales to Norway, Japan, Argentina, and Holland. These contracts have been signed, and presumably any future sales to them would necessarily be at the same price, until the freeze is lifted. But a contract is now being negotiated with a Greek publisher for the sale of 5 books. Since this sale will establish the floor for all future Greek sales, wouldn't the writer be justified in driving a harder bargain now to protect himself against the freeze?

One thing is sure. To police this one writer's sales would take four men and a boy from the OEP office, so how is there going to be any semblance of reasonable policing in areas so subject to differentials in case to individual cases?

It boggles the mind.

VILLAGE COUNCIL

village would get the funds.

The cost of two of the repeater units would be about $1600. With the federal funds, the village would have to meet only about 18 3/4% of that, because the state also must meet 6 1/4%, Blades explained.

Blades reported on the damage done by the recent storm and said that about 100 trees would have to be removed. Beginning next week they will start marking them with yellow.

A speed limit ordinance was directed to be drawn up by the village attorney, Clinton House, because at present there is not one on the books. Blades suggested that the limit would be reduced from 35 miles per hour to 25 mph from Garfield to the village limits south of town.

Make it a point to see that a shady past is past—strive to build a new future.

3 new classes, 21 new teachers mark school's early opening

Cass City students trudged back to school Monday, Aug. 30, ending their three-month vacation a week earlier than usual.

Classes were held for a half day Monday afternoon and full day sessions began Tuesday. Expected enrollment for the school year is 2,025 students, an increase of 43 students over last year, according to Superintendent Donald Crouse.

The early return to school was decided during teacher negotiations in order for the teachers to have a week off during spring vacation.

Few changes have been made in the system's curriculum, Crouse said, with only the addition of three new classes and general updating of textbooks.

High school students will be able to select an ecology, electronics or second year drafting course. The auto mechanics course also received a bonus through the aid of a Cass City High School graduate, Dave Asher.

Asher, an engineering apprentice at Pontiac Motors, worked for a year and half to secure a developmental car for the use of the mechanics class.

The 1971 Grand Prix will be used by the class for tearing down and rebuilding the various car systems.

It is the first time the auto mechanics class has had a car to work with and one of three cars ever to be donated by Pontiac for such use.

In addition to class changes, some 21 new teachers joined the Cass City school system, 17 of which will begin their first year assignments at Cass City.

New teachers at the high school are: Ross Beach from Gagetown, who graduated from Michigan State University and holds a MA degree and five years' teaching experience. He will teach vocational agriculture.

Brenda Breidinger is from Berkley, Mich., and attended Central Michigan University, holding a BS degree in education. She will be the girls' physical education teacher.

Michael Bushbacher attended Western Michigan University and has a BS degree. He is from Detroit and will be teaching industrial arts.

George Bushong is from Redford township and attended Northern Michigan University. He holds a BME degree and will be teaching instrumental music.

Jacqueline Hoover of Flushing holds a BS degree from Western Michigan and will be teaching commerce.

Gwendolyn Hughes graduated from Saginaw Valley College, holding a BS degree in mathematics. She is from Bay City.

Holding a BS degree from Kansas State University, Sheila Kolb will be a chemistry and physics teacher at the high school. She attended high school in Miltonvale, Kan.

Karen Krauss of Sebewang attended CMU and will be teaching speech and English. She holds a BS degree.

Teaching at the Intermediate School will be Diane Foe, a graduate of Albion College with a BA degree. She will be teaching fifth grade and is from East Grand Rapids.

Diane Freiburger of Cass City will be teaching home economics and English. She attended CMU and holds a BS degree.

Julie Kile will be teaching science and holds a BS degree from Western Michigan. She attended high school in Battle Creek.

New teachers at the Campbell Elementary School are: Linda Gray from Deford, who attended MSU and CMU. She holds a BS degree and will be teaching fourth grade.

Sue Opal of Cass City graduated from Spring Arbor College, holding a BA degree. She will be teaching third grade.

Mary Peterson attended Northern Michigan, holding a BS degree in education. She will be teaching first grade. She has had one year of experience at the Elmore School in Green Bay, Wis., and attended high school in Manitowish, Mich.

Jan Thomas, from Troy, attended Ferris State College and CMU where she received a BS degree. She will be teaching first grade at Campbell.

New teachers at the Deford Elementary school will be: Carol Bradley of Howard City, who graduated from Grand Valley State College, holding a BA degree. She will be teaching third grade.

Martha Butcher has had one and a half years of teaching experience and holds a BA degree from CMU. She is from Caro and will be teaching kindergarten.

Emma Ackerman earned her BA degree from CMU and has had one and a half years' teaching experience. She is from Cass City and will be teaching fourth grade.

New teachers at Evergreen this year are: Barbara Custer, who holds a BA degree from MSU. She will be teaching first grade. She attended high school in Heidelberg, Germany.

Sudie Hicks earned a BA degree from MSU and will be teaching fourth and fifth grade. She is from Madison Heights, Wis.

Holding a BA degree from Western Michigan University, Suzanne Olinyk will be teaching third grade at Evergreen. She attended high school in Albion.

when dieters first join, followed by a $2 weekly charge. Although the program is fairly new to this community, she feels that it has been well accepted by residents and local doctors.

June Baranie of Caro, a member of the Cass City group for several months, now plans to start her own group in Caro in late September, suggesting the continued growth of the plan.

As the program continues to operate in Cass City, many of the women are beginning to show visual signs of its success.

They seem to accept the diet with enthusiasm, determination and will power.

"Oh, sure, you crave stuff," Miss Carmer said, "but you just have to make up your mind you're going to lose weight."

No one could possibly convince Miss Carmer otherwise. She isn't alone in her struggle. If such will power continues among the Cass City women, Diet Watchers may just "lose" itself one local chapter and gain many slim alumnae.

SQUIGGLE WIGGLELY goes to work every week as a visual reminder to members for gaining the most number of pounds. He "does his thing" on the refrigerator door.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

The Cass City Village Council authorized the removal of 50 diseased Elm trees on Maple, Elm and North Seeger Streets. The council also authorized the installing of one-hour parking meters on Main, Seeger and Maple Streets.

Dackerville Road from Colwood to Orr Roads will be closed so that the three-month construction of a new bridge over the Cass River can begin. Twenty-five boys reported for football practice at the first meeting, with six letter winners returning.

TEN YEARS AGO

Cass City School District voters turned down a request for 2 additional mills for operating expenses by a vote of 413 to 317, in spite of an organized campaign by a "Save Our Schools" committee.

George Clara of the Cass City Gavel Club appeared before the village council to ask if they would accept maintenance of a permanent sign and gateway to the Recreational Park if the Gavel Club constructed it. The council did not approve it at that meeting. The first church census in over a decade has been launched by the Cass City churches.

The Cass City School District failed in an attempt to get the village council to let them use the village-owned athletic field rent free for one year. It would have saved about $850.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

There are 551 unemployed persons in Tuscola county according to the Unemployment Compensation Commission.

Orlando LeValley, one of Michigan's 4 remaining Civil War veterans, was among the 11 members of the Grand Army of the Republic to attend the 80th national encampment at Indianapolis, Indiana.

All Cass City High School football games have been scheduled away from home because the field is to be graded in September and October.

The Automobile Club of Michigan has joined police with a plea of "take it easy" on the crowded highways of the Labor Day week end.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Majorie LaFave and her identical twin sister, Marion, of Elmwood township were crowned Bean Queens at the Bad Axe County Fair.

The Cass City Ladies' Band played in concert as a featured program on Cass City Day at the Tuscola County Fair. Conditions for the hog calling contest have been set down for the Michigan State Fair.

1. Volume--30 points.
2. Variety--20 points.
3. Charm or appeal to the hog--20 points.
4. Originality--10 points.

$536,000 hospital addition*Construction progresses on new wing

Progress on the new Hills and Dales Hospital addition is going very well, according to Byron Landholt, hospital administrator.

Contractors for the $536,312 addition have not issued progress reports to date, but reports are expected by Tuesday, Sept. 7.

Landholt said that the contractors have experienced no problems to cause them to fall behind schedule.

No official date has been set for completion, but Landholt hopes work will be finished by late spring, 1972.

Work on the hospital has been broken into three stages, the administrator said, with stage one being the building of the new west wing; stage two, the addition to the emergency facilities, and stage three, the remodeling of the inside, primarily to the present south wing.

At the moment the contractors are working on stages one and two, which has presented few problems to the staff or patients, Landholt noted.

Major remodeling work to the south wing, however, will cause problems, Landholt said. He hopes the new wing will be completed before the inside work is begun in order to compensate for some of the inconveniences that will arise.

Although the addition will net a gain of 10 more beds, more patient room was not a crucial factor for the hospital.

State hospital licensing officials had threatened to remove the hospital's license, unless changes were made in the facilities.

The nurses' surgical changing area, cramped laboratory facilities and insufficient storage area received major criticism by the licensing officials.

Through the addition, "we will be bringing the hospital up to date," Landholt said.

Greater office space will be available, expansion of the laboratory and medical library will be made, as well as renovation of the surgical and intensive care units.

A recovery room will be added and a second elevator will be installed. Emergency room facilities will also be expanded to include two emergency rooms, a small office and a waiting room.

MAKE-BELIEVE

This is make-believe... tying a bundle to a stick and pretending to set forth on a great journey. His lively little imagination glows. Maybe, right around that bend in the road, he'll run smack into a big brown bear...

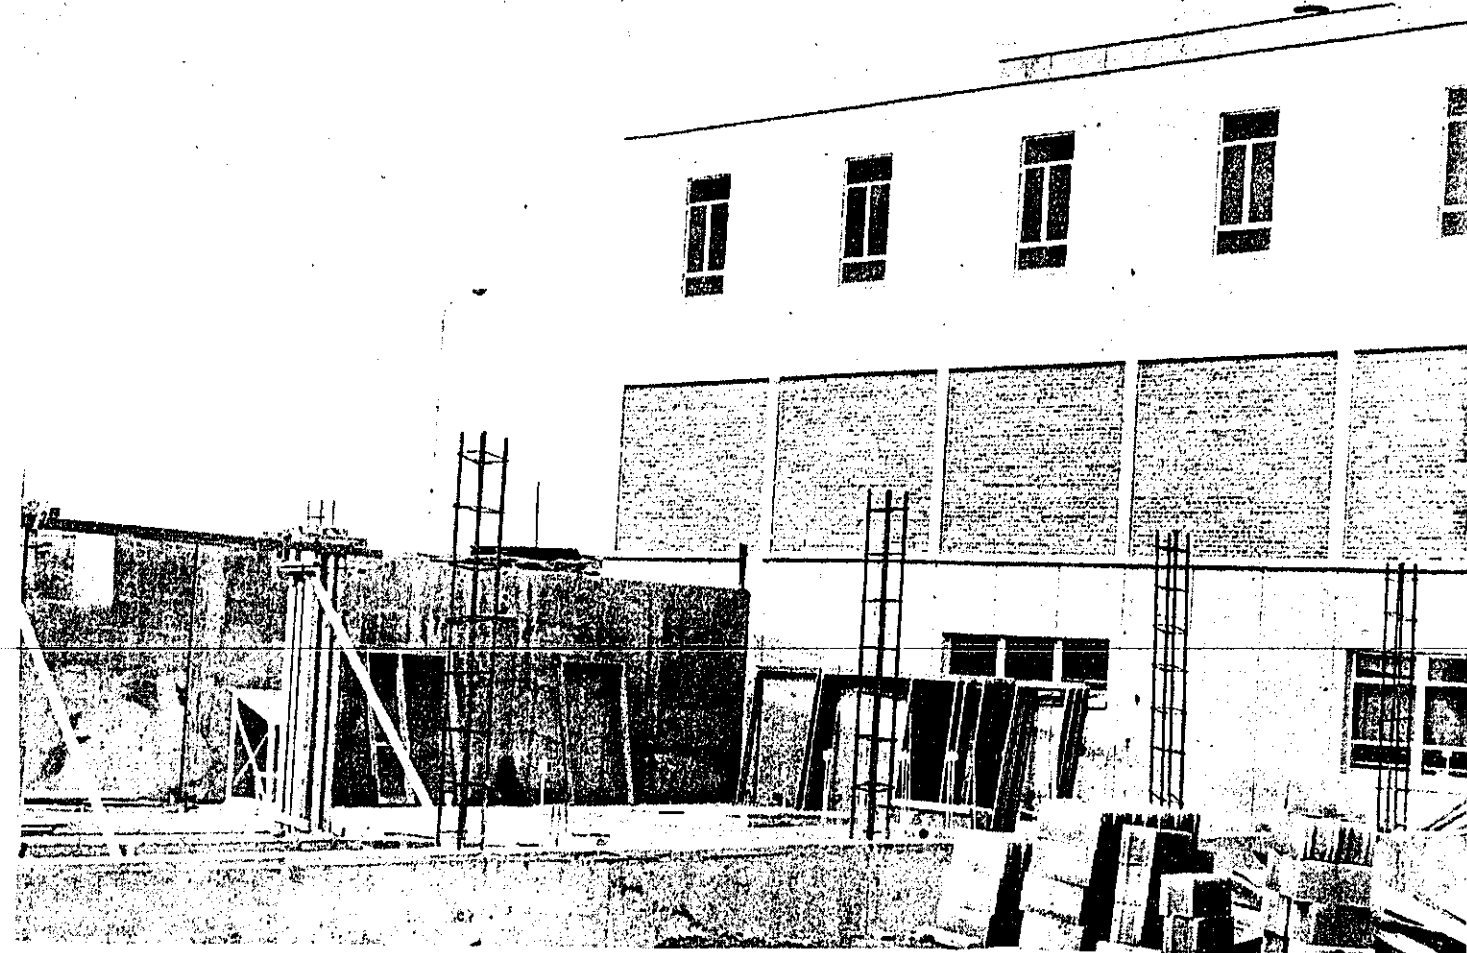

That's a "scary" idea. So he takes off his hat, puts down his bundle, and plays at home. Yes... it's fun to make-believe.

Home, just now, is his place. In it, he feels a wonderful sense of security, basking in his parents' love, knowing by instinct that they are there to help and guide him.

At night when he kneels to say his prayers, his mother tells him the story of Christ. She is preparing him for the day when he will become a more active part of the Church. She knows that, during his life, when he makes real journeys, the Church will be his home, and that it will help protect and guide him when she cannot.

PROGRESS ON THE new west wing of Hills and Dales Hospital is moving along on schedule, as contractors continue construction on the new $536,000 addition.

Landholt defends hospital care

August 26, 1971

Mr. John Haire, Editor
Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, Michigan

Dear John,

The letter from the dissatisfied employee highlights the problems all hospitals face today, a shortage of skilled help and money.

Our Board has made every effort to measure the quality of care, while keeping the costs down. Hills and Dales Hospital continues to exceed all licensing and inspection requirements, is fully approved by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, thus by all known standards renders superior care to all who enter its doors.

We appreciate honest and constructive criticism, and welcome anyone's comments which would improve our community hospital.

Sincerely,
H. Byron Landholt
Administrator

Letters to Editor*4-time patient lauds care and help at hospital

8-30-71

Mr. John Haire
Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, Mich.

Dear John,

Yes, this is a "Dear John" letter in response to the "Withheld name" letter in the Chronicle re Hills and Dales General Hospital.

To withhold the name of the writer, and from the trend of the letter, suspicion, in my opinion, would be thrown on employees of the hospital as well as patients.

I'm writing now, not as a former employee but a patient's view point. I have been in that operating room 4 times since 1960 and the last time just one month ago and I have never heard objectionable language there. I have never seen the hospital in anything but exceptionally clean condition. Of course we are all human and all of us cannot be pleased at all times with everything and these complaints are personal and should not effect an institution as a whole.

In my opinion the Housekeeping Dept. are doing a good job and have not been cut back unnecessarily.

In ceasing will say I feel I owe my recent recovery to the type of care from all departments I received and I feel if each patient stopped to analyze their complaints they will pertain just to them and not to the hospital or the public.

Lucille R. Wotton
Cass City, Mich.
