

FROM THE
Editor's Corner

An assignment for Senior students, in government, at Cass City High School last week was to listen to a network television "quarterly report".

The program is a review of news topics of the past three months and since we have only one set I monitored the program with my daughter.

Many times TV does outstanding work with documentaries and news shows but frankly, the kids may have been better off watching The Beverly Hillbillies than the "quarterly report". Hillbillies is an asinine show, but then that's what you expect from the pure corn shows of this ilk.

From a news show you expect a little better. Much of the program was devoted to an assessment of capital punishment.

And certainly here is a topic that can stand review and a rational scholarly presentation. But television used much of the time showing flashes of the electric chair and other dealing devices of the State.

Almost certainly the directors were after an effect. To show the stark gruesomeness of the system. When not flashing the electric chair on the screen in dizzying sequences the program interviewed person after person on death row and how it feels to wait for death.

About this time, it's certain that those opposed to the death penalty will be assuming that I favor it.

Not true. But as a minor member of the communication media I am in favor of reporting that presents the facts and then backs off and lets the viewer (or the reader) decide.

The only subjects favoring capital punishment that were allowed air time (and this was carefully brought out) were the parents of a victim or a murderer.

I just couldn't help but feel that the program would have been so much better, or in the term of the day, "viable", if the networks had gone to persons in the field for opinion. To law enforcement officials, judges, probation officers, to sociologists and clergymen. To professionals in the field. . . pro and con.

Asking convicted murderers or parents of victims to assess the system is like asking a home town football fan to assess the coach after his son has been kicked off the team.

And while this assessment is of just one segment of the show the rest didn't appear much better. Mostly it was a tired resume of what had been reiterated many times before.

Maybe the next time the class gets an assignment it will be on the First Tuesday which is switching to the fourth Friday for fall programming.

The First Tuesday show has been imaginative and informative.

It's a sample of what TV can do when it doesn't miss the way.

FIREMEN FIGHT the blaze that destroyed the Harold DeLong home on Mushroom Road in rural Deford, Friday, Sept. 10. Fire of unknown cause resulted in a total loss.

Owners absent when fire destroys home

A fire of unknown cause gutted the Harold DeLong home of rural Deford Friday afternoon, Sept. 10.

No one was home when the fire began in the wood frame house, 6 miles south and 2 miles east of Cass City. Elderly neighbors to the east called the Steve Skripick home to tell them they thought they saw smoke and asked them to investigate.

Church money theft traced to juveniles

The theft of $120 in checks and $50 cash from the Cass City Assembly of God Church is still under investigation by local police.

Three juveniles have been questioned in connection with the incident, and two admitted they took some of the money, but Police Chief Gene Wilson said he thinks there is still another involved.

The theft was discovered Wednesday evening, Sept. 8, when evening services were held. The church is located at Sixth and Leach Streets.

The thieves apparently just walked in, according to the Rev. Norman Gills, pastor of the church. He said the door was usually locked, but there were no signs of breaking in.

One of the juveniles who has admitted taking some money told Wilson he had been in the church twice on Monday, Sept.

6, and Sunday had taken $20 from the Church of Christ Church, Wilson said. He is being turned over to juvenile authorities and has had previous offenses.

The boys denied taking any checks.

A forged check was cashed at the Pinney State Bank Monday, Sept. 13, and traced to a young girl, Wilson said he thinks the girl was asked to cash it by another person.

The incident is still under investigation.

A portable stereo set valued at $125 was reported taken from the Schneebarger TV Sales and Service warehouse in the alley between Main and Church Streets.

The theft was discovered Thursday, Sept. 9, by Russell Schneebarger.

Chief Wilson said he had no leads in the case. It is under investigation.

Food was also more expensive, although Brenda thought it was about the same per cent of a person's income.

"Most of the people I knew, I met at work. You don't talk to people you see on the sidewalk," she explained. Nevertheless, she said, "I've got more friends out there than here."

Calling herself shy, she said she usually had a hard time making friends. "But in New York I'm different. And I worked with different kinds of people," she emphasized.

"There's more things for young people to do, but they aren't different," the young woman said.

"You can say, 'Let's go out to eat and see a show,' and go. Like Broadway. Here that sounds like 'Wow!' but there it's nothing. New York is supposed to be so great, but the people there don't consider it much," Brenda said.

She explained that she was impressed when she saw Hugh O'Brien and Cassius Clay in the restaurant, but the people don't think it is such a "big deal."

fire department.

The call was received by the Elkland Township Fire Department shortly after noon. Kingston and Caro departments assisted in fighting the blaze, but complications set in when they had trouble with the water pumps when refilling the tanker trucks from a pond about a mile south of the fire.

A delay of half an hour caused much of their work to be repeated as the flames again spread.

Caro Fire Chief James Stapleton removed the electrical meter from the house to cut the current.

The DeLongs arrived home at 1:38 p.m. Grief brought both to tears as they saw everything they owned go up in flames. The house was a total loss, although several pieces of water soaked furniture were saved.

DeLong said they'd been with his uncle to Romeo where they'd purchased some vegetables. Neighbors' efforts to locate them earlier had been futile.

Steve Lasko, who holds a mortgage on the building, said that DeLong had just recently completed remodeling the downstairs. They had just bought a new washer and dryer, also.

It was the first home they owned, he said. They moved in about last March.

The four elderly women from Wahjamega Caro State Hospital, the DeLongs care for, were in the camper trailer with them. No one was injured.

Earlier a fireman had saved a cat and her kitten from the basement of the burning building.

Brenda first went to New York on a senior class trip from high school.

"I just hated it then. We only saw parts, and they took us to Harlem and the Bowery. But it's different to live there."

She went the first summer with a friend. Before that her only job had been with the Chronicle.

"At first I didn't like it. I was scared, but after a while you get used to it," she explained.

She had to be at work by 6:45 a.m., which meant taking the 6:10 a.m. subway.

"The 6:10 rush is almost all men, factory workers mostly. It bothered me at first, and I hated it, but towards the end I got over it," she said.

"You have to be careful, but I feel safer in New York than in Detroit," she added.

She said she's glad to be going back to school so she can finish her education and get a good job. She's now in math but plans to change to business or accounting.

"I hated being a waitress, but you meet a lot of people that way," she said.

School board to probe for expansion land area

Supt. Don Crouse told members of the Cass City School Board Monday night that an ever expanding school population makes it necessary for the district to look for more school site for future expansion.

Speaking at the regular meeting of the board at Cass City High School, Crouse revealed statistics that showed that students have been increasing at an annual average rate of 46 children since the 1963-64 school year.

He said that the school enrollment in 1964 was 1,240 students. We added 400 pupils when Evergreen and Deford joined the system, he said, and today we have an enrollment of 2,030.

We are using about 1 1/2 rooms more each school year.

Crouse stressed that the school is not overcrowded now. But it is full.

Mrs. Bernard Freiburger, Campbell elementary principal, said that she feels that her building is uncomfortably full right now.

Intermediate Principal Robert Stickle said that there is one empty room in his building and there are several rooms available in the high school if classes are reshuffled. Evergreen has one room unused. Deford school is full.

While building space is not critical now, there is a need for more playground space to serve the existing buildings.

Some 1,200 children crowd the facilities beyond capacity during noon hour and recess periods.

There is a safety hazard as deliveries are made in areas where children play.

Crouse would like future expansion of the system to be in a central location. He stressed that he felt that the neighborhood schools, Deford and Evergreen, were fine and will remain. But for economical operation, schools centrally located are better. Schools not centrally located result in a longer day for students on buses as they must wait while students are loaded from other buildings.

The superintendent said that he is outlining the problem now so that the board will have time to investigate available sites.

The preferred site is north of Campbell elementary and is now owned by Dr. H. T. Donahue.

After a site and a price are agreed upon, tentative plans call for the proposition to be presented to the taxpayers for a short term bond issue to pay for it.

A site purchased now will probably never be worth less than it is today, it was generally agreed by the board.

After planning for the future the board turned its attention to preserving buildings in use now. Three bids for new doors at the three entrances to the Intermediate building were opened. The board accepted a bid from United Glass Co. for the doors installed for $5,200.

ROUTINE WORK

Trustees devoted much of their time to routine work. They approved contracts for George Bushong, instrumental music; Jacqueline Hoover, commercial, first semester; Suzanne Olmyn, Evergreen third grade; Mrs. Lucy Auten, library, and Barbara Custer, first grade, Evergreen.

A petty cash fund of $1,500 was authorized so that minor purchases can be made and paid with checks signed by the bookkeeper or the superintendent. They will be subject to board review and approval.

In the past it was impossible for the school to buy and pay cash for minor purchases and the system had been a nuisance to local businesses.

The board okayed up to $50 for meat and its preparation for the annual teachers' picnic.

Two discarded school buses were sold to the highest bidder. The 1964 model went to Joe Ray of Marlette for $420. The 1963 bus was sold to Charles Hewlett for $350. Hewlett's bid and a bid from Bible Baptist Church of Marlette were the same. Since Hewlett lives in the district his bid was accepted.

Results of Michigan assessment tests were revealed. The tests were of last year's fourth and seventh grades.

Compared with the remainder of the rural area schools in the State, Cass City was at or near the median in the various scholastic divisions of the exams.

Area accidents

Ubly girl, 3, dies in crash

Accidents the past week claimed the life of a 3-year-old Ubly girl and injured several others.

Paula Jean Bensinger, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice R. Bensinger of Nugent Road, Ubly, was killed when she was thrown from a car driven by her father.

The fatal accident occurred Sunday, Sept. 12, at 5:50 p.m. at the intersection of Atwater and Parisville Roads at Parisville, when the car driven by Maurice R. Bensinger, 23, was struck by one driven by Clement J. Messing, 50, of Ruth.

Huron county sheriff's officials said Bensinger told them he was going north on Parisville Road and had stopped at the stop sign, but failed to see the oncoming Messing auto going east on Atwater. Atwater does not stop at that intersection.

Messing told authorities he saw the car and, although he was slowing down for the 35 mile an hour village speed limit, he was unable to stop and avoid the accident, hitting the Bensinger car in the left front.

The Bensinger vehicle skidded into the stone and cement support section of a gasoline station at the northeast corner of the intersection, shattering the section.

The body of the little girl came to rest near the left front wheel after being thrown from the car.

The Messing auto skidded towards the east.

Bensinger and a passenger, Richard Beaver, 24, of Ubly, were treated for bruises and abrasions at Huron Memorial Hospital and released.

Messing, his wife, Donna, 46, Mrs. Jacqueline Schumacher, 27, of Harbor Beach and 10-month-old daughter, Francine, were treated for minor injuries at Harbor Beach Community Hospital.

Robert C. Kappan, 3192 E. Cass City Road, Cass City, received injuries when he lost control of his car and it rolled over.

The accident occurred Wednesday evening, Sept. 8, at 8:15 p.m. Kappan was going south on Koepfgen Road. Tuscola county sheriff's report said he approached the stop sign at the Bay City-Forestville Road at a high rate of speed, lost control of the vehicle and rolled over.

He was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital, Cass City, and was discharged Friday, Sept. 10.

Thelma Schwaderer of Seeger Street, Cass City, backed into the parked car of Glen Atfield, of Cass City, Thursday, Sept. 7, at 2:30 p.m.

The Atfield auto was parked at the curb when the other vehicle backed out of a side street and bumped into it.

County bans doe shooting

An ordinance prohibiting doe hunting in Tuscola county was passed unanimously by the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners Tuesday, Sept. 14, at a regular meeting. All members were present.

Ed Golding, representing Elmwood, Elkland, Ellington and Novesta townships, said the ordinance had to go to the governor for approval, and would become effective immediately if and when he approves it.

This ordinance is in conflict with the state ordinance which allows doe hunting.

The commissioners earlier had renewed their stand against the antlerless deer hunting and had approved up to $400 for the printing of signs for citizens to post on their property.

Golding said these were not yet done.

In other business, plans to obtain money under the federal Emergency Unemployment Act of 1971 were discussed.

Golding said Tuscola county is a distress area. Employment Security Commission figures for August show 9.8% unemployment, or about 1285 persons.

Representatives from the Tuscola County Road Commission, Intermediate School District, Sheriff's department and the County Extension Office appeared before the board to discuss plans for the use of $213,900 in federal funds to be used for work programs to hire the unemployed.

A special meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 21, at 10 a.m. for township, county, village and city officials to discuss and present work plans.

water runoff

Grant Hutchinson, the owner of Rolling Hills Golf Course adjacent to Cass City High School, and the engineer who designed the athletic field at the school are at odds over the flow of water from the newly prepared surface.

Hutchinson appeared before the school board Monday night and claimed that the changes in the school property had diverted and accelerated the flow of ground water from the school property to his golf course placing the eighth fairway under water.

Supt. Don Crouse presented an opinion by Engineer Don Williamson that said that the flow of water had not been changed by the work and that a topographical survey had been made before the work started indicating that the change in ground slopes would tend to slow run off.

Crouse said that there could be a slightly faster flow of ground water now because there is temporarily no grass at the site because of construction work.

Trustee Don Koepfgen said that he felt that there would be other work there and that he was in favor of installing a drain that would reach to the pond on the golf course.

Others were not so sure and desired further investigation. As a result, Koepfgen and Trustee Gerald Hicks will serve on a committee with Hutchinson and Crouse to investigate and report to the rest of the board.

New guidelines set for school

lunch subsidy

The new guidelines for the school not lunch programs were reviewed by the Cass City School Board in its regular session Monday night.

According to authorities of the Office of Economic Opportunity, each family must be notified of the program and a review and appeal agent for each application appointed.

The guidelines call for families with incomes of $2,045 to $8,780 to qualify for aid with either partially paid or fully free meals.

Last year, Supt. Don Crouse reported, 200 of the 900 daily average meals were distributed under the program.

For each free meal given, the Federal government reimburses the school 30 cents.

Last year the cafeteria experienced a deficit of about $1,000 and the board raised the prices 5¢ for the current year.

However, because of the freeze the raise was temporarily revoked. Prices are 40¢, 45¢ and 60¢ now.

The school has little choice other than to follow the guidelines suggested by OEO officials. If they do not comply the Federal subsidy of the program is discontinued.

6 months in New York and she'd go back tomorrow

By Kit McMillion

Brenda Wagner, who has just returned from six months in New York City, is ready to go back tomorrow.

Instead she will soon leave for Lansing and her junior year at Michigan State University. The 20-year-old woman went to New York last March because there weren't any jobs here and she needed one.

She had spent the summer before working in the nation's largest city as a waitress in a chain restaurant, and was fortunate to find a job with the same chain.

"I just loved it," sums up her feelings about New York. Interesting people from other countries, and their opinions were tops on the list.

As a waitress in the Savarin Coffee Shop and Restaurant, located in the Time-Life Building in the Rockefeller Center in the heart of the business section, she served cocktails and dinners.

Pay was bare minimum, $1.25 an hour, but tips averaged $20 a day, she said.

"People would leave about 75¢ for a drink and meal, and 35 or 40¢ for a meal. We were always busy, so you had to be on your toes," she explained.

"This summer was very slow, and we made less on tips," she added.

"In New York people go so fast," Brenda explained. "You forget about yourself. Here they're friendly. There they don't care about other people."

She said she was caught in a subway for two hours once. There wasn't any air and an old man about 60 had to stand up.

"Nobody would offer him a seat," she said. "Things like that bother me."

Another time an old man was hit by a car and a lot of people gathered to look, but nobody would help, she said.

The first summer she lived in Manhattan, but this time she lived in Queens, a suburb. She shared a 3 1/2 room, $230 a month apartment with a Spanish girl who spoke little English.

"We had to pay electricity in addition," she said. "And we didn't have a phone. It costs $60 to put one in."

Food was also more expensive, although Brenda thought it was about the same per cent of a person's income.

"Most of the people I knew, I met at work. You don't talk to people you see on the sidewalk," she explained. Nevertheless, she said, "I've got more friends out there than here."

Calling herself shy, she said she usually had a hard time making friends. "But in New York I'm different. And I worked with different kinds of people," she emphasized.

BRENDA WAGNER relaxes on the lawn of her home after returning from an exciting six months of working in New York City. She will return to Michigan State University soon to complete her education.

Mrs. William A. Beyerlein

Karen Marie Kerbyson and William Arnold Beyerlein were united in marriage at St. Pancratius Church, Cass City, Saturday, Sept. 11, in a 2:00 p. m. ceremony.

The Rev. Leo Robert Gengler heard the vows. The church was decorated with baskets of white flowers and palms.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald O. Kerbyson of Cass City, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold H. Beyerlein of Rose City.

The couple approached the altar accompanied by their parents.

The bride chose a white sateu gown over taffeta, styled with a controlled bell skirt with bands of Venice lace and a chapel train. The fitted Empire bodice, Victorian neckline and long puffed sleeves were trimmed with lace appliques. A lace edged mantilla forming a chapel train completed her attire. She carried a bridal cluster of white roses.

The bride was attended by matron of honor Mrs. Robert Shay of Bay City. Bridesmaids were Miss Nancy and Miss Cathy Kerbyson, sisters of the bride.

They wore floor-length dresses of crepe, styled with Empire bodices and long puffed sleeves. Their softly draped, gathered skirts were trimmed with brown velvet ribbon on the waistline. The matron of honor wore Vegas gold and the bridesmaids, moss green. Each carried a cluster of fall flowers complimenting the color of the gown.

Bomb those buses!

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Please pass the dynamite. Our daughter is bused to school but not to the school closest to our home.

Our son doesn't attend the school nearest home either. But he walks to school. I don't mind blowing up a bus but it doesn't seem fair to break the kid's leg just to bug the school with Mrs. Harris

WSSC meets

Thirteen women were present Monday evening when the WSSC of Salem United Methodist church met with Mrs. Earl Harris.

The women are contributing 15 ditty bags which will be sent to servicemen.

During the business meeting announcement was made of the district meeting to be held Oct. 15 at Sandusky. Plans are under way for the Dec. 6 meeting, which will include a bazaar.

The program for the meeting was given by Mrs. Luke Tuckey and illustrated with slides the history of the Bible from the beginning. Mrs. Tuckey pointed out that the Bible is now translated into more than 200 different languages.

At the close of the meeting dessert refreshments were served.

board. Come to think, he does ride his bikes sometimes. I could let the air out of his tires.

Our school district is about the largest, geographically, in Michigan. Some students attend school 20 miles from where they live. Every day they are bused past dozens of schools closer to their homes.

Obviously, this is a terrible thing. Our district should be ripe for revolt. Bombs should be sold at roadside stands. But there's no excitement at all. No protests. Just peace. I've had to drink all my Molotov cocktails. Some days even the most active activist can't find any action. But how come. . .

The TV news showed the dynamited buses burning in Pontiac, just a few miles down the highway. A middle-aged woman looked fiercely into the camera and said the destroyed buses were "the most beautiful sight I have ever seen."

Now there is an activist to be admired. She obviously has political ambitions. She will end up in the state capitol, sharing an office with Pontiac's Rep. Arthur Law, another beautiful person. The day before the buses were bombed, Law urged his constituents to ignore the stupid law and keep their kids off the buses. (I wish Rep. Law would change his name to Humpdink. It is difficult to type a lower case

"I" while writing about him and a stupid law in the same paragraph.)

So how come they get all the fun and violence in Pontiac, and in a lot of other towns, but none in my school district? Why doesn't our bus system make parents angry enough to fight?

I'm certainly glad you asked. Our district has a skin problem. Too much white and not enough black.

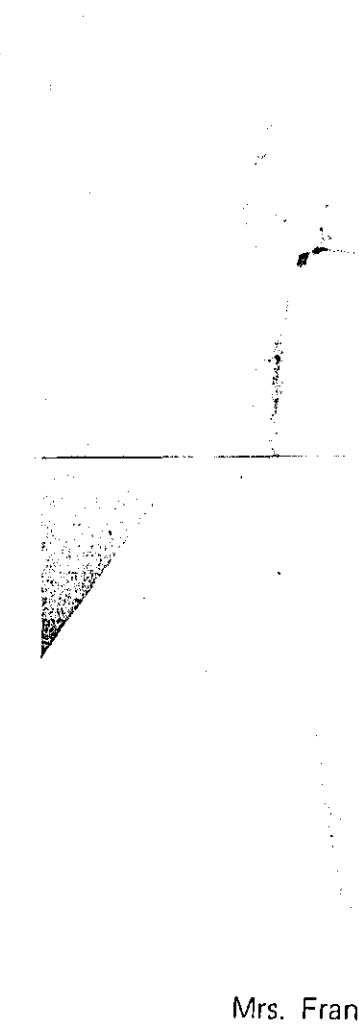

You see, parents everywhere used to be the same. They didn't care when 1-room schools were consolidated into 1,573-room educational complexes. They didn't care that this meant Junior had to be bused to high school 30 miles away, even though there was an elementary school building around the corner from home, and a junior high building just up the block, and 8 abandoned Little Red Schoolhouses within walking distance. The bus trip was necessary because it meant a better education for Junior.

But lately, the federal government and the courts have been looking at school systems in such towns as Pontiac. They discovered some school boards were "discriminating to perpetuate segregation." This means the black Juniors were separated from the white Juniors. As always, the black kids got the short end of the stick and kids of both colors lost the chance to learn to know and maybe even love each other. Most parents like this segregation because it makes it easier to raise the kids to be good little bigots like Ma and Pa.

The courts ordered these schools to start achieving "racial balance" even if they had to use buses to do it. And that's what put the lighted fuse in all those buses.

Busing is fine for Junior if it means he'll learn more. But if the dumb bus is going to deposit Junior next to a Negro, that's a kid of another color. Dynamite the damn buses.

And don't you dare call the bombers racists, for goodness sakes. They're busists.

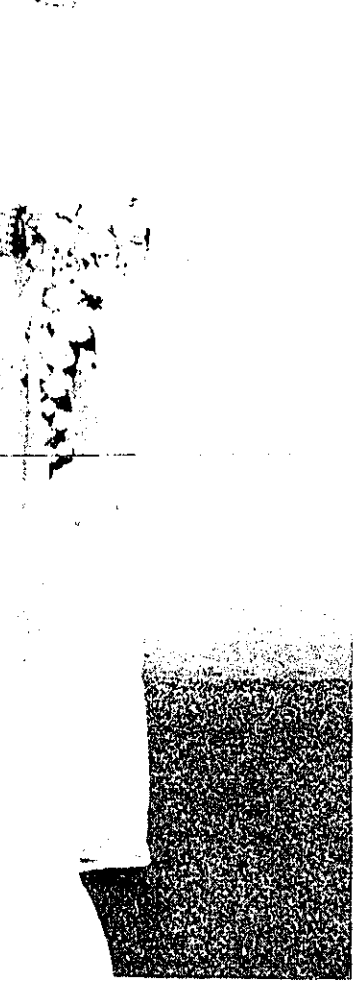

Mrs. Frank G. Lasceski

Miss Marie L. Osentoski, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Osentoski of Ubyly, and Frank G. Lasceski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lasceski of Kinde, were married Saturday, Sept. 4, at St. John's Catholic Church in Ubyly.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Father Bernard Skornia. Music was played by Mrs. Gzewicz.

The bride, given away by her parents, wore an A-line styled floor-length gown of silk over taffeta with an Empire bodice and rows of Venice lace. The Victorian neckline, long puffy sleeves with bishop cuffs and the skirt were accented with lace flowers and rows of sequins.

A detachable chapel length train was embroidered with lace flower sequins and lace ribbon. Her veil was held secure with a crow of pearls and lace. She carried a bouquet of carnations, roses and star flowers with green and yellow bows streaming from the center.

Maid of honor for the wedding was Janice Osentoski, sister of the bride. She wore a floor-length gown of light yellow silk over taffeta with an Empire bodice, a mandarin collar and long taffeta sleeves accented by embroidered flowers, set off with little green velvet bows.

Theresa Lasceski, sister of the groom, Kathy Karges, Marie Navock, cousin of the groom, and Deanne Osentoski, cousin of the bride, served as bridesmaids. They dressed identical to the maid of honor, but in light mint green dresses.

Gloria Panaccone, cousin of the bride, served as junior bridesmaid and was dressed identical to the maid of honor. Annette Lasceski, niece of the groom, was flower girl, wearing a dress similar to the bride.

Thomas Lasceski, cousin of the groom was best man. Serving as ushers were: Leonard Hoteski; Robert Osentoski, brother of the bride; Anthony Julp, cousin of the bride, and Burton Gilbert, Junior groomsmen. The bride's mother wore an A-line apricot dress with long chiffon sleeves accented by gold trim around the cuffs and neckline and gold accessories. She wore a corsage of apricot roses and white star flowers.

The groom's mother selected an aqua dress of chiffon with white trim and aqua accessories. A corsage of pink roses and white star flowers complimented the outfit.

A reception at the VFW Hall in Pigeon for 400 people immediately followed the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Ubyly High School and is employed at General Cable. The groom, a graduate of Kinde High School, is foreman at Active Industry, Elkton.

After a trip to Northern Michigan, the couple is residing in Kinde.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

I hardly know if this qualifies as news anymore. . .but the moving man, Gerald Stilson, has done it again. He's moved. In the over two decades that the Stilsons have been in and around Cass City they have moved over 25 times. Exactly how many times I can't say. I've lost count and I believe the Stilsons have, too.

Cash Asher, a brother of Manley and Stan Asher, has published a book about Red Fox, an Indian 101 years old, that has sold 60,000 copies.

That's an achievement, but it doesn't make me the least green-eyed. What does is that when Manley was telling me about it the other day he casually reported that Cash wrote him the letter after playing 18 holes of golf and shooting a 79.

To a good amateur that might not mean much, but it's better than duifers like me have ever done.

And in case you didn't know, Cash just celebrated his 80th birthday.

Now THAT'S a real accomplishment. A 79 at 80.

Sometimes writing this trivia is the easiest thing in the world to do. The items just roll off the typewriter. Other weeks nothing comes to mind.

This was one of these weeks. I was sitting in front of the typewriter staring off into space when Roger Marshall came through the office to check on some work of his in the commercial printing department.

He left and then returned about 10 minutes later and I was still racking my brains for something of interest.

Roger looked at me, then looked again, and said. You're not very busy today, are you?

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Kelly

Lawana Jean Frazier and Robert Allen Kelly exchanged double-ring vows Aug. 7 at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sherwell Kelly of New Boston.

The Rev. D. Arthur O'Dell, cousin of the groom of the Wesleyan Church in Waldron, presided at the five o'clock nuptials. Two bouquets of mixed garden flowers and lighted candles formed the background for the ceremony.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Frazier of New Boston, the bride was presented in marriage by her father. She wore a street-length white silk crepe gown with a rounded neckline accented with soft ruffles. The Empire bodice was designed with long sheer sleeves edged with lace ruffles.

A crescent headpiece of mock lilies of the valley held her silk illusion veil which was cut in mid-back length and she held a bouquet of cascading white roses.

Her only attendant, Debbie Kozachuk of New Boston, donned a silk crepe melon frock fashioned street-length. Her bouquet was blue and white carnations.

Charles Grover of New Boston was best man. The UAW Hall, Rawsonville, was the site for the reception for the 150 guests. They were greeted by Mrs. Frazier in a dress of pink lace over taffeta with a corsage of yellow carnations. The groom's mother wore a blue and white cotton lace jacket dress and pink carnation corsage.

The couple are Huron High School graduates. The groom, who earned his teaching degree at Hillsdale College where he affiliated with Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity, is on the staff of Huron High School.

The newlyweds are making their home in Flat Rock.

The groom is the grandson of Theo C. Hendrick of Cass City and Mrs. Edna Kelly of Red-

This is your year to kick the color TV adjustment habit. With new and improved Total Automatic Color.

Total Automatic Color (TAC) is a complete electronic system that automatically adjusts color intensity, locks in station signals, and cleverly eliminates green or purple faces. On every picture, every channel.

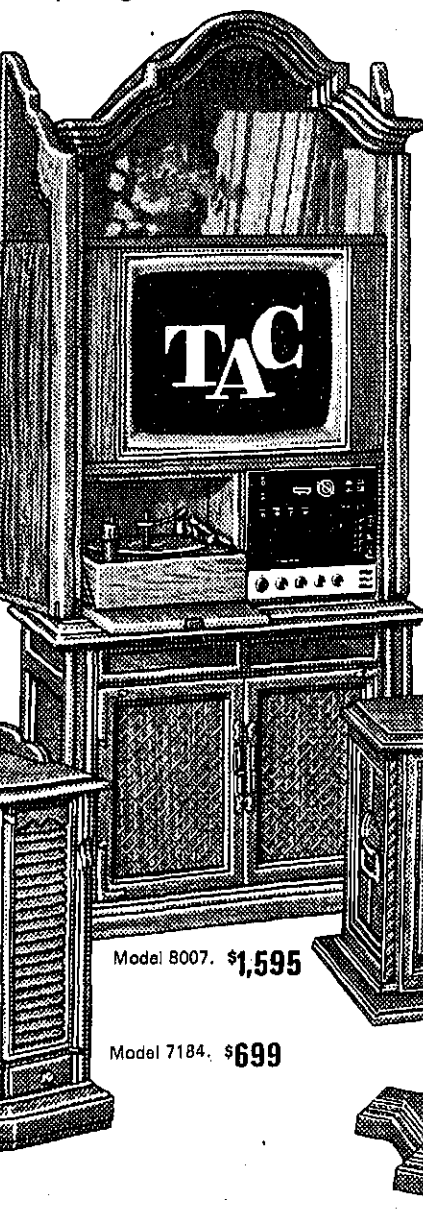

TAC. The problem solver.
Magnavox's new and improved TAC solves a serious color TV problem. Minor variations in the station signal can cause color quality to change a little. Example: a director switches from one camera to another. Or lighting in the TV studio changes slightly.

That's v. nen TAC takes over.
TAC automatically solves those bothersome problems. Even when you change channels, Magnavox TAC automatically corrects color and keeps the picture properly tuned.

Altogether it makes a system.
That's why we call it Total Automatic Color. We've also combined our new ultra-bright, ultra-rectangular Matrix picture tube and Magna-Power Chassis into the system. In the new Matrix picture tube, a black opaque substance isolates each colored dot to reduce light reflection and give you a clearer, sharper, brighter picture. And the Magna-Power Chassis uses predominantly solid-state components for increased reliability and improved performance.

TAC comes in 57 models and many prices.
A style for every setting . . . a price for every budget. Color Stereo Theatres.

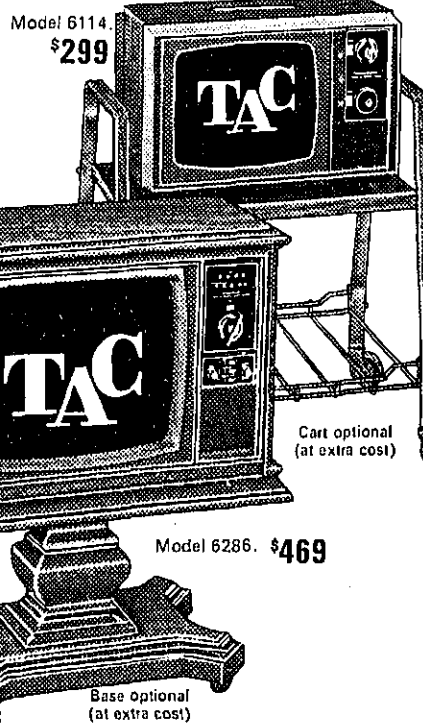

Consoles. Table models. Take-it-with-you portables.

I'm going to the dogs

By Kit McMillion

I've always liked dogs. I don't know if they're man's best friend, but I get along with most very well.

Ever since I was very little we had a hound or two running around the house, creating havoc and answering to such ignoble names as "Red," "King," "Frisky" and "Buck." Since I've come to Cass City, I've had the pleasure of meeting Suzy and Peggy, two very friendly dogs belonging to my landlords and their mother. They scamper about the backyard and chase the sticks I throw for them, which they invariably NEVER bring back, but that's part of the fun.

The Haires' dog, Snoogie, also has found a place in my heart. Any dog that jumps up on the Chronicle window and scratches or barks to be let in or out can't be all that bad. This canine stretches out on the floor to sleep, but let that fire siren blow and he's up and howling to raise the dead! Somehow my animal magnetism (literally not figuratively) has always attracted dogs.

This is a definite disadvantage when I go out on my bicycle, because the big dogs people around here keep to protect their property really do their jobs. One almost got me the other day. This big furry beast came out of nowhere so quickly, with teeth bared, snarling and barking like a devil was in him, that he scared me so much I just screamed and pedaled like mad.

I consider myself very lucky in not losing an ankle or part of my skin, at least.

But I've noticed that a lot of people have been bitten this summer, more than usual, it seems.

Two youngsters were chewed up pretty badly by dogs that are generally even tempered. Most dog bites come from just those kinds of dogs.

For that reason it is very important, I think, for parents to warn their kids, especially the little ones, about the dangers of playing with strays and their neighbors' animals.

There haven't been any reported cases of rabid dogs in Tuscola county so far this year. While that is definitely a consideration, warnings shouldn't minimize the pain of a dog bite.

The dogs naturally follow the children to school, but that should be discouraged, too. Once they all get there, a whole pack of dogs is swarming about the playground. This is the season for running packs, too, when dogs aren't in their normal frame of mind and apt to be jumpy.

There is both a state law and a village ordinance that requires dogs to be tied up. It hurts me to see animals tied because I would rather they ran free, but with the dog population becoming larger and larger, some controls must be made on the beasts.

I don't have any solution yet and few suggestions for what could become a real problem, but I'd like to emphasize to the parents and owners of dogs that keeping their hounds away from the kids and making sure they have their shots are two really important steps. Meow.

Better feed helps dairy cows

Dairy cows are more likely to conceive at first breeding if they're gaining weight during the month of breeding, according to Don Hillman, Michigan State University dairy specialist.

High producing cows require a very high level of grain feeding in order to gain body weight, he says. In fact, peak milk production usually occurs the same time as the breeding period, about 45 to 90 days after calving.

Most cows lose weight during that period and this conflicts with conception. Exceptionally high producing cows cannot eat enough feed to gain weight during the peak of milk production.

Hillman explains that the energy intake is limited for some cows by the amount of grain they can eat while in a milking parlor because they are not allowed enough time to eat. In most other cases high producers are simply not offered enough grain to gain body weight at peak production.

Yearling heifers raised on native pasture may also have a poor conception rate if the amount and quality of feed available prevents them from gaining weight, says Hillman.

In a recent Louisiana study, 64 per cent of the cows that were gaining body weight conceived on the first service compared to only 46 per cent of those that were losing body weight.

This confirmed a Nebraska study on beef-type cattle which showed that the level of energy fed after calving affected the conception rate. When cattle were fed a high level of energy after calving, 87 per cent conceived within 120 days, but only 64 per cent conceived when fed a low level of energy. Cattle fed the low energy failed to exhibit normal symptoms of heat periods, and therefore were not easily detected for breeding.

Auxiliary to buy

new song books

Twenty-eight attended the monthly meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary Monday evening at the Legion hall. During the business meeting, with Mrs. Elgene Keller presiding, members voted to purchase new song books for use in the meetings.

Mrs. Eva Bair reported on the progress of the membership committee and statistics show that dues have been paid by 54 senior and 11 junior members. The group includes several new members.

Plans were completed for the family potluck supper for members of Tri-County post and members of the Auxiliary and their families. The date is Monday, Sept. 20, at six-thirty p. m. in the Legion hall. Those attending should bring their own table service and a dish to pass.

Games and refreshments were enjoyed at the close of the meeting. Door prize for the evening went to Mrs. Anna McComb.

CONTROLLING ODOR

Scentrol system, new from Honeywell, provides automatic control of objectionable household odors. While removing unpleasant odors, the system's counteractant also leaves a slight trace of fragrance in the air — Mint, Orange Blossom, Floral Bouquet or Mountain Air. Scentrol looks like a portable radio and can be installed in heating-unit ductwork or wall mounted.

Arraign 3 in Circuit Court

Three persons were arraigned and two petitions were heard in Tuscola County Circuit Court before Judge Norman Baguley Monday, Sept. 13.

Dewey W. Campbell, Lee J. Jacoby and Michael D. Williams, all of Akron, stood mute to charges of entering without breaking an unoccupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny and setting fire to the grounds of another.

Pleas of innocent were entered for them.

A fourth person under the same charge, Timothy P. Nowlen of Akron, will be arraigned in two weeks on Sept. 27. He was in the hospital Monday.

The incident occurred on the evening of July 28 when a home owned by Winifred Walker on Tobias Road was damaged by fire and an old-time portable phonograph was removed from the house.

Bond of $250 was continued for the three.

A petition to withdraw attorney was granted to both Donald Raymond Killingbeck and Anthony J. Grillo, both of Saginaw, with the condition that their trial begin Sept. 28 as scheduled, whether they have counsel or not.

Both are charged with breaking and entering the Millington Community School with intent to commit larceny on Nov. 6, 1970. About $50 was taken from the school.

They both stood mute at their Jan. 22 arraignment and pleas of innocent were entered for them.

Their attorney was Philip R. Sturtz of Bratisols and Sturtz of Saginaw.

A change of venue for the trial was earlier denied.

4 youths fail to place in AAU meet

Four Cass City youths recently competed in an Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) swim meet but failed to place in the competition.

Dan and Don Lowe, Brad Eskilsen and Charlie Walsh swam in the AAU meet in Belleville Aug. 25 and 26.

The boys competed in the 13 and 14-year-old division. The Lowe boys swam the 80 yd. back stroke. Eskilsen and Walsh were in the 80 yd. free style, and Eskilsen also swam the 80 yd. breast stroke.

They practiced all summer with the regular Cass City swim team, of which they are members, and later swam 80 laps every morning.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Bug Hookum told the fellows at the country store Saturday night that reading the papers may not cause folks to kill themselves, but what they read in the papers shore ain't no help for their mental states.

Bug reported he had saw by the papers where this Harvard peresser claims the American people was slowly but surely going crazy.

The peresser used a rigger-marole of statics to prove it, but it boiled down to the pace of living and the decisions we got to make jest to keep up with one another on the road, in the voting booth and wherever we're told how and what to do with a list of rules that git longer ever time the legislatures meet, not to mention the Congress.

In one of the magazines he reads, went on Bug, he had saw where two Government leaders had give a good example of what is gitting us off our rockers. One was a Congressman and the other was one of these fellers that figger the cost of things. Speaking the same night in different cities, one said the Russians don't want to fight us economic or military, and the other warned that the buildup of the Russian navy was going to be the end of us.

Ed Doolittle, that led the talk Saturday afore last when the fellers took up a report that suicides went down in big cities when the papers was on strike, said he could see how Americans git bumfuzzled, specially in their Government but it was the folks in Government causing the trouble, not the reporters. Ed said it seems to him folks in this country go out of their way to keep someone stirred up.

Per instant, Ed said, he sees where we're going to change to the meter system of weights and measures. At his age, Ed allowed, that is a one way ticket to a nervous breakdown, but it looks like everybody wants to make the trip. Ed saw some figgers that show it cost in 1968 of all in favor of changing, how it will cost as much as $100 billion to retool the country on the new system and how we now are losing $10 billion a year in trade to other countries cause we don't use meters.

Best he could figger, went on Ed, we would be 10 year building up enuff trade to pay fer the switchover, but nobody has figgered the wear and tear on us folks that the peresser said is slowly and surely headed fer the deep end. Not only that, but the foreign trade boys say converting costs go up seven per cent a year in terms of goods not sold, and if that makes any sense, everybody's crazy, was Ed's words.

Personal, Mister Editor, Ed is the sort of feller that still would be adding and dividing them Roman numbers.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

AROUND THE FARMQuality marketing*a 2-way street

By Don Keblor

Quality marketing of farm products to be used for human consumption is just as important as producing a commodity and receiving a price. To take our most important food crop, navy beans, for instance, quality marketing is a two-way street to be followed by both producer and processor.

I don't think it is necessary to expound on the importance of the navy bean as a food when at least six million bags are consumed world wide each year. I do think we should be perpetually aware of the continuous consumer demands and pressure for quality beans and bean products.

With the great selection of food items available the consumer will switch his diet from less appealing to more appealing foods. So in the most simple terms if our navy bean and bean product quality does not meet consumer desires, use and sales decline.

HOLBROOK BAPTISTS TO HOLD SPECIAL MEETING

The Rev. E. F. Marquardt of Battle Creek will present a special evangelistic meeting at the Holbrook Baptist Church every evening from Sept. 19-24 at 7:30 p. m.

"Family Evangelism from the Scriptures" stresses togetherness around the Word of God for families. Mr. Marquardt uses overhead projection, puppets, etc., interspersed with surprise features, to impress the mind with the Gospel.

Holbrook Baptist Church is located 8 miles east and 3 miles north of Cass City on Germania Road. The Rev. Milton R. Gelatt is pastor. All are invited.

The most noticeable quality deterrent to the processor and home user of dry navy beans are: (1) foreign material as soil particles, glass, metal, animal waste, corn, soybeans, etc.; (2) cracked seed coats and splits; and (3) stained seed coats.

The bean quality deterrent elimination is the responsibility of producers, processors and all persons handling beans prior to their sales to canners and home users.

Bean quality control by the grower means special care in cleaning combines, wagons, bins, adjusting combines and equipment, harvesting and storing properly, and general handling of the beans prior to sale.

The elevator's role in quality control is to maintain proper machinery operation for cleaning, picking, bagging, loading and storage. Also they must maintain a rigid system for keeping the beans free of contaminants and spoilage.

I think one of the greatest improvements made for marketing quality navy beans was the development and use of the new shipping containers now being extensively used to export bagged beans. It is nearly unbelievable the way these containers have stimulated the increased purchase of beans by foreign countries.

I like to give this example as just another advancement toward bean quality marketing. We are generally marketing a good quality navy bean but every person in the navy bean business must not let his guard down on quality. One slip, one bad batch of navy beans received by a processor, domestic or foreign, or housewife, can cost us future sales.

AGENT'S CORNER Launder easy-care fabrics more

Judy Marks — Extension Agent

Mrs. Homemaker, does it seem to you that today's clothes need to be washed more often? You are not imagining things. It is true that today's easy care clothes may need washing more frequently. Why? Many fabrics today are made partly or entirely of non-absorbent synthetic or man-made fibers. These fibers, unless treated, have high static electricity which attracts soil and holds it to the surface of the fabric, as well as causing the garments to cling.

Soil on these types of fabrics such as nylon and polyester show up more because they stay on the surface rather than becoming imbedded within the fibers.

Getting the clothes clean is a concern of every homemaker, but so is little or no ironing. Perhaps you, Mrs. Homemaker, wondered why your children's new shirts always needed ironing when the tag stated little or no ironing. Whether we realize it or not, the size of the laundry load and water temperature affect how the garment's original appearance is maintained without further ironing.

The laundry process can soften synthetic fabrics enough to put wrinkles in them, especially when subjected to compression and twisting in the presence of heat during washing. Too high heat in the dryer can also cause wrinkling.

How can you combat this, small washing and drying smaller loads, avoiding prolonged washing and removing dried clothes immediately from the washer and/or dryer.

There are too many political remedies and too few cures.

The fellow who complains the most has been measured by his own yardstick in most cases.

NEXT TO GODLINESS

Soap became a part of his daily life long before he understood its use. He's still more concerned with its bubbles than its cleansing properties — but he knows soap is mighty important.

And no one ever thought of postponing his bath until he was old enough to make decisions for himself!

Wise parents never postpone a child's religious training. Long before he is able to reason, he needs the character-building and guidance of the Church. Christianity should become important to him in his daily experience before its truths can be fully grasped by his mind.

Our churches are equipped to instill a vital Christian faith in the youngest child. Fortunate is the boy or girl whose parents begin his religious training early.

Slate 4 classes for poultrymen

Thumb area poultry producers and suppliers can avail themselves of this season's Poultry School.

This school will consist of four sessions each beginning at 4 p. m. and lasting to 9 p. m. and will be held in the Unionville High School cafeteria.

This will be the third year this Poultry School has been held in Tuscola county as a multi-county endeavor, and well it should be because we are right in the middle of Michigan's poultry industry. Tuscola county ranks third and Huron county first in the state in number of laying hens per county.

Each session will include a dinner at the school. The only cost is for the dinner.

The first session is Sept. 23 and will include topics on processing soybeans for feed using on the farm equipment, price outlook of eggs and feed, the use of the futures market to purchase feed ingredients and ways to sell eggs. Live-stock and dairy operators could also find the processing of soybeans session from 4 to 6 p. m. of value and they are invited to attend too.

The following three sessions are Dec. 1, Jan. 6 and Feb. 3, and will include information on Marek's disease, a diagnosis of laying hen sickness, laboratory session, manure handling systems, ozone, group marketing and buying, new egg laws, cutting hen house costs, poultrymen's good ideas, and poultry production methods in either Arkansas or England.

A full schedule of the topics is available and advance dinner reservations are now being received prior to the Sept. 23 session.

Area church slates free film Sunday

"Lost Generation", the latest release from World Wide Pictures, will be shown Sunday, Sept. 19, at the Shabbona United Methodist Church, Shabbona, Mich. The film is a multiple screen images and a probing documentary style to investigate attitudes on dissent, violence, the mood of America, and the answers that can be found by this generation as they face the decisions of life. According to the Reverend Stephen Chapko, pastor of the church, the opinions of both young and old, urban and rural, rich and poor, are brought to the screen as the camera focuses on people of various backgrounds throughout the Nation.

The film will be shown at 3 p. m., with no admission charge.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

The regular meeting of the Cass City Village Council was held August 31, 1971 at the Municipal Building. All Trustees except Gary Christner were present.

The minutes of the regular July meeting were read and approved.

Several citizens were present at the meeting to request that the Council strengthen the building codes in the Village. The citizens were informed that new codes were in the process of being adopted, but that a detailed study is being made on each of the codes to determine if they are adequate for the Village.

It was recommended by President Althaver that the Council table this matter in order to complete the study of the codes. A special meeting will be held before the regular September meeting to take action on this.

Mr. David Leyrer of Public Systems, Inc. was present to demonstrate a mobile radio extender for the Police Department. Mr. Leyrer explained that this piece of communication equipment would enable the police officer on duty to keep in direct contact with the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department whenever he leaves the car.

Mr. Blades informed the Council that federal assistance may be available, and that steps have been taken to acquire such a grant that would support 75 per cent of the total cost of the equipment.

After considerable discussion, a motion was made by Trustee Ross and supported by Trustee Holmberg that bids be received for a new mobile radio extender for the Police Department upon the approval of a federal grant. Motion carried.

Jim Ware reported to the Council that he is doing some research on the cost of a new swimming pool for the Village. President Althaver appointed Mr. Ware to a committee to work with Trustees Albee and Rawson of the Park Committee to study this further.

A brief financial report for the month of July was given. A motion was made by Trustee Jones and supported by Trustee Albee that the Village Treasurer be given an extension of the tax collection date to September 15. Motion carried. To date 94 per cent of the taxes have been collected. It was recommended by Trustee Rawson that the Council consider the feasibility of acquiring the Orr East Addition for the Village, and whether the Village should continue the children's park on Third Street. It was noted that all members of the Council were in agreement that further initiation of federal funding for the Orr East Addition be sought. No action was taken at this time.

It was also recommended that the purchase of the Third Street Park be investigated.

A brief discussion was held on the possibility of a Police Auxiliary in the Village. A report will be made on this at the next regular Council meeting.

The following bids for curb and gutter on Garfield Street were opened: Barthel Contracting Co. of Northville - $4.00 and Laskey Construction Co. of Bod Axe - $3.00. A motion was made by Trustee Ross and supported by Trustee Rawson that the Village accept the curb and gutter bid of Laskey Construction Co. for $3.00 per lineal foot. Motion carried.

Superintendent Jim Blades requested that the Council consider the purchase of a bulk gasoline tank to be used for Village vehicles and equipment. After some discussion a motion was made by Trustee Jones and supported by Trustee Holmberg that the Village receive bids for an underground bulk gasoline tank and pump. Motion carried.

Superintendent Blades reported that several trees were damaged by the recent storm and as a result a number of trees were badly disfigured. A detailed map marking each tree that is badly damaged will be presented to the Council at the next regular meeting for their review.

It was reported that the Planning Commission has held one meeting for the purpose of reviewing the revised zoning ordinance and subdivision regulations.

Superintendent Blades also reported that a proposed ordinance on speed limit changes in the Village will be prepared and presented to the Council at their next meeting.

A motion was made by Trustee Albee and supported by Trustee Rawson that a hearing for special assessments for curb and gutter on Garfield St. be set for September 28 at 7:00 p. m. at the Municipal Building. Motion carried. Any interested resident affected by the assessment roll may review the roll at this time.

A motion was made by Trustee Rawson and supported by Trustee Jones that the bills as reviewed by the Finance Committee be approved for payment. Motion carried.

There being no further business, a motion was made by Trustee Albee and supported by Trustee Holmberg that the meeting be adjourned.

Tell new way to up protein in corn silage

BY WILLIAM BORTEL

Corn silage is low in protein but exceptionally high in energy. The dairymen and cattlemen love the feed but they would like to see the protein level increased so as to cut their protein supplement bill. Therefore urea (ten pounds per ton) has been added to raise the protein level fifty per cent with only a cost of $1.00 or less per ton of corn silage. A large portion of the county dairymen are using this practice.

This year a new practice is being tried by using anhydrous ammonia to raise the protein value of corn silage on a few Michigan farms. In using anhydrous ammonia, it would cut the cost to approximately 40 cents per ton of silage compared to the $1.00 for urea in raising the protein level of corn silage to 12 per cent. Tuscola county will be a part of this experiment as five county dairymen visited two farms in Central Michigan last Friday to learn and to see how the anhydrous was applied to the corn silage.

The farmers who saw this new approach of raising the protein level of silage were Clarence Daenzer, John Foley, Leon Keinath, Gerald Myer and Jack Myer, all of Millington. The two central Michigan farms visited saw the first farm using a saddle mounted plow down kit and the second farm mounted a 300 gallon NH₃ tank on his self propelled chopper. Each unit had a hose metering the anhydrous into the chopper immediately behind the knives. The anhydrous was tied up with the juice of the silage. Any farmer with an anhydrous plow down kit would have all of the equipment for this practice.

We think all corn silage should be treated with nitrogen since it does three things for silage: (1) Increases protein, (2) Makes for more lactic acid, (3) Helps preserve the silage after it has fermented.

BETTER HEALTH

High blood pressure is common disease

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

One of the commonest diseases of man is high blood pressure, or, in technical language, hypertension. In some cases it seems to be produced in people by the great tensions of modern life. I remember well a widow of 60 whose blood pressure was usually moderately high and almost symptomless; but occasionally she would come in with a very high blood pressure that was distressing her greatly. What had happened? She had lost her temper with her delinquent son who had been threatening to sue her to get more money out of her.

In order to understand what the numbers mean when the doctor "takes" a person's blood pressure and says, perhaps, "Your blood pressure is 120 over 90," or as it is written, 120/90, one should know that every time the heart contracts, it sends a wave of pressure out through the arteries of the body. The pressure at the top of this wave is called the systolic pressure (SYSTOLE referring to the contraction of the heart), and is expressed by the first number recorded by the doctor. The pressure at the bottom of the wave is called the diastolic pressure (DIASTOLE referring to the relaxation of the heart muscle, during which time blood from the big veins of the body flows into the heart), and is expressed by the second number mentioned.

In a normal adult person, the systolic blood pressure should be under 140 millimeters of mercury, and preferably around 120 millimeters. The normal diastolic pressure is usually around 70 millimeters of mercury. Diastolic pressures over 90 millimeters are usually abnormal.

Pressures of women under the age of 40 may be 5 millimeters lower than those of men. In very decidedly normal people, the blood pressure does not become abnormally high even as the person grows into his 70s. Once when I studied the blood pressures of school children, I found a few with a high systolic blood pressure around 175 millimeters. I would fear that the life of such a child would be shorter than normal.

Some people have a low blood pressure, especially in their youth. Until I was 40 or 50 my systolic blood pressure was usually about 100 millimeters, but this did not concern me; the only symptom I could ascribe to it were spells of a few seconds of dizziness when I suddenly stood up, as after searching for a book on a bottom shelf. The fancy name for this is "postural hypertension."

Through the years I have had many people come to me as patients saying that their doctor was concerned because they had a low blood pressure. In practically all cases I could say, after examining them, that all I wanted to do was to congratulate them and prophesy a long life for them. My doctor-father had a low blood pressure, but he lived very comfortably and worked very hard until he was 84 and then died of pneumonia, and not of any arterial or heart disease.

People with a high blood pressure may wonder why they got it, and often I think, they had a hereditary tendency to it; oftentimes it is associated with diseases of the kidneys, the blood vessels, and the heart. A point that people with a high blood pressure should know is that in many mild cases, it does not produce symptoms, and it does not seem to shorten life. This seems to be particularly true for women of 50 or 60. I have seen many a woman with a systolic blood pressure around 175 millimeters and no symptoms at all from it. I have known of such persons living into their 80s with excellent health.

People should know that there are four grades of high blood pressure, with different degrees of severity and danger to life. Grades I or II may never bother a person. Grade III is more serious, and grade IV is of the "malignant" type. I will never forget a day long ago when I was calling on a fine man who, at the age of 55, was dying of a malignant type of high blood pressure which in 1920 we physicians could rarely control. The man said to me, "Take my wife's pressure," and when I did I found the systolic pressure was very high -- 200 millimeters -- but she said she never had had a symptom from it; her health was perfect, and at 45 or so, she could still beat her son at tennis.

What are the commoner symptoms of high blood pressure? Often the patient complains of a headache that wakes him out of sleep and then disappears after breakfast. There may be spells of dizziness, or, in bad cases, some pain in the chest, some shortness of breath, a little swelling of the ankles, feelings of fatigue, and rarely, some failure of vision.

When I was at the Mayo Clinic we had an ophthalmologist who spent his days looking into the backs of the eyes of our patients with high blood pressure. A glance at the tiny arteries in the retina (the seeing part of the eye), told him how severe the high blood pressure was, or was going to be. He could tell which patients should be treated quickly and strenuously, and which did not need treatment.

Ron Crandell's Voyageur Shoppe survives rough seas at Mackinaw

By Kit McMillion

While many young persons were unemployed or worked at menial jobs this past summer, Ron Crandell of Cass City embarked on a new adventure as a merchant.

With the aid and encouragement of his parents, he operated The Voyageur Shoppe in Mackinaw.

He made money on the venture—"We far surpassed our expectations," he said—but the most significant part of the summer was what he learned.

"I don't know when I got the idea," Ron said, but plans that were hazy in May materialized in June. The shop opened July 2 in an old building formerly used as a grocery store.

As his first business venture Ron said he didn't exactly know what to do or how to operate.

"I didn't have much merchandise when I first opened," he explained.

"I was overly optimistic and then very pessimistic at the beginning. The first week was a terrible week in my life. After that it made me happy for the good days," he said.

The shop sold posters, souvenirs and other trinkets, as well as many antiques and original arts.

The antiques unexpectedly turned out to be about 60 per cent of the business.

Ron's father, Dr. Harry Crandell, dabbled in antiques as a hobby. They had a lot of them from flea markets and sales, which Ron said he'd always thought of as "mainly just cluttering up our basement."

Mrs. Crandell drove up each week end with a fresh supply. Most of the antiques were sold, Ron said, and they'd have to buy more for next year.

Cass City artists also supplied arts and crafts to sell, including pottery, drift wood and knitted articles.

Ron lived in the back of the shop.

"It just had water and a bed. I ate at the restaurant next door," he said.

"It was in the inner district of Mackinaw and I could have lived in a room, but this way I could open and close when I wanted to," he added.

The experiences of being on his own were very important to him.

"I had little time to go out," he said, "but the shop was really popular with college kids. One of my best friends was a lady who owned another antique shop."

"Most of the customers were nice. Sixty-five to 70 per cent of the Michigan people knew where Cass City was, which really surprised me," Ron said.

"It always surprised me, too, that with most of the people I met, if we talked long enough, we always found a mutual friend. It's a small world, to use an old cliché, but it's true," he declared.

"And people would buy the darnedest things. You could never tell what they were interested in from the way they looked," he added.

"The experience prepared me for college," Ron said, "learning to do a lot of things for myself that I would have asked other people to do for me before. I learned to budget my time so I could get everything I needed in one trip, because I didn't have a car."

A senior at Cass City High School, 17-year-old Ron is president of the Student Council, has joined debate and plays trombone in the band.

He plans to study political science and later law at either the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor or at Stetson University, De Land, Fla.

Ron said he might open a shop in Cass City after the rush of school activities dies down, but he's still undecided.

Asked if he planned to go back to Mackinaw next year, he said, "Definitely!"

HIGH SCHOOL SENIOR Ron Crandell sits beneath some antiques similar to the ones he sold in his store--The Voyageur Shoppe--this summer in Mackinaw. He said his first business venture turned out to be a real success.

Silver is new look in design

"See-through and shine" is the phrase used to describe one of the newest looks in interior design. It means the plain, clear, light look of silvery metal, glass and plexiglas.

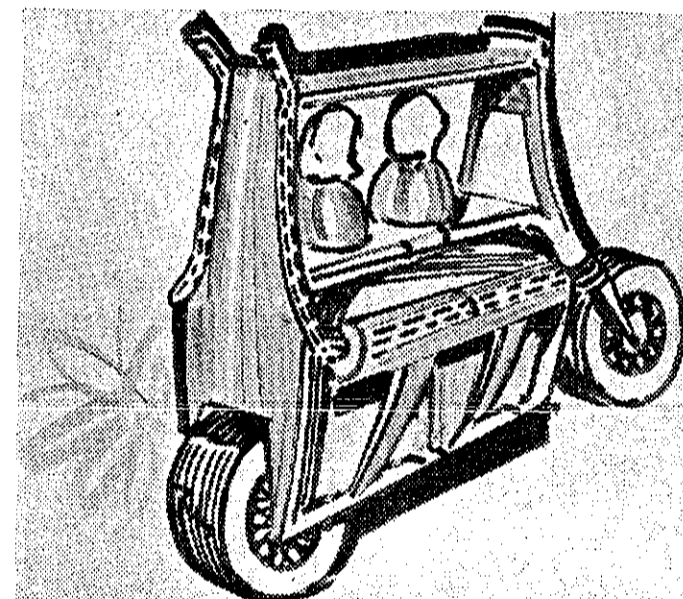

Few modern materials have captured the imagination of designers as much as the transparent ones and the metals. Plexiglas and glass in a variety of tints are used in traditional as well as modern furniture designs. Their most frequent companion is the glint of metal; chrome, aluminum or steel. Copper (burnished, polished or hammered) is a popular metal accent. The materials are often combined with wood. Plexiglas, used in frames to enhance upholstered pieces, gives a floating look to sofas and chairs.

As in all fashion trends, the new look is in an opposite direction of what has been popular in the most recent past. The clear, reflective look of metals, glass and plastics are even more evident when contrasted to the old-world look of the massive, dark Spanish or Mediterranean styles that have swept the country.

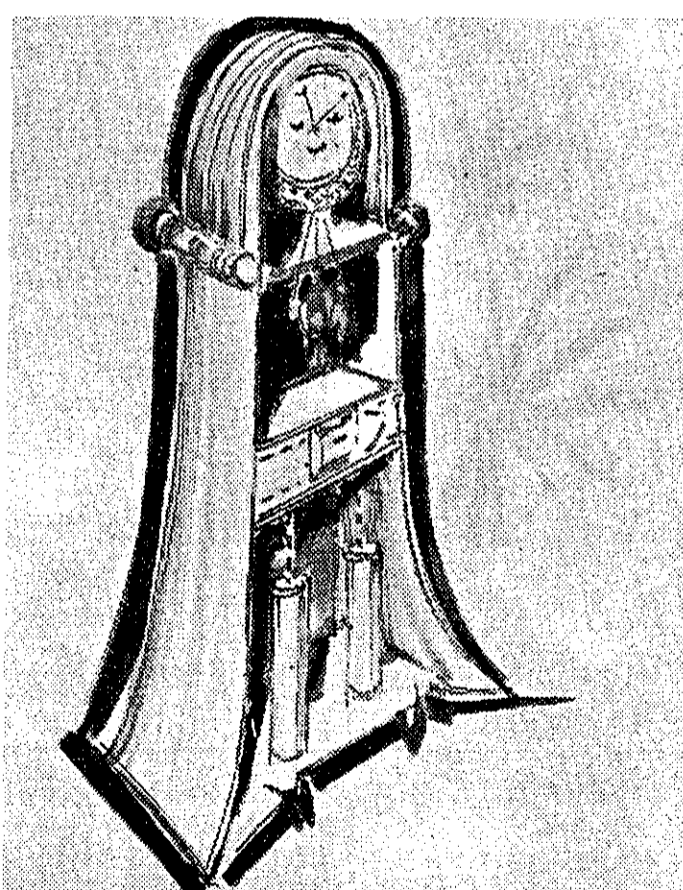

See-through and shine, properly handled, is rarely austere and cold. Rather, it adds the vibrancy of reflective light and airiness to interiors.

The beauty of these new designs is that they are just as compatible with formal traditional furnishings as they are with modern. They have sparkle and airiness, yet a feeling of real solidity.

The clear, see-through surfaces are an opportunity to display favorite accessories and collections. The look has great appeal when used in a room with patterned flooring, fabrics or walls. It is the best possible means of showing off a fine oriental carpet. Clear, reflecting surfaces not only provide the important decorating opportunity to contrast textures, but the reflection will also create an illusion of increased space.

Furniture for the Protest Generation

O. B. Solie has designed for some of the finest names in the furniture industry.

"From the design standpoint, my concentration has always been on contemporary," he says. "I enjoy my work tremendously and try to work with a whimsical flair because I feel when everyone is up tight the best thoughts fail to materialize."

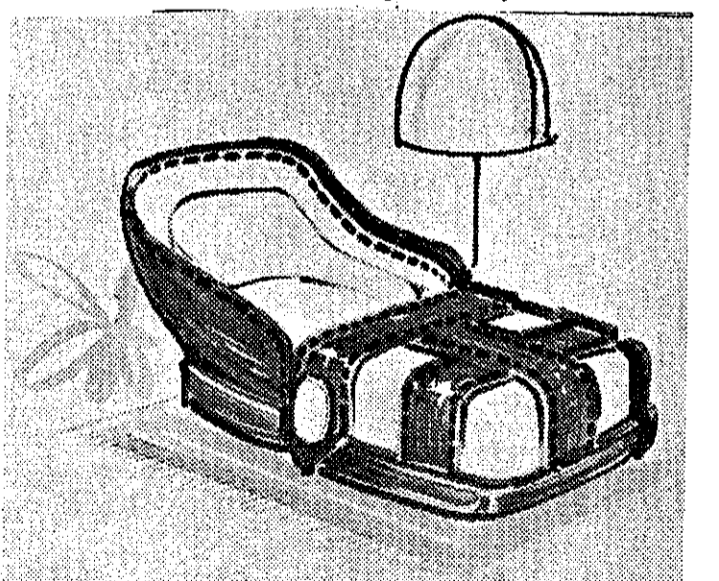

A native of northern Wisconsin, Solie received his B.S. and M.S. degrees in art education and design. He wrote his masters thesis on chair design and became interested in furniture as an art form. He began his career with the design and display department of Marshall Field and Co. of Chicago.

A later association with Ernest L. Swarts, furniture designer, developed into a partnership known as Swarts/Solie Designers. Solie opened his own studio in 1964. His clients have included: Kroehler, Flair, Broyhill, Dixie, Lane, Widdicomb, West Michigan, Ello, American of Martinsville, Drexel, Bernhardt and Hibriten. He is also retained by several companies outside the furniture industry, including 3M Decorative Products.

"I feel that my training in art, advertising and creative writing helped to form my base as a designer," he says.

Corn in beans hurts quality

Bean shippers and canners are concerned about corn grain as a contaminant in beans delivered to market, states Bill Bortel, County Extension Director. Just a few corn kernels have an adverse effect on the quality of a bean shipment. The problem is that of having a kernel of corn show up in a can of beans that the housewife purchases.

In order to help maintain the quality of Michigan beans, all of the industry (growers, elevators, shippers and canners) must cooperate to reduce this problem affecting the quality of beans. The solution involves grower care all along the marketing channel. For the grower it means special care in cleaning combines, wagons, elevators and beans. Bean growers should give this special attention to cleaning their equipment prior to harvest. The elevators are planning to take special precautions this year to guard against this situation occurring during processing.

Problems are created by the man who fails to plan his work.

Tax reform still far away while average millage rises

This October marks two years since Gov. William G. Milliken first proposed that Michigan drastically alter the way it finances operation of its public school systems.

When he presented his first education reform message to the Legislature, he proposed eliminating use of local property taxes to pay for school operating taxes. As improvement he suggested imposing a state-wide tax of 16 mills and using some other tax method to replace money lost by lowering the average property tax.

Much water has gone under the legislative and educational dam since then. The Governor's proposal now evolves to outright abolition of the property tax in any form to pay the basic cost of educating the state's public school students. Innumerable hours of legislative debate and negotiations have been devoted to the subject. But the net result has been absolutely zero, except that the average millage levy in the state continues to rise --going from 24 to 26 mills in just two years.

After a final, intensive effort in the Legislature this year, Milliken threw in the towel on hopes of putting together a package that would find favor with two-thirds of the members of each chamber. Instead, he will take his drive directly "to the people" through a petition drive designed to put his proposal on the ballot in November, 1972.

Now that the legislative dust has settled from the most recent battle, it seems an appropriate time to review just what happened over the past two years --who did what and why.

Milliken included property tax reform in his original education reform package because he concluded that true educational reform is impossible without an overhaul of the horse and buggy method now used to finance public schools.

When it was first imposed in this country, the country was basically rural. The people with money owned property. As a result, the property tax was a progressive tax. With increasing urbanization, however, the amount of property one owned came less and less to signify his wealth in relation to others.

At the same time, cost of school operations rose--skyrocketing in recent years--and placed a burden on the property tax that it just couldn't satisfactorily carry.

The Governor decided that unless a 20th Century method of financing were adopted for Michigan schools, other 20th Century innovations couldn't be blended in, either.

The original proposal for a state-wide tax of 16 mills was amended down to 12 mills before it finally passed the House in 1970 as part of a package deal between Milliken and House Speaker William A. Ryan which also included parochial aid.

But election year politics killed the proposal in the Senate, and it didn't make it on the 1970 ballot. After his election, Milliken put his staff to work revising the program for another try this year.

In the spring, he surprised most people by coming out for total abolition of the property tax. He proposed replacing it with a hike in the personal income tax and imposition of a value added tax on business.

At the same time, Ryan said there would be no legislative approval of the property tax amendment without joint approval of an amendment allowing a graduated income tax in the state.

Ryan held firm to his position and his office brought forth a myriad of proposed amendments tying the two issues into one ballot proposition. Some proposals included legislative passage of an income tax graduation scale before the election, in case it were approved, and thus locking a steeply graduated scale into the Constitution.

As spring became summer, Milliken saw Ryan would not yield on the graduated income tax--an issue he is strongly committed to--and so agreed to a two-pronged amendment which merely removed the current prohibition of a graduated tax. He said it was an "honorable compromise" and urged Senate Republicans to support it after an intensive lobbying effort produced the needed votes to pass it in the House.

But Senate Republicans experienced a strong allergic reaction to the idea of tying the two proposals together and with Democrats adamant on that point, the deadline for putting it before a special state-wide election in November of this year passed with no action.

Milliken decided then that there did not exist a package which could pass muster in both the House and Senate and so announced his petition drive. Final legislative death of the proposal and announcement of the drive came ironically as the California Supreme Court was ruling the local property tax unconstitutional.

The court ruling is just another indication that the property tax is an outmoded method of financing schools, and that its abolition is a coming thing. But as backers of property tax reform have learned over the past two years, nothing can stop an idea whose time is arriving, but a Legislature which is playing politics can stall a long time.

Sebewaing to test veteran squad

Hawks hopeful as '71 grid season opens

The jury is out on this year's Cass City Red Hawk football team following a scrimmage Friday with Kinde.

According to the coaches the work out against the Huron county class D champions revealed that this year's squad has promise of becoming a good team... but there remains work to be done.

We showed that we have the ability to score, Coach William Philbin said, and we did on offense what we thought we were capable of.

However, we seemed to let down after we scored, the coach said, and we can't let up like this if we are going to have a winner this season.

Philbin said that he was pleased with the work of Curt Strickland, a junior quarterback, who will be playing his first varsity game Friday.

The coach also felt that the squad showed a sound defense in the scrimmage.

Fans will be seeing mostly familiar faces when the offense takes the field. In the backfield besides Strickland will be Craig Guernsey, a senior. Guernsey played offense as a sophomore and switched to defense last year. Now he's back at offensive halfback.

Kip Hopper who saw limited duty last season as a sophomore starts his junior year as a regular. Gene Salas, a junior, was a regular back as a sophomore.

On the line veterans predominate. There are four seniors and three juniors.

At the ends are Fred Harbec and Bob Ross. Both are lettermen. Harbec, a senior, shifted from quarter to end to strengthen the team and Ross is a veteran who won his letter as a sophomore last season.

Dave Doerr who played some rough tough football by the end of the year last season as a sophomore is back and has a guard spot anchored down. The other junior on the team is Randy Wright. Wright came out and forced his way onto the first string with aggressive pre-season play.

The remainder of the line-men are seniors. Tim Knoblet and Greg Eshelman are tackles and Fred Klinkman is the guard. Backing the starting eleven are many players sure to see much action Friday. Coach Philbin says that he has two squads of good players to give the team needed depth over the season ahead.

While the staff and team is confident that the 1971 Hawks are better than last year's team (3-5-1 record) the real answer won't be apparent until after Friday when the schools start playing for keeps.

A convincing victory over Sebewaing would be just what the doctor ordered to get the team off and winging and instill the confidence that comes with winning... something that Cass City has been unable to do in the last five years.

With the talk is floating around now about a Thumb B Conference championship, the pre-season grid dope is that Caro is the team to beat with Frankenmuth and Bad Axe ranked among the chief challengers. Cass City and the Lakers rank as darkhorses in the league.

Actually, if Caro does not pan out as expected, most observers look for a wide open conference race with any team capable of winning the coveted trophy that goes to the league's finest.

The schedule:

Sept. 17, Sebewaing ---- home
Sept. 24, Bad Axe ---- home
Oct. 1, Frankenmuth ---- home
Oct. 8 ---- at Sandusky
Oct. 15, Marietta ---- home (Homecoming)
Oct. 22 ---- at Vassar
Oct. 29, Lakers ---- home
Nov. 5 ---- at Caro
Nov. 12 ---- at Birch Run

GOING OVER some of the pre-game details with Coach Bill Philbin is Captain Tim Knoblet. The Hawks open the new season Friday at home against Sebewaing.

READY TO OPEN the new grid season for Cass City High School are these 11 boys who will start on offense. On the line are: Fred Harbec, Tim Knoblet, Fred Klinkman, Randy Wright, Dave Doerr, Greg Eshelman and Bob Ross. The backs are Craig Guernsey, Gene Salas, Curt Strickland and Kip Hopper.

BAND BOOSTER President Lila Arroyo helped pass out band uniforms and accessories Thursday night, Sept. 9. With the addition of 35 new band uniforms, the band will march fully outfitted at the first home football game Friday, Sept. 17. Left to right are: Al Pierce, Mrs. Arroyo, Joe Haney, drum major Rick Erla, Mike Klinkman and Gary Eisinger.
