

DNR enforces snowmobile law restricting road use

The snowmobile boom and the recently enacted regulations have machine users and law enforcement officials at odds. One of the most controversial of the restrictions is road use. Section 12 of the ordinance provides that "A person shall not operate a snowmobile on a public highway or street or public or private parking lot not specifically designated for use of snowmobiles."

Snowmobilers in zones one and two, which comprise most of the state north of a line running above Bay City, are allowed to operate their machines on the extreme right open portion of right of way except on a limited access highway.

The Cass City area is under zone three regulations, which prohibit using snowmachines along public roads or highways except "when it is impracticable to gain immediate access to an area adjacent to a public highway, the snowmobile may be operated on the right of way adjacent and parallel to the roadway for the sole purpose of gaining access to and from the area of operation by the most direct route."

Conservation officer John Walker explained this meant machines could only operate at right angles to the roadway when crossing or in the ditch next to a fence, which is sometimes difficult or impossible.

He admitted it created a problem when going from trail to trail, because snowmobilers would have to have someone pick them up. If caught in the roadway, they are subject to tickets.

Amendatory legislation has been introduced in the state capital to make restrictions universal throughout the state.

ENFORCEMENT

Enforcing the law are conservation officials of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), which recently acquired two machines to aid in the job. The machines were bought with money provided by registration fees.

The number of tickets issued so far has not been tabulated, but there have been "quite a few," according to conservation officer Jim Gehlert. He explained that the DNR is enforcing all sections of the ordinance, although the first part of the year they issued warnings because persons were apparently unfamiliar with the law then.

"The intent of the law is to keep them off the roads," stated Gehlert.

He said the DNR has been patrolling the county outside village limits.

"We don't ticket in town," he said, where the DNR would be interfering with local police authorities.

Magistrate John Bowles said about 20 tickets issued by the DNR have crossed his desk so far this month and guesses about two-thirds are snowmobile violations.

Most tickets issued have been for having no registration numbers. The fine is usually $15, but if the machine is registered but just doesn't have the numbers displayed, it is usually reduced to $8. For riding on a roadway, the fine is usually $15, although any violation can be charged up to $100 and/or 90 days in jail.

Another part of the law that is often ignored by snowmobilers is the provision that requires them to throttle their machines down to just barely moving speed when within 100 feet of ice skaters or fishermen, who have the right of way.

Snowmachines must also yield right of way to any vehicle when attempting to cross a roadway. The only other time they can be on the roadway is when attempting to cross a bridge which is the only means available to get where they are going. Then they must stay close to the right hand edge.

TRESPASSING

The sheriff's department also has a snowmobile provided with money from registration fees, which will be used to catch violators using secondary roads, although no habitual patrol plan has been devised.

The sheriff's office received more calls concerning trespassing on private property. Last month they received 16 calls in reference to snowmobiles.

A deputy said they try to send a patrol car out when possible, but nine times out of ten no one is in sight when they get there. He explained that the best way to catch violators and trespassers is for a citizen to try to get the registration numbers of the machine and then seek warrants through the prosecuting attorney's office.

Police Chief Gene Wilson said in the village most complaints have to do with noise and cutting across private property. He hasn't issued any tickets, but gives warnings.

He reported about 15 calls of complaints this year, which is fewer than last year although there are more machines in use. No accidents with cars have been reported this year, too, although two have occurred in the county. He issued one ticket last year when a snowmobile hit a parked car.

"As of right now, the village is operating under the village ordinance," the chief stated.

VILLAGE LAW

Adopted in February of 1969, that ordinance provides for a maximum speed of 15 miles an hour within the village, hours of 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. Sunday through Thursday, with extensions to 11 p. m. on Friday and Saturday, and that no one under 16 years should operate a machine within the village.

The ordinance further states that snowmobiles are restricted from Main Street between Brooker and Ale and on Seeger between Garfield and Huron except for purposes of crossing the street for access to the nearest cross street. At all times the machines should be operated on the extreme right side of the street or roadway in the proper lane of traffic.

Violations are punishable by up to 90 days in the county jail and/or up to $100 fine.

Besides the traffic violations, the new state law provides that beginning Jan. 1, 1973, no one under 12 years will be permitted to operate a machine without the direct adult supervision except on private property. Those 12 to 16 may operate a snowmobile if they are under the supervision of an adult of at least 18 years, are on private property or have achieved a safety certificate, which must be presentable upon demand.

SAFETY CERTIFICATES

The law also provides that funds for setting up safety education and training programs will be available from the general fund.

In the planning stage is a 4-H snowmobile club for the Cass City area which will work with the DNR in providing the training necessary to obtain the certificate.

"If we can find leaders, I don't think there's any problem getting 60 kids in the Cass City area," said 4-H leader Dick Carpenter.

Materials are available from the DNR, but they have not made plans to set up sessions. "Probably the DNR will act as advisors to gun clubs and conservation clubs to sponsor the sessions," said DNR biologist Bud Jarvis.

Once the safety certificates become mandatory, a change may occur in the village ordinance.

"At the moment there's no consideration being given to altering the village law," said Village President Lambert Althaver, who explained that after review by the village attorney, no major conflicts were found. "I would assume we might review it at a later date next fall, but there won't be any changes this year," he said.

Snowplow-car accident injures Cass City couple

A Cass City couple were injured Tuesday afternoon when the car they were in was struck by a county snowplow.

Charles Beckett, 66, of 6568 Pine St., was admitted to Hills and Dales Hospital for cuts about the head, where he is listed in fair condition. His wife Margaret, 60, was treated and released.

The mishap occurred about 2:26 p. m. as the Becketts were eastbound on M-81. A snow-plow driven by Donald LeValley, 31, of Caro, pulled out in front of them from Koepfgen Road. He escaped injury, although minor damage was done to the plow.

The car spun around several times and came to rest in a snowfilled ditch on the north side of the highway. It was extensively damaged.

In another accident involving a snow plow, Tuesday, Carol Diane Hazen, 28, of Innes Road, Decker, was cited for improper backing when she missed the turn she wanted, stopped and backed up on Deckerville into a county snowplow driven by Albert Darwin Curtis, 58, of 1525 N. Kingston, Deford.

The snowplow was headed south on Englehart Road and was stopped at the intersection, according to Tuscola county sheriff's reports. The mishap occurred about 9:55 a. m. There were no injuries.

David Lee Bishop, 21, of 6927 E. Kelley Road, Cass City, escaped injury when he struck a buck deer Monday about 4:40 p. m. He was westbound on Deckerville Road when the animal ran in front of his car.

Brenda Sue VanLaan, Main Street, Cass City, was cited for failure to stop in assured distance when the car she was driving hit the rear of a vehicle driven by John T. Lewis, 42, of 2566 Tomlinson Road, Caro.

The mishap occurred Feb. 1 about 3:40 p. m. on M-81. Lewis told sheriff's deputies he was stopped to make a right turn. Neither was injured.

In another accident cars driven by Linda Lee Herron of 4563 Spence Road, Cass City, and Danny Robert Mills, 3840 N. Cemetery Road, Cass City, collided at the intersection of Saturday about 9:05 a. m. There were no injuries.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

As a professional, I can appreciate the oceans of publicity that came the way of Polaris snowmobiles last week end at Saul Sainte Marie when these machines swept virtually all the top honors in the major race in Michigan.

There is no doubt that the company unfolded the long green to hire the men and equipment necessary to compete and win in big time snowmobile racing.

For Polaris this year anyway the publicity is cheap at the price. There is no telling how many customers were swayed their way when the results were published in every major paper in Michigan. The short-term sales results have to be good.

Yet, in the long term perhaps Polaris would be better advised to go the route of Bombardier which curtailed its racing effort and used the money for developing trails and places for use of snowmobiles in Michigan's north country.

In the same issue that described the victory of Polaris there was a larger article about the problems that snowmobiles are causing on streets and in communities.

A few days earlier an article about the possible hazards to our environment by snowmobiles brought an avalanche of letters echoing this concern.

It is against the law to ride snowmobiles on any road here (with a few minor exceptions). In Tuscola county this law is now being enforced, except in villages and cities.

Perhaps the new State law needs a little overhauling. . . it's hard to see how a snowmobile on a road is causing much damage.

Certainly they can be a traffic hazard and I for one feel the law is right when it places the responsibility on the snowmobiler when he's on the highway.

Coupled with the changes in the law about bugs on the highway, should come more stringent penalties about their use off the road.

Drivers that leave established trails and go crashing through our State forests, disturbing wildlife and upsetting our environment or have no regard for the rights of private property should be subject to severe penalties.

It's only a small minority that causes these problems. Most snowmobilers are outdoor enthusiasts who realize and appreciate what Michigan has going for it with its rivers, forests and lakes.

But unless the few bandits are brought under control everyone will suffer; make no mistake about it.

The people will no longer tolerate the rape of the relatively little unspoiled land that is left.

As a matter of enlightened self-interest, manufacturers should see that programs are started to protect the land.

They won't sell any machines if there no longer is anyplace to ride them.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE STUDENT from New Zealand, Paul Prangley, finds school spirit an aid to education.

School spirit appeals to foreign exchange student

Living with the Richard Erla family for the next three months is Paul Prangley, 16-year-old foreign exchange student from New Zealand.

After two brief and hectic weeks in Cass City, he said he likes it, including the bustling cold and the friendly people.

Paul arrived in the States Jan. 22 from his home town of Auckland, the largest city in New Zealand. The oldest of five boys, he said he was originally from England. His family moved to New Zealand 9 years ago.

A friendly young man with engaging blue eyes and a quick smile, he is enrolled as a senior at Cass City High School, although he received his high school diploma last June.

Speaking with an English accent, he said the school systems in the two countries are very different. While Paul went to a private Catholic school, most of the youngsters go to government-operated schools, and even the private ones receive about half their support from the government.

"The kids have a different outlook here," he said, adding that they didn't seem to find school a chore or boring.

"They like to go to school, or they give me that impression," he related. He attributes part of it to school spirit. Pep rallies and cheering at basketball games is new for Paul, who said that sort of thing doesn't exist in New Zealand on such an overt level.

Another thing he really likes about the school is the relatively liberal attitude of the instructors, citing the ability to whisper something to a classmate without the teacher clamping down as a desirable feature.

In his school, rules were strict.

In New Zealand, too, he explained, the teachers consider their job more of an obligation, whereas here they seem to be interested in helping the student learn.

As a student at Cass City, his work will be sent back to New Zealand, and if accepted will qualify him for a Seventh Form Certificate. If Paul receives it, he will be able to go to college at the government's expense, where he wants to study geology and mineral technology.

"If I can help it, I don't want to be stuck in an office," he stated.

Paul came to the States on a Rotary scholarship. Originally he was scheduled for Canada, but plans were later changed to the States and finally Michigan.

He said he likes Cass City because of the friendly people. He hasn't had a chance to travel far yet, although he's anxious to see the area.

The short time he's been here, though, he's had a chance to participate in the popular sport of snowmobiling, which he likes partly because a desire of his to be an amateur racing driver.

At home he had a small motor scooter that was modified to go about 30 miles an hour faster than it was supposed to, but in this country he is not allowed to drive.

An avid mechanic, Paul said, "I like to fiddle about with machinery."

Other interests include sketching and working with scouts. At home he was a cub scout leader and intends to get involved with the local troop.

A busy youngster, Paul said he found the American pace very fast, compared to New Zealand, where everyone takes their time. He explained that the shops there close up at 9:30 Friday evening and don't

Commissioners protest county 9 district minimum

The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners Tuesday registered opposition to an amendment to the apportionment bill (H.R. 5622) which would provide among other things for a minimum of 9 and no more than 15 districts in a county of population 10,001 to 50,000, a change from the 7 to 15 range now allowed.

Tuscola county, which has 7 districts, falls into this category with a 1970 census figure of 48,603.

Commissioner Ed Golding said if this amendment passes, it would mean splitting townships and even precincts to apportion the county as nearly as possible into equal portions, resulting in more expense at election time.

"It would create a real job in dividing up the county," he said.

The amendment passed out of the House, Town and County committee unanimously and is expected to be voted upon within a week.

A recent appellate court ruling took the option of reapportionment away from the commissioners, who had already adopted the same 7 district format the county now has, and required the statutory reapportionment Commission to devise a plan. The commission has not met yet pending the return home of Democratic Chairman Mike Hill from New Mexico. The deadline is Mar. 4.

Other members of the commission are the county clerk, prosecutor, treasurer, and Republican chairman.

The board also discussed the creation of an Act 54 Mental Health clinic for the county. Golding related the surrounding counties have such a clinic and that the results of the Help Line program indicate there is a need for aid in the county.

The cost of setting up a committee is not determined, Golding said. Under the act, it would cost the county one-fourth of the total, with the federal government paying the rest.

Presently, the county pays $1875 per year to the Adult Mental Hospital in Saginaw, and $3000 a year to the Child Guidance Clinic in Bay City. It also paid out $56,567.65 for first year care of county patients in Pontiac. The county is responsible for the cost of the first year.

Golding related that it cost Lapeer county $20,000 county plus $60,000 federal money to set up a clinic.

"It looks as though it's something maybe we should do," he said.

MICHAEL B. O'DELL

O'Dell announces write-in candidacy for assessor

Instead of sitting back and griping, Michael B. O'Dell, young Cass Cityan, has decided to run for office. He will be a candidate for village assessor in the March election.

O'Dell will be a write-in candidate. There will be no names on the ballot as no one filed petition for the office left vacant when Mac O'Dell decided not to seek re-election.

Michael O'Dell works for General Motors and commutes to work. His wife is a member of the office force at Walbro Corporation.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

News Editor Kit McMillion was so impressed with the number of persons who would like to work as a policeman that she handed me a note about it for inclusion here.

She says that at least 20 have applied for the Patrolman's job in Cass City and several have degrees in police study. If Kit had been working longer these results wouldn't astonish her. Back in the days when unemployment was about 2 per cent and there wasn't a person floating around loose anywhere, an ad achieved the same results.

Some guys just want to be cops and some of them are willing to take less money to be one.

*****

What really would be astonishing is 20 qualified applicants for the job as assistant secretary for the village. In today's mixed up labor market excellent, college trained engineers are a dime a dozen. . . but a good secretary a rare, rare jewel.

*****

Rhnerd Knoblet is 80 years old. If Rhnerd lives to be 100, you may be surprised but he won't.

I've never been inside a hospital in my life, the young old-timer boasts, and I feel like a million. Why shouldn't I live to be 100?

Why not indeed.

I have just signed my proxy for the annual meeting of the Cass City Development Corporation Tuesday, Feb. 22. I did this because Bill Kritzman is a fine fellow and shouldn't be required to run all over town looking for enough votes to make the meeting legal.

Last year, like most years, I forgot to sign and so did nearly everyone else. . . forcing Secretary Kritzman to run around town to round up enough proxies at the last minute to get the meeting rolling.

Being a secretary is about as unrewarding a job as you can get stuck with and if last year should repeat maybe Bill would just chuck the whole affair and "volunteers" to replace him might be hard to find.

Just so you'll know department: The banks will close on Lincoln's birthday Feb. 12. That's Abe's birth date. They will not close Feb. 22 (George Washington's birth date) but they will be closed the Monday before (Feb. 21).

Our post office, oops, postal service, will not close for Abe's birthday. It also will not close on George's birthday, but will join the banks in a siesta on the Monday preceding it. All banks and post offices will be open Valentine's Day, Monday, Feb. 14.

I didn't see it, but judging by the reports I get from those who did, wrestling at Cass City High School is here to stay. One pretty young student said that is was exciting to watch. The boys wrestling report having fun with it and if the girls enjoy watching the boys while they compete don't we have a sure-fire formula for program popularity?

Dear Mr. Haire,

$3,000 for mat; nothing
for lounge

Cass City, Mich.
February 4, 1972

Dear John,

So our school can afford a $3,000 wrestling mat for 14 students plus uniforms but it can't afford a student lounge for 500 students at $10,000. I think that was Mr. Crouse's estimated figure. But then I didn't go to CCHS so perhaps my figures at averaging it out are wrong.

Sincerely,
Maxine Kennedy

February 7, 1972

Dear Editor:

In the February 3, 1972 edition, you printed an editorial about the changing times in Cass City. The subject seemed to be the children not being allowed to slide down "Landon's Hill" and the fact that there is a "Beware of Dog" sign in front of the property.

The children were never denied the privilege of playing on the hill until they began to abuse the right by throwing snowballs at the dog, standing just out of his reach and kicking at him, jumping at him and teasing him. At that time they were told to play on the hill at the front of the property or to go home.

We do not feel that this was an unreasonable request or that anyone should object to their children being asked to respect other people's property.

There is no objection to the children playing on the hill this winter as long as they do not tease the dog or destroy property.

We would however, appreciate it if they would come to the house and let us know they are going to play on the hill so the dog can be taken in the house.

AROUND THE FARM

Fertilizer

buying tips

By Don R. Kebler

I suppose ideas on the merits of Blend versus Granulated forms of chemical fertilizers will continue for some time. As we look at data where the two forms were compared under research conditions, the following was found. Under the same soil, time, rate and placement conditions, fertilizers of the same analysis, whether blended or granulated, give equal crop production.

Remember this was under controlled research conditions with controlled quality products.

I think this last statement sums up the most important factor in using any form of blend fertilizer.

Farmers do not and cannot expend the time to achieve detailed controlled research practices in their every day fertilizer use so the quality of the fertilizer and its handling depends on the supplier.

If any one factor determines the quality of a blend fertilizer and the degree of possible separation, I believe we can say the size of particles of carriers used in blending analysis.

For instance, I have observed murate of potash in bins that have particles ranging from popcorn salt to buckshot in size. I have also observed this potash all of the same size particles.

Certainly we cannot expect as much separation of a uniform particle size carrier as we can with a multi-particle size carrier.

I have seen accumulations of black or white dust on the hoppers of spreaders and truck boxes. This material is not necessarily the micro-nutrient carriers. It could be powdery forms of other dark colored carriers too.

Basically a manufactured granulated fertilizer does contain in each granule the plant-food nutrients in the same proportion as the analysis stated on the bag. When applied one puts on a set analysis fertilizer.

If a properly blended fertilizer has uniform particle size in each individual carrier and all carriers have uniform size weight characteristics to each other, then separation becomes a minute possibility.

There are separation factors a person must take into consideration when using blend fertilizers. However, if he watches the quality of the materials to size uniformity, handling and application methods blend fertilizers can give as good results as any other under identical use conditions.

"If It Fitz . . ."

I am Howard Hughes

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Yes, I am Howard Hughes. I am revealing my true identity at this time as a public service. It is not that the public has any constitutional right to know who I really am. But the public does have a right to read something in newspapers and magazines except a lot of silly speculation on the present location of the guy who built Jane Russell's bra.

I am stepping forward now only to end the controversy and thus clear space on the nation's front pages for more important news. I have long shunned publicity and it is ironic that now my modesty has created enough publicity to crowd World War 3 onto the comic pages. (No, B.O. Plenty is not Howard Hughes, I am.)

This news will not startle everyone. My wife has been suspicious for a long time. Just the other evening, for instance, there was a huge Chamber of Commerce banquet in town and everyone who is anyone was there. But I took my wife out of town to dine in a romantically dim restaurant where I wouldn't have to fret about anyone recognizing me.

"How come we always have to eat in Coney Islands?" she asked.

"Because people don't expect to see a man like me eating in hot dog joints," I explained. "I don't have to worry about strangers sitting down and trying to buy my casinos or airlines. I can holier for catsup without influencing the price of Del Monte stock."

"I think I married Howard Hughes," she said.

"Heh, heh," I said.

Anyway, I have not sold my autobiography to Life. When my autobiography is ready I am going to have it read over TV by Orson Welles on Saturday night right after Archie Bunker. I want an audience. Nobody reads the words in Life and millions of women won't have it in their homes because they're afraid of snakes.

The most incredible rumor is that I died 15 years ago and have since been lying around in a Westinghouse freezer with Sara Lee. The idea is that eventually someone will discover a remedy for whatever killed me. Then I will be thawed out and cured. Don't you believe it. No way am I going to put my life in the hands of some doctor who hasn't been born yet. He may turn out to be a latter-day Marcus Welby who only has time for pregnant wiffs with heroin habits and no money.

If I'm going to be ice picked I want it to be by an old-fashioned doctor who invests in real estate and wants to own the world.

So, I hope this clears everything up. I am Howard Hughes. Now the world will have time to worry about important things.

And if Jane Russell needs any repairs on her harness, she knows who to see.

Legal killing

By Kit McMillion

One of the decisions the Supreme Court will make this session is whether the state has the right to kill another person.

Awaiting the decision are 694 inmates in 33 states and the District of Columbia who face death by electrocution, lethal gas, hanging or shooting. The last execution was made in 1967.

The abolishment depends on whether or not the justices consider capital punishment cruel and unusual, which is forbidden by the 8th amendment.

Killing has traditionally been outlawed by state institutions and religious sects, with the exception of wars and capital punishment. The right to life is something the state protects in some instances, but denies in others. There are actually 52 different jurisdictions, the 50 states, the District of Columbia and the federal government.

Somehow it seems incongruous that the value of human life is different on the different sides of the country, or that a different value can be placed on the life of the same person depending where he happens to be positioned geographically.

Whatever value life does have, it must be equal for all because everyone is made from the same material, and despite economic, intellectual or cultural inequalities, the humanness of persons is still the same.

If the state continues to exercise the right to determine whether some persons deserve death and if the revenge motive must be satisfied, why not let it be done in a dignified manner instead of the primitive and barbaric methods of hanging, shooting, electrocution or gassing. Why not a simple shot in the arm or a single shot of something that works quickly and effectively without mangling body tissue or being slow and painful.

Without the provision of capital punishment, life imprisonment is the only alternative. Personally, unless the penal systems undergo some radical changes to offer rehabilitation, I'd rather be dead.

Without capital punishment, the life of the victim of a murder crime is degraded and his worth lessened, but capital punishment is also provided for armed robbery, kidnapping and robbery.

Some persons with extremely undesirable and deviate characteristics are allowed to continue to threaten the safety and security of the rest of society, also.

But it seems unfair that some persons are singled out for death because they got caught and convicted when others escape somewhere along the judicial line.

After the question of extermination is settled, perhaps we can get on with improving life. Meow.

Tips to prevent calf mortality

A little prevention medicine can reduce calf mortality, state Michigan State University veterinarians and Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension Director.

Newborn Calf:
1. Iodine navel
2. Vitamin ADE injection
3. Colostrum, within two hours after birth
4. Individual identification
5. Dehorn

Three to Four Months:
1. Blackleg and Malignant Edema Immunization
2. Brucellosis vaccination
3. Remove extra teats
4. Fecal examination, worm control if indicated

Five to twelve months:
1. IBR, BVD, P13 vaccination
2. Fecal examination, worm control if indicated
3. External parasite control

Treat sick calves with proper antibiotics and fluids. The local veterinarian is in the best position to know what antibiotics and fluids will work best in your herd. Fluid therapy is essential to correct the dehydration and restore body pH to normal.

HUMAN NATURE

Freedom is what man claims for himself, but is often unwilling to grant to others.

Complete how to listen workshops

A two part series of Personal Effectiveness Workshops were completed during January in Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties. The first series was attended by 110 people who re-taught the lesson to over 450. The second series was attended by 102 and will be re-taught to over 550 people.

A major emphasis of the workshops was to learn effective listening techniques - listening to what the other person means and how he/she feels. In contrast, most listeners are all too ready to block communication by giving advice, solutions, praise, blame, ridicule or the like.

The workshops were part of the Cooperative Extension Service Family Living program, and were conducted by Ann Ross, Thumb Extension Home Economist.

Other persons or groups who are interested in learning Effective Listening may request such a session through their County Cooperative Extension Service Office. There is no charge.

Treatment for "low blood sugar" costly

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

In the fine journal "Consumer Reports" for July 1971, I found an article about low blood sugar. I read that a Mrs. Hess complained to the Nassau County Medical Society about treatments a doctor gave her for low blood sugar. The doctor, she said, recommended a series of injections at $20 each, for a period of three to six months. As Mrs. Hess reported, after nine injections of the drug ACE, her depression, nervousness and insomnia, supposedly due to hypoglycemia (the fancy term for low blood sugar) remained unchanged, but she had developed a large and painful boil on her wrist and blotches on her face and legs.

Later, another specialist said that in his judgment her emotional complaints had nothing to do with her blood sugar level. As Mrs. Hess concluded, "I was making myself sick. And the people they (the hypoglycemia enthusiasts) are roping in are like me. They get depressed and nervous from anxiety and fears and they get so low that they believe anything, if (told) it will help them feel better."

I have seen many patients like Mrs. Hess, and I have questioned many a diagnosis of low blood sugar ever since the idea was started by my friend, Dr. Seale Harris, of Birmingham, Ala. Dr. Harris, a kind, friendly man, told me once when we were having lunch together, that the idea had come to him a few years after Drs. Banting and Best discovered insulin, around 1922. He reasoned that if in diabetes there is TOO MUCH sugar in the blood, due to a LACK of insulin, then there might also be a reverse condition in which an EXCESS of insulin results in TOO LITTLE sugar (glucose) in the blood. He felt that a number of symptoms, such as fatigue, insomnia, irritability, faintness and depression could be explained in this way.

I told Dr. Harris that I could not believe this, because at the Mayo Clinic, after seeing hundreds of reports on the amounts of patients' blood sugar, I had never seen a pathologically low one. Also I had seen hundreds of patients with the symptoms he mentioned who had a normal blood sugar.

But within a few months I began to get dozens of patients who said that Dr. Harris had found a low blood sugar, but that the treatment they had been given, a diet lacking in carbohydrates (sugar and starch), had not helped them to feel better. Interestingly, in every one of these patients, the blood sugar, as estimated in our fine laboratories, was within the limits of normal.

When I examined the patients and took a history, I found them often to be highly sensitive and nervous, tending to have a number of vague complaints that it was difficult to relieve. Their distress was functional, or psychically produced, and could not be traced to any disease in any organ. Naturally, such a person would much prefer to be told that these troubles were due to hypoglycemia rather than "just nerves."

About 1926 Dr. Edward Rynearson at the Mayo Clinic performed a number of experiments showing that when he produced a hypoglycemic condition by taking too much insulin, he felt no symptoms until his blood sugar had been knocked down below 50 mg. (a normal measurement is between 70 and 110 mg.), and so I did not worry much about a "low" blood sugar of 75 mg.

Some 35 years ago, while working with the great Dr. Wilder at the Mayo Clinic, I saw a man with what was perhaps the first reported case of a true low blood sugar. The patient's wife told us an absolutely diagnostic story: for some time, whenever he had gone for a few hours without eating, he went into shaking spells during which he would become dizzy, sweat profusely, perhaps develop a headache, and become extremely hungry. These symptoms would go away when he took some food or syrup.

She said that in the early morning hours he would wake her with the spells, and sometimes he even had a slight convulsion. She learned that if she would give him a small glassful of syrup or some sugar, he would be relieved. Because the spells were so definitely related to a lack of sugar, it was clear that he must have too much insulin in his blood. At operation, the surgeon found, as we feared, a cancer in the pancreas (where insulin is formed) with scattered growths in a man's liver. When these growths were analyzed chemically, they were found to be full of insulin, showing that the man's body had too much insulin. This was the only case of an obvious low blood sugar that I have ever seen.

What puzzles me is that the usual treatment is a diet low in carbohydrates -- in other words, sugar is taken out of the person's diet. This seems to me totally illogical, because the symptoms are supposedly due to a lack of sugar in the blood, and my patient with hypoglycemia got relief from his symptoms by taking sugar.

For a while, the diagnosis of a low blood sugar largely died out, and I saw very few cases. What looked like a fad seemed to be over. But now I am again receiving letters from my readers asking me about it, and I read that some enthusiasts are charging $120 for the first consultation, then $67 for a glucose tolerance test, and then months of injections of a drug, costing perhaps $20 each.

I am not saying that there is no disease due to a low blood sugar. I am just saying that I am puzzled, and in my more than 66 years in medicine, I have been able to find only one definite case of the disease such as I would be willing to demonstrate before a big medical meeting.

AGENT'S CORNER

Praise child's creativity

Mrs. Margaret Ross - Extension Agent

Children often express their feelings through a creative, active imagination.

Parents encourage creativity by channeling it into imaginative play or the arts.

In play, children can assume a make-believe role. Often, they are very creative in adopting a role which suits either their needs or the setting.

In art, a child should be able to express himself freely without the limitation of prescribed lines and pictures. A blank piece of paper, crayons or paint can be his most satisfying tools.

When a child shows you his latest creation, praise him. Compliment him on whatever strikes you about his creation -- such as "I like your colors" -- and display the masterpiece proudly. You might ask him to tell you about the picture. But avoid asking "What is it?" It might not be anything specific.

Remember, creativity can "come to life" in the kitchen, too. Your child may enjoy combining ingredients in new ways, or providing interesting food combinations for a meal he/she creates.

Many adults seem to lose the spark of spontaneous creativity and imagination that children have in abundance. By rewarding a child's creativity with your interest, you can add fuel to the priceless spark.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

The original Americans

By Dan Marlowe

A quick trip to Phoenix recently turned up the fact that the states of Arizona and Michigan share a common problem: the American Indian.

Arizona is already in trouble to a degree not yet matched in Michigan over the principle of Indian reservations.

There are 22 Indian reservations in Arizona, with the largest the huge Navajo Indian Reservation containing 8.9 million acres (in Arizona, with additional millions of acres in New Mexico).

Twenty-six percent of Arizona is owned by Indians.

More than 109,000 Indians live on Arizona reservations, and these figures do not account for the large number of off-reservation Indians living principally in Tucson and Phoenix.

Because this nation adopted the policy of negotiating with Indian tribes as sovereign, almost foreign powers, treaties were made setting aside reservation lands within the states that became subject only to federal law: in effect, autonomous islands.

For Arizona it was a good thing initially because it meant the state was relieved of the responsibility of caring for the Indians.

Now the state is finding out that without political power over the reservations the Indians are exempt from state sales taxes, zoning laws, game laws, and pollution standards.

Indians, if they choose to exercise their federal court-granted rights, might be able to shut down Central Arizona's main water project, take away most of Tucson's drinking water, and negate the state's new air pollution law.

With no sales tax, lacking of zoning ordinances, and subject to the less stringent federal air pollution standards, Indian reservations are becoming more and more attractive as sites for industrial plants that are being increasingly pressed by state and city regulatory agencies.

If an Indian tribe decided to allow a copper smelter to be built on its reservation, the state or nearby cities could do nothing about requiring such an installation to comply with state or city air pollution regulations. A smelter located close to a mine, free of state pollution requirement, and free of state and county taxes would be a tremendous financial windfall to a copper producer.

But even more unsettling is the question of Indian water rights. One reservation alone could take all the water it wants from the Santa Cruz river, depriving the city of Tucson. Being upstream, and with federally guaranteed water rights that supersede state rights, the Indians could effectively short-circuit the underground water from ever reaching Tucson. And the same is true of the reservations bordering the Colorado River, Arizona's water-lifeline.

Except in the area of game and conservation laws, Michigan's Indians have not as yet provided the headaches afforded the state and municipalities of Arizona.

But a time bomb is ticking away on the subject of Indian rights, and even in Michigan it could eventually explode with much more impact than the civil rights blasts of the blacks.

Somehow—and soon—the Indians, the federal government, and the states are going to have to come to grips with the reservation principle.

A. Nugent final rites held

Final rites were conducted at 2 p. m. Sunday for Alexander Nugent, 87, who died unexpectedly at his home at 3197 N. VanDyke Road, Evergreen township, Friday, Feb. 4.

The Rev. Lloyd Streeter, pastor of the First Baptist church, Cass City, officiated at the services from Little's Funeral Home. Burial was in Verona cemetery in Huron county.

Nugent was born in Verona township, Huron county, June 28, 1884, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sterling and Phoebe Rogers Nugent.

He married the former Miss Alma Boelter in Monroe Jan. 12, 1912. They made their home in Detroit until he retired in 1949 and moved to this community.

He is survived by his widow and a number of nieces and nephews. Three brothers and two sisters preceded him in death.

FIVE YEARS AGO

Harry Richards, district manager for Detroit Edison, predicted a "private" electric utility for the Thumb area in the very near future.

The Cass City Chamber of Commerce has scheduled an open meeting in an opening push to secure additional land for the Cass City Recreational Park.

Because Gagetown will be assessed at the State Equalized Valuation this year, the Gagetown village council voted to lower the mill rate from 15 to 11.

Scoutmaster James Ware and 27 scouts camped in 12-degree below temperatures on a Polar Bear outing.

Lynn Atwell, 14, is one of 11 girls from a several-state area that have been selected to compete in the National Team Selection race at Boyne Mountain.

Marine Lieut. Commander Stanley Beach has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for heroic action in Vietnam.

TEN YEARS AGO

Two Cass City girls, ages 13 and 14, have been implicated in an outbreak of shoplifting that affected 11 Cass City stores since Christmas.

An over-heated water tank brought Elkland township firemen to the LeRoy Rooney residence on Doerr Road, but, according to Al Avery, fire-chief, the fire was under control when they arrived.

Hugh Marr, Tuscola county deputy sheriff and county license examiner, this week announced that he would be a candidate for the office of sheriff in the Republican primaries in August.

For the third time within a year, Cass City area residents will be asked to approve extra operating millage (3 mills for 3 years) said by all competent school authorities to be a vital necessity for proper operation.

Mrs. Arthur Ricker received a free night's lodging at the Dixie Grande Hotel in Florida where she stays during the winter. When the sun falls to shine for 24 hours the hotel gives the free lodging.

Lora Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Allen, has been placed on the Good Samaritan Hospital School of Nursing honor roll. Miss Allen is a freshman student nurse at the Lexington, Ky., school.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

A dozen citizens gathered at the council rooms to attend the village caucus. All nominees are candidates to succeed themselves except Messrs. Frederick Pinney and Robert Keppen.

Miss Doris Pearson of Cass City is the new bookkeeper in the office of the Brinker & Armstrong Lumber Co.

Donald Hanby, 12-year-old son of Mrs. Lillian Hanby, a pupil in the sixth grade, suffered serious injuries to his left hip Saturday afternoon while playing downtown when he tripped over a dog and fell.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Schwaderer and children, Nancy and Tommy, and Mrs. Mary Holcomb returned to Cass City Monday from Florida. Miss Mary McIntyre did not return to Cass City but went to Chicago, thence to New Orleans and will proceed to Guatemala.

Louis Profit, who has been attending General Motors School in Flint, has transferred to Central State College at Mt. Pleasant.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

John Knuckles of Detroit has purchased the Robert Fry oil service station at the junction of M-81 and M-53 and will engage in the garage business as well as conducting the station.

A large number witnessed the donkey basketball game at the school gymnasium when the faculty and farmers' team defeated the Rotary group by a 10-5 score.

One of the largest groups to attend a banquet of the Cass City Community Club gathered at the school auditorium at the February meeting of the society. The occasion was the annual father and son banquet.

If village election is as tame as the village caucus was, there is no promise of excitement the second Monday in March in village affairs. Only nine were present to nominate and all out-going officers were named to succeed themselves.

Within a few days, the workmen of the Myers Construction Co. of Chicago, employed in Cass City in rebuilding the electric light and power lines here for the Detroit Edison Co., will have the work all completed except the street lighting system.

do cats laugh?

We don't mean to offend any cat-lover, but we don't believe cats laugh.

Laughter is a muscular response to appreciated humor. And we're inclined to view humor as one of those high-level responses which are characteristic in humans only. And thank the Lord for humor. Without laughter this would be a sorry world.

Religion is another human characteristic not evident in animals. Our belief in and worship of God, coupled with our conscientious effort to live according to moral principles—these are not found in the animal world.

Whether cats laugh is not a question of great moment. But whether man is living up to the religious capacity God has given him is another matter. Our awakening to our spiritual potential is a great moment!

1972 Chrysler

When you think of a Chrysler, you think of a big, strong, handsome car. A man's kind of car. Right?

Not completely. Women, too, go for Chrysler. And, most often, for the same reasons as men.

They like the good looks. They like the roominess. And who wouldn't? Automotive Industries reports that the '72 Chrysler has the largest interior of any 1972 U.S. car. But women, especially, like the way they can count on Chrysler to get them where they want to go... without a lot of trouble. Every Chrysler is built with a commitment to deep-down quality. Every Chrysler is built to last.

Isn't that the kind of car people really want? Men and women alike. We think so. Come in and let us show you a big new Chrysler today.

Cass City firm sub-contractor for giant power project

Helping to build the largest construction project in Michigan is a local firm.

Cass City Steel Supply Inc. is just one of many, many firms working on a massive $300 million power plant sponsored jointly by Detroit Edison and Consumers Power.

Last week the firm trucked another load of 16 huge metal catch basins to the site about four miles south of Ludington. Their roll in the project is to close off the bottom and add gutter lips and drainage tubes to the 7 foot high Helcor steel tubes. The pipes cost about $25 a foot.

The pipes, ranging in width from 42 to 54 inches, are brought to the steel company from Armco, Inc., which makes them in 21-foot lengths. Before they can be modified, the tubes must be cut into the proper lengths. A finished tube weighs about 400 pounds.

Paul Craig explained they've been converting the pipes over the past two years. They will be used in connection with the 27 billion gallon, 842-acre lake reservoir and giant hydro-electric generating plant.

He said two men can finish two of the basins in a day. To date they've made about 150.

The first unit of what will be the largest generating plant in the nation is expected to begin operation in 1973. When the project is completed in 1974, it will generate 1,872,000 kilowatts of electricity for the Michigan Power Pool.

Six mammoth reversible pump-turbine, motor-generating units fed by six 1300-foot penstocks on the shore of Lake Michigan will pump water into the reservoir during off-peak hours. When power generation is needed, the pumps will be reversed into turbines and up to 33 million gallons per minute will rush back into the lake to produce power.

Craig reported the construction is about half done at the 1400 acre site.

Set meetings to discuss new safety law

Meetings have been scheduled in Tuscola and Sanilac counties to discuss the new safety and record keeping requirements under the Williams-Steiger Occupational Safety and Health Act.

The Sanilac meeting is slated Tuesday, Feb. 15, at 1:15 p. m. at the Sanilac County Farm Bureau Building.

The Tuscola meeting is scheduled Friday, Feb. 18, at 1:30 p. m. at the Sacred Heart School in Caro.

The meetings are jointly sponsored by the county extension departments and the county Farm Bureaus.

This new act of 1970 requires that many records be kept by farmers if they hire labor. It also established many safety requirements to be adhered to. All farmers that hire labor should attend this meeting, according to Jim Calender, Chairman, Sanilac County Farm Bureau Young Farmers Committee.

Mr. M. J. Buschlen, Operations Manager, of Michigan Agriculture Services Association, Michigan Farm Bureau, will be the speaker.

Lutheran women buy equipment

Group projects were discussed Monday evening at the February meeting of the Lutheran Ladies Aid, held at Good Shepherd fellowship hall.

A tape recorder, recently purchased by the society for the congregation, was on display. Pastor James Van Dellen tapes sermons for members who are shut-ins. Also recently acquired by the Aid was a new vacuum sweeper.

The quilting day for February for World Relief is Wednesday, Feb. 16.

A Ladies' Day of Prayer service was held Tuesday at Our Saviour Lutheran Church, Bad Axe.

Committee reports were given by: Mrs. Elfrida Guinther, for the Alkar Society; Mrs. John Haire, sick committee; and Mrs. Ada Hutchinson, fall auction sale. Various dinner projects in March and April were also discussed.

Mrs. Al Avery was hostess for the evening with Mrs. Harold Deering, cohostess.

Joint meet for WSCS groups

Thirty-seven Methodist women were present Monday evening when the Trinity church members joined Salem church women for a joint meeting in Salem church.

The meeting started with a seven-thirty dessert.

Mrs. David Loomis presented the self-denial and prayer part of the meeting and the program was given by Mrs. Gilbert Albee, assisted by Mrs. D. E. Rawson and Mrs. Tom Proctor.

At the close of the program each WSCS society held a business meeting.

Muskegon prison to be "correctional institution"

A great hurdle facing officials of the state correctional system has always been lack of all the tools they really need to "correct" the people put in their custody. The public was never convinced the cost was justified.

Even under the best of conditions, helping a person in jail is a tough job. By the time he winds up in the state prison system, he's demonstrated to other people that he can't make it on the outside. For some reason or other he can't live in harmony with his fellow man.

Most of the inmates lack even the equivalent of a high school education and have no training for work of any kind.

To "correct" them, then, prison officials must educate them both to work at a job and to live peacefully with other people.

Now, in Michigan, steps are being taken to construct what prison officials say will be a "true correctional institution" in Muskegon. When it's done, the medium security facility will have room for 600 prisoners, who will be divided up into 120-man groups.

"I don't think there will be anything like it," says State Corrections Director Gus Harrison. "It will be an extremely progressive program—what we feel should be done in a correctional institution."

Present plans call for the inmates assigned to the unit to be between the ages of 17 and 24 with IQ's in the 80 to 100 range. In addition, they will be men "whose behavior is not so assaultive or disruptive as to require the maximum security placement of the reformatory."

*****

"Most of these men have underlying problems in very basic areas of behavior and performance," Harrison says. "They lack motivation and impulse control, and have attitudes that are ultimately self-destructive as well as dangerous to others."

To change this, a counseling program will be set up and plans specify: "counseling is being increasingly recognized as essential to any effective total treatment program."

Most unique part of the new prison, perhaps, is a self-analysis system built right into its operations.

"We will build in at the outset the capability to research what we are doing," says Harrison. "This has been one of the weaknesses of the past—we haven't been able to re-evaluate our own programs as they are initiated."

*****

The new prison will attempt to work on every aspect of the inmate's profile in hopes of turning him into a useful citizen.

It is this total approach which Harrison favors.

"So many people think all you have to do is change one thing and corrections can be an automatic thing," he says. "But that just isn't the way it is and anybody who's worked in the field knows that. You're dealing with a hard core of people by the time you get to the penitentiary and there are no easy answers."

He and his staff are hoping, however, that the muskegon prison may provide some of the not so easy answers.

VD FIGHT AIDED

State health officials say they have been given a new weapon in the fight to detect and eradicate the most prevalent of the illnesses lumped under the classification "venereal disease" -- gonorrhea.

The state Bureau of Laboratories now is handling a new method which allows the swabbing of live bacteria from a patient and the sending of the bacteria in a carbon dioxide filled jar to the state laboratory.

Previously, only examination of smears for dead bacteria could be done as a practical procedure and this failed to detect many women carrying the disease.

reopen until Monday morning. "I was considered fast in New Zealand, but here I'm out-paced," he laughed. Because of his comparative slowness, he said he's been nicknamed "Pokey".

The pace of American life is only one thing he's found different.

He finds color television a novelty because they don't have it in New Zealand, and he said he is amused by the custom in restaurants of giving water glasses before ordering. They don't do that in New Zealand.

Food in general is about the same except for the little things like spices and trimmings.

After three months with the Erlas, he will spend another quarter year with the Byron Landhells and then the Gerald Priestkorns. After that he said he isn't sure where he's supposed to go, but is scheduled to return home next January.

Chivalry is not dead—boys buy at box social

AUCTIONEER John Agar started the bidding at $35.

MARK ROBERTS bought it. . . .

Male chivalry has not completely disappeared. Young men will still pay hard cash for a box lunch on the chance of getting to share the edibles with a damsel of his choice.

The traditional box social of the Evergreen Guys and Gals 4-H Club was held Monday evening at the Evergreen School. A means of raising money for the club—they made $36 --and just an old-fashioned evening of fun have made the event a success for no one knows just how many years.

Mrs. Clair Auslander, who has been leading the club for 20 years, said the box social had been going on for as long as she remembered.

She said the ages of kids varies over the years. The 50 or 60 youngsters this time were mostly between 9 and 14, but that didn't exclude the adults or the youngsters from sharing the fun.

The kids have always enjoyed the box sale, said the leader. "They learn how to buy," she explained, besides just having fun.

John Agar auctioned off the decorative boxes, starting bids at 35 cents. Looks, weight and customer demand inched the prices upward to the maximum $1 limit.

After the lucky buyer claimed his purchase, the mystery of whose box he bought was quickly dispensed when the sometimes shy young lady was required to stand.

The groans of disappointment or the funny faces of just plain boyish clowning around were greeted with laughs from the rest of the crowd.

Once the last box was sold, the rush for drinks and the settling down to find out what they had bought, was soon replaced by the serious business of eating.

...and Sharon Peters, who packed the box, helped him eat it.

THE FOOD inside tasted as good as the decorative outside looked, as the smiles of Steve Agar and Kelly Wallace show.

BOB LESLIE bought a box with a valentine motif.

Next games may decide

The question: has Hawk quintet finally come of age?

The question Cass City basketball fans are asking themselves this week following their team's surprising 83-65 decision over Marlette Saturday, is the "real" Hawk squad the one that played against the Red Raiders or the one that played the preceding week against Frankenmuth?

The answer should be coming Friday at Vassar and Tuesday at Bad Axe.

The last time the Hawks met the Vulcans, Cass City won. But that has meant little this season. The first time Cass City played Freeland and Frankenmuth the team posted wins, the second time they played the same clubs they lost.

Conversely, the first encounter with Marlette resulted in a narrow Raider victory. Last Saturday the Hawks mopped up in convincing style.

There have been changes in the club as it is now and as it was when the season opened. Nick Gibas has moved into a starting role and Coach Fred Hurlburt has switched from the man-to-man defense that he prefers to a zone.

Saturday with Fred Harbec scoring his personal high of the season with 27 points and Gibas blocking several shots, Cass City looked as good or better than it has all season.

But Hawk fans have learned to be cautious when evaluating this year's quintet. The team has lacked consistency. In some games it appeared that the boys were putting it all together only to slip back with a miserable performance the next game.

Perhaps this is the mark of an inexperienced Sophomore dominated team.

But like a house of cards, when the team started to lose in several games it collapsed and the result was a virtual rout.

One reason that Cass City defeated Marlette was a better defensive effort against Glen Chappel. Although the dead-eye Chappel still managed 20 points it was less than half of the 45 points he totaled as he riddled Cass City in the first game against the Hawks.

The Hawks used a four-man zone with one man on Chappel at times during Saturday's fracas.

With Gibas in the line-up, Hurlburt has Randy Wright waiting in the wings along with Curt Strickland and Kip Hopper for bench strength that was sadly lacking earlier in the year.

It was a close game for half Saturday. The Hawks led all of the way. They stretched a narrow halftime lead to a big margin by the middle of the fourth quarter and Hurlburt was able to play everyone suited for the game.

Another pleasing note for Cass City fans was the balanced scoring. Four starters were in double figures. Paul Bliss directed the attack and scored 21; Harbec hit 27; Scott Hartel, 12, and Hillaker, 15. Rounding out the scorers were Gibas, 6, and Romig, 3.

In the preliminary game Cass City's JV's made the evening complete with an easy victory. Mike Frederick came off the bench to lead the attack.

Suit against Mayville school begins Tuesday

The civil suit of two Mayville school youths against the Mayville board of education, principal and superintendent is scheduled to go to trial next Tuesday.

The non-jury trial will be heard before Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge James Churchill.

The suit was brought against the Mayville school officials by Keith Davison, 17, and Bryan Smith, 16, after they were suspended from the school Dec. 16, 1971, for having their hair too long, which is a violation of the school dress code.

The code requires boys' hair to be out of the eyes and off the ears and collar. Sideburns may extend one inch below the ear.

The two students have been attending classes since a restraining order was issued Jan. 10. The suit claims the boys were suspended until they cut their hair to meet the school codes and that it is an infringement on their constitutional rights. It seeks reinstatement of the boys to school and an order to restrict enforcement of the hair and length provisions of the dress code.

Fed grant to spark road job

A federal grant of $480,000 has been awarded to the Tuscola County Road Commission to pay for 80 per cent of construction costs for a new building.

Construction is expected to begin sometime this spring at a site on the east side of M-24 about 1 1/2 miles south of Caro.

The funds are administered under the Public Works Impact Program by the Economic Development Administration of the Department of Commerce.

The commission has set aside $120,000 as the county's share in the cost.

FRED HARBEC goes up with a short shot to score. Harbec led all scorers against Marlette and posted what was probably the best game of his career as Cass City won.

Millage vote date uncertain for Intermediate district

County residents will be asked to increase property taxes supporting special education one-fourth of one mill in a special election this spring.

The date of the election is still uncertain.

The increase in funds is being asked by the Intermediate school board to expand services in accordance with a state mandate requiring special education for every handicapped child to age 25 in the state by 1973. Presently school districts have the option of providing special education to needy children.

The added millage will increase revenues about $60,000. The current tax rate is three-fourths of one mill on state equalized valuation properties and nets about $168,000 per year.

The current budget of $265,000 is supplemented by state and federal funds.

Millage has not been increased since 1961, officials point out, and request the raise to provide more and different special education programs and staff.

Director Al Mahan explained the additional revenue would be used to add five new itinerant and class room programs to the present 24 classes for the mentally handicapped and two classrooms for the deaf and hard of hearing.

New personnel could include a teacher-counselor for academic tutoring of the mentally handicapped, curriculum and behavior modification and on the job placement of mentally handicapped youth; a teacher-counselor to work with the blind, partially seeing and orthopedic children, their teachers, parents and agencies; a physical therapist and occupational therapist to work with all exceptional children needing therapy to benefit from academic and vocational training; initiation of an Instructional Materials Center and an additional school social worker or teacher-counselor of the mentally handicapped. Presently there are 13 itinerant teachers and 13 in the training center.

New programs could include initiation of a secondary level room for the deaf and hard of hearing (1974-75), an elementary classroom for the perceptually handicapped (1972-73), additional classroom programs for the perceptually handicapped over the next few years, an elementary classroom and/or itinerant program for the emotionally disturbed (1972-73 or 1973-74), and initiation over the next few years of additional classroom programs for the emotionally disturbed as needed (1973-74).

Frosh quintet sweeps aside all competition

The Cass City Freshmen basketball team promises good things for the varsity in the future. It is in the midst of a very successful season.

Monday night the Frosh pushed their season's record to 6-1 with a 62-42 decision over Caro. Joe Zawilinski with 16 points and Dave Eberline with 15 led the Hawk attack. The B team went into overtime before bowing 29-26.

Thursday, Feb. 3, the Frosh registered their most satisfying victory of the season. It was a 69-49 decision over Frankenmuth, the only club to defeat them this season.

Coach Dale McIntosh said that the young Hawks played an aggressive defensive game and showed scoring balance. Zawilinski scored 19 and Jim Root scored 14.

The B team lost another game by a point, 46-45. Rick Damm hit for 20.

Monday, Jan. 31, the Frosh easily topped Lakers, 85-42 with Jim Root scoring 21 and Zawilinski, 16. The B team won 39-16 as Rick Damm scored 16.
