

High prices cause little change in eating habits

Even though meat and food prices continue to rise, a random telephone survey of area housewives indicate their eating habits aren't changing much yet.

Harry Lenda
Buying hamburger, hot dogs.....

Families are maintaining their normal eating habits, even though it costs them more and the increase in food prices for the coming year is predicted to jump as much as 4 per cent. Housewives explained the nutrition of their families is more important than scrimping, even though some of them said their grocery bill increased from $5 to $10 in the last year. "I haven't cut back anything yet," said Mrs. Stephen Papp, mother of five. "I like to give the kids good meals." She estimated groceries take a little less than half their income, but she said she hasn't started buying cheaper meats yet or cheaper brands of canned goods. Mrs. Gene Hofstedt, mother of four, said she served protein every night, but this includes meat based casseroles and spaghetti. She said they have an occasional beef roast. Mrs. Hofstedt stated that the grocery bill is getting worse, but her kids don't get cavities and she attributes it to a good diet. "We haven't cut back yet," she said but added, "We haven't had a lot of frills." Several weeks ago prices of pork and beef reached the highest level in 20 years, because of a high demand and limited supply. This hasn't caused housewives interviewed to cut down yet either, although area butchers noted an increase in the sales of cheaper meats. Jim Gross of Gross Meat Market said his customers were buying just about the same as usual across the counter, even though the cheaper cuts of meat are available. He noted a general buyer resistance, however, and said customers are buying carefully and watching the specials. Dick Erla of Erla's Foods said he has had a greater demand for neck bones and pig hocks, although they're buying everything. Harry Lenda of IGA said also everything is being bought, although he's noticed about a 10-12 per cent increase in sales of chicken, hamburger and hot dogs over the last two months. "They don't seem to be re-belling," he said. "They're just watching more of the bargains."

Although sales of the cheaper cuts have increased, it doesn't mean housewives were buying so much of the more expensive cuts in the first place, as Erla noted that most housewives that come into his store buy hamburger, chicken, hot dogs and bulk sausage. "From there, if the budget permits, they'll go into steaks or roasts," he said. The women interviewed didn't reflect that pattern, however. One woman stated simply, "We buy what we want." Mrs. Joseph Gruber said that although the prices are higher each week end when she goes shopping, she hasn't cut down. "We have steaks and roasts, meat loaf to help stretch, and pork chops."

"You got to eat," she said. "If I want steak, I just buy steak." Some families are not affected by the increase because they bought wholesale. A rural housewife said her husband buys half of a beef and pork. "He even brings hot dogs home by the twenty pounds," she said. But the increase in other foods has affected her. It's taking more money, but she said she buys the foods she thinks are necessary for her three kids and husband. She said, "It's pretty sickening when you go to the store for something and it's marked higher than it was last week." Mrs. James Johnson, another housewife who relies on her deep freezer, said the increasing prices have caused her to do a lot more baking at home, an economy device other women noted. She also said she is using cooked cereals because boxed cereals are so expensive, even though they do take longer to prepare. Older couples on fixed incomes or families with a limited food budget are hardest hit by the rising costs. Mrs. Stanley McArthur, whose retired husband and herself live on social security benefits, said she was cutting back a little. "We try to buy what we need," she said. "We try to buy cheaper foods." She explained that she and her husband eat adequately, but added, "We're not buying steak very often, that's for sure."

Sunday booze okayed in surprise action Tuesday

A resolution allowing sale of liquor by the glass after 2 p.m. Sundays was passed by a 5 to 2 vote Tuesday by the Tuscola county Board of Commissioners. Voting no were Ed Golding of Cass City and Floyd Ducker of Mayville. Golding related that Owen Cheek, president of the Michigan Liquor Beverage Association and owner of a bar in Vassar, appeared before the board asking for the resolution. His appearance wasn't scheduled for the regular meeting of the commissioners at the County Court House, Golding said, and the request came as a surprise. "I didn't know anything about it," he said. Golding explained that after considerable discussion, a motion was made and another motion was made to table it to give some time to think about it. The issue was kept on the table by a 4 to 3 vote and then approved. A similar request came before the board about three years ago, Golding recalled, and it was turned down then.

Since then the requirement that 50 per cent of sales be in food has been altered to include beer, many more establishments will qualify, including the two bars in Cass City and the Gagetown Sherwood Forest Country Club.

Golding said the arguments presented in favor of the resolution were that local business was penalized because patrons went out of the county on Sunday for meals and drinks, and this would help keep business in the county.

The situation in Reese, where half is in Tuscola and half in Saginaw county, also entered in, where all one has to do is cross the street.

In other business, the board moved to put its full faith and credit behind the Mayville sewer project. Seven Mayville councilmen appeared before the board requesting the aid. Golding explained that by finishing the system under a Chapter 20 provision, it would save the village about $100,000. The sewer is partly completed and they couldn't finish it under the Department of Public Works program.

The board also discussed the Act 54 comprehensive Mental Health clinic and set up a meeting for anyone interested in mental health for 8 p.m. Mar. 9 at the court house.

The county is now associated with the Saginaw Adult Mental Health clinic and the Bay City Child Guidance clinic. Under Act 54, a county mental health unit would be created.

PLANS CALL FOR this building to be torn down and the site cleaned to prepare for this summer's appearance of the Artrain. Plans were announced this week by Mrs. Holly Althaver.

Anticipate 5000 daily at summer Artrain exhibit

Cass City will be one of 26 communities in Michigan to be visited by Artrain, a four-car train of outstanding art that will tour selected communities.

Upwards of 5,000 persons daily are expected to visit the display when it is in Cass City July 20-23, Mrs. Holly Althaver told members of Cass City Rotary Tuesday noon.

The Michigan Art Council, which sponsors the train, with help from State and matching Federal Funds, agreed to come to the village only after considerable ground work had been covered by the committee in charge, which includes Mrs. Geraldine Triskorn, Mrs. Karen Wallace, Vic Guernsey and Mrs. Althaver.

To prepare for the visit and to care for it while it is in the community is a much greater task, Mrs. Althaver said, and will require the co-operation of the entire community. Electricity for the train while it is on the rail siding between Church and Main streets will cost $700.

An acceptable walkway will be needed outside the train and arrangements made for parking and restroom facilities completed.

One suggestion has been to turn the area into a park and if it were followed the cost would be several thousand dollars. In conjunction with the Artrain there will be local artists on hand working and displaying wares, if present plans are followed.

Mrs. Althaver said that the project will require the help of all of the local clubs with both manpower and financial assistance.

The exhibits in the train will include all forms of art, including paintings of masters and sculpture.

It will be the committee's responsibility to provide adequate police protection while the exhibit is in the village.

The exhibit was first displayed last summer, mostly in the Upper Peninsula, and is planned to be shown this year and next and then discontinued. Cass City will be the only community in the Thumb showing the exhibits.

Johnson trailer burns Wednesday

Cass City firemen with an assist from Caro were called to the trailer residence of Melton Johnson of Deford, 5 miles south and 1 east on Shabbona Road, Wednesday morning to battle a fire that began about 8:30.

The blaze which spread rapidly started in the rear of the trailer, said Mrs. Johnson. She and three children were in the trailer when the fire started.

Firemen were still at the scene at press time. Cause is still unknown. Damage appeared to be extensive.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

It wasn't Blue Monday, or Terrible Tuesday, or Wonderful Wednesday, or Thirsty Thursday... it was Terrible Friday after Thirsty Thursday, that's what it was. Thursday is men's day at one of the town's favorite watering holes and the usual buffaloes were on hand for the usual activities and I was one of the herd. It was all fun and game. More so because Friday follows Thursday and Friday is the day of the week at the Chronicle where it's possible to show up (late), sneak out (early) and let the staff do the work. I had it all planned. A little cat nap here, a little coffee there and presto the day would be over and all that would remain would be the basketball game at night.

But it was early, early, EARLY Friday that the rude awakening came. Get up, John, the John is backing up. All I could think of as I manipulated the village's torture tape was that old boatmen's song I learned in grade school. You know the one with the refrain that goes "Yo, Heave, Ho".

On the "Yo" I'd unwind another coil from that infernal roll of steel, on the "Heave" I'd push that contrary animal another couple of feet down the sewer, and on "Ho" I'd check my aching head.

It was noon before I flowed into the office knowing that the water and stuff was flowing from our house to wherever it goes instead of onto our basement floor.

The morning's work killed any hopes for an afternoon siesta and it was after 11 when I dashed into the office to deposit my camera intent on nothing more than a quick trip home and some welcome sack time.

But the office was cold. There was no heat, no heat at all. I squared my shoulders, headed for the basement and took a deep breath... and then I knew.

I knew that odor. Water, water everywhere and not the kind you drink. Water everywhere and especially around the burner of the furnace.

No need to reveal the gory details. Enough to say that the good guy in the white hat proved to be Don Finkbeiner who came charging over with a sump pump, a sewer tape and a new oil burner motor.

Finally it was all over at 2:30 a.m. Saturday and I rolled blissfully into bed and had a wonderful dream about oceans of clean, clear water and drains that never plugged.

Car stolen from high school parking lot

Cass City police are investigating the theft of a car belonging to Arden Lapp, 4293 Crane Road, Cass City. The abandoned auto was found in the woods off Muntz Road Thursday. Two stereo speakers were found in a ditch near the road.

Lapp told police he had not reported it stolen when it was missing from the High School parking lot because he thought some of his friends had taken the car.

A tape deck player was taken from the car.

after Monday's primary election showed a 35-vote tie between Harry King and Tom Reehl.

King drew the slip marked elected and will have his name put on the ballot.

The competition among the four Republican candidates for three vacant council seats also saw incumbent Richard Burdon receiving 37 votes and Rudolf Leyva, 42.

Incumbent Democratic council member Harvey Polk received 10 votes.

Incumbent village president James England received 38 votes and Democratic challenger Elery Sontag 15.

Other incumbents with no opposition were: clerk Leta Ashmore, treasurer William Ashmore and assessor George Wilson, each receiving 41 votes.

A total of 82 persons voted. Appearing on the Mar. 13 ballot besides the office candidates will be a general obligation bond issue not to exceed $190,000.

SITTING AT THE CONTROLS of his snow plow is Clarence Ewald, recently retired from 35 years with the Tuscola county Road Commission.

Still on call for snowplowing

BY KIT McMILLION

In 35 years a man can get to know every inch of the county roads, and that is just about what Clarence Ewald did.

He celebrated his 65th birthday Jan. 29, and officially retired from a 35-year career with the Tuscola County Road Commission Feb. 1.

But it's not easy to put down a snowplow you've been wielding since 1950, so Ewald is still on call for duty if he's needed. The gigantic tractor with the plow attachments still sits next to his home on Green road, 5 miles west and one-half north of Cass City, until the next man is chosen to take over Elmwood township.

He began the first day of the job in 1937 with the maintenance division and shoveled gravel by hand into the back of a truck. Near the end of his work, another new experience occurred, his snowplow wouldn't start in the 13 degree below weather in January.

In the summer he worked with the Deford garage crew at road construction, and in the winter plowed snow.

"I've worked all day, all night, and all the next day," Ewald stated, as he explained about his work. He's been called at all hours of the night, too, for emergencies.

"I used to tell all the residents in Elmwood township if you have any occasion for a doctor to get out from evening to morning, just give me a call," he said.

Sitting in a comfortable armchair in a modest farmhouse living room, Ewald relaxed and reminisced.

"I know all the bad places in the county," he grumbled, calling Dodge, Hurds Corner and Crane roads the worst.

"They're full no matter which way the wind blows," he commented.

He laughed and said that "all you need is two dozen snow flakes and they all go over there," as he explained that the mile long Crane road had to be one of the worst.

Snow knows no hours to arrive, and consequently the men who plow it work whenever they have to. Ewald said now they have to be more careful about plowing on the week ends because of the school buses, but they never used to.

It also means you don't get lunch hours as such.

Ewald told a story about one winter when his plow got stuck on Schwegler road and some men were sent to dig him out. It was late Sunday night.

One of the men, Etzel Wilcox, who worked with Ewald many times, brought him a hamburger, Ewald said, because he thought he might be hungry. It tasted good, he admitted, and added, "If it hadn't been for that hamburger, I would have died." After the snowplow was dug out, they worked most of the night.

As a snow plow operator, Ewald had to be up before anybody else, usually about 6:30 or so, but sometimes he got up at 3 a.m. to start plowing roads so the rural factory workers would be able to make it on time.

It was also his responsibility to open the road to Brine Well where the county salt trucks get salt. After a big storm when everybody is stopped and the wind quiets down, I really enjoy opening the roads up. The people are waiting for me," he said.

The night calls and the late nights getting home are just a part of the job, too, but as a wife, Mrs. Ewald found it hard to sleep while her husband was out on the road.

"You worry a lot," she said, "just looking out the window and watching for that light down the road."

There was one winter he didn't get a chance to clear the roads, 1947, the year of the historical blizzard that stopped just about everything in the Thumb.

His machine at the time was a very small one and just wasn't adequate for the banks that were five feet before plowing.

"We were snow bound 35 days," he said, and went on to tell a story about some of his fellow workers.

The snow was so deep two snow plows were hooked together on M-81. They were a mile from town at noon. "One operator said, 'Let's go into Cass City and get our dinner,'" Ewald related. It was 4 a.m. of the next day before they reached the town.

During the 1967 storm he ran his machine 10-12 hours daily seven days a week. "I enjoyed it, but that's too many hours anymore."

Ewald related that in all those years he had only one accident with a snowplow, and that was when a car drove into the back of the plow on M-81. He said he was going full speed at the time, and he still doesn't understand how the driver didn't see him.

Cars are one of the worst hazards a plow operator has to contend with. It becomes extremely difficult to get around them when they are abandoned on a road. He told once of 15-20 cars on the side of M-81 within four miles of town.

"I dodge 'em and cover 'em up," he said.

Now that he has time on his hands, Ewald said he plans to take it easy and this summer wants to remodel his home.

Becky Loomis 1st runner-up

Becky Loomis was first runner-up in the Tuscola Campus Life Sweetheart contest losing the queen's position to Marilyn Rohlfis, Akron-Fairgrove.

The 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Loomis, 4982 Cedar Run Road, Cass City, competed against seven other girls for the title at the 4th annual pageant held Saturday at Mayville.

The contest was judged half on the number of money votes raised, and the rest on poise, talent, personality, and the audience vote at the pageant.

Second runner-up in the contest was Jane Grady, Caro.

"Nova Scotia"

"Highlands to the Sea"

NOVA SCOTIA, where green hills slope to the rugged shore, and where mutual respect has knitted cultural diversities into a strong and colorful national fabric, invites us to enjoy this beautiful Canadian province. Sea food processing and master ship building impress us. Grand Pre, with its memories of Evangeline and the French Acadians, portrays the Acadian family life on work days and festival days. The stately cities of Halifax and Sydney, climaxed by Cape Breton Highland National Park make us eager to see all of NOVA SCOTIA.

"If It Fitz . . ."

Swing to the pendulum

BY JIM FITZGERALD

As a leg man from way back (Betty Grable), I cannot get excited about the no-bra look. I mean, I am terribly worried about the gradual disappearance of the miniskirt and the growing popularity of elephant pants (although I must confess to a split opinion about some trousers now being worn by women. I like the way they hug the hips low, hinting to slip lower. But then there are great billows of cloth beneath the knees and there is no way to judge the shape of things underneath. The gal could actually have elephant legs and not even another elephant would know).

With all this on my mind, I really don't have time to fret about braless women, one way or another, up or down. Except that on a moralistic level, I will admit no-bra is a step toward honesty.

There has always been a lot of deceit packed into bras. This has never been true of legs. A woman has always had to stand on her own two, with no help from the rubber industry or balled-up Kleenex. The braless fashion forces women to be as honest about their breasts as they must be about their legs. Every God-fearing man must welcome this return to the Christian principles which made National Geographic such a fascinating reading when I was a boy.

Whatever. My purpose here is to assure you the braless question is not going unanswered, even if such an esteemed girl-watcher as myself has no time for it. Relax, the American Medical Association (AMA) is on the job.

In a recent issue of the medical journal, Dr. John Wulsin of the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine had this to say about women holding their own:

"Once lengthened by tensions these fibrous connections . . . do not resume youthful dimensions, and despite hopeful legend, no amount of exercise will restore pristine mammary profile."

Translation: they droop forever.

Well then, should the AMA advise women to remain in harness? Dr. Wulsin gave this answer:

"This calls for special finesse of judgment in the realm of social rather than scientific. . . To the unfettered female of today her unbuttoned breast may evoke greater peace of mind and cosmetic elan than the traditional projecting hemisphere so idealized by artist and female fantasy."

Translation: who cares if they droop, it's stylish. Or: the hemisphere has lost out to the pendulum.

Job's Daughters

reception held

Or: If Dr. Welby talked like Dr. Wulsin, there would be time for nothing else on channel 7 Tuesday nights.

Anyway: I'm glad I'm a leg man. I realize my anatomical selection makes me no less a male chauvinistic pig who regards females as sex objects. But at least I don't have to worry about unbuttoned knees being unleashed upon unsuspecting ankles.

Onward and Upward . . . er, Downward? Geez.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Traveling can be educational. That's what Lambert Althaver and Bob Walpole learned the hard way on a business trip last week.

The pair were aboard a plane that was returned to Chicago because of a bomb scare.

The scare was a phony . . . but when the pair reboarded how could they help but wonder if someone had overlooked one of the remote areas of the plane.

It would be hard for me. I worry when they put out the flaps and the plane groans a little.

In rock ribbed Republican Tuscola County any serious candidate for public office would almost rather be guilty of wife beating than be accused of being a Democrat.

But times are changing. W. Wallace Kent Jr. of Caro this week announced that he will make a serious run for the prosecuting attorney's job. He's filing as a Democrat. Maybe we are on the verge of a two-party system?

The chefs at Cass City's White Creek club are gaining ever widening acclaim. It used to be that the demand for Dick Erla's service was limited to White Creek and the Rotary Club.

But now the enterprising Senior class has shanghaied him into cooking the spaghetti dinner in March.

Dick's son, Rick, is class president, but that's not the reason. The reason is that Rick's old man just loves to take over in the kitchen and do his thing.

At first glance it appears that Judge James Churchill's decision in the Mayville school case would mean that school boards may set reasonable rules for hair style by students.

But really it's not that certain. At nearly the same time the local decision was reached, in another court in Saline, Mich., a Federal judge ruled in favor of the student with the long hair.

Without attempting to get into the legal technicalities of the cases, it should be apparent that the best course is the one followed in Cass City.

There is no dress code or hair code here. There has been a minimum amount of trouble, too. Teens want to be with it with the current fashions. . . just like their parents.

Setting rules just challenges them to be broken if for no other reason than to test the establishment.

Mr. and Mrs. Duane Witkovsky

The 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Witkovsky of Darbee Rd., Caro, was celebrated Saturday, Feb. 12, at the Caro Gun Club with 125 guests present.

The former Margaret Virginia Cottrell and Duane Charles Witkovsky were married Feb. 12, 1947, by the late Fr. Betzing in Sacred Heart Church, Caro.

Attendants, who were both present for the occasion, were Mrs. Ed Bennick of Caro and James Romain of Cass City.

The Witkovskys have two children, Katherine and Charles, both at home.

Mr. Witkovsky is employed as engineer at Hills and Dales Hospital, Cass City.

Women's council meets Feb. 7

St. Pancratius Women's Council met Feb. 7 with 12 members present and two guests.

Michelle Zdrojewski is to nominate new officers, to be elected in May.

The celebrant for February was Fr. Dale LaBrie of Central Michigan University.

Discussion of a new social hall has begun.

Sewing machine care

Judy Marks — Extension Agent

You're anxious to get the dress done when - the sewing machine begins to act up. It begins to run hard, skip stitches and the fabric puckers. The immediate reaction is to throw your arms up in despair. You become more anxious and frustrated.

The causes of these problems are relatively simple and easy to remedy. Let's look at them. Machine runs hard - perhaps thread is wound around hand-wheel or bobbin area, -- or -- the machine needs oil.

Skipping stitches may be caused by a bent needle, needle too small for thread, or the needle may be incorrectly threaded. Puckers in cloth may result from a dull needle and/or one or both tensions being too tight.

Periodic cleaning of a sewing machine is a good preventive measure. In fact, a machine should be cleaned and oiled after a day's work - 8 to 10 hours. Whether or not a machine is used, it should be oiled occasionally to keep the oil from drying and gumming.

For more information about cleaning your sewing machine, contact your Cooperative Extension Service. Ask for the bulletin "Cleaning and Adjusting Your Sewing Machine."

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

I heard a saying the other day that I'd like to pass on to you. It is that a newspaper editor has got to have a diplomat's tact, a mule's endurance, a salesman's enthusiasm, the sun's dependability, the loyalty of a football fan, a rhino's hide, a elephant's memory, a mother's forgiveness and the patience of Job. I don't know what you think, Mister Editor, but finding all that seems like a pretty tall order.

Talking about tact, I recollect an example in a paper a good many years back. The editor said in one of his social items that "Miss Hannah Brown a bell of 20 summers, is visiting her twin brother James, who is celebrating his thirty-second birthday with a dance tonight at the community house." I reckon you fellows got to use a lot of tact in sailing yore course cause the wind blows at you from so many ways.

Sometimes, tho, you tell us more than you expected to. Not long back, I saw this report in a daily paper. "A jubilant Pakistani pilot landed his Chinese-built fighter here today and told how he had fired an American-made Sidewinder missile into an Indian MIG-21, destroying the Russian-supplied aircraft." If that ain't wrapping up world politics in a mighty few words, I wouldn't want to try. And that report I saw where a Baltimore dentist broke his patient's leg while pulling a wisdom tooth tells me that wisdom goes a heap deeper in this country than I thought.

Practical speaking, the newspaper folks in this country may not have all the virtues in that saying, but you do a real service in telling us what's going on and holding our politicians feet to the fire. I like what one paper said when that Congressman allowed all this reporting about secret papers in Washington was a stink made up by the papers. This one editor ask the Congressman if he ever had saw a skunk holding his own nose. And when the Congressman said his conscience was clear, the editor allowed he probable had stretched it so thin he could see thru it.

Furthermore, Mister Editor, the papers go out of their way to do us favors. I saw a while back where this editor runs free ads for folks wanting a job and wanting to give some pun away. He said that was his policy cause "a man never needs friends more than when he's out of work, or has a litter of kittens." And if you didn't read the papers, how would we know that the 7,000 students that voted at Indiana University named ecology as their major interest? Sex was second, politics was way down the list, and rioting wasn't even on it.

Final, I saw by the papers where the Government give up on trying to investigate the American Telephone and Telegraph Company's rates. A federal spokesman said the company was to big for the Government to control. Is that saying the country is run by telephone?

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Tax, reapportionment politics leave voters skeptical

Politicians who wonder why voters are reluctant to believe anything they say need look no further than Lansing for some causes.

Several recent occurrences, merely the latest in an unending series of similar instances, found in any state capital, demonstrated again that the words and actions of public officials can be two different things. Probably of most immediate concern to Mr. average taxpayer is the move to extend the income tax increase voted into effect for one year last Aug. 1. The law specifically said the 50 per cent increase would expire this coming July 31, but even as it was written into law in the Legislature and signed by the Governor, nobody expected it to expire.

Senate Democratic Leader Coleman Young of Detroit puts it bluntly: "Nobody. In this Legislature or the executive office had any idea, I am sure, that this state could exist without extension and continuation of that tax. You might say a certain amount of dishonesty was engaged in by even putting a termination date in the bill in the first place."

Senate Republican Leader Robert Vander Laan of Grand Rapids says any legislator who really thought the tax raise would be allowed to expire was "merely daydreaming."

"I think every member, if he knows what he's doing, would know that the budget was based upon that particular tax, not only last year but now," he says. "If he says anything else, he doesn't know what he's talking about or he's trying to dodge the issue."

The logical question for the weary taxpayer at this point might be, "If everybody knew they'd never rescind the raise, why put an expiration date on in the first place?"

The answer is human nature. The leadership, who are forced to carry the ball on issues such as this, needed the tax increase to keep the state from going bankrupt. But they couldn't round up the votes among their colleagues, afraid of what the voters would think of more taxes, without first agreeing to the expiration date.

That way, the people who voted for it could go home and say, "Yeah, I don't like it either, but it was necessary to balance the budget and besides, I made 'em put an expiration date in it so it wouldn't be permanent."

Whether the "blame," if there is any to be assigned for such actions, goes on the leadership for agreeing to the date or to the rank and file who demanded it is probably a matter of point of view. But when gimmicks are written into law, voters can't be expected to be anything but wary.

A second glaring example came in the machinations of the Reapportionment Commission. Before the commission members threw up their hands and gave up on the idea of reaching agreement, months and months of work went by. But in all that time the four Democratic members, led skillfully by Grand Rapids attorney A. Robert Kleiner, refused to negotiate with the Republicans on anything except Democratic terms.

And Kleiner maintained with a straight face that he and his fellow Democrats never even considered what effect their plans would have on the makeup of the Legislature when drawing them up. At the same time he refused to discuss the partisan political results of the drawing of districts despite the fact discussing reapportionment without politics is like discussing religion without ever mentioning God.

Kleiner made the claims despite the fact Democratic strategists held repeated meetings figuring out reapportionment plans and looking very closely at how various lawmakers would be affected.

And the final Democratic plan would give firm control of the Legislature to Democrats, if adopted. It would go so far as to throw the two Senators from Grand Rapids -- Kleiner's home -- Republicans Robert Vander Laan and Milton Zaagman, into the same district. Kleiner, a long-time resident of Grand Rapids, claimed he had no idea where Zaagman lived.

The reasons for the protestations in this case lie with the fact the case is going to the Supreme Court and philosophically such things as partisan politics are no reason under law to adopt or reject a plan. The feeling was if the Democrats kept protesting their innocence, it would make their case with the court stronger.

Technically, their reasons are probably valid. But it's no wonder the voter gets cynical.

FROM THE LITTER BOX

Spring fever

By Kit McMillion

Spring fever, a lazy or restless feeling associated with the onset of spring. Or so Webster proclaims.

I call it the February blahs. Spring fever--February blahs--either way, I get it about this time of year when there's still snow on the ground but there's a smell of spring in the air.

Mostly I go around in a fog and yawn a lot.

I used to get this feeling about the first of January, but winter here certainly does drag on and on. The ground hog thinks we're going to have more winter, but I know better.

As far as I'm concerned, winter is over. No more hats or boots for me. We may have more snow and ice and below freezing temperatures, but they are merely slight interruptions in the arrival of the earth's re-awakening.

I can hardly wait. Rain and winds and dreary, cloudy days. Mud. Colds. Wow, I can hardly wait.

This kind of weather always sparks the wanderlust in me, too. I feel I should embark on a long journey and conquer the world, or at least a small dragon or two or maybe just a large dog.

After spending most of the winter huddled around the radiator, munching left-over Christmas candy and chewing my fingernails, I'm anxious to begin the traditional commune with nature the season calls for. As I walk to work stumbling over the ice formations on the sidewalks and gingerly plunging through slush and dirty snow, I look for robins, or pussy willows or anything that will tell me winter is over.

As a foreigner to the state, my first Michigan winter has been mild, I am told. For those of you who haven't asked but are thinking about it, we do have snow in Illinois.

I have enjoyed the snow here too, and the snowmobiling, but I hate winter.

I'm lucky I wasn't born an Eskimo, because I've been dreamily staring out my window recently, lost in a reverie of how pleasant it will be to go bicycling again, thumbing through spring catalogs thinking about new clothes and then about the extra winter fat I always put on to keep warm and will now have to lose.

UGH!

All this need for change should spur me onto action to get things done, but since I'm basically a lazy person, I think I'll just use spring fever as an excuse.

Meow.

Farm tax records

By Don R. Kebler

I can't help wondering how much longer farm operators will continue to allow themselves to pay more income taxes than necessary. Over the years I have made similar comments and each year I find it more easy to make this statement.

This year's income tax reporting forms are more in detail and to many more complex than ever before and it won't get better. So what is the solution, and how can these operators avail themselves to the savings allowed by the income tax laws?

First of all, I'll say "have complete and accurate farm business records," and secondly "know all the laws pertaining to their business operation."

Actually, accurate records and knowledge of the befitting income tax laws are synonymous to tax savings. It doesn't really make too much difference whether one learns the laws and develops his record system to compile the records or have the complete records then learn the law.

It also doesn't make too much difference whether a person files his own tax returns or hires it done, the taxpayer must have the same degree of record and tax knowledge. Just because one hires his tax computed he should not overlook the fact that his consultant can only do as good a job as the information given. This is where the shortcomings occur and why proper records are needed. Because if income and expense items are not separated into their proper categories, they can be entered onto the wrong forms. Proper identification and use categorizing of income and expense items is the primary duty of the taxpayer. Once he accomplishes this, he helps himself and/or his consultant then both know a better report has been made.

As we go down the road, I predict more people will be hiring their tax reports computed but this won't exonerate them from the legal responsibility of records. Income tax laws are requiring more accurate and detailed record systems than ever before.

An excellent record system is possible when you enroll in the M.S.U. Telfarm program. This Telfarm system compiles an end of year report separating the different categories into usable parts easily transferable onto the income tax forms. It also aids you in becoming knowledgeable with the tax laws.

With all this available through Telfarm, a cooperator receives a business analysis to give him a business direction. Enrollments in the 1972 Telfarm are now being taken at your Extension office.

Jury system AAUW topic

The jury system was the topic of discussion Wednesday evening, Feb. 16, at the regular meeting of the American Association of University Women.

Two members of the Cass City High School debate team, B. J. Halre and Ron Crandall, led the discussion. They offered the possibility of a six man jury and abolishment of victimless crimes, such as prostitution, gambling and drunkenness, to cut the backlog of cases clogging the courts.

Another idea offered was letting an arbitration board of professional men decide damage cases in civil matters.

President Ann McDaniels told the club elections for first vice-president and treasurer will be held at the March meeting. The nominating committee of Kathy Iseler, Alice Donahue and Dorthea Quick are seeking members to fill offices.

Hostess for the evening was Miss Linda Isbister with Mrs. C. W. Price assisting.

BETTER HEALTH

"...to depart in God's own peace."

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

In "Chicago Today" for January 26, I was much interested to read of an important decision made by a kindly judge, which I think has tremendous significance for all of us. In a nearby city a wise judge, Michael T. Sullivan, had the kindness to refuse to appoint a guardian for a 77-year-old widow who had been lonely and ill for 17 years. And now he has refused to permit surgeons to amputate her gangrenous left leg.

This gangrene comes when an artery hardens so much that the blood cannot get through. As a result, the tissue in the leg dies, endangering the person's health.

The doctors say that if they don't operate, the woman will die. She says that she doesn't mind dying, because she has suffered so long and has been so lonely, and doesn't want to have her sufferings prolonged. She is all alone in the world, and has no one to live for. Judge Sullivan had been called to appoint a guardian who would then order the surgeons to amputate the woman's leg. But the judge decided against this, and said that he felt the woman should be allowed "to depart in God's own peace." He acknowledged that in the future there will be "mercy deaths," in which the doctors will not do anything to hurt the patient, but will not work strenuously to prolong suffering or even prolong life temporarily.

In 1905 or 1907, I worked hard every day in a huge city and county hospital, where many of the patients had come in to die with perhaps a hopeless tuberculosis or a scattered cancer. I can still see, in my mind's eye, the face of a sweet old man, close to a hundred years of age, who told me that for long he had much wished to die, because he had a great big prostate gland which had so plugged up the outlet of his bladder that the only way he could get relief was to pass a catheter, or tube, through the urethra and into the bladder, enabling the urine to flow out. But because he was not a trained urologist, every so often he would get his bladder infected, and then he would suffer greatly and would wish that he could die.

As he said, "Doctor, can't you see, I have nothing to live for. I have no family, no home, and no money after 20 years of suffering, living in poor-houses and charity hospitals. I have been praying God to let me go. Now I am begging of you doc'rs not to move heaven and earth to keep me alive. What are a few extra weeks or months to me? If I start to die, please, doctor, let me go."

After talking to many such unhappy and long suffering derelicts, I came to have great sympathy for them, and to feel that their wishes should be respected. Now that some 67 years of busy practice of medicine have gone by, that sympathy has increased.

The wisdom of Judge Sullivan gives me hope that perhaps other judges will also stand up for the rights of the person to refuse an operation or strenuous medical treatment that he does not want and that would only prolong suffering.

But progress is slow, and at the same time Judge Sullivan was making his kindly decision, another situation arose in which a 15-year-old girl, on finding herself pregnant, attempted suicide three times. Some local judges stepped in, saying that she must go ahead and have the child that she does not want. It always distresses me when I see people in such situations saying, "Because many of your neighbors don't approve of abortion, you must go ahead and have that fatherless and perhaps sickly child that is in your womb."

I have read most of the literature on abortion, and curiously, very rarely have I found a writer who was concerned with what would become of a child, born unwanted, to a mother who would not or could not care properly for it or provide a happy home and an education. In some cases, the child is born with serious defects that make his chances of living a happy or satisfying life almost non-existent.

Recently, when a study was made of what happened to the children of 58 girls and women who were refused a much wanted abortion, it was found that a high percentage of the youngsters, without the support and comfort of a happy home and without the love and guidance of a fine father and a fine, able and mature mother, fell into bad company and eventually wound up in jail.

Recently, in Life Magazine, there was a fine article on the right to die. I am happy to see that a number of national magazines are beginning to show concern about abortion and a willingness to discuss this topic. There is beginning to be much talk about euthanasia, which in Greek means a kindly death. Many people are violently against euthanasia, because they think that what the doctor is supposed to do is to kill the patient. But that is not true. All the doctor is asked to do, by many dying patients and by many relatives of dying patients, is to give the person good nursing, good relief of pain, but no strenuous efforts to keep the person alive for a few more weeks or months of useless suffering.

What are the symptoms of hardening of the arteries? Is a person with an excess of blood cholesterol more likely to get a heart attack than a person with low cholesterol? Are there any drugs that are effective at lowering the level of blood cholesterol? In his booklet "Hardening of the Arteries, and Cholesterol," Dr. Alvarez answers these questions and others. You may have his booklet by sending 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. CCC, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Bank robbing
bumblers

By Dan Marlowe

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL says that amateurs are giving the ancient profession of bank robbing a bad name.

Everybody is getting into the act without learning the lines.

There was, for instance, the hippie-clad stickup man who not long ago strode into a Cincinnati branch of the Southern Ohio Bank. He handed a teller a neatly-printed note which read: "This is a happening. I want $20,000 in cash in 30 minutes. I will be waiting outside in a small gold-and-black car. I will not use force since it is undignified."

The bandit walked out to his black-and-gold car as the teller read the note, and there he waited patiently for someone to show up. Someone did. The police.

But that would-be stickup man at least had a getaway car. That's more than can be said for a 15-year-old Bonnie and her 17-year-old Clyde when they held up a bank in New Madison, Ohio, last year. In this day of woman's lib, no one should think harshly of the fact that it was the girl who held the gun on the teller. The gun was unloaded, as it ultimately developed, but the girl got a quick $7000.

She also got chased by angry bank employees and customers, and a nearby restaurant owner, seeing the commotion, snatched up his shotgun and apprehended the fleeing girl and her boy friend who had been keeping watch outside the bank. The capture was made before they could reach their getaway vehicle, which was a bicycle.

Some days nothing goes right in the bank-robbing business. There was the case of the bank robber in Southern California who strolled into a Bank of America branch and handed the teller a note. It read: "Milk. Bread. Pick Up Laundry."

The puzzled teller returned the note. So the bandit pulled a gun. "But the teller noticed it was dripping water from the barrel," a Bank of America man recalls. So the teller rang an alarm, and the bandit raced outside and jumped into his car.

Which wouldn't start.

The less humorous aspects of such performances include the number of them. The FBI lists 2565 reported bank robberies last year, about 10 each banking day. This figure increased an astounding 25% from the previous year.

It's not funny to the participants -- "It's a frightening experience, like dealing with crazy people," a bank manager says of his experience with three shotgun-carrying, bungling amateurs—but it does have its lighter moments.

Like the time when an amateur, aware that a camera was constantly running in the Cleveland bank he had selected to rob, climbed atop a desk to cover the lens. Before he did, however, he looked straight into the lens, affording the FBI one of the best full-face closeups on record.

Then there was the woman who drove up to a drive-in teller and pulled off a successful robbery. Well, momentarily successful. The teller wrote down the license number of the car as the woman pulled away. She was picked up an hour later. She had conveniently used the family station wagon for her bank robbery.

Moral: the loonies are taking over the country.

We've all heard that a picture is worth a thousand words. But this photo tells the whole story of mankind.

The barbed wire symbolizes this earth we live in — filled with war, hatred, greed. Transcending the ugliness of this world is the Cross, symbol of Christ's sacrifice for us, the promise of eternal life.

But we don't have to wait till death for a better life. We can do something about that barbed wire. More understanding, and selfless—not selfish—action would do much to purge our world of ugliness.

God's Church is the natural means of resolving discord. Human nature being what it is, heaven on earth is impossible. But improvement on earth is possible — necessary!

STORE HOURS: Thursday & Friday nights till 9:00. Daily until 6:00.

THIS HOUSE journeyed down Seeger Street Wednesday morning on the way to its new site one mile north of M-81 on Schwegler Road. Bob Wischmeyer bought the house from Tom Jackson several months ago and moved it from the Church and Seeger corner location.

Telephones were out of service temporarily while wires were moved to make way for the building.

Few injuries in rash of minor accidents

Numerous minor accidents were reported to Cass City police.

Cars driven by Ervin Duane Schram, 22, 4190 Leach St., Cass City, and Robert L. Bassett, 58, 4434 Woodland Ave., Cass City, met in the alley between Seeger and Main streets Friday at 3:30 p.m. Schram told police he was going down the alley when Bassett backed out and hit him. Bassett told authorities he didn't know he had hit anything.

The first of three mishaps Thursday, Feb. 17, involved a transport truck driven by Robert Vernaeke of Indiana, which struck the L & S Sports Center sign in the alley behind the building about 1:10 p.m. The driver was trying to avoid a car, he told police.

Ricky David Bryant, 19, 2232 Englehart Road, Deford, struck a dog belonging to Jimmie Perry when the animal ran into the road from behind a parked car. Bryant was heading south on Cemetery Road when the mishap occurred about 3:55 p.m.

An hour later Otomar Almar told police he was going down an angle parking place on Seeger Street and into a parked car belonging to William Bliss Jr., 4454 Maple St., Cass City. A Feb. 15 accident resulted in minor damage to cars driven by Marsha Ann McNeil, 6918 Houghton St., Cass City and Charles Eugene Damouth, 6361 S. Sixth St., Cass City. Mrs. McNeil was going south on Oak Street at 5:10 p.m. when she collided with the Damouth vehicle, which had stopped at the intersection but didn't see the other car until he was in the intersection.

Sheriff's deputies investigated an accident in Elmwood township Tuesday at 11:55 p.m. involving Theodore M. Turrubiates, 31, 7266 Pine, Owendale. He told authorities he was driving on McElownery Road, when another car came into his lane. He tried to avoid it and lost control of the vehicle, landing upside down in a ditch, receiving minor injuries.

Fire destroys

Rayl farm home

Fire destroyed the farm home of the Walter Rayls Wednesday, Feb. 16, on Richard's Road, 2 miles south and one-fourth east of Decker.

The fire began about 4:30 p.m. in the kitchen and soon spread to consume the entire building, a neighbor said. Nothing was saved.

Firemen from Marlette fought the blaze about three hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Rayl and their three teen-age children are staying with relatives.

A love offering was collected for the family Friday night at Decker United Methodist Church. Anyone wishing to make a donation for the family can contact Mrs. Virgil Geister, 1698 Hadley Road, Decker.

Issue warrant

auto crash

A negligent homicide warrant was issued Tuesday morning for the arrest of Robert Duane Haines, the driver of one of the cars involved in the Feb. 9 accident in which Lillian Katherine Koeltzow, 69, of 4884 W. Center, Millington, was killed. The victim was the third fatality of the year in Tuscola county.

The fatal accident occurred on Birch Run Road in Arbela Township. According to sheriff reports, the Haines vehicle was making a left hand turn into a driveway when the west bound Koeltzow car collided with it. Three other persons were injured in the crash besides Haines.

Sheriff's expenses, 1971 call load up

Expenses generally increased for the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, according to a report issued last week by Sheriff Hugh Marr.

Accompanying the increase in costs was an increase in the number of calls handled during the year.

Operating costs climbed 7.5 percent from $193,891.47 to $208,517.31. Part of the expenses of running the department are defrayed by moneys received from fees, inspections, refunds and other sources.

While costs were up 3.3 percent, the report showed that calls handled by the department were up about 18 percent.

Marr said that 15,089 calls were received last year while the preceding year 13,697 calls were handled. In the last six years calls handled by the department have more than doubled.

As previously recorded, the number of traffic fatalities diminished for the second straight year. In 1971 there were 7 fewer deaths on county highways . . . 27 last year and 34 in 1970.

While the number of deaths decreased there was a slight increase in the number of injury accidents. The total last year was 747, up from 732 in 1970.

There were fewer tickets issued in 1971, according to the report, a total of 681 in 1971 as compared to 775 the preceding year.

Perhaps reflecting the changing climate of the area, arrests were up sharply last year. The 1971 total of 667 is 189 more than were recorded in 1970.

Arraign 6 Tuesday in circuit court

Harold Gaudette, 19, formerly of Caro, pleaded guilty to felonious assault Tuesday at a pre-trial conference in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

Gaudette, who was originally charged with assault to commit great bodily harm less than murder, entered the plea before Judge James Churchill. Gaudette was arrested following the early morning stabbing New Year's Day of Christopher Hoppe of Decker and Ronald Spencer of Deford during a fight outside the Club 24 Bar south of Caro.

Sentencing is scheduled for Mar. 6.

In other criminal business, six persons were arraigned. Robert Molina of Vassar was arraigned for illegal possession of marijuana in connection with a Dec. 22 incident in Vassar. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered. His bond of $1000 was continued and a pre-trial set for Mar. 6.

Martha Molina of Vassar was also arrested in the same incident and charged with possession of marijuana. A motion to file for Nolle Prosequi was granted by the judge. If the motion is accepted by the court, the case will be dismissed.

Adam Lugo of Saginaw, a third person involved in the Dec. 22 case who is also charged with possession, had his case continued to Mar. 30 in order to obtain counsel. Bond of $1000 was continued.

Joseph Young Davis of Mayville stood mute to a charge of third offense driving under the influence of liquor. He was arrested Jan. 29 in Indianfields township. Bond was continued in the amount of $1300. A pre-trial is scheduled for Mar. 6.

Philip Thayer of Caro stood mute to a charge of malicious destruction of more than $100. He was arrested Dec. 24, 1971, in connection with damage done to a Caro home. Personal recognition bond was continued. A Mar. 6 pre-trial is set.

The case of Harley Brock Jr. of Caro, who is charged with uttering and publishing a check in the amount of $282.62 Nov. 15, 1971, was continued four weeks in order to hire counsel. Bond of $750 was continued.

Special ed millage vote set for May 8

May 8 is the date set for a special education millage election for the Tuscola Intermediate School District.

County residents will be asked to increase millage for special education from .75 to one full mill, which will raise approximately $60,000 of additional revenues. The present millage rate, which has been in effect since 1961, nets about $168,000.

The increase in funds is requested to expand present programs and meet the state requirement of offering special education for every handicapped child to age 25 in the state by 1973.

Between 1200-1300 children involved in special education programs will be affected by the millage.

Letters to Editor

Backward Cass City turns down lounge

I was certainly disappointed to see that the student lounge was turned down this past week.

Why does Cass City have to be so backward? Here are some students showing great interest in something they believe in, then it's turned down. What do they have to do to get some people to see their ideas?

I know myself from last year and all the other years that there is no serious studying done in study hall. What would it hurt to try a lounge out for awhile and see what happens? The library could easily be used for those who really wanted to study. It's up to the students if they want to give up their study hall for a lounge. Give the students some voice in their education. Students need this responsibility. Do you think that the "age of majority" would have been lowered if no one thought that the younger population had a sense of responsibility?

All the students are asking is to have a little bit of responsibility. Instead, they have no choice but to be harassed up in a room for an hour.

I also know from being at college, it's a lot easier to concentrate and do your work when you aren't pressured. How can anyone get any studying done when they are afraid that if they talk or move they will be sent to the office, to the corner or some other childish thing? It always seems that the students are never heard. And it seems to be the same people voting against them. Just who were those 28 people out of 32 against the lounge, Mr. Hoag? Do they have sons or daughters in high school? If they do, there seems to be a lack of communication between the student and parent. Did they ask their son or daughter what they thought about the lounge or did they make their decision themselves?

It's their education, their life, let them live it!

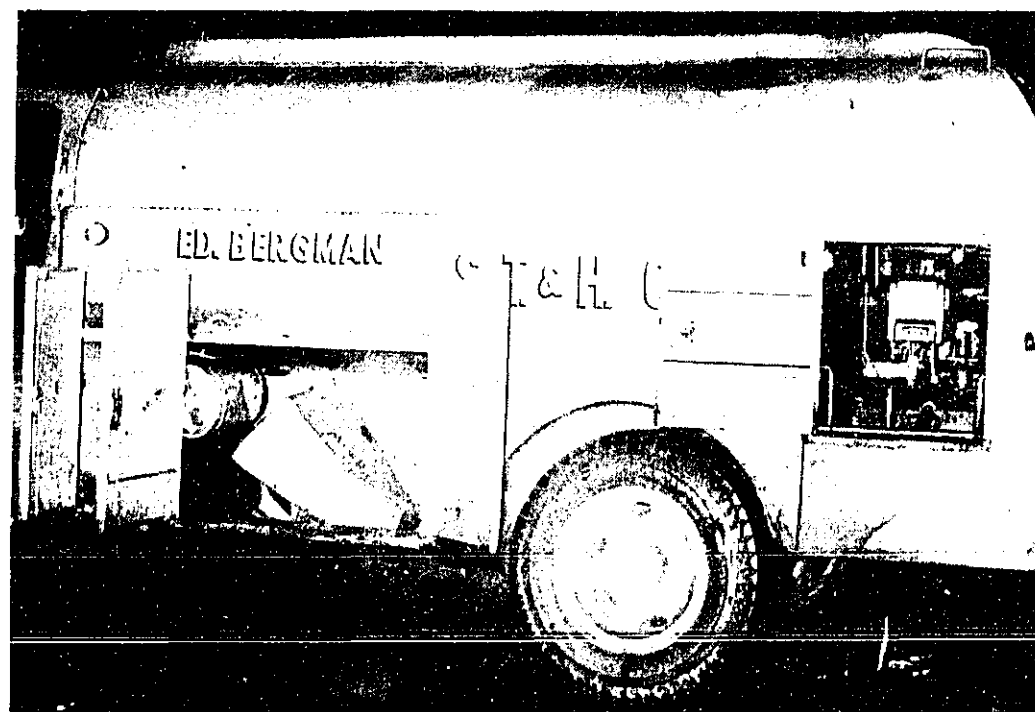

Sincerely,
James Maharg
Aquinas College

No lounge shows good board judgment

Dear Mr. Editor,

We would like to express our appreciation to the members of the school board who voted down the student lounge, Mr. Hoag, Mr. Hicks, Mr. Koepfgen, and Mr. Helwig. We feel that they used very good judgement.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Dorland

TWO ALERT YOUNGSTERS averted what could have been a major disaster Tuesday night when they reported a fire at ST&H Oil Company. Craig Kelley and Mark Gibas noticed smoke in the building and alerted authorities. When firemen arrived a flame was burning under the gas storage tank of the truck. It was quickly extinguished. The fire was believed to be started by a short in the back end of the truck and damage was estimated at $50.

450 hear experts at clinic

THE ESTIMATED 450 persons attending the farm program at Cass City High School Saturday listened closely as John Doneth, MSU professor, spoke.

Visiting experts from Michigan State University outlined the current farm picture and forecast future trends for some 450 farmers from Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties Saturday.

The all-day meeting was held at Cass City High School and featured a talk at a noon lunch by Bud Guest.

John Doneth told of the agriculture picture. He pointed out via film and discussion that in the last decade farm work had increased from 20,000 units per man to 60,000 units per man.

He said that he could see no slackening in this trend. He also pointed out that the rapid enlargement of farms would continue until practically all of the farm produce would be produced by the large producers.

The various talks by the visiting experts covered all phases of farm operation. Allen Shapley talked of labor and safety regulations, telling of new safety law requirements. Legal considerations for environmental quality for crop and livestock farmers were explained by Jim Johnson. New tools and trends were outlined by Roy Black who told of the high cost of machinery and land to own, rent, lease or hire.

The afternoon session included a talk about credit by John Brake, MSU, and Bob Schultheiss of Wolverine State Bank, Sandusky. The use of credit today, they said, is the heart of most successful farm operations.

The meeting was concluded by a discussion of farm business organization led by Hi Brown, MSU, and estate planning by Ralph Hepp, MSU.

TUSCOLA COUNTY EXTENSION Director Bill Bortel was the master of ceremonies for the full day of activities in the Thumb Agriculture in Action Spectacular Saturday.

The final regular season game of the year for the Cass City Red Hawks has assumed more meaning following the pairing for next week's district tournaments.

For Friday's contest will be a tournament preview as the Hawks face the Lakers, the same team that is the opening round tournament opponent for Cass City.

To win Friday and to win next week, Cass City will have to be at the very peak of its game.

When the Hawks are functioning well they are a serious threat to any Thumb B Conference team, even though the record doesn't show it.

They functioned well against Bad Axe and won and in the first half were clicking along against Sandusky last week. But in the second half things fell apart and the smooth working Redskins quickly chalked up another victory over the Hawks, 93-78.

Without taking anything away from Sandusky, which has a good basketball team, the fates were unkind to Cass City.

In the first half, Scott Hartel came up with what is apparently a slight fracture of his leg and was on the bench for all the second half.

And the Hawks ran into foul trouble that kept Nick Gibas sitting beside Hartel for much of a quarter and limited his effectiveness when he got back in.

Eventually Gibas, Paul Bliss and Randy Wright all were lost with five fouls.

In the first quarter Cass City jumped into a 10-point lead.

They moved in front because they outrebounded and outshot the visitors. Gibas, Hartel, Dave Hillaker and Fred Harbec controlled the boards.

In the second quarter Sandusky came to life and out-rebounded Cass City to pull back into the game by half time.

In the third period the Hawks fell apart and the visitors staged a devastating attack. The Redskins' 31-14 margin salted away the game and the bench for both teams took the floor for the mopping up process in the final period.

Hillaker led Cass City's attack with 18 points. Hartel and Bliss scored 14 each.

JV GAME

The Hawks won the preliminary in a well played game, 77-74. Both clubs scored freely in a game that was close all the way.

THE CASS CITY FRESHMEN have completed a season in which they lost only one game. Posting the outstanding record were, first row: Mike Gaszcynski, Jim Warju, Rick Damm, Bill Bader and John Ballard.
