

New plan retains 7 districts

The Tuscola county reapportionment commission adopted a modified 7-district plan Tuesday at its second meeting.

The new plan splits Waterman township roughly in half with its Precinct 1, east of Edwards Road, moving from the 7th district to the 5th district in the southwest corner of the county.

Kingston township was also split with its Precinct 2, east of Kingston Road, moving from the 5th district into the 2nd district in the eastern end of the county.

The remaining districts remained the same.

The plan was agreed upon at the first meeting Feb. 23. The commission was convened following an appellate court decision ruling that all counties must be reapportioned by the statutory commission and not by the county board of commissioners. Deadline was Mar. 4.

The districts were set up four years ago by the board of commissioners following a one-man-one-vote basis.

The new districts follow that provision as closely as possible.

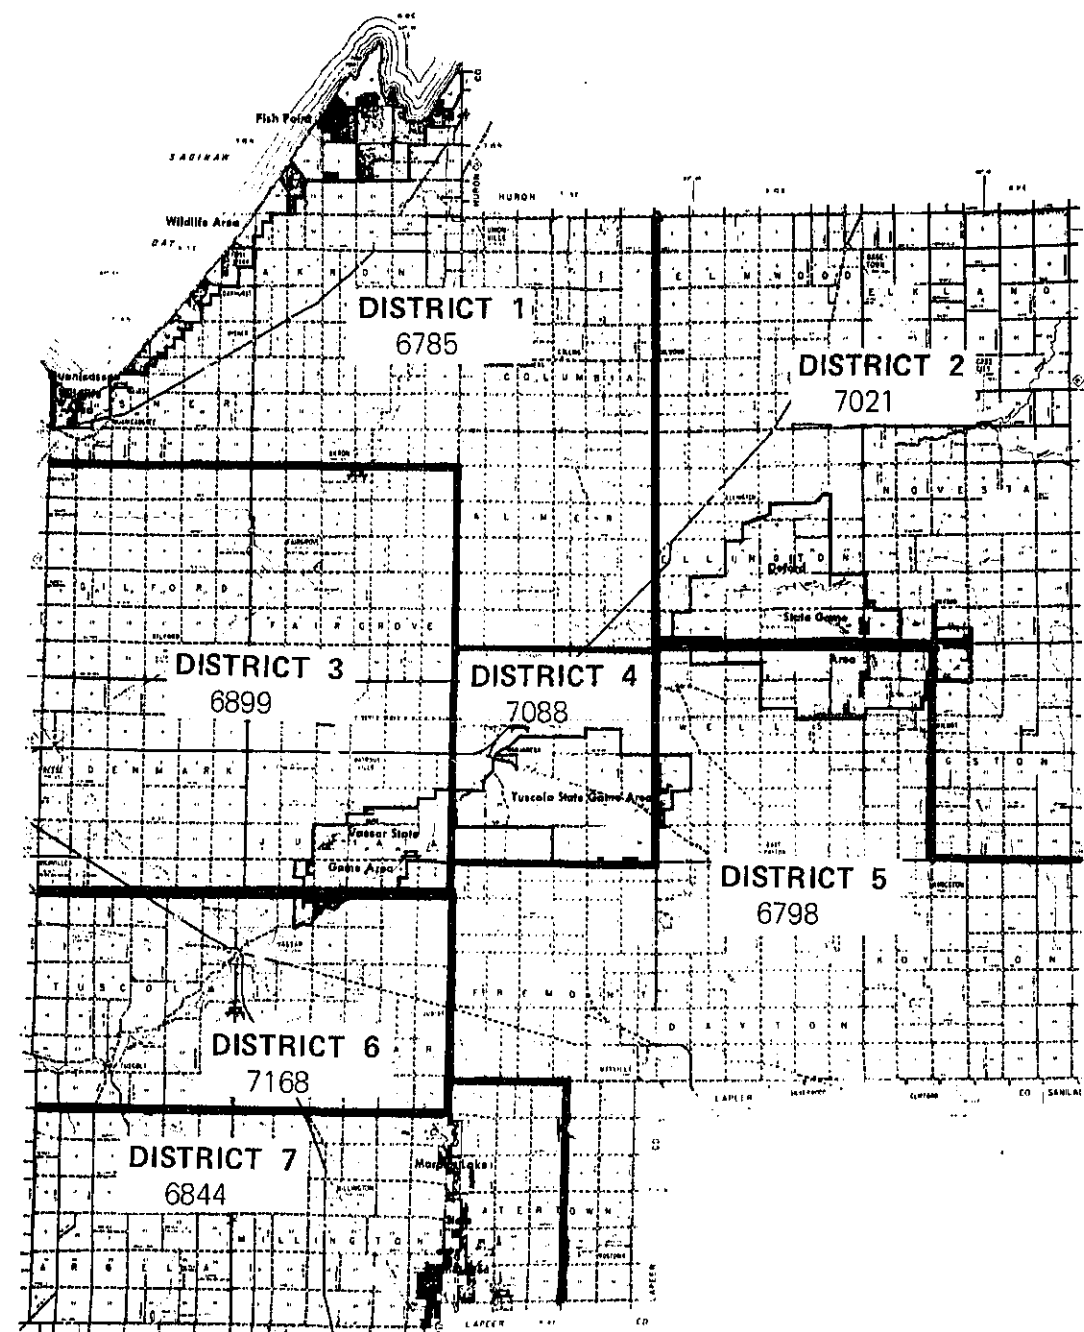

The changes were made because the population according to the 1970 census figures showed a rapid increase in the southwest corner of the county.

New districts and populations are: 1--Akron, Wisner, Columbia and Almer townships, 6783; 2--Elmwood, Elkland, Ellington, Novesta and part of Kingston townships, 7021; 3--Gifford, Fairgrove, Denmark and Juniata, 6899; 4--Indianfields township, 7088; 5--Wells, Fremont, Dayton, Koylton and parts of Watertown and Kingston townships, 6798; 6--Tuscola and Vassar townships and Vassar City, 7168; and 7--Arbela, Millington and part of Watertown townships, 6844.

The new districting goes into effect immediately, but will have its first real use in the November elections for county commissioners.

The reapportionment board consisted of Tuscola County Prosecutor Leo Maki, chairman; Clerk Elsie Hicks, secretary; Treasurer Arthur Willis; Peggy Marker, Republican party representative, and Mike Hill, Democratic party representative.

Council reviews preliminary pool plans of park committee

There will be no swimming in Cass City this year. The pool is closed and will not reopen.

Preliminary plans for a new swimming pool were presented to the village council Tuesday evening by the park committee and architects from Saginaw. The new pool has been under discussion, not public, since last fall.

Plans are still in the forming stage, and it was not until Tuesday night's regular council meeting that the park committee was "authorized" by the council to proceed with the next step, a scale model of the proposed facility and submission of plans to the state department of health and the various agencies from which the council is seeking funds.

The pool is estimated to cost about $175,000. If the plan is accepted by the citizens and the funding agencies, one-half of the cost will be borne by funds other than locally raised.

The plan calls for a new bath house, pool and spray pool. The bath house is to be built of cement block, not beautiful, explained Dr. D. E. Rawson, trustee, but functional.

"The plan is basically as simple and direct as can be," he said, adding that it will meet minimum state health requirements.

Not being able to meet the minimum state requirements is what closed and condemned the pool last August. Built in 1938, it was unable to satisfy the more stringent 1971 specifications.

Dr. Rawson explained that while the cost seems great, to rebuild the present pool would demand about $125,000, none of which would be funded by grants. Thus, it is cheaper in the long run to build a new one.

If the present site were rebuilt, the village would also end up with a smaller pool, because all of the modifications would have to be built inside the present structure.

"If it were to be used at all, the only thing that could be used would be the hole," Rawson noted.

The proposed pool is a modified structure that will be able to serve the public all year, according to the plans. A bath house will include area for storage, arts and crafts, indoor and outdoor toilets and office space.

The architect explained that for winter use, the partitions separating the men's and women's sections can be removed and the basket room can be turned into a refreshment area.

This space can then be used for a warming house in winter.

The master site plan of the Orr East property, which the village has made plans to purchase for several years, shows the pool location in approximately the center of the park, about 300 feet between the present football field and the Lion's club picnic shelter.

To the east of the pool location is planned an ice skating rink. The remainder of the park is sketched out to include parking and other play and picnic facilities.

The L-shaped pool itself is planned to be 25 yards wide by 75 feet long with a diving area roughly half again as big. The old pool measured 35x75 feet.

The large deck area planned and the increased pool surface area will service the community for many years to come, trustees Rawson and Gladys Albee assured the council.

The acquisition of the approximately 27 acres of land and the pool is estimated to cost about $200,000, half of which will fall on the village's shoulders.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, Mrs. Verna May MacRae appeared before the council to question the village about the possibility and feasibility of running a sewer line to the first house south of the high school. She said they were considering moving into the home which presently has only a septic tank, but which is inside the village limits.

Village president Lambert Althaver advised her they could investigate the possibilities, although the closest sewer hookup there is several hundred yards away, and there are no other homes in the village limits there.

The other residences are in the township. When Mrs. MacRae asked if there might be some way to include them in a new sewer hookup, Althaver advised her that council policy for the past 10 years or so was to not extend services out of the village limits.

In routine action, the council appointed James Blades, village superintendent, as street administrator, whose duties are to sign the reports that go to the highway commission under Act 51. This act returns some monies to the village from the state.

The board was also notified that the state highway commission will no longer certify street improvement plans as it has in the past, which means the local government will have to find a certified engineer and pay him to examine any plans over $5000.

this year's budget in order to keep expenses in line.

Included in the figures is $12,100 for the grading and surfacing of Garfield Street from Seeger to the railroad tracks. It was moved at the meeting to take bids for this work, which will complete the construction begun last year when curb and gutter and drainage were put in.

Construction work will also begin on West Street this year, with $12,300 budgeted for the installation of curb and gutter and drainage. It will take two years to complete this project, Concluded on page 14.

2 hospitalized with crash injuries in fair condition

Two Cass City residents are listed in fair condition in Hills and Dales Hospital following two separate automobile accidents.

Grant Strickland, 44, 4431 S. Seeger St., received injuries Monday when he lost control of his car about 4:40 p. m. as he was headed east on M-81, left the road and traveled 384 feet, hitting a phone pole and sign. The vehicle rolled over three times before coming to rest, about one-fourth mile east of Spence Road, according to Tuscola county sheriff's reports.

Strickland told deputies he didn't know what happened. He was cited for careless driving. Diane Freilburger, 22, 6592 Third St., was injured when she lost control of her car as she was rounding the curve on M-81 about 5 miles west of Cass City. Her car slid sideways and was struck in the passenger side by a car going west and driven by Allen L. Jones, 24, 324 Fremont St., Caro. Jones and a passenger were treated for minor injuries at Caro Community Hospital.

The accident occurred about 8:15 p. m. Sunday night when the roads were snow covered and very slippery.

The county's fourth traffic fatality occurred the same day when Helen Mary Fitzer, 48, of Detroit, was killed in a two-car crash about 12:18 p. m. at the intersection of M-24 and M-46. Both she and a passenger, Dorothy Fitzer, 41, a patient at the Caro State Home, were thrown from the car. She was treated for minor injuries at Caro Community Hospital.

Bernard E. Ruby, 42, Otter Lake, driver of the other vehicle, was not injured, but a passenger in his car, Wilbur Wright, 42, of Mio, was treated for minor injuries at Caro Community Hospital.

Sheriff's reports said the Ruby vehicle was headed west on M-46 and the Fitzer car was going south on M-24. Traffic on M-24 is required to stop at that intersection.

Several minor non-injury accidents were reported also.

A car driven by Robert W. Glazier, 19, of Essexville, struck one driven by Robert G. McTaggart, 31, Deckerville Road, Cass City, Sunday about 5:15 p. m. when Glazier lost control of his vehicle going north on Unionville Road in Akron township.

McTaggart was headed in the opposite direction. Roads were wet with snow at the time of the collision.

Mark Clair Tuckey, 33, 4353 Koepfgen Road, Cass City, escaped injury when he hit a deer on M-81 near Schwieger Road about 6:20 a. m. Saturday.

Cass City police investigated a two-car accident at M-81 and Leach Street at 5:10 p. m. Saturday when vehicles driven by Willard L. Dodson, 55, 2807 Seventh St., Wyandotte, and Maxine Margaret Maharg, 53, Maharg Road, Cass City, met at the intersection.

Dodson was going west on Main Street when he was struck by the east-bound Maharg vehicle, which was attempting a left hand turn.

Sanilac county sheriff's deputies are still investigating an early morning Saturday automobile-snowmobile accident in which Grant D. Pattullo, 23, Deckerville, was killed.

Also injured in the 12:23 a. m. mishap on U.S. 25, 1 1/2 miles north of Deckerville Road, was Larry Hooper, 23, Deckerville, who was on a second snow machine. He was taken to Port Huron General Hospital with a leg injury and transferred to a hospital in Detroit.

The driver of the car involved in the collision was Gilbert Martinez, 18, of Deckerville. He was unhurt but two of his three passengers were treated for minor injuries.

The death marks the third traffic related fatality in Sanilac county for 1972.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

Consistency.

That's my claim to fame. When it comes to consistently fouling up anything that requires even the most rudimentary or mechanical traits, I recognize no peers.

Perhaps that's why that car ad on television that pictures all the dumb dudes who don't know a piston from a transmission is one of my least favorite commercials.

Obviously they are designed so that they give most viewers a feeling of superiority. . . they know what baffles the poor jerks on the boob tube.

Not me. I'm with the actors. As I said, I'm consistent.

And it's not just mechanics that throw me for a loop. I can foul up anything that requires me to figure out even the most simple of diagrams.

A couple of Christmases ago my boy received a hot car track in pieces and wanted good old dad to put it together.

It really didn't bother me that I couldn't. . . nobody's perfect. . . but I'll confess that I was a little upset when a neighbor boy came over and had little trouble putting all those odd little pieces together without even thinking too much about it.

My fumble finger talent is by no means restricted to toys, cars and other machines.

STILL SEWING on little girls' dresses that she will send to a Georgia mission is Mrs. George Richardson. The 82-year-old woman still has four to make this year, the third year she's worked on this project.

Giving, helping—a way of life for Mrs. Richardson

By Kit McMillon

Giving has always been a part of Mrs. George Richardson's life.

This year, as in the last three, 24 little girls will be happier on Easter because of the time and love she put into making dresses for them—24 little girls Mrs. Richardson doesn't even know.

Known to many in the Cass City area as "Mrs. Richy," Freda Richardson is a quiet giver who seeks no more thanks than knowing she's doing something for someone else.

As she sat in an armchair in the modest living room of her home at 6438 Sixth St., a thimble on one finger and needles and scissors nearby, she told how she began the project.

About two years ago, she had stopped in West Point, Miss., to attend mass at a church where she met the pastor of the parish, a Father Dean. They became friends and he wrote to her afterwards and said he had been transferred to a very poor parish in Kentucky.

"He wrote to me that the nuns went around begging clothes, so I sent 20 dresses to him," related Mrs. Richardson.

When the father was transferred again to start a parish in Georgia, she decided to send 24 dresses for Easter.

Twenty of the bright pastel cotton frocks are neatly pressed, but there are still four more to make. Mrs. Richardson said she sewed them in sizes for 4, 6, 8 and 10 years from a basic pattern and then adds some frills. The button holes are all made by hand.

Besides the dresses she sends to Father Dean, one year 34 she made were sent to a mission in Lima, Peru, by a convent in Florida. She explained that the sisters there asked her for them.

"I told them, I don't care where you send them, as long as some little girls wear them," she stated, adding "I did it out of the goodness of my heart because I like people."

But for Mrs. Richardson, giving must be on a more personal basis than through an organization. "I like to give it to someone I know and deserving of it," she said.

The incident that prompted this philosophy occurred when she was working for the Red Cross during WW II. A woman walked in one day wearing a sweater that was identified by a friend of Mrs. Richardson's as one she had made to send to her son through the Red Cross. She confronted the woman and verified the sweater by locating the $10 bill she had hidden in the corner.

"So that lady kept that sweater," said Mrs. Richardson, shaking her head in disgust. And that was the end of organized charity for her.

But not of giving. Still plucky and full of energy at 82, the wrinkled hands and grey hair can only diminish but not hide the sparkle in her eye from an inner drive and the full life she has enjoyed.

Some of her generosity was gained from her first husband who told her to never turn someone away hungry.

"My first husband was always good-hearted," she said. "We always had things to share."

It was through an act of giving that they were able to continue their own lives after they lost their farm and home through a mortgage foreclosure.

Mrs. Richardson related that the day after the sale, a stranger came knocking on the door seeking bread and milk. She turned him away, but called him back when her husband said she shouldn't turn him away hungry.

Her husband was crippled with sciatic rheumatism following a bout of food poisoning and could barely walk. The stranger told her he had cured his with a treatment of a few drops of carbolic acid in a whiskey shot glass of water every night.

Skeptical but willing, they tried it and within 10 days her husband was on his feet again.

From the farm near Bay City, they went to Detroit, but when the depression set in along with discouragement, Mrs. Richardson took her 11-year-old son back to the north farmland and dickered with a banker to rent a farm until she had a down-payment. He was reluctant, but in the end she got a 60-acre farm with nothing on it but a double cow shed.

With her own ingenuity and perseverance, and the financial backing of strangers who admired her guts, she had the farm paid for within five years, along with some good stock guernsey cows, 100 chickens, and a team of horses.

When they had to sell that little farm, she and her husband retired to Cass City, where she lived until his death in 1959. While staying in Florida with one of her daughters, she met George Richardson and together they came home to Michigan.

The twinkle shone in her eyes as she smiled and said, "I don't have a regret in my life."

"I've done a lot. I've helped a lot of people, a lot here in Cass City," she said quietly.

Picking up the little white dress bodice she was sewing, she modestly explained, "I don't like to brag about the things I did, but I like to do it."

Removing stains

Judy Marks — Extension Agent

Do stains in garments get you down? Don't let them! Stains can be removed easily if you act promptly. If stains are not removed right away, they become harder to remove.

One of the most common stains is ball-point ink. It is relatively easy to remove. Act promptly and soak in a detergent/warm water solution, sponging with rubbing alcohol or an oxygen bleach. If none of these works, apply a dry-cleaning solvent in a well-ventilated room.

In removing any stain, remember to: 1. — work from the outside of the stain to the center to prevent spreading, and 2. — keep the stained side down to wash the stain out.

If you would like more information on removing stains, contact your local Cooperative Extension Service Office and ask for a copy of "Removing Stains From Fabrics."

Sex behind the bar

BY JIM FITZGERALD

More and more bars are installing electronic bartenders programmed to mix 36 basic drinks at the push of a button. "Try asking it who won the 1927 World Series," growled John Marra, the disgruntled president of the Detroit bartenders union.

It is to laugh. Where has Marra been? He should stop in an old-fashioned, non-electronic bar and ask the bartender who hit the crucial home run when the Tigers won the pennant on the last day of the 1945 season. The bartender would smile at Marra, protrude her cleavage, wiggle her mini, and say, "Gee, I don't know. I wasn't born until 1951. Was it Gordie Howe?"

Whenever you see a male bartender today you know he is the owner and the regular bartender has run off with the driver of the Miller's High Life truck.

Long gone is the day of the wise old bartender who had lived it all and was fully qualified to advise a husband who hasn't been home in 3 weeks because his tie is caught in the bowling machine.

Joe Bartender in white shirt and bow tie has been replaced by Susie Sax in high heels and low neckline. It is nice that President Marra is concerned about his union members being replaced by push buttons. But where was his concern when it was decided that Susie's shape could sell more booze than Joe's philosophy?

This will probably get me in trouble with Women's Lib. But let's face it, Susie isn't behind the bar because she makes a great martini. She's there to be ogled by men who will buy extra drinks to prolong the pleasure of watching her reach into the cooler.

Susie doesn't wear hip huggers or minis because they're more comfortable. She wears them because they're good business. It's the corner tavern's condensed version of Hugh Hefner's bunny clubs. Anytime you see an ugly barnyard in a smock, she's the owner's wife.

Please don't think I'm knocking it. I enjoy the scenery just as much as the next lecher. But I cannot stifle my compassion for all the old Joe Bartenders who have been replaced by young dolls who use their physical charms to push Pabst. It doesn't seem fair.

Some of my fondest memories are of wise old bartenders who knew when to throw me out and when to let me sleep in the back booth. There was even one who used to drive me home and create a disturbance in the front yard to distract my parents while I sneaked in the back door.

It pains me to see such fine men put out of work by Susie Sax who might excite me temporarily but would probably call the cops if I got stuck in her bowling machine.

So President Marra doesn't get much of my sympathy as he wonders how to collect union dues from an electronic bartender. Better he should worry about more important things, such as how to program a push-button bartender to answer the phone and tell my wife I just left.

Name 5 December grads from Central Michigan

Listed among December graduates from Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, are several from the Cass City area.

Donald Joos

Donald Joos, 22, son of Mr. Maurice Joos, 4346 Woodland St., Cass City, is working on a master's degree at CMU following completion of a bachelor of science degree in business administration. He graduated from Cass City High School in 1967.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Trying to figure out probable attendance at a Cass City Red Hawk basketball game is almost as difficult as figuring out the team.

There shouldn't have been much of a contest or much of a crowd Friday. After all, the game meant nothing, and the two teams met again Monday in the tournament.

So what happens? Cass City plays extra well and the largest crowd of the year attends.

The Gagetown firemen have new fire hats, Chief Charles Wright reports. Nothing unusual about that except the firemen, all volunteers who work for the glory of it all, dug into their jeans to come up with half the cost. Now that's real devotion to duty.

They are here again in limited quantities for free distribution, the 1972 official Michigan Highway maps. As usual, we wish them out, one to a customer, on a first come, first served basis.

When our supply runs out you can get one free by writing the Department of State Highways, P. O. Drawer K, Lansing.

Three Cass City alumni attended the Laker-Hawk tournament game Monday night. All spotted me 10 points and bet a buck on the Lakers. Imagine! 10 points.

All of which goes to prove that the trio were better players here than they are judges of team talent. The men were Gary Cummings, Clare Comment and John Meininger.

Now don't go looking them up for a bet of your own. Remember, I saw them first.

William Penfold celebrated his birthday Feb. 26. Since the area's patriarch is 103, his birthday makes news. But it's oh hum stuff for Penfold these days, reports Bill Zemke who went to his house for an interview for WKYO radio in Caro.

Bill didn't want to talk for radio, but when the tape was shut off we had a fine discussion. . . one that would have made a whale of a feature newscast, Zemke said ruefully.

Problems, problems, problems. . . that's all there is in this business.

Shed a tear, will 'ya?

Friends of the Walter Rayl family are planning an open house for them at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Geister Sunday from 2 to 5 p. m.

The Rayls lost their home and possessions in a fire Feb. 16. The Geister home is at 1706 Hadley Road, 1 1/4 miles northeast of Hemans.

The Geisters have issued an open invitation to anyone wishing to come and help out.

Pamphlet gives lamb buying tips

It's zesty, versatile, and imaginative! Lamb, that is, and the booklet, "How to Buy Lamb", is now off the press to tell you about it. "How to Buy Lamb" is the latest in a series of more than a dozen how-to-buy-food pamphlets published by the Consumer and Marketing Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The 16-page booklet is a handy, concise reminder that there's more to lamb than the

ORDER OF PUBLICATION GENERAL

State of Michigan. Probate Court for the County of Tuscola. File No. 21600. Estate of Frances V. Klein, Deceased.

It is Ordered that on March 16th, 1972, at 10:00 a.m. in the Probate Courtroom, Caro, Michigan a hearing be held on the petition of Aletha H. Auten for appointment of an administrator, and for a determination of heirs.

Publication and service shall be made as provided by Statute and Court Rule. Dated: Feb. 17, 1972. C. Bates Wills, Judge of Probate.

traditional leg of lamb and more to buying meat than shopping for economy alone.

Economy really means buying meat according to the USDA quality grade and the cut that suits your serving needs. "How to Buy Lamb" does more than discuss these points -- it illustrates them with a photographic selection of popular retail cuts and a chart showing the breakdown of cuts from a side of lamb. Photographs also illustrate some of the USDA quality grades and the lamb yield grades.

Single free copies of "How to Buy Lamb" are available from USDA by sending a postcard request to: Office of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250. Quantities may be purchased from the Department of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. for 15 cents per booklet. A discount of 10 per cent is given on orders of 100 or more bulletins.

Larry Hosnercited for work

Marine Corporal Larry G. Hosner was presented the Maintenance Award for Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron 462 during ceremonies at the Marine Corps Helicopter Air Station in Futema, Okinawa, and was cited for his outstanding work record in helicopter maintenance.

The corporal is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Hosner of 231 N. Kingston Road, Bedford.

He entered military service in the fall of 1968. Hosner graduated from Cass City High School in June, 1968.

Appraisal

sessions slatedin Cass City

Mac O'Dell, Equalization Director, announces that Tuscola county, through the Equalization Department, is setting up a training school for assessors or anyone interested in appraisal methods. This is an attempt to further the education of those in the assessment field and to make available training in the Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac areas for those that might contemplate running for assessor or supervisor. The course content and the instructors have been approved by the State Assessor's Board.

Classes will be held in two separate sessions: the first session will run from April 4 through June 13 and the second session will run from Aug. 29 through Nov. 7 and will be held at Cass City High School. Classes will be held in the speech room every Tuesday evening from 7:00 to 10:00 p. m.

BUILDING A MODEL home is the major portion of the term's work in Wayne Dillon's carpentry class. The scale home teaches the correct way of building a house and is second only to building an actual house as a teaching technique, Dillon believes.

The boys work in pairs and two of the finer scale model homes were built by Mark Posluszny (top photo, right) and Randy Wright and by Curt Strickland (lower left) and Bob Ross.

Anthony's feelnew restaurantwill fill a need

Because the Jim Anthony's restaurant find a year-around restaurant that suited them, Wildwood Farm, which opens Saturday, was born.

Mrs. Anthony, who moved into the Thumb area from Drayton Plains 10 years ago, said that she was always complaining to her husband about the distance involved in getting to a restaurant and he said, "Why don't you build one?" and the new firm nestled on 40 acres on M-53, about a quarter of a mile south of M-61, is the result.

It will be the first venture into the restaurant business for the Anthony's but they shouldn't be babes in the woods when it comes to business. Mrs. Anthony has operated several businesses in the metropolitan area and her son, Kim, 21, is a graduate of Michigan State with a major in food science.

Jim Anthony will continue with his work in the metro area and will not have an active part in the new restaurant.

There should be plenty of room in the spacious new building. The dining room will seat 100 comfortably and is designed so that tables can be moved and a dance floor created for dancing that is expected to start as soon as the initial shake-down period is over.

In the lounge where the modern bar is located, there is seating for 60 persons, separate from the main dining room.

While not available immediately, Mrs. Anthony reported this week that by midsummer a special meeting room will be completed where parties of up to 150 persons can be served.

Maurer warnsflowing grainis dangerous

Flowing grain is dangerous, and all farmers should be made aware of the hazards involved in loading and unloading grain bins.

While attending a company meeting recently, Haven Maurer of Maurer Construction, Uby, viewed an outstanding audio-visual presentation, entitled "Suffocation Hazards in Flowing Grain" and produced by Purdue University.

Highlights, according to Maurer, included several graphic examples of the dangers of flowing grain. One Indiana farmer tried to retrieve a scoop shovel he had left on top of the grain mass. Just as he leaned through the roof hatch to grab the shovel, it started to slide into the withdrawal cone formed in the discharging grain. He lunged to get it, lost his balance and fell into the grain flow. He finally saved himself by using the shovel much as a paddle, "rowing" himself up and out of the grain.

"I'm convinced now that flowing grain is dangerous," Maurer said, "and I'm going to do all I can to warn farmers and their families of this danger."

FROM THE LITTER BOX

Time is relative

By Kit McMillion

This is a leap year as everyone knows, and last Tuesday, Feb. 29, was the focal point.

Besides messing up poor little kids' birthday parties and delegating them to being perpetually young, the year traditionally offers the fair sex an opportunity to snatch a man without being forward. That probably doesn't mean a whole lot anymore, but the opportunity is still there.

Everyone always makes a big deal out of this year and yet I wonder how many persons know how the whole business got started.

As everyone who went through grade school knows, calendars are based on the movements of sun and moon in relation to the earth. I suppose it got to be a whole lot easier after Galileo indicated the earth spun around the sun and not the other way around as the intellectuals thought for so long. (Shows that even the people with the answers are wrong sometimes).

We work on a system now known as the Gregorian calendar, which was introduced by Pope Gregory XIII in 1582.

He ordered the change because some of the higher ups made a boo-boo about 400 years earlier. During that time, the Julian calendar was used. In 46 B.C. Julius Caesar under the Greek calendar expert, Sosigenes, devised a system assuming that the true year was 365 1/4 days long, just like they teach everybody in school yet.

But it isn't. In 730 A.D., an Anglo-Saxon Monk called the Venerable Bede whose word was pretty close to God's, announced that really the Julian year was 11 minutes, 14 seconds too long, resulting in an error of one day too much every 128 years.

But for the next 800 years nothing was done. So the Pope decreed that the day following Oct. 4, 1582, should be called Oct. 15, dropping 10 days, and that was that. Except that that wasn't the end of the mess. By using the system of 365 days for three years and 366 every fourth year, the error in the length of the year would have occurred to the tune of a little more than 3 days every 400 years.

But the calendar makers solved that little problem, too, by declaring that three out of every 4 years ending in 00 would be made common years instead of leap years.

Now isn't that easy? This system was adopted almost immediately by all Roman Catholic countries, but the Protestants held out until the 18th century.

In 1752 the British government imposed the Gregorian calendar on its possessions, including the American Colonies. This was done by a simple decree that the day following Sept. 2, 1752, should be called Sept. 14, a loss of 11 days and presto, we were caught up with the rest of the world.

This did some interesting things, like changing the birth date of George Washington, venerated father of our country, to Feb. 22, when he was actually born Feb. 11, 1732. But his birthday is flexible anyway because now we decided it would be Feb. 21.

So we are in the year of our Lord one-thousand, seven-hundred and seventy-two. Much of the rest of the world is ahead of us: Byzantines--7481; Jews--5733; Olympians--2748; Romans--2723; Babylonians--2721; Japanese--2632; Greeks--2284; Indians--1894; Mohammedans--1392; and this is the Chinese Year of the Rat.

All of which goes to show one thing--time is relative.

BETTER HEALTH

Treat your wife kindly

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Recently I wrote a column in which I suggested that women should be kind to their husbands, especially in the early morning when the man is going to work, and again in the late afternoon when he comes in from work tired and perhaps uncommunicative.

As a result of this column, some women have written to scold me a bit, because as one said, "You ought to write what the husband should do."

This is of course important. Many hundreds of women have come into my office with numerous pains and distresses that were entirely due to the fact that they were unhappy in a marriage to a man who did not know how to "love acceptably" -- which is so essential to a satisfying marriage.

So often a woman has said to me, "I wish my husband would show me more real affection and love than he does, and I wish he would spend more time talking to me. When he comes home he wants to read the newspaper or look at the football game on television."

Many times in my medical life, when talking to a disgruntled and unhappy wife, I have heard her say that her husband lacked any understanding of her tastes and likings, or any remembrance of what she had often said she wanted and craved, or of what she had said she didn't like. As a result, when he bought her a birthday or anniversary present, he usually got something that not only disappointed her, but even upset her. His lack of understanding of her and her tastes made her feel all the more alone and unloved.

Perhaps he got her something useful for the house, which was kind. But she, like most women, wanted something personal, like a pair of earrings. She wanted something she could keep the rest of her days with much sentiment attached.

Oftentimes a man is mystified or perhaps angered because his wife is not happy with some expensive gift, perhaps a good-sized check. He cannot understand why she would have so greatly preferred some much less costly gift, if it had only been something like a bit of antique jewelry or porcelain that he had searched for, because he knew it would delight her and fit into her collection.

A physician friend of mine loved his wife, in his quiet way. He never got close enough to her to know what her desires and aspirations were, or how she longed to be loved. He could not understand why, when on her birthday, he gave her $5,000 in stock, she was so unhappy she wept. What she had hoped was that he would take the evening off and take her out to a cozy supper somewhere, or to a play.

One of the saddest women I have ever seen broke down and wept unconsoled as she sat in my office. What had happened was that some few years before, she, who was an actress and a singer, whose life had been music and the stage, had married a handsome business executive. Unfortunately, almost immediately after the marriage, she found that when away from his work, he was an unsocial fellow who, each evening, silently ate his dinner, read his paper, and went to bed. He refused to go out, and what was worse, he refused to let her go out.

Unfortunately, she soon bore him two children, and with them to take care of, she was firmly caught in a trap. She much wanted a divorce, but she felt that she could not and should not get one until her children were educated. Hence I could not relieve her indigestion and her abdominal pain. I could only reassure her that her distress was not organic.

From my experience, what a wife really wants is a sign that her husband is close to her mentally and spiritually, and has such an affection for her that he knows how to make her happy, and will make the effort to do this.

I remember a well-to-do man who thought he could show his love for his wife sufficiently by leaving an order with the florist to send her roses every Monday morning, and he could not understand why she soon was not only not appreciative but actually distressed. She could not feel grateful for something so routine that it had cost him no thought.

So few couples seem to realize that if their marriage is to be happy, they must always be making some effort to keep their love growing, and to make it more beautiful. I have often recognized, when a couple in my office told me of their marriage problems, that each one was just not grown up enough to make a good marriage. A husband is wise when, through the years, he keeps making love to his wife, giving her little presents, bringing her flowers, and remembering anniversaries.

I love what Dorothy Dix once said, "Praising a woman before marriage is a matter of inclination; but praising her after marriage is a matter of necessity."

Dr. Alvarez tells you about endogenous depression, reactive depression, manic depression, post-partum depression and agitated depression in his 25 cent booklet "Depression". He also includes vital information on the possible causes of depression and various treatments including electroconvulsive treatments. J. E. KIDNEY, PASTOR

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Is it March that comes in like a lamb and goes out like a lion, or the other way around? They is so many things blating and roaring around here, Mister Editor, til I don't think nobody can tell what's coming and going. Fer shore China has come from nowhere to all you can read about in the papers in a powerful short time.

You jest never know how to look at TV, fer instant, they ain't nothing exciting to me about watching folks slide down a hill of snow in Japan, but it seemed downright unAmerican not to watch them Olympics after all the trouble everybody went to to show em here. I felt the same way about all the pictures and stories about President Nixon in China. A feller felt obligated to look after what's coming and going. Fer shore China has come from nowhere to all you can read about in the papers in a powerful short time.

And as fer going and coming, it looks like the Vietnam business ain't going out like a lamb after all. The Democrats is keeping the issue roaring, and they has fell out amongst themselves til we got as many ways of dealing with Vietnam as we got candidates. Personal, I am full disagreed with that feller on the President's staff that said if you ain't fer Nixon's position you're a traitor to your country. Farthermore, I think if Nixon had a plan to end the war when he was running in 1968, and he still ain't come out with it, he ain't doing the country no favors.

Even Ed Doolittle, that goes the extry mile fer Republicans Administrations, has fell out with Nixon over his ideas on aid to North Vietnam if they'll let us give it to em. Ed brung this matter up at the country store Saturday night, and he said he was agin Nixon's Asia Marshall Plan. The fellers was agreed that pouring money into North Vietnam to build what we tore up ain't going to make us no friends there or nowhere.

Since 1946, declared Ed, we has give other countries $138 billion that we know we ain't ever going to git back. Ed said he was convinced that all the money done was put us deeper in the hole. Right now, Ed went on, we're selling Iseral jet planes on credit and charging them lower interest than the Government has to pay on money to build the planes. And all the time our dollar is so weak til Japan is taking pay in shrimp instead of money, while we have to pay three times more for shrimp than we would if we'd keep some fer ourselves.

While things keep coming and going, Mister Editor, I see by the new law on campaign spending that a vote in this country now has been priced at 10 cent. The way the candidates scramble fer em in election years you'd think they're worth at least a dollar, but other years they ain't worth a plug nickel.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

FIVE YEARS AGO

The class of 1967 of Cass City High School has the distinction of having an unusually large number of its members graduating with high academic standing. Edward Ackerman, 1967 Valedictorian, has achieved a perfect academic record, reaching the end of his high school career with a 4.00 grade point average. Salutatorian honors for 1967 were earned by Tim Knight.

An executive committee appointed by the Joint Intermediate Boards of Sanilac, Huron and Tuscola counties, is in the process of organizing a campaign for the proposed Community College for the Thumb area.

Gagetown is one of many Thumb communities which nominated a slate using petitions listing the candidates as non-partisan. Under present election laws, the candidates must be listed under a party name, so the voters there will be handed blank ballots.

The winners of the first pool tournament at the Can-Teen were Barbara Crow, first, and B. J. Haire in the girls' division; Craig Guernsey, first, and Benny Bifoss, in junior high, and Fred Ryan, first, and Tim Barnes, in the senior high tournament.

TEN YEARS AGO

Cass City High School teachers' pay increase for length of service will jump from $100 for the first year to $200 as the result of action taken at a special meeting of teacher-representatives and the Board of Education.

County and local snow removal costs have skyrocketed during the first two months of 1962, according to reports from County Road Commissioner Orville Kitzinger and Cass City Clerk Mrs. Wilma Fry.

Village property owners will be paying more taxes next year as a result of an increase in the valuation from an estimated one-third of true cash value to 40 per cent of cash value. Cass City School Board members unanimously approved a motion naming Mrs. Gerald Prieskorn to the Board of Education position vacated by James Gross.

Mrs. A. Knapp and Mrs. Margaret Haire, both of Cass City, were named to two of seven committees appointed at the board meeting of the Tuscola Federation of Women's Clubs.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Ward Roberts was a very welcome visitor at the Claud Peasley farm home when the Peasleys were snowbound and in need of groceries and medicine. Mr. Roberts flew the supplies there with his Piper Cub plane and was able to land back of the farm barn. Side roads in the Upper Thumb district were filled up again the first of the week and snowdrifts rendered automobile travel impossible in many sections.

Calvin McIntosh was taken seriously ill at his home southwest of town and when snowflakes were unable to open the road, Dr. James Ballard walked more than a mile through the snowdrifts to reach the McIntosh home.

For the first time in many years, Cass City is without a laundry. The local laundry which was bought some time ago by Merrill Shaw and which was operated recently by Ray Colwell closed Saturday and did not reopen on Monday. Joan Mintz, Cass City senior at Central Michigan College, has been chosen for the cast of "The Old Maid", next play to be produced by the Masquers Club.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The Women's Study Club, for many years the sponsor of "Men's Night" in its early history, revived the custom this year when members of the society entertained their husbands at a dinner served in the school auditorium.

Mrs. Clara Folkert returned from a four weeks' trip to places in Florida. While there, Mrs. Folkert enjoyed an airplane trip to Cuba.

People of this community, who have taken a just pride in the Cass City high school band of 65 pieces, returned from the band concert more enthusiastic than ever in this new organization of the school.

Patrick Garety, Cass City freshman, played the role of a butler in the one-act comedy, "The New Bride," which was given by the Masquers' dramatic club at the assembly of Central State Teachers' College Friday.

Knowledge is power only when it is hitched to the right theory.

Gerstenberger training for electronics

Marine Pfc. Gary M. Gerstenberger, 19, has begun basic electronics training at Marine Corps Base, Parris Island, S. C. When he completes this school, he will be assigned to specialized training in communications-electronics.

Pfc. Gary M. Gerstenberger

The private entered the service in August 1971. He completed basic training at Parris Island, S. C. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Gerstenberger of 1235 Wheeler Road, Snover, he is a 1971 graduate of Sandusky High School.

Thursday

rites for

Mrs. John Cook

Funeral services were scheduled for 1 p. m. Thursday for Mrs. John (Gladys) Cook, 46, who died Sunday at Caro Community Hospital. She had been a patient one day, and had been in ill health the past several years.

Services were to be conducted from Little's Funeral Home with the Rev. Lloyd Streeter, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiating. Interment was to be in the Valley Cemetery, Uby.

Mrs. Cook was born in Macon, Ga., May 3, 1925, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Seaborn and Della Harvell Roberts.

She came to this community from Georgia in 1945, and was united in marriage to John Cook July 7, 1946, in Detroit. Following their marriage, they made their home in Cass City.

Mrs. Cook was a member of the First Baptist Church of Cass City.

She is survived by her husband, John; two daughters, Mrs. Gerald (Brenda) Hecht of Frankenmuth and Debbie, at home; one sister, Mrs. Earl Spaulding of Wayne; six brothers, Cecil, Mac, LaMar and George, all of Georgia. Four brothers and one sister preceded her in death.

Slate crafts

workshop

An open house 4-H Craft Workshop will be held at the Civil Defense Center in Caro March 6. The session will start at 7:30 p. m. and will last to 9:30 p. m. for leaders, teen leaders and others who are interested in learning more about crafts.

The training session will include new ideas for individual and club craft projects. Most of these crafts are of little or no cost for 4-H members to make.

The following 4-H leaders will present ideas and help as follows: Candlemaking by Mrs. Neta Black; decoupage by Mrs. Ruth Harrington; and other crafts will be presented by Mrs. Sally Campbell and Mrs. Alice Miller. Also several teen leaders will be helping with the many demonstrations.

A major problem today is finding time to do the things we'd like to do if we had time.

ALTHOUGH THE members of the late Archie and Emeline (Striffler) Mark family didn't reveal how old the family members are they did say that the group's total age is 397.

The entire family is still living, although all of the husbands or wives have died. The group was entertained recently at the home of Mrs. Mary Buehrly of Uby.

Pair complete training course

Two employees of the Walbro Corporation in Cass City completed a second-level course Friday in Wittenberg University's Management Development Program.

They are Dale Groth, production control, and James Peyer, assembly line foreman.

The week-long programs concentrate in four areas --- behavioral studies and motivation, communications and leadership, management functions and methods, and economics and employee relations.

New safety and health laws

by William Bortel

The Williams-Steffler Occupational Safety and Health Act may prove to be the most important labor legislation since the Workman's Compensation Act. The purpose of this law, called OSHA for short, is to assure safe and healthful working conditions for employees including those in agriculture. Farmers who employ one or more persons, part time or full time, are most definitely covered by this law.

THE LAW AND THE FARMER

Both the farmer and his employees have certain duties under this act. The farmer who employs labor has a responsibility to furnish employees work and work places free from recognized hazards likely to cause serious physical harm; and he must comply with the safety and health standards issued for agriculture. This duty is one which most farmers have been concerned with, but OSHA demands responsibility as well as concern on the part of the employer and subjects him to penalties if he fails to comply.

Each employee has the duty to comply with safety and health standards, and all rules, regulations, and orders issued in relation to creating a safe work place. However, he is not subject to fines for non-compliance, as is the employer.

FOUR STANDARDS IN AGRICULTURE

Occupational safety and health standards consist of rules that help safeguard the worker by listing equipment and practices associated with accident prevention. At the present time the Secretary of Labor has declared four specific OSHA standards that apply to agriculture.

SMV EMBLEM

1. The SMV emblem must be displayed on all slow moving machinery operated on the public road. Michigan State Law requires this emblem on farm machinery whether used by farm employees or family members. Most farmers have made the proper placement of SMV emblems on their machinery when it is on the roadway and therefore, are now in compliance with OSHA standards on this requirement.

ANHYDROUS AMMONIA

2. The OSHA standard on anhydrous ammonia handling is largely an equipment standard. In Michigan most of the anhydrous ammonia application equipment is supplied through dealers.

If farmers allow employees to use equipment that does not meet the standard they are in violation of Federal Law. Find a supplier who has equipment that meets OSHA standards. If owned equipment does not meet standards, the farmer must bring it up to standard or only use it himself on his own farm.

PULPWOOD LOGGING

3. Whenever a farmer employs labor in pulpwood, both state and OSHA standards must be complied with.

HOUSING IN LABOR CAMPS

4. The fourth applicable standard deals with minimum requirements for sanitation in temporary labor camps.

RECORDKEEPING REQUIREMENTS

Farmers are required to keep and make certain records available upon request of the Department of Labor or Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

They must maintain accurate records of work related deaths, injuries, and illnesses. Minor injuries requiring only first aid treatment need not be recorded, but a record must be made if the injury involves medical treatment, loss of consciousness, restriction of work or motion or transfer to another job.

POSTER

The poster entitled "Safety and Health Protection on the Job" located in the center of the "Recordkeeping Requirements" booklet must be put up where employees can see it. This might be in the farm shop, machinery storage area or some other place where employees work or report for work. Simply remove the poster from the center of the book and nail it to the wall or put it on a bulletin board.

RESOURCE INFORMATION

The bulletin entitled "Safety and Health Standards for Agriculture" containing the four OSHA standards that apply to agriculture and the booklet on "Recordkeeping Requirements" are available by writing:

Monday, March 6, members will meet at the home of Mrs. Ben Hobart. Roll call is on miscellaneous subjects.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wardman arrived home Saturday after spending four weeks with relatives in Arkansas and Arizona. Their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Miles Sullivan of Marlette, went with them.

Mrs. Viola Murchison spent last week in Flint with her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Hopkins, who came home with her mother to spend the week.

FARM BUREAU

Fifteen members of the North Elmwood Farm Bureau met Monday, Feb. 21, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Loomis. Reports were given by Mrs. Jack Laurie on the Woman's Representative meeting held in Caro. Pat Goslin gave the minuteman's report. Topic for discussion was the People's Tax Relief.

After the business meeting cards were played and lunch served.

The next meeting will be Monday, March 20, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James LaFave.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Anthes, Denise and Mrs. Dally Parrish and Lisa called on Mr. and Mrs. Steve Tescho of Kingston Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fela of Almont were recent guests at the Anthes home. Mr. and Mrs. Anthes visited Mrs. John Diebel who is at the home of her daughter, John Pfaff in Bad Axe. Mrs. Diebel was injured in an auto accident before Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Royce Russell had as dinner guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Goding of Cass City, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Russell of Bay City and Janet Russell, student at CMU. They celebrated Diane Russell's sixth birthday.

George Russell, who was a patient in Hills and Dales Hospital for several weeks, came home Friday and Earl Russell is still a patient there.

Floyd Pray of West Branch spent the week end with his daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sullivan.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chisholm, Robbie, Rodney and Kenney of Caro were Sunday dinner guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Regino Lopez.

Police examine vandalism, theft

Police are still investigating a report of malicious destruction to the Cass Theatre marquee.

Richard Hendrick reported to police about 9:45 p. m. Sunday that several persons were throwing snowballs at the neon lights from the roof of a building across the street.

He told police he chased one boy but he got away in a car.

Clark Erla, 4576 Hill St., Cass City, reported the theft of an eight-track stereo tape player valued at $145 from his car. He told police he discovered the player was missing Saturday and thinks it was probably taken sometime Friday night.

There are no suspects in the case.

Officials warn of comparing Michigan Assessment scores

Test results of the 1971 Michigan Educational Assessment Program were made public recently, the first time since the tests were begun two years ago.

The tests were given in January 1971 to all fourth and seventh graders in Michigan. The goal of the tests was to provide information relative to student background characteristics and performance in certain basic communication and computation skills.

John W. Porter, Superintendent of Public Instruction, cautioned in the report that the scores were not to be used for comparison between schools, but to give individual districts information that may be helpful in evaluating their own programs.

In the accompanying chart are statistics for Cass City, Kingston and Owen-Gage school districts.

Social-economic level (SES) is a ranking based on students' answers regarding such things as level of parents' education, family income, occupation, housing quality and family structure.

Twenty-seven questions were asked, and children's responses were kept anonymous. The report indicated that the scores should be treated as estimates of the social-economic background of groups of students, keeping in mind that some of the children might not know the answers to some of the questions.

The Composite Achievement (CA) score is a measure of performance in the three basic skills areas of reading, mechanics of written English and mathematics. The raw scores as well as the percentile ranking is included on the chart. The higher number score represents the higher achievement score.

The score indicates the class average on the test, while the percentile ranking shows how a particular score lies in relation to other scores.

Also included in the chart is the percentage of students in the individual schools who ranked in the top and bottom 30 per cent on the composite achievement scores of all students tested.

If educational ability were spread equally around the state as reflected by the tests, all schools would have 30 per cent of the top and bottom students.

The tests were funded through the legislature with the goal of providing educators and citizens with information regarding the status and progress of certain aspects of the educational system.

Cass City school superintendent Donald Crouse re-emphasized Porter's warning that the scores should not be compared among schools because the tests weren't designed for that. He also explained that scores of only two different classes are not necessarily representative of the whole school because in one year the whole fourth grade may be of very good students, for example, while another year they may not be at the same level.

He also said that the special education students were not included in the testing, but in some of the smaller districts around the state where there aren't any special education programs yet, these students were tested, thus affecting the average score.

Crouse pointed out that a small change in raw score can change the average score greatly, depending for one thing on the number of students in a class.

The tests have been the object of controversy and much disagreement. Interpretations of the results vary. The SES ranking was excluded from the 1971-1972 test battery, and was the object of much controversy. The questions were thought by some to be too personal and the validity of the scores was questioned by some educators.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Hospital dilemma

By Dan Marlowe

State Senator Alvin DeGrow has called attention to the fact that the smaller hospitals in the state are in trouble.

The Michigan Department of Public Health is pressing for the passage of legislation which would give it life or death control over these hospitals.

The Department, along with Hill-Burton, has long maintained that local hospitals are unnecessary, and in fact has withheld federal funds for building programs for such hospitals. A regional concept for hospitals is the Department's goal, and a goal which they are now in danger of attaining.

The present problem came about indirectly. Not all hospitals are certified by Blue Cross, and because a state representative had a problem in his area, he introduced a bill saying that Blue Cross shall enter into contracts with all hospitals. The bill passed both House and Senate, but in different versions, and for some time has been in a Conference Committee which has yet to take action to adjust the differences.

Then the Blue Cross people said that if they were forced to certify every hospital they would demand they be allowed to control hospital construction. A new bill resulted, House Bill No. 4949. A substitute form passed the house and is now in the Senate Committee on Commerce of which Senator Harvey Lodge is Chairman.

The two bills are so closely tied together that it is possible an agreement will be worked out and both bills will pass. The Department of Public Health already has a master plan which would eliminate all hospitals not in alignment with their regional concept.

Senator DeGrow says: "If your hospital appears on the Department of Public Health master plan as one of those marked 'Not programmed for Future Expansion or Existence,' then it is time for everyone concerned to become exceedingly active."

It's foolhardy to feel that because your local hospital is self-supporting and is not running to Lansing with its hand out for money that it will be exempt from the proposed Department of Public Health program. The Department's plan makes no provision for small local hospitals.

And it's elementary that once the Department is in control via House Bill No. 4949 the simple withholding of Blue Cross accreditation will close the doors of every local hospital in a month. Only the specially designated regional hospitals would be enabled to continue, which is what the planners want.

If you are concerned, and you definitely should be concerned, call or write your local representative and senator as well as Senator Harvey Lodge of the Committee on Commerce.

All of us could wake up some morning to find our local hospital closed.

2 stand mute at arraignments

Three pleas were entered with Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Norman Baguley Monday.

Douglas Englehart, Shabbona Road, Deford, stood mute to a charge of larceny from a motor vehicle, and a plea of innocent was entered for him. He was arrested in connection with the Dec. 17, 1971, theft of a radiator from a car belonging to Burton-Moore in Caro. Bond of $500 was continued and a pre-trial was set for March 27.

Richard Kuzma of Vassar stood mute to a charge of malicious destruction, and a plea of innocent was entered. Bond was continued in the amount of $1000. He was arraigned in connection with a Dec. 11 incident when damage was done to windows of a Main Street Vassar store.

George D. Rothfuss of Millington entered a plea of guilty at his pre-trial to a charge of attempting to enter a building. He was originally charged with breaking and entering the Carriage Inn in Caro Jan. 25. Sentencing is scheduled for March 27, and bond of $5000 was continued.

Fred C. Crandall of Fostoria was sentenced to 1 1/2 to 2 years in the state prison at Jackson with 53 days' credit, for driving away with the automobile of another.

Robert James Garner of Mayville was sentenced to 24 months' probation with the first six months in the county jail, 26 days' credit, and fine and costs of $400 in connection with the same incident. Both pleaded guilty Jan. 27 to taking a car belonging to Fred List in Millington township.

Gary Michael Partaka was sentenced to 90 days in the county jail with 25 days' credit, for violating a provision of his probation. He was placed on probation in April 1971 for an offense of tampering with a motor vehicle.

The trial of Harold Albert Lowe, E. Detroit, was ended Wednesday when he pleaded guilty to unlawfully obtaining goods less than $100 under false pretenses. He is to be sentenced April 17. He was arraigned Sept. 7, 1971, and pleaded innocent to retaining a credit card without the owner's consent in Wells township July 1.

Income and sales taxes not universal despite money pleas

Though state governments are crying out for extra money all over the country, a few still refrain from collecting both sales tax or an income tax, but all collect one or the other.

Five states—Alaska, Delaware, Montana, New Hampshire and Oregon—still manage to get along without a sales tax.

Seven states—Connecticut, Florida, Nevada, South Dakota, Texas, Washington and Wyoming—exist without an individual income tax.

The only taxes collected in all 50 states, in fact, are the cigarette tax and the gasoline taxes.

The highest sales tax is levied in Connecticut, which charges 6.5 cents for every dollar's worth of merchandise bought in the state. Pennsylvania is right behind with a 6 per cent sales tax.

The lowest sales tax collected is 2 per cent in Indiana and Oklahoma.

There's a much wider variation on income taxes, with Michigan one of only six states levying a flat rate the same on all incomes. Four states charge a flat percentage of the federal tax liability, but since the federal tax is graduated, such state taxes are, too.

The lowest income tax rate charged is .5 per cent which is on the low end of a graduated scale in both Ohio and Oklahoma. On the other end of the scale, Delaware has a graduated income tax which goes all the way up to 18 per cent.

Virginia has the oldest income tax by far. That state first took a chunk of the taxpayer's paycheck in 1843. The second income tax was levied by our newest state, Hawaii, in 1901—less than 50 years before statehood.

The sales tax, on the other hand, is a more recent innovation. The first state to levy it was Mississippi in 1930. It didn't take the other states long to adopt to the idea, however. In 1933, a total of 12 other states followed suit as they tried to stay solvent during the depression.

PREACHING PRACTICED

Dr. Charles L. San Clemente, a professor of microbiology and public health at Michigan State University, believes in practicing what he preaches.

Dr. San Clemente is the editor of the first text in the nation to be printed 100 per cent on recycled paper. The 320-page paperback is entitled "Environmental Quality: Now or Never."

The book is a collection of essays on the environment by experts from all over the country and Dr. San Clemente felt one way to get the message on ecology across would be to use recycled paper for the book.

It goes on and on. Take photography for example. Today's modern cameras take very little manipulation. My daughter remembers a few simple settings and goes out and gets acceptable black and white shots every time.

But there is a way to foul up even these easy to use cameras...it's hard, but there is the way.

And periodically, I find it. One of the few things you must remember is that there is a tiny lever on the side and when you shoot a picture with a strobe light that lever must be pushed from M to X or the light will not synchronize with the shutter.

The camera operates okay if you leave the lever at X all the time and that's what we try to do.

About once a month that lever unaccountably slips out of position and I come back with a roll of blanks.

I have yet to figure out how this can happen.

Not that this surprises me. Nothing that happens with that camera surprises me. A week ago I was unable to get the flash gun to operate.

A reporter without a camera is almost like one without a typewriter.

A rush trip to Saginaw for emergency repair was essential.

It didn't take the expert there long to figure out just what was wrong.

I had improperly plugged in the cord that leads from the camera to the battery.

Just because I failed here, don't think I'm giving up.

With a little more practice I'll learn how that plug fits in the socket and then I'll be on my way.

Ready to graduate to the harder things...like figuring out how the film fits inside the camera or why it's necessary for every car to have a piston.

Smoking is still a problem

It's a problem! State Health Director Maurice S. Reizen says that despite the fact everybody knows smoking is bad, it's still one of the major health hazards in Michigan.

Among results of smoking is an increased risk of dying from both chronic bronchitis and emphysema as well as cancer of the lung and of the larynx. It is also directly associated with the higher death rate of smokers from coronary artery disease, other heart disease, circulatory disease, hypertension, peptic ulcers and cancer of the bladder.

He sees the continued use of cigarettes as a psychological thing as much as a physical thing.

ARTRAIN CHAIRMAN Holly Althaver accepts a check for $50 from Zonta president-elect Mrs. Preston Karr. The check is the first received from community organizations to fund the traveling art museum being brought to Cass City in July. The Artrain is operated under the auspices of the Michigan Council for the Arts.

Letters to Editor

Furor over school lounge continues

Against...

February 24, 1972

Dear Mr. Editor,
Yes it's their education and their life - but how are they preparing for it? Is education at Cass City so easy today that High School students have no studying, creative writing or outside reading to do one hour a day? They are only "harnessed" in a room? What has happened to Study Hall?

Not too long ago I had 500 students a day in Study Hall - some of them 2 hours a day - that was for 13 years so I saw a lot of them and liked most of them very much. If they were harnessed, it was with assignments - all to prepare them for graduation and life. I had older brothers of the writer of the letter of Feb. 24th and they were good students.

Since the "age of majority" has been lowered, scientific achievement is tremendous, new skills are required daily - there is much more of a challenge to use time wisely and to their advantage.

I don't know about "being pressured" or "sent to the corner!" Where is that sense of responsibility? Do they still have report cards? Is it those with all A's who were to use the lounge? If some have a leisure hour every day with nothing to do, then those bright students should be given extra incentives & assignments so that they will work to their fullest capacity. Until Cass City has a list of Merit Scholarships, lists of all A's and ones on Dean's Lists in Colleges - I would think there would be something to do in a real Study Hall.

Yes - it's because it's their education and their life and it's all too short - help them work at it, prepare for it and make the most of it.

Dear Editor,

Due to Mr. Hoag's survey at General Cable, I am led to believe that 28 of 32 employees don't take their coffee break. An eight hour school day consists of one hour allowed for lunch and seven hours for studying. Then by all means an eight hour work day, with pay, should consist of one hour for lunch and seven hours for work. Or is it that when people are students they are to study, and the day after they graduate they are mature enough for a coffee break? How many pop machines can be found in the General Cable building?

I'm sure that the school board has heard these facts but some people haven't. A survey at CCHS revealed that only 113 out of 469 students used their study-hall 75% of the time and 432 out of the same 469 students would be willing to accept punishment for broken rules. Plus it was revealed that in preliminary reports 80% of the parents were in favor. How does this compare with 28 of 32 employees at one factory. If Mr. Hoag is going to research, why doesn't he extend his study to all concerned? How many of those 28 people have been in a CCHS study-hall this year? Within the walls of our school? Or even have a son or daughter attending CCHS?

Sincerely yours,
Lu Ann Kennedy

Budget to spend more tax revenue

also.

Other capital expenses budgeted are: a second land-fill trench, $1500; park equipment, $1500; a sinking fund for parking lot development, $10,000, which was set aside from general fund monies at the request of the parking committee; a sewer engineering study, $3500, to analyze existing facilities to determine their capacities for the future; water meters, $2600, new police car, $3500; village's share of $1800 to buy radios in cooperation with the county sheriff's office through the state office of criminal justice; and a used sweeper, $9450, to replace the present sweeper which is beyond repair. Salaries for both the fourth policeman and second office girl, which were approved in January, were also included.

Not included in the budget but still being pursued by the council is the acquisition of the Orr East property and the construction of a new swimming pool. The council indicated that when plans are formulated and ready for a final decision, they will go to the people.

No provision was made for a building inspector, either, which has been the cause of the dilemma surrounding the building codes under consideration by the council.

The end of the year audit was also presented to the council by village auditors Yeo and Yeo, Certified Public Accountants. As of Dec. 31, 1971, the cash balance was $43,476.27. This was down from the year's beginning cash balance of $53,520.49, and was due, said village president Lambert Althaver, to overspending on the part of the village.

The record of disbursements and revenues listed by the accountants shows revenues of $311,657.69 and expenditures of $326,697.87. The accountants explained that in changing over from the cash based budget to the new state required modified accrual budget, some of the expenditures of 1970 were included in the 1971 expenses. In the old system bills were not counted as expenses until paid.

The change over has caused headaches for village officials all year in figuring the new budget. The actual amount of what was spent in 1971 shows overspending of $4,994.96.

In the new budget, the cash balance at the end of the year was not included, but it is the only cash the village has to work with until taxes are collected in July. The budget can be amended at any time to include new projects or handle unpredicted situations.

THE HOUSE TRAILER of Melton Johnson was a total loss following a fire Feb. 23. Cass City firemen fought the blaze in the morning and were called back the same afternoon to the residence 5 miles south and one east of Cass City on Shabbona Road. Mrs. Johnson told sheriff's deputies she and a son were trying to thaw a frozen water pipe with a torch when straw under the trailer caught fire, and they were unable to extinguish it.

It was a barn burner: Lakers 88, Hawks 84 in tourney opener

The Cass City Red Hawks came to the end of the basketball trail Monday night in the opening round of the District Class B Tournament at Cass City, but there wasn't a Hawk fan around who wasn't pleased with the team's performance.

The Hawks bowed to Triumb B League Champion Lakers, 88-84, in a game that wasn't decided until the final moments of the final quarter.

It was a game marked by a brilliant shooting display by both teams.

Long or short the two clubs burned the nets... starting with the opening whistle and continuing to hit until the game ended.

There were individual stand-outs galore. Jim O'Connor of the Lakers came off the bench to score 23 points and spark his team to victory. Floyd Champagne, 26 points, was devastating with push shots from around the key and Randy Damm ignited the winners in the first half with three straight shots from way outside the key.

Cass City had its share of stars. Dave Hillaker matched Champagne shot for shot from the outside with picture perfect shots.

Fred Harbec made his final game of his high school career a memorial one with an outstanding rebounding job and 14 points.

Nick Gibas continued his steady improvement and rebounding while holding Bill McCairns in check. Randy Wright chipped in key rebounds and buckets and scored 12 points.

But the outstanding player of the game had to be Paul Bliss. The Hawks' ace guard scored 23 points but that was the least of it.

He controlled the game on offense and turned in what must have been his best defensive game. His drives to the bucket had the crowd buzzing most of the night.

The Lakers went in front early in the game and stayed there all night even though the decision was in doubt until the final seconds.

In the first quarter Damm's outside shooting started the winners on their way and they moved into a 21-17 advantage at the end of the quarter.

The Hawks bounced back to move within a point at the intermission and Hawks fans started thinking upset while Laker fans squirmed a little in their seats.

In the third period it looked as if Cass City's hot shooting had cooled while the Lakers continued to pour everything but the waterboy through the hoop.

In minutes the Laker lead had zoomed to 11 points... the highest it was to get.

A soft pusher from inside by Harbec, a bomber by Hillaker and a drive by Bliss turned the game around again and Cass City was right back in the thick of things.

With just 3:25 left in the game the Hawks were behind by a single point, 79-78, the closest they had been since the game started, and they had the ball.

In what could have been the turning point, Hillaker slipped on a drive to the bucket and the Lakers capitalized on the turnover to score.

In the dying seconds a couple of Hawk foul shots missed and when they dribbled off the rim the Lakers had survived the first round of the tournament.

As they trailed out of the gym Cass City fans were already talking about next year... the club loses only Fred Harbec via graduation and should be considered a title favorite when the round ball season opens for 1972-73.

Lakers win

tourney tune up

In a tournament preview Friday at Cass City High School the Lakers defeated Cass City High School in a surprisingly close game, 74-67.

It was a nothing game for both clubs. The Lakers had the title locked and Cass City was going nowhere with a victory.

Still it was a tight hard fought game from the opening whistle. So tense that after the final whistle blew several players had to be hustled from the gym floor to avert a fight.

At the end of the first quarter Cass City was in front, 14-13, and they maintained the margin in the second quarter as both clubs scored 22 points.

As it has many times this season the third quarter proved fatal as the visitors outscored Cass City, 21-13, a big enough edge to win as both clubs played to a stand-off with 18 points in the final period.

Paul Bliss scored 16. Others in double figures for Cass City were Kip Hopper, 11, and Nick Gibas, 14. Dave Hillaker scored 7; Drew Guernsey, 1; Bob Ross, 6, and Randy Wright, 8.

For the Lakers Floyd Champagne scored 16; Bill McCairns, 18, and Bill Alexander, 15.

Freshman end

The freshman basketball team concluded its season with two games, registering wins over Marlette and Lakers.

The Hawks exploded in the last half to break open a close game and register a 46-35 decision. It was the eighth victory in a row for the team.

In the final game of the year the Hawks topped the Lakers in overtime, 58-50.

Scoring leaders for Cass City were Joe Zawilinski, 19, Dave Eberline, 12, Jim Root, 10.

The B team also registered a 23-6 decision. Ed Neal scored 8 points.

Jail receives high inspection rating

Sheriff Hugh Marr was notified by mail that the Tuscola county jail will continue to carry a very high rating following a Feb. 16 inspection by the State Jail Inspector.

The letter said the jail is clean and well kept, the officers appeared to perform their duties in an effective manner and a spot check of the records showed they appeared to be in order.

THE REBOUNTING and ball handling of Lloyd Schinnerer coupled with the shooting of Bruce Ward lifted the Bad Axe Hatchets past Sandusky Tuesday night, 76-75. Bad Axe blew a 12-point half time lead to trail by a point in the final quarter and then rallied to score the narrow victory to earn a spot in the district B finals Friday against the winner of the Marlette-Laker game. The games are played at Cass City. Schinnerer, 25, scores on close-in shot as Alan Demott watches. Number 11 is Tony Steele who played an outstanding game for the losers.
