

Citizens to air sentiments Monday in beer in park advisory vote

The issue that will probably spark the most interest in the upcoming village election is the advisory vote regarding the sale or consumption of beer in the village park.

The council voted unanimously at the January meeting to include the proposition to find out the feelings of citizens on the issue.

The controversy surrounding the proposition began with the action taken by the council in June 1971 when it adopted an amendment to the village ordinance regarding alcoholic beverages.

The amended ordinance No. 74 allows consumption in the park, which was previously prohibited entirely, under the condition that the council adopt policy guidelines and that groups are given permission by the council upon petition.

Those policy guidelines were never adopted by the council. At the July meeting petitions were received by the council requesting that alcoholic beverages be kept out of the park. The council delayed action on the guidelines although a request was made by the Service Clubs to sell beer at the Ox

Roast held in August. The approval of the council caused a storm of protest because it broke with tradition. The park had always been "dry" since its conception and development by the village and interested civic groups.

Guidelines prepared at the time provided that requests be made in writing and addressed to the council, which would then vote on the petition.

Besides the village's permission, the petitioning group is required to show an approved one day liquor permit issued by the State of Michigan Liquor Control Commission, and to have reserved a park area. Another requirement of the controlling policy is the required presence of a police officer assigned by the chief of police to patrol the area and see that all restrictions are enforced. The cost of hiring the officer is to be borne entirely by the organization.

One police officer is required for the first 100 persons expected to attend, and additional police officers may be required by the chief of police.

The actual dispensation is to be permitted only within an enclosed area where no minor will be allowed.

In addition to the above provision, the village superintendent or chief of police is authorized to suspend the special permission granted and can terminate activities if conditions of the agreement are violated.

Implementation of the policy guidelines is not dependent on the outcome of the vote, but it is expected the council will take the results into consideration for future action.

President Lambert Althaver noted that the village attorney clarified the action allowed by the amendment as one of the "housekeeping" duties, and can therefore be implemented without public referendum.

However, it is extremely unlikely that the majority of the council would authorize beer and wine in the park in the face of a vote by residents that indicated the majority were against the proposal.

Village slate offers new trustee candidate

Cass City voters will go to the polls Monday, Mar. 13, to elect a president, clerk-treasurer, and three trustees, all for 2-year terms.

A new name on the ballot this year is Bill Bliss, 27, a life-long resident of the Cass City area. Bliss is running for House. All candidates are running on the Republican ticket.

No names will be listed on the ballot for assessor after Mac O'Dell decided to not run for re-election following 10 years of service to the village; however, his son, Michael B. O'Dell, has announced candidacy as a write-in candidate for the position. Another write-in candidate is Dan Erla. Erla is married, the father of four and has been a resident of the village since 1954.

The polls will open at 7 a.m. and remain open until 8 p.m. at the Old Library Building next to the fire hall, not at the Municipal Building where the elections were held last year.

One change this year will be that the offices of president, clerk, secretary and assessor will be for two years, rather than one as in the past. This change is the result of a new law passed by the legislature in May 1971.

Also appearing on the ballot will be a general obligation bond issue not to exceed $190,000 to fund a waste-water disposal system for the village of Gagetown.

Running without competition in that election are Republican incumbents Mrs. William Ashmore, clerk; William Ashmore, treasurer, and George Wilson, assessor.

Also appearing on the ballot will be a general obligation bond issue not to exceed $190,000 to fund a waste-water disposal system for the village of Gagetown.

Polls are located at the Gagetown Town Hall.

KINGSTON

The election scene in Kingston is one of the sparsest in the area with only two names appearing on the ballot, Republican incumbents Mildred E. Parrott, treasurer, and Jimmie Barron, trustee.

No petitions were filed for the positions of president, clerk, assessor and two trustees. Not seeking re-election are President Edward Kaminski; Clerk Beverly Heron, and Trustees Jane Ann Lakko and Robert Cameron.

The offices will have to be filled by write-in candidates or appointed by the village council if there are no takers.

GAGETOWN

The election in Gagetown will spark more interest where incumbent Republican president James England faces Democratic contender Elery Sontag. The two have met at the polls twice before with England winning by a small margin both times.

In the Feb. 21 primary England received 38 votes to Sontag's 15.

Another contest will be held between incumbent Democratic trustee Harvey Polk and the three Republicans seeking the

the trusteeship vacated by Gary Christner, who chose not to run again after a two-year term.

Also running for the position of trustee are incumbents Dr. Delbert Rawson and Gary Jones.

Other incumbents who have petitioned with no opposition are president Lambert Althaver, and clerk-treasurer Celia

Major disaster thwarted by quick action

What could have developed into a major fire was averted Saturday by the quick response of the Cass City and Gagetown Fire Departments.

The barn on the Clare Carpenter farm, four miles north of Cass City and west on the Bay City-Forestville Road, caught fire.

The blaze apparently started in a 3-year-old electric furnace in the utility room adjacent to the milkhouse. Some 100 head of cattle were driven from the barn in the immediate location of the fire area, but it was not necessary to remove another 50 head elsewhere in the barn.

The Carpenters, at home when the fire broke out at 1:15 p.m., were notified by the milk-hauler, Bill Bliss, who came to pick up milk.

Estimates place the damage at $2000 or more.

The trailer house of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Furness Sr. at 7914 Deckerville Road was totally consumed by flames early Thursday morning, Mar. 3, when fire of unknown cause started about 5 a.m.

Sixteen firemen from the Elkland Township department answered the call and fought the blaze in freezing temperatures and high winds for about two hours.

Firemen said Mrs. Furness awoke and called in the fire using a neighbor's phone. She and her husband escaped with the clothes on their backs. A son who works nights was not home at the time of the fire. The Furnesses are staying with their daughter, Mrs. Dale Mellendorf.

Insured loss of the trailer and contents was estimated at about $8000.

The Thursday fire was the second time the Furnesses were burned out. Mar. 20, 1969, a fire destroyed their newly remodeled brick home 3 1/2 miles east of Deford. Furness was home alone then and suffered burns of the hands and arms,

THE EXPANDING RESPONSIBILITIES of a registered nurse put the split-second decisions of life and death into her hands.

Responsibilities of nursing excite 4 seeking medical career

BY KIT McMillion

It used to be that when little girls were asked what they wanted to be when they grew up, the answer was invariably a nurse or a movie star. Little girls with big eyes had visions of glory and romance associated with both, not knowing what either was about.

Girls still grow up wanting to be nurses, but four young women, still students at Cass City High School and beginning to trace out their careers, have thought about the job, its future and opportunities, and recognize the profession is neither romantic nor easy.

Pam Kilbourn, Laurie McRae, Nancy Kerbyson and Sue Nichol, all 17-year-old seniors, explained that their reasons for going into the field were not just to become a servant to mankind. Factors besides the almost requisite desire to help other people are the interesting work, the good wages available for a registered nurse and the wide opportunities in the field.

Presently there is a shortage of almost all medical workers in this country. The almost assured security of finding a job after their schooling was another reason stated.

The shortage of registered nurses is not at the critical stage in the Triumb area, but throughout the nation and Michigan there are still fewer than health officials would like to see.

Hills and Dales Hospital administrator Byron Landholt explained the reason for this.

"After World War II, everyone got on the bandwagon on the drive for scientists and engineers," he said. The need was seen then to produce teachers, which we did, and consequently, there are too many teachers and not enough in the other professions, including health workers.

Landholt went on to explain that students are now looking at the health fields, but the health fields aren't geared for them yet. There aren't enough teachers or facilities.

His prediction, however, is that the field will soon be able to accommodate the students and by 1980 or 1985, there will be an overabundance of doctors, nurses and health workers.

The need for registered nurses has not hit Hills and Dales, where there are 29 Registered Nurses (RN) on the staff. But there are only four Licensed Practical Nurses (LPN) who assist the RNs when Landholt estimated they should have about 12 to 15.

"We don't have nearly as many as we should, but they're just not available," said Landholt.

The 1971 report of the Michigan Health Council showed 194 RNs in Tuscola county, or one per 249 persons. The statewide ratio was one nurse per 213 persons and nationally, there is one for each 163 persons.

The Michigan Health Council goal is one RN per each 150 persons.

While the opportunities are there, getting into the nursing school of their choice may be a trick because the number of students trying is larger than the number of openings.

The girls have sent in applications, but the only one accepted so far is Nancy, who is going to Michigan State University. But she explained that the first year is only basic schooling and the second year starts the nursing program. There is room for only 80 students, including transfers, so it's going to be tough.

In spite of the hard work involved in training, the girls agreed that going through more than one year of schooling to qualify for a registered nurse was better than spending one year to be a licensed practical nurse.

There are three routes to prepare for an RN: 4 years of college with a bachelor of science degree in nursing, two years at a junior or community college or a three-year program at a hospital.

The latter method is being phased out because of the costs involved and because sick patients were paying the cost of educating the nurse. This phase out has further reduced educational facilities and has forced other institutions of high learning to open nursing programs.

The immediate demand for trained nurses, however, is not the only reason these four women want to go into the profession.

They know what is involved. A nurse is supposed to carry out a doctor's orders, but as the medical profession grows, she assumes more and more responsibility.

"A nurse has quite a bit of responsibility on her own," Landholt stated. "Recognizing signs, supervising, recognizing the effects of medicine, knowing the results of treatments, managing units. She becomes one of the executives."

The responsibility placed on a nurse's shoulders increases, Concluded on page 12.

2 arrested on burglary charges

Gary Samuel O'Connor, 29, Shabbona Road, Cass City, was arrested Friday and charged with the early morning Friday breaking and entering of the service station owned by Cleo Spaulding on M-81 at Elmwood Road.

Entry was gained through a broken window in the rear of the building. Approximately $27 worth of goods was taken, including some change. O'Connor was released on $750 bond, and his arraignment continued until Mar. 13.

David K. Curtis, 28, of Deford was arrested Friday night in Oakland County on a Tuscola county warrant charging breaking and entering of the Vandemark Service Station in Caro. The station was broken into Feb. 6 when $50 was taken from the till. Curtis was released on $1000 bond. An exam date was set for Mar. 24.

Ricky David Bryant, 19, 2232 Englehart Road, Deford, was arrested Friday and charged with reckless driving and eluding a police officer. Bond was set at $125 for the two counts and a trial is scheduled for Mar. 6.

Tax gripes should be told to board of review

Elkland township home owners should be ready for some bad news when taxes roll around again. Assessments will be up an average of 10 per cent.

Supervisor Maynard McConkey reported that a State of Michigan equalization study indicated that residential property has to go up $510,000 or about 10 per cent on the present valuation of about $51 1/2 million.

McConkey pointed out that unless he raised the assessment, a factor would be applied by the equalization committee when tax rolls were turned in to the county.

While taxes are generally too low on residences, the increase in taxes will not be the same for everyone.

Some homes that are valued more than 10 per cent under the 50 per cent of "true cash value" will be raised more than the average while others may be raised less or not at all, depending on current valuation, McConkey explained.

Persons wishing to question the new assessments may do so at the board of review which will meet Mar. 13-14 at the Cultural Center from 9-12 and from 1 to 4 p.m.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

The earth won't stop spinning, the sun will still shine and darkness won't settle over the land if beer is approved or banned at the park by the voters Monday.

It's no secret that on this particular issue the sentiment here has been with the "drys" . . . and still is.

It's not unusual for a person to be for or against booze at any place, at any time.

For most there is no such thing as being a little dry or a little wet.

But that's the way I am . . . a little dry and a little wet. While I feel that it's not necessary to drink it up at the park, I was in favor of the recent decision by the Tuscola Board of Commissioners to open bars to liquor on Sunday afternoon.

I think the county commissioners acted precipitously by broaching Sunday sales and then acting all in one session before the people had a chance to know what was going on . . . but applaud the final decision.

Inconsistent?

I don't believe so. We have two different situations here. There isn't a dime of taxpayers' money in any local bar that is competing with bars in Huron county, in Bay County, in Saginaw county and throughout most of the State.

Closing them up on Sunday merely places them in an unfair competitive position. The drinkers will go where the liquor is.

Prohibition on Sunday. Sure, I'd vote for it . . . but only on a state-wide basis.

When you have booze at a bar there isn't anyone standing at the door with a book dragging you inside . . . it's your choice. If you don't like it stay out.

But at Cass City Recreational Park it's a whole new ballgame.

That park is built by taxpayers who like to drink and those who don't. You could make a case, I guess, by saying that it's as unfair to the drinkers to prohibit beer as it is to the non-drinkers to allow it.

But let's consider this. The park by its nature is for families . . . for the kids if you like. Now our State law says, keep the kids from drinking at the bars . . . because bars are designed for adults.

If you follow that reasoning the natural conclusion is that where beer is served in the park the kids just shouldn't be. Should there be a place in the park where it wouldn't be wise for the children to roam?

It's a little frustrating writing about the liquor question. Frustrating because I know that it would be very unusual if what I wrote here influenced a single voter Monday.

About the best I can hope for is that the publicity will goad more residents to the polls to cast ballots.

If we get a massive voter turnout we'll know what the people really want. Then, wet or dry, we all should be able to live with it.

Really isn't this the way it should be settled now and should have been settled in the first place?

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Zawilinski

Wedding vows of Jan Weip-pert and Pete Zawilinski were solemnized before the Rev. Leo Gengler Feb. 12 in a 4 p. m. ceremony at the St. Pancratius Catholic Church in Cass City.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Weippert of Cass City. The parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Zawilinski of Cass City.

The church pews were decorated with white bows. Baskets of mums and gladioli were placed on the altar.

Mrs. Ruth Hoffman accom-panied on the organ by Mrs. Joan Merchant, sang "The Wed-ding Song," by Paul Stookey. Paul Kerbyson played the organ throughout the rest of the cere-mony.

The scripture readings were read by Mr. and Mrs. James LaFave of Gagetown.

The bride wore a long white velvet A-line dress styled with an Empire waist and long bishop sleeves. The bodice and cuffs were edged with a white floral trim. She wore a floor length mantilla veil edged with flow-ers.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Sherry Bacon of East Lansing. Bridesmaids were Gail Weippert, Mrs. Bert Curtis, Mrs. Larry Keyser, Nancy Auvil, and Mrs. Ron Weippert, all of Cass City.

The bridesmaids wore long burgundy velvet A-line gowns with inverted pleats in both front and back. The dress fea-tured an Empire waist with a scoop neckline accented with white sequin trim at the waist, around the bottom and on the cuff of the long bell sleeves.

The maid of honor wore an identically styled dress with the bodice and bell sleeves made of dusty pink crepe, ac-centing the burgundy velvet skirt.

The attendants carried nose-gays of pink pixie carnations, pink daisies, red sweetheart roses and baby's breath with streamers of white velvet rib-bon.

The ring bearer and flower girl were Mike and Kris Cur-tis, children of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Curtis of Cass City. The flower girl wore a long princess styled dress of burgundy velvet accented with white. She car-ried a basket filled with pink pixie carnations, pink daisies and baby's breath.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length Victorian style A-line gown of pink and gold brocade. The groom's mother chose a floor length gown of teal blue chiffon with a scoop neck, short sleeves and featur-ing a flowing panel down the back.

Groomsman were Mick Zawi-linski, Karl Weippert, Ron Weippert, Bert Curtis, Mike O'Dell and Larry Keyser, all of Cass City. Frank Keller of Sandusky and Tom Kroukowski of Detroit, both brothers-in-law of the groom, ushered.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at 7 p. m. at the Dom Polski Hall, Caro.

About 500 friends and rela-tives attended.

The groom is employed with Sargent Construction Co. and the bride is a student attending Northwood Institute. The couple will make their home at Red-wood Estates Trailer Park, Saginaw. A 2-week wedding trip to Florida is planned in March.

Slow down, speeders - before you become a statistic.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

For the first time Saturday I was on a snowmobile safari. The high point for me wasn't traipsing around the countryside playing follow-the-leader. . . it came when one of the machines broke down.

Watching Roy Tuckey, Bill Wallace, Harold Isard and others go to work on that engine out in the middle of nowhere and setting it to run again smacks of black magic to me.

If my snowmobile did that and I had to fix it like they did, I'd still be walking.

By the time you read this it will probably be zero and another snow storm will have hit, but Tuesday was such a beautiful day that I walked to the hotel restaurant without a jacket or topcoat. Crazy? Sure. . . but then I wasn't the only one afflicted. Bob Bittery joined me at the corner of Main & Seeger, sans coat, too.

Elsewhere you'll find a record by George Copland of every car he owned since 1916. For most of us who can't even find the gas bills for this year's income tax, it's an amazing record. Thinking about this I've come to the conclusion that it may be a good thing that I detest bookkeeping. . . I really don't want to know how much cars have cost me since I started driving. It cost Copland $2,208.00 to drive 63,525 miles in four years. I log about that many in two years on one car and in addition always have several hundred dollars worth of dinged fenders to pay for.

You know spring is in the air. The conversation at the coffee table is gradually shifting from snowmobiles to golf.

The golf chat that has received a boost from the fortunate few who played recently in the sunny south. One of these is Tom Craig who just returned from Mississippi.

Despite his slight stature Craig can hit the golf ball a mile in any direction and that's usually where his tee shots end up. . . a mile in any direction.

Trinity WSCS

plans events

The Trinity United Methodist WSCS met Monday evening, March 6, at 6:30 for a dinner meeting served by group #3 with Mrs. Harlan Dickinson and Mrs. Keith McConkey, co-chairmen. A workshop was held during the day when some of the ladies worked on crafts for the fall bazaar.

Mrs. Harry Crandell opened the program with devotions and Mrs. Fritz Neitzel presented the topic, "A Problem In Power," and showed a film which featured the country of Colombia. The film pinpointed power in the hands of a few landowners and the problem of the landworkers, who earn $1.50 a week which buys potatoes and a few beans to feed their families. If a worker needs a new shovel ($3.50) to do his work, he must buy it himself and use three weeks' wages to pay for it.

In the business meeting President Mrs. Edward Baker announced that the study course on Matthew was being held each Wednesday at 2:00 at the church under the direction of Mr. M.R. Vender.

Mrs. Gary Christner, program chairman, told plans of the Mother-Daughter Banquet to be held April 25.

A motion was carried that the society would not have a spring rummage sale this year.

Mrs. Neitzel gave information on the lobbying being done on the efforts to close the small hospitals and urged members to write their state representatives to see that this is prevented.

It was decided to have the May meeting a guest night with further plans to be given at the April meeting.

Mrs. Baker dismissed the meeting with the last few lines of Robert Frost's poem "On Stopping By The Woods On A Winter's Eve."

"If It Fitz . . ." I remember St. Stephen's

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Well, that about does it for childhood landmarks. Please excuse me a long sigh and short sob.

The newspaper says that, after next June, for the first time in 92 years, there will be no St. Stephen's Catholic School in Port Huron.

Thus disappears more tangible remains of the boy I used to be.

They tore down St. Stephen's Church several years ago, probably because it looked too much like a church. Today, churches are disguised to look like night clubs or auditoriums. The idea is that maybe a lost sheep will wander in by mistake and be converted into holy lamb chops before he can escape.

Urban Renewal, that great eraser of children's footprints, long ago wiped out much of the old neighborhood where first I delivered newspapers, and later delivered mail. The mailman was startled to learn something the paperboy had never realized; there was a commercial reason for those red lights in some 1st ward windows. The awakening came one morning via an interesting proposition concerning payment of postage due. Since then I've always said I couldn't recognize sin until I became a federal employee.

But back to St. Stephen's, from whence all sin was exorcised at 3:30 p.m. every weekday when the kids were sent home.

I was a student there for 12 years and what I remember most is the nuns in their flowing habits with the bottomless pockets. The nuns were forever running raffles. Parents donated food and then bought tickets on it from their children. Any mother who didn't give at least a can of peas, and then spend 15 cents trying to win it back, was in mortal trouble if she should die before making a full confession.

Anyway, the nuns were forever dipping shoulder deep into those huge pockets to give a kid change for a quarter. Once I was a class officer and I made a motion that the kids chip in and, for Christmas, buy the nun one of those coin changers that gas station attendants wore on their belts. This motion was rudely squashed before it could be seconded. I think that nun's name was Sister Veto.

I remember the nun who spied me sneaking out of school and chased me across the 7th Street Bridge. She wanted to teach me algebra and I wanted to shoot snooker at Curley Peloso's splendid poolroom. She was gaining on me but had to give up the pursuit suddenly when I hollared back a reminder that it was against the rules of the Immaculate Heart of Mary for one nun to go downtown without another nun. I remember when World War 2 came and the nuns decided it was their patriotic duty to prepare their boys for the draft that waited. A nun who had taught biology was suddenly teaching aeronautics. She thought a Piper Cub was a young Boy Scout who played the bugle.

I remember the nuns' marvelous names: Rosario, Loretta, Clementine, Angelina and Hortense. Not a Cheryl in a school-load.

The draft got me and I remember the furlough before I went overseas. I visited the nuns at their home, mostly to show off my sharpshooter medal, and they made a great fuss over me. As I was about to leave, the nun who had chased me across the bridge suggested that the sisters kneel down right there and pray for my safe return. And they did.

I remember thinking what a silly thing that was to do. Almost as silly as the tears that return to my eyes as I relive the moment.

I remember St. Stephen's. . .

Former resident dies in Marlette

Mrs. Charles Bauslaugh, 34, a former Cass City resident, died Sunday night at Marlette Community Hospital.

A journalist's concert

By Kit McMillion

Stop, look and listen. Almost every railroad crossing has one of these warnings put there to protect your life. But did you ever think of using it as a guideline to live?

As winter is slowly but surely, I hope, winding itself out, and the chilled souls of Cass City are coming back to life, take a look around you. Stop, look and listen.

This is beginning to sound like some kind of sermon, but there's a really neat concert going on out there, complete with light show and music.

John Cage, a revolutionary musician who introduced several new ideas such as taking sound and what is around it and letting the sounds blend with the surroundings, completely out of control of the conductor, surely took his ideas from OUT THERE, the funny world we all are running around on.

I don't know where he is now, but when I was at the university, he was rumored to have taken up residence in one of the tunnels in the catacombs somewhere under the physics building, where he was working away to his heart's content, perhaps grooving on the squeakings of rats with the grinding of heating machinery.

But anyway, he had a concert while I was there that was absolutely out of this world, except that it took things from this world and let them blend together all by themselves.

J. S. Bach was probably creating a rumble six feet down, but Cage would have said it was part of the whole show. The central proposition of this thesis is that all those things called noise are really very musical sounds, in spite of what the doctors and environmentalists are telling you about noise pollution.

As I sit in this office, I hear the continual peck, peck, peck of my typewriter as I do my daily finger exercises, and some similar noises from the back shop. Someone who is just casually tuned out would find it a nuisance, but the dynamic rhythm combined with the gentle undertone repeated in the back is a journalist's concert.

When I stop writing to gulp some coffee, the radiator has an opportunity to offer its gentle pssst, pssst, which combined with my swallow, gives quiet relief from the heavy metal sounds.

As the subtle kettle drums and other percussion instruments in a band gently rumble and then build up to a climax and a crash, so do the cars and those great big trucks that rattle the windows and shut off all sound for a moment.

Then the telephone, as Cage would have loved it, comes in at erratic and unpredictable times, with absolutely no control from me, the conductor of this earthy little concert.

And all the time there's nature's own little light show happening as the clouds and sun play with shadows and chase them on the road and the evening brings the pinkish sun.

The poets have been rhyming about this for years, but you have to stop, look and listen to find it. You can stop, because the world will still be going on around you.

Computer advises in management

Computers can be very helpful in farm management.

This is especially true in Michigan where Michigan State University scientists have developed "Telplan" programs in which computers handle time-consuming math problems and assist farmers in all kinds of management decisions.

To find out what the computer can do, we will ask it a few questions by using the touch tone telephone in our office.

Problem: How much more life insurance do I need? I'm 30, my wife is 28 and my kids are 7 and 4. We plan two more, one next year and the other a year later.

Present net worth (paid mortgage, savings, assets like cars, stocks, etc.) is $40,000 and is increasing about $5,000 per year. The value of my life insurance on debt is $10,000 (declining term insurance to pay off debts in case of death).

My permanent life insurance is $20,000. If I die, my widow would get about $4,000 in social security benefits. Also, she expects to get a $5,000 inheritance in 8 years from the trust fund of a relative.

The kids are planning to go to college, and my wife will pay 100 percent of their expenses. She and the kids will need about $9,000 a year to live on.

She plans to take a job when the youngest is 15 and will earn about $5,000 per year.

What additional insurance, if any do I need?

Answer: If you (the husband) die today, you would need $33,000 more life insurance to take care of your family. If you die three years from now, after the two new children have been born, your life insurance should be $43,000 higher than it is today.

As you look beyond this time, your insurance needs will decrease. Ten years from now, insurance requirements will be only $13,000.

(Suggestion: The father should buy more declining term insurance to give the family the extra protection it needs now instead of later. By the way, this computer program lists additional insurance needs for each of the next 10 years.)

Problem: Should I buy a combine or custom hire? A new combine would cost $15,000, but I plan to use it 8 years and should get a 15 percent salvage value. The current custom rate runs $8.50 per acre. I should be able to reduce my yield losses by about $4 per acre with a new combine, because it will be more timely than a custom operator. I'll combine about 300 acres per year. Fuel cost will be about $1.20 per hour; labor cost, $3 per hour. I'm in a 22 percent tax bracket and demand at least a 10 percent return on my money.

Answer: Buy the combine. With your acreage, you should save about $1,200 in 8 years going this route instead of custom hiring. Some of your major operating costs over the 8 years: $4,700 for repairs, $1,300 for fuel and lubrication costs, $3,400 for labor costs (assuming the current rate of inflation on these cost items). The best depreciation method to use on this machine considering your tax bracket and desired rate of return is a double declining balance method taking the 20 percent additional first year depreciation. Note: your acreage is not very much above the break even point. If you decline about 30 acres, you'll break even. Any less than 270 acres and you'd be better off custom hiring.

Problem: I have a brother who's a dairy farmer. Can you, as a computer, help him feed a more economical ration? He says his feed costs are now taking over half of his milk check.

Answer: The program for a least-cost dairy ration is in the computer's memory bank. For example, the computer knows that a 1,400-pound cow producing 60 pounds of milk daily with 3.5 butterfat test needs a daily ration that includes: 29.4 megacalories of net energy, 5.4 pounds of protein, 71 grams of calcium, 53 grams of phosphorus, 32 grams of magnesium, 64 grams of salt.

If your brother can tell me what feeds he has available, their costs and the production level of his herd, I can tell him daily feed costs per cow for a specified milk production, pre-mix ingredients, pounds of pre-mix in the concentrate batch, pounds of each ingredient in the concentrate, how much to feed each cow per day, the percentage of protein in the pre-mix or concentrate batch, pounds of additional concentrate, for higher milkers and if this ration contains excess energy, protein, or both.

Many dairy farmers who have already used the MSU computerized least-cost ration were able to save 8 to 10 cents per cow per day in feed costs. For 100 cows, that's a savings of $2,920 to $3,950 per year.

1972 Chrysler

When you think of a Chrysler, you think of a big, strong, handsome car. A man's kind of car. Right? Not completely. Women, too, go for Chrysler. And, most often, for the same reasons as men. They like the good looks. They like the roominess. And who wouldn't? Automotive Industries reports that the '72 Chrysler has the largest interior of any 1972 U.S. car. But women, especially, like the way they can count on Chrysler to get them where they want to go... without a lot of trouble. Every Chrysler is built with a commitment to deep-down quality. Every Chrysler is built to last. Isn't that the kind of car people really want? Men and women alike. We think so. Come in and let us show you a big new Chrysler today.

Eagle awards highlight scouts court of honor Tuesday

MANY EAGLE SCOUTS attended the Court of Honor where Eagle rank was bestowed on two Cass City Scouts.

Only one scout in 100 achieves the rank of Eagle James Ware told some 75 persons attending the Scout Court of Honor Tuesday night at the Cass City Cultural Center.

It has been about 15 years since the community last honored a boy who earned Eagle rank and Tuesday, Ware announced two new Eagles to swell Cass City's lifetime total to 17.

The scouts honored were Randy Bacon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bacon, and Brian Althaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lambert Althaver.

Randy, 14, has been a scout

3 years. He has been a camper for 2 years and is an Order of the Arrow honor camper. He served as a patrol leader and is now a senior patrol leader. He is a Freshman at Cass City High School.

Brian, 16, spent three years at Camp Rotary with two of the years as a camper and the last as a member of the staff.

He attended the National Jamboree in Valley Forge in 1970 and is a member of the Order of the Arrow. He served as a patrol leader, senior patrol leader and junior assistant scoutmaster.

He is a sophomore at Cass City High School. His father, Lambert, also achieved Eagle rank when a boy.

Ware, an Eagle scout himself, told the boys that the Eagle badge "is not so much a symbol of what you have done, but what you have been prepared to do . . . This position is one of honor and one of responsibility. From this night forward you are marked men. As Eagle scouts you assume a solemn obligation of duty to God and country, to your fellow scouts and to all of mankind."

In addition to the Eagle awards, other awards were also presented.

Receiving tenderfoot awards from leader Lee Hartel were: Bill Francis, Jeff Hartel, Wayne Wood, Terry Vollmar, Jim Tuckey, Joel Palmateer and Paul Guernsey.

Polar Bear awards were presented by Scoutmaster Bill Zeidler to: Randy Bacon, Brian Althaver, Steve Frederick, Bruce Tuckey, Carl Palmateer, Eric Frederick, Jeff Hartel, Bill Juhasz, Tim Vatter, Rick Hendrick, Larry Hollis, Rick Hollis and Ed Doerr.

THE CROWD stands as the ceremony honoring local scouts closed Tuesday night.

Hendrick rites

held Wednesday

Funeral services for Arthur Hendrick, 96, were held at 1 p.m. Wednesday, March 8, at the Sutton Methodist church. Burial was to be in Ellington cemetery.

Mr. Hendrick died Monday morning in a hospital in Lansing. He was born May 6, 1875, in Ellington Township, son of Orson and Frances Hendrick. He lived in the Cass City area many years.

In 1898 he married Ethel Barigar, who died in 1908. He later married Bessie Lockerby.

Surviving are: a son, Lester of Grand Rapids; two brothers, Orson of Tarpon Springs, Fla., and Theo of Cass City; two sisters, Mrs. Ola Hayes of Cass City and Mrs. Fannie Finkbeiner of Owendale. Also surviving are seven grandchildren, 17 great-grandchildren, and several great-great-grandchildren. His wife, four sons and a daughter died previously.

Farm Bureau

tops goal

A final concentrated effort has put the Tuscola County Farm Bureau over its membership goal of 2029 families, it was announced by bureau officials. County President, David Loomis, Cass City, credits the achievement of an early goal to the hard work of the membership drive force and Ed Ser-gent, Vassar, who spearheaded the drive. The local membership workers will attend a Thumb Region Victory Party scheduled Monday evening, March 13, at the Sault Ste. Marie County Farm Bureau building in Sandusky.

The Michigan Farm Bureau has more than 99 percent of their goal of 58,075 families, according to Charles Burkett, membership coordinator, with 35 counties surpassing their goal.

Farm women plan spring meeting Mar. 29

The District 6 Farm Bureau Women will hold the district spring meeting March 29 at the Marlette Presbyterian Church in Marlette.

Tuscola County women will host Farm Bureau women from Huron, Sanilac, Lapeer, St. Clair and Macomb Counties, starting with a 9:30 a.m. coffee hour.

The program, starting at 10:00, will feature Al Almy, legislative council for Michigan Farm Bureau, during the morning. Highlighting the afternoon session will be Betty Hansen, Saginaw, noted columnist for the Saginaw News. She presents a humorous, down to earth talk on subjects affecting daily lives.

Also included in the program will be Helen Atwood, Program Coordinator for the Michigan Farm Bureau Women, and David Pohl, Regional Representative. County reports will be given and prizes awarded.

Luncheon reservations must be made with Mrs. Ford Boyne, Marlette, by March 20. All Farm Bureau women are urged to attend.

Men who hesitate often profit from the mistakes of others.

Begin annual membership drive for retarded children association

The Tuscola County Association for Retarded Children is conducting its annual membership drive in conjunction with the National Association this month. Across the nation there are 1,500 units campaigning under the slogan, "If We Grow ... They Grow".

In Tuscola county the association has long been active and has established a school and recreation center. Persons interested in joining the association can do so by phoning the activity workshop (673-6177) Mrs. K. Ward DeKett, membership chairman said.

Throughout the year the association works to raise money for the program. Fund raising events include a rummage sale, a booth at the county fair, sale of products from the workshop and similar projects.

The group is also helped by fraternal organizations, civic groups, Foundations and United Fund.

Presently there are 13 persons enrolled in the activity workshop. They are taken to the center by two Association-owned buses for five hours daily, five days a week.

Information or a membership can be secured from the county officers. They are: Robert Reich, Unionville, president; Fred Dewald, Unionville, vice-president; Mrs. Stuart Copeland, Kingston, recording secretary; Mrs. Howard Bell, Caro, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Albert McCoon, Marlette, treasurer.

Meetings are the third Thursday of each month at the recreation center at the corner of Graf and Van Geisen Roads, at 8 p.m.

How much does it cost to drive? Half century of record keeping gives former Cass Cityan answers

(Reprinted from the Sebring Fla. News)

Have you ever tried to keep a diary for a year and failed to make any entries after the first few months?

How would you like to try to keep a record of every car you had ever owned from a 1916 Model T Ford to the present? This is exactly what George Copland of Desoto City, Fla., has done. Moreover, his record includes the original cost of the car, total cost of insurance for the duration of ownership, total operating expenses, number of miles driven, cost of the license, and gallons of gas used.

EARLY YEARS

In the early years of the automotive industry, few gas stations were in existence; so Copland had to buy gas by the barrel. Road conditions were so poor that Copland had to store his 1916 Model T Ford in the winter. He was living in Cass City during this time. According to a list that Copland has, in 1915 there were 933 different makes of American automobiles. Some of these names are familiar today, but most of them have long ago gone out of existence. The early automobile makes include Hudson Steamer car, Ajax, Black Crow, Ben Hur, Bugmobile, Buffalo, Chevrolet, Eagle-Rotary, Dodge, Ford, Dragon, Great Eagle, Clydesdale, Cricket, Chalmers, Cunningham, Case, Cole, Mercury, Maxwell, Elgin, E.M.F., Essex, Pontiac, Pierce-Arrow, Studebaker Electric, Vulcan, Zenomobile, Lincoln, Queen, Stanley Steamer, Witt Will, Quinlan, Fostoria, Fergus, and Martin-Wasp.

Copland stated that in 1916 it took him 20 hours to make a 240 car trip from Cass City to Kalamazoo, Mich.

GAS RECORDS

George Copland's records show an interesting history of gas prices. In 1924 10 gallons of gas could be bought for 22 cents a gallon. In 1925 the price for the same amount of gas dropped to 21 cents a gallon. This rate remained through 1930. In 1936 gas rates for 10 gallons dropped even lower to 17 cents a gallon.

COMMENTS ON CARS

According to Copland, in all the years he has had a car, he has owned only two "lemons." These were the 1919 and 1924 Oaklands. All of his cars were bought new except the 1929 Buick, that he purchased used from his father's estate. When asked why he stayed with Fords all these years, Copland replied, "I haven't found anything wrong with them yet."

Copland's first two cars were touring autos. His 1916 Ford started with a crank. His 1935 Ford had a rumble seat, but he said he never rode in the seat. According to Copland, the 1940 Ford was better than the 1942 one because auto parts were scarce since the time was during World War II. Copland feels present day cars are the best yet.

PERSONAL BACKGROUND

This man, with the precise records, is a retired Detroit police officer. He pursued this career for 25 years. He and his wife retired to Desoto City 14 years ago.

Recreational park should be for children, not beer

March 6, 1972

Dear Editor,

A year ago the citizenry was given an opportunity to vote on the sale of "spirits by the glass." At that election I voted no because it was my democratic right. As it turned out, there were more "Yes" voters exercising the same right. Consequently, we now sell spirits by the glass. Whether the supporters feel their campaign promises were fulfilled, I don't know. Among the things suggested was that there would be more tax dollars flowing into our town. If this is true it is as much of a secret as the other promises. Nevertheless, the taverns were made for adults and if anyone wants to go there for a drink, they can. By the same token, our village park was made primarily for our children and should be kept that way. Allowing beer to be consumed in the park can in no way contribute to the welfare and recreation of our most guarded natural resource — our children.

Last summer during the meeting to discuss the issue, it was brought up that it is now against the law to have beer in the park. This law, we were told, was not enforceable. Now it seems we have taken an avenue of escape synonymous with the old cliché, "If you can't beat 'em, join 'em." If it is impossible to enforce the present law, will it be easier to keep order when dealing with large crowds?

At the meeting last summer I heard the service club representatives make their pitch for beer in the park. They indicated that this would enhance their money-making ability. To be sure, the service clubs have done a tremendous job in improving the park over the years. Their efforts are second to none and they are to be commended. But a beer tent next to a little league diamond seems grossly out of place.

If beer in the park is so harmless, why would it be necessary to have a special permit or a guard on duty? No, I think to allow the issue to pass will create many more problems than it will solve.

Past president says Gagetown not 'cited' for sewer pollution

Dear Editor: To whom it may concern.

Two weeks ago you had an article in your paper (on the front page) about the voting on the bond issue proposal at Gagetown in which it stated that the village had been cited back in 1967. I was President at that time. I wish to clarify — That the village of Gagetown has not been cited as polluting. In Oct. of 1967 our Village Council met with the Owendale Village Council and with the Owen-Gage school board — along with a Representative from the Water Resources Commission.

The purpose of this meeting was to discuss some means of taking care of the sewage from the public school so that the district could go ahead with the new school construction.

When a village is cited a date is set as to when some steps have to be taken. There has been no date set at this time. I felt it only fair that the registered voters of the village of Gagetown know this before they vote as a lot do not seem to understand this.

Thank you,
Elery Sontag

Truck overturns

on way to

Cass City

A semi-truck loaded with groceries for Erla's Food Store tipped over on M-81 just east of Kirk Road, west of Caro, about 3:45 a.m. Wednesday. There were no injuries and no damage done to the goods, which were transferred to another truck.

Tuscola sheriff deputies said the driver of the truck apparently lost control when the truck hit a large pool of water on the road.

Vandalism, 3 thefts reported

Cass City police investigated two larcenies and one vandalism incident this week.

Glen Miracle of 6458 Garfield St., Cass City, reported Mar. 5 that both cars on his residence were entered and damage done to them. In one vehicle, a jug of cleanser was left in the car after it had been poured over the seats. The ash tray was dumped on the floor and the directional turn signal lever was broken. In the second vehicle, the ash tray was dumped, the turn signal lever broken and the knobs pulled off the radio. There are no suspects.

William Bliss Sr. called police at 6:55 a.m. Sunday when he discovered the theft of gasoline from one of his trucks parked at the truck barn at Maple and Church. Approximately 34 gallons of gasoline were siphoned off. There are no suspects, although the hose used was found in a nearby barrel.

Mrs. Art Calster, 3764 N. Cemetery Road, Cass City, told police Feb. 29 that two hubcaps valued at about $40-50 each were taken from her vehicle when it was parked at the High School parking lot Feb. 25. She was attending the basketball game. There are no suspects.

Name R. Drews

Chamber prexy

in Milford

Richard W. Drews, former resident of Cass City, has recently been elected president of the Milford Area Chamber of Commerce.

He has also been reappointed to a two-year term on the Milford Planning Commission, which he serves as vice-chairman.

A Rotary member, both in Cass City and Milford, he is presently serving on a district Rotary committee which is making arrangements for a spring visit from a Rotary Study Exchange team from Bombay, India.

A warrant was issued Monday for the arrest of a Deford woman who was caught shoplifting a carton of cigarettes at the Erla Foods store Mar. 4. Police said the woman was followed outside the store where she was apprehended by Don Erla.

New books at Rawson library

Fifty-two books were selected Tuesday from the Saginaw Area Book Pool for use at Rawson Memorial Library. Included are "Montessori Today" by R. C. Orem, "Rabbit Redux" by John Updike, "How to Live in the Woods on Pennies a Day" by Bradford Angier, "Field and Stream International Fishing Guide" by A. J. McClane, "Shipwrecks and Archaeology" by Peter Throckmorton, and "Guiding your Child from Two to Five" by Molly Jones.

There are also many new novels, mysteries, youth books, and interesting non-fiction books in the selection.

BPW Club plans district meeting

The BPW Club held their monthly meeting March 1 led by President Grace Nemeth. Janette Osentoski was introduced as a guest.

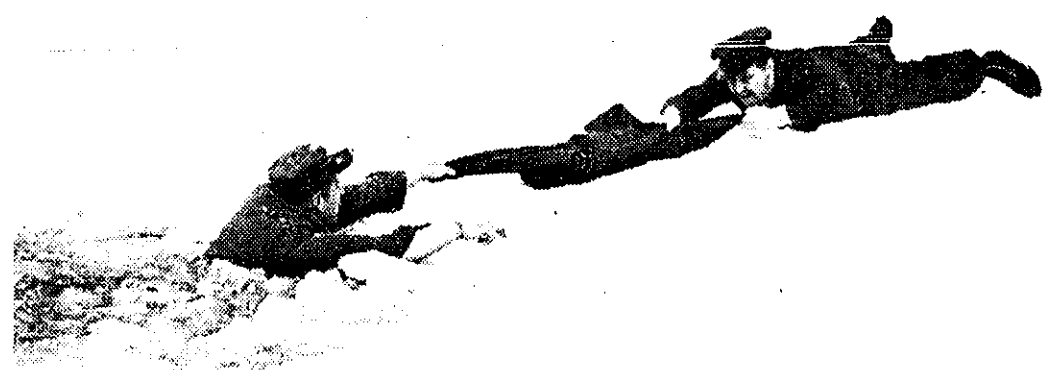

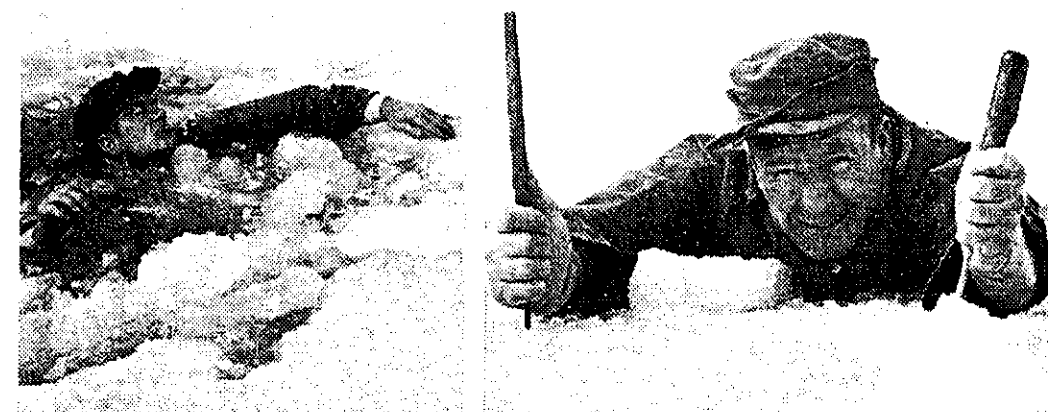

Final plans were discussed for hostessing the spring district meeting March 18 at the Lutheran Fellowship Hall. Stefanie Novak, state secretary from Detroit, will be attending and will install the newly elected district officers.

Plans were made for an outing in April at the Civic Auditorium in Saginaw. The nominating committee submitted a slate of officers to be elected next month.

The April meeting program will be in charge of Mardell Ware and Thelma Pratt.

Cool Thinking to The Rescue

What's the best thing to do if you or one of your fellow fishermen should suddenly plunge through the ice this winter? First of all, stay calm, advises the Department of Natural Resources' Marine Safety Section. If you're the one in distress, literally keep your chin up and reach out for solid ice to give yourself at least a temporary hold while others are coming to your aid. Perhaps with good hand leverage and strong kicking action you'll be able to pull yourself out of trouble. If you're a rescuer, remember a hasty move may leave you in the same chilly predicament as the guy you're trying to save. Don't get too close to the spot where the ice has given way; its edge may not be safe. Slide the man in trouble a screwdriver, file, knife, or any other sharp tools that will give him a firm hold. He may be able to get out on his own by repeatedly jabbing one tool ahead in the ice, holding fast with the other until the forward move is secure, and then sinking that one even with the first. If this doesn't work and there is no rope, plank, or spud handy, use your coat or tie your clothes together for a makeshift rescue line. Or, when other fishermen are nearby, yell for them and form a human chain. —Mich. Dept. of Natural Resources too, as cardiac and intensive care units are put into use, where it becomes vital to make the right split-second decision. Two of the girls are working at a hospital now, and they know the problems a nurse faces, the responsibility of making those decisions.

Responsibilities of nursing excite 4 Cass City students

Sue, who has applied to the Grand Rapids Baptist Bible College, said she wanted to be a nurse for a long time, but when she began duties about three months ago as an aide at Hills and Dales, she said she wasn't sure she wanted to go on with it.

The self doubts that followed the first time one of her patients died and the responsibility involved with the job especially with emergencies, made her really think about it.

"If you do one certain thing, you can save their life," she said. "But if you don't . . ."

Nancy, whose mother is a nurse, said she, too, has wanted to be a nurse for a long time. At first her motives were shaped by her mother's career, but not now. "I really find it interesting working at the hospital," she said, where she works in the laboratory.

Pam, who is going to start pre-medicine at John Brown College, Ark., said she really wants to be a doctor, but will go into nursing if she can't make it. As a child she spent a great deal of time in hospitals as a patient and observed the workers.

"They seemed like they were always helping," she said with admiration, and added that she'd like to go into the Peace Corps after she finished her schooling.

Laurie, who has never worked in a hospital but hopes to get a job with one this next summer, said she hadn't had a life-long ambition to be a nurse, but decided to go into it because, "I really like to help people and I think it'd be a real interesting job." She's applied to Delta College.

A consideration once used to promote nursing for women was that it combined well with marriage. These girls generally agreed that marriage didn't fit into their plans as a goal, and they wanted to finish school first.

This attitude reflected partly the different concept of nursing as it is developing. As the field opens up, with work in hospitals, clinics, nursing homes, doctors' offices and industry, to name a few of the areas, the opportunities for men increase, too. Wages have increased over past decades, so that both men and women have comfortable incomes. The average starting salary ranges from $7500 to $9000 for registered nurses, depending on the amount of education.

"Nursing is a field for men, but they'd rather sell shoes for less money," said Landholt.

There has always been a stigma attached to nurses in this country, but the field is opening up in spite of it. Some men who are coming back from Vietnam, where they got a taste of medicine but don't want to become doctors, are going into nursing, said Landholt, especially on the west coast.

Icy roads result in numerous mishaps

Numerous accidents were investigated this week as a result of the slippery and wet road conditions caused by the several snow storms.

A car driven by John Timon Trober, 58, of Flint, hit a fire hydrant on Church Street near the municipal building in the early morning hours of Monday. The squad car of the Cass City police was involved in an accident when a car driven by Larry Peters, 18, of Ubyly, hit it in the side. The accident occurred about 2:15 a.m. Sunday on M-81, 1/2 mile west of M-53. Thomas Kern, 28, of Reese, a deputy hired parttime by the village, was heading the car towards Cass City following a routine traffic violation check on another vehicle, when the Peters car came over the hill. Police reported the road extremely icy. When Peters saw the vehicle in the road ahead, he tried to stop, but lost control according to the report, slid broadside down the middle of the road and slammed into the left side of the police vehicle, causing approximately $400 damage.

The police car had moved to the side of the road to try to avoid the collision, the report stated. There were no injuries.

In a Saturday accident the east bound car of Lorene Carlotta Reich, 41, 2301 Bay City Road, Unionville, slid across the centerline of M-81, three-tenths mile south west of Walker Road, and into the westbound vehicle of Isaac W. Smart, 56, Dutcher Road, Cass City. Tuscola county sheriff's reports indicated Smart tried to pull off the road to avoid the 10 a.m. accident but was unable.

Minor damage was done to vehicles of Gordon Matt Derry, 71, Schott Road, Mayville, and Joseph Krawczyk, 89, 2853 N. Warner Road, Deford, when Krawczyk pulled into the Erla parking lot and hit the left front fender of the other car. The mishap occurred 3:30 p.m. Friday.

In another accident, a vehicle of Gary Dean Tetreau, 4171 Maple St., Cass City, suffered minor damage to the front end when a car driven by Carol Rose Furness, S. Elkton Road, Owendale, backed into it. The Tetreau car was parked on private property on Circle Drive near Maple Street. The mishap occurred about 4 p.m. Saturday.

Sandra Jean Piechotte, 28, 6161 Lakeside St., Cass City, received minor injuries Wednesday, Mar. 1, when a car driven by William Gerald Izydorek, 18, 4152 Sherman St., Cass City, and hers sideswiped each other on Doerr Road, 1/2 mile south of Garfield Street. The accident happened 9:55 p.m. Gary Lee Vollmar, 20, 4442 Cedar Run Road, Cass City, was cited for improper backing Tuesday, Feb. 29, after he backed into a car belonging to Mac O'Dell, 4465 Brooker St., Cass City. The collision occurred 7:40 p.m. in the south Main Street alley between Leach and West streets.

Jury finds Caro man innocent of larceny charge

Philip Vincent of Caro was found innocent of larceny from a building Tuesday afternoon following a day's trial in Tuscola County Circuit Court. The jury deliberated about 1/2 hour before returning the verdict. Vincent was tried for the March 1971 theft from Jim's Good Gulp in Caro.

Wednesday morning jury selection was to begin for the trial of Robert Weeder of Sandusky, who is charged with unlawfully driving away the auto of another July 7, 1971. He stood mute at an Aug. 30 arraignment and a plea of innocent was entered for him.

Upon completion of the Weeder trial, the jury trial of Gary L. Potter of Caro will begin. He is charged with negligent homicide in the Dec. 24, 1970, accident death of Elsie McBurnery, 61, of Cass City. He stood mute at an Oct. 12 arraignment and a plea of innocent was entered for him.

Judge Norman Baguley is the presiding trial judge. A light criminal load was handled in circuit court Monday before Judge James Churchill.

William Davis Jr. of Mayville stood mute at his arraignment for third offense drunk driving following a Jan. 26 arrest. A plea of innocent was entered for him. A pre-trial was scheduled for Mar. 30. Harold Gaudette, 19, of Caro and now with the U. S. Army, was sentenced to five years probation and fine and costs of $600 for simple assault. He entered a plea of guilty to the charge Feb. 22 at a pre-trial after previously pleading innocent to the charge of assault to commit great bodily harm less than murder.

Gaudette was arrested early New Year's Day following the stabbing of Christopher Hoppe of Decker and Ronald Spencer of Deford during a fight outside the Club 24 south of Caro.

Lester V. McCoy, who was found guilty of felonious assault by a jury Feb. 3, was sentenced to 2 to 4 years at the state prison at Jackson, with credit for 57 days. McCoy was tried for shooting at a state trooper Jan. 10 in connection with an incident at the McCoy home in Millington.

Edward C. Scollon, N. Seeger, Cass City, was ticketed Feb. 23 in Cass City for disregarding a red light. He paid fine and costs of $15. Allen Nicholas Zimmerman, West St., Cass City, was ticketed Feb. 17 in Almer Township for speeding 75 miles an hour in a 65 mph zone. He paid fine and costs of $20. James R. Marshall, Gilford Road, Deford, was ticketed Feb. 21 in Kingston for speeding 75 in a 65 mph zone. He paid fine and costs of $20. Joe Lorn Hillaker, Main St., Cass City, was ticketed Jan. 27 in Cass City for an expired driver's license. He paid fine and costs of $6. Philip William Walsh, Spence Road, Ubyly, was ticketed Feb. 18 in Cass City for defective equipment. He paid fine and costs of $15.

Thomas Albert Kelly, Midland, was ticketed Mar. 3 in Cass City for expired registration plates. He paid fine and costs of $6.

Rita Carr, N. Dodge, Deford, was ticketed Mar. 3 in Ellington township for no registration slip in possession. She paid fine and costs of $6.

Wellington B. Plane, Phillips Road, Kingston, was ticketed Mar. 6 in Kingston Township for expired registration plates. He paid fine and costs of $6.

Kermit Earl Hartwick, E. Cass City Road, Cass City, was ticketed Mar. 2 in Cass City for expired registration plates. He paid fine and costs of $6.

Edgar C. Cummins, Koepfgen Road, Cass City, was ticketed Mar. 3 in Elkland Township for expired registration plates. He paid fine and costs of $6.

WINNING DISTRICT championships is old stuff to Coach Ed Wolford and the Laker basketball team. The team showed relatively little elation after walking off with the championship Friday night with an easy win over Bad Axe at Cass City High School. The Lakers play the winner of the Fenton-Flint Hamady game Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Flint's IMA.

Vintage crop of seniors dominates all-star team

It was a vintage year for outstanding Senior players in the Thumb B Conference and the all-conference basketball team selected by coaches reflects the caliber of the players who have completed their high school career.

Every member of the first team was a senior and all but four of the second team and honorable mention list were also seniors.

Heading the selections for the dream squad was Lloyd Schinnerer who received every possible vote, 70 out of 70, as he was selected to the squad for the third straight year.

Cass City was represented by Paul Bliss who was named to the second team. Sophomore Scott Hartel received two votes.

Shorten few drug sentences after review under new law

One side effect (no pun intended) of the revised penalties set up for possession, use and/or sale of drugs and other substances by the legislature last year is a shortened prison stay for some persons serving long sentences under the old law.

The Michigan Corrections Commission, which was ordered by the new law to go over the cases of all inmates doing time for drug violations, found 542 of them in for drug offenses. That's better than 5 per cent of the prison population in the state — big enough so that a sizeable reduction can help alleviate the overcrowding in prisons, at least temporarily.

The state parole board started looking into those 542 cases and found 142 involved sentences long enough so that the inmates serving them had passed the maximum in the new law. Of those 142, only 19 are still in prison.

About 180 of the remaining cases involve marijuana offenses, and the board will review those first. Another 170 cases involve hallucinogens or heroin and 50 cases involve the serving of concurrent sentences for offenses not connected with drugs on the statute books at least.

This is not to say the board is automatically releasing everybody before their sentences expire. Before they approve the premature release of an inmate they check his or her previous criminal history, whether there was any prior narcotics involvement, any serious mental problems, and his conduct in prison.

If these all check out okay, then the prisoner has a good chance for release.

PROCESS NOT WIDE OPEN

There's been much talk in recent months, with the 18-year-old vote and the new presidential primary, that the political process in Michigan is really being "opened up."

It's true the process is more open to Joe Citizen than it was a couple of years ago. But not all the barriers are down.

For instance, delegates to national political conventions are still picked at state conventions, even though the way they must vote at the national convention is determined in the primary.

Many people in both parties shuddered involuntarily when the governor originally proposed having each candidate for president draw up a slate of committee delegates prior to the primary. That would have required all the party leadership to pick a candidate before the primary or forget about the national convention.

Under present procedures, the leadership can wait until after the primary, confident of a national convention seat and with no need to commit itself.

There's also the matter of the new restriction on petition drives slipped into the new primary law. Under the new statute, you can't get closer than 100 feet to a polling place on election day if you have a petition in your hand.

It used to be you could go right into the polling place to secure signatures so long as you didn't bother the voters or make a nuisance of yourself in any way. Election day is an ideal day to circulate petitions because you need the signatures of registered voters on the petitions and if a person has just emerged from the voting booth you know he is registered.

Unfortunately, there are a couple of petition drives working around the state now that the legislature isn't very happy about.

There's the abortion drive, of course, but the new law apparently won't stop that since its workers are very close to the needed 200,000 signatures for initiatory legislation.

More important from the legislative viewpoint is the drive to secure a one-house legislature. If that drive succeeds, and the people vote for a unicameral legislature, 72 of the 148 lawmakers at a minimum will need new work as their seats would be eliminated.

Backers of the program are still working on a big petition circulating drive for primary day. The 100 foot law is a stumbling block in that effort, though it doesn't make the job impossible.

It just shows that not everyone in Lansing has the same ideas about what makes for open political process.

Farm Bureau county board meets in Lansing

The Tuscola County Farm Bureau Board of Directors had a unique experience at its regular monthly session February 22. They were the first county board in the state to take advantage of an invitation from President Elton Smith, to hold a board meeting at the new Farm Bureau Center in Lansing.

After a tour of the Center and lunch, they were welcomed by Robert Braden, Administrative Director of Michigan Farm Bureau who commented on the Center. President Smith and District Director Jack Laurie, Cass City, met with the board and expressed their pleasure in having the group meet at the state headquarters.

Robert Smith, Legislative Council for MFB, reviewed and discussed the property tax relief petition.

In board action the bureau selected Blenford Campbell, Fairgrove, to represent Tuscola as a "Legislative Leader" at the annual Washington Legislative Seminar March 13-16, sponsored by Michigan Farm Bureau Women. Mrs. Campbell will also accompany the group to participate in the heritage tour of the nation's capitol.

Robert Petzold, Vassar, and Earl Taggett, Caro, were chosen to attend the Michigan Association of Farmer Cooperatives - Manager-Director clinic, to be held in Frankenthum March 9.

Reports were given and authorized several awards to be presented to 4-H and FFA at the Fair.

Mary Croft in volunteer project

Mary Croft, 19, is one of several teams of student volunteers who are giving instruction in skills to elementary school children in the rural areas around Big Rapids.

The project is being spearheaded by a junior at Ferris State College. The teams are funded by a 4-H grant and are teaching wildlife, woodworking, and sports to fourth to sixth graders attending schools at Remus, Barryton and Mecosta.

A freshman at Ferris State College, Miss Croft is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Croft, 4677 Huron St., Cass City.

AROUND THE FARM

A rewarding week

By Don R. Kebler

Last week was real rewarding in the Extension goals accomplished for the people in Tuscola county. To begin with, the first of three Hedging Workshop sessions was well attended by a real lively group of corn producers. The in-depth, greater detailed program presentations appear to be presenting hedging information to the comprehension of the participants.

Several hedging case problems were studied by the producers who worked together as five and six member groups. It was interesting to hear the comments and observe the actions of these groups as some made and some lost money on a pencil pushing basis.

The next day an entirely different interest group attended their second and final Estate Planning and Property Transfer Shortcourse. Nearly forty people attended both of these sessions. This group of men and women was about the ideal size to work with, and they didn't hesitate in asking many questions.

From the comments received afterwards the sessions were rewarding to the participants. Many were confused, not to the information received but, to their application of the knowledge received to their particular family needs.

Everyone did learn that there are many facets to take into consideration while setting up their basic estate plan. Also an estate plan like a will must be a constantly changing thing.

In order to be in line to their changing estate and property transfer needs. They learned too that in making property transfers before death that a gift tax and/or a gains tax may be eminent. The fund where state and federal estate and inheritance taxes may enter an estate settlement plus who owns what property now. Other useful estate planning and settlement tools were discussed real well in the role of a will, probate, trusts and insurance.

Very few if any became experts in estate planning and property transfer but all became better acquainted with the considerations necessary for a more effective estate plan.

On Thursday a group of county swine producers spent a well worthwhile day visiting the Veterinary Clinic and swine facilities at M.S.U. We watched the complete procedures of performing biopsies on two hogs. The veterinarians demonstrated and explained in great detail how to perform a biopsy and what irregular symptoms to look for. We watched a couple of swine hernia operations, heard a presentation of factors important to breeding and selecting higher quality market hogs. Lastly, we visited the new lagoon swine finishing houses and a new type gestating sow housing where the sows are kept in continuous confinement. A new swine waste disposal system was explained which if workable could help revolutionize swine waste disposal.

All in all, it was a well rewarding week.

The Want Ads are newsy too.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Clem Webster wanted to know at the country store Saturday night how far a "spirit of good fellowship" would get a taxpayer in trouble with the Internal Revenue Service? Clem said he raised the question cause he had saw recent where that was the line the IRS was using to try to get out of paying $9 million in postage.

The funniest thing he heard lately, went on Clem, was the fix the revenue folks got in by sending out income tax forms by first class mail expecting to pay third class. It is some kind of justice, said Clem, for the IRS to get caught on the outgo with the income.

What happened, reported Clem, is that the old post office that use to let IRS mail them forms cheap is gone, and the new postal people ain't holding to the understanding. So the IRS, said Clem, is calling for that old "spirit of good fellowship" to get them out of paying first class rate for first class mail. The last report Clem saw they was still talking about it.

Practical speaking, said Zeke Grubb, it don't make much never mind. It's all our money anyway, Zeke said, and it don't matter which pocket we pay out of. Zeke said he liked the idea of the postal service trying to pay its way, but he said he don't see how, not even with the advertisements on stamps that is being talked about. They ain't no way you can move all kind of mail at a profit, allowed Zeke, and the more mail is took over by private outfits, the more the post office will lose in handling what's left.

Talking about ads, Bug Hookum said he could see Avis mailing with Hertz ads on the stamps, and he was waiting for the professional football teams to come up with ads on the shirts of the players. They could write "Eat at Joe's" on the back of a shirt and let Joe help pay the player's wages. Course, went on Bug, with all the money in football they don't need no help, but they might look at the ad idea to raise money for the Government.

The ads is gitting so specialized, declared Bug, til you have to listen and read careful to know what to buy. For instance, he said he saw on TV where this stuff for washing clothes kills "hanky germs, sock germs, even doper germs." Bug said he never knowed they was a germ fer ever piece of clothes, but after all them ring-around-the-collar germs, and breath germs and danderf germs he can believe germs is specializing these days.

Actual, Mister Editor, the fellers was agreed that anything can happen in this country, and usual does. Ed Doolittle had saw where a dog had got qualified for Medicaid and business grants, and a scientist said pets eat better than human members of the family. Not many of us has nine delicious flavors at ever meal, Ed said, and it's a shame the country ain't going to the dogs.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Barley growers to discuss

price report

A malting barley meeting will be held for all barley growers of the Thumb area Monday, Mar. 13. The barley meeting will be held at the Fairgrove Restaurant, Fairgrove, starting 1:30 p.m., states Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension Director. Marketing malting barley will be the focal point of the meeting as the pricing pattern of Larker and Coho barley will be presented. John Longe of Rickel Malting Company and Chuck Alendorf of Fleischmann's will be present to narrate the pricing report. The growers marketing committee of Roy Hickey of Fairgrove; Karl Ewald of Unionville; Allen Merchant of Cass City; and Howard Russell of Fairgrove have been meeting with Rickels to establish a pricing pattern.

The Coho barley report will be summarized at the meeting and the future looks real encouraging. It is anticipated to double the Coho production for 1972 to 60,000 bushels and that the 1973 crop may be expanded to about 120,000 bushels.

FIVE YEARS AGO

One of Cass City's longest established businesses changed hands this week when Mrs. Lucille Sommers sold Sommers' Bakery to Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Merchant of Cass City.

Willard W. Dickerson, MD, announced his retirement as medical superintendent at Caro State Hospital.

The Cass City Board of Education cast a longing eye at power bleachers but backed away when it was learned that power would up the cost about 35 per cent.

Despite a blank ballot in Gagetown, village elections in Cass City and Gagetown followed normal patterns and the anticipated state of officers were elected.

Interscholastic skiing at Cass City High School found scant favor among administrators when it was discussed at the regular meeting of the Board of Education.

Rev. and Mrs. S. P. Kinn were at Elkhon where Mrs. Kinn was the guest speaker at a meeting of the EUB Missionary Society.

TEN YEARS AGO

The second grade class taught by Mrs. Malvina Howarth presented a play for the benefit of parents. The class had just completed a project concerning "community helpers" and the sketch, "What Will I Be from A to Z," dramatized what they had learned.

C. R. Hunt, out-going village president, will turn the gavel over to the new president at the next Village Council meeting and end a three-year presidency and a 12-year member of the board record.

4-H ACTIVITIES

Careers program offered

By Bernard Jardot

Deciding what to do after graduating from high school can be one of the most crucial and baffling decisions faced by today's youth.

The College of Agriculture and Natural Resources at Michigan State University is offering a program on Special Careers for parents and youth during Farmers' Week, Mar. 20-24. Faculty members have planned this program to help Michigan's young people evaluate career goals and know about employment opportunities and educational requirements of careers in agriculture and natural resources.

Information on technical and four-year degree programs will be offered along with discussions on financial aid, campus life, college admissions, job opportunities, college costs and choice of major.

The program will be held in the University Auditorium during the last three days of Farmers' Week, in the Career Hospitality Room and will feature Miss Michigan, Diane Kish.

"4-H FUN NIGHT"

There will be an open house to the public for the 4-H Fun Night Mar. 11. It will start at 8:00 p.m. in the Caro High School Cafeteria.

Several 4-H acts in music and skits will be presented to the public. All interested people are welcomed without charge.

To show results in the battle of life, one must keep driving.

BETTER HEALTH

Chemicals necessary to live

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Today people are constantly hearing about all kinds of vitamins, but I fear that few know exactly what vitamins are, what they do in the body, and in what foods they are found in greatest amounts. People may be interested to know that the term vitamin was coined around 1911 by Dr. Casimir Funk, in Germany. Later, the existence of some 14 vitamins was established.

Actually, vitamins are chemicals which usually must be present in animal or human bodies, in very tiny amounts, if certain essential chemical processes are to be carried out. They are necessary in childhood, so that the body will develop properly, and during adult life so the body will keep functioning normally.

Sometimes very little of a vitamin is necessary. In persons suffering from primary, or "pernicious," anemia, which until a few years ago quickly killed anyone who had it, the person's life can now be saved and he can be kept healthy with a tiny dose of Vitamin B12, given once a month. This gives an idea of the power of such a chemical.

Experts know that a person who has a real lack of a certain vitamin will develop a specific and recognizable disease. For example, in the 1700s, a fine physician in England named Lind reported that the terrible disease scurvy, which killed many sailors on long voyages was due to the lack of fresh foods. He showed that the sailors could be saved from getting scurvy if only they would be given a small daily dose of lime juice.

Today, we know that the important chemical in the lime juice is Vitamin C, or ascorbic acid. This is present in many fresh fruits and vegetables, such as tomatoes, oranges, lemons, grapefruit, fresh strawberries, green peppers, cabbages, cauliflower, spinach, potatoes and pineapple. It is essential to life.

Recently, there has been much excitement over the claim of the famous Dr. Pauling that Vitamin C can prevent colds, but other experts on nutrition such as the great expert on diet, Professor Fred Stare of Harvard, have said that studies on several thousand patients showed that Vitamin C neither prevented colds nor altered the course of common colds.

In 1885, a Japanese named Takaki found that the scurvy of the Japanese navy and of many peoples in the Orient, the serious nervous disease they called beri-beri, was due to the people's living too largely on polished rice. Today we know that Vitamin B1, which is essential to health and life, is removed when the husk of the rice is ground off and discarded.

In 1897, it was found that there is a group of widely distributed vitamins now called the Vitamin B complex, consisting of such chemicals as thiamine (B1), riboflavin, pyridoxine, folic acid and B12. Lack of folic acid produces an anemia, with too few white blood cells, and diarrhea and gastrointestinal troubles. Folic acid is necessary in the making of several so-called amino acids which form the valuable proteins of the body.

Riboflavin is essential for growth and for keeping the eyes in good condition. Also, a pregnant woman must have it if she is going to have a normal baby. Foods rich in riboflavin are milk, liver, eggs, and the green leaves of plants. Yeast and the tops of carrots are especially rich in this. Also muscle meats are a good source of riboflavin, as in liver.

Years ago poor people in our southern states, living on a poor diet, developed a disease called pellagra, in which there was mental retardation, diarrhea, and a skin disease. Pellagra has now been practically wiped out, since it was found that niacin would cure it. Rich sources of niacin are liver, peanut butter, yeast and breast of chicken.

Foods that contain thiamine are plentiful. This vitamin is present in nearly all animal and vegetable tissues.

Vitamin A is essential to good body growth, good vision, and the maintenance of what are called epithelial tissues that cover certain organs. It is essential to the growth of infants, to adolescents, and to pregnant women. One rich source is codliver oil. It is also found in butterfat, eggs, cream, the green leaves of plants and in yellow fruits and vegetables such as carrots and squash. Our liver stores some 95 per cent of the body's reserves of Vitamin A.

Vitamin D is important for the development of the bones of infants. Most mothers know that if their child is not to have bowed legs, he had better have some cod-liver oil added to his milk formula. Other sources for this vitamin are sardines, salmon, and herring, as well as milk, eggs, and liver.

Vitamin E is plentiful in most foods. According to Professor Stare, food faddists have associated Vitamin E with a number of diseases, but "To the best of our knowledge, ill health in humans in the United States has never been associated with a lack of Vitamin E."

Vitamin K is necessary for the clotting of blood.

I rarely prescribe a vitamin for a patient because I have never found one with scurvy, beri-beri, or pellagra. Any person who lives on a mixed diet, with some meat, fish, milk, eggs, fruit, vegetables and bread is almost certain to get all the vitamins he needs.

What causes high blood pressure? What diets and drugs are effective in lowering the blood pressure? What dangers are involved? Dr. Alvarez answers these questions and others in his booklet "High Blood Pressure." For your copy send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. CCC, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

Mar. 15 forum

A "Forum on Community Change" will be held at the Civil Defense Center in Caro Wednesday, Mar. 15, from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m.

Speakers will detail "What's New" in Tuscola county. They will explain and answer questions about Manpower programs, planning and zoning, equal employment opportunity, youth work and county government.

County Extension Director, Bill Bortel, will discuss Land Use Planning and Zoning within the county; Lynn Harvey will describe new Manpower opportunities; Bernie Jardt and Arlene Joslin will describe new youth programs; and Shuford Kirk will outline current activities in county government.

The public is invited to come, bring their questions, and learn from the discussion. There is no charge for this open meeting.

Farm and garden scholarships are being offered for College Week for Women, June 14-17 at Michigan State University.

College Week for Women is an educational event, through class offerings, campus tours, exhibits, luncheons and opportunities galore to meet new people. The event provides the homemaker with knowledge, new experiences and new ideas to contribute to her personal enrichment, to her quality of living and to her leadership developments.

The scholarships will be awarded to worthy homemakers who might not otherwise be able to attend. The scholarship covers the week's Campus costs, registration, room and meals, $43.00.

Special consideration will be given to young homemakers with young children who have never attended College Week.

If you would like to apply for a Woman's National Farm and Garden Association Scholarship, just contact your local Cooperative Extension Service Office and ask for an application.

PEACE OF MIND

Spend some time each day figuring out how to help your fellow man - you'll become more tolerant and understanding.

states Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension Director.

Dr. John Speicher, Michigan State University Dairy Department, and Dr. Robert Maddox, Michigan State University Agriculture Engineering Department, will be at the farms to answer questions and discuss management and facility concepts. In addition, builders, equipment suppliers and local extension personnel will be on hand.

This year the theme for Farmers' Week is "Now and 1985". Visitors to Farmers'
Week will travel another road -- to 1985 and beyond -- to take a look at what rural Michigan may be like in the future.

For more information about
"Now and 1985" Farmers' Week
1972, or for a copy of the program, contact the County Cooperative Extension office at the Civil Defense Center, Caro,

ONE FOR THE ROAD Something wrong with the system

By Dan Marlowe

Something Is Wrong With The System

At what other time in history and in what other country but the United States could a man be hired at $42,500.00 a year plus substantial expenses and then spend 30% or more of his time looking for a higher paying job?

That's the situation today in the U.S. Senate whose members are hired under contract to serve the people full-time for a period of four years.

But a number of senators are far too busy traveling around the country for months on end seeking the Presidency (for which gaining the nomination is the first step).

If one assumes that the best qualified are seeking the presidential nomination, then the question naturally arises: who's minding the store? The lame, the halt, and the blind?

Since the first of the year the U.S. Senate has been struggling to conduct its business with absenteeism averaging 23% on votes, and it will get worse before it gets better.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Montana, notes that the Senate has been operating on a three-day week or less, and his colleagues would be abruptly fired from private industry for such poor performance.

Through two weeks ago the Senate had had 33 roll call votes this year, and average attendance for those votes has been 77. This contrasts with the full Senate complement of 100.

Twelve senators have missed more than half the votes, including five who are out campaigning for a presidential nomination. Henry Jackson, D-Washington, has missed 32 of the roll calls; Edmund Muskie,
D-Maine, has missed 29; Vance
Hartke, D-Indiana, 27; Hubert Humphrey, D-Minnesota, 24; and George McGovern, D-South
Dakota, 22.

Additionally, there is another group of senators who might be called world travelers or who have other excuses for missing a phenomenal number of roll call votes. These include:

Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, 22

missed roll calls. His office says he is away working in the Muskie campaign.

John Tunney, D-California,
20 misses. He went on a trip to Israel, Egypt, and Holland.

Howard Cannon, D-Nevada,
18 misses. A trip to Germany.

Gale McGee, D-Wyoming, 17
misses. Trip to Eastern Europe.

Adlai Stevenson III, D-
Illinois, 17 misses. Trip to Africa, trip to Bangladesh.

John Sparkman, D-Alabama,
15 misses. Campaigning business for re-election in his home state.

The high degree of abstenteeism for the above-mentioned senators would never be tolerated in private industry as Majority Leader Mansfield has pointed out. It's hard to escape the feeling that the voters aren't getting what they're paying for.

Something is indeed wrong with the system.
