

FROM THE
Editor's Corner

If everyone who had an opinion about the proposed new $175,000 swimming pool in Cass City were to accept Jim Ware's invitation to write, the summer just might be over before the answers were digested.

They won't, of course. Most will look it over, make a decision and express it at the polls.

Straw votes never do much to determine public opinion unless they are conducted by a research team that knows what it is doing.

The letter, signed by the Cass City Parks and Recreation Committee, which is Dr. D. E. Rawson and Mrs. Gladys Albee from the village council, in addition to Ware, should start the town thinking about it.

To illustrate, M. B. Auten was talking about it last week. He feels that the best way to build the pool is by donations from interested residents, not from a 1 1/2-mill tax levy for 10 years.

Jim MacTavish believes that Cass City should forget about an outdoor pool and build an indoor pool.

So it goes.

The Ware letter outlined most of the proposals. I'd guess that most taxpayers would like to know how large an "Olympic-size" pool really is, but that's a minor point.

The thought here is that a new pool, outdoors, would be great. . . . An indoor pool attached to the school. . . . even greater.

I'd vote for either but, realistically, I can see little hope of an indoor pool, certainly not one paid for by village taxpayers alone.

Of more immediate concern and the question I immediately asked when Jim presented the new pool proposal was, "What about the pool this year?"

Has every effort been made to get a temporary permit to get us through this year?

Jim didn't know but has promised to check it.

There's no reason for saying it's impossible until we know that it is.

Last summer when they shut the pool for "the season" it reopened a couple of weeks later when basic repairs were made.

Would it be possible to get a temporary okay for this summer?

Perhaps if we can show good faith by pointing to voter okay of a new facility the State will allow us to operate for another summer with our old one with the understanding that next year we'd have a spanking new one that would meet the most exacting of State regulations.

It's rough to think of a summer going by without any swimming at all in the village.

It would be unthinkable if the Jads were denied the opportunity just because every avenue to keep it opened wasn't tried.

I can think of no surer way to kill any chances for a new pool than to keep it closed if the voters felt there was a chance to keep it open.

Chamber speaker
a real "pro"

For 44 years Earl J. Hill of Jackson filled many roles at Consumers Power Co.

A graduate electrical engineer, he joined the electrical company as an electric distribution engineer and filled many posts in the company before joining the public relations staff in 1961.

During the years with Consumers he was the Master of Ceremonies or principal speaker at 190 different events.

He retired June 30, 1971, and now does for groups such as the Cass City Chamber of Commerce what he did professionally for Consumers.

He will deliver the principal address at the annual Chamber banquet Tuesday, April 4, at the Cass City High School Auditorium.

His subject will be "The Pursuit of Happiness".

In addition to the talk, the meeting will be highlighted by the announcement of the Junior Citizen of the Year and the Citizen of the Year.

President Mike Weaver will

Third house completed, ups
Teen Ranch capacity to 30

On April 4 the third home unit of the Teen Ranch will be occupied, marking the end of the housing project and bringing the capacity of the ranch to 30 boys.

The outside of the building is not quite complete and landscaping must be done, but the inside is painted and the furniture and other equipment are in place, said Ray Clendenan,

Seek Evergreen
tax increase

The Evergreen township annual meeting will be of more than usual interest to township taxpayers Saturday.

The meeting will be highlighted by a request for funds for township expenses and for an increase in salaries of township officials, according to Otis Dorland, clerk.

The township board proposed to seek voter approval of a two-mill levy for up to 3 years. Dorland said that the Hay Creek Drain was sinking the township into debt and that current revenues are just not large enough to meet the various expenses. Townships pay 25 per cent of drain costs.

The amount of salary increase the board members would seek was not revealed. Dorland said that the last boost in township clerk wages was in 1964.

No formal dedication ceremony will recognize the end of the dream begun in 1966, but an open house will be held in the fall for the public. The house is being opened just four days after the scheduled April 1 date.

The home was built strictly from contributions," said Clendenan. The value of the building is estimated to be $80,000. Of the $50,000 construction cost, $13,000 is still needed.

The Teen Ranch, located four miles south of Kingston, is a child care facility licensed with the State Department of Social Services. It serves boys 12-16 years, almost all of whom are wards of the court.

The new building, like the other two homes, is 28x86 feet with five bedrooms for 10 boys and a bath at one end, a dining room and kitchen area in the center and 36 feet of apartment living space for the house parents.

The four couples who take care of the boys live in the home with them and are responsible for their discipline, care, meals and clothing. The only requirement for the house parents, said Clendenan, is "a great big heart." No formal education is necessary, but each couple attends a 26-week, one morning per week, inservice training session. Upon completion, the couples become Certified Child Care workers.

Clendenan related that the couples together have seven children, three pre-schoolers. This helps provide the family atmosphere which is one of the grounding philosophies of the ranch.

As closely as possible, the ranch tries to reconstruct a normal home situation for the boys. Most of them come from broken families. Each unit of the ranch acts together as a family.

The balanced life philosophy includes attendance at the Kingston High School, a simple schedule of disciplined living including clean clothes, and three balanced meals a day, and social and spiritual activities.

Most of the boys were school dropouts when they came to the ranch, but now all of them are in school, Clendenan said. Along with the high school attendance, a program has been set up in conjunction with student teachers from Central Michigan University. One day a week, a student teacher meets with a boy and then returns to the ranch after school with him, sort of like a big brother, said Clendenan.

"The student finds out teachers aren't so bad. And the student teachers learn to live with difficult classroom problems," explained the director.

The ranch also provides vocational training in seven areas. Presently, this work must be done outside of school, but hopefully in the future, they will be able to expand the program to include MEA instructors, said Clendenan, and give school credit for work done at the ranch.

The seven fields for vocational instruction are: building maintenance and custodial care, food preparation, bookkeeping, metals and woodworking, motor mechanics, welding and agriculture.

The boys have as their own projects, 22 horses and 15 cattle on the 100-acre farm.

A federal grant of $22,850 is being used to conduct the vocational programs. Clendenan explained that a portion of the operational costs are obtained from the court, also, but this provides only $15.50

Threaten bomb at high school

A threat of a bomb in the building forced Cass City High School students to stand outside in the cold for about one-half hour Tuesday while police authorities searched the building.

Police Chief Gene Wilson stated that one of the girls in the office answered the phone call at about 12:15 p. m. when a voice that sounded like a young male said, "There's a bomb in the school," and hung up.

The students were sent to their lockers to get their coats and then filed out of the building in an orderly fashion, said Principal Russell Richards.

Following the search, Richards said he informed the students of the law in connection with threatening phone calls. Michigan State Law (Public Act No. 328 of 1969) provides for not more than six months' imprisonment or not more than $500 fine or both for using the phone to make threatening calls.

This is the first bomb threat the school has received in about 15 years.

Council okays bonding for proposed new park pool

The village council inched forward towards a new swimming pool Tuesday night when it unanimously approved of a motion calling for a bonding proposition to be put before the people as soon as it can be properly prepared.

The decision of the council was made following a presentation of results of a survey headed by James Ware, at the regular meeting at the Municipal Building.

Last week a four page questionnaire was sent to 639 households, Ware told the council. Of that number, 9 were returned unanswered. Of the remaining number, 22 per cent had been returned by the time of the meeting.

"Eighty-one per cent of those voted in favor of a bond issue to build a new pool," said Ware. The questionnaires, which contained pictures and explained the pool plans were sent to those residences listed on the water meter roll.

Ware and the park committee agreed that of the 140 returned, about 115 to 120 were in favor.

Ware urged the council to move ahead because there is still considerable work to be done, including the approval of the plans by the Public Health Department, and the funding agency, the need to take bids to build the pool, the construction of water and sewer connections, and the bonding procedure.

No date for the election or exactly what the rate for the general obligation bonds would be is yet decided. The pool, which is designed to be 75 feet wide and 25 meters long, with a diving L half again as big, is expected to cost $175,000. This includes the pool house and deck area. Of that amount, one-half is to be funded by state and federal monies, and the other half by the cityzens.

President Lambert Althaver said, "I think we should forge ahead as quickly as possible."

In other business, the council agreed to renew the liquor licenses of both the Cass Tavern and Jack's Bar. The licenses to sell liquor by the glass were awarded a year ago.

Both businesses were awarded the licenses with the provision that the owners repair and remodel certain portions of their buildings.

Blades told the council he and Police Chief Wilson reviewed the two bars last week and found Jack's Bar had complied with the stipulations.

Walter Zawilinski of the Cass Tavern appeared before the council to explain why he hadn't completed all of the work and what he was doing.

He told the council he was in the process of putting siding on the side and rear portion of the building and replacing the eaves, which he thought he would have completed in about two weeks. "I can assure the council right now I'm going to do all that stuff," he said. He explained that it would be impossible for him to remove the storage area at the rear of the building because it was the only place for him to store his goods and it provided an entrance to the upstairs apartment.

The liquor licenses are automatically renewed by the Department of Commerce unless the council revokes them. Blades noted that the council has the authority to give four-day notice to revoke the license if the work is not carried out.

Village to get new sweeper, police car

The village council authorized a fourth police officer, a new police car and a used street sweeper Tuesday at the regular meeting of the village council.

The Council accepted the recommendation of the police committee to hire a fourth patrolman pending the man's acceptance of the position. Trustee Gary Jones told the council six men were interviewed over the past two weeks. All were certifiable but inexperienced. With the addition of the fourth man, the village will have 23 hour a day protection, Chief Gene Wilson said. Starting salary for the position is $7200 a year.

The council also authorized the purchase of a new police car at approximately $3300. The new car will be either a Dodge or Plymouth police special from Rabideau Motor Sales. The village rotates the purchase of police cars among community dealers.

The council also approved the purchase of a used street sweeper from the city of Ann Arbor at a cost of $3300, subject to the advisory approval of Lester Ross and E. B. Schwaderer, heavy equipment users.

Blades told the council he had examined the machine and found it satisfactory. In other business the council was notified that the township approved the recommended fees for use of the Cultural Center and they agreed to put the policy into effect immediately.

The fees are: $25 per year for youth groups meeting regularly through the school year; $75 per year for non-profit organizations; $15 per meeting for non-profit organization meetings on an intermittent basis, and $25 per meeting for private groups or individuals.

There will be no charge to governmental units or agencies. The old fee was a flat $10 for each time the building was used.

The fee schedule was set up by the village and township to help finance the joint operation of the building in an effort to have it used more often.

In another action, the council accepted a motion to name Ed Anthes, the senior member of the Department of Public Works, foreman of the four-man crew. Village president Lambert Althaver pointed out this would not involve anymore manpower or expense, but would give the crew the guidance it needed.

The council also agreed to take bids to be opened at the April meeting for the demolition and removal of the wooden portion of the old barn that rests on what will be the Artrain site, a travelling art museum sponsored by the Michigan Council for the Arts.

The old storage building must be removed, Althaver noted, adding that several persons had shown an interest in the lumber. The building is located on the land bounded by Nestle and Main Streets and the railroad at the west end of town. The village, as the sponsoring non-profit organization of the Artrain, has leased that property for the length of time needed to prepare and clean up the project.

The funds received from the bids will be utilized to have the village crew remove the cement foundation.

Koepfgen Road

residents eye

drain petitions

It is almost certain that residents of South Koepfgen Road, a mile west of Cass City, will petition for a drain to solve a water problem on the road.

Just what type of drain has yet to be decided, following a meeting held last Wednesday at the Cultural Center.

Supervisor Maynard McConkey said that the residents are expected to petition for a separate county drain after problems have been worked out by authorities.

Still to be decided is the direction the drain should go and how to handle Detroit Edison utility poles in the area.

When these questions are answered petitions are expected to be circulated.

McConkey said that if all goes smoothly there is a good chance that the new drain will be installed this summer.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Linda Gunther, a South Koepfgen Road resident, said that water doesn't seep into the homes in the area although it does stand on the road.

She added that the motel office which was flooded is not a part of the motel proper. She feared that residents would feel that the motel or the homes were damaged by water when the report on the proposed meeting was printed last week.

son is a hard-headed realist in his business.

When I first entered the business, he recalled, I felt that there might be enough work for about a year. . . . and I'm still going. Eventually, I guess, it will end and then we'll have to do something else.

The glory years in this business are over right now, that's for sure, he added. Three or four years ago when the wig craze was at its height business really boomed. The guys in it at the right time and place made a lot of money.

That's gone now, but surprisingly there is a good deal of business around. The reason is that the number of suppliers has markedly decreased.

Our big competition came from Japan and the Orient in the glory years, Anson said. But these manufacturers must have volume and when it declined they left the field. The Ansons are typical of the many families moving in from the metropolitan area.

We wanted to get out of the city, Anson said frankly, and we looked all over the Thumb. We felt Cass City was the prettiest place close enough to Detroit for our business, his wife added.

So the family purchased property west of Cass City. It's home for Elizabeth, 8, and Debbie, 6.

Regardless of what product Phoenix Manufacturing produces in the future it is extremely likely that it will be part of the local scene as long as it is operated by the Anson family.

"If It Fitz . . ."

No one said 'Wow!'

BY JIM FITZGERALD

I had my first ride on a 747 but it really didn't take me anywhere.

The pilot interrupted Frank Sinatra to say we were cruising over 600 mph, 35,000 feet up. Fly me to the moon, baby.

There were 150 passengers and the plane wasn't half full. If business continues bad, they can always take out the empty seats and install a bowling alley.

The stewardess gave me a tch-tch eye when I took an old peanut butter jar from a brown paper bag. She asked if there were liquor in the jar.

"Just orange juice," I giggled. It was easier than explaining I'd never been on a jet before and my doctor prescribed a little carpenter work on my nerves with a screwdriver.

Later the stewardess proved she wasn't dry. She had simply been protecting her booze franchise. She hustled me for a dinky bottle of whiskey followed by steak and eggs. Then came coffee and severe air bumps. The coffee sloshed into my fruit cocktail and floated a cherry into my pant cuffs.

"Excuse me, Stewardess," I said, "but I would like to get off."

"Have some more orange juice," she said.

I turned up Sinatra on the stereo headset. The 747's greatest charm is its music system. You simply plug the stethoscope into your ears and dial rock or blues. No one else knows what you are hearing. You can even dial nothing and sit there and pretend you are a doctor speeding to Italy to check out Sophia Loren's chest cold.

It occurred to me that I was now in the incredible position of being able to look down at clouds I never bother to look up at. I was approaching the speed of sound as, in only 2 1/2 hours, I traded winter for summer, Michigan for Florida. And I was being transported in a mammoth vehicle that couldn't possibly get off the ground.

I had no idea how all this was being done to me. But the sheer wonderment of it wasn't enough diversion. I had to have steak and booze and Sinatra. I even asked the stewardess for a magazine. God forgive me. And as I watched her ankle away, I had the gall to remark to a companion that stewardesses were not as beautiful as I had expected.

Egad. Here I am on the stairway to the stars and what do I do? Ogle girls and read a football story, just like back home in the barbershop.

Across the aisle, 21 little girls were hunched over coloring books. I heard a man complain because there was no movie on that flight. Most of the passengers were snoozing as they participated in just another, no hum, miracle of science and technology.

Not once did I hear anyone say "Wow!"

Finally, on the ground, the Miami newspapers told me Floridians were terribly concerned about school busing. George Wallace, the world's champion demagog, was back in the school-house door, playing the people's prejudices like a well-tuned harp. He won the Democratic primary there with ease.

There is nothing to be said for a civilization that is so busy giving places it never gets anywhere. And I just said it.

CAROLYN SMITH and Linda Battel won a first rating in the State Division of the Michigan High School Orchestra Band Solo and Ensemble contest Saturday.

Clarinet duet receives top rating in state

The clarinet duet of Carolyn Smith and Linda Battel received a top rating of one Saturday when the two high school band members competed in state level competition in the Michigan School Band Orchestra solo and ensemble contest at Bridgeport.

The reed woodwind trio of Randy Wright, Katherine Kloc and Laurie Reed was given a rating of two.

The five students under the direction of band director George Bushong took blue medals at the district solo and ensemble competition Feb. 12 at Flint, which allowed them to continue in the competition.

Credit Union in annual meeting

The Tuscola Credit Union held its fifth annual meeting at the Caro Community High School March 22. Joe Klobucher, retiring board chairman, announced that Directors had delegated a 5.5 per cent dividend on shares and a 10 per cent interest rebate on all loans during 1971. This was the first year that the Credit Union was able to give its members an interest rebate. Bob Stickle of Caro and Barb Norris of Vassar were elected to a 3-year term on the Board of Directors. Burton Castle of Caro was appointed to fill a position on the Supervisory Committee.

After the annual meeting the Board of Directors elected Wayne Dillon chairman; Bernard Nelson, vice-chairman; Bob Weaver, secretary; Gayle Laeder, treasurer; Alice Rock, director; Stickle, director, and Barb Norris, director. The Credit Committee consisting of Ron Laeder, Margaret Gee and Earl Dean were appointed for another year. This year's supervisory committee is Irene Westerby, Ruth Moore and Burton Castle.

The Tuscola Credit Union was formed in November 1968, and serves all school employees and families of the Tuscola Intermediate School District. Presently there are 250 members in the credit union.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Bill Benkelman, a native of Cass City, has gone on to bigger and better things since leaving the friendly confines of the village.

His progress in the big city is detailed in a story in this issue.

While Bill is gone he has not forgotten. Despite an absence of more than a score of years, he is still a dues-paying member of the White Creek Club even though he probably gets to visit only a couple of times a year.

You'd hardly believe he'd be interested in White Creek when you read of the many Detroit area clubs to which he belongs. One of them is the Bloomfield Open Hunt Club. Bloomfield Open Hunt and White Creek. That's like still eating at the neighborhood Coney Island beanery after sampling a steak at the London Chop House.

My nomination for the biggest snowmobile nut in town is Bill Wallace. One more week, Bill keeps saying around the coffee table. He's already had his snow suit cleaned and put away for the season but that doesn't stop him. He uses his wife's.

This year Wallace has logged over 1,300 miles on his bug and shows no signs of slowing down.

After a year's absence, the Lions Talent Show contest returns April 22. Ron Keegan is in charge. There are many cash prizes offered and any group with talent should have a good chance to bring home some of the loot.

That's because a limited number of acts were entered early this week. So if you've been hesitating because of the competition, don't. Call Keegan today and grab a share of the booty.

I don't know whether it's heartening or discouraging to read the news release from Huron Memorial Hospital in Bad Axe concerning Dr. Myong Sik Yi who started practice in the Hatchet City March 20.

It's heartening to know that doctors DO move into the rural areas and it's discouraging because he isn't coming to Cass City.

Otis Dorland was in the office this week clutching a flyer telling that National School Bus Safety Week is April 17-22. You take this, he said. I don't know why they passed them out to the drivers. We know all about school bus safety and the problems. Those not driving buses should have the information.

We've jumped the gun a little on bus safety week to tell you this. But then it seems silly enough anyway to denote one week for special emphasis on a program that should be continuous all year long.

Bell's monster?

By Dan Marlowe

Did Alexander Graham Bell create a monster?
Is the telephone more of an annoyance these days than a convenience?
Are most of the calls you receive these days from people you'd rather not hear from? Like a salesman trying to peddle you a cemetery lot? Or a vacation retreat in Alligator Alley in the Okefenokee Swamp? Or burglars checking to find out if anyone's in before they rip off your home?
More than ten million phone users have had their numbers changed and removed from the telephone directory for reasons like the above. The trend toward "private" listings is accelerating. Nationally, 12.7 per cent of phone users are unlisted in directories.
Most people go to nonpublished or nonlisted numbers. Nonpublished means that your number is not in the directory and cannot be obtained from an operator.
Nonlisted means the number is not in the book but an operator will give the information to anyone who asks. Nonpublished numbers can be obtained almost anywhere; nonlisted in 18 states.
Phone company officials are unenthusiastic about the nonpublished trend. It means arguments for operators trying to convince indignant callers that certain numbers aren't available. Most phone companies now make extra charges for either of these services.
Sometimes rebuttal methods get a little out of hand. The phone-ahead techniques of burglars worried thousands of listed phone subscribers in Milwaukee's highest crime district. They reacted by taking their phones off the hook before they went to work mornings. That thwarted the burglars, but it disrupted phone service throughout the whole exchange. The phone company had to appeal to the people to hang up their phones.
Even a nonpublished number isn't proof against unwanted calls unless a subscriber is wary. List your phone number just once on a job or credit application, etc., and your number is soon making the rounds of companies who trade this form of information.
Even the law of averages can foil the seeker after telephone privacy. Some telephone solicitors now employ the shotgun technique of dialing the first three numbers of an exchange, and then any combination of four other numbers. Sell-by-phone companies luck into many nonpublished phone numbers in this manner.
Should you have your name removed from the phone book? It depends upon your situation.
If your ex-wife is hot on your trail for unpaid alimony, go to nonpublished.
If you're exasperated by magazine salesmen, go to nonlisted. That way your friends can get your number from the operator. But keep in mind so can your enemies.
If you love the whole world, leave your number in the book. Because sooner or later you'll hear from its inhabitants.

FROM THE LITTER BOX

I hate shopping

By Kit McMillion

There is absolutely nothing I hate more about housekeeping chores than going grocery shopping. I don't like to do laundry and I dislike cleaning, but I really can't stand fighting my way through aisles and stacks of foods.

Many are the reasons I hate this duty, but my love for food spurs me to continue. I don't think there is a product on the market that comes in a size for one. Some things are made in quantities for pairs, but most come in "Serves 4" for the Zero Population Growth fans, or "Family or Economy Size" for numbers greater.

I have a big appetite but... And then there is the obstacle course routine. It begins with the electric eye doors that stick. And there are the pokies, the shoppers that scrutinize each and every item in the store. I think a person should exercise caution and prudence in their shopping, but it gets a little ridiculous, especially when the lettuce heads or grapefruit I end up with look like a thousand hands have tested their plumpness.

But the decision-making shoppers are not the worst hazard to my super-fast shopping cart. It's those crowded aisles that send panic into my heart as I try to thread my way through the clutter.

I've always been sort of clumsy, but turning me loose in a crowded store aisle is simply inviting disaster. And it usually arrives fast upon my coattails.

No matter how careful I try to be, it is inevitable that I will somehow dump something over or run into a stack of cans and send them flying all over the aisle for some poor stockboy to run after.

Actually this usually happens because my shopping is done in haste.

Reason being I want to get out of there, but I also don't think it does much good to read the labels. There is little on them that explains what is in the product anyway, so I figure one can be as good as another.

Some home economist is probably shocked, but since it is next to impossible to know under what conditions a product was packaged, it doesn't make a whole lot of difference to me. The vegetables are probably riddled with pesticides and the meat with hormones; the fish is more than likely tainted with DDT and mercury, so why worry about nutritional value?

I also have never been very good at arithmetic and I don't carry a desk calculator about with me to determine the per unit price. Converting between metric and English systems, especially when the weights are recorded in ounces or tenths of pounds, becomes too difficult for my unathletic brain cells.

So I pick out the prettiest boxes and call it quits.

The real blow comes, however, when I have to check out. Five or six meager items floating in the vast wire mesh basket, and invariably I end up behind someone who has a heaping and overflowing cart.

So I wait and contemplate starting a garden and becoming a vegetarian.

Meow.

WAYNE CUMMINGS and Dale Laming of the Cass City FFA Chapter were the 1972 delegates to the FFA State Convention. They visited with Miss Michigan 1971, Linda Kish, about the career opportunities in agriculture and natural resources. The FFA State Convention was held as a part of Farmers' Week on the Michigan State University Campus.

Gas thieves strike 3 area cars this week

Police investigated three separate instances of larceny from an auto this week, all involving the siphoning of gasoline.

Sunday evening five gallons of gasoline were siphoned from a truck belonging to William Bliss. The truck was parked at the garage at Church and Maple Streets when residents near the garage noticed someone jump out of a slowly moving vehicle carrying a hose and can, Cass City police reports state. The police were notified at 8:28 p. m., but before they arrived a driver for Bliss Milk hauling noticed someone near the truck and tried to catch him, but the thief escaped.

This is the second time this month gas has been stolen from Bliss's trucks. Thirty-four gallons were reported taken March 5.

Friday evening gasoline was siphoned and the battery stolen from a vehicle belonging to Mrs. Joann Vurda of Rossman Road, Caro. Mrs. Vurda told police that she parked her car at about 3:30 p. m. in the parking lot of General Cable, but when she tried to start it at midnight, she discovered the theft. There are no suspects.

Another instance of gasoline siphoning occurred Thursday, March 23. Police were called to the alley behind the Eat Shop when Nancy Dora saw two men in the process of stealing the gasoline from her car. Police arrived about 15 minutes later to find impressions of a five gallon can and foot prints of two men in the snow. The subjects were not found.

Auxiliary tours hospital addition

Most of today's troubles are the unpleasant, unperformed tasks we pushed aside yesterday.

Fourteen members attended the regular meeting of Hills and Dales Hospital Auxiliary Monday, March 27, when Byron Landholt, hospital administrator, conducted a tour of the new addition to the hospital.

The Auxiliary has set Monday, April 24, as the date for the annual membership tea. Mrs. Roger Little is chairman and Mrs. Richard Erla, co-chairman for the event, which will be held in the hospital meeting room. Mrs. Fred Auten will head the membership drive during April.

Announcement was made of various upcoming events. The East Central meeting will be held May 17 at St. Luke's Hospital, Saginaw. The Michigan Association of Hospital Auxiliaries will meet June 22-23 at Mackinac Island, and the annual fall conference is scheduled Oct. 1-4 in Ann Arbor.

AROUND THE FARM Farmers focus on

'80 and '5'

by William Bortel

Farmer's Week came to a close last week with several thousand farmers taking part in the many programs and activities. The highlight of the week was focusing on the new project '80 and '5'. The completion of phase two of Michigan State University's Project '80 and '5' has added a number of predictions for rural Michigan in 1985. Among them: The number of people over 65 years of age will increase by more than 25 per cent; horsemen estimate the number of pleasure horses in Michigan will more than double and children will start public school at age three or four.

The one-year study of rural Michigan 13 years hence now enters its third and final stage. In the months ahead, Michigan State University agriculture and resource specialists will work with rural people and their organizations to develop long-range programs and plans.

The preliminary forecasts were prepared by more than 100 persons in MSU College of Agriculture and Natural Resources and other colleges of MSU, in cooperation with Michigan rural leaders.

Dairying will remain the number one agriculture enterprise in the state, beef production will double and the cash crop operations will be much larger and more intensified.

The predictions are guidelines for rural Michigan to prepare for long range planning. The projections will inform the general public of what to expect in the next 15 to 20 years and help them prepare for changes. We plan to use these guide lines with rural leaders in Tuscola county and look at "Tuscola and 1985".

AGENT'S CORNER Hot cross buns an Easter tradition

Sherry Lowell, Area Extension Home Economist

Import a food idea from England. Take a sweet yeast dough, add California raisins and Ceylon cinnamon, and you'll have Hot Cross buns. "In season" from Ash Wednesday to Easter.

Fruit studded hot cross buns are a thoroughly Christian symbol. Although this has not always been so. Like many traditions, for example, ham at Easter, they originated with the early pagan tribes of Europe.

Small cakes marked with the sign of horns were the forerunners of hot cross buns and were used by early Egyptians as an offering to their moon goddess. Similar cakes were also popular with the Greeks who presented them to Astarte, goddess of fertility, and to other deities as well.

The story goes that when the horn marking was changed to a cross it was, at first to symbolize the four quarters of the moon. Romans used cross-marked bread or rolls at sacrificial feasts and the Saxons used them to honor Easter, goddess of light.

Authentic hot cross buns, as we know them today, were first created in eighteenth century England. They were hung from cottage beams as protection against fire, mice, moths and other catastrophic occurrences. The most famous bakery for hot cross buns was the Old Original Royal Bun
House of Chelsea. Crowds rushed to this bakery and stood in line for the buns from six in the morning 'till six at night.

No need today for you to stand in line to get your share of the season's hot cross buns.
Try the bakers in your area to see who makes the best tasting ones. For several weeks, you'll have the fun of judging. If none of the products suits your fancy, you can always make your own. They are, remember, basically a sweet roll dough with a generous lacing of candied fruit, some raisins and a dash of cinnamon.

Mildred McConkey was nominated for the board of directors for the coming year for a two year term. Election of officers will be in April.

A very interesting program was presented on the status of women by Helen Agar and Agnes Milligan.

The speakers reported that 1971 was the year that women ceased being a "movement" and became a valid political force. The Supreme court determined that women qualify as "persons" under the 14th Amendment to the U. S. Constitution and are therefore entitled to equal protection under the law. Detroit Representative Josephine Hunsinger became a majority whip in the Michigan legislature.

The women's charter written into China's 1950 constitution guarantees women equal rights with men in political, economic, cultural, educational and social life. Before 1950 women were not allowed to own land or hold public office.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Lucile Bauer April 18.

House ransacked

Sheriff probes break-in

7 volumes of death records
to be rebound

MICHIGAN'S FIRST LADY, Mrs. William G. Milliken, makes this appeal as the arrival of spring signals the start of the warm-weather driving, picnicking and vacation season. Carelessly discarded litter, she notes, mars the state's natural beauty and contributes to the problems of pollution. Both Mrs. Milliken and her husband, the Governor, are strong advocates of "Keep Michigan Beautiful" efforts (Department of State Highways photo)

Tuscola county sheriff's deputies are still investigating the breaking and entering of the Dale Hubert home on Phillips Road, Kingston, which was discovered late Tuesday afternoon, March 21.

Hubert told deputies he and his wife arrived home at 5:50 p. m. to find the house had been completely ransacked, including all the dresser drawers and cupboards. Dishes were thrown on the floor and food had been taken from the refrigerator and eaten, and the remains were also thrown on the floor.

According to sheriff's reports, only $10 was found missing along with about $10 worth of meat.

Entry to the home was gained through an unlocked basement window. There are several suspects in the case.

Mrs. Margaret Generous of 2715 Hoppe Road, Gagetown, reported to the sheriff's office Sunday the theft of her purse while she was in church. She told deputies she had gone about a mile after the service when she realized she didn't have her handbag. A search of the church revealed nothing. The purse contained $200 cash plus a savings book and travelers checks, in addition to numerous personal items. There are no clues.

Experience is a rough teacher, but it is by far the best.

Few actions were taken Tuesday when the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners met for their regular meeting.

Absent were Chairman Shuford Kirk and Floyd Ducker. Commissioner Ed Goding said the board authorized the county clerk to have the seven volumes of death records from 1915 to 1932 rebound and laminated at a cost of $840. The records are in very poor condition and without rebinding may become unusable.

Sheriff Hugh Marr and Robert Hamilton, a representative of Motorola Communications, appeared before the board to explain the new radio equipment the sheriff wants to purchase. He made a request for a federal grant to pay part of the cost of the new equipment.

The village of Cass City and other townships and villages have agreed to go through the county for their new equipment, paying 25 per cent of the cost. For Cass City this amounts to about $1900 for equipment costing $6863.

The total grant requested by the sheriff was $72,154. The request was referred to the sheriff committee for further study.

In other business the board set equalization as the special order of the day for the April 11 meeting.

PLACING THE FINISHING touches on the annual Junior Class play at Owen-Gage are the members of the cast. "Boys and Ghouls Together" will be presented Friday and Saturday, April 7-8, at 8 p. m. at the Gagetown gym.

One sentenced

2 stand mute in circuit court

Two men stood mute to charges of malicious destruction over $100 Monday when they were arraigned before Circuit Court Judge Norman Baguley. Pleas of innocent were entered for them.

Gregory Drews of Caro is charged with malicious destruction of property in connection with damage done to the building of Jim's Good Gulf at the corner of M-24 and M-46 that was reported Jan. 1. Bond was continued in the amount of $200 and a pre-trial set for April 10.

Charged in another instance of malicious destruction is Andrew Martinez of Fairgrove. He was arraigned in connection with the damage done Feb. 29 to the Hotel Montague, Caro, when the front glass door was broken. Bond of $500 was continued and a pre-trial scheduled for April 10.

In other business, Robert L. Kibbe of Tuscola was sentenced to 24 months' probation and 17 days in jail, with credit for 17 days, for gross indecency. He was also ordered to pay $350 costs at the rate of $15 per month. Kibbe pleaded guilty to the charge at a Dec. 20, 1971, pre-trial after pleading innocent earlier at an Aug. 20 arraignment.

New drunk
law in effect
Thursday

"It's the new 'Point Ten' law; and things will be tougher on drinking drivers."

This was the warning issued today by Hugh Marr, to all Tuscola county drivers, and it had to do with changes in Michigan's Implied Consent law.

According to Sheriff Marr, "After 12:01 a. m. March 3 the presumptive blood alcohol level for driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor will be reduced from 0.15% to 0.10% -- one-third less than at present. That's why it's called the 'Point Ten' law; and why it will be easier to be considered a drunk driver!"

Traffic safety authorities point out that the drinking driver is acknowledged to be the greatest hazard on our highways today. Alcohol is believed to be involved in at least half of our fatal traffic crashes. To combat the alcohol-driving problem, Michigan passed an Implied Consent law in 1967. Under the law, drivers using Michigan highways are presumed to have given their consent to a chemical test if arrested for driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor (DUIL). Refusal to take a test can result in loss of the driver's license.

The sheriff went on to explain what this means to the average driver. A 150 pound individual who previously could drink 8 highballs, or 8 glasses of beer, before reaching the 0.15% level, can now take on only 5 highballs within one hour before reaching the new legal level of 0.10%. Under the new blood alcohol limits, the 0.10% driver will now be a "drunk driver".

Day-long work sessions help Baptist ladies sponsor missionaries

An active program of service is the goal of the Baptist Women's Missionary Society, which has been contributing support to its missionaries throughout the world for longer than any of the members can recall.

The latest project completed was the sewing of about two dozen aprons to be given to the Sheldon Pecks when they return to Japan next summer.

"It's the custom in Japan when you go visiting to take a gift," explained Mrs. Vera Bearss, who is in charge of the work day sessions.

The colorful aprons are only one of their many projects.

The half-dozen or so women meet the fourth Thursday every month from 10 to 2 at the church basement. At these work sessions, the women sew on a quilt. The aprons were made at home in their spare time.

Taking left-over or inexpensive items and converting them into useful things is what happens at the work meetings.

The quilt the women were working on at the last meeting consisted of scraps of material sewn together for the cover and backed with what used to be draperies. The inner material is an old blanket.

The thread the women were using to quilt the blanket was crocheted cotton one of the members had left over and that was given to her by a daughter in Denver, Colo.

The women have also made bandages from worn sheets and knitted scarves, which were sent to a leper colony in India, crocheted pot holders, sewn clothes and clipped and collected used Sunday school materials. Pictures are being collected now for a missionary in Bangladesh.

Mrs. Bearss said the society usually has 3 or 4 projects going on at once. They provide help for missions in Brazil, Peru, Colombia, Africa, Bangladesh and Japan, as well as home missions in California, Alaska, Minnesota, Pennsylvania and Michigan.

The group also provides monetary support for two missionaries each month. One of these is the Jim Switzer family, whom they've been helping for over 20 years.

"Ever since I've been coming, and that's more than 20 years," said Mrs. Myrtle McColl. This missionary family is currently in Gettysburg, Pa., where they are working to establish a church and help out until the church gets on its own feet.

Besides monetary support and the special projects to help in the mission work, the women sew clothes and donate household goods and other articles that are difficult to obtain in foreign countries or that are very expensive to buy on the foreign market.

"Like in Peru, you just can't get anything," stated Mrs. Bearss. "And if you do send it, like as not, the postal authorities will steal it."

The solution to that problem is to give the missionaries the things they need when they are home on furlough. In the fall when the Missionary Conference is held, they are presented with toilet items, clothing and other goods. Some of the quilts that are made during the year are given to them, too.

As the women rapidly quilted and rolled the blanket, they explained that another of their projects is the dime bank.

"The women save their dimes for a year, and it's given to the Eastern Michigan GARB Mission Union. This year it's to help build a high school dormitory in Bangui, Central Africa," explained Mrs. Bearss.

"Last year we tried to get Bibles behind the Iron Curtain," commented Mrs. Jim Perry, who was in charge of the apron project.

Intent upon their work, the women said they didn't know if their church was more active in the mission field than others. They said they worked on the projects simply because they like to help other people.

"I just like to do it," said Hetty Livingston briskly, probably the oldest member of the society.

At 85 she is still active in the work sessions and attends regularly.

"I've been a member ever since I belonged to the church," she said. "I used to have the mission meeting in our home."

In conjunction with the home meetings, the group had a potluck dinner. They didn't start the workdays until sometime later.

"We'd eat so much, we couldn't work afterwards," Mrs. Livingston said wryly. "Now we just bring a sack lunch. It doesn't take as long to eat."

Area firemen at training session

Firemen from throughout Sanilac county as well as Cass City and Gagetown participated in a two-evening training session at Port Sanilac last week. Conducted Thursday and Friday, the three-hour course dwelt upon high pressure and volume pumping operations along with maintenance. Approximately 150 men participated in the classes which were headed by former John Bean Fire School Instructor Vern Cole. President of the Sanilac County Firemen's Association, Chief Reid Abeel, of Carsonville, says that more schools may follow. "This pilot program tried by the Association has been so successful that we may expand the format to a similar session this summer," Abeel stated.

Democratic dissidence results in May 16 primary election

Michigan voters will vote May 16 in a presidential primary caused by a series of events beginning in 1968 with the disruptions by dissidents in the Democratic Party.

This "domino" effect was set in motion when a special commission, headed by South Dakota Sen. George McGovern, was appointed after the 1968 election to determine ways to assure the Democratic Party was made more open in its processes.

One of the recommendations made by the commission was adopted by the party; that the process through which a state delegation to the national convention is selected begin in the same year as the convention. This was to make sure such late blooming movements as the McCarthy drive in 1968 were fully reflected in the convention decision.

This new rule put Michigan's Democrats in a bind. This state's delegates were picked in a state convention in the same year as the national convention. But the process itself began in August, two years earlier when precinct delegates were elected.

The Democrats were forced to devise a plan to get the process started in the same year as the convention or face a challenge to the delegation when it arrived in Miami Beach.

Their first plan, and the one they started pushing in the legislature, was to hold special precinct delegate elections in April. The idea was put into bill form and passed by the Democratic controlled House in a remarkable display of party unity which even had such mavericks as Rep. E. D. O'Brien falling into line.

But when the issue got to the Republican controlled Senate, there was no hurry to do anything with it. Many of the Republican lawmakers, with no similar dictate from their own national headquarters, were quite willing to kill the bill and watch the Democrats suffer the embarrassment of a challenge at their convention.

Democrats launched a campaign to put pressure on the GOP, accusing them of trying to keep the political process closed to the public and making

What's the System?

What's an "individual water system"—and why should you care?

It's the modern version of a water well, and it's by no means an isolated novelty today. At least 500,000 water wells are drilled in the United States each year.

In all, there are about 10 million wells serving one-fourth of the population, according to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

There's every expectation that this "boom" in wells will continue, not only in areas beyond municipal water systems but also as a supplemental source of water where there are municipal systems—but not enough water to go around, due to drought or pollution of surface waters.

Already, about 50,000 supplemental wells are drilled each year, and this number is expected to double or triple in the next couple of years.

The hand pump well and the modern "individual water system" both get their water from the ground. That's about all they have in common, however. The well of Granddad's day was basically a hole wide enough for people or animals to fall into—and occasionally they did. Water was pulled to the surface with a hand pump and carried into the house in buckets.

The home well of today is really a mechanical system patterned after a municipal supply. It consists of an electrically driven pump, a tank to hold the water and controls to turn the pump on and off when water in the tank reaches a predetermined level.

The well may go as deep as several hundred feet, although the average is around 125, and it's only about four inches in diameter. The pump, called a submersible, is installed right in the well, after which the well is sanitized and sealed. More information is available by writing to the Ground Water Resources Institute, 205 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Illinois 60606. Send 25 cents in coin and ask for a copy of "How Water Wells Can Help You Solve Water Problems Easily and Economically."

some points in the publicity area.

Republican leaders, meeting with Gov. William G. Milliken, decided they had to do something. Instead of following the Democratic plan, they decided to do something else; select the precinct delegates through a primary election.

*****

Now the Democrats were on the defensive. Earlier, in a leadership session, they had turned down the idea of even having the precinct delegates commit themselves to a candidate before their election. A primary in which the delegates were elected directly would strip the leadership of much of its power.

Where they had planned to name the delegates and then take them to the convention uncommitted for bartering, a primary would remove all bartering advantage.

A series of negotiations followed in which the final details were worked out. The Republicans scored a coup with the primary proposal. They were glad to allow the Democrats to elect precinct delegates at the same time and to provide for proportional representation among the delegates in relation to the primary vote of each candidate.

So what began as a dump-Johnson movement in 1968 had resulted, in one of its side effects, in a presidential primary for Michigan.

ACCIDENTS TRIMMED

A change of only a couple of seconds in the time of traffic lights at some hazardous intersections around the state has actually made a sharp difference in the number of accidents occurring there.

The highway department says it turned the trick by providing for a brief interval with all red traffic lights before the green light goes on for which ever lane is next allowed to move. This change, it says, makes sure the intersection is cleared of drivers "cheating" on the yellow and provides a couple of extra seconds before drivers who drag race from a green light can start.

A two-year study at 17 intersections where the changes were made showed a reduction in total accidents from 428 to 385 and a reduction in injuries from 271 to 198.

All of that for just a couple of seconds' difference.

One Million Deer By 1980?

That's what the Department of Natural Resources' Wildlife Division is shooting for to reverse the downward trend in Michigan's deer herd. It means the herd, now estimated at 400,000, has got to be more than doubled in the next 10 years. And that, frankly, is a mighty big order to fill. However, the DNR now has the financial thrust to go with its know-how to mount an accelerated program of tree cuttings and other deer habitat improvements. As a starter, $616,000 has been funded for work on northern Michigan's deer range this year. Earmarkings from the state's recently raised deer license fees should enable the DNR to plow about $1 million into this program after July 1, 1972. That figure is nearly 10 times greater than the amount allotted for the program last year, and DNR wildlife officials want to continue at that level or even higher into the 1980's. Besides undertaking selective cuttings on a large scale to produce more deer food, the DNR's enormous new program of "deerland farming" will be geared to stepping up controlled burns, commercial timber harvests, and other efforts to provide whitetails with a "full cupboard." Much of this habitat work will be carried out on a year-round basis, instead of mainly during the winter as it was in the past. If the program brings the state's deer herd up to the million mark by 1980, hunter take should also jump dramatically to 150,000 to 200,000 animals annually as against the present five-year average of 97,000. --Michigan Dept. of Natural Resources.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

The time of decision is near for residents of the Cass City area as weeks of preparations are over and soliticians are poised for an all out effort to raise $32,000 for Cass City's Expansion Program.

With the deadline for rep-portioning themselves just a week away, supervisors in-tantly agreed on a plan calling for a seven-district board to represent the city. Finally the Harold Little family bowling team won the $1000 top prize, recently in Lee Mockett's 23rd annual mixed doubles tournament in Searfaw.

Mrs. Stanley Kim St. talked of China to the city's grade school children. Mrs. Hoot and Mr. Borden Thibault. Although the second time within a year, sport Asimoro, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ash-more, Gagetown, was one of 23 Michigan Future Farmers of America to be awarded the State Farmer Gold Award at the State FFA Convention.

The continuing pressure of representatives of sportsmen's groups and interested indi-viduals has resulted in a change of policy by the Tuscola County Gun Board regulating the licensing of concealed weapons. By a two-to-one margin, the board voted to rescind the rule limiting the area in which guns could be used.

A petition by residents on Garfield Street east of South Seeger to Ale Street for action on their rutted roads provided a baptism of fire for the 1962 village council in its first reg-ular session.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Like Turkey, who lives near Cass City in Tuscola county, is featured in an article in the April issue of Capers's Farmer, entitled "Power for His Mower."

Almost 48 years after his discharge from serving a three-year enlistment with the U. S. Army during which time oc-curred the Spanish-American War and Philippine Insurrec-tion, Herbert L. Hartwick, 72, of Cass City, has been given the Purple Heart award.

Perhaps it is in keeping with the winter which has stayed with us so long, that the Christ-mas catfish, owned by Mrs. Martin McKenzie, is in bloom again at the Easter season. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hinkley, formerly of Elkhorn, have bought the farm two miles south of town from Gaston Thon, who is known as the last in the line of Henry Paul, and have settled there.

Appearing in the Detroit News was a picture of Dale Council-man of Lansing, Councilman was the first Michigan veteran to receive his bonus check. The check for $100 was pre-sented by Governor Siefert. Councilman's wife is the form-er Miss Virginia Rawson.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Ruth Schenck, Cass City Junior at Cass State Teach-ers College. Mr. Pleasant was elected secretary of the Reelch Tote Library society. In addition to securing a fine position in the Lamb & Son Store at Ypsilanti following a course in a business college in that city, Miss Frieda Parker is fortunate in being the owner of a Jersey cow, four years old this spring, that is the mother of five calves.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Tyse and family have moved to Pontiac where their son, Ethon, has a position with the Yellow Cab Co.

Mrs. Mary Gekeler, who has been employed as a nurse in Royal Oak for some time, re-turned to her home in Cass City.

Miss Ella Cross of Birm-ingham came to spend her spring vacation at the home of her brother, Andrew Cross. Miss Cross has accepted a contract to return as an in-structor in a Birmingham school for the sixteenth year.

Clarkes living in a town like Cass City in Australia

March 21, 1972

We left Sydney at Christmas time, and as it was summer here and school holidays were on, we took a whirl-wind tour of Australia. The climate here is about like Mexico but the elevation is lower. It is quite dry and I've never been so tired of the same kind of trees in my life. The gum or eucalyptus is the tree in Australia, north, south, east or west, the gum tree will grow when nothing else seems able to survive. One thing we did enjoy was the beautiful sandy shores with shells of all kinds and no one about anywhere. We stayed on one for two or three days and 3 men came fishing for a few hours. We didn't see or hear anyone else. Just the surf coming in and the wind in the scrub trees. The sand dunes there would have rivaled our "Sleeping Bear Dunes" in size only there were more of them.

We went up north (greater the equator) for a few days and went sailing out in the Barrier Reef. We went snorkeling over the coral and it was just beauti-ful. I was scared a jelly-fish or shark or almost anything would come along and attack me, but nothing did. The jelly-fish were there though. I got caught in a little one swimming one day and didn't know what it was. It wasn't serious, but could have been.

We are now living in a small town about like Cass City. The actual population is about 3,500 but because there is no life in the city just about the same the school people are friendly and very interested in the USA. We have learned that the US

The Gagetown Church of The Nazarene will conduct a series of special services April 8-9, beginning at 7:30 p. m. Wayne Lewis, pastor of the Bad Ave Church, of The Nazarene Form-erly from Louisiana, The Bad Ave youth group will be doing impact work and present special singing. The Howard Quartet will also sing.

Everyone is welcome to at-tend the services.

It is considered the ideal of Aus-tralia and therefore some people adore our country and some seem inclined to try and point out all our faults, a com-mon problem of being in the center of attention. The Aus-tralians are extremely grate-ful to us because we saved them from invasion during the second world war, and they look to us for protection and for a market for their products, now that England has joined the rest of Europe for trade purposes.

Our daughters called us yesterday. They had been given a collection taken up at Christ-mas time from their college friends but couldn't reach us then. The call went by satellite and was very clear, although they did sound far away. We did enjoy hearing their voices, but it made us all a little homesick. Looks like I'm beyond the limit this letter was supposed to be, so as the Australian would say, Good on you.

Indoor pool is what we need

March 25, 1972

Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, Mi.

Dear Mr. Haire:

The following is a copy of a statement sent to the Parks and Recreation Committee of Cass City. I feel so strongly on this issue that I would like my sentiments public as well as private.

I will vote against and strong-ly oppose the proposed con-struction of a swimming pool in Cass City. This may appear quite selfish on my part be-cause as a youngster growing up in this town, my happiest days were spent in Cass City.

Many years ago, Cass City was the leader in recreational ideas. I come from all around the area came to Cass City to swim. Our first chance to think year around recreation came with the construction of the new high school—we failed to meet the challenge at that time. We are now being offered a second chance to re-consider our short-sighted-ness. I for one will not let it just pass by. THIRD CHANCES don't come.

I have discussed this with many local people and have little or no support. I still intend to continue fighting. I

Cass City needs a year around recreation program with a hired director, recreation is not a summer activity. An indoor pool would be one step towards a year around program.

I have no grand hopes of moving mountains nor curing the local epidemic of near-sightedness; all I ask is that you think a little before you cast your vote, you will not get a third chance!!!

Sincerely yours,
J. L. MacTavish

Erwin Wanners honored for golden anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin A. Wan-ner were honored with an open house reception Saturday for their golden wedding anniver-sary at the First Baptist Church, Bay City.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Maybe it was thoughts of spring that lightened their hearts, but the farmers at the country store Saturday night weren't viewing everything with alarm during the session. Even Ed Doolittle was heard to admit that life could be worse than out in the open space and clean air where a feller still has room enough to move about and keep the joints loose.

It were Clem Webster that reported where he had saw in one of his farm journals this piece that spoke up for the farmer and rancher. The writer said that taking care of the land was being looked on more and more as an important job, and farming was one of the ways a feller can combine this with making a living. Clem said he, for one, sees a lot of joy in living on the land, but making money fast was not one of the joys.

The spring is the best time for thinking on the bright side of farming and ranching, but Clem said he allus liked the idea of having room to cuss his cat and stir the land. He got to thinking about how important land is when he read this piece about a high-rise, low-rent housing project in St. Louis. They spent $36 million putting up 33 big apartment buildings to find out that nobody would live all that bunched up. They got three quarters of the 2,800 apartments standing empty, and now they're talking about tearing the hole deal down. One feller said cramming 12,000 people on 57 acres of land was a bad idea, and Clem said he shore would agree.

Bug Hookum said he loved the land as good as the next man, but he was of a mind that farming needs to get out from under the federal Government. This year, said Bug, $4 billion is being spent in farm subsidies for everything from paying folks not to grow anything to paying support prices on what they grow. We got a situation where a rancher can't sell stock for the cost of the feed, and the cost of everything else keeps the squeeze on him. Bug recalled the farmer that was asked what he would do if he inherited a million dollars. The feller said he would keep on farming as long as the money held out.

The feller talked pretty general about the problems ranchers and farmers has with financing. They was agreed credit is so easy the temptation to borrow to keep going is powerful. Bug said he had saw where 200,000 people went bankrupt last year, more than ever before, and he figured a good many of em was folks that was trying to keep a farming operation together.

Personal, Mister Editor, I am agreed with the farm journal feller that said the farmer has the kind of life a heap of folks wish they had. I saw this piece that allowed 57 per cent of Americans feel the "quality of life" has fell off in the past 10 years. I bet they ain't many farmers in that group.

Yours truly,

Uncle Tim

On March 7, Mrs. Walter Schrader, Reese; Mrs. Leonard Russell, Akron (State Health Chairman); Mrs. Joe Young, Reese; and Mrs. Sherry Lowell traveled to Reed City for Michigan Association of Extension Homemakers district meeting. Mrs. Leonard Russell attended several other district meetings in Gaylord, Marquette, and Lapeer.

On March 15, Mrs. Percy Rader, Bad Axe; Mrs. Kenneth Wadsworth, Deckerville; Mrs. Lynn Spencer, Uby, and Mrs. Ora Pritchett, Sandusky, traveled to Lapeer for Michigan Association of Extension Homemakers district meeting. The program included Dr. Manfred Thullen, project leader in Extension Rural Development, Michigan State University, who posed the question, "Should Extension Homemakers be involved in community issues?" Mrs. Spike, State MAEH president, reported on the national meeting in Dallas, Texas, while Mrs. Teeter, State International Chairman, reported on Associated Country Women of the World Conference which she and her husband attended in Oslo, Norway. Mrs. Lynn Spencer told the Lapeer group about Sanilac county's national award for roadside clean-up "Smile-A-Morning".

The group in Lapeer shared ideas in the four program of work areas as to what's been done, as well as projections for 1972-73 for promotion statewide.

"What is Easter, Mommy?"

"Is it the time when bunnies get born?" I looked at my little daughter, appalled.

Did she really think of Easter in terms of sugared eggs, fluffy bunnies and pretty candies? Had I given her the impression that for grownups Easter is a time for new clothes, flowered hats and fragrant corsages? Surely, at some time, I must have told her the real story of Easter. Or had I?

I was really flabbergasted at my negligence—it took my little daughter to make me realize it. I dismissed my house chores and sat down right then to tell her the glorious Easter story of the Resurrection. I told her what hope this event brought for all of mankind—with its promise of eternal life.

I might add that the next week I enrolled my daughter in church school. And my husband and I started attending church again. We haven't missed a Sunday since.

See favorable year in 1972 for farmers

What does the agriculture forecast of Tuscola county look like in 1972? There will be more acres of beans, slightly more barley will be planted, and less acres of corn, states Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension Director.

The weather was favorable last fall, and the farmers took advantage and plowed a large portion of the county. This puts the farmer in a favorable position in having a large portion of the plowing completed. When spring breaks, the farmers can quickly get started with their planting and plan for a good year.

Also, with a dry fall, over 10 per cent more wheat was planted than the year before. The wheat looked good last fall and has moved through the winter and appears to be in average condition. There will be wheat plowed up but in general it looks favorable for this time of the year.

Tuscola may have 10,000 or more acres of beans this year with less corn planted. There are two reasons for Tuscola farmers to be planting more beans. (1) $13,000 beans and only $1.00 corn; (2) The feed grain program encourages some growers to plant less corn and more beans.

There will be slightly more barley planted since there is a favorable pricing policy for malting barley. The farmers like to know there will be a market for their barley before it is planted and the Barley Growers Committee were instrumental in establishing a policy.

In general the farmers are looking for a good year, and they need one. The wet year of 1970 and the drought of 1971 certainly did not help the Tuscola farmer. Tuscola county and agriculture is due for a favorable year in 1972.

BETTER HEALTH

Just what is hypnotism?

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Of late, I have been enjoying SMITHSONIAN, the journal put out by the great Institution in Washington, D. C. In a recent issue there is an unusually good article on hypnosis, written by Madeleine Lundberg and Lawrence Massett. As they say, scientists are divided into opposing camps about the value of hypnosis in medicine and psychology. Hypnosis is approved by the American Medical Association and is used by some dentists to make people insensitive to pain. The American Psychological Association has created a division devoted to the study of the practice.

According to Dr. T. X. Barber, director of psychological research at Medfield State Hospital in Massachusetts, "Hypnosis has been used for 200 years. The more people think about it, the more confused they get. Eventually, in 10 years or so, they'll realize the best thing to do is to drop the concept altogether."

Dr. Milton Erickson, an Arizona psychiatrist, says, "I cannot explain sleep, but I am sure that I do sleep. . . We will continue to explore and discover many additional manifestations of hypnosis."

One of the biggest problems still facing neurologists is to find out just what hypnotism is, and how the brain can act in such peculiar ways during hypnosis. This lack of exact knowledge persists in spite of research. Some people are almost impossible to hypnotize and others are easy to hypnotize. Some can even hypnotize themselves, and many people are good at pretending to be hypnotized.

That some definite change takes place in the brain is suggested by the fact that a willing subject can become insensitive to pain. A number of big operations have been performed with hypnosis as the only anesthetic.

Very interesting in this connection is the story about Dr. Esdaile, a Scotchman who went to India and performed 250 operations on unanesthetized Hindus without hurting them. When he went back to Scotland and tried to hypnotize the canny Scotchmen and then operate on them, the hypnotism did not work.

One of the difficulties in studying hypnotism is that no one can be sure when a person is hypnotized and when he is not. Some people display a trance-like appearance, with a sort of blank expression, as "hypnotized" people do in movies. Unfortunately, this does not always happen.

Scientists have searched hard for some physiologic sign, like some change in the heart-beat or the brain wave pattern that might show the presence of the hypnotic state, but so far no one has had any luck in this field of this study. The only physical changes, according to Dr. Martin Orne, professor of psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania, are those that "normally go along with drowsiness and relaxation."

Some psychoanalysts, such as Dr. Herbert Spiegel, clinical professor at Columbia Medical School, use hypnosis in treatment of certain problems, such as smoking. The authors tell of a young woman who entered Dr. Spiegel's fashionable New York office. She was hypnotized and then told: "For your body, smoking is a poison. You cannot live without your body. You owe your body respect and protection." The young woman learned how to hypnotize herself and wake herself up. While in her self-induced hypnotic trance, she repeats the anti-smoking reminder.

Dr. Spiegel reports that about 25 per cent of his patients do give up cigarettes after a single hypnotic session. If this woman stops, she will give the credit to hypnosis, but many psychologists will wonder if that was the cause of the phenomenon.

One criticism that I have often heard of hypnotism to cure smoking is that the effects do not last more than a few days.

Dr. Spiegel says, "We all slip in and out of trance spontaneously when we are engrossed in a movie or a book, or when we're driving a familiar route in a car. In therapy, I don't hypnotize people. I merely show them how to use their own capacity for going into a trance." He has found that nearly 70 per cent of all adults can be hypnotized, and nearly 90 per cent of all children can be put into a hypnotic state.

Some students of the subject feel that "We will ultimately be able to say what hypnotism is." One good thing is that today, more and more people are willing to study hypnosis scientifically.

Emphysema is becoming more common today. Some of the reasons are the many old people in the population, the large number of heavy smokers, and harmful dusts in some cities. In his booklet, "Pulmonary Emphysema," Dr. Alvarez tells you about the symptoms or emphysema and gives you vital information on treating the disease. You may have a copy by sending 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. CCC, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

Get some green back!

In your lawn—and in your pocket.

TURF BUILDER is the lawn food we recommend most often for spring fertilizing. It releases its nutrients only as fast as the grass can use them. So there's no spindly surge growth to cause extra mowing and no wasteful leaching away of the nutrients—no matter how much it rains. TURF BUILDER produces a thicker, greener, sturdier lawn. Lasts longer too, because it's Trionized.
