

FROM THE Editor's Corner

You've read or heard about those couples who are celebrating their umpteenth anniversary and the wife says coyly, "In all our 99 years together we've never had an argument".

And the husband pussyfoots up and simpers, "back in '09 I made up my mind to just walk away whenever I got mad instead of answering back". Phooey.

There's nothing like a good old hot and heavy argument to clear the air and get things back on an even keel.

Besides it's fun.

There's nothing better than challenging a pet opinion of an opinionated person. . . especially if there really is no answer. . . like men should be the head of the household . . . or the woman's place is in the home. . . or Sen. Ted Kennedy was a lousy diver at Chappaquiddick.

I've been known to take both sides of these questions just to get something going. There's nothing better than telling a woman's lib that her place is in the home. . . unless it's telling the man, who's "boss" at his house, that he should be doing the dishes. . . both are sort of like a free ride on a roller coaster.

Like most things, all is not roses for us who take the affirmative if you want the negative or the negative if you want the affirmative.

The trouble is that somewhere along the line you run into someone like my wife who has a memory that just won't quit.

She can recall any little "suggestion" I've made during our "friendly" discussions and if I so much as dare to deviate from one time to another she's right there to remind me what I said after the second cocktail at the Harry Smith's in 1968.

I mean she remembers. After 10 years or more while I'm concentrating on the important things like getting my putter to working again she's apt to pipe up out of a clear blue sky with, "you said when you were in college that $100 a week was enough to earn". . . or, "remember when you told me we'd never live to see the four-day work week?" All that ancient history.

The trouble is that my wife never argued when we first got married. Never. She just listened and recorded.

Now she takes all that information and shoots from the hip. . . and I invariably go down.

Arguing with my wife is like shooting in a fog. . . there's never a definite target.

She won't argue about the 18-year-old vote, or which is the finest restaurant in Michigan or if the national debt is getting out of hand.

She wants something positive to talk about. Like, "why were you the loudest person at the party last night", or was that second dish of ice cream really necessary?"

Topics like that are enough to make a guy think that the man who always walked away might have had something.

Do you think he could have been married before?

RECEIVING THE PLAQUE as Citizen of the Year from James Bauer, left, is W. E. Walpole, president of Walbro Corporation.

At Chamber banquet

Fete Walpole, Crandell as citizens of the year

Cass City selected its 10th citizen of the year and its eighth junior citizen of the year Tuesday night before a crowd of some 200 persons who crowded the cafeteria for the highlight event of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce year.

Selected were W. E. Walpole, president of Walbro Corporation, and Ron Crandell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Crandell of Cass City.

James Bauer, a member of the selection board, introduced Walpole and reviewed his history and achievements.

He traced his achievements from his years as a student at Principia College, telling of his start with a Chicago Bank and his rise in Borg-Warner Corporation to the position of secretary-treasurer of the Marvel Shebler division.

In 1950, he recounted how "Wally" started Walbro Corporation in Fenton with little more than a faith that "the Lord will provide" and a dedication to hard work.

One of Walpole's basic philosophies is to be of service and during his years in Cass City he and his company have always adhered to it.

Persons involved in beneficial community projects usually turn to Walbro and Walbro people first and rarely are disappointed.

Accepting the award, the honored guest said that he was completely bowled over by the award and pledged to continue to be of service.

This has always been a wonderful community to be a part of, he said, and added a phrase that persons near have heard many times before, "the people of the community and the people at Walbro are responsible for any success in life of mine or of Walbro Corporation."

Lambert Althaver introduced Ron Crandell. He told of his campaign to start a student activities center at the school and his service as Student Council President.

Ron, a member of the Methodist Church, was one of the few high school students to launch a business while in high school. . . he opened and ran an antique and gift shop at Mackinaw City last summer.

Active in many extra-curricular activities, he was a member of the debate squad and of the band. At home-coming time he worked countless hours on the Senior float and other activities of the event. He is a member of the National Honor Society.

Retiring President Mike Weaver hosted the show. The guest speaker was Earl Hill from Jackson who stressed the value of taking an optimistic attitude and refusing to become angered by actions of others in a "Pursuit of Happiness".

Weaver formally turned over the gavel to the new president, Roger Little. Little told of the Chamber's efforts to secure a doctor for the community and pledged to continue them.

He reviewed the forward stride in beautification of the village, the addition of Christmas decorations and work towards off-street parking.

He said that the thrust of the Chamber next year would be in the beautification of the village and the establishment of a downtown park.

Mrs. Geraldine Prieskorn presented long stemmed roses to Miss Mable Brian, 80, for her years of service in the Deford and Cass City areas.

Miss Brian still actively clerks in the Cass City Ben Franklin Store.

Eight new business owners were introduced and the new board members announced. The board members are Joan Merchant, Dorothy Stahlbaum, Bob Bader and Tom Herron.

The new officers are, besides Little: Bob Buttery, secretary, and Ron Geiger, treasurer.

Boards tell plans for year

Citizens air views at annual township meetings

Saturday was annual meeting day for area townships. It was a day of quiet, orderly sparsely attended meetings at some locations and of surprisingly large turnouts and surprise issues at others.

More than routine business was conducted at Novesta and Evergreen townships and attendance at these meetings reflected the special circumstances. By township, here is what happened:

ELKLAND TOWNSHIP

The regular business at the Elkland township meeting caused little comment by the 12 persons attending. An announced plan to substantially boost rates for fire service to near-by townships sparked the longest discussion and was generally approved by the voters.

Supervisor Maynard McConkey said that the board will meet with representatives of townships that the department services next week.

He said that persons living in Elkland township now pay a mill a year for fire protection and in addition $4,400 more came from township taxes from the general fund to pay current expenses.

Currently fire runs are charged at $100 each, plus a stand-by fee of $20 per section. The board will propose to the various townships serviced that the stand-by charge be boosted to $100 per section.

With this money, it is felt, all townships would share equally in the cost and money left after current expenses could be placed in a sinking fund to buy new equipment as it becomes necessary.

Judging by the financial statement, a raise of $80 per section would just about wipe out the $4,400 extra money used by the department in the last fiscal year.

The remainder of the business was routine. It was decided to resurface Dodge Road, south 1 1/2 miles, from a point a half mile south of Bay City-Forestville Road at an estimated cost of $26,900.

The budget was presented and approved. Expenditures from the general fund were set at $71,400. Comparison with last year's expenditures of $49,249.37 are invalid, McConkey explained, because this year all special departments were lumped together. The cost projected and the actual cost this year have been estimated about the same.

However, the township will have more local tax money because of increases in residential valuation and possibly because the $4,400 transferred to the fire department will not be needed.

In other business, McConkey explained that an unforeseen cost to the township will be $1,700 for sealcoat of East Milligan Road that was hard-surfaced last year.

EVERGREEN TOWNSHIP

One of the busiest and best attended town meetings was held in Evergreen.

The 18 persons there approved a raise in salaries and two propositions on the May 16 primary ballot.

The salaries authorized were: supervisor from $700 yearly to $1,000.

Clerk and treasurer, from $500 yearly to $700.

Trustees, from $10 per meeting to $20 per meeting.

Members of the board of review, from $10 to $30.

Because the township is in debt with expenses increasing rapidly, the members authorized the presentation of a tax levy. The voters will be asked for three mills for 2 years May 16. If successful, the levy will raise $7,800 yearly.

Members of the board pointed out that the township pays a variable amount for drains depending on what area is serviced.

The present levy for drain work is over 50 per cent of the cost, Supervisor Lloyd Severance said, and one of the reasons the added tax is needed.

Without the tax money there will be no money for township road work which includes paying for a share of paving Argyle Road and perhaps some work on Decker Road.

The second ballot to face voters May 16 will be to determine if the voters want to zone the township.

Zoning will be costly for the township, Severance explained, and the board wants to be sure that it's what the people want.

Evergreen was the first township in the area to adopt zoning ordinances only to have it thrown out later by a special referendum vote.

Evergreen is one of the townships partially protected by the Elkland Township Fire Department and that organization and the Snover Fire Department are seeking raises.

The voters also approved $200 to help finance the summer recreation program at Cass City Recreational Park.

GREENLEAF TOWNSHIP

The eight persons attending the quiet Greenleaf meeting approved a budget of $21,000, about the same as it was last year. Clerk Clare Brown reported.

A renewal of a two-mill road tax for five years will be presented in the primary election. Road work scheduled will include placing 2,000 yards of gravel on Greenland Road, from M-81 to Reed Road.

Voters okayed $100 for the Cass City summer recreational program.

NOVESTA

The largest turnout at an annual meeting occurred in Novesta township Saturday when between 40 and 50 persons gathered to register their complaints about the junk car ordinance adopted in 1968 which regulates storing of unlicensed vehicles.

The residents opposed the ordinance which provides for a fine of up to $50. Supervisor Gail Parrott explained that the ordinance was adopted because so many vehicles were being left after they were stripped, creating some unsightly problems in the township. Numerous warning letters were written to residents, asking them to dispose of the vehicles and several were prosecuted when they failed to comply. He said the residents thought the law was unfair.

The citizens and the board came to agreement when a commission of one township board member and 3 residents was established to examine the situation and report back to the township officials.

In other business, the citizens voted to eliminate the retirement plan for the township officers, which was approved in the 1970 meeting. Under the program, the township paid about $1500 per year towards the retirement pension of the officers, while the individuals contributed about $3000 total. What will happen to the money collected so far is unknown, said Parrott.

It was voted to open the township dump every Saturday from 9 to 1. Previously the dump is open only one Saturday in winter and two in the summer.

Between $8000 and $10,000 will be spent on roads this year. Included in the plan is seal coating of Cemetery Road one mile south of Deckerville Road, and graveling one mile on Severance Road and one-half mile on the north end of Crawford Road. Last year about $6000 was spent on roads.

It was also voted to improve the parking area around the town hall. This will be an estimated expense of $2000. An amount of $200 was voted for the township's contribution to the Cass City Recreational park program, the same as last year.

Voters were told that expenses in 1971 were $18,499, while revenues amounted to $24,512, leaving a balance of $6023. The township expects to take in and spend approximately the same for the coming year.

Supervisor Parrott, who lacks certification, said he will attend the assessor school starting in Cass City to make up the needed 34 hours. He is among those supervisors the state recently ruled must pass a state exam to be certified. Previously, a supervisor needed 60 hours of school to become certified.

GRANT

Eighteen residents including four members of the board approved estimated expenses of $19,000 for 1972 in Grant township. This will again put the township in the red as revenue is expected to be about $14,000.

Last year's expenses of $15,000 include $5532.16 which the township still owes the Huron County Road Commission. Approved was a tax proposition of one mill per year for two years to be used for roads. This will net a little less than $3000 per year, said clerk Gillies Brown, and will be presented to the people for approval at the August primary election vote.

In other business, the annual 1.3 mills was approved for township expenses. It was also voted to discontinue the dust control program, and $150 was approved for brush spray.

One mile of gravel road will be constructed between Sections 22 and 23 on Harrisell Road.

ELMWOOD

A budget of about $29,000, the same as last year, was approved by the Elmwood township board. Expenses last year were about $28,000, and expected revenue for 1972 is $30,000, said Harlan Hobart, clerk.

No specific plans for roadwork were presented, but $3500 was allocated for graveling wherever it is needed.

Five residents joined the five board members in discussion of a proposed 7-member planning and zoning commission. Details for the new commission have not been worked out, nor have members been appointed, although inquiries have been made.

There were no salary increases.

THE JUNIOR CITIZEN OF THE Year is Ron Crandell who receives congratulations from Lambert Althaver, left, who presented the trophy.

Lack of training leads to delinquency—Gelatt

By Kit McMillon

The boy is appearing in district court on charges of breaking and entering. He's 17 now and over the age limit for juvenile prosecution.

He might get off with probation and a fine since it's his first time appearing before the district court, said county juvenile agent Milton Gelatt. Or he could be sent to jail. The probate court first saw the young man when he was referred on the petition of a neighbor.

He was just a general nuisance in the neighborhood, the probation officer explained, setting fires and staying out late. He was dismissed from the court that time, but a short time later, at the age of 14, he was made a ward of the court for arson and breaking and entering.

The boy was left in his own home for several months, but that didn't work out. He was then placed in Teen Ranch, a home for boys ages 12-16 near Kingston.

"The boy behaved quite well, but didn't do anything in school," said Gelatt. "So after spending some time at the Teen Ranch, it appeared perhaps he could take some specialized training and work with his hands. There was an attempt to get him lined up with the Job Corps," Gelatt continued. "Before he could get into the Job Corps, he was allowed to go home. He got into further trouble with the law."

"There are ever so many cases like this," he shook his head sadly, explaining the case. The boy, whose mother worked, had no father, and his mother has never been able to discipline the children.

This is one of the cases the court was unable to help. "In such cases, we feel badly. He was counseled with continually," said Gelatt.

Last year 112 cases were investigated by the probate court workers. Gelatt is assisted in the department by probation officers Virginia Kirk and Leonard Lane.

98 MADE WARDS

Petitions were filed in 98 instances and the children remained wards of the court and were placed on probation. The probation stipulations include obeying all laws of the state and other government ordinances and the reasonable demands of parents or foster parents; regular school and church attendance; abstaining from the use of tobacco, drugs or intoxicating beverages; observing a curfew set according to the age and offense and instructions to not associate with certain persons.

The number of juveniles probated has increased steadily over the years, with only 12 in 1962 to 64 in 1966 and 129 in 1970. The decline in 1971 is attributed by Gelatt, to the Help Line program which was instituted in the county last year.

Eleven of those probated were from Cass City. They represent about one-half of the youngsters that were caught, said Police Chief Gene Wilson. The offenses, he explained, were felonies or they were repeated offenders.

He explained that approximately one-half of the complaints his department receives involve juveniles. Most of the crimes involved are petty larcenies and vandalism, although these often involve the older kids because a car is almost a pre-requisite.

The younger children, 10 to 12, are usually involved in shoplifting, said Wilson, with the heaviest periods in the fall after school starts and in the spring.

"Most kids who fall under the 13-year-old bracket, on the first offense, usually get taken home to mother and dad," said Wilson. "I don't try to scare them, but I want to make sure the parents know."

The youngsters brought before the probate court average about 15 years of age. "If we get them at all, it's between 14 and 16," said Mrs. Kirk.

TRUANCY TOPS LIST

School truancy is the predominant problem, explained Gelatt. The second most common delinquent act committed is shoplifting and petty larcenies, followed by breaking and/or entering, assault, minor in possession and joyriding.

A juvenile delinquent is any child under 17 who performs a "delinquent act". These acts are not called criminal.

The statutory definition of juvenile delinquency includes violating laws, running away from home without sufficient cause or repeated disobedience to the reasonable commands of parents, associating with immoral persons, leading an immoral life or being found on premises used for illegal purposes, repeated absence from school, habitually idling away time and repeatedly patronizing a place whose business is the sale of alcoholic beverages.

A contributing factor to the high truancy rate, said Gelatt, is that the youngsters have problems with the regular school regime. They are capable and ambitious, but need an avenue to channel their energies, he said.

"What I would say we need more than anything else to help the boys and girls in school who are not progressing is a vocational school," he stated.

Following the investigation by the probation department, the delinquent is brought before the probate judge, who decides whether or not to place the child in a state institution, foster home or send him back to his parent's home.

"The vast majority stay at home as a rule," said Gelatt. "Most do respond without having to be sent to a boarding home or an institution."

"Where to place the delinquent child depends on how the officials think he will best respond."

Some don't respond at all, however.

RUNAWAY

Last week a boy was taken to the detention home in Bay City because he ran away from his foster home where he rebelled against the authority. He was caught and placed in the home so officials could find him when there is a new hearing in the case. While he's waiting he'll be kept busy with things to do with his hands, said Gelatt.

The boy is 15.

He'll probably have to be placed in an institution," pre-

Mr. and Mrs. James Pethers

A surprise celebration was held Easter Sunday for Mr. and Mrs. James Pethers in honor of their 60th wedding anniversary.

The party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Philip Jr. of Gibraltar. Philip made his home with them for many years as a boy.

The couple were married April 4, 1912. After living in Detroit a few years, they moved to Cass City where they resided on their farm on M-81, three miles west of Cass City. They moved to their present home at 6557 Elizabeth St., Cass City, upon retiring in 1951.

The couple received a card of congratulations from President and Mrs. Richard Nixon and also a letter from Governor and Mrs. William G. Milliken.

Putnam-Knoblet vows exchanged

Miss Martha Knoblet of Cass City and Walter R. Putnam of Caro exchanged wedding vows Saturday, April 1, under an arch of greens and wedding bells at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. R. D. Culp, pastor of the Mizpah Missionary church, performed the seven o'clock ceremony before 23 guests.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Rinerd Knoblet. The groom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Abram Putnam of Caro.

Wedding music was played by the bride's sister, Mrs. John Lockwood, and Mark Lockwood, nephew of the bride, sang "Saviour, Like a Shepherd Lead Us" and "O Perfect Love".

The bride wore a street-length, rose-pink knit dress with jewel neckline and three-quarter length sleeves, and a crystal necklace. She carried an orchid on a white ribbon.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. John Lockwood. Mrs. Lockwood wore an aqua knit dress with jeweled neckline with corsage of pink and white carnations.

Flower girl and ring bearer were Debra June Stilson and David Stilson.

The bride's mother wore a tufted nylon pink robe, with a corsage of pink and white carnations.

Mrs. June Stilson was in charge of the guest book. The wedding cake, made by Mrs. Doris Karr, ice cream and punch were served by the bridegroom's sisters, Mrs. Luther Berry, Mrs. Frank Berry and Mrs. Frank Rocheleau. The bride's father played violin music while the refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Putnam are living on Knoblet Rd., rural Cass City. He is an employee of Caro State Hospital and Mrs. Putnam is a teacher in the Caro schools.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

The 18-year-old majority law is having an impact you wouldn't suspect. The other day while renewing friendships in a Bay City bistro, one of the boys in the crowd ordered a Coke while the rest of us ordered booze of various kinds.

The prices for the drinks were about what you'd expect for the type of place. Mixed drinks were about $1.00 each or so. But Cokes, that's a different story. Cokes were $1.25 each, the most expensive of any drink ordered.

Evidently the teens have been flocking in for the music and nursing a Coke all night and this was management's way of discouraging them.

It's a little hard to keep the faith sometimes, says Ken Kennedy. Last week end Kennedy and friends pounded the pavement in Cass City selling Easter Seals.

While he was doing his bit for the foundation that did so much for him, someone celebrated the Easter season by whipping into his room at Delta College and lifting his stereo and tapes.

With this snow on the ground it's not possible that Little League organization time is here again. But it is, says President Jim Johnson, and as usual all the adult help available is needed.

Interested persons are asked to come to Walbro Corporation at 7:30 p. m. April 12 to help get this year's program rolling.

There's talk of zoning in Evergreen township. But the word out there is caution. Supervisor Lloyd Severance was on the board when zoning was adopted and then rejected over a decade ago.

There was plenty of discussion about it at last week's annual meeting before it was decided that an advisory vote should be held before any substantial amount of time or money was poured into the project again.

What everybody in Evergreen doesn't want is another expensive fiasco that accomplishes nothing.

I don't know if Edsel Connell of Inkster was trying to tell me something when he dropped off a book on English usage the other day, but I infer that he was.

He implied, no, he told the office staff that I like to get arguments going and I can have some fun with this book. I don't know about that, but wasn't it tricky the way I tied in a couple of words that most of us feel say the same thing, but don't?

I'm referring to the words, infer and imply. When someone tells you taxes are too high, he is implying that his are too high, too. When I draw that conclusion from what he says, I'm inferring it from what he says.

I'm indebted to the office staff for those little pearls of English usage. . . but I do have a pet no-no of my own.

Take this sentence: Everyone does it, but I'm different, am I not? Nine of 10 these days would say, "I'm different, aren't I?" What they are really saying is "I'm different, are not I?" That's affected usage. I'd much rather hear "ain't I." That's wrong, sure, but it's not artificial or pseudo-correct.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed proposals will be received by the Village of Cass City, 6737 Church Street, Cass City, Michigan, 48726, until 4:00 p. m., E.S.T., Tuesday, April 25, 1972, for the demolition and removal of all wooden parts, siding, beams, etc., of a structure known as the Michigan Bean Company Coal Storage barn located between Main and Church Streets on the west side of Nestles Street.

The bids shall be placed in envelopes, clearly noted with the words "Barn Removal Bid" on the outside. The bid shall include a certified check in the amount of 5% of the bid, payable to the Village of Cass City and shall provide suitable insurance regarding liability and accident.

All proposals shall clearly stipulate the bidder's program to clean and remove all debris and material excepting concrete floors, footings and similar material. The successful bidder shall be required to complete all pertinent work by June 2, 1972.

The Village Council reserves the right to reject any and all proposals, to waive irregularities and/or informalities, and to make the award in part or in entirety as may appear in the best interest of the Village.

Trinity WSCS

meets Monday

Mrs. Howard Rexin presented the program for the regular meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service Monday evening at Trinity United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Maynard McConkey and Mrs. Tom Proctor, along with their group, served a 6:30 turkey dinner to around 50 persons.

Mrs. Rexin, assisted by Mrs. Harry Crandell and Mrs. Clare Carpenter, selected Taiwan for a world mission study. They discussed changes in the church of Taiwan.

It was said that while 85 per cent of the 14 million people are Taiwanese, the church consists of Chinese people.

Church roots lie over 100 years deep in the history of China and they now feel they can grow spiritually without help from the U. S. Board of Missions. All foreign personnel and funds will be withdrawn from the Taiwan church by 1973, to enable them to gain strength through self determination.

WSCS President Mrs. Ed Baker led officers in a review of budget, projects and future activities to cap the first quarter of the year.

An announcement was made of the appointment of Mrs. Leslie Hurd as Spiritual Growth chairman. Plans have been completed for a mother-daughter banquet April 25 with Mrs. Gary Christner and Mrs. Harland Dickinson cochairmen.

Members will launch a new project, that of making Christian symbols to be used for church decorations later in the year. Those interested in taking part may contact Mrs. E. Baker.

The WSCS Detroit Conference spring meeting is slated for May 4 in Midland. Mrs. Robert Keating will accept reservations and coordinate transportation.

Groups 2 and 5 will host a guest night dinner meeting May 1, with Mrs. Ed Fritz in charge of the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Morell had three of their daughters and families as Easter guests. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Houghton and Mr. and Mrs. James Dennis and family of Caro and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Laurie and family. Not present were Mr. and Mrs. James Neal and family of Bay City, who are presently in Lakeland, Fla.

Mrs. Michael Donovan (Rosemary Fritz) and little daughter Corina of Napa, Calif., came Saturday and are visiting Mrs. Donovan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Fritz. Other Easter week end guests were Mr. and Mrs. Roger Karr and son Scott of Midland and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fritz and daughter Lisa of Mayville.

Mr. and Mrs. William Martus Jr. and children of Hagers-town, Ind., came Wednesday and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Martus and children of Flint came Thursday and spent until Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. William Martus Sr.

Mrs. Alice McAleer had as Easter guests, her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Prazier Foren and two children of Royal Oak, Dorus Benkelman and Mrs. James McMahon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Speirs, Jane, Skip, David and Becky were Easter dinner guests of the Stan Guithers. Becky Speirs was released Saturday after being a patient at Hills and Dales Hospital over four weeks with a broken leg.

"If It Fitz . . ."

A satisfying thing

BY JIM FITZGERALD

A man named Frank Roberts phoned from Saginaw and asked if I were any relation to the Jim Fitzgerald who used to own the Dry Dock Iron Works in Port Huron.

And whom? It was nostalgia time again.

Are there any railroad workers today who give kids rides on those little cars that have to be pumped along the track by hand? I'll bet not. It's probably against company rules — insurance risk, bla, bla. (For their own protection, today's kids are not allowed to do the swellest things. All they can do is kill themselves driving cars. But that's another column. . .)

My big sister, Terrible Jean, and I used to ride to the Dry Dock Iron Works on those hand-cars. This would be in the early 1930s. I was 5 or 6. Jean was 2 years older and 20 pounds tougher.

The Iron Works was on the St. Clair River bank, about 10 blocks from our home. The railroad track ran along the river. A handcar never passed us by, probably because Terrible Jean tied me to the tracks.

The Jim Fitzgerald who owned the iron works was our grandfather. His number 1 employee was our dad, Ed Fitz.

Terrible Jean and I went to the Iron Works afternoons around 5 simply so we could walk home from work with Dad.

That's the greatest thing I remember — walking home from work with my father. It was a satisfying thing for a couple of little kids to do. It satisfied Mother, too. When we were with him, Dad couldn't stop at the White Star bar.

The Dry Dock Iron Works repaired Great Lakes freighters. It was a rambling, rickety building half on the river bank, and half on stilts, out over the water. At age 5, I was most fascinated with the John. It was the first I'd ever seen that didn't require flushing. I thought it was a much more modern way to solve the disposal problem, direct from depositor to water, eliminating the middle piping. It was brilliant thinking such as that, 40 years ago, that made the noble Anti-Pollution Crusade possible today.

The Great Depression killed the iron works, flat dead. By 1940 it was abandoned and mostly fallen into the river. Grandfather died before then, and Dad eventually became a traveling salesman. I never walked home from work with him again, and now he is dead, too.

If the Dry Dock Iron Works had continued to thrive, I would surely have been too lazy to buck nepotism. I would have joined the family business, and what a brilliant repainer of ships I would have been! I have to take 3 days off work to change my license plates. This year all I have to do is stick a sticker on the old plate. Which I would certainly do if I hadn't lost the lousystick.

Anyway, it turned out that Frank Roberts, the man whose phone call turned me on, is the godson of my grandfather. We have never met but we are going to get together someday and I'll bore him to death.

But what I'd really like to do is get Terrible Jean and go down those tracks one more time. We couldn't walk back home with Dad, but we could remember how sweet it was.

It was a satisfying thing to do.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Readers respond

By Dan Marlowe

The recent column on the changing aspects of good English usage and pronunciation stirred up quite a bit of reader response.

Mrs. A. G. Fritz of Detroit wrote: "I'm sorry to hear that the Webster's Dictionary is being 'messed around'. I'm glad I have several older editions, and I will still pronounce my words as I was taught. But it's worse than you think. Children cannot spell, and their knowledge of geography is hazy enough that they don't know if Boston is on the east or west coast."

Paul Soint of Bad Axe wrote: "It is obvious to you, of course, that a dictionary is an important book to all persons who deal with words, oral or written. I always have one at my elbow when I read anything at all, including books, magazines, and newspapers. But my main purpose in doing so is to look up immediately any new word that I note. Seldom does a day pass without my using this book for this purpose. It may seem odd that I find this necessary after earning my living for nearly 50 years by writing the English language. But such is indeed the case."

John V. Carter of St. Louis wrote: "Pronunciation and spelling are my two pet bugaboos today. As an ex-English teacher, I have to grit my teeth at some of the things I hear and see. There is a permissiveness abroad in the land which I feel is steadily eroding good English usage."

A common theme ran through the verbal comments I received on the column: school children today cannot spell properly. I am made aware of this all the time. I probably receive a letter or two a month from high school and college students interested in one aspect or another of writing, asking for guidance. These letters have a common denominator: quite often the writer expresses himself well, but the spelling is beyond belief.

I'll admit that I'm apt to be more sensitive in this respect than the average individual, because I make my living with words.

But it's not only me. Recently I was on a committee which had to consider a dozen and a half job applications. A common thread ran through the comments of the committee: the spelling was poor, and created an unfavorable impression. The job applicants had verbal interviews afterward, and invariably those who had problems with written English had problems with spoken English.

The answer? I don't know. More dictionary use would help, but first there has to be a desire for improvement.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

I was catching up on my paper reading the other night and I run across this piece about a ball player. After I got thru the article I ask the old lady what she thought about Vida Blue. She said it sounded like one of them new washing powders that don't pollute the water, and that she had found they don't clean the close as good as the old polluting kind.

The old lady has forgot more about a heap of things than I'll ever know, but I figured if she didn't know any more about the work of the Price and Wage Control Board than she does about the ball players, I might as well keep my opinions to myself. What I have decided, Mister Editor, is that price and wage control is like them college honor systems where the college got the honor and the students got the system. Control is for the working man, and prices and wages is for ball players and law makers.

This fellow Vida Blue played ball last year for $14,000. He done real good, so this year he wants a raise to $90,000. I reckon his boss figured that was out of wage guidelines, so he offered him $50,000. The last I heard the Government wanted everybody to stay within five per cent raises, I ain't strong on figgers, but I studied it up one side and down the other and I am of a mind that wages for Vida Blue is based on what the traffic will bear, just like they allus been.

General speaking, I can't find no fault with that. A day's pay for a day's work is the way we built this country, and if Vida Blue is worth that kind of money, more power to em in trying to git it. But he says he'll quit baseball afore he'll work for a measly $50,000, and I can't help but wonder how much change his retiring will make in the state of the nation.

What sets me to worrying, tho, is where I saw by the papers that it cost us $400 million last year to run the legislative branch of the Federal Government. That's big money jest to make laws, and it is a increase of $150 million in five years. They ain't no way, Mister Editor, that we can be gitting a day's laws for a day's pay, with $42,500 to start in Congress. And these are the same folks that is talking about a $6,500 guaranteed income for everybody and a tax exemption for part of their own incomes.

It ain't hard to see why Congressman rather talk about smoking chimneys and dirty rivers. It's a good way to git the voters minds off how much it's costing us to git laws passed agin polluted air and water. If you broke down that $400 million on a per-law base, I figger folks would decide they had rather try and git by on some old laws we ain't used yet, stead of whumping up a new batch ever time the Congress sets.

I won't say pollution is a red herring, but somepun stinks in wage control.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Delinquency due to no training

dicted Gelatt, shaking his head. "He was placed in what we felt was an ideal foster home. But he found it very difficult to respond to authority," Gelatt related.

The boy was made a ward of the court several months ago and placed in a foster home, the home of friends who took him in because they wanted to help him. He'd been placed on probation for breaking and entering a building.

New books at Rawson library

Fifty books were borrowed from the Saginaw Area Book Pool Tuesday and will be available at Rawson Memorial Library. Among them are "Muskie", by Theo Lippman Jr., "Country Editor's Boy" by Hal Borland, "Every Other Inch a Lady" by Beatrice Lillie, "The V. D. Story" by Stewart M. Brooks, and "Rose, a biography of Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy" by Gail Cameron. Other titles are "How to Raise Children at Home in your Spare Time", "Organic Gardening and Farming", "The Town that Launders its Water", "A Teenager's First Car", "New Book of Motorcycles", "Microscope and How to Use it", "How to Avoid the Ten Biggest Home-buying Traps", "Starting and Succeeding in your own Small Business", "Meals that Can Wait", and "Mr. Currier and Mrs. Ives" a Note on their Lives and Times.

There are also a number of new novels, mysteries, youth and children's books.

Friday rites for Mrs. Vahovick

Mrs. Luellen Vahovick, 62, of rural Decker, died Monday at the Huron Memorial Hospital, Bad Axe, where she had been a patient two and one-half weeks. She had been in ill health the past 15 years.

Mrs. Vahovick was born in Minden City, Huron County, Sept. 6, 1909, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Judd and Anna McDonald Gibbard.

She was united in marriage to Theodore Vahovick in Port Huron April 18, 1930. They came to this community 34 years ago, where she lived until her death.

Surviving are her husband; one daughter, Mrs. Orval (Beverly) Lidke of Elkton; two sons, Allen of Sanford and LeRoy of DeWitt; one sister, Mrs. Myrtle Erhardt of Detroit; and six grandchildren. Two sisters and two brothers preceded her in death.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1 p. m. Friday from the Little's Funeral Home, Cass City. The Rev. Lewis Surbrook will officiate.

Burial will be in Elkland cemetery.

194 COURT WARDS

If he is placed in an institution, he will be one of the few who are. Of the 194 wards of the court who are on probation, only three are in institutions.

One is presently at the Teen Ranch in Kingston. The other two are at the Boy's Republic at Farmington. Other facilities the county has used are the Star Commonwealth for boys, Albion; the Girls Training School in Adrian; Lansing Boys Training School; the Baptist Children's Home, St. Louis, and the Lutheran Home for Children in Bay City.

There is no home in Tuscola county. The expense involved would be enormous, the probation officers agreed, but Mrs. Kirk said, "We certainly do need one in the Tri-county area." "We could use one," Gelatt said. "It would be wonderful, but it's so expensive."

One of the problems connected with having no county facility is that of detaining the juveniles until arrangements can be made to transport them. "Usually those that go to institutions have to be detained or you'd never find them again," said Gelatt. "We try to avoid it if possible. Sometimes it's the only way."

Presently the only facility for temporary detention is the county jail. The youngster must be over 15 and there must be a court order to place him there. The only reasons a juvenile would be detained, explained Gelatt, are that he is a runaway, may be dangerous to society, may need special psychiatric tests, or is to be committed to an institution and arrangements are pending.

The youngsters the probation officers counsel are all different, said Gelatt, but it has been his experience that the ones who were not taught to respond to authority when they were young are the most difficult. He emphasized the lack of training to respond to authority was a problem for both these boys.

Quite a few cases come from broken homes, said Gelatt. The parents neglect their child's moral and spiritual upbringing, even though they may provide for the physical needs.

He noted that the delinquent children come from all kinds of homes, adding that they had less trouble with the ones who come from homes where the Word of God is honored.

BREAKDOWN OF HOME

He attributed much of the problem to the breakdown of the home over the past 50 years when both parents work and the lack of teaching the children right and wrong. "Both parents are working. They don't have close communication as a family unit. We find these are outstanding reasons for juvenile delinquency," said Gelatt.

While the children are wards of the court, and they can remain under the jurisdiction of the court until age 19, the officers counsel with both the parents and the youngster.

"We try to teach the youngsters and parents when they have a problem, to face the problem as it is. Otherwise they multiply. This we find is of primary importance," stated Gelatt.

In counseling the youngsters, Gelatt explained the officers listen to them and try to show the kids they care about them. "Many kids are going around and nobody cares about them. Some find it hard to respond to love," he noted.

"We hold before them the true value of life, the spiritual aspect of their relation to God and their fellow man, and tell them to face them honestly," Gelatt explained.

FROM THE LITTER BOX

Sans shoes

By Kit McMillion

Perhaps you've come into the Chronicle office and have seen a pair of big feet minus shoes curled up underneath a typewriter and wondered—Why?

Some people used to call me a hill billy—why I'll never know because the highest up I've ever lived is the second story of a building—and I've been called the "barefoot contessa" but the closest claim to royalty I can make is a distant (and probably v-e-r-y distant) relative of Pocahontas (and I'll bet she went barefoot, too).

Actually, I just hate shoes. Huckleberry Finn was one of my favorite childhood heroes, and like Huck, I pulled the shoes off practically the minute the snow melted and wouldn't let myself be reshod until school started again, and only then with reluctance.

The feeling of dewey grass or gooeey, slimy mud between my toes was too precious to renounce, and besides, feet wash, but shoes have to be scraped clean and polished.

Any astute observer can tell by the scuffs and scars of a hardlife that I don't like to polish shoes either. My feet don't have the hard life, though; it's my shoes. When I get a pair, I wear them forever.

High on the list of things I dread is going shopping for shoes. Some women I've known love it, and they have a variety of shoes in many shapes and colors to go with their outfits. I usually have one or two pair, usually in a nice drab brown-tone designed to go with anything in any season.

I guess some people would call me tight when it comes to spending money on clothes, but I prefer to get something that will have time to develop a personality. And my shoes usually do.

The fact that I have outsized feet with strange lumps and bumps that make it next to impossible to find anything besides the nice drab brown-tone types designed to go with anything in any season also has something to do with it.

But I like bare feet the best. I also like sandals, but there again, the straps on the light footwear always seem to be in the wrong places, causing me pain and agony, so I carry them and go barefoot.

It's unfortunate that the natural state of the human foot is so often deplored. There are signs many places that say patrons must wear shoes.

If it were a matter of sanitation, I guess I'd go along with it because that has some aspects of civility connected with it, but I'll bet the shoe industry put them up to it.

Most shoes aren't made for people, I swear. If they were, I don't think there'd be so many complaints about sore feet and shoes that don't fit. The barbarians who went barefoot or wore sandals and moccasins and saved their feet from torture are more civilized, to my way of thinking, than we poor slobs with our sore feet and fancy shoes.

And I like to use my toes, too. Despite the slide remarks about my family ancestry and monkeys, toes come in very handy when the toes' owner wants to pick something up and doesn't feel like bending over.

Soon I will be making one of my sagas, and they are usually long, to all the shoe stores around. It makes me wish I'd been born one of Tolkien's hobbits with hairy feet and thick soles. Hobbits don't wear shoes. Meow.

What this country needs is more men who think it takes push instead of pull to get ahead.

60 attend Huron Help Line meet

Over 60 volunteers for the Huron County Help Line attended the first training session Monday in the Bad Axe High School cafeteria. An explanation of help line was presented by Mrs. Helen Woloshen, Office of Economic Opportunity Outreach worker for Tuscola county. Mrs. Woloshen reviewed how this service is being handled by volunteer workers in Tuscola county. Howard Kel, director-psychologist with the Huron County Community Mental Health Services, introduced the workers to basic listening skills.

Service Clubs, organizations, churches and individuals have generously donated funds for the operation of help line for Huron county. The day for operation of help line is set for Friday, April 28, at 3 p. m.

Mrs. St. Laurent

former resident

succumbs

Memorial services were held at Elkland cemetery in March for Mrs. Inza St. Laurent of Attica.

Mrs. St. Laurent was a former resident of Cass City. She was the daughter of the late Frank and Nellie Ward and a niece of the late Mrs. Clement Tyo.

Common sense, plus education, is an unbeatable combination.

The service will operate each day for a 12 hour period, 3 p. m. to 3 a. m. The second training session - April 10 will feature small group interaction with the assistance of the Tuscola county players. Training sessions are very important and one should make every effort to attend the four sessions. However, individuals who were unable to attend the April 3 meeting of Help Line may come to the training sessions April 10, 17 and 24, all of which will be held at 7:30 p. m. in the Bad Axe High School cafeteria.

Hospital auxiliary drive under way for Hills & Dales

A membership drive is under way for new members of the Women's Auxiliary of Hills and Dales General Hospital. Mrs. Roger Little and Mrs. Frederick Auten are co-chairmen. Women interested in becoming members are urged to contact the cochairmen and present members are encouraged to renew their membership.

The annual tea will be held April 24 in the hospital meeting room. Present officers include: president, Mrs. E. C. Fritz; president-elect, Mrs. Donald Wernette; vice-president, Mrs. Roger Little; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Richard Eria; and treasurer, Mrs. Clark Boylan.

Meetings for the group are held September through May, every fourth Monday at 2:00 o'clock in the meeting room of the hospital.

Volunteer services include installation of and collection for televisions for service and making puppets for the pediatrics department. Formerly mending was done for the housekeeping department. Monies also are derived from the Bridge Tournament, Baby Picture Service, sale of candy, cigarettes and soft drinks in the hospital and annual dues.

Contributions to the hospital have included the $5,000.00 pledge for the construction of the hospital, stuffed animals and plastic toys for pediatrics, two isolettes, tulip bulbs for the hospital grounds, two crochets, three sewing machines, defibrillator equipment, physical therapy equipment, electric bath lift, one layette for New Year's baby and ten electric beds are to be purchased upon completion of the new wing.

The Women's Auxiliary of Hills and Dales General Hospital was organized in 1957. The original slate of officers included: president, Mrs. Cameron Wallace; president-elect, Mrs. H. T. Donahue; vice-president, Mrs. Al Krueger; recording secretary, Mrs. H. O. Paul; corresponding secretary, Mrs. James Ballard; and treasurer, Mrs. C. S. Auten.

BETTER HEALTH

Beware of over exposure to sun

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

This is the time of the year when many people escape from winter in the northern states to lie on the beach of a southern state or a tropical island, and get over-exposed to the sun's rays. According to that very able skin specialist, Dr. Isaac Willis of Philadelphia, indiscriminate exposure to the sun can bring on serious trouble even for normal, healthy people.

Dr. Willis says that the average person can be badly affected by: (1) a single over-exposure (sunburn); (2) frequent prolonged exposure (skin aging or cancer formation later); (3) a chemical or drug which the person may be taking, which can make him react badly to small amounts of sun.

The hours of greatest risk are between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. People with light complexions -- red-heads and blue-eyed blondes -- burn more easily than do dark-haired people. Blacks are the least susceptible, but they are not totally exempt from the bad effects of prolonged exposure to the sun.

When a normal person has been mildly overexposed to the sun, his skin may turn a painless red six to 12 hours later, reaching its peak in about 24 hours.

The mild sunburn generally ends in a tanned skin. Severe overexposure, on the other hand, often results in an exquisitely tender skin with pain, swelling and blistering. There can be fever, chills, nausea, delirium and prostration, often 12 hours later, and irregular peeling of the skin.

The drugs that Dr. Willis says may cause a person's skin to be especially sensitive to the sun include certain antibiotics, sulfa drugs, sedatives, tranquilizers and antihistamines, diuretics (drugs which stimulate the kidneys) and anti-diabetics. Also, certain diseases can be made worse with exposure to the sun, such as psoriasis, hives and eczema.

Interestingly, Dr. Willis says that air pollution absorbs ultraviolet rays, and lessens the risk of getting a bad sunburn. White sand, snow, concrete and shiny metal can increase exposure by reflecting the rays, but water does not greatly increase the risk of a bad burn.

When I was a boy in Hawaii, my doctor-father used to have to care for quite a few people who had come to Hawaii, not realizing that the sun is much stronger in the tropics, than in the North. After a day on the beach they would be seriously ill with a fever by midnight.

Dermatologists have never been successful in convincing people that they should not lie on beaches and beside swimming pools for hours each day. The fad of sun bathing is as popular as ever.

A HOMOSEXUAL COUNSELING CENTER OPENS

I am much cheered by a note that I saw recently in the journal SIECUS, that a non-profit health service for homosexuals and their families opened in New York City last October. This Homosexual Counseling Center maintains a staff of psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers and pastoral counselors. The director of the center is Dr. Ralph Blair. Although the great Sigmund Freud said he had no hope of ridding a decided homosexual of all his homosexual tendencies, today many able psychiatrists maintain that they can help a homosexual by helping him to accept himself and to cope with the loneliness, unkindness and injustice handed out by employers and others, perhaps even by his own family.

Fortunately, our people are becoming much more understanding of the homosexual, much less hostile to him, much more willing to learn about him. The laws in some states against homosexuals have been abrogated or softened, so that now what two people do in their apartment is no one's business except theirs.

The telephone number of the Homosexual Community Counseling Center is area code 212-834-1159.

Psoriasis can cause embarrassment, self-consciousness, shame and distress. But it can be kept under control. Read Dr. Alvarez' suggestions in his booklet "Psoriasis." For your copy send 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request for it to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. CCC, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

"Ireland, Land of Legend"

Thursday, April 13

Separated from Great Britain on the East by the Irish Sea, the 26 counties which constitute the Republic of Ireland, have an area of 27,000 square miles (slightly larger than West Virginia) with no part of the country more than 70 miles from the Sea. We visit the streets of Dublin, Cork, Waterford, Limerick and others. We travel the highways and byways, prowl through ancient castles including Blarney Castle where the adventurous kiss the famed Stone to gain the gift of eloquence. Enjoy the warm hearted hospitality of Ireland's people.

SHEPHERD

Whoever he is, wherever he is — I respect this man.

Naturally I respect anyone whose presence can bring calmness and peace where there could have been confusion and turmoil.

As for me, I'm just a writer. With others I've been writing on behalf of the Church — with conviction and enthusiasm — for many a year. Rarely until now have I written in the first person.

But this picture challenges one to identify himself. On this rocky hillside teeming with restless life only one is master, guide, guardian of all.

I share with you the common realization: I am not that one. We share too the simple faith that knows: The Lord is my Shepherd.

Rites Tuesday for Edith Hyatt

Final rites were held Tuesday for Mrs. Edith T. Hyatt, 76, of Snover, who died unexpectedly April 1 at Hills and Dales Hospital, Cass City.

She was born in Evergreen township, Sanilac county, Nov. 18, 1895, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John and Alfretha Hulbert Chapman.

She was united in marriage to Ernest Hyatt in Evergreen township Oct. 24, 1928, where they made their home following their marriage.

She was a lifelong member of the Mizpah United Missionary Church of Evergreen township.

She is survived by her husband; a daughter, Mrs. William (Marjorie) Arnold of Grand Blanc; a son, Laurence Hyatt of Snover; two sisters, Mrs. Elwin Sadler of Decker and Mrs. Altha Cooley of Warren; one brother, Elmer Chapman of Marquette, and six grandchildren. Two sisters and one brother preceded her in death.

Services were conducted at the Mizpah United Missionary Church by the Rev. Richard Culp, pastor. He was assisted by the Rev. Ernest Gibson. Burial was in Elkland cemetery.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Fourteen Explorer Scouts and Leader Chuck Reed went on a canoe trip, following the Cass River to Vassar.

Sherry Bacon, Cass City student, was selected Can-teen queen in a special ceremony in which she was presented with a basket of red roses, a pearl necklace and a crown.

The prize winning posters created by students for the PEP drive for funds were displayed at a kick-off meeting for solicitors. First was Joanne Greenlee's poster, which won $15. Second place and $10 went to Ruth Ann Johnson and the $5 third prize was won by D. Wentworth.

Don Buehrly and Rev. Ira Wood attended the state EUB men's congress at Lake Odessa.

Cass City students received top ratings at the District Three Junior High Solo and Ensemble festival held at Pigeon.

TEN YEARS AGO

Cass City High School speech students swept the District Forensic Contest. Bill Dobbs took first place in the original oration category and Wayne Dillon was given first place for his humorous reading.

Area township meetings were marked by poor attendance and limited business.

Joanne Miljure, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Miljure, Gettysburg, was crowned Huron County Dairy Princess.

Since the Cass City Chamber of Commerce voted to abandon the Home-coming, Cass City stands virtually alone in Thumb communities not offering this type of event.

Gettysburg residents are again promoting money-making projects to raise funds to continue improving their community park.

Two more Cass City persons have been named to take part in the semi-finals of the Michigan Sports Show talent show. Roger Parrish, Cass City High School choral director, and Tom Jones, Cass City senior, will play the drums and piano.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Evard Rawson was elected supervisor of Elkland township with 177 votes. Henry Smith, incumbent, who ran on slips, received 39 votes for the office.

The Intermediate Girl Scouts were entertained at the Max Aggar home at a delicious chili supper. This group has been studying color under the direction of Mrs. R. L. Kappen and Mrs. Agar.

Herman Doerr has purchased the brick garage building on East Main Street, next to the Brinker & Armstrong lumber yard, from William Ebert, together with the garage equipment.

The following players won varsity football awards for the 1946 season: Merle Hoag and Jim Mark, co-captains; Robert Edmonson, Lorn Hillaker, Roy Jeffery, Don Kart, Clinton Lefler, Dale Little, Ken McRae, Jim Moore, Irving Parsch, Jerry Priesskorn, Bill Sangster, Gil Schwaderer, Bill Weatherhead, Ken Weatherhead and Steve Ziemba.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Mrs. Solomon Knechtel has decided to discontinue operating the Knechtel Creamery on East Main Street. The building which has housed the business has been sold by Mrs. A. T. Crafts to M. E. Kenny.

The Upper Thumb counties of Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac stayed in Republican ranks in the state election by a vote of better than two to one over Democratic candidates.

Fifteen men are employed in erecting new machine and work shops for Eugene B. Schwaderer, road contractor, at the corner of West and Pine Streets. The new building takes the place of the shop destroyed by fire on Feb. 12.

A new women's council at the Ferris Institute at Big Rapids was elected to serve with the dean of women as an advisory committee. Miss Lucille Stirtan, a student from Cass City, represents the commercial department on this committee.

Carl Schell has decided to be a meat market man and started to learn the trade at the Ricker & Krahling Market.

Set pre-kindergarten registration

The annual pre-kindergarten registration and visitation will take place at Campbell Elementary school April 17 and 18 at 7:00 p. m. in the elementary gym. Rural parents and the child to be enrolled are asked to register Monday night, and town parents and the child to be enrolled are asked to register Tuesday night. A program has been planned for both the parent and the child. The children will visit the kindergarten rooms at this time instead of during the day when other kindergarten classes would have to be dismissed.

Deford parents and their children are to register and visit their school Monday, April 17, from 1:00 to 2:30 p. m. Evergreen parents should register only from 1:00 to 2:30 p. m. April 17. The Evergreen children will visit on another day.

Parents are to bring birth certificates and immunization records for their child to these meetings. Children who are eligible for enrollment must be five years old on or before December 1. The state also requires a pre-school vision test. A free vision and hearing clinic day for all pre-schoolers will be scheduled at each school to meet this requirement. Deford children will be screened April 19, and Campbell Elementary children will be screened April 20 and 21 from 8:30 a. m. to 4:00 p. m. Parents who do not attend the clinic days will have to make appointments with their own doctors to fulfill the state requirement.

Parents who cannot come on the above dates should call the school for an appointment. It is important that all children register early so fall plans can be made.

HALE AND HEARTY at 80 is Miss Mabel Brian who holds roses presented to her for her long career in the Cass City area. The presentation was made by Mrs. Geraldine Prieskorn.

Letter to Editor

Thanks club for help

Dear Mr. Haire and all my friends in Cass City,

With the assistance of the Evergreen Guys & Gals 4-H Club we just finished the second year's collection of "The Friends of Ken Kennedy Easter Seal Drive".

Because Mrs. Dale Leslie, Mrs. Dick Wallace, Sue Kulinski and Paula Decker and my family helped, I can now turn over $205.17 to the Easter Seal Society. This is the second year I have tried to help them and the amount we have been able to collect doesn't even pay back a small part of what they have done for me.

I sure must have some good friends who munch at the Koo Koo Kow as they sure had their canister full.

Every cent we collect is turned over to Easter Seal. Any one regardless of age who needs help should contact Mrs. Lane at Caseville for assistance.

The best collectors from the 4-H Club were Karen Wallace and Debbie Smith. The boys were Steve Agar and Richard Jones.

Thanks again to all of Cass City; without it I wouldn't be going to Delta now.

Thanks,
Ken Kennedy

Light criminal court docket

A light criminal docket was heard before Circuit Court Judge James Churchill, Thursday, March 30. Motion day was held early because the judge is vacationing this week.

George Kelley of Pigeon, formerly of Cass City, pleaded innocent to a probation violation hearing. A hearing is set for April 17 and bond was set at $200. Kelley was arraigned for a probation violation stemming from a police chase March 10. He was placed on probation in August 1968 for carrying a concealed weapon.

Roy Lokatys of Reese pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of unlawfully removing from a vacant building a pump used in the construction of a building. He was originally charged with the breaking and entering of a construction shed belonging to Otto Taylor Co. of Saginaw Nov. 20, 1971. Sentencing is set for April 28.

A motion to dismiss action against Robert Lugo of Saginaw was granted. He was arraigned for possession of marijuana in connection with a Dec. 22 raid in Vassar.

Name 2 to dean's list at Northwood

The Cass City Missionary Church announces the Common Good, an eight-member contemporary singing group from Fort Wayne Bible College, Fort Wayne, Indiana, will participate in their services Sunday, April 9, at 10 a. m., 11 a. m., and 2:30 p. m.

Youth of the church is sponsoring "Coffee Time" Saturday night at the Cultural Center 7 to 12 midnight. The group will be present singing and all youth of the community are invited to the informal service.

Members of the group include Garry Cline, Delta, Ohio; Sheri Egle, Stratton, Nebraska; Louise Heidelberg, Jefferson, Ohio; Dennis Magary, Groveland, Illinois; Nick Miu, Mansfield, Ohio; Cathy Painter, Delaware, Ohio; Bev Rader, Findlay, Ohio, and Al Seawell, Morristown, Indiana.

The group presents musical programs for churches, youth banquets and youth organizations. Four of the members have previously traveled with the Singing Collegians, a 17-voice mixed ensemble from the college. All have had experience in other musical groups. Various members accompany with piano, guitars, banjo, and bass. The goal of the young people in every situation is to communicate their faith in Jesus Christ to today's world in understandable, contemporary music.

Democrats fear threat posed by Wallace in May primary Democratic party officials are genuinely concerned about the threat Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace poses for them in the May primary.

They agree with Wallace's prediction that he'll do better in Michigan than in any other northern state and fear that his strong showing might result in a takeover of the party at some local levels by Wallace people. As a result, they have been working hard at the precinct level to make sure organization Democrats file for precinct delegate spots.

Failure to protect themselves at the precinct level would do serious damage to the party structure, they fear, by allowing Wallace backers, who were content to work in the American Independent Party in 1968, to take over the organization in selected counties and districts.

It is ironic that this Wallace surge is one of the side results of the McGovern Commission's recommendations to open up the party. It can be safely said the party hierarchy didn't have Wallace in mind when they were talking about opening the process.

MONEY SOUGHT

No matter what issues they disagree on, there's one point where this country's political parties are unanimous: they both need lots of money to operate.

Campaign costs are staggering even at the state level. Sen. Robert Griffin is expected to spend more than $1 million trying to keep his seat this year, and it's said Attorney General Frank J. Kelley is gathering almost that much to challenge him.

The experts say it can cost upwards of $50,000 just to get a petition issue onto the ballot. It's no wonder former California House Speaker Unruh once called money "the mother of all politics."

Unfortunately for the parties, a slackening of the economy can create a serious drought in their income especially that which comes on a purely voluntary basis.

To help alleviate the situation in this election year, the two major parties in Michigan have taken a page from the professional fund raisers' book and joined hands in search of money.

They have formed a "political United Fund" and named it the United Political Appeal. The fund is directed by Bob Manardo, director of finance for the Michigan Democratic Party, and Bill Cudlip, director of the Southeastern Michigan United Republican Fund.

Honorary co-chairmen are Gov. William G. Milliken for the Republicans and Secretary of State Richard H. Austin for the Democrats.

Milliken says a program such as the United Political Appeal allows the parties to "broaden the base of interested and involved citizens, and through their financial support, we can bring more qualified people into government."

By concentrating on getting contributions from more people, it helps "bring the party structure closer to the 'grass roots,'" he says.

Austin concurs, saying, "Enlightened interest in the common good will encourage employers to assist with voter registration in offices and promote individual contributions to help finance the soaring cost of political campaigns."

This money pinch is approached from the other direction at the same time in efforts to put ceilings on campaign spending. If you don't have to spend the money, after all, you don't have to raise it. Republicans have taken a new approach by dividing up the state into districts for their in house fund raising, rather than having one state finance chairman.

The theory is that a non-salaried person who has a regular job just doesn't have the time for statewide fundraising. And it's hoped that local people can shake a little more money loose from their fellow party workers than can one man operating out of Lansing.

REDUCES ACCIDENTS

A computer is at work to help cut down on traffic accidents.

Highway officials hope to pinpoint areas where the most accidents occur and figure out what causes them, then make improvements.

Intersection accident diagrams are used to determine when and where spot improvements should be made. The computer allows these checks to be run much more quickly than could be done by people.

In the past year the department has spent more than $2.4 million for improvements at 49 different locations. The changes have resulted in accident reductions of as much as 50 per cent at the sites, the department said.

AGENT'S CORNER

Me? A firebug?

Sherry Lowell, Area Extension Home Economist

Me? A Firebug?!

Yes, you could be the firebug! Most forest and grass wildfires are started accidentally by farmers and homeowners in rural areas when burning debris. Often lack of telephone service and shortage of manpower mean that small fires spread rapidly. Such fires destroyed almost 3,000 acres in Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties alone during 1971. This cost you taxpayers $55,000, according to the Field Office of Department of Natural Resources in Caro.

We can all help! Remember that the fire season starts in April. The rules for debris burning are:

- Burn only if there is NO OTHER METHOD of disposal.
- NEVER burn trash outside in dry weather on windy days.
- ALWAYS have plenty of available help, tools and water nearby.

- DON'T BURN debris near a woods or buildings, or near fields or dry grass.

- Burn AFTER 6 p.m. Nearly all grass fires start between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. when moisture level is low.

- Use only a SAFE METAL CONTAINER with vent holes no larger than 3/4 inch. Make sure material is completely burned up (garbage and mattresses smolder for long periods; avoid burning these).

- If you need to burn outside an incinerator, obtain a burning permit from your local fire chief. CLEAR EVERYTHING away - down to bare ground for 10 feet in all directions before burning.

Some other methods of disposal might be sanitary landfills and compost piles. Not every township has a sanitary landfill; however, some may have garbage and trash pickup service. Compost piles make use of leaves, grass clippings and some garbage to enrich the soil for vegetable or flower gardens, house plants, lawntopping and even producing earthworms.

Do your spring thing this April! Burn only if necessary. Follow the rules to play it safe. Check out other disposal methods. Your Cooperative Extension Service has the bulletin, "Compost will improve the environment."

Report minor area auto accidents

Police authorities investigated several area accidents this week, none serious and none involving injuries.

Dorothy Jean Seeley, 42, of 6404 Third St., Cass City, struck a deer while traveling north on Cemetery Road, 1/2 mile north of Shabbona Road. The accident occurred at 10:50 a. m. Friday.

Gene Allen Stoll, 21, of 6306 Main St., Cass City, escaped injury when the car he was driving was struck by a vehicle operated by James Stewart Patterson, 18, of 2784 E. Caro Road, Caro. Stoll was heading northeast on M-81 when Patterson started to pass him, and lost control in the slush. The mishap occurred about 5:40 p. m. Wednesday, March 29, about one-tenth mile west of Colwood Road.

Cass City police investigated an accident Friday when cars driven by Ronald V. Fritz, 29, of the Huntsville Trailer Park, Cass City, and Beverly Ann Nitz, 27, of 2941 Cemetery Road, Cass City, collided at Main and Maple Streets. Fritz was going south on Maple and didn't see the Nitz vehicle pulling out of a service station because another parked car blocked his view. Neither driver was injured.

New officer

Marine

Corps vet

Donald Miller Jr., 23, started work Monday as Cass City's fourth police officer.

The 6' 3", 230-pound man is an ex-Marine sergeant and served four years in the corps, spending time in Vietnam.

He comes to Cass City from Flint, where he recently completed 20 weeks of police training at the Genesee Community College, which is assisted by the Flint Police Department. Miller and his wife Bridget are looking for a home in Cass City.

He will work with Police Chief Gene Wilson for about a month. The addition of the fourth man will give 23 hour police protection when he begins working alone.

$340 stolen from trailer home

Perry Sadler reported to the Tuscola county sheriff's office the theft of his wallet from his trailer home in the Walnut Trailer Park. The wallet containing $340 was taken from a dresser drawer.

Cass City police investigated the breaking and entering this week of the Damm Agricultural Implement store and the Patrick Doyen home.

Dale Damm, owner of the implement store, reported to police Saturday morning, April 1, that sometime during the night approximately $27 in change and $180 to $180 in bills was stolen from the cash register in the store. The register was unlocked by the key.

Apparently the thieves went up the back stairs of the bakery next door and onto the roof of Damm's, where they made entry into the building through a window, police reports stated. The thieves then made their way down stairs inside the building and forced open a door leading to the store.

The previous Monday, Damm told police, he had found about $3 or $4 missing, but didn't report it.

Sunday 24 boxes of mixed ammunition were taken from the Patrick Doyen home on Pine St., Cass City, sometime between 1 and 6 p. m. when the

Beware fertilizer claims

By Don R. Kebler

It's that time of year again when some half-truths are being told regarding fertilizer and plantfood recommendations. So beware of these statements:

One such line of talk I hear pertains to the attributes of a certain liquid plantfood. The dealer is commenting that his liquid fertilizer is better to use because it is completely available and ready for plant uptake as soon as applied. And this factor makes it more advantageous to use as compared with dry fertilizer.

I can't say he is not correct in saying liquid fertilizer is completely available and ready for plant use at application time. I can say that high analysis, high water soluble dry fertilizer is just as effective for plant use as liquid of the same analysis.

When a seed is planted, it takes several days or longer to germinate, produce roots, leaves and emerge from the soil. During this time the infant plant is using the food of the seed to make this growth. After the seedling emerges, it begins to take up soil nutrients to grow. So it really doesn't make much difference whether a liquid or dry fertilizer is used during planting time because by the time the seedling begins to feed on soil nutrients the dry fertilizer has been dissolving and releasing nutrients into the soil anyway. Once this dissolving has occurred the nutrients in water solution are basically the same, be they from liquid or dry carriers.

A second story I heard really is off-base unless all of a sudden new research findings have occurred. This story is that our alkaline soils should be limed even though they are already well supplied with calcareous lime. I won't expound the story tellers' reasons for this untrue comment. However, the main reason we have fixation of phosphorus, zinc, manganese and boron on our high calcareous alkaline soils is because of a high calcium level.

PRESENTING THE Farm Bureau Services Open Line award is Clare Harrington, president of the Caro Farmers Co-op Elevator board of directors, to Clayton Rohlf, his son, Devere, and grandson, David.

Pre-school nursery sets April for pre-registration

THE FINISHED PRODUCT--a cake with a frosting clown--looks good enough to taste, as some of the youngsters tried.

MOUNDS OF SWEET ICING are enough to keep the attention of the youngsters, but the purpose of the trip Thursday to Konrad's Bakery was to teach the pre-school youngsters about the community.

April is pre-registration month for the Cass City Pre-school Nursery.

Parents who would like to enroll a three to five-year-old preschool youngster can attend a special open house at the nursery Wednesday, April 12, from 9 to 10 a. m., with their child. Registration forms will be available there or can be obtained from Mrs. Lynn Albee at 872-2279 or Mrs. David Starford at 872-3793.

This has been the first year of operation for the nursery, which is one of several hundred licensed cooperative nurseries in Michigan. Cooperatives are organized and maintained by the parents, who hire a qualified teacher. Mothers take turns assisting the teacher. The tuition fee at the Cass City nursery is $1 per day, and the initial registration fee is $5. The class size is limited to 15 three-year-olds and 20 pre-kindergartners (four and five year olds). The former class meets Wednesdays and Fridays; the latter meets Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 9 to 11 a. m. at the Presbyterian Church on N. Seeger St.

Among the many areas the children have explored, says Mrs. Mary Lou Buttery, the nursery teacher, are building large and small muscle coordination through the use of blocks, a wood working bench, cutting, pasting, painting, etc.; experimenting with science using a magnifying glass, planting seeds, caring for goldfish, examining a whole coconut and fresh pineapple; lengthening storytime to build a longer attention span.

Through various games, both individual and group, and colorful wall displays the children have been exposed to colors, shapes, numbers, concepts of left and right, awareness of parts and functions of their bodies. Also included have been manners, emotions, sizes, and growing from baby to adult.

The children have become more aware of the community through field trips to the post office, lumber yard, meat market, and bakery. Other field trips this year will include a visit to Dr. Ed Scollon's veterinary clinic, a farm, and kindergarten.

Further areas to be explored this spring are making and using musical instruments, the five senses, the family and the alphabet.

Mrs. Buttery notes that there are many differences between three and four year olds, and all activities are oriented to their special needs. She also feels that by interacting with each other and the assisting adults, all the children have developed independence and trust of adults other than their parents.

Konrad's bakery is just one of the local businesses that have been visited by the Cass City Pre-school Cooperative Nursery. Teacher Mary Lou Buttery explained that the trips are to introduce the children to their community.

Thursday, Mar. 30, the four year old group watched baker Tom Sutter decorate cookies and cakes for Easter.

PRE-SCHOOL NURSERY student Anne Kordick, 4, watches as baker Tom Sutter arranges the cake he's decorating.

THE NEW KINGSTON MUNICIPAL BUILDING

It was our privilege to help design and to construct the new Kingston Village commercial building. When the interior is finished, it will contain office space, council rooms, house all fire equipment and have room for a workshop and storage area for equipment of the Kingston D. P. W.

The basic construction is Marlette Steel Arches, with Steel H Beam Endwalls, the framing finished with 2" lumber, and fully insulated. The exterior with aluminum enclosed front overhang is finished in high tensile strength strong panel steel. The building is gold steel, trimmed in white.

This type of building construction anchored to a complete concrete footing and wall, gives a more durable and functional structure and many years of quality appearance and service.

See us or phone when in need of a building for commercial, agricultural or industrial purposes. We construct in all-steel as well.
