

FROM THE Editor's Corner

David Merrick, the Broadway producer, hit the news columns of all major media recently after his ads telling that his Chrysler luxury car is a lemon hit the streets.

Like a rock hitting a pool of water his action sparked a wave of similar ads protesting purchases of all makes of cars by disgruntled buyers.

It's probable that every person who ever purchased one has become ticked off to one degree or another by new car troubles.

I'm biting the hand that feeds me when I say it has to be true that one reason for this indignation is the advertising.

Subconsciously we are influenced when the ads say over and over that those brand new cars are quieter than the $34,000 limousine... or that Chevrolet for 1972 is the best the company has ever built... or that when we think of engineering we should think of Chrysler Corporation.

The ads lead to the belief that behind the driver's seat of a new car everything will be perfect.

The trouble comes when we find that it never is.

To one degree or another every car has something that's not quite right or (double trouble) nothing is quite right. In short, it's a lemon.

To try and appease owners the car companies have established hot lines for complaints and spend vast sums for public relations to try and cool the customer that became excited in the first place by expectations that were beyond the realistic.

It's undoubtedly possible to build a car like the ads depict, but there's a serious doubt if one can ever be mass produced that approaches it.

Why not change the ads? Two reasons. In the first place there's no practical way to do it. Second, it probably wouldn't be to the consumer's best interest anyway.

Every time that a car like Merrick's hits the street the pressure builds for better quality control and a better product.

The competition for an edge that can be proclaimed in all of those glowing testimonials helps get us all a better product... most of the time. Not perfect, but a lot better than they were, say five years ago.

It's true that they don't build cars like they used to. They build them better.

Knowing this doesn't help much if the transmission falls out two blocks from the showroom floor. All you can do is scream until it's fixed.

What makes Merrick's case unusual is that he has the clout to be heard.

If more guys like Merrick sounded off like he did, cars would be more perfect than they are.

The more publicity a bad car gets the better it is for the ordinary car buyer.

When the auto giants get enough flak they'll come up with ways to turn a few more of those lemons into sweet tasting plums.

Plums for the average car buyer.

Mrs. Milliken to attend opening of Artrain in Cass City July 20

Mrs. William G. Milliken, wife of the governor and the chairman of the Artrain committee, will attend the opening ceremony of the Artrain in Cass City July 20.

A letter confirming acceptance of the invitation was received June 22 by Mrs. Holly Althaver, local Artrain coordinator.

The coming of Mrs. Milliken will highlight an already exciting schedule of events during the Heritage Week July 20-23.

Mrs. Milliken replied to a letter written by Mrs. Althaver regarding the need for Artrain to continue visiting Michigan and giving communities an opportunity to discover their own art potential.

"I have just received your letter of June 19th and I am so pleased with your expression of the meaningfulness of the Artrain visit. With your permission I would like to send a copy to all of the hardworking members of the Artrain Committee," writes Mrs. Milliken.

Funds to keep Artrain operating are presently being considered in the legislature. Due to the increasing expense in the train's operation, the traveling museum may not be continued next year.

The governor's wife will be honored at a reception at the Cultural Center the morning the train opens and will preside at the opening ceremony.

Sen. and Mrs. Alvin DeGrow, Pigeon, have also accepted an invitation to attend the opening ceremonies. Other elected dignitaries have also been invited.

OPEN AIR CAFE

Plans for a successful Artrain visit are continuing full steam as the workers move ahead.

An open air cafe is being planned for four days in the downtown area. Tables with umbrellas will be set up to lend a festive atmosphere.

Four service clubs—Lions, Rotary, Gavel and Firemen—will man the cafe, serving foot-long hot dogs, soft drinks and ice cream.

SEMINARS

Experts in four art-oriented areas are preparing seminars for presentation during the Artrain visit.

Dr. D. E. Rawson and Mrs. Stanley Kim Sr., both of Cass City, will present a discussion of Chinese art.

From Caro will come Mrs. Gladys Galloway who will speak on china painting; Randy Strey, a young antique bottle collector and dealer; and Mrs. Louina Riley, who will show contemporary flower arranging as an art form.

An automatic slide projector has been made available, enabling slides to be included in the photography show. Entries for the photography, craft and art shows are limited to two per person.

Entrants are reminded that exhibits will be accepted July 8 from 9:30 a. m. to noon and 1-4 p. m. on Monday and Tuesday, July 10-11, from 7-9 p. m. at the Cultural Center.

Work is also begun on the restoration of the old Dillman school house building two miles west of Cass City on M-41. The one-room school is being repainted and cleaned for a craft demonstration building.

Fire destroys motor-home

Vacation plans of the Fred Martin family were thwarted Wednesday night, June 21, when fire spread through their motor-home trailer, destroying the vehicle.

Fred Martin, 5589 Cass City Road, Cass City, said he was working on the trailer in preparation for the vacation trip. He started the engine and it backfired through the carburetor, he said, catching fire.

Elkland township firemen were called to the scene approximately 2 miles west of Cass City about 6:30 p. m. but were unable to save the vehicle, which was burned throughout the interior.

Martin could not estimate the dollar damage done to the two-year-old vehicle.

Set swimming pool bond vote Aug. 22

A giant step was made Tuesday night when the village council moved to set Aug. 22 as the date for a special election to determine the fate of the proposed new swimming pool.

The decision came at the regular meeting held at the municipal building.

The council unanimously, with trustee Bernard Ross absent, voted to authorize a proposal for taking out general obligation bonds for the village's share of approximately $200,000.

The village will have to pay about half of that figure, which is an estimate. Final figures will be worked out by the bonding agents Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone of Detroit. Trustee Dr. D. E. Rawson said that the village's share of the cost may come under the $100,000, but included are utilities, architect and bonding fees, as well as half of the estimated cost of $175,000.

While reluctant to estimate what the rate would be, Rawson gave a ball park figure of 1½ mills over 10 years.

The quest for a new swimming pool began in August 1971 when state health officials closed the pool built in 1938 because it was unable to meet modern sanitation specifications.

The delay in setting a date for a bonding proposal vote has been due to the delay in receiving federal funds to buy the approximately 27 acres known as the Orr East Addition.

The request for federal land and water conservation funds was approved recently, and the village expects to purchase the land within the next 10 days. The total cost is about $3200, of which the village will pay $1600.

A letter of intent to file has been sent to state authorities and the formal request for the pool funds will be made within 30 days.

The title to the land is part of the necessary papers.

If the voters approve the bonding issue, its implementation is subject to the approval of the grant funds. That approval is expected in about 30 days. If all goes well and the voters approve, construction may still begin this fall, said Rawson.

project to Baker Electric who has been serving the village as electrician for a number of years and who, they say, has made emergency calls when needed.

The project involves two separate power lines of buried cable with separate switches, one for each pump. Currently the second well pump is tied directly to the first pump.

A portion of the Jackson parking lot was also approved for a sidewalk cafe during the Artrain July 20-23. Four service clubs will operate the cafe.

An increase in the per capita cost for non-village residents using the sanitary landfill was approved.

The increase in the rates was made while council members were considering the request of Novesta township to use Cass City's landfill because theirs is closing.

The rate per person was raised from $1.50 to $1.75.

The raise was made due to the increased cost of digging trenches and the increased number of trenches needed in an effort to make the landfill pay for itself.

Last year the landfill cost $3668 while income from Ellington and Elkland townships (outside the village) was $2564. The budgeted cost for 1972 is $4300.

The new rate will bring in $5488. The decision becomes effective as soon as the present contracts expire. It also changes the Elkland rate to a per capita figure from a flat fee of $1300.

Eliminate Reservations

In other business, the council voted to drop the reservation system for the picnic area immediately. Trustees deemed that the $5 reservation fee didn't pay the cost of the labor provided by the village in preparing the sites.

From now on reunions and other groups will be able to use the picnic area on a first come-first served basis. The groups that have already deposited their fees with the village will have them returned.

DESPITE THE GRIN, Ed Greenleaf said he will miss his work after he retires from a 40-year career building roads.

Road builder Greenleaf retires after 40 years

Friday Edward Greenleaf officially retires from the Michigan Department of State Highways and isn't any too happy about it.

"This retirement business is as bad as getting a job," he muttered after he returned from a trip to Social Security offices in Saginaw Monday.

The plucky and out-spoken man is finishing a 22-year career with the state and 40 years in the road building business.

As a senior state road inspector, Greenleaf learned everything he knows about road building from E. B. "Chick" Schwarzerer, his boss for 18 years.

Greenleaf explained that he came to Cass City with his family when he was in the eighth grade. After he graduated in 1929 from Cass City High School "One of the most famous and notorious classes to graduate," he said proudly—he worked briefly on a boat of the Pittsburgh Steam Co. in Ohio, but then returned to Cass City in 1930 when he began working for Schwarzerer.

He started out as a truck driver and then learned how to operate the big road building machines.

He proudly displayed a belt buckle he still wears, a tribute indicating that he is a certified operator, probably one of the oldest in the state, he added.

"You had to know your stuff to get those buckles," he stated. He received the certification about 1942.

He became a foreman under Schwarzerer, and helped with the construction of numerous air bases and airports during World War II.

"During World War II," he noted, "all road contractors had to work on military projects or the government would take the machinery away from you."

He helped construct, among others, Willow Run (Ford's) airport near Ypsilanti, and Romulus Air Base, now Detroit Metropolitan.

When Schwarzerer retired in 1948—Greenleaf was a foreman then—he was out of a job but was sought after by the state highway department who knew his reputation.

Working for the state has been a rewarding and enjoyable experience for the senior road inspector. One of 40 men in the state with that rank, he had three to five men working under him, making sure contractors built the roads the right way.

"Unless I said he did it right and according to the book and put my seal of approval on it, he didn't get paid," Greenleaf said.

He helped build I-75 between Flint and Bay City, and US-25 from the M-46 intersection to Huron City, as well as other major roads in the Flint, Saginaw, Bay City and Thumb area.

He fondly remembered his first job with the state commission when he built M-25 from Bay Port south.

"It's still just as nice after 22 years," the expert road maker said.

"I'm proud of my jobs," he continued, explaining how he was called crazy when he built M-46 from M-24 to M-53, digging deep and building high to make a road that would stay over the "muck hole."

In 22 years of hard work, Greenleaf has seen a lot of changes in building roads besides the equipment used.

"My gosh! When I first started working we got away with murder," he said, but in the past 40 years the restrictions have been strengthened considerably.

"Everything has to be tested, even the water," he stated.

Without seeming to boast, Greenleaf said that he tried to maintain good relations between the department and the contractors and operators.

"When a man would go for a drink of water, I would jump on the machine and make a trip for him," he said.

As a one-time road builder himself, Greenleaf knew when and where the contractors might try to cheat.

"Lots of times I'd catch them cheating," he chuckled. When they asked him how he knew when he wasn't there, he'd say, "If I were in your place, I'd probably do the same thing."

But as inspector, he'd make them change it and do it right. After a hectic schedule, Greenleaf is not too pleased with the slow pace of retirement. He's been on sick leave for awhile following an accident, a heart attack and an operation, and is still worrying about a section of I-75 that was his job and is still undone.

But at age 63, he's looking forward to some traveling, hunting and fishing and just taking it easy at his home at 6536 Garfield.

BY JIM FITZGERALD

The U. S. Supreme Court, in its lofty wisdom, has ruled it is legal for the Elks and the Moose and other private clubs to refuse to serve booze to Negroes.

Isn't that marvelous? An important blow has been struck for the right of privacy.

This particular dispute was started by Lelroy Irvis, the majority leader of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives. A member of the Harrisburg Moose lodge invited Irvis inside for dinner. The lodge refused to serve him. Irvis is black. I guess Moose are white. I don't know for sure because I'm not positive I ever saw a Moose. Are they the ones that wear strange hats and shake hands funny?

Anyway, Irvis went to court. He charged that because the club held a liquor license from the state, it was subject to the 14th amendment guarantee of equal rights and could not practice racial discrimination. A lower federal court agreed with Irvis, but the Supreme Court didn't by a 6-3 vote.

The majority opinion ruled the liquor license didn't make "the state in any realistic sense a partner." In the club's enterprise. In a losing cause, the dissenting judges said the liquor licensing law state sanction "to the sordid business of racial discrimination."

OK, the majority has spoken, that's how the system works, and God bless all Nixon appointees who win Senate approval.

But let's get back to that part where I said I'm not sure what a Moose looks like. This hits on something that has bugged me for many years.

The bigots have a tremendous advantage over us bleeding hearts. They can recognize a Negro 2 blocks away, giving them plenty of time to turn their backs, hide their sisters, douse the lights or hang up the "no vacancy" sign. A really good bigot also needs only 1 quick glance to recognize a Jew or a Puerto Rican or an Indian or a yellow hook.

But how can you recognize a bigot before it's too late? There are no distinguishing physical characteristics, such as purple complexion or vertical eyes. You might buy a guy a drink and invite him home for dinner before you learn that he genuflects reverently toward Argentina every noon just in case Hitler is still alive and well.

Rep. Irvis probably had no idea he would be humiliated at the Harrisburg Moose lodge. I'm sure there are some Moose lodges that would have welcomed him. If he had known that these particular Moose were racists, he might well have eaten at Howard Johnson's instead. Few people want to go where they will be spit on. There should be a law forcing the Harrisburg lodge and other such clubs to hang out signs listing exactly which people are not welcome inside. This would save a lot of embarrassment. It would also let outsiders know where the local jerks can be seen, in case they have some spare time after visiting the zoo.

But this wouldn't solve the problem of quickly identifying the individual racist once he has crawled out from under his marked rock. Perhaps he could be required to wear a special lapel pin. It could be sort of a ruptured Negro, with a boot kicking his fanny, with a swastika in the background.

Racists can tell at a glance who to hate. It should be equally as easy to spot a racist before he starts spitting. Fair is fair, as the Supreme Court should agree.

I don't want to guess who's coming to dinner. If it's a Harrisburg Moose, I want to know in time to paint my daughter black.

In case you've forgotten an important meeting is scheduled Thursday night, June 29, when changing the zoning for a 10-acre site for the proposed new skilled nursing home will be considered.

On the action of the council at the 7 p. m. meeting in the Cultural Center rests the future of the $1 million facility here.

The meeting is open to the public and rarely has there been one on which so much may depend.

Sherwood Forest Country Club at Gagetown was a busy place Tuesday, Thursday and Friday last week. That's because the Office of Economic Opportunity held two confabs there.

Tuesday they held a small Business Administration conference and invited local businessmen to attend.

Thursday and Friday about 30 OEO workers gathered from various Michigan offices for a conference on the "Art of Obtaining Private Money", according to a representative of the OEO in Caro. They were housed in the motel overlooking the golf course and pool.

It was business mixed with pleasure. Thursday night the group was entertained by a band hired especially for the night and the plush country club atmosphere must have added to the enjoyment and the expense of the conference.

Did you happen to notice that the traditional white broken lines on M-81 that denote the center of the road were repainted and the color changed to yellow.

Why? That's what we tried to learn without success. Ed Greenleaf who has been connected with roads longer than most of us have lived said he had no idea.

Workers in both the office and the garage at the Tuscola County Highway Commission haven't the faintest about the switch.

I suppose the way to go was to the State Highway Department for the answer, but before I do I thought just for fun I'd ask you about it. You tell me and I'll tell the world (the world around Cass City, that is).

Tim Grassman has had a Golden Retriever accepted for the Leader Dog School at Rochester. This information came our way from Alger Freiburger who knows just how unusual this is.

There are, relatively, lots of guys as generous as Grassman, willing to donate their pets. The trick is getting a dog that qualifies. A dog accepted is a special breed of cat. It doesn't chase other cats or dogs and, of course, must be a canine brain to do everything that a Leader Dog does.

If you want to find out for yourself just call the school, Alger says. Tours are welcomed in the Lions sponsored facility.

Tuscola county fair premium books on way to exhibitors

OFF THE PRESS--Tuscola County Fair President Walter Jackson (left) and Bernard Jardot, Tuscola County 4-H Director, take a look at the 1972 Tuscola County Fair Premium Book. The county fair starts July 31 and runs through August 5 this year.

Local exchange students speak to Rotary Tuesday

Miss Cara Prieskorn and Paul Prangle, Rotary sponsored exchange students, told the Cass City Rotary Club of activities at the club's regular Tuesday luncheon at the Hotel Restaurant.

Prangle, who is in the midst of a year's stay as a guest from New Zealand, told of a week's stay at Camp Rotary's leadership training school and said he considered it an "outstanding program".

Miss Prieskorn told of her upcoming year in Rhodesia as a Rotary-sponsored student.

She said that after attending briefing sessions about the program and meeting some of the students who will participate in the program she is excited about her upcoming visit.

She will leave in about two months and will stay with a family in Rhodesia, much the same as Prangle has been the guest of families in Cass City.

The 1972 Tuscola County Fair Premium Books are off the press!

Publication of the 91st annual Tuscola County Fair Premium book signals the start of the countdown to the fair's opening on Monday, July 31, as hundreds of Thumb area residents begin final preparation on their 1972 fair exhibits and displays.

According to Fair President Walter Jackson, more than 4,000 competitive displays and exhibits are expected at this year's fair. They will range from entire herds of dairy cattle to delicate handcraft objects.

This year's premium book features a colored cover, depicting the colorful interior of the 4-H and FFA Exhibition Hall which annually displays the work of hundreds of Tuscola county youngsters in everything from gardening to sewing.

The big 152-page booklet will be going into the mails shortly to potential exhibitors. The book is available at the Tuscola County 4-H office in the basement of the county jail building or may be procured by writing to The Tuscola County Fair Association, Caro, Michigan.

The booklet contains a complete listing of all fair officials and their telephone numbers as well as the latest state regulations covering fair exhibitions.

Included in the open class section of the book are premium listings for the horse, cattle, sheep, swine, tractor pulling, farm products, floriculture, home canning and preservation, fine arts and hobbycraft, Christmas tree, needlecraft, bees and honey and horse pulling departments.

The final 55 pages of the book contain the premium listings for this year's expanding 4-H and FFA Youth Exhibition.

Tuscola County Fair's annual premium book is made possible each year by the generous support of Thumb-area businessmen. This year some 171 businessmen placed advertisements in the book.

"We are grateful to these businessmen for their generous support of our premium book," commented Jackson. "It helps us produce a much better-looking and more complete premium booklet and adds a great deal to the financial success of this area-wide exhibition."

This year's fair book was edited by Jackson in cooperation with the departmental heads, with the advertising sales for the book being handled by Mrs. Madelyn Dembowske of Caro.

Dr. P. A. Schenck has been chosen president of the Caro Golf Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Caister and the Misses Doris and Elsie Pringle returned from a trip to Portland, Oregon, where they visited their grandmother, Mrs. John McCool, and other relatives. They made the trip by automobile driving 6500 miles and traveling through sixteen states.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

One of the fellers remarked at the country store recent that newspaper readers was getting smarter. He had saw this pole that claimed the average reader was up to brains of a 18 year old, stead of a 12 year old where he was a few years back. Mister Editor, I been working on that pole and I still don't know how to figger it.

Tallus heard, fer instanc, that people are in their best fiscal shape at 16 and their smartest at 20, and after that they jest git sicker and dumber. Be that as it may, they's a heap of ways to look at that pole. According to the scale, going from 12 to 18, they figger people keep getting smarter and smarter. After a while they may start from the other end and say the average voter has the mind of a 50 year old, a big improvement over a few years ago when he was only smart as a 70 year old.

Mister Editor, I don't know nothing and I git that mixed up, but I still figger a feller can git hisself at least a 18 year old's education jest reading the papers, so I go along with the pole that far. The other day, fer instanc, I saw where some scientist said the worm in the apple had got more vitamins than the apple. He could be saying a worm a day will keep the doctor away, but I like to think he's saying that worms is better fer fish than apples.

Another piece I saw in the paper was where a sychiatrist said the trouble with people is they "blow $10 worth of energy on a 10-cent problem." That same day, Senator William Proxmire said $5 million in tax money was spent on a travel display that never got set up at Dulles International Airport, and all we got fer our money was first class hotel rooms and plane trips fer the travel experts, and stacks of worthless display directions that figgered out at $30,000 a page. I think that kind of waste is a $10 problem, but the Government ain't worrying a dime about it.

A example of a 10-cent problem, in my opinion, is which medical school to will yore body to. I see by the papers where the big name schools got more carcuses give to em than they can use, while them studying medicine at little schools ain't got nobody to practice on. It seems everbody rather their children could say their pa died and went to Harvard than to Podunk. I can't see where the choice is worth 10 cents worth of energy.

Contrary, I see all this in the papers about recycling everything from cars to beer bottles as a $10 problem that needs all the energy we can give it. We got to understand, like one feller said, that you can't recycle a sow's ear and come up with a silk purse. When we reuse paper we can't git the recycled paper near food, cause we recycle the germs right with it. Recycling ain't re-creating, that job's to big fer us.

BETTER HEALTH

Funny vision migraine symptom

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. CCC, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

Thousands of persons will occasionally note that their vision has suddenly become fuzzy, and a minute or so later, on closing the eyes, the person can see a bright little zig-zag line that pulsates. This line quickly lengthens and then tends to bend outward to one side or the other. Sometimes it is bordered by a band of color.

In 20 minutes, the line disappears over the outer side of the field of vision, and again the person's vision is normal. I can read during a scotoma spell, but it is difficult.

What I have described is a typical "scintillating scotoma" (in Greek, SCOTOMA means a spot). Such spots come to migrainous persons, and in men they usually are the only symptom of migraine. I have had scotomas all my life and I never had the headache or nausea that most migrainous women get.

Many a person, when he got his first scotoma, thought he was going blind. I am sorry to say that quite a few such people told me that they were not immediately reassured when told what their trouble was, even by the oculists whom they consulted. I know a well-to-do woman who had her brain explored surgically for a typical and harmless migrainous scotoma.

Fortunately, I have always been able to reassure the person who is worrying about such a scotoma, because I have known hundreds of men who, like me, were bothered by them for many years without getting any loss of vision.

People have been having such scotomas and making note of them since ancient times. I have found references to them in the literature of the ancient Sumerians, who wrote perhaps 1,000 or 2,000 years before the time of Christ.

Many years ago I read a paper by a chemist who said that the fact that the scotoma always disappears in 20 minutes means that there is a chemical storm in a spot in the brain which causes the phenomenon. It takes just 20 minutes for this chemical process to run its course.

What I don't remember having read is that the scintillating scotomas almost always come, between 10 and 12 a. m. Rarely do I get one in the afternoon, and it is even more rare for me to get one at night. Once or twice, only, I have awakened in the middle of the night with one. A year or two ago, I had what I very rarely had experienced before—three scotomas, one right after the other, within a few hours. Then for a year I thought I was done with them. But now, again, I have one in perhaps two months.

That able neurologist of Cincinnati, Dr. C. D. Aring, wrote about this interesting topic in the Journal of the American Medical Association. He said that he had many manifestations of migraine between puberty and the age of 40 years, when he became relatively free from them. But now they have come back with considerable frequency. He might have a half dozen over a period of two days. He said he never had them at night, in the evening or in the early morning. My experiences have been largely like his.

I would be interested in hearing about the experiences of my readers with their scintillating scotomas. It would be a good idea to keep a diary of UNUSUAL foods eaten just before a scotoma occurs, to see whether there is any particular food that keeps showing up on the list. Then the person could avoid the food, and see if the scotomas stop coming. He might also note, as I have, whether the scotoma comes at a particular time of the day, or after any psychic or emotional storm.

I am satisfied that my scotomas are my small share of the migraine that so bothered my mother. When a migraine hit her, she might spend a day in a darkened room, where the least noise bothered her a great deal. Such spells came when she had been tired or emotionally upset about something. Men rarely have the severe unilateral (on one side) headache with nausea or vomiting that migrainous women often get. The men generally have only the scotoma. I have seen headaches with nausea and vomiting in a few men, but such men were all intensely nervous and brainy.

The important thing to remember about a scintillating scotoma is that it does not harm the eyes. In twenty minutes it will be gone, and there may only be a temporary feeling of fatigue. There is no need for treating one with medicine, because it is over so quickly.

What are the characteristics of a migraine headache? How is an attack produced? Is there any way of avoiding migrainous spells? Dr. Alvarez answers these and other questions in his valuable booklet "Migrain or Sick Headaches." For your booklet send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to

Thomas Park buried in Cass City

Funeral services were held Saturday for Thomas C. Park, 83, who died Tuesday, June 20, at the home of his daughter in Southfield.

He was born Sept. 6, 1888, in Detroit, and was a World War I veteran.

Park was a resident of the Ann Arbor area for the past 25 years and was employed with the University of Michigan. He moved six months ago to Southfield.

Surviving are two sons: John of the U. S. Navy stationed at San Diego, Calif., and Leonard of Winston-Salem, N. C.; one daughter: Mrs. Walter E. (Mary) Butler of Southfield; eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild; also several cousins in Canada. Burial was in Cass City.

ODD BUT TRUE

Never in history have people lived so well before - or so many so far behind.

Especially on Independence Day, we tend to regard our problems as unique, don't we? And in the bustling, troubled world of today we think of the past as pleasant and serene.

This "rush-hour" scene of 1900 seems miniature when compared with the urban traffic jams of today. But it illustrates that the "olden" days were not entirely rosy. Indeed, sanitation was poor, infant mortality prevalent, roads unpaved and one-room school-houses common.

Yet our ancestors, with an optimistic spirit based on faith in God, met and solved these problems, and we are indebted to them.

Today we face a different set of problems, and there's another big difference: the impact of the Church on our lives has waned. YET TODAY WE NEED THE CHURCH MORE THAN EVER—to provide us with a voice of hope and understanding.

BIG CAPACITY - that's one of the features of this giant new oven at Sommer's Bakery. Stuart Merchant says that now 160 loaves of bread will come spewing out in each baking and come out faster than the small-capacity oven that it replaced.

Polish Food

Festival

Two hundred Tuscola county 4-H leaders, members and guests feasted on Polish foods at their midday Food Festival Tuesday, June 20, at the 4-H Memorial Building. About twenty 4-H Foods and Nutrition Clubs participated by preparing a variety of traditional food dishes and colorful center-pieces.

Miss Eileen Green, Caro, acted as mistress of ceremonies. She introduced Mrs. Wanda Perry from Caro, who talked about her visit to Poland several years ago and showed the group several hand-wrought treasurers that she had purchased in Poland.

The program planning was a joint venture of the three member Foods Developmental Committee consisting of Mrs. Keith Green, Caro; Mrs. Henry Airgood, Caro; and Mrs. Donald Stoll, Unionville, and the Tuscola County 4-H Youth Program of Cooperative Extension Service.

The University of Michigan was one of nine schools in 1971 to form a unique nonprofit corporation--the Common Fund for Nonprofit Organizations--to arrange for professional investment management of college and school endowment funds.

Spraying eases ironing

Sherry Lowell, Area Extension Home Economist

Improve the appearance of your washed garments and restore the body lost in washing with spray starch or fabric finish.

Although both work well on damp or dry washable fabrics, starch gives firm body or crispness while fabric finish provides light body. Also, fabric finish is especially suitable for synthetics, permanent press and blends because it responds well to the lower iron temperature settings recommended for these fabrics.

These laundry aids make washing easier since dirt is deposited on the coated surface rather than embedded in the fibers. Thus, soil washes out easily.

If sticking is a problem while using these aerosol products, check for excess moisture in the fabric or improper iron temperature setting. Where a low setting is needed, it may be wise to switch from starch to fabric finish which permits smooth ironing at low temperatures. Remember to spray dark washables on the wrong side to eliminate shine.

For satisfactory and economical use of sprays, follow instructions for use. Often a "faulty" can has not been "declogged" after use. Most labels suggest shaking the contents before use, holding can at the proper angle, and finally, cleaning the spray opening.

County boards also face redistricting difficulties

The attention in the field of reapportionment this year was focused on reshaping Congressional and legislative districts.

That's because the changes made in those fields affect lawmaking bodies which oversee the nation and the state respectively.

But those aren't the only areas mapmakers have been working. All 83 of Michigan counties have had to remake the districts from which their boards of supervisors are elected. This must be based on the 1970 census.

And there have been just about as many difficulties in county map drawing activities as there were for the Congressional and legislative ones. And like the others, many of the county plans ended up in the courts.

Some 24 counties had the plans adopted for them by county reapportionment commissions challenged in the Michigan Court of Appeals. Only five of the challenged counties had their plans upheld by the court.

One of the other counties--Gogebic-- was ordered to hold at-large elections for its five-man board of commissioners. The other 18 were ordered to redraw their maps to more closely comply with the one-man, one-vote doctrine which now is the primary governing force in the drawing of representative districts in any size governmental unit.

Each of the 18 counties was able to satisfy the Court of Appeals the second time around.

The fact that 59 counties did not have their plans challenged in the courts does not automatically mean all of those counties have good reapportionment plans.

The Court of Appeals has authority only to review apportionment plans for county boards of supervisors where a registered voter in the county challenges the plan in court. This is a basic concept in the Anglo-American system of jurisprudence which is known as "party initiative."

The courts can't reach out and determine other cases they would like to consider. Courts in our system can only be involved with cases brought to them by parties having an interest in the case which has a legal remedy.

So because 59 counties were not challenged in court merely means no one in them wanted to bother with an appeal. In all probability some of them have apportionment plans that would be ruled unconstitutional if challenged.

WORKFAIR NOT WELFARE

Some topics never have a good thing said or written about them.

Included in that list of things never written about in a flattering manner is litter. No one is about to contend that litter is good. It isn't.

But Michigan litterbugs are having one "beneficial" result again this year. They're providing jobs for more than 200 young people who come from poverty backgrounds.

A total of 276 persons are being provided jobs under a specially funded program called the "Inner City Youth Program."

Those hired by the program are 16 and 17-year-old boys and girls referred to the Highway Department by local social agencies.

They will perform other minor maintenance chores, such as equipment care and tending of roadside plantings, but their major job is picking up after those thoughtless or messy people who strew empty cans, bottles, paper and other waste products along Michigan roadways.

"The extra help comes when we need it most--June through August--when litter literally buries our regular maintenance crews," says State Highway Director Henrik Stafseth.

"In the two years we have conducted the program, it has proved effective and successful in many ways: cleaner highways; freeing our regular crews for heavier highway maintenance; jobs and income for youngsters; and for many youngsters, their first work experience."

Litter will never be a good thing, of course. But the program is an example of how even bad things can sometimes have beneficial offshoots. The more important aspect of the program is that public funds can be used to finance programs which benefit the public directly as well as provide money and work for one segment of society. An example of "workfair" over welfare.

Retiring Register of Deeds Profit will miss keeping county records

When the new year rolls around William Profit will be leaving a public office he's held for 21 years and a job he's loved ever since he became Tuscola County's Register of Deeds.

Profit is a small man whose smooth face belies his almost 75 years, and his age is one of the reasons he's retiring. He said he's had some pressure to stay on the job, but doesn't think those persons realize how old he is.

He was appointed to fill a vacancy June 11, 1951. He confided with a chuckle that he didn't think there'd be anything to filling the post, until he went to work.

"I didn't know a thing," he said.

Formal education wasn't a prerequisite for the man who has learned the ins and outs of keeping track of the exchange of parcels of land and the mortgages placed on them.

Profit was born in 1897 near Cass City and finished his formal schooling after 8 years in the Bird country school. He later joined the Gagetown Masonic Lodge when he was 21 and began moving through the chairs of the organization.

"I owe the Masonic Lodge a lot," he said, explaining that he gained confidence through the lectures required by the society. It led to a career of public service.

He was elected to the school board of Winton School, Elkhart District No. 3, in 1927, and served on that board until it merged with Cass City. This was the first exposure to public service the quiet man had.

Profit was elected to the board of supervisors for Elkhart township in 1935, a post he held for 7 years, and then was appointed to serve on the Road Commission. After 7 more years, he was back as a supervisor, a post he held for three years when he was appointed to the Register of Deeds. At that time he was chairman of the supervisors.

Since his appointment to his present position, Profit has learned the technicalities of recording, keeping his two women helpers and deputy register Clara Schriber informed of the changes as they have come about.

"I don't like arguments," stated Profit. That's the reason he has loved his job so much, because people seek advice and help from him in keeping their records straight, and when they're gone, he knows he has done them a service and they appreciate it.

"It's very seldom anyone comes with a chip on their shoulder," he added.

Profit contrasted his present position with the time he was on the road commission. "There were always arguments," he said. "You couldn't even go out for a social evening without somebody asking something."

As register of deeds, Profit has seen some changes in his office but many things are still done the same.

The deeds are still recorded by a photostat machine, a large imposing camera affair that greets a newcomer to the office in the county court house in Caro.

That machine was installed in 1947 and has just about out-lived its usefulness, Profit said. The vault which protects the documents in their bound volumes is almost full, and even though pictures of the documents are fool-proof when it comes to making mistakes, they're too big.

He predicts that soon everything will have to be put on micro film.

The vault holds deeds, mortgages, personal property, discharges and probate records dating back to 1850 when the county government was formed.

Other duties he performs as register of deeds is to approve subdivisions before the plans go to Lansing. He's chairman of the county plat board, and is also a member of the finance committee.

One of the striking changes in the kinds of deeds handled by the recorder's office is the size of the land parcel, said Profit.

"We used to get a lot of farms," he said. "Now there's hardly any farms sold anymore."

Most of the turnover is on small parcels of land from one to 10 acres in size, more in the southwest corner of the county where families from the cities are buying up land for a small trailer to escape the crowded metropolitan area for the summer, said Profit.

When he leaves his office, Profit said he doesn't think the newcomer will need him for help since he's kept his staff well informed.

"I know I'm going to have a big adjustment," said the man, claiming he had no hobbies.

But he added that he decided it was time to make the decision to retire. Traveling is high on his list of things to do, he explained.

"I've never taken an extended vacation since I've worked here," he related. Even so, he said he'd miss the job.

RETIRING REGISTER OF DEEDS William Profit compares the present method of photostating deeds to the original hand-written records.

Dedicate new county garage

Perseverance by local officials was the key which led to the approval of the $600,000 new Tuscola County Road Commission Garage. This was the message sent by Congressman Jim Harvey, Michigan's Eighth District, at formal groundbreaking ceremonies for the new garage Friday. Congressman Harvey, who had to cancel a planned personal appearance at the ceremonies because of Congressional legislative activities, was represented by his Administrative Assistant Jim Sparling who delivered the Congressman's remarks.

The new garage, to be constructed some two miles south of Caro just off M-24, received a grant of $480,000 through a special Public Works Impact Program. Economic Development Administration, Department of Commerce.

Congressman Harvey praised the work and effort of the Tuscola County Road Commission and singled out the contributions made by Alton Reavey, Shuford Kirk, Bob Wellington, and Jim Collison, the latter the Director of the East Central Michigan Economic Development District Committee.

Harvey's message continued, "As many of you know, our early efforts to convince the EDA of the merits of the project proved unsatisfactory. There was been competition by other projects throughout the mid-west. In November, I decided to take it up with the White House to get a high level review."

Harvey continued, "But this wasn't the final solution. Quite simply, we are going to have a new Tuscola County Road Commission Garage because it was established without question that it was desperately needed and that the project met every single criteria under the program."

Approve $60,000 for mental health clinic

Another step in the creation of a working Act 54 mental health clinic was made Tuesday afternoon when Tuscola County Commissioners approved a proposed budget of $60,000.

The formal budget is necessary in order to apply for state funds to match county monies on a 75-25 basis.

The budget provides for salaries for a clinical social worker, a psychologist and a secretary-bookkeeper, plus a contracted professional worker. Personnel is budgeted at $34,400.

The county does not expect to hire anyone before September, although the budget is for a whole year.

The clinic is expected to be set up in offices in the same building as social services west of Caro on M-31.

The commissioners also approved a motion to buy a $600 calculator for the equalization department.

Unbeaten Yanks clinch Little League title

It was a big week for the defending champion Yankees in the Cass City Little League as they successfully held on to the regular season title again in 1972 with three victories last week to remain undefeated in eight starts for the season.

With two games to play the second place Pirates and third place Tigers both have three losses.

Yankees—Pirates

The Yanks eliminated the Pirates from an outside chance for the title Monday, June 19, with a 13-3 decision. Jeff Hartel went the distance for the Yanks while Dean O'Harris took the loss for the Pirates.

The Yanks showed balance as every starter in the line-up except one garnered at least one hit. Clarke Haire, Hartel, Dean Severance, Terry Vollmer and Tony Doerr each collected two hits. For the Pirates, Bill Shagene singled to drive in a run and walked twice. Hartel whiffed six and O'Harris struck out seven.

Cubs—Yankees

The Yanks put on their hitting clothes Wednesday night to pound out a 25-8 decision over the Cubs. Tim Severance started for the Yanks and pitched three scoreless innings before Tim Johnson pitched for the first time in his career and allowed eight runs over the last 3 innings.

For the Yanks, Tony Doerr slammed two doubles in two tries while Johnson slammed three hits in five times at bat. Don Doerr slammed three hits in four tries for the Cubs.

Tigers—Giants

The Tigers ran off to an early lead and hung on for a narrow victory in a 19-16 slugfest victory over the Giants.

Ken Martin started and received credit for the win. He was relieved by Rusty Hoag in the sixth. Ernie Stoutenburg took the loss for the Giants. The Tigers slammed 18 hits including an inside the park home run by Mike Richards. Hoag picked up four hits and Martin and Jack Kappen, three each, for the winners.

Yankees—Tigers

The Yanks nailed down the championship Saturday afternoon with a 9-4 decision over the Tigers. A big second inning in which the champs scored six runs on three hits spelled the difference in the game. A base-loaded triple by Jeff Hartel was a key blow.

Clarke Haire pitched the distance to get the win. He struck out six, allowed five hits and walked one. Mike Richards took the loss. He allowed seven hits, struck out five and walked six.

Martin slammed two hits in three tries to lead the losers. Hartel with two for three led the Yanks.

Twins chosen co-presidents of state group

Mrs. Carolyn Blades and Mrs. Cathryn Okerstrom were elected co-presidents of the Michigan Twin Association at the convention held this week end in Southfield.

The identical twins were co-secretaries last year. Mrs. Blades said she was disappointed no other twins from this area attended the convention.

Next year the meeting will be held in June in Cadillac.

1967 Corvette: $8000 car features accessories for livin' it up

It doesn't have built-in plumbing but it does have just about everything else, including a price to match.

It's a prize winning 1967 Corvette StingRay and it proves that when money's no object it's possible to do strange and wonderful things to an automobile.

The car cost $8,000 to build and was sold this month for a bargain $5,000.

Of course the car is now third hand. It was built to exhibit in the special sports car class competition held at Cobo Hall, Wayne St. Onge, Bad Axe, explained, and it won first place in its class in 1971.

St. Onge, who has worked in the Thumb area and previously lived near Cass City, purchased it from the builder for about what he sold it for this week, $5,000.

The outside of the car conjures visions of a psychedelic bomb. Even parked it looks racy.

The outside of the car conjures visions of a psychedelic bomb. Even parked it looks racy.

The basic car design has something to do with this, of course, but so does the paint job. It's a mass of different colors intermingled in flowing lines. It was painted by Gary Forbes of Port Sanilac. St. Onge calls him an artist. And he should be at the price for this kind of painting. It took four months and $2,500 to complete.

It's got all the standard power options that you'd expect plus some goodies that you wouldn't. Right now there are 350 horses under the hood.

Before St. Onge bought it the car boasted 500 horsepower, but he reduced it. It will still cruise along at 160 miles per hour. Fast enough for highway use. St. Onge said with a grin.

Other features included four on the floor, extra wide tires at a cost of $500 and an undercarriage painted with metal flak.

Cars like this draw thieves like honey draws bees and the builder allowed for it. There is a siren type burglar alarm. Open a door, lift the hood or trunk and an alarm much like an ambulance siren sounds.

It's needed because there is a lot to steal. In the center of the dash there is a television. It has a miniature 3 by 4-inch screen and it works. Tired of looking at the boob tube? Switch to your favorite music with the automatic tape recorder. Or better yet, just slip into the back and nestle down on the inch thick luxurious black Mohair carpet.

While it's definitely not the family man's car it does have certain intangibles for the young single man.

It draws a crowd wherever it goes and there is never any trouble finding something to talk about while getting acquainted.

You can always tell about the car's features for a couple of hours before getting around to other, perhaps even more important, things.

Final rites held for John Ritchie

Final rites were held Friday for John Ritchie, 72, who died Wednesday, June 21, in Hills and Dales Hospital following a long illness.

He was born near Cass City Feb. 22, 1900, to the late Mr. and Mrs. William and Elizabeth Ritchie.

In earlier years he worked the family farm near Gagetown.

He is survived by two sisters: Mrs. Stanley Muntz, Cass City, and Mrs. Elizabeth Norris, Sandusky; five nieces and three nephews.

Services were conducted from the Hunter Funeral Home, Gagetown, with the Rev. Paul Amstutz officiating. Burial was in Elmwood cemetery.

Al Bosch pitches perfect game for Erla nine

Erla's slipped a notch in the Thumb Traveling League in games during the week even though they won two of three games played.

The Foodmen were whipped, 7-3, by Vassar State Bank last Wednesday and then came back to win over Unionville Corner Store, 12-0, Thursday and Fairgrove Monday, 6-0.

It was too much Mel Albrecht for Erla's against Vassar. The fireballer struck out 10 and allowed six hits.

Only Dick Creason had no trouble with Albrecht. He slammed three hits in three tries including a home run and drove in all of Erla's runs. Dick Suhr allowed nine hits and whiffed seven to be charged with the loss.

UNIONVILLE GAME

Cass City got back on the winning trail behind Suhr Thursday. Suhr set down Unionville with just two hits while his mates slashed out 12 hits for as many runs. Walt Hempton hit for the circuit and John Langhorne and Suhr picked up two hits each.

PERFECT GAME

For one of the few times this year, Erla's was at home Monday.

For this one Al Bosch moved in and that was the ball game. The Foodmen's premier chuck-er tossed a no hitter and struck out 16 of the 21 batters he faced. It was a perfect game as no Fairgrove player reached first base.

Meanwhile, Hempton, Ruby and Duclear were each collecting two hits in the 8-hit attack to salt away the victory.

Monday Erla's will play two key games that were rained out. In the opener Mayville will be the opposition.

The nightcap will pit undefeated Akron Merchants against Erla's. If Bosch is on hand to do the pitching an outstanding game is expected.

Both games will be played at Mayville.
