

FROM THE
Editor's Corner

There is a barrel of questions that have been churning around inside lately that I would be happy to answer only nobody has asked.

So I'll ask them for you and answer them, too. Only a column writer or a politician has this privilege.

QUESTION—I know that you favor a new swimming pool and feel that it's worth what it costs to get it, but is an outdoor pool really going to answer our needs?

I have to go along with Jim MacTavish (at least part way) on this. What we really should have is an indoor pool attached to the school.

That's something that would be used 12 months of the year and without a doubt be the single most used facility in Cass City. That's what we should have, but realistically we are going to have to wait for another day to get it.

The taxpayer just isn't ready for it and granting this we'll just have to limp along with a make-shift arrangement.

QUESTION—Do you see any difficulty in approval of the bonding issue for the pool come Aug. 22?

We've gone a year without a pool and survived and it's probable we could go on the same way. But we had a pool here before anybody in the Thumb and there are enough taxpayers who remember so that come election day a bonding issue will coast through without serious opposition.

QUESTION—How come school is starting Aug. 28 this year instead of after Labor Day like usual?

Primarily because you didn't indicate you cared when asked last spring. Before teacher negotiations started the administration asked what school schedule you wanted and the silence was deafening.

So when the teachers requested an earlier start with a vacation in the spring it was quickly okayed.

Starting school before Labor Day seems awful soon and a vacation day one short week after school starts seems pointless but that's the way the ball bounces.

That's always the way it bounces when parents and school electors aren't interested. It's too late to howl now and if you're unhappy you know whom to blame.

QUESTION—There are lots of new people coming into the area from the city. Is Cass City losing its small town flavor and what can be done?

Certainly we are and nothing can be done. But it's a matter of degree... things could be worse. The way it looks now we may have another 5 to 10 years of the "good life" before population engulfs us.

That's a lot better than towns in the Saginaw Valley corridor who are becoming part of the urban sprawl right now, today.

In the long run, if you want small town living you'll be moving to the Upper Peninsula or out of Michigan. If your grandchildren want it there's no telling where they may have to go.

QUESTION—According to Congressman James Harvey, this area has a serious unemployment problem with 14.9 per cent unemployed in Tuscola county; 18.5 per cent unemployed in Sanilac county, and 21.3 per cent unemployed in Huron county as compared to a national average (in June) of 5.5.

Are things really as rough as that?

Not around Cass City. We rise and fall with local industry and (praise be) all are going along at a fine clip with Walbro reaching record highs in employment.

Then, too, right around home the crops look extra good in comparison to other stricken areas of the Thumb.

When local industry and local crops are good, everybody shares in the prosperity.

Youth asleep
on motorcycle

Michael Brandibur, 16, Kingston, was treated at Marlette Community Hospital for injuries he received when he fell asleep while driving a motorcycle Saturday.

He struck two mail boxes, fell off the motorcycle and his body struck a third mailbox, according to state police. He was hurt on Hurds Corner Road about 12:15 a. m. He told police he had been working hard and apparently had fallen asleep.

SKINDIVING deputy James Compo displays his equipment. He recently received his certificate after a concentrated 6-week course in skindiving.

Skin diving Compo finds freedom under the water

By Kit McMillan

What's so much fun about swimming underwater with a 38 pound tank strapped to your back, 13 pounds of lead around your middle, and huge flippers on your feet?

The fun, says James Compo, is that the weight disappears underwater and a great deal of freedom takes its place.

Compo, a 37-year-old father of four, just completed a 6-week course in skin diving with the YMCA in Bay City and had a 20-year desire fulfilled when he successfully completed a 25-foot deep dive and an ability test and received a certificate for skin diving.

The certificate allows him to join the Tuscola county sheriff diving team, but unlike the other men, he paid for his own training "for the sport," he said. A deputy with only 2 years' seniority, Compo explained that he would have had to wait awhile yet before he would have been eligible.

A sport-loving man, he didn't want to wait, so he paid for the $25 course himself.

Sitting in the living room of his comfortable home on the corner of Hurds Corner and Cass City roads, Compo said, "I wish I'd done it 20 years ago."

He described the rigors of the certification test, which included diving down 25 feet, no easy task, and then, wearing full diving regalia, take a gulp of air and dive down 15 feet, three times.

"It's a little rough," Compo commented on that task, especially the third time down.

The deep-dive test, however, was only the culmination of much study and practicing in a swimming pool, learning the fundamentals of diving and some of the fine points.

Compo explained that before they even let him start the course, he had to swim about 20 lengths of the pool, tread water using only his feet, and swim underwater 50 feet without pushing off.

That was easy, however, compared to what followed. Of the 25 persons that started the course, only 12 finished. The group met for three hours, two nights a week. Half of the time was spent in the classroom, the other half in the water.

"It wasn't difficult for me," the diver related, but admitted some of the tasks weren't easy. They included clearing the mask of water by lifting one edge and gently blowing, and not letting the mask fill up completely; station breathing, which meant swimming around the pool, getting air only at four tanks stationed around the edge, and breathing underwater with the tank but without a mask.

Another task was to take off the mask, fins and snorkel on the bottom of the pool, go up for a breath of air and then dive down and put them back on.

"This was the hardest part of the course," Compo said. Besides learning to dive, Compo also got a bonus. He learned how to float.

"I couldn't float before I took this course," he chuckled.

The cost of equipment just to take the course was not excessive, about $20 for the fins, mask and snorkel.

"The big expense comes afterwards," Compo related. You can rent a tank, he said, but not a wet suit. Those cost anywhere from $50 to $200 and fit like a second skin. A depth gauge and weight belt are also mandatory, and a compass is helpful.

Light vote in primary election

Marshall wins GOP nod
for register of deeds post

John Marshall of Cass City won a close race for Register of Deeds in Tuesday's primary with a 70 vote margin over Max Bradley of Caro.

The contest for the Republican nomination ran neck and neck as results were turned in at the county court house, but Marshall picked up 2453 votes to beat Bradley's 2383.

Marshall picked up his most support from the northeast portion of the county and from the Vassar area. Elkland voters favored Marshall almost 4 to 1 over Bradley, with 398 votes for Marshall and 107 for Bradley.

The primary victory entitles Marshall to run against Democrat John Burns in November's general election. Burns polled 945 in the primary.

In the only other county wide primary race, Republican Sheriff Hugh Marr scored 4062 votes, a major victory over opponent Cecil Pelton, who received 827 votes. Write-in candidate William Thompson received 478 votes. His candidacy for the sheriff's race was announced only a week before the election.

Elkland voters gave Marr 394 votes. Pelton 78 and Thompson 27.

LOCAL CONTESTS

In local township competition, Edwin Karr was chosen Republican candidate for Elkland township supervisor from a field of four.

Karr received 231 votes, about twice as many as his nearest opponent, Edward Doerr, who received 128. Edward Bergman Jr. scored 92 and Edward LaBelle, 61.

In the only other race in Elkland township, Allen Merchant won the Republican position for township trustee. He received 226 votes. Contenders John Zinnecker received 186 and Thomas Herron, 103.

Both men will be unopposed on the November ballot.

In Novesta township, incumbent clerk Henry Rock won the Republican candidacy with 95 votes over competitor William O'Dell's 40.

Fred Knoblet, incumbent Republican trustee, won his place over Charles Carpenter with a score of 79-52.

The millage proposal to raise 1 1/2 mills for a period of 5 years to finance the improvement and maintenance of township roads passed 83 yes to 65 no.

The millage proposal in Kingston township for one mill to support the fire protection service also passed, narrowly, 69-61.

84th DISTRICT

The only other major Republican race determined in the primary election was the seat for representative from the newly created 84th district.

Loren Armbruster of Caro won handily over three opponents for the seat including all of Tuscola county, Frankmuth city and township in Saginaw county and Clio and several townships in Genesee county.

Armbruster received a total of 3145 votes, about twice as many as his nearest opponent Don J. Mawdesley of Vassar, who took 1550.

Walter Frahm received 1398 votes, and Ray Stedron 1203.

Armbruster will face Democrat Ernest C. Heine in the November general election.

Elkland township voters allowed the district in choosing

Armbruster, giving him 277 votes. Frahm was given 64; Mawdesley 49; and Stedron 44.

OTHER COUNTY VOTES

Numerous other candidates, although uncontested in their seats in the primary will face opponents in the November election.

George A. Holmes, Republican candidate for prosecuting attorney, received 4066 votes to 1032 cast for Democratic candidate W. Wallace Kent Jr.

Leslie E. Lounsbury, Republican incumbent for Drain Commissioner, received 4287 votes. Democratic opponent Bruce D. Farnum was given 989.

Arthur M. Willis, Republican Treasurer, received 4461 votes, while Lenora M. Manke on the Democratic ticket took 978.

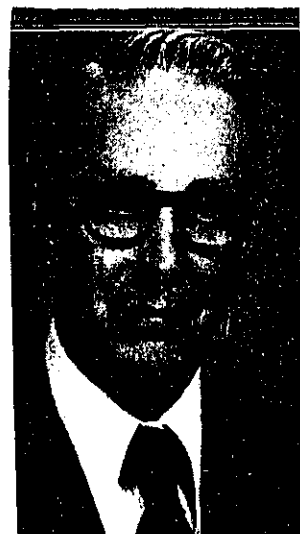

Incumbent Clerk Elsie Hicks who is unopposed in the November election was given 4792 votes.

Another race that will be determined in November is that of county commissioner from District 2. In the primary, Maynard McConkey, Republican, was given 1720 votes. George B. Ellesin, Democratic, received 111.

AMENDMENT

Proposal A, the only state proposal on the ballot, passed in Tuscola county by a 2 to 1 margin, following statewide results.

Yes votes numbered 3451 and no votes 1799. The amendment to the Michigan State Constitution will allow trial by jury of less than 12 jurors in all prosecutions in courts for misdemeanors punishable by imprisonment for not more than one year.

COACH BILL PHILBIN

Philbin quits on eve of grid year

In a surprise announcement Monday William Philbin, 33, head football coach at Cass City High School for two years, resigned to accept a position in Newport Beach, Calif.

A year ago at this time Philbin also announced to school authorities that he was resigning but reconsidered at the request of his players and guided the team to its most successful season (6-3) in a decade.

The situation last fall looked dismal as the Hawks were coming off a terrible 1970 season and more of the same was expected last fall.

However, this year Philbin must have his regrets because the boys he started on the winning trail are nearly all returning and grid prospects are bright.

Meanwhile, Supt. Don Crouse said that applications will be taken for a replacement and a decision reached at the regular board meeting Monday night. Chances are good that someone from within the system will be advanced to the top post.

The move is another in a long series of job switches for Philbin. He came to Cass City from Eastern Michigan University after earning his Master's degree.

Prior to that he coached at Bowling Green State University, one year; Amherst Public Schools, three years; Lorain St. Mary High, two years; Warren Consolidated Schools, one year, and Sandusky St. Mary High School, one year.

His most successful years were at Lorain where his teams were 16-2.

While Philbin will not be conducting a scheduled meeting with gridders Thursday, the meeting is still scheduled, Coach Paul Clabuesch said Tuesday.

2 kisses for hunters?

B' JIM FITZGERALD

Not many people noticed, but the State of Michigan has taken a dramatic step aimed at keeping blood off cars and highways.

At the same time, Michigan has also made more room for TV dinners in home freezers.

The credit goes to the state's Department of Natural Resources (DNR). At a recent policy meeting, the DNR decided to award 4-color shoulder patches to hunters for killing deer.

Boy, 4 colors!

Distribution of the free patches will begin this fall. Successful hunters need only produce their dead deer at one of the DNR roadside checking stations which are scattered through the north country during the annual deer harvest. (Gosh, I love that euphemism. Farmer Brown slaughters his corn.)

The patches are not only an award for killing. They are also the DNR's way of thanking you for helping them count deer.

In the past, a lot of successful hunters didn't check in at the DNR counting stations. A lot of dead deer didn't get counted and the DNR was forced to record the annual harvests in approximate figures which were sometimes questioned. After all, how reliable is it to count dead deer as they buzz by on the fenders of Chevrolets? Some of those guys drive around the block 15 times.

Now, the DNR has hit upon a way to entice hunters into counting stations. No countee, no patchee.

It is easy to understand why the DNR might welcome new methods of counting the deer herd. Herd size is usually calculated by men who go into the woods and count deer feces. That can't be a lot of fun. A successful hunter shouldn't be surprised if, when the DNR man pins on the patch, he also kisses him on both cheeks.

It is easy to see how the patches will mean less blood on cars and highways. And more room in freezers.

Most deer hunters kill for the adventure. Naturally, there is no sense being an adventurer if your neighbors don't know about it. The hunter is forced to strap the bleeding carcass to his car and drive hundreds of miles so he can park in front of his home until the sun gets too hot. In small towns, he also must park in front of the newspaper office.

Few people like to eat deer meat. Wives don't know how to cook it and don't want to learn. To get rid of the meat, hunters often resort to generosity. They have the deer butchered into hundreds of roasts which they give to people who don't want them. The venison roasts go immediately into home freezers where they will stay until nuclear warfare scares everyone into the basement for 6

Under the patch plan, the successful hunter won't have to bring the dead deer home. He can leave it at the counting station and simply wear his 4-color patch around the neighborhood for several days. The newspaper photo might look a little silly -- down on one knee with a rifle in one hand and a patch in the other. But people will understand.

Of course, all those dead deer might cause a pollution problem around the DNR counting stations. But the DNR men can console themselves by remembering that all those dead deer represent a lot of feces that won't have to be counted.

Provincial House expands into child day care field

President Patrick J. Callihan of Provincial House, Inc., announced today that the company was investing $1.1 million in additional centers for the day care of children.

Provincial House is the company that has agreed to build a $1 million skilled nursing home on a site in Hills and Dales subdivision.

Investment will be made through Young World, Inc., a 75 per cent owned subsidiary of Provincial House. Twenty-five percent will be owned by Young World President, Joyce Hatton. Until now, Provincial House's health care business has been concentrated on operation of health care centers through its chain of modern nursing facilities. The divergence into child care gives the company a position as one of the largest operators of children's centers in the United States.

The investment includes two purchases of existing businesses:

Friday, in a joint announcement Provincial House and the Young America division of Multico Corporation said Provincial House had acquired Multico's four centers and their fixtures for a price of $720,000. The four units, all in Michigan are in Flint, Kalamazoo, and at two locations in Lansing.

Secondly, Mr. Callihan said, Provincial House's proposed purchase of the assets of Kiddie Care Corporation for $350,000 was advanced to final stage and now awaits only the approval of Kiddie Care stockholders who will vote the third week in September. Kiddie Care has two centers in Grand Rapids, one in Muskegon and the fourth in Kalamazoo.

"With eight child care centers in operation," the subsidiary's president, Mrs. Hatton, said, "and with each unit able to care for 200 children on a morning and afternoon shift basis we now have a daily capacity for the care and pre-school training of 1,600 children. Also, we are planning to build four new centers in Michigan with the modules purchased from Kiddie Care Corp., which will increase our capacity to 2,400 children."

what limited, but Compo said he'd like to see a diving club established. "It's a sport I wish more people around here would do," he stated, partly because he knows so few divers and you always need a buddy to go diving.

Most of his diving has been in Anderson Lake between Vassar and Millington.

"Down there it's a completely different world as far as freedom goes," Compo told. While there isn't much in the way of salvaging work around here, the divers can get as close as 5 or 6 inches to fish.

Diving takes a lot of knowledge of the mechanics besides knowing how to swim like a fish, Compo explained. A novice could easily end up with a case of air embolism and be dead before he knew what happened. This is caused when the diver comes up too quickly without breathing normally or holding his breath. It results in the air bubbles busting up the lungs and getting into the blood system.

To cure it, a victim must be placed in a decompression chamber within 10 minutes, but the nearest facility is at the University of Michigan.

Despite the dangers of the dive, Compo likes it and feels comfortable because he knows what to look for and how not to get into trouble.

An athletic man, he is also a licensed hunting safely and snowmobile safety instructor with the National Rifle Association, and holds a green belt in Judo.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

The fellers at the country store was in fine form Saturday night. There was Ed Doolittle with his usual batch of clippings for the agender, and there was Zeke. Grub happy to be amongst us after a few days in the hospital. Zeke said he had been out of touch while he was laid up, and he was ready to be filled in.

Actual, allowed Zeke, it weren't that he hadn't seen plenty of folks, it was that he had been pestered with so many in the hospital till he hadn't had time to keep up with the papers. When he makes up his list for shipment to Siberia, said Zeke, lo and verily them that hang around hospitals will lead all the rest. He said he was in a room with a big NO VISITORS sign on the door for two days, and that sign was like waving a red flag at a bull. Zeke said perfect strangers come wondering in to look at him and blow cigar smoke in his face. One batch of kin spilled over from the room next to his and brung their television with em, went on Zeke.

It's hard enuff, allowed Zeke, to lay there feeling miserable without having people kicking yore bed and turning over the trays of stuff the nurses say you got to take to git better. Any person except a clost relative that ignores that sign on a hospital room door ought to be shipped to a place a heap hotter than Siberia, was Zeke's words.

Ed Doolittle broke in to say he recollected the time he broke his foot and Zeke come to see him at home. Ed said he was setting peaceful when Zeke rared back in a rocking chair on his cast and broke his cast and the foot in two more places. Ed said visitors can be trouble anywhere, but he was agreed with Zeke that fer the money a feller pays a hospital, a little peace and quiet ain't to much to ask.

Turning to his clippings, Ed reported where he had saw where the asternuts bootlegged postage stamps to the moon that they figgered to peddle to collectors fer enuff to send all their younguns thru college. Ed said he figgered that jest goes to show that everybody is playing the angles, but at least them stamps had better luck than a heap of them on mail we try to send from one town to another. And the next day, Ed said he saw where this football player was trying to sell his book of plays to another team, so they ain't much we can put our trust in anymore. Ed said all he thought all them players sold on the side was razor blades.

Final, Ed noted where the Russians were trying prohibition, so it looks like they is going to catch up with us in that kind of progress. The idea of gitting shipped to Siberia must be driving the Russians to drink,

FROM THE LITTER BOX

I saw a ghost - or something

By Kit McMillion

I think I was visited by a ghost last week.

Or maybe it was my guardian angel in disguise.

I was sleeping peacefully, except for the nightmare I was watching on the back of my eyelids and which was coming to a rapid and terrifying conclusion, when--BANG!

Something like the sound of a gun shot woke me up.

With my normal emphatic reaction to loud noises, I sat up in bed. Then I saw it.

Leaning against the doorway was a figure-grinning. Then--poof, it was gone.

His mode of exit was similar to that used on cartoons, complete with a silver star-effect poof.

The only recognizable characteristic was that the figure was blonde.

The loud noise that woke me up was a book hitting the floor near my bed after being pushed off a filing cabinet.

My pesky cat was up there looking down at it, but she didn't have that normal guilty look she usually carries with her when she's done something she knows will make me furious.

Instead of brooding about the problem, I decided the figure looked friendly so why should I worry. So I went back to sleep. It wasn't until the next morning that I thought there was something weird about the episode.

I'd been joking for years about my guardian angel. Maybe that was it, her, him. It didn't exactly fulfill my expectations of shimmering white robes or maybe a touch of gold glowing about the ears, with a concerned fatherly or motherly expression. Just grin and poof.

Well, I thought, maybe it was a ghost. I believe in spirits and things beyond the normal conception of human appreciation. Ghosts are supposed to be disembodied souls, but somehow my strange nocturnal visitor didn't have the expected traits of a ghost. It didn't even go boo. Just grinned.

I'm told that nightly visitors are not an unusual phenomenon. Malcom X was supposed to have been visited in a jail cell by a stranger he thought was Allah. This episode was supposed to have encouraged him to become a prominent priest in the Black Muslims.

Some persons with considerably more interest in spooky things, attribute the bedroom guests to visits of beings from other planets. I don't know if they're supposed to be dropping in for a cordial and friendly visit, or if these beings use humans for experiments.

Another possibility is the figure was someone's soul traveling outside of his sleeping body, maybe sharing my bad dream or just out playing around.

Whatever that nightly visitor was, at least he woke me up from my nightmare. I guess that excuses his presence in my boudoir.

Meow.

Maybe you know her as Miss Lizzie or Granny Hill or Aunt Mary Jones. Through the years she's been a tower of strength in her community . . . helping with the sick, sharing with the poor . . . a friend to all.

She doesn't seem to worry about the future, just looks to the brighter side and is happy. You envy her, thinking she gets much out of life that you miss. Does she have a secret, a magic formula?

No, you can't say that her fellowship with God is a secret, for God is for everyone!

Would you like to possess some of her strength to look ahead, to face danger and conquer fear? The Church can help you reach this goal. All through the years it has strengthened mankind and helped him find the best in himself and in others.

Economics Assn.

This year's annual meeting for the American Home Economics Association was held in Detroit. More than 6,000 members attended from all states in the union.

Incoming president for the Michigan Home Economics Association, a professional group of 1,600 members, is Jeanette Bond Shadko, a native of Sanilac county and a Cass City High School graduate. She is Extension Home Economist at Beulah, Mich.

Mrs. Shadko attended the meeting in Detroit where she presented a paper, on her study of Benzie County Senior Citizens, for the Family Relations and Child Development section of the conference.

Two Congresswomen, Martha Griffiths of Michigan and Margaret Heckler of Massachusetts, also spoke at the conference. They asked the audience to work for health care aides to provide in-home help in crises or chronic circumstances for families and older persons in need and they asked for child day care legislation. The speakers recommended that women take an active part in local programs as advisors, volunteers, parents and citizens.

Mrs. Griffiths asked for the removal of discrimination against both men and women in some aspects of welfare or income maintenance programs. As a matter of fact, she said, the whole welfare thing ought to be scrapped and we should start over.

Slate bean

meet Aug. 14

A special twilight informational meeting will be held Monday evening, Aug. 14, for all bean growers, sugar beet growers and agribusinessmen. The 7:00 p.m. meeting will be held at the Dan and Dale Janson farm, located 3 miles north of Reese on North Van Buren Road.

The twilight meeting will feature an opportunity to look at manganese deficient beans and other cultural practices of interest to growers. Micronutrients are gaining in importance to our total fertility program on farms in the Saginaw Valley. The entrance to the field will be at the north edge of the Janson farm through the barley field owned by Clifford Stockmeyer. The special meeting is sponsored by the Tuscola County Extension Office, states Bill Bortel, County Extension Director.

Soil compactionincreasing problem

By Don Keblor

Soil compaction and poor crop emergence are very often found to be related cropping problems. This analysis appears to be born out more emphatically in each succeeding year, especially in the last six to eight years.

I've heard comments from several years from crop producers having poor emergence problems. They range from poor seed vitality and vigor, error in germination tests, poor seed treatment, too wet a spring and herbicide damage.

We've had emergence problems as long as I have been in Tuscola county. However, I ask myself "why is poor emergence becoming a greater commonplace occurrence?" It seems highly questionable now that the above causes are the real single big factor for this problem increase.

Soil compaction problems do not occur overnight. They develop imperceptively over a long period of time and because of this slow soil physical deterioration process we are unaware of its happening.

Of the cash crops having the greatest stress due to soil compaction, dry beans are most seriously effected. I know of fields in the county that cannot produce a stand of navy beans which in the past could. Next in line appears to be winter wheat if recent winter damage and yields are any indication. As far back as six or seven years ago wheat producers began questioning the vigor of Genesee wheat compared with its predecessor Yorkwin. In each succeeding year the number of these inquiries has steadily increased even though other new varieties were introduced. Here again, is the wheat variety to blame? When Genesee wheat was being researched, it was estimated that if all the Yorkwin acreage was planted to Genesee the additional income increase the first year would have been nearly a quarter million dollars more in Tuscola county. It is the belief now that there would have been less winter kill in wheat if the soil had been better drained. Compaction is one factor preventing good soil drainage, thus increasing winter damage to wheat.

Sugar beets, corn, oats and barley have been less effected by soil compaction. But even these crops in some of our fields are showing the effects of compaction on emergence stands and yields.

Perhaps the biggest soil compaction buffer our crop producers have is that better varieties or strains of corn, beans, oats, wheat, barley, alfalfa and even sugar beets have been developed for them. There is a good probability that many of the old varieties if planted today would give our producers a lower degree of performance than what is used now.

From what I have witnessed over the years, I am more convinced that soil compaction is perhaps the biggest single culprit and crop production loss factor confronting our crop producers.

Soil organic matter levels must be increased, minimized tillage and land leveling are all practices which will reduce soil compaction and emergence problems.

BETTER HEALTH

Massage will not cure injuries

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

In that splendid little journal, Today's Health, William B. Furlong tells about massage and massage parlors. He says that in Los Angeles, for example, there are at least 150 massage parlors doing a $50 million a year business.

Can massage improve your health and well-being as much as many physiotherapists feel it can? Can commercial parlors deliver all that they offer? How can one recognize a good place, with experts at work? What's the difference between a commercial massage, and the massage one can get from a physical therapist in a hospital or clinic?

To get some answers to these questions and others, several Today's Health people interviewed medical authorities and therapists, and they sent out researchers to conduct a sampling of many massage parlors in a big city.

The experts say that the whole massage industry is based on the assumption that massage will make the person feel better. It can do that, but it will not clear up a sciatica or arthritis or any other ailment which a doctor calls "organic." By organic ailment, doctors are referring to some abnormality of the tissue that a doctor would discover during surgery.

Also, massage cannot cause a person to lose weight and it cannot erase wrinkles. What is sad is that it won't cause a person to lose weight in the specific place that he or she wants to lose it.

A massage will not cure a person's heart trouble, or expand his lungs or strengthen his muscles. But a trained and licensed physical therapist can help some troubles. Also, there can be a good psychological response to a massage. A skilled masseur can induce a certain serenity and even drowsiness in his subject.

How does an academically trained physical therapist differ from a commercial masseur? He generally works in a hospital, as an important member of a medical team. A few physical therapists choose independent practice, but treat only patients referred by an M.D., and give treatment according to the physician's prescription.

Such a physical therapist is usually licensed by the state, and is given certain privileges in his work that are denied most commercial masseurs. For example he is permitted to treat persons of the opposite sex. In most places, commercial masseurs are not permitted by law to massage persons of the opposite sex, but some masseurs manage in clever ways to get around the law.

The physical therapist in private practice generally does not give full-body massages. He usually works only on an affected limb or area of the body.

Mr. Furlong says that the physical therapist treats the person in specific ways, depending on the problem. Although massage will not cure whiplash injuries to the neck, it may make the muscle and nerve structures in the affected area less painful. The physical therapist often begins by applying heat to the affected area. That tends to relax muscles. A hot pack of towels may be used, or an infrared lamp can be used for dry heat. Diathermy and ultrasonic waves also are used to penetrate deeply into tissue. Massage can help the flow of lymph to the tissues. Lymph is a milky fluid which supplies nourishment to cells throughout the body.

Before going to a physical therapist or a masseur because of physical distresses, it is wise to make sure that there isn't some serious disease that needs medical treatment. If a person has an arthritis-like pain which is actually cancer, he can waste so much time on massage that when a physician finds the tumor, it is too late to get it all out.

Mr. Furlong says that there are some commercial, sexy massage parlors where young women massage men, but none of the massage parlors investigated by the Today's Health team in the Chicago area were of this type.

One of the researchers, young Susan Petrillo, visited three parlors for women; she undressed in a cubicle that she described as "Spartan," and was wrapped in a clean white sheet. She then climbed onto the padded massage table to lie on her back while the masseuse, dressed in a uniform, began applying some lotion to the skin.

She massaged Miss Petrillo's hands, then her arms, shoulders and neck, and then her feet and legs. After helping Susan turn over, the masseuse massaged her feet, legs, and up the back to the neck and shoulders, and then down to the hands. The whole procedure was repeated after alcohol was applied to the skin. In some parlors, facial massage or scalp massages are also offered.

The whole treatment lasted perhaps an hour, and Miss Petrillo paid an average of $8 in the several parlors she visited. She reported that the massages left her feeling mildly relaxed for an hour or so.

Many massage parlors combine the massage with a steam or sauna bath. The steam may help relax tense muscles.

Can commercial massages do harm? Not if you are healthy. But, Dr. Lehmkuhl of the American Medical Association says that people with varicose veins, diabetic neuritis or heart and respiratory troubles would do well to avoid the massage and sauna-bath parlor.

Methodists slate dramatic dialogue sermon

A dramatic sermon entitled "A Love Affair" will be presented during church services Sunday by the Rev. E. D. K. Isaacs and two college students.

Miss Pamela Dobbs, a senior and drama major at Olivet College, and Miss Mary Isaacs, a junior and social work major at Western State University, will participate in the dramatic sermon.

The production is part of the work being done by the Church Drama Guild which is meeting each week during the vacation period. The presentation is based on "The Davidson Affair" by Stuart Jackman.

The dramatic sermon will be presented at the 9:45 a. m. service at Trinity United Methodist Church and at the 11:00 a. m. service at Salem United Methodist Church.

"We need to find ways in which children once again can assist and comfort old people and in return gain insight to character development that occurs through such experience." This quote from a noted psychologist is a good one to keep in mind this summer season. It makes the long trip to a grandparent's house seem even more essential when we realize that children need this contact with older people to expand their view of life.

Usually we think it's the grandparents who get the most out of seeing and being with the little ones of the family. But the child is benefiting greatly from the relationship, too. This way, he's able to include grandparents as part of his family. He wants to know them and adds them to his list of people he can trust and count on.

He sees grandparents as people who have time to love him as he is. They are not trying to correct his every error. Neither are they undermining what his parents have set up as standards for him. Grandparents are a great source of information for the child. Reminiscing is valuable in helping a child see what has gone before him. It gives him an idea of the continuity of life and the changes which always occur. His association with an older person also gives him a glimpse of what to expect in the future. If grandparents are pleasant and relatively well adjusted to the stage of life they're in, the child will not live in fear of the time when he, too, will be old.

Frequent visits with grandparents -- what a privilege the holidays bring -- and what a good resolution for the coming year!

4-team race to finish seen in church loop

The Cass City Church League is heading down to the wire and it looks as if the regular season championship won't be decided until the final game of the year.

Right now there are four teams tied for the top spot with two games left in the 11-game schedule. The Trinity Methodist who started with flying colors have found the going rough in recent weeks and have fallen back into the pack.

Still, they share a spot of first place, a position they have had since the first ball was thrown this summer.

The difference is that Owen-Gage, Catholics, and the Baptists are right there, too. All but Owen-Gage are 7-2 for the year. The Owen-Gage nine is a half game behind at this writing with a 6-2 mark.

The game that knotted the league came Monday, July 31, when United Missionary whipped the Methodists, 7-4, behind the pitching of Roger Root. Eldon Stoutenburg took the loss.

It was the nightcap of a twin bill. In the first game, Colwood racked up a win with a four-run rally in the last inning to top Shabbona-Deford, 11-8. Going into the seventh Shabbona was a run ahead. Don Smith hit a home run to pace the rally.

BAPTISTS-COLWOOD

The Baptists continue to come on strong after a slow start and moved into a tie for the lead with a 10-0 decision over Colwood Friday. Gary Mellen-dorf was backed by a 10-hit attack and limited Colwood to

store owners

Police Chief Gene Wilson issued a warning this week to merchants and shoppers to watch kids hanging around stores.

Three complaints of juveniles attempting to get into cars parked near store buildings were reported, he said.

One instance was behind Fort's Store, another behind Thumb Appliance and the third in front of the Quaker Maid Dairy.

In one instance, a youth was found with his arm inside the car, Wilson said.

Little League

All-Stars nip

Marlette nine

The Cass City Little League officially ended its year Friday with an exhibition game with Marlette followed by a picnic for all the players.

The game pitted Cass City's All-Stars against Marlette's best and Cass City won a close, 3-2, decision.

Cass City built up an early lead in the eight-inning game and went into the final inning with a 3-0 lead.

Marlette countered with a home run by Sullivan with a man aboard to close the gap to a single run. They then loaded the bases but Clarke Haire struck out the last batter to preserve the victory.

Dean Alexander pitched the first three innings followed by Jeff Hartel and Mike Richards who pitched scoreless ball. Alexander got credit for the win.

Richards and Haire were Cass City's big stickmen with two hits each.

Undefeated

Babe Ruthers

win in play-offs

Cass City Babe Ruth Number One team added the play-off title to its regular season toga with an easy 12-3 decision over Bad Axe.

The game was actually settled in the initial inning when Cass City scored four times.

Jerry Toner, Kevin Coryell with three hits each and Ed Stoutenburg with two hits were the big stickers for Cass City. Chuck Bliss started and pitched the first inning and Toner pitched the last 6, striking out 12.

Cass City ended the year with a perfect 11-0 record.

Caseville man sentenced

A Caseville man was sentenced Friday in Huron County Circuit Court on a charge of negligent homicide in connection with the deaths of Malcolm Leitch, 22, Uby, and Gerald E. McGee, 24, Elkton.

Jerry Lee Laughlin, 28, Caseville, was placed on probation for two years and was ordered to serve the first five months in the county jail. He was also assessed fine and costs of $500 and an additional $5 monthly oversight charge.

He was charged following a May 15 accident when the Laughlin car struck two motorcycle riders from behind on M-142 at the eastern edge of the Elkton village limits. The two victims were pronounced dead at the scene.

Laughlin had pleaded guilty to the charge when he was arraigned June 23 before Huron Circuit Court Judge Arthur M. Bach.

Cass City gridders meet Thursday; new tie-breaking rule adopted decided early this week.

THE PROCEDURE

After a two-minute rest, a coin flip decides which team will get the ball. The team with the ball has a first and 10 on the opponents' 10-yard line. If it scores, the try for extra point or points is conducted in the usual method. A field goal can be attempted at any time.

After the team with the ball scores or loses possession with four downs or by a fumble, the defensive team gets the identical opportunity on the same 10-yard line that the first team used its allotted downs.

The same goal is used to equalize game conditions for wind, water and field conditions. The team that scores the most points wins.

If still tied after the first overtime the entire procedure is repeated.

GAGETOWN WON THE Thumb Area Blooper Ball League championship for 1972 with a 14-1 record.

Members of the team included, front row: Wayne Dillon, Jim Albrecht, Jim Sontag, Joe Salcido, Nat Benitez. The bat boy is Tom Sontag.

Gagetown cops

title in

Blooper ball

Gagetown clinched the Thumb Area Blooper Ball League title last week with two victories over Jack's Bar, 6-4, and 8-3, to edge Duffy's by a single game.

Gagetown needed to keep winning because Duffy's won its final games with a 3-1 and 7-0 decision over Pabst, and a 5-2 nod over Colwood.

FINAL STANDINGS

	W	L
Gagetown	14	1
Duffy's	13	2
Colwood	7	8
Jack's Bar	7	8
Pabst	3	12
Cass City	1	14

Save a little from a little—the habit pays big dividends.

Double loss Sunday ends tourney trail for Erla's

The 1972 softball season is over for Erla's. It ended Sunday night when Kettlewell's took the rubber game of a three-game series and the District Tournament championship played at Port Huron.

Early in the competition it appeared as if the Foodmen were going to score another district win. The team opened with a convincing 2-0 decision over Bopla Trucking Friday night.

Al Bosch was in rare form as he tossed a one-hitter and faced just three players over the minimum and pitched perfect ball in the final six innings.

It was a fine victory for Erla's. For eight innings it was a standoff between Bosch and Russ Slink of Bopla.

Ron Nichols ignited the winning rally with a double. Rick Koniak slammed a double to score Nichols and Dean Hoag and Elwyn Helwig followed with hits to score the second run of the game.

In all, Erla's lashed 11 hits but were unable to put them together until the ninth.

Saturday afternoon things looked bright for Cass City as Erla's pounded out a 4-3 decision over Kettlewell's. After the decision, the Foodmen needed just one more victory in two games to win the title.

Bosch wasn't quite as effective Saturday as he had been Friday. He was touched for five hits including a triple by Dick Hillaker. George Collins of Kettlewell's was wild and the nine walks he issued proved fatal.

Dick Suhr tried to wrap it up for Erla's in the first game of the finals Sunday but Kettlewell's touched him for six hits including two in the seventh when the Port Huron nine broke open a 1-1 tie to score twice and win.

The victory tied the series and the championship depended on the final game.

Naturally, Erla's turned to Bosch. But Bosch evidently felt the effects of Friday's long game and the game he pitched Saturday. He just didn't have

it. He was touched for six hits, including three in the fourth inning when Kettlewell's broke open the game by scoring four times. Meanwhile, Hookey held Erla's to a single unearned run and received credit for hurrying his team to the title.

Governmental responsiveness still shown on higher levels

A common complaint heard in public life these days is that government is no longer responsive to the needs of the citizen. It has become so big, the argument goes, that it just can't look out after the individual any more. There is a good deal of validity to this statement, of course. As bureaucracies grow larger, the tendency to pass the buck and cover one's own tracks becomes more pronounced. But every now and then a few examples come forth to show all is not lost.

merely conserve their own little bailiwick can turn government into something that really serves the people, not just figures out ways to antagonize them.

COMMUNISTS COMEBACK

In addition to such traditional parties as the Democrats and Republicans, Michigan voters will see a party listed on their November ballots that may startle a few of them. It's the Communist Party of Michigan.

The party qualified for a spot on the ballot by filing more than 23,000 signatures with the Secretary of State's office. That's 9,000 more than they needed to gain a spot. Their presidential candidate is their perennial national leader—Gus Hall. The vice presidential candidate is Jarvis Tyner.

The party platform doesn't include a revolution as such. The woman who organized the petition drive, Peggy Goldman, said she and her fellow communists have found people "want an end to this (Vietnam) war and they want jobs."

"Neither of the major parties is doing anything about these and other major problems that people are facing such as racism, repression, inflation, escalating taxes, the refusal of the law enforcement agencies to halt drug traffic, etc.," she said.

Such issues as inflation aren't quite in the same league as, "Workers of the world unite. You have nothing to lose but your chains." But then nothing is the same any more.

Whereas Marx and his followers were against private property, the Communist Party of Illinois came out this year in favor of property tax relief, a bourgeois idea which actually encourages the ownership of private property.

Arrest youth for breaking and entering

Bruce Alan Brown, 17, 4451 N. Jacob Road, Cass City, was arrested Saturday on charges of breaking and entering the Alfred Connolly home located on Shabbona Road, Deford.

The youth was released on personal recognizance bond and court appearance is scheduled for Aug. 21.

Local police authorities connected Brown with the theft of approximately $224 worth of goods taken several weeks ago when they traced a rifle in his possession as belonging to the Connollys.

Study hall-cafe increases usable classroom space

Intermediate school students will be greeted with a few changes when school doors open Aug. 28.

Remodeling of the old shop into a cafeteria-study hall is underway and is expected to be finished by the opening date. Approval of the plans by the fire marshal is expected shortly.

Thus far, the green fiberglass windows that lined the top half of the room have been removed. They will be replaced by a layer of fire-proof insulation covered by a light tan fire resistant wall board.

Intermediate Principal Robert Stickle said this will help solve the heat problem which has occurred in the past during the winter.

A sliding garage-type door will be removed from the room and blocked in, leaving space for another regular door to the east. Windows adjoining another classroom will also be blocked in. Long tables and chairs will be set up to seat about 150.

The new room will be used as a study hall and as a cafeteria. Hot lunches prepared at the high school, will be served at the Intermediate School, elimi-
