

FROM THE
Editor's Corner

There is no way that a publisher could serve on a jury that was trying a newspaper for libel.

He'd be excused immediately because of his special interest. After all, a fellow publisher could be expected to give another publisher the benefit of the doubt, couldn't he? Sure.

Any thoughtful person would agree. Doctors don't judge doctors. Insurance agents don't judge insurance claims. Contractors don't judge contractors.

But lawyers judge lawyers. That was forcibly brought to my attention the other day when the minimum fee schedules were under attack in Michigan.

Two professors from the University of Illinois have been reported as saying that fee schedules are a blatant means of price fixing.

In Michigan these schedules are not binding but I'd bet a cookie that most ordinary citizens would agree that there doesn't appear to be much difference between suggested legal minimum charge lists and other suggested prices. The kind of suggested prices, for instance, that landed several top officials of some of the nation's largest companies in the courts.

Perhaps the two aren't the same. Who knows?

What is certain is that the judges that decided against the corporation leaders were not members of the same industry as the officials who were accused.

It just seems to me that there should be some way for lawyers to be tried by someone who is not a member of the bar.

Perhaps a panel of qualified persons selected by the legislature, together with a judge, could sit in judgement on cases involving members of the bar.

Certainly they aren't trained like judges. It would be better if they were. Granted.

It still appears to me that a fairer more impartial decision could be reached by responsible persons outside of the industry than by those within it.

I say this knowing and acknowledging that judges attempt to do their level best to come up with fair and honest decisions in all cases before them.

But judges are human. Swayed unconsciously by their background and beliefs in the grey areas where there are no hard and fast rules for guidance.

Otherwise why would judges earn labels as liberals or conservatives?

I know that I would feel very comfortable in court before a jury of journalists.

Comfortable and certain that the odds were stacked unfairly in my favor.

It won't happen and it shouldn't... for anyone.

That's the way I see it... but I'm no lawyer.

CONSTRUCTION has begun on the $1 million skilled nursing home and is expected to be completed by spring. The shell of the building should be completed by the beginning of the new year.

4 Cass Cityans escape 3-vehicle crash

Saturday with only minor injuries

Tragedy was averted Saturday for four persons from Cass City after they survived a three-vehicle crash on M-19 south of Ubyly when their car was completely demolished and they were thrown from the vehicle.

Driver David J. Stilson, 20, River Road, Cass City, was thrown from the vehicle, as were passengers Clinton Spencer, 20, his wife, Diana, 18, who is eight months pregnant, and their daughter Paula, 11.

All were taken to Hills and Dales Hospital where they were released following treatment except Mrs. Spencer, who was discharged Monday afternoon.

According to Huron county sheriff's reports, the accident occurred at 12:58 p.m. when a car driven by Edward Grifka, 17, of Ubyly, collided into the rear of the car driven by Stilson, which in turn was pushed forward 111 feet by the impact into the rear of a parked gasoline truck.

Stilson told officers he was slowing down and had his turn signal on preparatory to turning left into a private driveway. Grifka told officers he came over a slight hill and saw the Stilson car slowing down or stopping but was unable to stop in time to avoid the accident.

The impact from the Grifka car hurled the Stilson auto into the truck, rupturing the rear compartment of the gasoline truck and demolishing the Stilson car. The impact pushed the truck three feet forward.

The car driven by Grifka then careened off the roadway seventy-four feet into a ditch.

According to officers, the expectant mother was holding her daughter Paula on her lap at the time of the crash. Both were thrown onto the pavement. The baby suffered head injuries and Mrs. Spencer was cut and bruised.

Stilson also suffered cuts and bruises, when he was thrown out of the car. Spencer was thrown through the windshield and suffered bruises and glass cuts.

Grifka suffered facial lacerations and three broken teeth. His passenger, Greg Stout, 17, Ubyly, received head injuries. They were treated by a private physician.

Gasoline from the demolished Stilson vehicle spilled onto the road but did not ignite. The Ubyly Fire Department was called to wash the fuel off the road.

No fuel was spilled from the gasoline truck.

ICY MISHAPS

Recent icy and snow-covered roads resulted in accidents involving area drivers.

Francis E. DeLong, 25, 3436 E. Englehart Road, Cass City, escaped injury when he lost control of the car he was driving on Kelly Road Sunday, spun around and hit a tree. The accident occurred at 9 a.m. in Novesta township near Lamp-ton Road.

Gerald Michael Mausolf, 20, 610 Bay City-Forestville Road, Minden City, was uninjured when the car he was driving landed in a ditch on Bay City-Forestville Road in Elmwood township near Jacob Road.

The mishap happened at 7:45 a.m. when he passed a car and hit a rut on the icy road.

DEER ACCIDENTS

In a collision with a deer Thursday, Nov. 30, Duane I. Westling, 32, Sanilac Road, Kingston, was uninjured. He was westbound on M-46 when the animal darted out in front of him at 12:50 a.m.

Edward C. Browning, 25, Phillips Road, Kingston, was eastbound on Bevans Road when his car struck a deer at 6 p.m. Browning was not hurt.

LOCAL MISHAPS

Cass City police investigated a two-car accident Saturday at 5:50 p.m. at the corner of Main and Leach Streets. Chester Felix Gasczynski, 20, 6405 Third St., Cass City, was treated at Hills and Dales Hospital after his car was struck by a vehicle operated by Alick Harold Harris, 50, Rossman Road, Kingston.

A passenger in the Gasczynski vehicle, Bill Izydorek, 18, of Cass City, was not hurt.

According to police reports, Gasczynski was eastbound on Main Street when the Harris car pulled away from Leach Street going south and hit the other car.

In another accident, a car operated by Henry Donald Nolan Jr., 17, 4421 Crane Road,

Cass City, struck a vehicle driven by Marsha Rose Franks, 29, 6177 Lakeside Drive, Cass City, when the Franks vehicle stopped on Seeger Street to make a turn, waited to let a car pass, and was struck in the rear by the Nolan car, which was unable to stop in time to avoid a collision.

Mrs. Franks received minor injuries.

Crane recalls the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941

By Kit McMillion

Few persons remember the significance of Dec. 7 anymore. It's just another day.

Not Jay Crane of Crane Road, Cass City.

He was there when the first bomb fell from the surprise attack of the Japanese Zeroes and was lucky enough to escape both injury and death in the terrible military disaster known as Pearl Harbor.

Thirty-one years later, Crane, now 52, his face lined by years of work, pushed back the easy chair in his living room, and said, "Yeah, I was there."

Lighting a cigarette, he recalled the fateful Sunday in 1941, the starting point of a war that eventually involved every American and changed the ways of the world.

With a thoughtful look seen on every veteran's face when he starts telling war tales, Crane related that he was at Hickam

Air Field by the control tower, waiting for some B-17s to arrive from the States. Hickam Air Field was next to Pearl Harbor and suffered much damage during the raid.

As part of the Army Air Corps motor pool, he was to pick up the officers and their luggage. The B-17s were due any minute. "We were shooting the breeze," said Crane. "Then we saw these planes in the sky and thought it was the Navy practicing maneuvers."

"It was the navy all right," he laughed. "The wrong one." He and the other 20-odd men on that detail didn't think much of the planes approaching rapidly until they turned sharply, and the rising sun, symbol of Japan, rose out of the sky. At about the same time, the bombs started to fall.

Wasting no time, everyone headed for cover, said Crane. As he was running from his truck, he turned to see the blast of a direct hit on a hangar.

The Japanese zeroes were so low they could have been shot by a handgun, Crane said. After the one hit the hangar, it had to pull up sharply to avoid crashing.

It wasn't long before machine guns were set up on the ground, out in the open, Crane related. Some became trigger happy and shot at the U.S. planes from nearby Wheeler Air Base that were fighting the zeroes.

He laughed again and told of one man who had jumped into a manhole and had set up a machine gun under the cover of the lid.

Those who weren't shooting back, were just trying to stay alive, jumping under anything available. Crane said he remembered one bunch of men hiding under a heavy construction roller that was on the air field.

One guy would push his way under at one side, forcing another man to roll out of protection on the other side, said Crane. Then that guy would run around and push his way back in.

The humor in recalling these events now, was nowhere evident that morning.

"I was scared," he stated. "I don't think there was a guy who wasn't scared."

Then a 21-year-old corporal, he laughed now and said, "We used to sit around the barracks and say how this place could never be bombed. It was too well fortified." He had been on the base just three days short of a year when Pearl Harbor was bombed, having volunteered the year before because Hawaii was an attractive place to be stationed.

The immediate aftermath of the bombing is just a blur of activity for Crane, a movement from one place to another, always waiting for another attack and hoping it wouldn't come.

Surrounded by some of the more than 3600 casualties, Crane retrieved his truck where he had left it and returned to his barracks, to find that a bomb had landed in his bed.

"I looked at my bed and was glad I wasn't there," Crane stated. "There was a hole where my head would have been."

His locker was also hit, but the only thing he remembers losing is his portable radio. It had a hole in it, too.

He went back to the motor pool, just in time for another wave of air bombing.

After that, everyone waited for more as they worked to put out fires and clean up the mess. Crane was sent to the mess hall supply room to take the supplies to the waterfront where the officers lived.

He slept the first night on the water front and several nights after until he and some of his buddies decided to sleep on the floor of officers' homes, now vacated by their families.

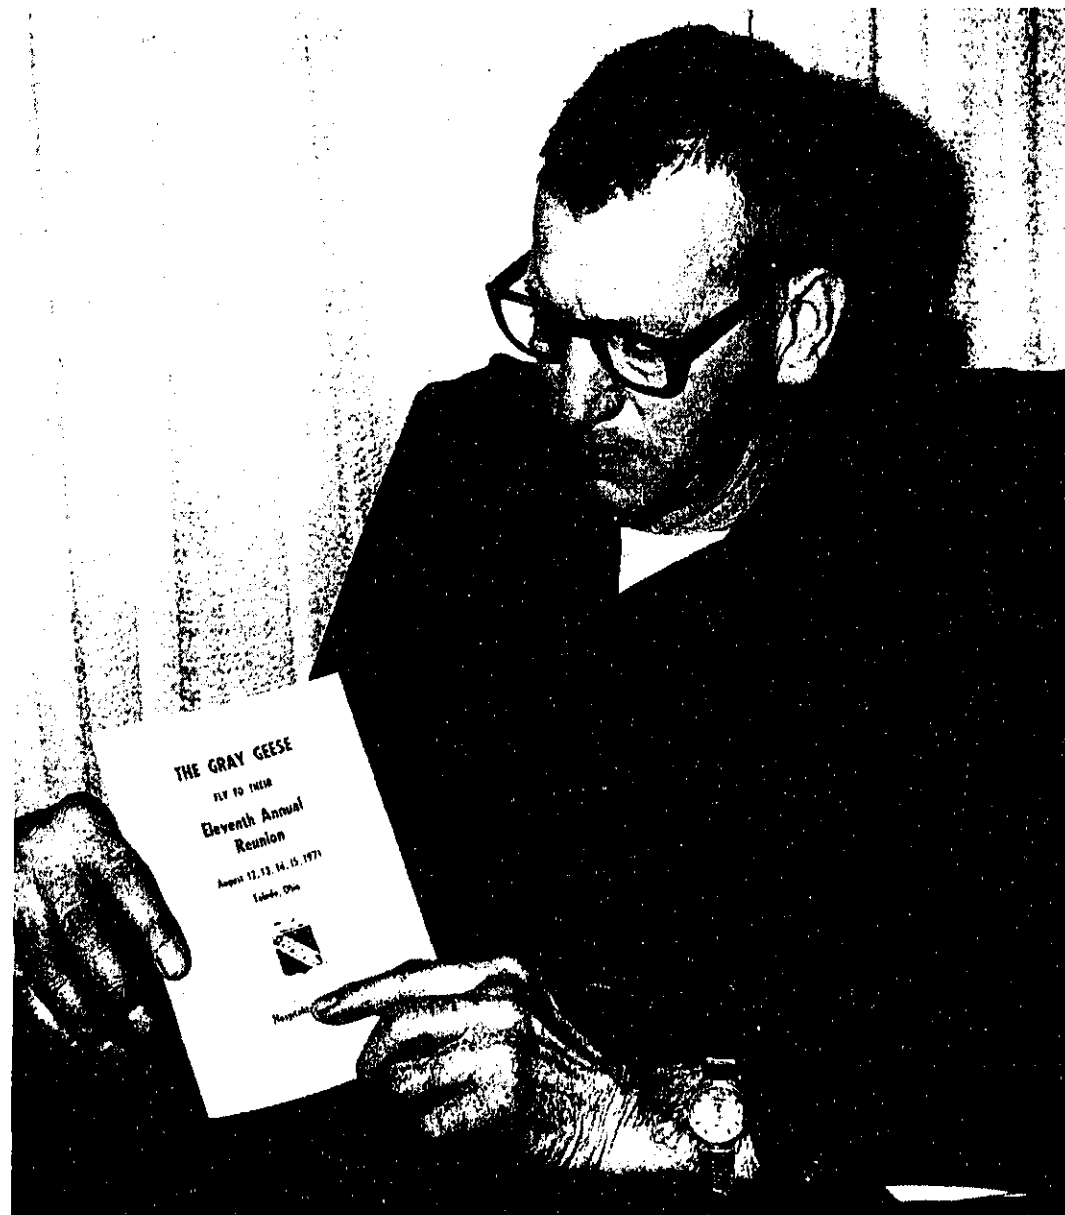

It wasn't until the next day that the men at Hickam found out the extent of the damage at Pearl Harbor and the sinking of the Arizona with all hands aboard.

"You could hear lots of gun shooting and see lots of smoke," Crane said, but he and everyone else were too interested in their own condition.

"We were just looking for places to eat, sleep and stay under cover," he said.

Navy and Army killed, wounded or missing in action numbered 4575; 188 aircraft, 8 battle ships, 3 cruisers and 4 vessels were destroyed.

WHEN THE BOMBS FELL, Jay Crane was right in the midst of the air raid over Pearl Harbor and Hickam Air Field Dec. 7, 1941.

Hills and Dales proves it can handle a disaster easily

By Kit McMillion

The screams of pain and numerous injuries that greeted the staff of the Hills and Dales Hospital Saturday afternoon were only part of a simulated disaster drill, but it proved one thing—the hospital can cope with the situation.

The disaster drill began early in the morning when about 30 "victims" grouped at the Masonic Hall for preparation. Under the supervision of the Civil Defense office and director Frank Kroswek, the volunteers, ranging in age from about at the Cass City State Bank to collect taxes Friday, Dec. 8. Elkland Township Treasurer. 12-7-1

I WILL BE

NOTICE

Our Saturday loading hours will be from 8:00 a. m. to 12:00 Noon. After December 16, we will be closed on Saturdays but we will be open Monday thru Friday from 8:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. Wallace Stone Plant, Bay Port, Michigan. 11-30-3 2 to adult age, were made up with injuries expected from a bus accident.

Mortician's wax, chicken bones, used in faking a compound fracture, stage blood and tubes connected to sacks to simulate both bleeding and vomiting were hooked up and put onto the volunteer victims.

The dramatics began when the hospital, not aware the disaster was only a drill, received a call at 1:55 p.m.

A school bus driver had suffered a heart attack and lost control of the bus she was driving. Accident victims would arrive at the hospital shortly, the hospital was told by the Tuscola county sheriff's office.

Police vehicles, fire trucks and ambulances transported the victims to the hospital, where emergency measures had already been put into motion.

Laboratory technicians, X-ray personnel, doctors, nurses and orderlies were called at their homes and requested to come to the hospital to help with the accident victims.

Hospital Administrator Byron Landholt said some hospital workers arrived before the first victims were brought to the facility, within 10 minutes.

Of the six doctors on the staff, three answered the call. Landholt was not able to give an accurate number of all persons who answered the call, but said sufficient numbers came to handle all patients quickly.

Following the plan devised by the hospital last spring, the building was closed off to all visitors and unauthorized persons. The entrance to the main lobby was opened as the admittance area.

The victims were admitted, screened and given various treatments and sent to the appropriate part of the hospital for their particular injuries.

By 3 p.m., the victims were all cared for and the drill was considered over, Landholt said. "We handled it very well," Landholt praised the staff.

He noted that the time used to process all victims was cut by at least one half since the last simulated disaster drill held in July 1971.

At that time the victims were supposed to have come from a flash fire.

The drill is necessary for accreditation of the hospital, but is also held in order to give the staff practice in handling mass emergencies, Landholt said.

Landholt went on to explain that although the hospital has never handled a real emergency of this magnitude, the drill indicated it could.

However, he continued, the hospital could never admit all 30 patients to beds.

The Hills and Dales Hospital could furnish this service, too, if a federally-owned emergency tent unit, complete with laboratory facilities and bed units, were stored in Cass City, rather than in the county garage where it now is.

The self-contained emergency unit was designated for Hills and Dales, Landholt said, but there is no room for storage here.

Storage space for the equipment was not included in the recent hospital expansion plans, although the hospital administrator said the equipment would fit in a space the size of a double garage.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Ho! Ho! Ho! The jolly music on Main Street has been an added attraction for shoppers in Cass City this Yuletide. It's also driving the Chronicle front office staff out of their minds. The best of music palls after you've heard it 100 times or so.

For the past several years M. B. Auten has hosted the Cass City High School football team at a banquet provided it won a stipulated number of games. Each of the past several years he has upped the goal and each year the team has met it.

Question: what will be demand of next year's squad after this year's went undefeated?

Oh woe, Mrs. Lynwood Lapeer, instructor, reports that books for the new snowmobile driver course for kids are just gone, gone, gone. That's a major crisis because if the kids don't pass the written exam they can't ride their bugs this winter after Jan. 1.

There are some books floating around from previous courses and if you have one Mrs. Lapeer wants to hear from you.

As a parent of one snow-bug struck kid I can testify that passing that test is more important than receiving all A's in regular courses.

Given Cass City's track record, it had to happen. The Christmas display erected by the school and paid for by the Chamber of Commerce featured many large suckers.

The first night they were erected two were stolen. The rest were then removed by authorities.

It's not surprising. You'll recall that the Christmas lights adorning the community trees last Christmas were taken almost as fast as the village crew erected them. The new sign at the school suffered the same fate.

Encourage Medical students to avoid general practice

It is increasingly difficult for someone who does not have a family doctor to find one. Formal documentation for this statement is hardly necessary: most people know it to be the case from their own experiences.

What is being done to improve the situation? A number of things, but nothing which seems terribly productive at this point.

Michigan medical educators have failed thus far to realize that the country is in dire need of doctors who will work with the public and that it is their business to produce such doctors. This is the attitude of Dr. Robert Vitu, a Saginaw physician who is president of the Michigan Academy of Family Practice.

This organization is made up of 1,200 doctors who "specialize" in what used to be called general practice but is now known as family medicine. The Academy is pursuing a campaign with the blessings of the Michigan State Medical Society that would result in more family doctors for the Michigan public. But it continues to be rough going.

When they heard about the declaration of war on Japan, Crane said most of the men felt it was just something you had to do.

"The morale was real good-like most Americans they were ready to go," he said.

Following that massive attack, eight inquiries were made, and speculation as to how it could have been avoided or what else might have happened is still a topic of conversation among military strategists.

According to Crane, a radar man observed unidentified aircraft on his scope, but was told to ignore it, when it was apparently the Japanese heading for the island.

Another speculation is whether or not the islands could have been taken if the Japanese had landed a task force. Some think they would have been successful, but Crane disagrees, stating he thought there was enough armament on the islands to defend them.

The speculations and the memories of that fateful day are kept alive by Crane and the rest of his group when members of the 11th bomb group of the Seventh Air Force-The Gray Geese-meet every summer for a reunion.

Crane has attended almost all of the annual meets since its inception in 1961, and he and his wife are planning to attend the next one in Milwaukee, Wis., next summer.

The comradeship of Group 11 still exists.

In 1966, the 25th anniversary of Pearl Harbor, Crane was present at the ceremonies held on the Hawaiian island when a marker was dedicated by his Group 11 to the 3640 men who died at Pearl Harbor.

seem to be involved on the part of medical educators. These are the people who decide which applying students shall be accepted for training and what they shall be taught. The record does not indicate they are interested in training doctors to work with families or people who need a general practitioner. Medical schools at University of Michigan, Wayne State and Michigan State all seem more interested in turning out specialists and researchers than doctors who will set up practice in communities and care for people there.

Students are discouraged in most instances when they indicate their desire to work in family practice. They are told: "You'll get over it." They are encouraged to pick a specialty.

University of Michigan medical school appears to be the most dogmatic in ignoring the needs of the public for family practitioners, and Wayne State's doctors seem to be trying almost as hard. MSU, which started out with announcements that they would be much concerned with service to Michigan's public, does not make the same claims loudly any longer, though there are some programs emanating from East Lansing which provide medical service for out-state areas.

The Academy for General Practice is urging that Michigan medical schools set up Family Practice Departments so that students interested in this field can get information, training and a feeling that their selection is just as important as some of the dramatic specialties. Dr. Vitu reports that his group has not made much progress with the medical schools toward this goal. He suggests no one opposes the goal openly, but that deans and others in control simply circumvent the idea so that no progress results.

Dr. Vitu reports that he has letters from numerous students who would like to know more about family practice, but that some have been discouraged. Programs about family practice held for medical students are well and enthusiastically attended, he says, but he adds that there are too few places students can get more information.

Osteopathic physicians fill the public need to some extent. Graduates of osteopathic schools are much more inclined to set up practice in communities. And since the legislators are increasingly aware of the situation, they are inclined to supply funds for osteopathic training with more enthusiasm.

The outlook is bleak that there will be immediate change seems to be the feeling of Dr. Vitu. But he and the Michigan Academy of Family Physicians are working to bring about improvement which will let a young doctor feel just as proud when he says he is specializing in family practice as another young doctor is when he says he is specializing in neurosurgery for example. And it does seem that medical educators themselves will have to educate about the needs of Michigan people if the changes are to come about.

"If It Fitz . . ."

Ya gotta have class

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Mother can be proud of me. I got classy friends.

As a boy, I can remember Mother complaining about my father's old friends. He was a white-collar salesman by then, but he had spent his early years fishing and repairing boats on the Great Lakes. He finally got the dirt from under his fingernails, but he never got his early friends from under Mother's skin.

She claimed it was embarrassing to be walking downtown, all dressed up, and have a 3-day drunk fall out of a bar and put his arm around her and say: "Yer Eddie's wife. I wash at yer wedding. Eddie and me used to have some great times. Did he ever tell ya . . ."

I soon learned what she meant. A bunch of my college friends thought it would be fun to go slumming in my hometown. I took them to the White Star, the evilest looking tavern on the waterfront. The floor was dirt but it was cleaner than the customers. 2 women in the corner were hitting each other with their kids. I looked into the bartender's one eye and I knew he was on probation for mass murder.

He asked me to prove my age and I gave him my driver's license. He read it slowly and then hollered: "Hey, you must be Eddie's boy!"

But things were different the other night, a classy night which I am herewith writing home to Mother about. She should know the kind of people that Eddie's boy is hanging out with since he gave up his paper route.

It was a birthday celebration and 6 of us dined in the Epicurean Room of the most sophisticated restaurant in the big city.

This room is so fancy they don't have a menu. The head waiter announces what is available. His accent is thick and I couldn't understand a word.

"What part of France are you from," asked 1 of my classy friends, just back from a European tour.

"Mexico," said the head waiter.

"I'll have a cheeseburger," I said.

The 5th man in a platoon of waiters peeled off and put some soup called consomme in front of me. He stood there while I tasted it.

"It tastes like warm Kool Ade," I told him. He went away.

Midway I went to the john. I told the guy standing next to me that I hadn't seen him in the Epicurean Room. He confessed he was eating in something called the Library Room.

"I'm sorry," I told him, "but this john is reserved for epicures only. I think you are supposed to go read a book."

This dinner had 9 courses.

The last was a funny looking roll that I couldn't slice because it turned out to be a hot, soggy napkin. My classiest friend showed me what it was for. He leaned back in his chair, ala barbershop, and put the napkin over his beard.

The evening was supposed to end at a piano bar, but it didn't. At closing time, a classy friend hired the piano man to come home with us, 20 miles away, and accompany us as we sang in the dawn.

When I finally escaped toward home, the piano man was looking up to all my classy friends. He was singing acapella from the prone position, on the carpet.

He'd have got his shirt dirty at the White Star. Ya gotta have class.

The six two-hour programmed-learning sessions will be scheduled during two week ends in January, preceded by an introductory session.

Those interested in obtaining specific information regarding the marital enrichment series may leave their names at the Cooperative Extension Service Offices in the Federal Building, Sandusky, the Civil Defense Center, Caro, or the County Building in Bad Axe.

FROM THE LITTER BOX

Humbug!

By Kit McMillion

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas. And I feel the Ebenezer Scrooge coming out in me already.

Snow is on the ground, Christmas carols are in the air and there's even a tree and a candy-cane light pole outside my office window. And I don't even want to think about it.

Every year about this time, I adopt my anti-holiday spirit, and start grumbling about the trees that pop up in store windows in late October.

At the time of year when most other persons adopt their seasonal friendliness, I try to retreat in a corner or hide behind a snowman or something so I don't have to lie about how great I feel, because I'm cold, usually have the sniffles and my bunions hurt after slopping around in heavy boots.

I'm not totally against Christmas decorations. Why, I'm even going to break down and buy a small cat-proof tree for my apartment and string it with popcorn and tin foil stars. For me, this is a concession, but I don't want to be completely out of tune with the rest of America.

It's a shame that the so-called brotherhood that is supposed to prevail at Christmas time doesn't exist all year round; and I have my doubts about its authenticity, but I'll go along with those who say, why knock it? At least people are friendly part of the time.

And then we have the waste. I've always been frugal in some ways but I also enjoy buying things for people I like that I think they will really enjoy. But buying Christmas presents gets to be a drag when it becomes an obligation, which everyone I talk to seems to regard it as.

I get more good feelings out of giving presents when it's for no special occasion and the receiver is really surprised because it's a genuine act of love and friendship.

But some people don't see it that way.

And Christmas is great for the kids. Lots of extra toys. They even lie to themselves after they find out the spirit of Christmas is simply embodied in Santa Claus just so they can get the extra loot, letting the spirit of Old St. Nick wait through the air and disappear like the smoke from the candles at the church service the once-a-year Christians feel obligated to attend, to witness the birth of a child they call God but most of whom don't know. And then we have the waste of all that electricity for the Christmas decorations and the chopping down of living trees to fill someone's living room where mother complains about the falling needles and asks whether or not someone has watered the tree.

I often wonder how many thousands of years it took to make the coal that is supplying the electricity to light the bulbs in the tree just outside my window during the day. And then I wonder if the environmentalists' warnings will mean anything to my grandchildren.

Perhaps they'll go back to candles and recall how their ancestors performed the same rites at this time every year.

I think about all these things and say to myself, "Now look Scrooge," and try to brush away the little demons whispering in my ear "Humbug!" and I tell myself, but Christmas is the only holiday this whole country, or almost all of it at least, celebrates.

Ever since the melting pot boiled over, The Average American doesn't really have anything else to draw upon and this is a tie that binds what sometimes looks like a rapidly decaying and splintering country together.

Christmas hides the mean, small petty lives people lead in the world, and uses decorations to wrap this country up like a present.

But in the true style of The Average American, I too will go out and ramble around the stores wondering what so-and-so would like for Christmas, and bake a few ginger bread men cookies and help stuff the postman's bag with cards.

And I'll wonder why I do it, and pretty soon it'll be all over.

Then I'll probably get a visit by someone shaking chains and decide maybe it's worth it anyway.

Meow.

They Do The Trick — Quick

BETTER HEALTH

Wiping out hereditary disease

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

In a recent column I told how we adults could avoid producing terrible suffering in our children if those of us with a horrible disease were to choose not to have children. That would quickly wipe dozens of inheritable diseases off the face of the earth.

I just read a remarkable article on this subject in the fine magazine, Ladies Home Journal (September, 1972). How I wish all people with inheritable diseases could read it.

In the article, "The Family Secret," William B. Furlong tells of two fine women, Abbie and Shirley Swier, married to brothers who both have developed a rare hereditary disease called spinal cerebellar degeneration. These women defied their husbands' family tradition of rigorous silence about "the family secret." They even let their pictures be published in the article. They decided, so wisely, that the secrecy that had kept knowledge of the disease IN would also have kept knowledge of help and hope OUT.

Most people with a rare nervous hereditary disease are so ashamed of it that when they go to a doctor, commonly they deny having a single case of it in their family.

As Mr. Furlong says, even in the small town in South Dakota, the secret of the fatal hereditary disease within one family has been guarded for five generations, and the young women who married into the family knew little or nothing of the trouble. The husband of one of the women, with whom she has had six children, used to be a fine specimen of a man. Now he cannot do many of the simplest things by himself—he cannot eat, bathe, dress, or go to the bathroom without help, and he has to crawl on the floor.

The husband of the other woman, who has given his wife five children, must now walk on wobbling legs. His hands cannot reach what they seek. His speech is blurred, and he cannot do what his mind wants him to do.

The two husbands had a brother and a sister with this same disease; also their grandfather, three aunts, their mother, and an uncle, all had it. Each of the 11 children of the brothers now has a 50 per cent chance of developing it.

Just imagine the horror of living until the age of perhaps 25 or 26, as the victims of this disease do, before learning that they must spend most of the rest of their lives becoming more and more helpless and gradually losing their faculties. I remember the horror of seeing such a man lying on the floor of a hospital, unable even to sit up. One of the most tragic aspects of this disease is that by the time the victim learns that he has it, often he has married and passed it on to some children.

The ancestor to whom the Swier family's disease has been traced, was a man born in Holland in 1817. He had nine children. Three of his daughters, all of whom had the disease, came to the United States about the time of the Civil War, and they passed the disease on to 10 children. As these children married and bred, the disease spread through the upper Midwest, where now at least 26 families carry it in their genes.

Mr. Furlong tells how members of these families, knowing well their danger, would marry without telling their spouse about it.

Many a time, I have heard the story of that sort of secrecy from a worried, recently married woman who had just discovered the well-kept secret of the bad nervous inheritance of her husband, and was afraid of what would happen to any children she might have.

The Swier family had managed to keep the disease a secret even from their neighbors, until eventually Abbie and Shirley decided to try to find out more about their problem; they began to read books and to look for guidance. Through a local doctor, they contacted the splendid research men at Bethesda, Md., and there it was determined that the diagnosis was spinal cerebellar degeneration.

The cerebellum is a part of the brain that has much to do with muscular coordination. With this disease, as the cells in the spine and cerebellum degenerate, the messages sent from the cerebellum to the muscles are transmitted less and less clearly, until coordination fails completely and the person becomes totally helpless. Eventually he cannot even cough, and if he should "catch cold" his lungs could fill up with phlegm and he could die of "pneumonia."

The experts at the National Genetics Foundation were also contacted, and they said they know of no cure, but they immediately began to study members of the big affected family. They held several "clinics" in the Midwest for the members of the Swier family and other affected families. As a result of these meetings, at least 78 members underwent medical examinations and tests of all kinds, and although little is understood of the disease as yet, the doctors were able to identify 17 persons who definitely have it in the early stages, some of whom did not realize it.

It is important to know early in life that one has a horrible hereditary disease. Obviously, the disease could quickly be wiped out if the people in the affected family would not have children, but some refuse to cooperate.

People with questions about hereditary diseases can write the National Genetic Foundation, Inc., 250 West 57th St., New York, 10019. Genetic counselors can be found in a number of universities.

TURN INTO ASSETS

Everyone makes mistakes, but some people have the ability to cash in on the experience.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Ed Doolittle, that speaks with more command since the Republicans done so good in the election, come to the meeting at the country store Saturday night with a report where the United States will expand its not growing opium program. Ed told the fellers he had saw where another country in the Middle East is trying to make its citizens quit raising the stuff.

When Turkey said it was going to force folks to stop growing opium, Ed said, good old Uncle Sam helped out by paying the farmers for the loss of their cash crop. That was a good deal all around. Uncle Sam figured, since the money we paid out was less than it would cost to deal with the dope after it got over here. It made the farmers happy, cause they didn't git much for their crop anyway. The money is made by the middlemen.

The idea is catching on over there. Ed reported, and now more of them countries is agreeing fer us to pay their folks fer not growing the drug. Ed said the wonder to him is that the countries that don't raise opium ain't started so we can pay em to stop. The idea is bound to spread to other kind of things. Ed allowed.

For instant, Kodak pritty soon will offer to pay companies in Japan not to make cameras, and all the car makers in Detroit will be paying the rest of the world to go in the not making cars business. The American textile industry can pay countries not to sell their textiles over here, then we can buy back all our cotton fer less than it cost us here and we can come out way ahead.

Actual, broke in Clem Webster, the not growing opium plan is jest the soil bank on a international scale. Farmers in this country has been paid not to raise anything they already is enuff of, and then they've got price supports on the rest. Clem said he saw by the papers where the Department of Agriculture now has come up with paying farmers for letting folks hunt and fish on their land. Farmers and ranchers that has been letting their friends hunt on their places free now can git the USDA to dig ponds, stock the ponds with fish and pay em fer letting these same folks use the land and water.

Zeke Grubb said he reckoned all the folks that had been paid by the USDA to turn their farms into golf courses now will fence em and apply fer pay to let rabbit hunters in, and stock a few fish in the water traps fer golfing fishermen. Pritty soon, Zeke figured, the USDA will be coming out with a new plan to fill in the ponds and pay farmers to raise wheat to sell the Russians. Then we'll pay em to go into the not hunting business cause all the animals will be a endangered species. Mister Editor, it seems to me Uncle Sam's pocketbook is the most endangered species around.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

LOST PUPPY FOUND

The puppy had been gone for hours. A small boy stood, nose pressed against the screen, staring at the empty evening. Then softer than a breath of air, beyond the hedge came a whimper. The door slammed, footsteps raced, and the moment exploded in yelping, wiggling delight.

Can you measure the joy of a lost puppy found? If happiness could be weighed or ruled, this surely would be an instant worth distilling. And how about that first glimpse of your newborn? the flash of adoration at that glowing second when the naughtiest little boy in Sunday School takes your hand and says, "I love you?"

High moments can't be assessed by material standards. But each inspiring revelation of God's love brings us closer to understanding Him and the Truth of His whole creation. That's why it is important to go to church.

Bakery fascinates Japanese visitors

Area residents will recall that last summer a team of Japanese industrialists were at Walbro Corporation for several weeks learning production techniques.

While here they learned a little of small town business, too. One of the businesses that evidently caught the interest of Ichiro Ota was Sommers Bakery. He quizzed the Stuart Merchants about the bakery and when he returned wrote an article which was published in "Pain", journal of the Japanese Baking Technologist Association.

This was how Ota translated the article in the magazine for the Merchants.

The Cass City where I spent this summer was located in Michigan, about 100 miles north from Detroit. The town has around three thousand people and all people in the community are white.

There are two bakeries in this small town besides several grocery stores which deal with bread. One of the bakeries is successful with good reputation, even though the size of the bakery is not so large. One day I visited the bakery and talked with the owner and workers.

The name of the bakery is "SOMMERS' BAKERY", which is in the main street of the town. The bakery is just one of the stores on the street as you see in the picture. There are small flower beds outside the windows. If there were not the sign "BAKERY", you might pass by without notice.

Mr. Merchant became the owner five years ago. His mother-in-law had been the owner until then. The bakery has been operated for 35 years at the same place.

The store just inside of the door under the sign of bakery, there are always guests buying baking products. Donuts, sweet rolls and cakes and cookies are placed in the glass case, and most of bread are on the racks leaned toward wall of the other side of the room.

Passing through the store, I saw Mr. Merchant is baking. There are nine workers including him. Five of them are part time workers. Some of them work both for selling and producing. Mr. Merchant starts working at one to one thirty a.m. on weekdays and at midnight on weekends.

There are mixers, an oven, tables, donut fryers, and other tools and equipments in the production area. Two school girls are packaging the oven fresh goods.

I asked several questions concerning the production. According to Mr. Merchant's answer, he uses about 2,200 pounds of flour a week besides whole wheat flour, rye flour, donut mix, and cake mix. The ratio of labor cost among total production cost is approximately 50 percent, but he was not sure. The labor cost increases every year as the minimum wage is raised. He pays most attention to the mixing time, change of weather, and temperature during the process in order to bake the best bread. Straight dough method is used most of the time. However, no time method is used occasionally.

Mrs. Merchant joined him to answer my questions about sales. The store sells about 250 dollars per weekday and 500 dollars per weekend day. Although he was not sure, Mr. Merchant guessed that the profit is about 1000 dollars a month. Quality and variety are the two things that attract customers most. The Irish Bread, Sommers' speciality, draws many people from the area.

Before coming to the United States I visited many bakeries in Japan. While I was talking with Sommers' people, I felt the same kind of atmosphere which I had felt in Japanese bakeries.

Arrest several from Cass City

James Clare Turner, 40, of E. Elmwood Road, Cass City, was arrested Friday by Tuscola county sheriff's deputies on a warrant for assault and battery. The warrant for his arrest was signed by his ex-wife following a family disturbance.

He is scheduled for arraignment before District Court Judge Kern Dec. 11. He was released on a personal recognizance bond.

Nicholas Bodnar, 44, rural Cass City, was arrested Monday and charged with being drunk and disorderly. He is scheduled to appear before Judge Kern Dec. 11.

Robert Wayne Jordan, 20, Germania Road, Cass City, was sentenced to six months in the county jail Friday by Judge Kern when he appeared in District Court on a charge of second offense driving with his license suspended or revoked.

Youth caught shoplifting

A 15-year-old Cass City youth was caught in the act of shoplifting a pair of snowmobile gloves and a pair of socks from Kritzman's Friday.

Bill Kritzman, owner of the store, called Cass City police when he saw the boy put the items under his coat. The gloves and socks are valued at $9. The boy was released to the custody of his parents.

Ed Goding Sr. of Cass City reported that three basement windows of the Masonic Temple at 4264 Maple St. were shot out by a BB gun recently. The damage was placed at $30.

Louis Nemeth, 6305 Main St., Cass City, reported two hubcaps valued at $60 taken from the rear tires of his car.

County road death toll reaches 32

Tuscola county's traffic fatality toll continues to rise with the death of a Silverwood man Friday.

William Howard Robinson, 35, 2770 Mariette Road, was pronounced dead on the scene when he lost control of the semi-truck he was driving on Vassar Road at 4:55 a.m.

According to Tuscola county sheriff's reports, Robinson apparently started to skid on ice and lost control. The truck left the road and struck a tree. Robinson is the 32nd traffic fatality this year.

Key 73 involves 65 Thumb churches in evangelism

In the first meeting of pastors and lay representatives of Upper Thumb churches, more than 65 churches were represented in making plans to begin a year-long, continent-wide evangelistic thrust, known as Key 73. The meeting was held in Cass City High School, when it was decided to divide the Upper Thumb into four quarters for more local representation and smaller, more centralized planning efforts.

Several of the smaller "quarter areas" have already begun organizational meetings, with plans underway to swing into the program of "uniting Christians in the task common to all Christians, which is evangelizing", representatives stated at the meeting.

Key 73, on a nationwide basis, involves more than 130 denominations, church bodies and groups taking part, working individually or in cooperation with others at community level. "Key 73 is intended", one pastor said, "to confront all people of our continent, fully and forcefully, with the Gospel of Jesus Christ by proclamation and demonstration, witness and ministry, word and deed in 1973". Key 73 will involve many facets of activity, carried out by local churches which will develop their own principles of operation, and will cooperate with each other in areas of publicity, witness surveys and distribution of the Scriptures, they explained. It is not intended to launch an ecumenical movement, but will retain full autonomy of doctrine and practice.

In many instances, local churches are purchasing New Testaments for distribution, and Key 73 workers will mark essential points before passing those Testaments to the homes they visit.

Key 73 is programmed to start now, and to operate in six phases, based on various messages and purposes. The phases are:

Phase 1 -- from Advent, 1972, to Epiphany, 1973, under the theme of "Calling Our Continent to Repentance and Prayer";

Phase 2 -- from February to April, 1973, for "Calling Our Continent to the Word of God";

Phase 3 -- March and April, 1973, including the pre-Easter season, "Calling Our Continent to the Resurrection";

Phase 4 -- Spring and Summer, 1973, "Calling Our Continent to New Life";

Phase 5 -- Spring, Summer and Fall, 1973, "Calling Our Continent to Proclamation";

Phase 6 -- November and December, 1973, and the close of the year, "Calling Our Continent to Commitment".

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Mrs. Marilou Drews of Cass City has been selected to appear in the 1967 edition of Outstanding Young Women of America. In spite of rain and heavy fog, an estimated 50 persons attended the inauguration of the Community Carol Sing at the Cultural Center, an event which is hoped will become an annual affair in Cass City.

Herb Bartle was presented with a watch from his company and $50. from friends on his retirement from Wesley-Quaker Milk Co. after 37 years.

Damage to the school gym floor was started by a smoldering cigarette left by night workers.

Army Private David R. Schember, 19, was his company's high scorer on the physical proficiency test held at the end of his basic training.

TEN YEARS AGO

Hills and Dales General Hospital has been named one of five county locations suitable to serve as Civil Defense shelters in the event of a national emergency.

A retirement dinner, paying tribute to 28 years of service with the Sanilac County Road Commission, was held for Ross Brown, 65, of Cass City, at the Cross Roads Restaurant.

Linda Severance, 17, left for the National Junior Vegetable Garden Association convention at Miami, Fla. Miss Severance won the trip by taking top places at county and state vegetable judging contests.

Cass City's switch to dial and direct distance dialing came off without a hitch as Village President Curt Hunt phoned his daughter in Madison, Wis. During the switchover, Cass City was without telephone service for an estimated four minutes.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Don Karr exhibited the grand champion of the show, an Aberdeen Angus steer, at the Junior Livestock Show at Detroit.

Workmen are laying a cement floor for a mill work shop, 24 by 36 feet, at the yard of the Brinker and Armstrong Lumber Co. on East Main St.

Miss Dagmar Martinek was awarded the Victory Medal of World War II at the Navy Recruiting Station in Wheeling. Melvin O'Dell, Clare Root and Verne Little were the first three persons to pay their Novesta township taxes, according to Leroy Kilbourn, the treasurer. Committee appointments for the annual Michigan State College J-Hop have been announced and Jeanne Profit, Cass City junior, has been named to the publicity committee.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Defective wiring is believed to have been the cause of a fire which destroyed the Ubbly hardware store of Allen Brown, with a loss of $7000.

The champion Aberdeen Angus steer raised by Alfred Goodall of Cass City was purchased at the Junior Live Stock show at Detroit for 74 cents a pound.

Dr. B. H. Starmann was re-elected president of the Cass City Community Club at a meeting of the board of directors.

Three beautiful wall pictures were recently purchased by the directors of the Youth Center, and framed by Maier's Studio--a much needed addition to the equipment of these recreation rooms.

About fifty members and attendants of the Cass City Presbyterian church met at the church for a social get-together meeting, the main feature being the burning of the mortgage on the manse.

Yvonne Sangster services held

Final rites were held Monday for Mrs. Yvonne Sangster, 26, of Decker, who died Friday at Hills and Dales Hospital where she had been a patient two days. She had been in ill health the past two weeks.

Mrs. Sangster was born March 9, 1946, in Cass City, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil and Verna Sweet Lowe.

She was united in marriage to George Sangster in Walled Lake April 23, 1964. Following their marriage they made their home in Decker. She had lived in Cass City many years.

She was a member of the Deford Community Church. She is survived by her husband; a daughter, Kimberley Kay, and two sons, George Jr. and Robert, all at home; two sisters: Mrs. Keith (Joyce) Brown of Ubbly and Mrs. Harold (Carolyn) Donaghy of Sandusky; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Lowe of Snover, and paternal grandmother, Mrs. Ella Lowe of Snover.

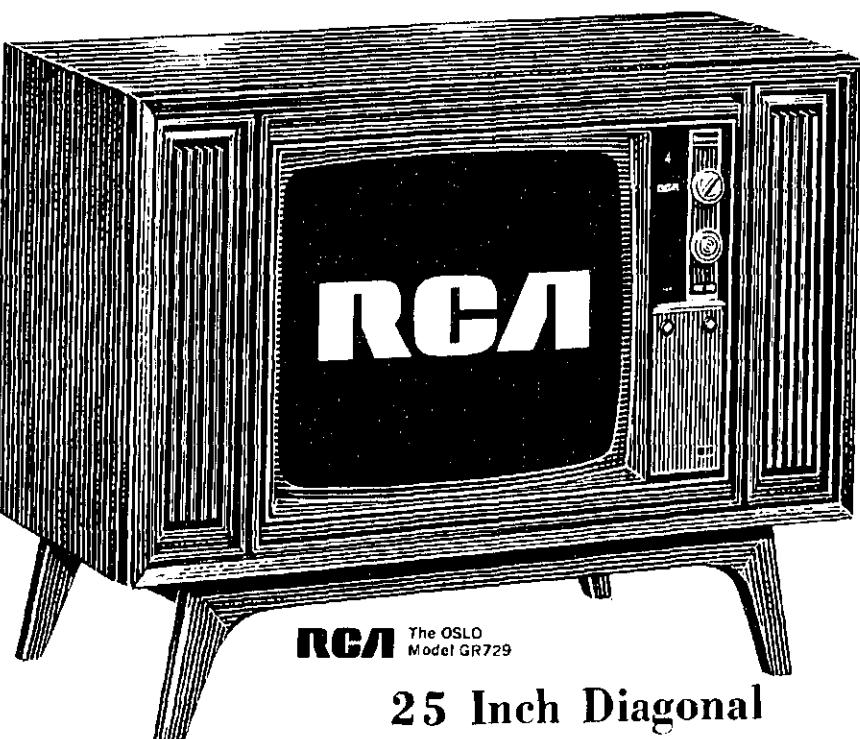

Services were held at 3 p.m. from the Deford Community Church. Interment was in Elkland cemetery. The Rev. Dale Sherry and the Rev. George Harmon officiated.

Jury finds Bell guilty as charged

Claude Bell, Deford, was found guilty of resisting arrest Tuesday by a jury in the Tuscola County Circuit Court.

The jury deliberated about 1½ hours to arrive at the guilty verdict.

The charge against Bell was made by Tuscola county sheriff's deputy Thomas Kern and stemmed from a Feb. 5 incident when Kern arrested Bell on a reckless driving charge.

Sentencing is set for 1:30 p.m. Jan. 8.

Robert Manning Viney, Cass City, was sentenced to the state prison at Jackson for 2½ to 4 years by Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Norman A. Baguley Monday.

Viney was sentenced for larceny in a building. He pleaded guilty to that charge, which was reduced from breaking and entering a house belonging to Margaret Szagash of Mayville, located at Leix and Blackmore Roads.

A television was taken when the house was burglarized Sept. 29.

Clark Petty, 21, Vassar, was sentenced to the state prison at Jackson for a term of 15 to 25 years. He was convicted of armed robbery by a jury at his November trial.

Petty was found guilty of the July 31 armed robbery of a Saginaw man in a Richville bar when $40 was taken from him at shotgun point.

James Bedell, 28, Vassar, had already been sentenced for attempted armed robbery in the same incident to three years, four months, to 5 years.

Lee W. Sharp, 18, of Vassar, was arraigned Monday in connection with the same incident. He stood mute to a charge of armed robbery and a plea of innocent was entered for him. Pre-trial is scheduled for Jan. 2.

In other court business, Joseph Mannarino, 19, and Terrie Lynn Mannarino, both of 622 Sheridan St., Caro, stood mute when arraigned for illegal possession of phenobarbital, a controlled substance.

A plea of innocent was entered for both. Both were arrested Oct. 26 in Caro. Bond was continued. Pre-trials are scheduled for Jan. 2.

Glen M. McPhee of Bay City stood mute to a charge of felonious assault. A plea of innocent was entered for him. He is charged with assaulting a Unionville man with a 2x4 board. Court records indicate the charge stems from a bar fight. Bond of $1000 was continued and a pre-trial scheduled for Jan. 2.

David Louis McLellan of Bay City was arraigned Nov. 30 on a similar charge of felonious assault with a motorcycle helmet stemming from the same incident. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered for him. Bond of $1000 was continued.

Sentencing is scheduled for Jan. 15 for Thomas Atkins, 29, Vassar, who entered a plea of guilty to the reduced charge of felonious assault at a pre-trial conference Monday. He was originally charged with attempted armed robbery with a .38 caliber revolver of a Mayville woman at a Vassar bar.

Architects advise mixing styles

Some of the country's leading architects say do not be afraid of mixing up the modern and the traditional when it comes time to remodel.

The original style of the older house need not be reproduced slavishly in the newer additions. Of course, a compatibility should be sought and in this endeavor the advice of your architect will be invaluable.

He will most likely consider not only the new addition in relation to the original house, but the remodeled home in relation to neighboring buildings.

This latter consideration is important both to you and your neighbors because property values can be either favorably or adversely affected by the presence of a show-place or an eyesore on your block or in your neighborhood.

Sulfur no help for many crops

The question of whether our crops will respond to applications of sulfur has been pondered over the years.

This year research between MSU Soil Specialists, farmer cooperators and your county Cooperative Extension office showed corn, navy beans and alfalfa did not respond to additional rates of sulfur.

"Our sulfur plots at Daniel List's farm near Frankenmuth showed no significant yield increases on a fine stand of alfalfa over the no sulfur treatment," reports Don Keblor, Extension Agricultural Agent.

Daniel Herman of Unionville had navy bean yields of 30.6 bushels per acre where no sulfur was applied, and 32.8 bu. where ammonium sulfate was applied. These yield differences are considered insignificant too.

Paul Findlay's fine field of corn, north of Caro, yielded 161 bushels per acre where no sulfur was added and 163.2 bushels where additional sulfur was applied. Paul's corn had the highest yields of the eight county's trials with the second highest yield being at least 20 bushels per acre lower.

These responses to supplemental sulfur this year were the same on all plots in the state. Soybeans gave the same response to supplemental sulfur as alfalfa, corn and navy beans.

It is well to remember one year's research is not adequate for conclusive analysis. "We plan to proceed with sulfur response research plots next year," responds Keblor.

Explain farm disaster aid

Farmers in Tuscola county suffering losses from the July hailstorm are eligible for federal emergency loans at one per cent interest, reminds Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension Director.

The Secretary of Agriculture has designated 11 Michigan counties as natural disaster areas, making them eligible for loans from the Farmers Home Administration (FHA) under Public Law 92-385. To qualify, a farmer must have lost 20 per cent or more of his production as a result of the following natural disasters:

In Allegan, Berrien, Cass, Kent, Muskegon, Newaygo, Oceana, Ottawa and VanBuren counties, the loss must have resulted from minus 20 degree temperatures last January, the June freeze or drought from April 15 through June 15.

In Tuscola county, the loss must be attributable to the July hailstorms. Farmers in Menominee county are eligible if they suffered a 20 per cent production loss due to a mid-September tornado.

Under the law, loans are available to eligible farmers for: 1) operating, 2) buildings and, under some circumstances, 3) real estate refinancing.

The law provides that the first $5,000 or the amount of loss (whichever is less) is cancelled by the government. Thus, eligible farmers who suffer losses of $5,000 or more need only repay principal and interest on the amount in excess of $5,000.

If a farmer in one of the designated counties has suffered a 20 per cent production loss, he should contact his local Farmers Home Administration office for a loan application. Loans up to $6,500 are secured by a promissory note. Those in excess of $6,500, but less than $25,000, require crop and chattel liens. When the need is for more than $25,000, real estate security may be required.

In addition to the production loss requirement, an applicant need only be a farmer and U. S. citizen. Unlike other FHA loans, the emergency assistance loan is not limited to the "family farmer." Corporations and partnerships also qualify. Inability to obtain other financing is not an eligibility factor.

Loans for operating expenses are repayable from income during the ensuing year. Equipment or livestock loans may be for periods up to seven years.

Harvey doubts sewage disposal plan feasible

"It's so unbelievable that I am concerned that proponents of the plan are serious -- deadly serious -- of implementing the project. This has been a real bombshell for everyone. To my knowledge, outside of the Department of the Army's Corps of Engineers, no one had an inkling that such a pollution proposal was even being discussed. I still have not heard from the Corps of Engineers but I intend to get some answers immediately."

Congressman Jim Harvey, commenting on recent news articles that a plan is being considered to dump raw sewage on large areas of farmland in the Thumb area, primarily in the counties of Tuscola and Huron, to supposedly end the pollution of Lake Erie by those counties in southeastern Michigan, mainly Wayne county and the City of Detroit, also announced today that his Administrative Assistant, Jim Sparling, will be sent to Bad Axe to "personally represent me" at the public hearing at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 11, at the George E. Greene Elementary School, called by Detroit District Office of the Corps of Engineers.

"My initial reaction is that the plan simply isn't feasible.

The costs, I suspect, would be astronomical. Furthermore, what of crops to be grown? I understand that beans and sugar beets could not be grown and farmers would shift to corn, hay and alfalfa." Congressman Harvey continued, "I know we are not going to get all the answers at the meeting on Dec. 11, but I also know that this project isn't going anywhere until all the answers are in."

Congressman Harvey also revealed that he has written to Colonel Myron D. Snoke, District Engineer, United States Army Engineer District, Corps of Engineers, asking for a preliminary report on the proposal. "I am bothered, too, that responsible officials on the local, state, and Federal level learn about such a far-reaching proposal through the newspapers and radio and television mediums. I would have thought that the Corps of Engineers, as is customary, would have provided advance notification of this proposal to appropriate officials."

Harvey added, "From the reaction that I have received from the Huron county area, I don't think that the elementary school will be able to handle the turnout for that meeting."

Tougher snowmobile laws aim for control of industry

Eight years ago when snowmobiles were still a curiosity, an estimated 14,000 were in use nationwide—about 10 percent of them in Michigan, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

In Michigan alone this winter, 40,000 new snowmobiles are expected to be sold as the state's number of registered snowmobiles soars well past the 300,000 mark.

By winter's end, snowmobiling will have pumped an anticipated $290 million into the state's economy. This estimate projects a $50 million increase over last winter's expenditures on snowmobiles, accessories and related items. That outlay generated almost $12 million in state tax revenues.

"To accommodate this ongoing boom, 200 more miles of state forest trails and 70 of Michigan's 79 state parks are now open to snowmobile use," notes Joseph Ratke, Auto Club's touring manager.

But Ratke advises snowmobilers to familiarize themselves with Michigan's tougher snowmobile restrictions before operating their vehicles this winter.

Aimed at curbing the ever-increasing snowmobile accident rate, the new law takes full effect this season. It allows snowmobiles to be driven only on road right-of-ways north of the roads themselves—not the line from Muskegon to Bay City. Use of public roads or right-of-ways south of the line is absolutely forbidden.

An amendment to this state law which would have permitted snowmobilers to use highway right-of-ways throughout Michigan is not expected to receive legislative approval this year. After Jan. 1, 1973, the law will prohibit children aged 12 to 15 from driving snowmobiles without adult supervision unless they have successfully completed a safe snowmobiling course. Children under 12 cannot operate a snowmobile on public property.

The state legislature has also earmarked almost $600,000 in snowmobile registration revenues for use by state and local agencies for trail development and snowmobile safety programs.

"Snowmobile accidents claimed the lives of 30 people in Michigan during 1971-72 and injured another 1,969," says Ratke. "Hopefully, the state's more vigorous involvement in snowmobile accident prevention will change this alarming trend."

Imprudent snowmobile use has also resulted in the vehicles being barred from four public game areas in southern Michigan. Maintaining that snowmobiles were harming wildlife and damaging land, the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has prohibited their use in the Danville, Gourd Lake, Minden City and Murphy Lake areas. The scramble area of the Rouge River (in Kent county) is also off-limits to snowmobilers.

To offset these closings, the DNR is in the process of leasing 18,000 acres of private land in southern Michigan for snowmobile operation.

Snowmobilers will have access to four new routes in northern Lower Michigan developed by the DNR, which now provides 900 miles of snowmobile trails in 39 state forests.

The new routes are: the Fur Farm Flooding Trail north of Clare, the Red Oak-Lovelle-Lewiston Trail between Mio and Grayling, the Rose City-Clear Lake Trail north of West Branch, and the Brush Lake Trail near Atlanta.

Under a $273,000 improvement program, the DNR has purchased eight trail-grooming machines to keep state forest trails in good shape this winter.

Use of state park facilities, however, will be left up to the discretion of the park manager. Snowmobiles definitely will not be allowed in state parks if less than four inches of snow are on the ground.

A $5 annual park permit sticker is required for cars entering a state park. If a snowmobile is taken into a park, whether used in the park or not, it also must have a $5 vehicle sticker.

Michigan's four national forests—Ottawa, Hiawatha, Manistee and Huron—are open again this year to snowmobilers. The national forests offer a wide variety of marked trails, ranging up to 40 miles in length, plus a vast network of unmarked logging trails. Maps and trail information can be obtained in ranger district offices in the four forests.

Snowmobiling courses for youngsters aged 12 to 15 will be offered by local law enforcement agencies throughout the state. Safety certificates will be awarded upon successful completion of eight hours of classroom instruction and a two-hour examination, including operating a snowmobile. Information on where classes will be held is available through district DNR offices and county sheriff's departments.

Auto Club advises all snowmobilers to keep these simple safety rules in mind this winter:

Avoid illegal use of roadways where most snowmobile deaths occur.

Know trails and stay on marked routes.

Carry area maps plus a compass.

Be aware of and abide by state snowmobile laws.

Stay off ice on lakes and streams if conditions are unknown.

Avoid alcohol.

Never travel alone.

Carry safety gear such as snow shoes, flare gun, first-aid kit, axe, extra fuel, new spark plugs, tools for minor repairs and rations.

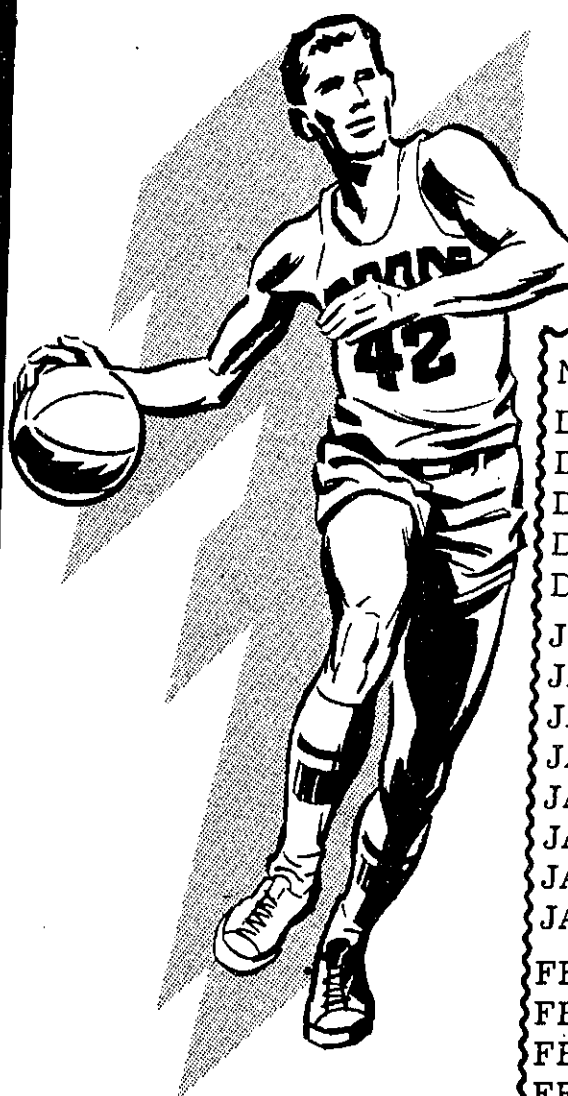

Snowmobilers are also advised to dress appropriately for wind and weather conditions. Even moderate temperatures, coupled with wind velocity or snowmobile speed, can produce a chill factor capable of causing severe discomfort—even frost-bite-to riders.

A MITTEN TREE, sponsored by all Cass City Girl Scouts and Brownies has been set up at the Post Office. Gail Compo, foreground, and Lauri Hartsell of Troop 272 pin a pair of mitts to the tree. This is the first tree set up in the community in several years, and the girls are hoping for a good response from citizens. Mittens and scarves donated to the tree will be distributed to needy families at Christmas time.

Santa Letters

Dec. 1, 1972

Dear Santa,

I have really tried my best to be a good little boy this year. You know it's awful hard sometimes Santa.

I would like a new John Deere tractor, race track and a train for Dad and I.

My sister Deanna is in the first grade this year. She wants only three things, an Easy Bake oven, Barbie Beauty Center, and a record player.

We'll leave you and your reindeer a nice treat. If you have time, stop out by the shed and see our new puppies - maybe you would know of some little boy or girl who would really like to have one for Christmas.

Love,

Andrew Nichols
Age 5

P.S. Don't forget Doug, Mike, Shelley and Missy.

Dear Santa

I want a big pony because I was a good girl and I have

Caro man dies in truck mishap

A Caro man was accidentally killed Wednesday, Nov. 29, when a 1 1/2-ton gravel truck fell on him.

13 million trees

planted in 1972

Michigan State Conservation Service, Arthur H. Cratty, has just released the tree and shrub planting totals for 1972. There were 13,392,000 trees and shrubs planted. Along with rural environmental improvement which will result from these plantings, there is also erosion control, forestry and wildlife benefits.

The planting program is a result of joint work by many local Soil Conservation Districts, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, and the Soil Conservation Service. Since 1936, Mr. Cratty reports over 400,000,000 trees and shrubs have been planted. He estimates that this means about 500,000 acres of land have been improved by these plantings.

Tuscola County Soil Conservation District furnished leadership for planting 331,000 trees during 1972. This represents about 527 acres of tree planting for reforestation and Christmas trees, six acres of shelterbelts around farm buildings and 25,000 feet of field windbreaks. Leon Keinath, chairman of the Tuscola Soil Conservation District states that over 7,000 acres have been planted in Tuscola county since the SCD formation in 1943.

White pine, red pine, scotch pine, Austrian pine, white spruce, Norway spruce, Colorado blue spruce and a shrub, Autumn Olive, will be available in the spring of 1973. Place your order today at the Tuscola Soil Conservation District Office, 852 S. Hooper Street, Caro, Michigan.

Freda Graham buried Friday

Final rites for Mrs. Freda Graham, 84, were conducted 3 p.m. Friday from Little's Funeral Home, Cass City, with burial following in Elkland Cemetery. The Rev. Elizabeth Isaacs, pastor of the Trinity United Methodist Church, officiated.

She died Tuesday, Nov. 28, at the Tuscola County Medical Facility, where she had been a patient the past 20 months.

Mrs. Graham was born Nov. 13, 1888, in Crosswell, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul and Augusta Grenke Filwood.

She was united in marriage to Chester Graham in Detroit Nov. 26, 1913. Following their marriage they made their home in Port Huron. They came to Cass City in 1916 where she has made her home until her death.

They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Nov. 26, 1963.

Mrs. Graham was an honorary member and past president of the Cass City Woman's Study Club and past president of the East Central District State Federation of Women's Clubs. She was also a member of the Trinity United Methodist Church and a member of the W.S.C.S.

She is survived by her husband; three daughters: Mrs. William (Marjorie) Bottrell of Flint; Mrs. Alfred (Millicent) Hall of Mt. Clemens, and Miss Christina Graham of Detroit; a son, Edward of Morro Bay, Calif.; four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Two sisters and two brothers preceded her in death.

Sell Kidney beans now

By Bill Bortel

In earlier news releases, I stated that kidney beans were in short supply and they looked like good property to store for two to three months. Light red kidney bean supply was down in New York and this has affected the whole market. Eastern canners and packagers continue to support current strong prices; however, most canners like to clean up kidney beans by the first of the new year.

With strong prices for light red kidney beans, I would suggest you look for a strong day and sell this month. Dark red kidney beans have held strong in price due to the short supply of light reds. I also believe dark reds should be moved this month while demand is still high.

BY B. A. CALKA REAL ESTATE

NICK GIBAS snapped a personal slump Tuesday night as he rebounded well and shot well to help Cass City to victory over Ubyly.

Hawks notch initial win Tuesday

Caro invasion Friday key to Hawk cage year in Thumb B loop

The Cass City High School varsity basketball squad was down to eight players Tuesday night but that was more than enough to whip visiting Ubyly at the high school gym, 76-47.

The Hawks abandoned the zone defense that Coach Fred Hurlburt used against the Lakers and the familiar man-to-man defense proved ample to contain the visitors.

Actually, it was a ragged performance by both squads. Typical of early season play.

The Hawks were able to out rebound Ubyly and were a quicker team Tuesday.

A bright spot for Cass City fans was the play of Nick Gibas who finally became untracked after two sub-par games.

Gibas rebounded well and led the Hawk attack with 21 points.

Cass City moved in front early and was never seriously threatened all night. At one time early in the second quarter the lead was stretched to 15 points.

The only real moments of interest in the outcome of the game came midway through the second period when Ubyly rallied to move within five points of the Hawks.

Cass City stiffened to widen the lead to 35-25 at halftime and then pulled steadily away throughout the remainder of the game.

At the three-quarter mark the score was 57-34.

Cass City had three men in double figures. Besides Gibas, Paul Bliss netted 13 and Scott Hartel, 10. Bliss played a fine floor game to lead the team.

For Cass City fans it's nice to have one under the belt but the real test for Cass City is still ahead. It starts Friday night when the Caro Tigers come to town.

The Tigers have one of the better teams in the Thumb B Conference and if the Hawks are to be a factor in the Conference race this season a victory over the Tigers is a must.

JUNIOR VARSITY

While the varsity is off to a slow start this year, the junior varsity is off and winging. The JV's stormed to their third victory in a row over the Ubyly JV 78-55 and for the second time in a row Cass City used every player suited.

LAKER GAME

Cass City lost its second straight game of the young basketball season as they were outshot and outrebounded at Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port Friday.

in a 68-60 decision.

What we need is one good game so that the boys can go out and relax, have some fun and start winning games, says coach Fred Hurlburt.

The Lakers entered the game with just two players who saw plenty of action last year and both figured prominently in the victory.

Jim O'Connor was a terror on the boards and led his team in scoring with 26 points. Junior Ray Leppien broke through Cass City's zone with several set shots from the side court.

The Hawks have yet to play this year the way they did at the close of the 1971-72 season. The shooting has been poor and the team has been beaten on the boards in both of the first two games.

Still, the Hawks were in the game all the way.

Dave Hillaker, who couldn't buy a bucket in the opener, held the Hawks within range in the first quarter when he hit from the side. At the end of the first period, Cass City trailed by just two points.

In the second stanza, neither team hit well. The Hawks scored just 10 points while the 14 the Lakers racked up put them into a six-point advantage at the half.

The Hawks chopped away at the lead in the third quarter with a 17-15 advantage and going into the final stanza the score was 45-41 and it was anybody's game.

But the Lakers took control midway in the final period and moved in front by as much as 11 points. With about three minutes to go the Lakers went into a stall and ran out the clock for the victory.

The Lakers hit 26 of 82 attempts for 31 per cent and Cass City netted 22 of 79 attempts for 28 per cent from the field.

Hillaker scored 15 to lead Cass City and Paul Bliss had 13

JUNIOR VARSITY

The Cass City Junior Varsity remained undefeated by rolling over the Lakers 75-45. It was a game in which Coach Skip Pranger was able to clear his bench and still win easily.

RANDY PARKER, 17, of Decker shot this large deer and it won him a snowmobile suit in a contest sponsored by an Argyle business. The deer had a nine-point rack and a 21-inch spread.

at annual banquet Monday

INITIATIVE

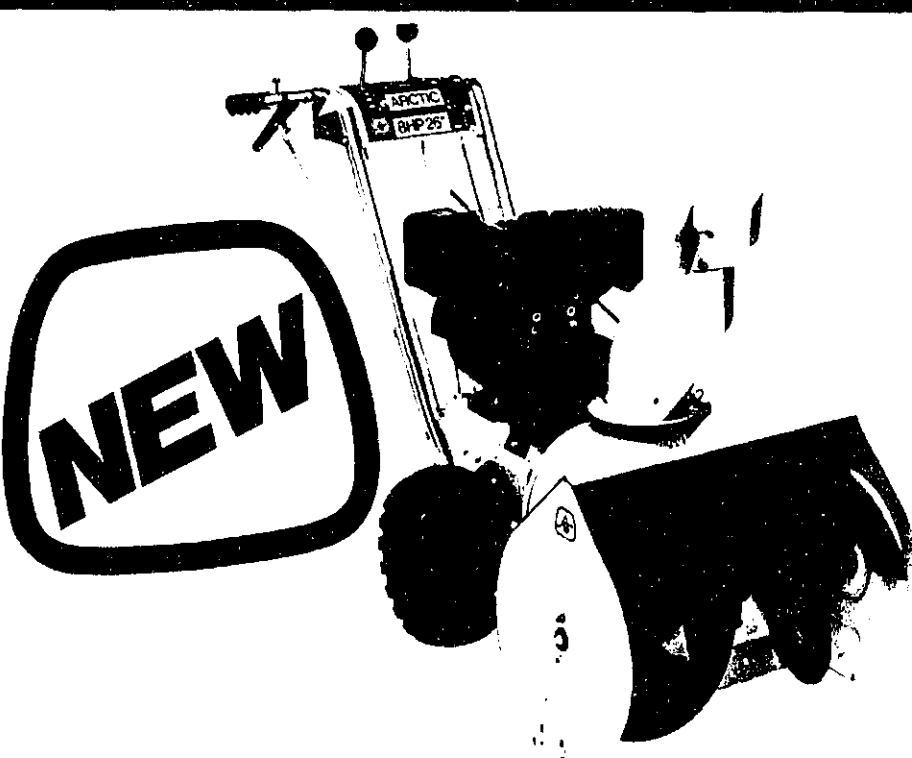

It's impossible for any man to be greater than his ability to think for himself.

The Want Ads are newsy too.

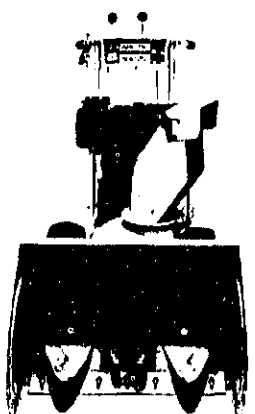

RANDY WRIGHT missed this short shot for Cass City in the first half. It was a scene repeated too many times as the Hawks lost to the Lakers Friday.
