

FROM THE
Editor's Corner

Recreation vehicles and mother nature appear headed on a collision course if you can believe experts of the Department of Natural Resources.

And there is no reason to believe that we can't.

Snowmobiles in the winter and all terrain vehicles in the summer are said to be hurting Michigan's wildlife.

Snowmobiles affect wildlife during the critical winter stress period, Merrill (Pete) Petoskey, DNR wildlife chief, says.

Judging the rumbles that come from the DNR the best time for snowmobiling may be right now. . . in future years the unlimited access to much of Michigan's natural wonders via the popular snow bugs will be as dead as the passenger pigeon.

That may shake up thousands who are getting their real first look at the outdoors because of the thrill of bucking a drift on a motorized sled.

But for thousands of others it shouldn't cause even a lifted eyebrow.

The guys who have seen it all before. The favorite hunting ground gobbled up by private interests. The no trespassing signs around favorite fishing access points. The no vacancy signs at public camping grounds. The week-end traffic jams on highways leading to and from the cities and vacation land.

Sportsmen of 25 years ago never knew how good they had it. Neither do the majority of snowmobilers riding the trails today.

It won't be many years before a safari into "virgin" winter wonderland to see a stream flowing between ice incrustured banks, or the quiet white tranquility of a field of snow without a footprint will be as rare as a day on the AuSable River without a canoe or a motorboat steaming by to remind you that people are everywhere.

It's regrettable and inevitable. You'll find industry spokesmen who say that it is only a few who cause all the trouble. A few "bad" fishermen, hunters, snowmobilers, mushroom hunters. . . you name it and it's never the sport but the sportsman that causes all the flak. That's a rip off.

It's a population problem.

After a while I'd guess that the snowmobilers will do like the fishermen, like the hunters, like the campers.

Realize that they have only a share of Michigan's water wonderland and that their share is growing smaller, smaller, smaller.

The problem is a minute, close-to-home look at what the zero population growth people have been telling us all along.

There just isn't enough land to go around.

Record quiet in Cass City
Chief Gene Wilson reports

Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson this week reported with evident satisfaction that February has proved to be one of the quietest months on record for his department.

There appear to have been fewer larcenies, fewer crimes of all nature as well as fewer accidents this month than any I can remember, the chief said.

Judge Kern
dismisses case against Brown

A case against Keith Elton Brown, 39, of Cass City was dismissed Friday in Tuscola County Justice Court.

District Judge Richard Kern noted that the people failed to produce any proof of guilt on the date of the preliminary hearing.

Brown was charged on a complaint signed by Joseph Riley, rural Cass City. Riley had charged Brown with larceny of an $800 wooden meat cooler door.

It makes routine police work a little boring sometimes, he added, but that's the way we like to have it.

There were three accidents in Cass City this week, none serious, as well as several minor mishaps reported to Bad Axe State Police and the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

A three-car accident was investigated Wednesday, Feb. 21, at 8:20 a.m. on Seeger Street.

Cass City Police reported that cars were hunched together headed north towards Cass City schools.

Sean Laura Wooley, 16, Cass City, stopped for traffic and her vehicle was struck in the rear by a car driven by Roy Howard Sefton, 18, Decker.

A car driven by Charles C. Phetteplace, 16, of Decker, then rammed the Sefton vehicle in the rear, the police report said.

Ticketed for failure to stop in an assured clear distance ahead were Sefton and Phetteplace.

Minor property damage was reported when vehicles driven by Karen Jean Fischer, 29, Cass City, and Betty Lou Watson, 31, Cass City, collided at the corner of Main and Seeger.

Both cars were driving on Main when Ms. Watson attempted a left turn from the right lane onto Seeger Street.

Gene Kent Hopper, 18, of Deford, was uninjured when he lost control of his car Monday and hit a tree.

The accident occurred as Hopper was driving north on Seeger Street.

COUNTY ACCIDENTS

According to the county sheriff's department report, the single area accident of the week occurred Sunday evening. Cars driven by Eugene Alex Salas, 18, of Cass City and Francis G. Miller of Saginaw collided.

Miller was driving east on M-81 at Cass City Road when Salas turned to head west on M-81 from Cass City Road. The Salas car apparently moved across the centerline. There were no injuries.

Linda Mary Hewitt, 20, of Cass City was injured Sunday in an accident on M-142, about five miles northwest of Bad Axe, according to Huron county sheriff's department.

Ms. Hewitt was a passenger in a car driven by Terrance Bouverette. He lost control, skidded and rolled over a distance of 211 feet. The car landed on its wheels on the north side of the highway.

Bouverette suffered a nearly severed left ear and head lacerations. Ms. Hewitt sustained minor cuts and bruises.

They were treated at Huron Memorial Hospital in Bad Axe.

Bad Axe State Police reported no injuries to three Cass City women in a mishap on Cemetery Road, two miles south of Cass City. The accident occurred Tuesday, Feb. 20, at 3:30 a.m.

Uninjured were Marsha Ann McNeil, 20, the driver; Charlene Curtis, 25, and Sharon Curtis, 18, passengers in the car.

According to the report, Ms. McNeil lost control on the icy road and slipped into a ditch on the east side of the road, narrowly missing some tree stumps at the location.

Council okays 40 trees
on Main street sidewalk

The Cass City village in its regular session Tuesday night at the municipal building, gave the green light to the Cass City Chamber of Commerce for a tree planting program on Main Street this spring.

While agreeing in principle to the request as relayed by Chamber President Roger Little, trustees did punch the caution light.

They wanted more complete details before the project started. Supl. Lou LaPonsie cautioned that breaking holes in the sidewalk could cause problems with cracking if water gets under the cement through the holes for the trees.

What Little envisions for the Chamber program is a hole about four-feet square in which sand and gravel will be removed and new dirt installed before the trees, Sunburst Locusts, are planted.

Dr. D. E. Rawson, a trustee, cautioned that the species under consideration must be sprayed constantly. Little then explained that an arrangement for permanent care would be assumed by the Chamber.

The plans call for the entire business district to receive the planting, five on each side of the street per block, to a total of 40 trees. The project will start very soon, probably in April.

President Lambert Althaver said that before any program is started it will have to be cleared by the State Highway Department which controls the right-of-way on Main Street (M-81).

The trees have been planted in many Michigan communities, the closest being Inlay City, Little told the council.

The size of the trees will probably be about 10 feet tall, it was disclosed.

One problem will be digging the hole in the sidewalks. Village equipment will not operate in that small an area and hand work is expected to be necessary.

Project sponsors hope for volunteer labor for this job. After the dirt is above ground the village agreed to use its men and equipment to haul it away.

Higher water, sewer rates
on tap?

If the Cass City Village Council follows the suggestions of its auditors, Yeo & Yeo, Cass City taxpayers can look for another tap on strained pocket-books.

T. J. Thompson told trustees that both the water and the sewer departments are losing money. . . living off depreciation.

He said that these departments in a sense are profit making businesses and should operate this way.

The information was released as part of the annual audit report to the council that trustees heard at its regular session Tuesday night at the municipal building.

Other suggestions to the council included closer checks of unpaid accounts and more accurate completion of machine time tickets.

The auditors also said that without the addition of the money from the sale of the village building for $17,100 the parking meter fund would be operating at a loss, also.

In other business, the council approved a change in health insurance to Blue Cross. Trustees D. E. Rawson and William Bliss said that their investigation revealed that the Blues offered about twice the coverage for village employees for less than $1,000 more in premiums per year.

RUSTY WATER

Jim Courtney appeared before trustees to complain of red, rusty water that is ruining his appliances. Courtney lives at 4313 Sherman, Cass City.

He reports that the trouble appears at his house and not his next door neighbor's despite the fact that his home is new and boasts copper plumbing.

Nelson Willy, director of the waste water treatment department, theorized that it was due to the flow of water through the mains at the Courtney location.

A change in the mains is under consideration to see if the problem can be solved. Rusty water has been a recurring problem throughout the village.

SPECIAL REQUEST

A third visitor at the council meeting Tuesday night was Ms. Noreen Partridge, president of the Cass City Senior Citizens Club.

Ms. Partridge told the council that there were several members who have trouble walking and that she was under the impression that they could park outside the Cultural Center without worrying about the parking meters on Main Street.

The club meets once a month on Thursday from about 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., and the last meeting five of the members were ticketed for overtime parking. Ms. Partridge explained.

She said that she had received permission from the (Cass City) police department for members

2 businesses

open doors

this week end

Two new businesses will open in Cass City this week end, according to announcements made this week by authorities in charge.

Manager Paul Kosnik, Bay City, said that Thumb Parts and Machine Co. will sell automotive parts at 6647 Main Street.

The new store is a branch outlet for City Auto Parts in Bay City, a company with three stores in Bay City and others in the Thumb.

The second business is Richard's photography studio on Main Street. The studio will open in the store formerly housing Briggs Studio. Richard's is owned by Richard Plummer of Bad Axe. He is the successor to Briggs Studio.

to park without being ticketed and a check with Bill Krizman and Albees, adjacent store owners, brought quick approval of the plan.

What the senior citizens want is the right to park free during their meeting period.

The council heard the request with an apparently sympathetic ear. Trustee Rawson worried about setting a precedent with the free parking and asked that a check be made with Village Attorney Clinton House before permission for free parking be granted.

Trustee Bernard Ross said that perhaps bags could be placed over the meters like other communities do for special occasions.

Commissioners
complete routine
agenda items

Tuscola County Commissioners this week are without chairman Shuford Kirk, who has been vacationing in Hawaii.

Several items came before the board and Chairman Protem Charles Woodcock. In the morning session they agreed to the annexation of 37 acres of property in the southwest section adjacent to Reese, to the village of Reese from Denmark township. Four bids were received for the purchase of a new van for the sheriff's department. The van will be furnished by the low bidder, Bell-Greig Buick and Oldsmobile, at a cost of $3140.

Commissioners raised the rent on floor space at the social services agency headquarters from 26 to 30 cents a square foot on the motion of Maynard McConkey of Cass City and they agreed to work with Saginaw county in flood control projects.

Murder trial
starting in Circuit Court

Tuscola County Circuit Court was non-existent as far as Tuscola county was concerned this week but very much alive as far as Lapeer county was concerned. There was no motion day on Monday, the motion day for the county's routine judicial activity as far as criminal and domestic cases are concerned. Judge James P. Churchill was in Lapeer county while Judge Norman A. Baguley was using a portion of his vacation time serving a two week Naval Reserve stint at San Diego.

The trial of Ron Preston, 24, of Pontiac, on charges of armed robbery and murder began before a Tuscola county jury of eight women and six men. The case is a Lapeer case expected to last for two weeks. The case moved to the courthouse when Judge Churchill granted a change of venue request made by Preston's defense because of publicity in Lapeer county. Preston is charged with the robbery and murder of a 19-year-old Lapeer county youth early last fall. The jury was selected late last week and testimony began Tuesday.

Snowy weather
brings mishaps

The snowy weather during the week brought out a host of snowmobilers and with them several minor accidents to riders. Otherwise it was a comparatively quiet week for accidents in Tuscola county and the Cass City area.

Donald Begeman, 16, of Phillips Road, Kingston, received minor injuries when the machine he was riding struck a fence in the rural Cass City area.

A similar accident occurred in Wells township when Dennis Dean Lester, 16, Kingston, also struck a fence while riding a snowmobile.

In Fostoria, Dallas Craig of Otisville was treated at Lapeer Hospital for severe lacerations of a leg when a clutch exploded.

Seeley fish story: from 6
Guppies to tiny aquarium

The Clark Seeleys have no children living at their spacious, new ranch style home on Schwegler Road, a mile east of Cass City, but they do have 300 or so babies that require a massive dose of tender loving care.

The babies are the tropical fish and guppies that live in the two 29-gallon fish tanks in the corner of the family room of the home.

Most of this care is lavished on the fish by Mrs. Isabelle Seeley who is chief of all operations. But husband, Clark, is called for essential help when the occasion calls for it.

The Seeleys slipped into keeping fish almost by accident. A neighbor brought over a small fish bowl with a half dozen guppies.

And guppies being guppies, it wasn't long, before the half dozen became a dozen, then two dozen, and now. . . well maybe 200? Who can count?

A little later, while the guppies were doing what comes naturally, it was decided that Black Mollies would make a pleasant addition. They mixed well with the guppies and like the guppies, the family tree of the newest addition just keep growing, growing, growing.

It was early in the Seeleys' fish career that the fish bowl gave way to the 10-gallon tank and then to the 29-gallon tank. That 29-gallon tank took care of the Guppie-Black Mollie problem, but something was missing.

It isn't now. Before you could say it, Kissing and Blue Gourami were established in separate 29-gallon tank quarters together with Sharks, Black Tetra, Angels and other tropical fish. . . established in separate tanks because there is nothing that an Angel likes more for breakfast than a tender, tasty Guppie while miniature sharks are just like their bigger sea dwelling cousins.

The Seeleys like to sit in front of their huge fireplace and watch the fish. After awhile, Clark says, you get to know just about how they are going to react most of the time. They are not as dumb as a lot of folks think.

The Seeleys pay for the pleasure of watching. . . and with more than money.

Keeping the fish well and happy takes more than a little time, more than a casual interest. The tanks have an air pump and a filter. . . and the water is thermostatically controlled. You've got to keep the water at 72 to 76 degrees, says Mrs. Seeley, or they won't live. The pump is to keep the water bubbling with oxygen. Once a year the tanks must be emptied and really cleaned. To do it right takes about a day, the Seeleys agreed.

The close care the fish get is reflected in the record. In three years there has never been a major die off.

That's not saying that the fish never get sick, never die.

We lose some. It used to make us feel bad, Isabelle confided, but fish only live so long anyway and you get used to it.

But the Seeleys don't lose a fish without a struggle. Mrs. Seeley, who works as a dietician at Hills and Dales General Hospital, says the fish are just like the patients when it comes to food. They look forward to being fed and fed well at the proper time.

We put in just enough food so that the fish can eat it all in five minutes. . . no more. That keeps it from settling on the bottom of the tank and keeps the tank clean.

When the fish get a little sluggish I go to this, she confided, opening up a good sized book. It tells me what to look for and what to do.

Evidently, what the book often prescribes is medicine. In three years the Seeleys have accumulated a good sized box of remedies for whatever it is that bothers fish on their bad days.

For the Seeleys it's a small price to pay for the pleasure of watching healthy fish thrive in a pocket sized aquarium.

(And anyone else he can get to help)

It was a draw. After four days in Las Vegas last week end I can truthfully report that I don't own any of the strip hotels. . . but, then, they don't own the Chronicle either. I've said it before and I repeat after last week's jaunt: everyone should see Vegas at least once.

Three Cass City gals would like you to participate in a mini-parade Friday. They would if you are (1) an adult and (2) a high school basketball fan.

What they have in mind is to form an auto caravan to see the Cass City Red Hawks out of town as they prepare to leave for Sandusky for a Thumb B Conference title game. Be at the high school at 5 p.m. Friday.

That isn't so much, really. But if you happen to be a super fan there's more. When you hit the school tentative plans call for simple cheers to be mimeed and handed out.

That's for now. If you have any other ideas relay them to Ms. Harriett Richards, Kally Pine or Brenda Breidinger.

What the instigators of this novel plan really want is participation by the whole town and the merchants. We'll go along. One free subscription to the adult the girls say showed the most spirit Friday. This is for amateur fans only, no pros. So we've barred Vic Guernsey. Letting Vic in a contest like this is like pitting a Golden Glover against Heavyweight Champion Foreman. No contest. Vic has been cheering all year.

Speaking of school pride, there's a bundle of it in Gagetown. Else why would a group of over-the-hill Aces, that's spelled A-C-E-S, agree to play a benefit game with Channel 5's all-stars?

All the money will go towards refurbishing the Gagetown gym which all agree is sadly in need of help.

That benefit is Saturday night at the Gagetown gym at 7:30 p.m. Toss in a buck, will ya?

A couple of years ago the State passed a law requiring new accounting procedures for villages and cities. Like most laws passed restricting government on the local level this one is bearing bitter fruit in Cass City.

It wasn't too long ago that an ordinary guy (the kind that pays the bulk of all taxes) could go to city hall if he wanted and look at the records and find out what's what.

Now he'll get an audit report covering 27-pages, costing a whopping $3,484 yearly and won't know anymore after he has seen it than he did before.

Example: when the police department handles traffic for a fire, that's charged to a separate account and the cost of fringe benefits is listed separately, too. All this for an amount of less than $400.

For accountants this makes sense, for the rest of us? Forget it.

Letters to Editor

1925: 1st senior trip for Cass City

February 22, 1973

Dear Mr. Haire:

The first Senior Trip from Cass City High School was the class of 1925.

This trip was instigated by Earl Brooks, our History Teacher and the coach, the only coach at that time.

We traveled by bus, not a school bus, unheard of then, and three cars. We had with us one school board member, and wife, one set of parents, two lady teachers, the bus driver and Mr. Brooks. We carried two tents, one for girls, one for boys. We stopped at wayside parks, very primitive in those days, and cooked our own meals.

Somewhere along the way the bus broke down and parts had to be shipped to us.

Most of us had never been out of the State and not far from home. We traveled to Washington, D.C. Among my possessions is a picture of us, a very motley crew, on the steps of the Capitol.

We must have been very brave souls to start on a trek like that.

Sincerely,
Mary Stiffler Gardiner

Mr. Jim Fitzgerald
Chronicle
Cass City, Michigan

Dear Jim Fitzgerald:

As public relations counsel for The American Heritage Dictionary, I would like to point out one of the features of The Dictionary which both you and your wife seem to have missed. (Abridged Snakes, Feb. 1, 1973). Every illustration of a snake is balanced by another which offsets it. For example, the picture of aboa constrictor is directly facing a picture of a blue jay. And everyone knows that birds eat snakes.

For added safety, the editors have included other ways to rid the reader of snakes. Aesop can table them away. . . Medusa wears them for hair. . . and the Hopi Indians carry them in their mouths while doing their traditional snake dance.

If these provisions don't allay your wife's fears, I suggest that you refer her to the massasauga rattlesnake. Just above that illustration, there are pictures of five marvelous masks, from which she can choose the best snake protection. Her choices include: Mycenae, Nigerian, Mexican, carnival, baseball catcher's or gas.

Your piece was the last named.

Sincerely,

Frans Visser't Hooft, Jr.
Vice President
Public Relations Council

"If It Fitz . . ."

The wild blue yonder

BY JIM FITZGERALD

I am fascinated by the TV commercial that urges me to Fly United and get a free golf lesson from Arnold Palmer in the airplane cocktail bar.

Come to think, I am fascinated simply by the idea of bars in airplanes. Some of these airborne taverns even contain pianos and tenors singing Melancholy Baby. The world has truly come a long and marvelous way since Tailsipin Tommy and Scorchy Smith (Hello there, nostalgia lovers. What-ever happened to Jimmy Allen?)

Up until now, my idea of how to get to heaven was by railroad, in a club car. There was a khaki period in my life when I often used this mode of transportation to get from here to there — and when I got there I would simply board another club car and go back to here. Getting there was half the fun and getting here was the other half.

Club car travel enabled me to do simultaneously 2 of the things I like most:

1) Stand at a bar with 1 foot up on a rail, leaning on 1 elbow. Some people gain a feeling of security by curling up in bed. But this is my fetal position and it has nothing to do with booze. I also like to lean on soda fountains and front desks in hotels, just so long as they have a rail for my foot. I don't know why. I can't know everything.

2) Watch the world go by outside my window. Ahh. I'm a peeking Tom in reverse. I like to peek out of windows, to see what the guy next door is doing. I always stand back from the glass, so he can't see me, just in case his car is stuck in the snow. Hernia. But the view from home and office windows doesn't change much. On a train, it's flick, flick, flick, a different picture in every window every second. Beautiful. Once, between St. Louis and Chicago, with 1 foot up, I discovered it took me 52 telephone poles to chug-a-lug 1 bottle of beer.

I never liked airplane travel. Eating off those trays makes me feel like a kid in a highchair and twice as sloppy. It's nice to have a stewardess bring me a drink but I can't prop my foot up on her phony smile. There's nothing flicking by the windows except clouds. Did you ever see a cloud you recognized from a previous trip? Boring.

But if TV tells it true: if Arnold Palmer is really teaching his swing to barflies in flight; well, . . . please pass my hat with the goggles and stick my bubble gum on the wing for good luck.

Naturally, I realize TV commercials are made in fantasy land. I can hardly expect to find Palmer in every airplane bar. I'll settle for a pool table and a used car salesman to pluck. Or, as long as my fetal position is possible, I'll be content to time my chug-a-lugs against the passing clouds.

But if Palmer ever does saunter in, smiling his Fly United smile, I have got a real problem for him. He can improve my golf game 100 per cent if he can show me how to drive the ball with 1 foot propped up on the tee marker.

Upward and Upward.

It takes a miracle man today to beat his way through life.

Open house set to display pupil projects

Residents of the Cass City School District will have an opportunity to see the results of a new program started this year at Campbell Elementary and Deford Community schools.

An open house has been scheduled at Campbell March 19 and at Deford March 15 at 7 p.m. to show projects completed in the schools' special arts programs.

The program, a brainchild of now departed Gary Kelley, features the use of parents and other lay experts to teach courses of practical use.

At Campbell the program is now in high gear while the Deford program which started earlier is nearing completion. The students meet once a week for 1 1/2-hour sessions and courses offered include painting, cooking, yarn projects, wood working, creative writing, knitting, ceramics, cellulay and bike repairing.

Ms. Jacqueline Freiburger said that there are about 40 parents who have volunteered their time to make the program go at Campbell.

Deford Principal Dave Lovejoy said that they have received excellent cooperation from local area residents helping in the program.

Planning on redoing the basement into a family room, but worried what to use to give it that sporty look? Why not include a trophy shelf.

Almost everyone has a trophy or two packed away in the attic. If the kids are on school sports teams or cheerleading, chances are they will be adding their own to the collection, and possibly even outdoing Mom and Dad in the trophy department.

Miss Lynn Rayl, a senior at Cass City High School, was pronounced 1973 first runner-up at the annual county-wide Sweetheart Pageant.

The pageant, presented Feb. 17 in the Vassar High School auditorium, featured a multimedia presentation, a talent performance and a period of introspection by each of the eight competing girls. The number of penny votes collected before the pageant, the vote of the audience the night of the pageant and the decision of a panel of five judges determined the final winner.

As first runner-up, Miss Rayl gains her choice of $150 off on a Franco bike trip, a $100 college scholarship, or a $100 gift certificate.

AROUND THE FARM Herbicides or labor for weed control?

By Don Keblor

Ever since the February 12 sugar beet agriculture meeting session at Caro, I've pondered the question regarding the effectiveness of hand labor vs herbicides for control of weeds.

I've been trying to weigh the pros and cons of both to come up with a sure answer as to the best and most sure way for sugar beet weed control. First off, I am sure the growers would admit the best possible weed control method is accomplished with human labor using a cultivator and a hoe. However, this is not without error either as it depends on the reliability of the labor and weather factors. In any one year I see both excellent and unsatisfactory weed controls. In any case the built-in grower family labor does the most superior job. There are growers who have established a good working rapport with a dependable hired labor supply and they are doing all right, too. There are others who aren't in this situation. My comments here are those that have this satisfactory hired labor supply will try to keep perpetuating the supply. Those who cannot, must use the method of chemical weed control.

How long will the annual supply of hired labor be with us is not known. I don't need to reflect on the hired labor supply history except to say it's not as prevalent or sure as when I first came to Tuscola county. So unless this trend changes, our growers will use herbicides in lieu of hand labor scarcity.

Because of this decreasing hired hand labor supply, our sugar beet and other hand labor requiring crops have moved to labor substitutes. Mechanical harvesting, space planting, mechanical thinning and chemical weed control measures were adopted as labor substitutes. Each grower adopted the use of any or all these labor substitutes as met his needs. Those that said they were adopting these tools were going to make them work have made them work. Those who said they would use them only as emergency measures have not been as successful.

Chemical weed controls are not 100 per cent perfect under all conditions, in all years, or to all people. However, in any one year I have seen near perfect chemical weed control on some farms and poor control on others. Why is this? Is it the herbicide or is it the weather, the operator, or soil conditions? Maybe it's the weeds themselves and they are not controllable by the known herbicides. With no answer for everyone, I guess I can say the situation determines the method to be used by each operator. So whatever the method one uses, he must effect the best use of that method and be acceptable and flexible to changes.

Many folks can tell us so much about the future, yet they do so little—past or present.

When the Most Rev. Francis F. Reh, bishop of the Saginaw Diocese, showed up last Sunday at St. Agnes Catholic Church, Freeland, the altar boys gulped down their surprise and then smiled.

Bishop Reh was there to announce that their pastor, Rev. Peter A. Pijnappels, had been named an Honorary Domestic Prelate of His Holiness—a Monsignor—by Pope Paul VI.

The Rev. Msgr. Pijnappels (it's pronounced "Pineapples") who has been pastor of St. Agnes since Sept. 13, 1969, plans to resign from his post on his 65th birthday on Wednesday for health reasons. Msgr. Pijnappels already had resigned from his post as Official of the Saginaw Diocesan Tribunal on Jan. 1.

Knowledge of the elevation of Msgr. Pijnappels, who was born Feb. 28, 1908, in Maasheik, The Netherlands, and was deeply involved with the Dutch underground in World War II, actually was known when a decree from the Pope was circulated Dec. 28.

Just when the designation would be made official was known only to Bishop Reh. He celebrated the 10 a.m. Mass last Sunday with Msgr. Pijnappels to make the announcement.

A reception for Msgr. Pijnappels is planned for 2-5 p.m. today at the church. All members of the parish and other friends of Msgr. Pijnappels are invited.

Msgr. Pijnappels, who was baptized the same day he was born in Maasheik, a little town near the city of Venlo near the German border, was ordained to the priesthood in Leuven, Belgium, 15 miles east of Brussels, in 1931.

Upon ordination, he took up the study of church and civil law in Rome. This was followed by a period of research mainly at the library of the Palace of Peace in the Hague. At the same time Msgr. Pijnappels also took a course at the University of Leiden. He was granted a doctorate in church and civil law in 1937 at the University of Leiden.

Msgr. Pijnappels taught theology in the Abbey of Berne, Holland, from 1937 to 1947.

During the latter part of World War II, he was named Chaplain of the Dutch Red Cross. During that time he was wounded so badly that doctors said he could not live. After the war, he was granted two medals from the Dutch government for his work with the Dutch Red Cross during the war.

In 1947, he was transferred to the United States and became a professor of canon law, philosophy, economics and sociology at St. Norbert's Abbey, West De Pere, Wis., near Green Bay.

In 1951, Msgr. Pijnappels was introduced to the late Most Rev. Stephen S. Woznicki, then Bishop of the Diocese of Saginaw, who accepted Msgr. Pijnappels for service in the Saginaw Diocese.

He assigned Msgr. Pijnappels first as assistant pastor of the St. Peter & Paul's Catholic Church, Ruth. He later was named assistant pastor at Saginaw Sacred Heart and Saginaw St. Mary's Cathedral Catholic churches. In 1954, he was assigned to the Marriage Tribunal of the Saginaw Diocese.

In 1957, he was named pastor at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Unionville.

"I can still remember that first rectory house. It was so cold and the doors so loose that when the wind blew hard I had to strategically place chairs to hold down the linoleum. Thank heaven a new rectory was built in record time by my brother in 1959," Msgr. Pijnappels said. His brother is John Pijnappels, Saginaw builder.

In 1966, he was transferred to St. Norbert's Catholic Church in Munger, of which he says he has the "fondest memories." But he suffered a heart attack while serving there and was transferred to become pastor of the St. Pancratius Catholic Church, Cass City, in 1967.

"The good air of Cass City and the good care of my parishioners helped me to recuperate fully," Msgr. Pijnappels said.

BETTER HEALTH

Chest pain: what causes it?

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

One of the common problems of medicine is finding the cause of a pain in the chest. Much can be learned from the location of the pain and its source.

For instance, the pain might be coming out of the spine where two diseased vertebrae (bones of the spine) might be pressing on one of the many nerves that run out of the spinal column to various parts of the body. The person may be feeling the pain some distance from the place in the spine where the pain is arising.

This type of spinal pain can come in a woman who has gone into the menopause, and because of this has lost so much lime (the hardening material in bones; also called calcium) out of her spinal vertebrae that some of them are beginning to collapse, and she is getting what lay people call a buffalo hump.

Curiously, the woman may not feel as much pain in her spine as she feels somewhere else in her body. One woman I know who had a collapsing spine felt her pain mainly in her left chest and left abdominal area, because the spine was pressing on the nerves which ran to those areas.

Pain in the back on the right side can be due to gallbladder disease. The person with true gallbladder disease always tells a very specific story. When I ask the person to take her hand and show me where the pain is she will point to a place just below the lowest ribs on the right side. She may say that at times this pain runs up under her right shoulder blade. It does not run down toward the navel.

Pain in the left side of the chest can be due to disease in the pancreas, the big digestive gland back of the stomach. The gallbladder can easily be studied with the help of X-rays, and the pancreas can be studied with laboratory tests.

Much can be learned also by what makes the pain come. For instance, if it comes with exertion, like running upstairs, it is probably due to heart trouble. The most alarming pain in the chest is anginal pain, which comes from an over-worked heart. When a person tells me that his pain comes severely when he over-exerts himself in some way, and goes away and stays away when he rests, that strongly suggests heart pain (angina).

If the pain comes with severe coughing, there may be something wrong with the lungs, the bronchi or the windpipe (air carrying tubes) or throat. Especially if there is a great deal of sputum, that will mean that there is inflammation in the bronchi. Occasionally, there is pain due to inflammation in the lining of the sac which holds the heart, the so-called pericardium (PERI meaning around, and CARDIUM meaning the heart). This disease is called pericarditis, and a penicillin type of drug may help.

An easily recognized problem is pain in the wall of the chest, which comes with a cough, and feels like the stab of a knife. That can be due to an acute pleurisy, which is an inflammation of the pleura: the outer lining of the lungs and the inner lining of the chest wall. In such cases an antibiotic plus some codeine can help much.

Sometimes there is pain at the lower end of the breastbone, where there is a joint between the breastbone and a little piece of cartilage (gristle). Many a time I have seen people whose pain was coming from this joint. Usually, if I took my hand and moved the little piece of cartilage up and down, that caused the pain. What can be done? Usually this type of pain goes away soon by itself, but some aspirin or emperin and codeine would help.

Sometimes pain which feels like a cramp in the muscle between two ribs, and is due to such a cramp, comes when the person twists around to pick up something. It usually goes away in a minute.

Occasionally, I see a person who comes in on a Monday morning and is much afraid that he has severe heart trouble, because he has much pain in the muscle under the breast on the left or right side of his chest in front (depending on whether he is left or right-handed).

In such cases I find that over the week end the man spent time in using his arm in some unusually strenuous activity, such as painting the garage or the ceiling of a room. It was the unusual use of the arm and chest muscles that made the man feel uncomfortable. By pressing the muscles (which he used) under one breast, I will find that it is tender and sore, while the muscle under the other breast is not sore.

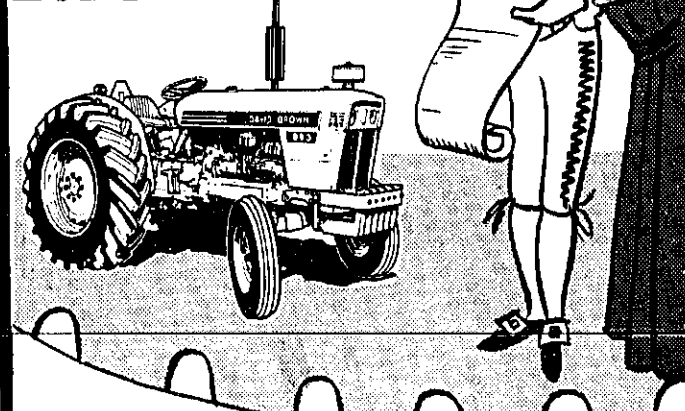

Occasionally, there can be a severe pain in the chest due to anxiety or fright. To show how strong such an impression can be, and how much harm it can do, the other day, in a big city, a criminal was arrested and he immediately dropped dead.

Often the most alarming type of pain is one that stays in exactly the same place for weeks or months. Pains that ramble around the chest and abdomen are not so likely to be dangerous.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

The fellers at the country store studied it up one side and down the other Saturday night, and they was agreed that good news is like compliments. A little now and then perks a feller up, but a steady diet is as bad as all cake and no meat and potatoes.

Everybody was happy when our boys started coming home from Vietnam, said Zeke Grubb, and when they turned our prisoners loose and they come home to their folks our cups of good news runneth over. Zeke said he had been reading all this happy news til he had started to wonder wasn't nothing else going on in the world. Zeke said he allus had heard that the hardest things to do was to climb a fence leaning towards you, kiss a gal leaning away from you and live up to your compliments. He said he would add being satisfied reading good news to that list.

As glad as he was to see the prisoners out and all the boys coming home, Zeke allowed, he found himself breathing a little easier when he run across some of the usual news. He saw by the papers, for instance, where the Federal Aviation Administration has worked out a deal with them big companies that make helicopters for the military. The police in this country need helicopters, and them coming back from Vietnam is in good shape and they could be sold cheap as surplus to the police. But that would mean the companies wouldn't sell many new helicopters, so they fixed it where the FAA won't approve em fer non-military use til the company inspects em, and the company is finding plenty wrong with all em. So the police is having to buy new ones at 10 times the cost.

Actual broke in Ed Doolittle, these little deals has been reported all along, but the sudden run on good news pushed em way back in the papers and they had to really stink to catch the public nose. That's the reason fer news, declared Ed, to get a feller thinking positive. In this day and time, said Ed, positive thinking means find out what the trouble is, then try to fix it.

Bug Hookum said he hadn't give it much thought, but he had saw where the papers had reported that a cold car seat on a winter morning can cause everything from kidney trouble to rumatism. Bug figured we must be hard up fer bad news to run stuff like that. And good news must of been behind word that the North Carolina legislature is debating whuther to name the honeybee the state insect. A cold car seat probable still beats walking in the cold, Bug said, and the bee is better than a lot of bugs a state could honor. Which goes to show, broke in Ed, that we has got in the habit of making all news good news.

Like that feller that broke a mirror over his wife's head. He told the judge if he was in fer seven year of bad luck he at least got some benefit out of it.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Plant trees for beauty, for profit

Planting trees not only improves the appearance of badly-eroded and worn-out land, but it will produce a valuable crop of timber or Christmas trees, according to Cyril Jacot, District Conservationist.

A solid planting of trees will practically eliminate erosion by slowing down the winds and holding the raindrop where it falls. Plantings in two or three rows along the west and south property lines will help decrease wind velocity and control erosion. They can be planted to protect the home and livestock from prevailing winds. They make the farm a more attractive place to live and make a beautiful recreation area, especially around a farm pond.

It is wise to choose a species that is adapted to a definite site. In making the decision, soils and moisture conditions should be considered, Mr. Jacot said.

Place your order today at the Tuscola Soil Conservation District Office at 852 S. Hooper in Caro. White pine, red pine, Scotch pine, Austrian pine, Colorado blue spruce, white spruce and Norway spruce are the species available for the spring of 1973.

Tree planting is a good way to run an unproductive land liability into an asset. Realizing this, land owners in the Tuscola Soil Conservation District have planted over 6,500 acres of trees in the past 29 years.

Ken Guilds, 11, 3rd in race

The boy is the son of Ms. Charlotte Kitchen.

Estimate fire loss at $50,000

Argyle firemen, assisted by the Ubyly Fire Department, battled a farm fire for three hours at the home of Eugene Haist, 10 1/2 miles southwest of Ubyly.

The fire fighters were unable to save a large barn and 21 cows caught in the blaze. Damage was estimated at about $50,000. The fire was discovered at about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 21, by Haist as he emerged from a silo and found the lower portion of the barn blazing.

Several pieces of small farm machinery were lost, but firemen were successful in saving an attached pole-type 40x70-foot barn.

He will also chair the Minority Advisory Council.

It's title time: Cass City vs Sandusky for Thumb B toga share

The stage is set, the players ready. After 19 games of basketball it all boils down to the next eight days for the Cass City Red Hawks and Red Hawk fans.

For in the next eight days the Thumb B Conference championship and the district tournament championship will be decided.

Anything that has gone before doesn't count. Cass City's satisfying victory over Bad Axe, 83-56, at Cass City High School last Friday was important only in that it put the Hawks in position to win it all.

They had to win over Bad Axe and they must win at Sandusky Friday. That's first on the docket. That's for a share of the conference championship.

Cass City isn't looking any farther than Friday right now. Throw out the narrow victory in the first game against the Redskins. It means nothing.

What will count Friday is how well Cass City can stop Jim Hale and Al DeMott, Sandusky's high scoring duo. When they go, the Redskins go. Stop either and the Redskins are in trouble.

If the Hawks play as well as they are capable and Sandusky lets down, Cass City should win easily. If Cass City plays poorly and Sandusky is at the peak of its game, the Redskins should win. If both teams play to the peak of their potential it should be a whale of a game.

Athletic director Robert Stickle said this week that fans wanting to be sure to see the championship game Friday should be at the Sandusky gym by 6 p.m. to be sure of gaining admission.

In the tune-up against Bad Axe, the Hawks were impressive. They just about blew the Hatchets off the court in the first half and Coach Fred Hurlburt was able to use his bench liberally throughout the game.

The Hawks exhibited balanced scoring throughout the game scoring a high of 25 points in the second quarter and no less than 19 in any other period. It was the Cass City defense that made the game a rout in the first half. Cass City scored 19 points in the first quarter to jump in front, 19-10.

At the half it was Cass City 44, Bad Axe, 19, as the Hawk defense was in high gear limiting the visitors to just nine points in the second quarter after allowing a stingy 10 points in the opening canto.

Cass City exhibited balanced scoring as seven players shared in the scoring and four boys were in double figures. Dave Hillaker pumped in 19. Paul Bliss added 16 points while Nick Gibas added 15 and Scott Hartel returned to action after a two-game injury lay-off with 12 points.

Rounding out the scoring were: Randy Wright, 8, Jerry Toner, 6, Bob Berridge, 2, and Kip Hopper, 6.

JV GAME

The Cass City junior varsity made it a clean sweep for the night with a 52-46 decision.

Frosh-game away from perfect year

Friday's title game with the Sandusky Redskins isn't the only important game this week for Cass City cagers at the Sanilac county seat.

Thursday at 7 p.m. the Freshmen play at Sandusky in the wind-up of a great season. It was the Redskins who provided the closest competition to Coach Dale McIntosh's crew the first time around and it is the Redskins who now stand in the way of a perfect season for the local Frosh.

The team made it 12 in a row last week by cruising by Bad Axe, 90-59. The Hawks' full-court press caused many turnovers.

Scoring leaders were Ken Lowe, 23, and Clark Hillaker, 20. Chuck Bliss played a great floor game, McIntosh reported, and was credited with a great many assists.

The team is playing top basketball and will be heavily favored to defeat Sandusky in the season's final.

Coaches from six Class C Thumb schools drew for pairings Monday in the District 34 Basketball Tournament to be held March 5-10 at Cass City High School.

The drawing was held at the office of Athletic Director Robert Stickle in the Cass City Intermediate School.

The luck of the draw has placed the two top seeded teams, Cass City and Sebewaing-Unionville, in opposite brackets.

The tournament opens Monday night when Cass City plays Bad Axe.

Tuesday, Ubyl will play North Branch. The winner of the Cass

City-Bad Axe game is slated to play Wednesday, March 7, against Marlette.

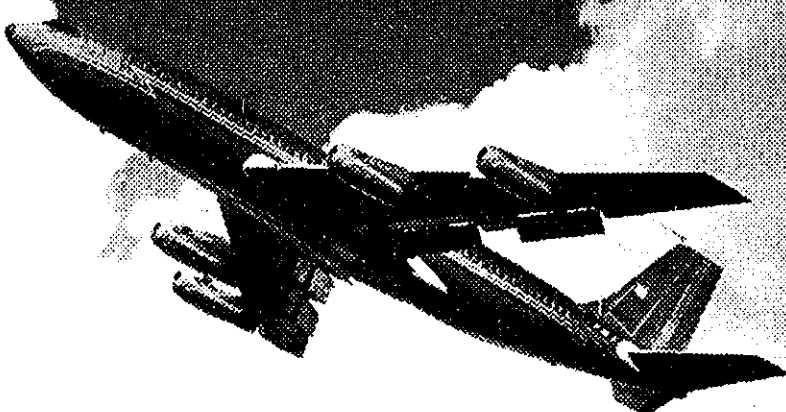

Thursday, March 8, the winner of the North Branch-Ubyl tilt will go against USA.

The finals are slated Saturday, March 10. All games start at 8 p.m.

DRIVING FOR TWO points in a patented maneuver is Paul Bliss. It was an easy victory Friday for Cass City.

When an aviator encounters a storm, he directs his plane through the clouds and goes higher. In that clear, rare atmosphere he is free from fear and difficulty.

Similarly, when we find ourselves surrounded by clouds of doubt, we need to direct our lives into a higher level where we may free ourselves of weaknesses and seek the will of God.

How can we attain these heights? Through the Church! It offers continuous opportunities for new growth, new life, new understanding. We need not wait for a more convenient time. We can enter into the life of the Church NOW.

Slow starting eighth grade in strong finish

By Coach Jim Mastie

The Cass City 8th grade basketball team ended its season Saturday with a thrilling triple overtime loss to the Vassar Vulcans for third place in the 8th grade tournament at Sandusky.

In the opening game the Red Hawks proved they could win the big game by defeating a much taller and undefeated Bad Axe team to move to the semi-finals where they were beaten by Sandusky.

In the regular season the Red Hawks parlayed a 5-5 record. Inconsistency in some games caused some losses as the team lost two games by 1 point each.

(OT)

The strong point of the team was its complete unselfish team play and a winning attitude. No one ball player can be singled out for outstanding performance on this team because injuries never allowed the team to play at full strength all season.

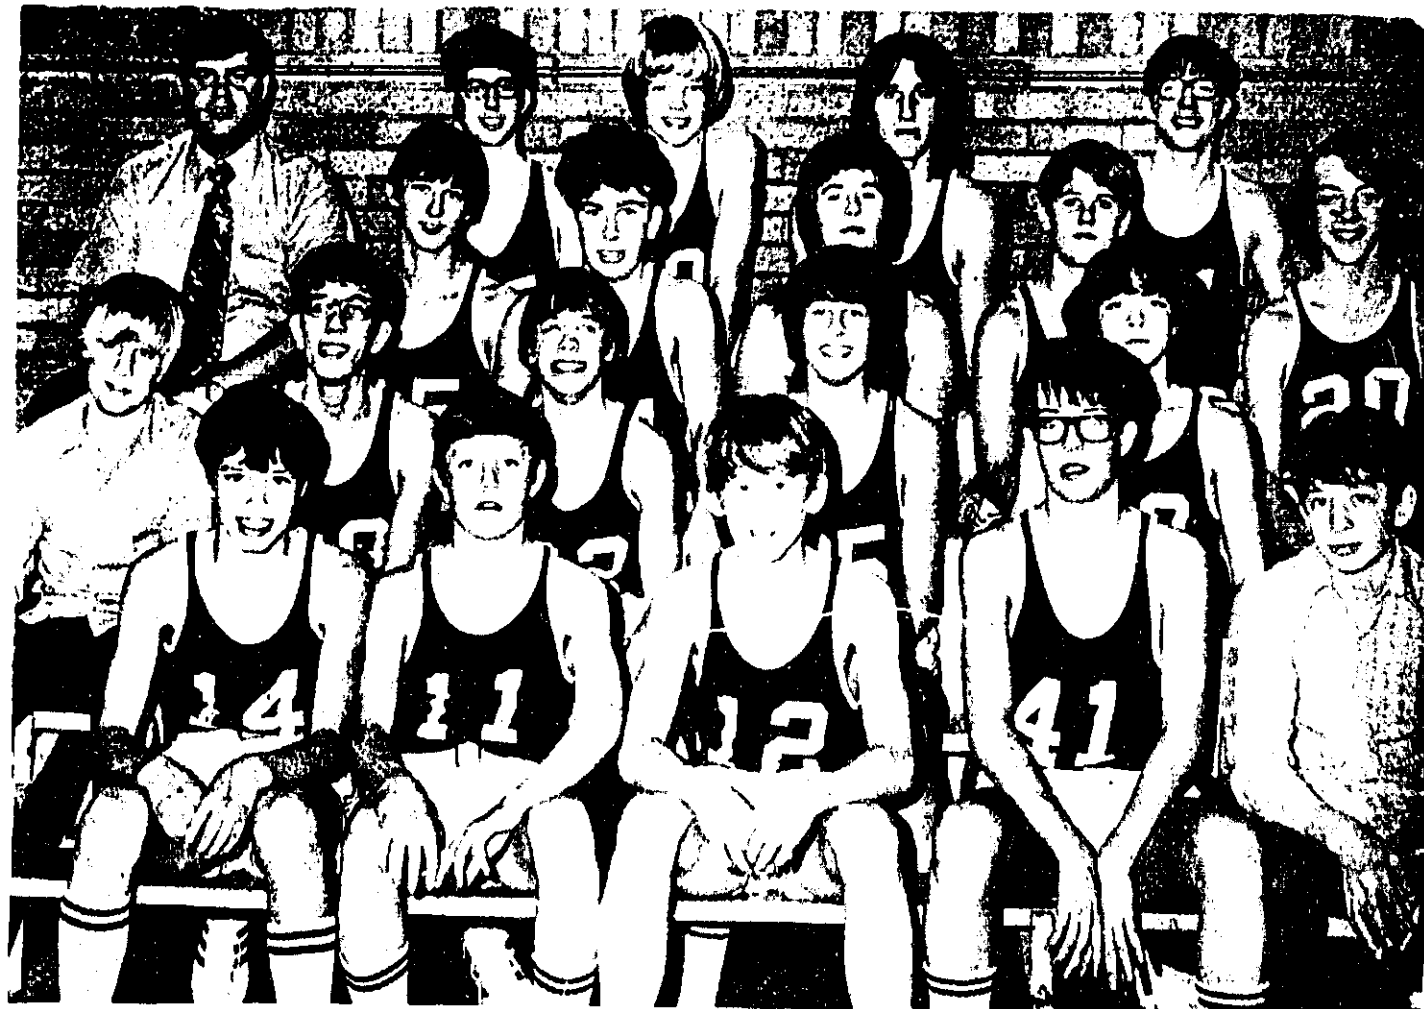

A number of ballplayers came through with winning performances when they were needed. Many different players contributed in many different ways so the team could be a winner. The record was not 10-0, but the team's attitude toward the game was. As their coach, I know how hard they tried and what they accomplished.

AFTER A SLOW START this eighth grade team came on strong to rank among the better teams in the annual post-season grade tournament.
