

Accident March 11

Charlene battles back from crash

By Jim Ketchum

"I held her head in my hands and said over and over, 'My God, don't take her; My God, don't take her; I love you, Charlene, I love you.'"

That's how Mrs. Joanne Izydorek, 3120 Decker Rd., Snover, recalled those first terrifying moments after her eight-year-old daughter, Charlene, was struck by a car while visiting her grandmother in Detroit, March 11.

Charlene, now well on her way to a full recovery, today scarcely resembles the little girl who nearly died in her mother's arms.

The family had gone to Detroit to visit Charlene's ailing grandmother and, while she was there that day, an ice cream truck drove up the street and stopped in front of the house. Mrs. Izydorek said Charlene, along with her two brothers and two sisters, were standing by the truck getting their treats, when a car came around the corner and struck her.

"The next five hours were nothing but torture," Mrs. Izydorek recalled. "As soon as we got to the hospital, I filled out all the forms, crying most of the time. I never cried so much before as I did then."

After the forms were prepared, Mrs. Izydorek said there was nothing to do but sit and wait while Charlene teetered on the brink of death for the next week.

"Everyone was praying for us," she said. "All the staff at the hospital, neighbors, everyone. I believe it was the prayers, along with the doctors that saved her."

She said everyone at St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital in Detroit acted like a close-knit family, asking each day how Charlene was and if there was anything they could do.

"The care she got was just wonderful," Mrs. Izydorek said. It was not until the following Thursday, four days after the accident, that Charlene's mother began to believe that she would survive.

"I went in the room that morning and I saw the doctor and nurses holding her in a sitting position on the side of the bed," she said. "They had to hold her head up like a newborn baby because she had not completely come around yet. Somehow, right then, I knew she'd live."

It was not until late the following day that Charlene was moved from intensive care to her own room. In all, she was in the hospital 19 days, six and one-half of which she spent either unconscious or semi-conscious.

Amazingly, no surgery had to be performed. She had sustained a fractured pelvis along with a brain concussion. This latter injury paralyzed her partially. She still has some difficulty moving her right hand and tends to pick things up with her left.

Mrs. Izydorek recalled that, as Charlene was regaining consciousness, she wondered if the little girl understood God and prayer. She had been scheduled for her first communion shortly after the accident.

"We had all been depressed and I had gone to chapel to pray quite a few times," she said. "Then one day, Charlene asked me to pray for her."

Mrs. Izydorek said Charlene does not remember the accident but does remember everything up to that moment. Her memory is still fuzzy at times but is improving daily. Her speech has returned to near normal.

Charlene has received over 80 get-well cards and letters, and her mother has compiled them into a scrap book.

"Every time a new one comes in, Charlene will say, 'Paste it in the scrapbook, Mommy,'" Mrs. Izydorek said.

Mrs. Izydorek said she does not hold bitterness for the man who struck and almost killed her daughter.

"I have mixed emotions about prosecuting him," she said. "After all, God has allowed Charlene to live and stay with us, so I'm not sure anything useful would be gained by it. But I would like to talk to him for just a little bit."

She said the man never contacted them to see how Charlene's condition was progressing. On the other hand, the driver of the ice cream truck came up twice to see her and ask about her.

Charlene still has a long way to go in her recovery. She won't be going back to school for some time, so special tutoring sessions have been arranged to continue her education. Also, special rehabilitation sessions will probably begin soon to help her regain full use of her right side.

Mrs. Izydorek's faith which sustained her through the ordeal continues to strengthen her as she looks to the future.

"It's one of the joys, and sorrows of being a parent," she said, summing up her feelings about the accident and her response as a mother.

"It's not bad-as long as we have her," she said.

For her part, Charlene doesn't have much to say about it all. She's just anxious for warm weather and the chance to play outside with her brothers and sisters.

CHARLENE IZYDOREK, 8, smiles bravely after her near brush with death. Charlene was struck by a car while visiting her grandmother in Detroit March 11.

Cass City, Thumb area begin to feel heating pinch as distributors see fuel shortages looming larger

By Jim Ketchum

If you live in an area serviced by Consumers Power Co., and plan to install a gas furnace in your home but don't already have a hook-up from the man, forget it.

The gas company has frozen all new requests for service indefinitely.

The company cites shortages in available gas supplies as the culprit.

Thomas J. Goulish, assistant division manager of the Saginaw Division of Consumers Power, said the company has been forced into the freeze because it has reached its saturation point.

"We just can't supply any more customers right now," he said.

Goulish explained that the only new residential services being installed are those which filed an application with the company prior to Feb. 2. And the services will only be installed if a foundation is in place by June 15. This date is an extension from an original April 15 cut-off date.

Goulish said the company cannot handle any additional customers of any kind until the gas supply situation changes for the better.

"We have a new reforming plant scheduled to go into operation at Marysville sometime in August," he explained. "But the major problem is still supply."

He said that the company has filed a request with the government to bring new gas supplies up from Louisiana, but that this will take a good deal of time before this flow can begin. Until then, the freeze is on.

Goulish assured residential customers that there would be no interruption of their service, and explained that there have been no problems with low pressure or gas failures on Consumer lines.

He explained that Consumers does have a number of inter-ruptible customers. These users, which include some seasonal manufacturing operations, for example, sign a contract with the company which states that, for a lower gas rate, their service may be interrupted periodically or altogether for up to 90 days.

Goulish said that the freeze is not a sudden thing and that certain phases of the operation have been coming under restraints for some time.

He listed four divisions of customers, with residential users at the top of the priority list, followed by small commercial users, larger commercial users and heavy industry.

"We closed off new services to small commercial customers just about two weeks before we stopped new residential hook-ups," Goulish said.

Goulish said that Consumers filed for a rate increase with the Michigan Public Service Commission, but that this does not have a direct bearing on the shortage situation.

"All rate increases are predicated strictly on our cost to serve, which takes into account more than just the cost of the gas," he said. He conceded that this latter factor is a large one, however, when it comes to new rate schedules.

Consumer's request was turned down by the MPSC Friday.

Customers of Southeastern Michigan Gas Co. can breathe easier, at least for the moment.

According to company President Robert Thomson, Southeastern is still supplying new service hook-ups to residential customers and to small commercial users.

Thomson explained that most of the company's gas supplies come through the Panhandle Eastern Pipeline Co., and originate in Texas along the Gulf Coast. These supplies have been fairly adequate to this point, although Thomson said Panhandle was not delivering the complete amount of gas specified in its contract with Southeastern. Cass City, served by the company, is about the farthest point north in the coverage area.

The remaining amount of the company's gas comes from state producers.

Thomson said there have been no supply problems thus far to existing customers.

"Our storage operation is such that we have had no problem even on peak days," he said.

Thomson said he could not guarantee just how long residential hook-ups could continue, but for the foreseeable future, there appeared to be no problem.

Southeastern serves about 51,000 customers from Cass City in the north to Mt. Clemens in the south, along with service in the Albion area.

Of these, about 44,000 are residential heating users.

Thomson pledged that no customer, once he is serviced by the company, would be shut off, with the exception of specified interruptible customers, who, as with Consumers, receive gas at a lower rate.

Southeastern uses a purchase gas adjustment clause with Panhandle, which allows the company to increase rates as its gas costs go up without seeking government approval. This involves minor adjustments. Major rate hikes must be approved by the MPSC.

Thomson said he foresees greater federal intervention in the fuel industry, through increased authority of the Federal Power Commission, which oversees gas supplies.

He said he hopes President Nixon will move more vigorously into the area of fuel supplies and said he expects to see substantial supplies of natural gas imported in the form of Liquefied Petroleum Gas.

The fuel oil situation is much more clouded. Local distributors either do not know what to expect in the way of supplies and deliveries or will not talk with the Chronicle about it, fearing publicity might cause a wave of panic buying.

The Sun Oil Company recently cut off deliveries to a number of bulk distributors in Michigan.

One distributor affected by Sun Oil's action is Howard Gehrls, manager of Fairgrove Oil Co., Fairgrove.

Gehrls' contract for fuel oil with Sun expires June 1 and will not be renewed due to the fact that the product simply cannot be had.

He said that Fairgrove Oil will not go out of business and that negotiations are underway currently to get a new supplier. He implied that there might be a chance that Sun would renegotiate the expiring contract if and when new supplies of fuel oil become available.

"We won't walk away from this business unless we have to," Gehrls said.

Gehrls added that his gasoline contract with Sun Oil has been renewed for another year, since these supplies are much more readily available than fuel oil.

Gehrls regards the situation as serious.

"There are over 100 other distributors for every major oil company in the same situation," he said. "They will either be discontinued or supplies will be reduced by 40 per cent."

Gehrls blamed slow importation of oil for part of the problem. In addition, he said new drilling in the U.S. has fallen off in recent years because of the small return on investments.

He also blamed President Nixon's three-phase economic program for creating part of the shortage because it established

New county valuations told

The assessed valuation of Tuscola county will increase by over $14 million this year over 1972, if the Board of Commissioners approves figures submitted by equalization director Mac B. O'Dell.

O'Dell submitted his report for approval to the commissioners at their regularly scheduled meeting Tuesday.

Valuation for District Two, which is comprised of Elkland, Novesta, Elmwood and Ellington townships was placed at $29,663,100. This compares with $27,839,900.

Individually, the township valuations went as follows:

Elkland, $15,043,800 as compared with $14,071,600 last year.
Novesta, $3,898,400 as compared with $3,207,800 in 1972.
Ellington, $3,302,000 as compared with $2,885,300 last year.
Elmwood showed a decrease in valuation, falling from $7,675,200 in 1972 to $7,418,900 this year.

Total county valuation was placed at $222,191,117, as compared with $208,043,161 for 1972.

O'Dell said most residential and farmland areas have experienced increases in valuation. He explained that some land originally classified as timber cutover land has now fallen into the category of building and subdividing.

He added that a major effort went into this reclassification work to insure that each parcel of land would be valued according to its proper and potential use.

The area of least increase appeared to be the southeastern part of the county.

In other board action Tuesday, the county road commission submitted its annual report. In it, the commission calls for more emphasis in the area of bridge building on secondary county roads.

The board has responded to this request by distributing $80,000 in Federal revenue sharing funds for road maintenance and new construction to the individual townships. According to Commissioner Maynard McConkey, the board believes the money would do the most good put to such a use.

In addition, the board has appropriated $50,000 in a matching funds program with the federal government for new road construction.

This money will be earmarked specifically for new road construction and will be distributed to the townships as well.

In another matter, Dennis Johnson, new mental health director for Tuscola county, reported on progress in setting up his office. Johnson took over the post April 1.

He explained that the mental health office will be located in the building formerly housing the Office of Economic Opportunity in Caro. Help Line will also be located in the same office, he added.

The board also heard a report from the county Red Cross agency which stated that in the March 17 storm, the organization spent $12,351 in flood relief. The report said that some 57 families received assistance from the Red Cross.

Most of the relief was centered in the Quinciassee area.

The sheriff's department also informed the board that bids will be taken until May 22, on equipment for a new civil defense radio network which will service each village and city in the county.

The system will be used for police, fire and emergency weather information, with each municipality coming under it. The tower for the system will be erected in Vassar.

He said the cornea is the part of the eye used in transplants and said the success ratio of such operations is about 90 per cent. He explained that the eye must be removed within four hours after death for it to be useful in an operation.

McIntyre explained that the demand for corneas is so great that some patients are on waiting lists for as long as four years before the organs can be obtained.

He urged everyone to register at a doctor's office to donate their eyes. A card will be issued to be carried at all times by the donor.

"If It Fitz..."

The wrong kind of father

BY JIM FITZGERALD

And then I wrote... The right kind of a father spends his week ends doing jobs around the house and playing with his odd kids.

Or something like that. Sometimes it is difficult to understand exactly what my wife is saying, especially when she talks at the same time she is doing something else, such as hitting my ears.

Anyway, it was Saturday and the sun was shining and the air was warm. Perfect weather for outdoor athletics. And that's what I was doing — watching some outdoor athletes on TV.

"Come out and play basketball with me," my son Eddie asked.

"I'm too old for that game," I answered.

"Gee," he said. "What kind of a father are you?" my wife asked. "Your only son asks for your company."

relationship but you'd rather watch TV."

"Speaking of TV," I said cleverly. "I keep seeing these commercials where the mother and daughter are frolicking together and they are both so well-stacked no one can tell which one is the mother until she opens her mouth and you see it is full of Grape Nuts. But you never see commercials where no one can tell the son from the father. The reason is that Dad works too hard to stay young and trim, with soft hands. He is too busy making money to buy jeweled identification bracelets for his wife and daughters so they can tell each other apart. I think I'm going to cry."

"If you don't play basketball with Eddie, you will have something to cry about," my wife said (or was it my daughter?).

Anyway, I played. And in only 5 minutes my weary legs buckled and I fell hard to the ground. I heard a rib crack. Every kid in the neighborhood was watching. I wanted to bounce right up to show them what a great sport the old man was. Except I couldn't move.

"Are you ok, Dad?" Eddie asked after he'd picked up the ball and made 2 points while standing on my hand.

I assured him I'd live. The only question was whether I'd ever get on my feet again. I kept hoping my moaning and screaming would bring my wife to the door, tears in her eyes. But she never showed. I finally staggered into the house and collapsed at her feet.

"The bulb over the sink in the bathroom just burned out," she said. "Change it."

"Don't you care that I have been mortally wounded while making my son my buddy?" I asked.

"Do you want to shave in the dark?" she answered.

I had to stand on the sink. A huge globe enclosed the bulb. It stuck. I jerked. The globe fell, breaking into millions of pieces and smashing a hole in the side of the sink.

I do not make these things up. Just stop by and ask to use our purple rest room. Move the soap dish a few inches and you'll see the hole which shall remain in our family forever as a reminder that the man of the house is not the right kind of father.

Onward and Upward and my ribs still ache.

Bloodmobile gives Cass Cityans chance to help

By Jon Fahrner

Tuesday, April 17, the first Bloodmobile from the Flint Regional Blood Center will roll into Cass City. As of April 1, Tuscola county residents were covered by the same total blood coverage program as their neighboring counties of Sanilac, Huron, Lapeer and Genesee counties. Some of the advantages of this full coverage Red Cross Blood program are:

1. All residents of Tuscola county will have all their blood needs met if ever the need arises.

2. If a transfusion is needed while traveling within another state, or if you would move to a new location out of state, your blood needs are still covered since you once were a resident of this county.

3. A larger supply of fresh blood will be available to Tuscola county residents than ever before.

4. There will be no further need for the recruiting of donors for the replacement of blood after a transfusion.

5. Blood components such as plasma, fibrinogens, platelets and albumin are furnished free of charge.

6. A rare blood file is available from which donors blood can be obtained.

In order to help maintain an adequate supply of blood for hospitals and emergency use, we need 1,940 pints of blood annually from Tuscola county. This figure is based upon the total population of our county.

This first initial year only four drives are planned, two each at the communities of Caro and Cass City. However, hereafter, there will be additional drawings at various other locations throughout the county. Our goal for this drawing has been set for 100 units of blood. We are therefore hoping for a good donor turnout.

The Bloodmobile will be located at the new Fire Hall on Church Street by the community park. Donor parking is available on the east and north sides of the building, however the west drive should remain free of vehicles. The drawing will be from 2-8 p.m.

Anyone interested in becoming a donor is urged to call the Hills & Dales General Hospital at 872-2121, Mrs. E. C. Fritz at 872-2444 or Mrs. Roger Little at 872-4065. All persons calling are asked to express a time preference so that an appointment can be made and a donor's time reserved.

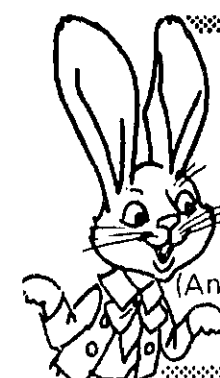

Anyone between the ages of 18 and 65, weighing at least 110 lbs., may be a donor. Those past 65 can donate if they have received written consent from their personal physician within 2 weeks of the donation date, April 17.

There are certain limits set on donors. Persons are eliminated from donating if they have ever had jaundice, infectious hepatitis, malaria, a history of a heart attack or asthma or allergies which are active at the time of donation.

In addition to the staff of Red Cross Nurses accompanying the Bloodmobile many local volunteers are also needed to work on the blood drive. Anyone interested in helping should call the previously listed numbers.

It is a known fact that only three percent of the entire population supplies the blood needs for the rest of the population. It is also estimated that the requirement for blood is over six million pints per year or more than 10 units per minute.

Sources working on the blood drive say that this is an opportunity to overcome the deficit that exists, not only around the world but right here in our local community.

A further check of the records at Hills and Dales Hospital reveals that there have been no abortions to date performed at the facility, Administrator Byron Landholt said this week.

We are happy to set this record straight for Byron. Usually the cry heard in newspaper offices in affairs like this is: misquote. This wasn't the case with Byron who asked that we print the results of the record search in fairness to the medical staff and the hospital.

Way back when I went to school they locked the girls' dorms. They still do.

But there's a major difference I discovered last week at Western Michigan in Kalamazoo. It used to be that the dorms were locked at a specific time every night so that late-arriving girls could be detected out beyond curfew time.

Now there is no curfew and at WMU the dorms are always locked. Girls carry keys to the various floors to keep the dorms safe. The girls I talked to are all for the plan because of incidents in the past.

Because three members of the school board are attending a meeting of board members this week in California the regular meeting of the school board has been postponed for a week.

Convention expenses will be paid by the school for Trustee Dr. Ed Scollon, President Arthur Severance and Trustee Bob Hinn. I don't report this critically. It's the thought here that the school should pay this cost.

School board members work for nothing all year and a trip on school business for half the board is cheap, cheap, cheap.

We've heard nothing but glowing reports about the Ugly Lions show that started last week and continues with performances this week end.

While the performance evidently rates raves the handling of the overflow crowds didn't. At least that's the story we got from a fellow who drove over from Cass City only to be turned away at the door: no room.

What bugged him was not that he was turned away. It was disappointing, sure, but if the joint's full, it's full, he said. His temperature reached the boiling stage by the manners of the guy that did it. He was rude to say the least, my informant confides.

In defense of the guy in charge of turning away ticket holders, he likely had been hassled most of the evening by guys who bought tickets and then couldn't get in.

Then, too, how many persons do you know who can say "no" gracefully and make you like it?

You ain't seen nothin' yet. That's the word from Bill Bortel, county extension director. He says that boycott or no boycott there will be a shortage of meat this summer.

He told Cass City Rotarians Tuesday that prices will go up and stay up. Persons willing to pay the price will eat meat; the rest will go without.

Chamber banquet plans complete

President Roger Little announced this week that final details have been completed for the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet, the highlight of the year for the organization. Keeping the meeting slated Tuesday at Cass City High School Cafeteria will be Frohman Johnson, director of Economic Expansion, Michigan State Chamber of Commerce. He's expected to tell members ways that the community can expand and promote, Little said. It should be a meeting of interest to everyone with a stake in Cass City's future, he added.

Highlight of the evening for many residents will be the announcement of the Junior Citizen of the Year and the Citizen of the Year. The Junior Citizen is annually selected from the Senior class at Cass City High School. Also to be presented will be the newly elected officers and directors of the Chamber. Tickets are on sale at either bank in Cass City and by members of the Chamber board.

The guest speaker has 25 years of management background in industry, including a business of his own. Johnson has worked a great amount of time in community development, economic expansion and in other fields. He has operated his own advertising and public relations firm.

He is in constant demand as a public speaker.

FROM THE

Editor's Corner

Everyone connected with the homes financed with Housing and Urban Development (HUD) backing and now being foreclosed appears up tight about it.

The owners who have left, the owners about to be evicted and the property owners in the area are screaming about it... probably in vain.

It's just a bad situation all

ceiling prices for oil and thus discouraged new exploration.

Gehris advised oil users to contact their state representatives and senators to get action. He said the key to the whole crisis could be found with government. Federal and state pressure can be used to alleviate the crisis, he said.

Detroit Edison District office manager George Anderson said the company's requests for electric heat have not shot up dramatically due to the fuel shortage.

Last year, Edison installed heating units for 54 residential customers in Tuscola county, and 31 apartment units. Of these, four in residences were conversion units from some other form of heating, along with one in an apartment complex. Six partial installations in which electricity was not the main source of heating, were put in.

Anderson said electric heating is at about the same point in development that natural gas heating was 35 or 40 years ago, and is experiencing slow but steady growth each year.

Anderson speculated that by the year 2000, most homes in America would be heated electrically. He cited rising costs of fossil fuels, along with their scarcity, as reasons for conversion.

"I think you'll see a day when the breeder reactor is perfected, perhaps in 20 years," he said. "Then you're apt to see a larger increase in electric heating."

He called electric heating the only hope.

"Fossil fuel supplies are going right down the drain," he said. "We have less oil and gas all the time and coal supplies are good for maybe another 500 years or so."

Anderson speculated that, once the sulfur problem had been eliminated in coal, this might serve as an alternative source of power for generating electricity.

around. But it shouldn't be as bad as it is in the urban areas where the houses become vandalized weeks with virtually no value.

That doesn't help the family that can't make the payments and is headed out on the street bag and baggage. It's hard to see what can be done for those people. Except sympathize.

Nearly as concerned about the homes are the neighbors. They shudder when they see the boards hammered over the windows.

Their fear, of course, that the action will result in lower property valuation for the entire neighborhood.

The home owners tend to blame the mortgage company for it all.

That's like blaming the seed for a crop failure when it doesn't rain.

The ire of the homeowners should be focused on the HUD program.

There was a hassle about the quality of the homes as they were built. But they passed all required State codes. Whether they were bargains or not remains an open question.

The obvious pitfall in the entire program is that new owners weren't required to show that they would be potentially able to pay the upkeep that any home requires. Just slap down a few bucks and move right in.

It was an ill conceived way to help the poor, doomed to failure. In small town Cass City it took longer to get started, but no longer to fail.

The trouble is that HUD housing programs are no more. Concerned Cass Cityans can't even call George Romney about it. He quit.

That brings us up to right now as the boards are being hammered over the windows. Unnecessarily? Sure. But not necessarily fatal to property values.

The homes in Cass City have something going for them that the homes in urban ghetto areas don't.

There is a market. Families will buy them. After the waiting period I'd suspect that these homes will be utilized.

It's probable that the prices will have eroded (depending on the damage) and maybe the market value will not be as great as they were when built, despite inflation.

All taxpayers will take a bath... again. But not as big a dousing here as we took in most other Michigan HUD home areas.

AROUND THE FARM

Let's reason with prices

by William Bortel

It was many years ago but I remember it as though it were yesterday. I was angry-fighting mad, in fact, and wanted to clean up on everyone around me. 'Twas then that my mother explained to me the difference between people and animals. "Dogs fight when they get angry, but people are blessed with more brains and should be able to settle their differences without fighting like animals. Use your head."

I suppose it's our animal instinct that makes us want to start slugging when things seem wrong. And as soon as we start slugging we start recruiting help for "our side."

This seems to be the reasoning behind so many of the telephone calls that came to my desk last week. The gist of the calls was like this: "Food prices are getting unbearable. We are going to do something about it so we're organizing a group. Can you tell us who is getting rich at our expense? Who is to blame for the high prices? Where does our food dollar go? We're ready to fight!"

Right now might be a pretty good time to remember we are people-not animals. Before we use our fists let's try our reasoning power. We can reason if we know some facts.

What does our food dollar pay for? It pays for the cost of the raw product plus the marketing costs in bringing it to our table in the form we want it, at the time we want it and at a price we're willing to pay for it.

Who got our food dollar last year? The farmer got some of it. Often more of it went for marketing than for the original raw product. Forty-six percent of the marketing bill (almost half) went for labor costs. As long as you and I want and get more money for the hours we work, we're going to pay for the labor that goes into our food. People who work in the food industry want pay raises like everyone else. The alternative is to do all the work ourselves: produce the food, transport it, process it, store it and prepare it. We'd have no convenience foods and would be strictly limited by growing season and available land and our capacity for work.

Now let's recognize a couple of facts about people. People are greedy. When there isn't enough to go around everyone grabs and hoards to make sure they get their share and more. This is the case with meat right now.

No one person can snap his finger and come up with more meat-not even the President. It takes eight pounds of feed to make one pound of beef for your table. This past year's feed grains were flooded out at harvest time. Some foreign countries had poor harvest also. The resulting demand for the available grain raised the price of feed many times greater than in previous years. Until we raise and harvest more feed grains (and we hope that happens this summer) we can't produce more meat.

One thing we must remember if we plan on activating a movement to control food prices. Each of us is limited to what we can do about our own problems. We have absolutely no jurisdiction over what anyone else does at the market place. Nor is it any of our business!

Each of us must learn to live within our means. No one needs to tell me what I can afford. But there will always be someone with more money than I who can afford to buy the things my money can't purchase. I know I must limit my spending to what I need-not what I want. There are a lot of us in this same boat and we can take great pride in what we accomplish.

And remember, we are people-not animals. Use your heads, not your fists. Get the facts and do something positive

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

Heroes are born,
not made

By Jim Ketchum

I am at long last convinced that heroes are definitely born, not made.

So are steeplejacks, mountain climbers, high-wire artists and window washers on the Empire State Building. I came to the reluctant conclusion, further, that I will never become one of these. I find I can't even pretend to believe that I could do what they do.

This not-so-startling revelation finally became clear to me last week, when, in a fit of creative energy, I decided to go to the top of Frutchey's elevator and take a picture of the town.

I had studied the massive silos for weeks, determined that I would scale them, if not in the manner of Sir Edmund Hillary, then by some other means nearly as death-defying. I phoned the company the day before the event, to let them know I was coming and that nothing would keep me from achieving my aim. The elevator would be mine, because it was there!

At the other end of the line, the nice lady said that, of course I could go up and take all the pictures I liked. Oh, of course I should be careful, because the one-man elevator running to the top sometimes sticks and if it did, I would be stranded. Also, once I got up there, I was on my own. The company would take no responsibility for my safety.

My blood turned to ice-water momentarily, and cold beads of perspiration burst out on my brow. Swallowing hard, I replied that I understood all that and I still wanted to go. Fine, she said, just tell one of the boys when you're ready and you'll be shown the way.

I didn't think much more about it until the next morning. Then it came back to me that I had, more or less, committed myself to the ascent, so I grabbed the freshly loaded camera and took off.

On arrival, I was met by one of the workmen who proceeded to explain the operation of the one-man elevator which would be my means of reaching the top.

"Does this thing ever get stuck?" I asked somewhat warily.

"Oh, once in a while, it'll stick up around the top," he replied. "Then you just get out and climb up the ladder the rest of the way and jiggle around with it at the top."

My heart leapt into my throat. No way was I going to climb out of a stuck elevator when it must be at least 800 or 900 feet above the ground.

I could just see me coming back to the office, camera in hand, still full of unexposed film, and never living down the stigma of having tailed on an assignment.

So gingerly I entered the car and soon I was on my way.

Slowly the car rose, occasionally bumping against the side of the shaft and sending extra chills through these somewhat reluctant bones. With each bump and jolt, I kept thinking, this is it! I'm going to get stuck up here and I'll never get down. They'll have to land a helicopter on top of this thing to get me off. Why the hell do I get myself into these messes?

Then all the sins of my life began passing before my eyes. I could see the end coming, along with big, black headlines in the Chronicle. "Local reporter killed at elevator. Body found in Cass City, Gagetown, Delord and parts of Elkland township."

At this point the car shuddered to a halt and, speedily, I scrambled out.

Then, there it was. The day was clear and I could see for more miles than I had in a very long time. The panorama could not have been described by a poet high on anything you can name. Simplicity, yet with in that simplicity, great complexity.

There's a word in the language called perspective, and perspective is what comes when you are so far above everything. All the pettiness, anger, frustration and mis-understanding seem to melt into oblivion when you are perched above it all.

The pictures were snapped and, the longer I remained, the more reluctant I grew to leave. Perhaps this is the fascination mountain people have with the ridges and ravines they call home. At last, I turned and made the descent to terra firma.

When I emerged from the car, I asked the workman just how high I'd been.

Expecting to hear an exceedingly large number, the balloon burst when he said, "Oh, 130 feet."

A hundred and thirty feet? That's all? Couldn't there be some mistake? Why, I was higher than that when I climbed the dome of the capitol building in Lansing!

All that heroism I thought I possessed proved to be not much at all. Just 130 feet of it. Heroes are born, not made.

All bids must be approved by the State Administrative Board before contracts can be awarded.

Saginaw Asphalt Paving Co., of Saginaw was lowest of nine bidders on 24.7 miles of shoulder seal on M-46 from Vassar Road in Tuscola county east to M-53 in Sanilac county. The company submitted a bid of $43,539.

Karl A. Bearinger, 20, Caro, was sentenced to from 18 to 30 months in Jackson Prison after pleading guilty to charges of being drunk and disorderly and resisting arrest on March 22, in Caro, in violation of parole.

Bearinger was originally found guilty in November of 1971 of breaking and entering of an auto parked in Caro and was placed on two years' probation.

In another case, Charles Gladden, Reese, pleaded guilty to charges of failing to report to his parole officer and failing to make payments on fines incurred from his original court case.

In art or sculpture it is called a Christus, an artist's interpretation of Our Lord.

In a passion play the leading role is the Christus . . . again an artist's interpretation.

Through the centuries there have been many faces, many interpretations. Yet all so easily recognizable . . .

... Because we know Christ not by sight, but by the qualities of His life for us. We are drawn not to a face but to a heart, a Heart that loved and gave and promised and fulfilled.

However simple or crude someone's sketch of the Master . . . in seeing his Lord we see ours. We are not critics, but believers.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

The fellow that runs the country store told the folks Saturday night that he was living the life of Cinderella. If he didn't get his income tax stuff fixed and sent in, he allowed, his business would turn into a punkin and he could see his way out of trouble as good as them blind mice. He said he was convinced that the American income tax system is the world's most amazing way to support a Government. He said what was amazing was how anybody figured it out.

Paying income tax is a duty that ain't weighed heavy on none of the fellers for years, on account of they don't have no income. But they never pass up the chance to have their say on such matters. And Clem Webster was the first to take a shot.

The average working feller in this country, said Clem, works from January into May to make enough to pay his taxes. After that he's working to catch up some of his bills. Clem had saw this piece that said more than 97 per cent of all income taxes is paid by folks that make a ordinary wage that you could live on til grocery prices went out of sight. Clem said the idea of solving the country's problems and paying off our debts by taxing the rich won't hold up cause they jest ain't enough rich. Actual, said Clem, the burden of keeping the country going falls on the average right down the line, in taxes or prices.

But Hookum was disagreed. He was of the mind they's plenty of rich people that's gitting richer fer the very reason they don't pay no taxes. If you can git rich enough to hire a expert in building shelters fer you and your money to crawl under, you stand to keep gitting richer, was Bug's words. And Government helps out by offering deals like bonds that ain't taxed—as long as you got at least $10,000 to buy just one.

Furthermore, went on Bug, what grinds at him the most is the way the Government spends the money. He sees by the papers where the Administration cuts back on a heap of the programs that was supposed to help pore folks but wasn't, and he was agreed with that, but now he reads where the grants to "the arts" is going to be doubled from $38 million this year to $80 million next. How can we cut out lunch money for school youngsters and turn right around and give somebody $150,000 to put on three operies so the youngsters that can't afford to eat can have culture. Bug wanted to know.

Personal, Mister Editor, I didn't git in the discussion. I don't know nothing about taxes and I git that mixed up, and I know less about art. The closest I ever come to art was this feller I knowed that worked on the railroad. I seen him spit clean over a flatcar flatfooted.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Drugs don't have brains

ANN ROSS - EXTENSION AGENT

Drugs don't have brains. And so in the development of society we have come to regard them as potentially dangerous. We have qualified their use with prescriptions, pharmacists, drug laws, and doctors.

When you eliminate these safeguards from drug use, says Dr. William Van Meter, as associate professor of pharmacology at Iowa State University, you are faced with a problem. Take stimulants, for example. These drugs, such as diet pills, amphetamines, and "benzies," make you feel full of life - ready to go. But under normal conditions the body is not "up" and ready to go 24 hours a day. It needs a break.

Without drugs, your body would normally tire. You'd take a rest to recuperate. On stimulants you don't choose when to quit - because you've placed a brainless substance in control. You place a stress on the physical and mental limits of your system.

Then take a look at depressants - like alcohol, sleeping pills, heroin, morphine, narcotics, opium, goat balls. These cause the body to slow down. And as tolerance for the drugs develops, it takes more and more of them to produce the same relaxation.

The drugs allow the body to become dependent on them. When a person tries to withdraw, it is a painful experience. Abrupt withdrawal, after heavy usage, can cause death, particularly with barbiturates.

In other words, says Dr. Van Meter, drugs take the body out. They do not say, "I've got you to a breaking point - better stop!" You have the brains. Drugs do not. That makes the choice yours.

BETTER HEALTH

The fight against measles

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

In a news release from the American Medical Association, I read that Dr. P. J. Landrigan says that recently in Texas-Kanana, a city on the border of Arkansas and Texas, and the vicinity, there was an epidemic of measles in which 633 youngsters got the disease.

Of these cases, 606 were in Texas, where the number of vaccinations against measles had been small. In Arkansas, where many children had been vaccinated, there was no epidemic. This shows what can be done by vaccination.

Doubtless thousands of mothers throughout the country will say, "But measles is something that every child has to get, so there is no need to worry." Or the mothers are simply too poor to take their children to a doctor, or too ignorant to know how important it is to have their children vaccinated. Fewer than half of the mothers in the poverty areas of our cities have had their children vaccinated.

But these mothers are unwise. In recent years, it has been discovered that a considerable percentage of children with ordinary measles get meningitis (an inflammation of the outer lining of the brain), which is not a good thing for the brain, and occasionally it can do the brain much permanent harm.

Also, children, when they get a severe attack of measles, lose quite a bit of time from school. Their illness can put a big strain on their mothers. As Dr.

Landrigan says, when most mothers in a state get their children vaccinated against measles, very few cases of the disease show up.

Even more important is the wiping out of German measles. Why? As many people know, a pregnant woman who has German measles runs the risk of giving birth to a baby which is defective in one or perhaps many ways.

For example, the other day I chatted with a very intelligent woman whose promising career as a university professor was stopped when during the fifth month of her pregnancy she contracted German measles. Because of this, her child was born deaf. And as one can imagine, raising a child who is deaf is not an easy thing to do.

Fortunately, the child, like her two parents, is highly intelligent, and so she has been able to learn lip-reading, and with this, and the help of two hearing aids which were given her very early in life to save the small bit of hearing she had, she has been able to learn lip-reading and to talk, and she is able to get along quite well in life.

Experts tell us that every young woman who has any chance of getting pregnant should certainly be immunized against German measles.

nervous problems, or will increase their effectiveness in their work, or social life.

The government interviewers found that 42 per cent of the people they questioned would not accept even almost unanimous opinions of very able research professors who say that they have tested a certain supposed cancer cure and have found it worthless; and more than 10 per cent indicated that they would try a treatment recommended by a friend, even if a doctor said it was worthless.

That a cancer treatment was worthless is always obvious when it no longer sells to any great extent, or is completely forgotten after its proponent has died or has fled to some distant country. A drug like penicillin or cortisone will keep being used ages after the discoverer has died.

In the hope that older persons can avoid medical quackery, I have prepared a little booklet that may help you understand what to expect. You may obtain it by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents with your request for "Why an Older Person's Health Is Failing" to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. CCC, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50301.

Reader says food tax should go

April 9, 1973

Cass City Chronicle
Main & Oak
Cass City, Mich. 48726

To The Editor:

I am concerned not only that food prices are too high, but also that the State of Michigan taxes food. Everyone would be helped if taxes like these were eradicated. It is quite enough that the state has a sales tax on all other items. For example, one gallon of milk is $1.09, with the additional tax it is $1.14. My grocery bill today was $17.79 -- 09 cents of that was tax. I have lived in other states where food was considered a necessity for life and accordingly it was not taxed. State legislators should consider this and change what legislation they can.

Sincerely,
Alice Ketchum

Letters to the Editor

Residents object to home boarding

8 April 1973

Mr. John Haire
Owner/Publisher
Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, Mich. 48726

Dear Mr. Haire:

We, the other residents of the Woodland Subdivision would like to add our comments to those already made by Mr. Jim Ketchum in your publication of April 4, 1973 regarding the HUD program home, and possibly homes, which are being boarded up in our neighborhood.

First of all, we take offense to Kelly Mortgage Company's insistence that the Woodland Subdivision or any part of Cass City for that matter, is a "high risk" area. Their rationale for boarding an abandoned residence is well justified in Saginaw or Flint but such is not the case in Cass City. Some of us have lived here four years and more and never had to worry about our residences being vandalized. We demand, and this letter is a petition of sorts, that the plywood be removed from the home on Woodland Avenue. It is a travesty to see such an action - the boarding - predicated on experiences in slum areas taken by an outside mortgage company which is totally unfamiliar with Cass City. It is an affront to us and to the other residents of the Village for more than one reason. It devalues our property and it most assuredly makes us look like a slum area - which we are not!

We are considering some form of legal action to force the removal of the plywood if Kelly Mortgage does not willingly do so. Mr. Ketchum's article reflected that even the FHA prefers plastic sheeting to plywood to preserve the HUD homes. We would concur to that. At least some semblance of a regular neighborhood would be kept in that the ultimate preservation of the Government's property would be less obvious. Is that too much to ask?

Very Sincerely Yours,

Mr. & Mrs. Gerald M. Polk
Mr. & Mrs. Gary Deering
Mr. & Mrs. Dave Ware
Mr. & Mrs. Bill
Mr. & Mrs. Frank Schott
Dr. & Mrs. Geo. T. Moylan

No injuries in area accidents

Four traffic accidents were reported last week in the Cass City area, none serious.

Tuesday, April 3, a car driven by Sandra Kay Bailey, 26, 220 E. Washington, Caro, collided with a car driven by Bun Collins, 2339 MacArthur, Deford, at the corner of Weaver and Main in Cass City.

Police reported that the Bailey car was turning north onto Weaver from Main at the same time that the Collins car was turning west onto Main from Weaver when the accident occurred.

Neither driver was injured.

No ticket was issued.

That same day, Tuscola County Sheriff's Deputies reported that a deer jumped through the windshield of a pickup truck driven by Duane Moore, 5170 Deckerville Rd., Decker.

Police said Moore was driving north on Cemetery Road near DeLong Road when the deer leaped from the west ditch into the windshield.

Moore was not seriously injured in the accident which occurred around 7:45 a.m.

Thursday, a car driven by Earl Jasin, 32, of St. Clair Shores, struck another deer on Cemetery Road, this time near the intersection of Shabbona Road.

According to Sheriff's deputies, Jasin was headed south on Cemetery Road when a deer leaped from the east ditch and into the front of the car. Jasin was not seriously hurt.

The accident occurred about 6:45 p.m.

Sunday, deputies reported a car driven by Sandra Nicholas, 26, 5540 McAlpine, Gagetown, collided with a motorcycle driven by Jeffrey Warner, 15, of 5782 Bruce Rd., Deford.

Police said the youth attempted to make a 'U' turn in front of the Nicholas car without signaling. It was then that the car struck the motorcycle.

The accident occurred on Cemetery Road south of Cass City around 9:30 a.m.

Injury was avoided in a two-car mishap on M-43 in Kalamazoo Saturday afternoon.

The crash occurred when a car driven on M-43 by Miss B. J. Haire attempted a right turn to US-131 from the center lane and was hit on the right front door by a vehicle driven by William F. Ayers of Kalamazoo.

Miss Haire was ticketed for improper movement by Trooper Bruce A. Wiersma of the Kalamazoo Police Department.

Woman asks help to avoid eviction

Dear Editor:

I need help. I live at 6729 Garfield St., and am about to be evicted from my home. I have no means of support, my husband is ill with a heart condition, I have an 18-year-old daughter who can't find a job, and I am out of my mind trying to get a loan to pay up the back payments on my home.

I owe Kelly Mortgage Co., of Flint, $970.40, plus an attorney fee of $100.00, plus a paper fee. If this money is not paid by April 19, then six months from that date, I will be thrown out of my house.

My husband has not worked for 11 years because of his illness and we are on disability through Social Security. This is why no one will lend me any money. I have been to Walbro and General Cable asking for a job. I have filled out applications, but was never called. I will be 55 years old this year.

We are not lazy and are willing to work, but no one will hire my daughter or myself. This is why I am asking for a helping hand. I would like help either from the J.C.'s or the Kiwanis Club or any other organization that could help me out. I'm sure they would not want to see me put out on the street. I have helped other people before and I think it's about time I got a little help.

I intend to keep my home and not have my eviction spread all over the newspapers or stand by and watch my house boarded up. I am not letting this happen to my home, which I intend to keep, no matter how I do it.

Where will we go if we are thrown out? There is no rent cheaper than where we are now.

This is why I am fighting to keep this home. If someone would help us out, I would be willing to scrub floors or do any kind of a job to pay back whatever money I could borrow.

It seems that our government should look into such cases and try to find out why things like this happen and try to help.

We all should work to keep other houses from being boarded up in Cass City and keep others from being turned out in the street.

Mr. John Haire, editor
Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, Mich.

Dear John,

I appreciated your comments in "From The Editor's Corner" in the April 5th issue and am glad to hear that you are still eating meat. However, I will have to disagree with your statement that the price of meat is outrageous. The price is also outrageous on the articles that must be purchased to produce this meat. Can you name any article that the consumer buys today where the price is not outrageous? The price of meat is just beginning to catch up to the rest of the economy.

Man's first need is food. Did you ever go to the grocery store only to find empty shelves? Rather than knocking the price, let us all be thankful that a bountiful supply is produced for our needs here in these United States.

Keep eating meat!

Harold Little

Milliken re-election bid no secret

Perhaps the most open political secret in Lansing these days involves the future of Gov. William G. Milliken.

He hasn't announced it yet, in fact he most surely won't make it official until sometime more than a year from now, but the governor is going to run for another term.

It's hard to know when he made a real commitment to the idea. In the 1970 election there were a lot of people who would have been willing to bet a lot of money that Milliken would serve out his current term, hand the nomination to Lt. Gov. James Brickley and go back to Traverse City.

But he has been dropping broad hints that he'd like another term since last summer when he was pulling every political lever he could find to pry his transportation package through the legislature.

There is probably a whole series of factors involved in his decision. He seems to have developed a real feel for the job so that he enjoys it fully. The legislature is doing his bidding more now than at first. The ghost of George Romney has long since been laid to rest. It's been a long time since someone asked him whether he had "leadership ability" or not.

Milliken has always wanted to be governor rather than to seek national office. He turned down an offer in 1966 to run for the U.S. Senate and opened the door for Robert Griffin in what proved to be a winning campaign. So if he wants to stay in politics he would most logically want to stay on as governor.

Then there is the national scene to consider as well. The Republicans are looking to hold a real battle for the party presidential nomination in 1976. If Milliken wants to have a say in whom the party picks, he'll need to be more than a successful store owner from Traverse City.

There is surely one other factor in his decision too -- it looks like he can win another term. The polls show him holding up quite well and Democrats are talking privately about how tough it will be running someone against him in 1974. When you are on top, the temptation is much less to leave.

That leaves the question of what will happen to Lt. Gov.

Girl Scouts end successful cookie sale

Cass City Girl Scouts have sold 2,450 boxes of cookies this year in their annual sale drive.

Between 60 and 70 girls participated in the sale which brought in around $200 to their treasury, according to scout leader Mrs. Kathy Fischer.

She said the scouts organization makes about 12 cents per each box of cookies. Money made from the project will go to finance activities such as camp-outs and trips.

Mrs. Fischer saluted all those who took part in making the sale a success, especially Mrs. Ellen Toner, who served as chairman for the cookie sale campaign.

Mrs. Toner coordinated the entire sale from the organization of leaders to the handling of the money to actual deliveries of cookies.

The leaders of local Girl Scouting who participated in the drive are:

Brownies: Elaine Proctor, Michele Zdrojewski, Bridget Miller, Marsha Franks and Marilyn Schott.

Juniors: Linda Parrish, Marilyn Compo, Ellen Schmidt, Lorraine Creason, Jane Mitchell and Karen Fischer.

Cadets: Karen Fischer.

Mrs. Fischer also saluted two high school coordinators who aided the program. They are Deb Francis and Sue Pohanz.

Report break-in at cycle shop

Cass City police reported thieves broke into Cass City Cycle Sales, 6268 Main St., sometime Sunday night and carried away over $200 in small merchandise.

Police said they found the lock on the back door of the building broken early Monday morning when the owner called them to the scene.

Among the items taken were several sets of wrenches, a case of oil, timing lights, cables, a calculator and about $10 in change from a cash drawer.

Total value of the missing items was placed at $238.00.

Police have no clues and the investigation continues.

Last Thursday, Police were called to the home of Mrs. Lewis Tibbitts, 6317 Houghton St., when she discovered that her garage had been broken into sometime during the week.

Police found a broken window along with marks indicating someone tried to pry open a side door to the building. Entry was not gained and nothing was taken.

Chief Gene Wilson said he suspects someone tried to get in, but failed. Early investigation led officers to believe burglary was not the motive.

But upon closer examination police tended to discount the vandalism theory.

Mrs. Waggoner denies charges

Tuscola county sheriff's office reports that Mrs. Eloise Waggoner of Kingston has denied, in the form of a complaint, charges made by her husband last week that she attempted to shoot him and run over him with her car.

Mrs. Waggoner denied having pointed or even owned the alleged shotgun her husband claimed she turned on him about two weeks ago.

She further denied that she attempted to run him off the road later the same day. She told Deputy Richard Holmeister that it was he who tried to force her car into a ditch that night.

Mrs. Waggoner said she will seek a divorce.

Fete Wells for Cub leadership

An estimated 100 Cub Scout, Boy Scout and Explorer leaders attended the 2nd annual recognition dinner Saturday at Laker High School, near Pigeon, to see leaders honored for service and hear Morley Fraser speak.

Two men received the top award given by scouting to its leaders: the Award of Merit. They were Clyde Wells of Cass City and Hugh Clark of Harbor Beach.

Wells was granted the award for his 12 years as Master of the Cub Scout program in Cass City. Wells said that he took over for "one year" after the former Cub Master left the village. He is still working at the job.

In addition to the top awards, many other training awards were presented. Two of them were received by John Juhasz of Cass City. He received the Scouter's Award for his training as assistant Scoutmaster and the Commissioner's Arrowhead Honor.

Fraser is a well known speaker in the Thumb area. He averages 140 speaking engagements a year and many of them have been in the Thumb, including Cass City.

Residents not complaining

30 open intersections pose little problem

The over 30 unmarked intersections on Cass City streets seem to be no problem to residents, according to village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie.

LaPonsie said this week that, since he has been superintendent, he has not had one citizen complaint concerning the lack of stop and yield signs in the village. Traffic patterns seem to flow well enough and no action to change or add signs to the system is planned.

Most of the unmarked intersections are in the southeastern quarter of the village and are most prevalent along Houghton and Pine Streets running east and west, and along Woodland, Al, Sherman, Maple and Oak running north and south.

One intersection problem in this group has proven to be the one at Pine and Sherman. LaPonsie said the situation at that point is being studied with reference to erecting a sign of some sort.

LaPonsie said the traffic flow does not really warrant any new signs at this time. When you begin to tamper with established traffic control patterns, he said, you invite accidents.

He said that if a citizen does have a complaint about an unmarked intersection, all he needs to do is contact the superintendent's office and action will be taken. This involves presenting the request for a sign to the safety committee of the village council, stating the reasons in detail.

LaPonsie said when he took over as superintendent, he conducted his own traffic survey of the village and found the flow satisfactory. One yield sign has been erected at the corner of Oak and Huron Streets as a result of the survey. Nothing else has changed.

"For now we are just going to sit back and see what happens," LaPonsie said. "Right now, there doesn't appear to be any real big problem."

Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson tended to agree, but said there could be a few more signs erected in the southeastern part of town.

"There has been only one accident in recent memory at an unmarked intersection in that part of town," Wilson said.

He said he submitted requests recently to the safety committee for two additional street signs, both of which were turned down. He did not say which intersections were involved.

Wilson believes a larger traffic problem in Cass City involves on-street parking. He would eliminate one parking space on each street at each intersection to aid drivers in seeing oncoming traffic.

He further advocates the abolition of angle parking on all village streets. He says safety surveys have shown that parallel parking is much safer and, while eliminating a good number of parking places, does tend to cut down on accidents.

Such a move would call for expanded lot parking, which does not now exist.
