Daylight savings time comes to Cass City Sunday

By Jim Ketchum

When the rooster crows next Sunday morning, you'd really better sit up and take notice, because both you and he will be an hour late.

Why? Simple. Daylight savings time. That strange phenomenon which for years staved away from Michigan by custom and later by law is now with us, putting us, at long last, in step with the rest of the

For years previous, Michigan chose not to follow the stand-

Uniform Time Act of 1966, which allowed states not to participate in fast time if, by a vote of their state legislatures, they chose not to.

Michigan was one of only three states to do so. Indiana and Hawaii were the others. Over the years, pressure for a change mounted, along with two ballot proposals and a successful petition drive which gave DST a try-out in 1967 and

Now fast time is the law of the state which simply means that at 2:00 a.m. April 29, everyone will set their clocks ahead one hour. The procedure is reversed in the fall

Local business and commercial establishments seem to favor the switch, Lambert Althaver, vice-president of Walbro Corporation, greeted the change enthusiastically.

"The problem isn't with changing over," he said. "The problem was with not changing. Being a half-year on New York time and a half-year on Chicago time was bad for customers and business generally. Now we've got some consistency." He added with a chuckle that it will give him extra time on the golf course, too. Cass City Fire Chief Dick Root likes daylight savings time too. He said after he gets home, he enjoys being able to spend time working in the yard. "Must be I'm just afraid of the dark," he laughed. Some people aren't happy with the switch to fast time and most of them live on farms.

For example at the Francis

Butler farm on Huron Line

"Haying is probably the thing that is most hampered by fast time," Mrs. Butler said. "The dew stays on until late and you find yourself having after sup-having can begin.

Mrs. Maynard Stine echoed the same sentiments. "We don't like it." she said

Road DST will mean adapting milk cows to a new schedule and waiting until almost noon before emphatically. "You have to go down and hunt for the cows because they aren't ready to be milked. And it causes big problems at haying time. The dew is on until nearly noon,"

The Stines have 57 cows and farm nearly 300 acres. The problem reverses itself in the fall when that lost hour

Rolling Hills Golf Course expects more people to take advantage of the extra hour of daylight by chasing the little white ball, according to Mrs.

Grant Hutchinson, who with her husband owns and manages the course just north of town. "Actually for us personally it ference," she said, "because we work from sunrise to sunset anyway. But it will give people a chance to come out and play when they couldn't otherwise.' She said she expects to see regular members play more during the week this year. Currently 83 families belong to the golf club.

Mrs. Hutchinson said last year the course was used by some 1200 golfers and she expects that number to increase this season with fast time.

Officials at Cass City High school say the only problem they face is the fact that everybody will lose an hour of sleep. They explained that all clocks are regulated from one central control clock in the office which automatically resets the rest of the timepieces in the building.

The old excuse of oversleeping might be a hard one to disregard on Monday. Students, however, are not urged to try it as a means of skipping school.

Grand Trunk Western Railroad said the time change will have no effect on its operation.

Service club approves $500 Western Round-up prize

The Cass City Service Club approved a $500 guaranteed first prize for the tractor pulling event at this year's Western Round up The guaranteed prize was approved unanimonsty at a meeting held Monday night

The event, a part of the four day long round up, was scheduled for Saturday, June 23 at 6:30 p.m.

Last year's purse of $300 along with trophies was considered inadequate, based on prizes held at other tractor pulling events in the area.

The club plans to charge a $7.50 entry fee for each tractor and hopes to bring in a minimum of 70 machines competing. A total of eleven classes of tractors will be established. ranging from the garden variety up to the large farm

The event will be staged in the addition to the municipal park purchased from Mort Orr near the Lions Club pavillion. A 25x300 foot strip will be prepared for the tractors.

Treasurer Ed Bergman raised the point concerning

Council votes to retain 13-mill property tax levy for coming fiscal year

Cass City's millage for 1973 will remain at 43 mills following action taken at Tuesday night's Village Council Meeting.

The action was taken following discussion of the village's 1973 assessed valuation which has been placed at $9,374,100. This is an increase over the 1972 total of a little over $200,000, or around a three per cent jump. Village President Lambert Althaver said the village had expected a jump of nearly 10 per cent, based on the increase from 1971 to 1972. This, however, tailed to materialize.

Discussion was raised as how to meet the situation. Trustee Dr. D. E. Rawson said that the last change in millage was a reduction of one halt mill several years ago and that the last increase was nearly 10 years ago. "I see nothing sacred about 13 mills." he added, saying it a higher levy would allow Cass Offy to provide necessary services, then a new tigure should be Atthaver countered that holding miltage at current levels, while seeking out new sources. of revenue and perhaps economizing more in various departments would be a more palatable approach for voters. He pointed out that there may be a possibility that voters will-be asked to approve increased millage for the proposed swimming pool, now that the village's request for federal funding has been turned down. To raise basic operating levies now might jeopardize the pool later

Althaver suggested another source of revenue might be a review of water and sewer rates. with an eye for an increase.

An additional source of revenuc brought up at the meeting is revenue sharing money currently coming in from the tederal government, Cass City

Last year Cass City received

$29,500 in federal revenue sharing funds. Althaver added that the village's budget is flexible and that it is possible to live within 13 mills with prudent spending. The millage level in Cass City has held constant for the last several years because of increases in real property values through state equalization. The 13 mill figure will bring in $121,863.30 this year. Councilhad hoped for a figure closer to $130,000, to come primarily from increased valuations. This did not materialize. The village, by law may raise levies up to 221; mills without going to the voters for approval It was estimated that a one

In other action, revenue sharing monies received for the first half of 1973 were placed in the local street fund and toward library contributions. The total of $17,033 was received earlier this month and requires that Cass City authorities make a report of its intended use to the federal government by June. It was pointed out that federal revenue sharing money can be used a number of ways which include public safety, environmental protection, public transportation (which could mean street improvement), health recreation, libraries, and social Streets designated for improvements are chosen on the criteria of condition, and usage. Improvements are made on a related basis so that gradually one section of town at a time can be done.

The establishment of this district was approved unanimously.

In other action, Stan Guinther appeared before council to ask that improvements and expansion work be considered for the public tennis courts in the city

He pointed out that the courts are full nearly all the time these days and that, with basketball courts at either end of the tennis area, it makes it difficult to enjoy either sport without interfering with the other.

Guinther added that the nets and fencing were deteriorating and that these improvements

Pres. Althaver said it was within the means of the village to repair the present courts but that expansion was another matter requiring study by the parks and recreation committee before any action could be taken in that area.

Council also heard from the safety committee with regard to a traffic light at the intersection of Main and Ale Streets. Trustee Gary Jones said that school crossing signs have been placed at the intersection and that a traffic count will be taken, hopefully early next month. It was hoped that a traffic light of some kind might be installed at the corner, since many school children use it as a crossing point on the way to classes.

A new ordinance on subdivision regulations was discussed, with final action delayed until publication can be made and until trustees have a chance to study it in detail.

These standards are, for the most part, in line with current village building practices and formalize some of these already accepted practices.

A special meeting will be called in a couple of weeks to approve the standards.

The council also designated the week of May 14 to 19 as clean-up week for Cass City. Village trucks will come around on May 17 and 18 to hauf away any trash collected by property owners doing their spring housecleaning.

The council also recommended rale of the 1970 Plymouth auto used as a police car and, more recently, as a service car for the village superintendent. Bids will be taken on the car which has 70,000 miles. The council will also begin finalizing plans for a survey to be taken in the area concerning the question of the swimming pool. The survey, planned for the late spring, will test voter sympathy in the school district to finance the project out of additional tax levies.

Owen-Gage electors air concerns in final meeting prior to merger vote Monday

It was the final in a series of group meetings and 42 memhers of the OwenGage school district attended Tuesday night at the Gagetown school gym.

They attended to get one last review of the facts before the vote Monday that will decide whether or not the district will merge with the Unionville-Sebewaing district.

Supt. Glen Sanford hosted the meeting and went over the salient facts concerning the merger and then spent the bulk of the evening answering a host of penetrating questions, many of them from electors obviously opposing the merger.

He explained the option of 40 acres for a proposed high school, junior high and auditorium with swimming pool for the new district if merged and explained that an outside study indicated that if all the buildings were built it would cost a total of 7.4 mills for construction. In addition each district assumes its own debt so that the total cost of debt for OwenGage in the new district would be 9.4 mills. He stressed that the voters would vote on each of these buildings separately and not as one package. If the voters authorized a new high school, he said, the estimated cost would be 55 mills. There is no way to guarantee. he continued, that any of the new buildings will be authorized and if they weren't the district would be forced to operate in its present buildings.

Contrasting with this cost, is the official estimate of the cost of a high school building if the district remains unmerged. Officials set this cost at $212 million or 1212 mills of taxes.

eral of the electors who asked Sanford how the figures were arrived at and said that they felt it could be done for much less. The top objection to the merger and one that was repeated over and over was the proposed increase in taxes. Those voicing this opinion were evidently just plain tired of paying taxes for schools and reject the prospect of an additionar tax load.

This was challenged by sev-

Transportation is another worry for residents questioning the merits of the merger. They see junior high school children transported to Owendale and then transferred to Sebewaing for schooling. Sanford said it was possible but pointed out that Owen-Gage students now go to Owendale and then to Gagetown for education and said that it wasn't much farther under the system. Ken Wissner voiced one of asked what would happen if the merger is turned down. He replied that if the vote were convincingly against the merger in either the Owen-Gage or USA districts he would recommend to the school board that the voters be presented with an opportunity to vote on a school for the district and go it What other choice do we have? he asked. We turned down dissolution and annexation to other surrounding districts. We turned down annexation to Unionville district. I would think that the only thing left would be to try to pay for our own alone.

That could be a rocky road, too, judging by the comments of one elector who promptly confided to his neighbor that "he wasn't about to pay that kind of taxes for a new school in Owen-Gage either".

"If It Fitz . . . "

The soldier returns

BY JIM FITZGERALD

It was splendid nostalgia but, to tell the truth, I felt a little

There I was, after driving over 1,000 miles, standing behind a crummy building in Ft. Polk, kicking the ground with the toe of my shoe and saying such inane things as:

"Boy, It's been 28 years since I kicked this ground. We used to play ball here. It was red dirt then. Now it is blacktop. Boy.' "Yes," my wife said. "You are ruining your shoes."

"General MacArthur also ruined his shoes when he returned," I said. "And his socks squished for days."

Old soldiers always want to return to the scene of their past

Fort Polk was Camp Polk when I was first there, for 10 months in 1945 and '46. It was there that I closed my 3-year career as one of the most counter-productive soldiers in the history of the U.S. Army. It was there, in fact, that I typed out my own discharge. That piece of paper is still readable today, a lasting monument to the value of my contribution toward keeping this country free to bomb Cambodia.

misspelled my own name. Now I had returned. I had lured my wife along with promises of a grand vacation in New Orleans. Little did she know that Ft. Polk was also in Louisiana. She did wonder why I turned west instead of north as we left New Orleans after 4 days of marvelous jazz and juleps in the French Quarter.

"I am seeking amnesty," I explained. But there was no one at Ft. Polk to forgive me my past sins against the military. There was no one to assure me there was no longer any hard feelings because, as a chaplain's assistant, I had hung the 14 stations of the cross in reverse order in 3 chapels. My

Rome yet. There was no one to grant me absolution for giving the chaplain apoplexy. Probably the worst thing I did to him was lie to get a soft job after 2 years in the infantry. I told the personnel officer sure. I knew Latin and how to serve Mass. The first time the chaplain appointed me altar boy, it took him only 1 minute to see through my mumbling and fumbling. "Pig Latin will not do," he snarled, banishing me to the pews forever. Instead of firing me,

The popularity of "Acapulco Gold" among Cass City high schoolers is now assured. The action at the last school board meeting when the book was yanked from the library shelves is tantamount to banning a book in Boston, Instant success.

Acapulco Gold is a street name for marijuana. It's sure that more kids will read it now by hook or by crook than ever would have if it had not been labeled pornographic by two Baptist ministers and several

And the odds are great that the new readers will not read the book but leaf the pages until they come to the pages labeled porno and brought forcefully to the attention of the school board at its meeting.

Little has ever been gained by censorship at any level. Little will be accomplished with this particular book with this action. What's at stake is the future policy when additions are made to the library. It's valid to ask if the money spent for "Acapulco Gold" could have been better spent for another work by another

The choice of how to spend available tax dollars is one of the crucial ones that faces the administration and the school board all down the line.

It's a matter of choosing the best. There aren't enough tax dollars for everything now and it's sure that there never will

There can be no recommendation here about the book. | haven't read it.

The first reaction is why expose kids to literature with material that is objectionable to some of their parents? The second is how can you stop it? Certainly not by yanking it from the school library. By the time most kids hit high school they have been exposed, perhaps over exposed, make no mistake about it. A bigger concern for every parent should be how their kids react when the certain exposure comes.

If you grant this the question then boils down to the quality of the entire book, not any one

Certainly the company that furnishes an approved list of books for school use should be examined, evaluated.

Just the same as every learning aid at the school is evaluated.

What happens to "Acapulco

Gold" is really immaterial. The danger is not the action but the reaction to it all. The worst that could happen is that door behind it. Investigating officers found several pairs of gloves at the scene, believed to have been used by the culprits in the robbery school board suddenly gets up tight about the books in the library and whips through every book looking for off-color words or scenes rather than over-all quality. The best that could happen is that the school will take another look at its library and re-evaluate it with the express purpose of providing the best, most varied literature possible for the money spent.

Later it was discovered that parts of the story were untrue. We joshed Cash about it a trifle the other day and Cash replied tongue-in-cheek: that's nothing; if they knew all about the real me it would really be sensational.

Little wonder he's made his mark wherever he's landed in a lengthy career that has seen him flit over most of the United

Elsewhere in the paper you'll find a letter from students at Cass City High School about "Acapulco Gold", defending it for the school

I was pleased to get it, Mostly, I agree with the kids about the book. On the other hand, I was chagrined that our high schoolers don't know more about the news media in the United States than they do. I felt that even grade schoolers knew that a responsible newspaper prints what happens, not what they want to see happen, in a news story. If the protesting students will reread the story they will see the source of the complaints clearly spelled out and quoted together with the school board's reaction to it.

Prediction: there will be candidates and campaigning this year for open school board posts. A group of young voters are rapping about backing a candidate, someone recently out of high school. It just might be that a youngster would furnish a new perspective to school affairs if the kids could figure out how to get one elected.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Zeke Grubb brung a book to the session at the country store Saturday night, and it set all the fellers thinking about the old days that weren't near as good back then as they look from here. It was "Dr. Case's New Recipe Book" that was put out in 1882. Zeke said his old lady found it recent when she was going through a trunk of odds and ends her Ma had give her 40 year ago.

Reading through the book, Zeke said, he come to understand why his old lady's Ma never could abide anything store bought. If it weren't growed or made at home, she figgered, it weren't fit. What Dr. Case put out, allowed Zeke, was anything but a cookbook. His recipes was fer everthing from how to waterproof harness leather to how to treat kidney stones to how to make ginger beer. If you follered Dr. Case's advice, Zeke declared, you could turn out everthing offered in one of them big-city shopping

Thinking about the book, Ed Doolittle said folks made their own soap and whitewash when he was coming along, and groceries was as cheap as a man could raise em. Ed said he. fer one, didn't want to go back to them days. But, there are some things, allowed Ed, that has got to modern, and answering services is one of em. He said he had to telephone the doctor the other day about gitting a perscription refilled, but it was after 5 o'clock and all he got to talk to was a machine that told him to leave his message. Pritty soon, went on Ed, a person will be like a biddy in one of them big brooder houses. He can git born, live and die without ever having to speak to or touch another human

Actual, broke in Clem Webster, they ain't no way a feller can keep up with this dizzy world. Clem said he saw a piece the other day where this doctor said looking at a patient's tungis a complete waste of time. Use

The acrobats opened their act with a series of performances highlighting expert footwork. native dance, ritual performance and several other forms of aerobatics indigenous to China. All this was very impressive.

As I sat, watching on TV and sipping a cold root beer. I marvelled more and more at these performers who must go through training regimens each day, working away any hesitation in movement that could cause the collapse of a human pyramid or any sudden jerk that might cause a keg juggler to miss the waiting feet of his partner only to have the crockery jug smash into a thousand pieces on the stage.

I kept on marveling when a chair pyramid act was introduced in which one chair is piled. on top of another in just such a way so as to eventually create a stack 10 or 15 feet high with the expert acrobat at the top, hoepfully remaining there until he wants to come down.

All went smoothly in this act. Very smoothly, Just a little too. smoothly, in fact. For, when he raised himself up to stand on his hands at the top of the chair pyramid, the camera picked upthe image of a cable, fastened to the performer's belt by a large. black buckle which could be ouickly detached without being

To these eyes, unschooled in brazen as that! I looked again the field of foreign policy, closer this time at the magic U.S.-Chinese relations have screen and there it was, that been dealt a serious blow by the cable holding the performer and touring troup of acrobats from steadying him so there would be no chance of him falling. I'm not anxious to see anyone come catapulting down from a pile of chairs and spill blood all over JFK center. I don't give a hoot what brand of ideology he holds. But this is nothing more than deceit.

After this act, several tumblers performed, all to perfection. Coordination, skill, timing and grace were second to none. These people were professionals and knew exactly what they were doing.

Then came an act near the end of the performance which called for a performer to balance a tray containing several glasses of water on a pole balanced on the tip of her chin. All this was to be done while she stood on a very high platform. She executed the move to perfection. Then, there it was, That damn cable again! It spoiled everything.

Why the cable? Was it to insure perfection before the American audience in this strange land? Surely if these people are professionals-and I believe they are-they would not agree. A cable would only get in the way, pull at the wrong moment and cause even more embarrassment than failing in the performance.

Was the cable there as a safety measure? Perhaps, But I have seen these same acts performed by American acrobats many times used no safety devices of any kind and relied totally upon themselves to execute the moves. And, to be trank, I have quite that humanitarian The cable ruined the credi bility of the entire performance, for me at least. It made me look with distrust upon each performer and to underrate his or her achievements even before any skills were displayed.

never known the Chinese to be

It also made me think about China's new foreign policy-nice looking and nice sounding. But would not do something as it has strings attached.

Vegetable gardens AROUND THE FARM By Don Kebler problems

Sufficient inquiries have come across my desk about home gardens and gardening that I should make a few comments on this subject. First of all, these inquiries are of two categories, one growing the first garden, two-problems occurring in gardeng.
Let's talk a bit on growing the set vegetable garden. Having our first experience in growing getables can be most satistetory and enjoyable, or a grettable remembrance.
A fine vegetable garden is a roduct of following a few mple rules and enjoying rowing plants. Soil preparaon, fertilization, vegetable arieties, proper row width and pulation, and a great amount weed control management. If you study up on the getables you wish to produce, bu'll know when and how to ant and manage each variety, he seed packet gives good rections and if followed, a nod amount of success is more saured. interested vegetable gardeners are welcome to attend the free session. We'll talk about good practices to follow, vegetable varieties, cultural practices and include some information on composting and organic gardening.

AGENT'S CORNER Drug problems become more personal

ANN ROSS - EXTENSION AGENT

Marijuana, alcohol, and many other drugs have been around since long before you were born. The thing that's making news now is that you personally have never had to face the situation before. And with drugs available to almost anyone who looks for them, the problem is hitting close to

What can you as a parent do? Dr. William Van Meter, associate professor of pharmacology at Iowa State University. has been working much of his extra time with both youth and parent groups about this dilem-

Here are some of his recommendations: Kids are exposed to drugs in your home. Examine your own attitudes. What role do stimulants and depressants play in your life? Are you on diet pills, sleeping pills? How many things do you take in one day that chemically alter your body? In 1970, Americans were of 20-30 tons per day. They were having prescriptions filled at about one billion a year or five for every man, woman, and

The home is also where a child learns to respect life styles. If family members are involved in meaningful activities - all the way from a funexercise program to getting together with friends - then the child can experience an alternative to drugs. Friends, not drugs, can pick you up. Friends, not drugs, can calm you down and give a new perspective

There's also the business of how and when you make contact. with family members. If you learn as the child grows how to communicate with him and if you have the drug facts, you can-be a good source of information. Van Meter says that as a parent and citizen, you can do much to stimulate community and school programs. But hit drugs hardest by making life

Campus Life concert slated

About 30 young people from the Thumb area will be singing in concert at the Caro Baptist Church Sunday, April 29, for the annual Youth for Christ spring concert. The group is called the Campus Life Singers and involves those active in the local Campus Life program. The group is under the direction of Rev. Dale Sherry, pastor of Deford Community Church, Mr. Sherry will also be the featured soloist at the

The April 29 concert will start at 3:00 p.m. and the public is invited. There will be no charge for the concert, but a free will offering will be taken to help cover expenses.

Less Than Half Beef

A 1,000-pound live steer yields only about 432 pounds of saleable beef at the meat counter. The remaining 568 pounds consists of about 385 pounds of offal, which is removed by the packer in dressing out the 615 pound carcass, and another 183 pounds of undesired fat and bone trimmed from the carcass before it reaches the meat counter in the form of retail-ready cuts.

Producers reminded that commodity loans are due

The Price Support Loan Program is working for both the consumer and the producer this year, as the legislation intended, according to Dorn Diehl, State Executive Director of the Michigan Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. He noted that producers have had the opportunity to retain title to their crops this past year, selecting the best time to sell during the marketing year. Now, crops are being moved into the market which will tend to relieve any short supply which may have contributed to fluctuating and sometimes speculative market

Diehl pointed out that Commodity Credit Corporation loans on wheat, dry edible beans, rye, and barley mature on April 30 and cautioned producers with warehousestored loans to redeem their loans by that date or they will lose title to their crop by forfeiture to CCC, Many producers, he added, are currently marketing their crops at much better prices than were available at harvest. These current market prices, he said, are well above the loan rate plus inter-

Marketing their crop and redeeming their loans prior to the maturity date will benefit producers since they will be retaining their equity in the crop. It will also benefit consumers since these commodities will be moving into the market place to relieve any temporary shortages, Diehl emphasized one point and that is that producers must obtain prior written approval before any farm-stored loan commodities are moved from the storage structure. This would apply to any collateral that was fed or sold or even if it is moved for reconditioning.

He noted that producers will not have the option of extending their loans for 1973-74 this year. This should not place any additional burden on producers in view of the favorable market prices at this time and it should make grain supplies more plentiful which would tend to reduce prices to the consumer.

The bikeways explosion

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Of late, I have been noticing signs on streets reading "Bike Route," Now, I see, in a newsletter from the Bicycle Institute of America an answer to my question about what the signs mean. In a number of states, money is being spent to make a paved bikeway that will make life safer for the many people, old and young, who are now using bicycles in order to get to work, or just for enjoyment There is need for such pathways or special lanes in the street to keep people on bicycles of heavy traffic. On a highway or busy street, if a person is thrown down by the touch of an automobile, he might be run over by another automobile, and that might be the end of him.

One of the most enthusiastic advocates of bicycling is my friend Dr. Paul Dudley White, who, when he was President Eisenhower's physician, said he thought Americans should ride bikes more.

Dr. White should be glad to see that recently in the fine journal for physicians, "Medical Economics," the results of a survey of their readers showed that physicians listed bicycles, boats, pianos, books and swimming pools as their "most rewarding" possessions in life. The article stated,

"bikes, boats, and swimming pools generally enhance family togetherness, guns and golf clubs sometimes split families

The newsletter I am reading is full of information that will be of interest to bicyclers. For example, I see that Forrest G. Stith, of 209 Brush Creek Blvd., Kansas City, Mo., has mapped county and secondary roads showing Missouri "slow" roads. which connect county seat towns. He will mail copies for

I am glad to see that in a number of states, efforts are being made to make bikeways. Also, there is much information in the newsletter about bicycle tours in various states and about certain legislation concerning bicycling that is now being considered by our lawmakers. Bievelists may want to write for more information to the Bicycle Institute of America, Inc., 122 East 42nd St., New York, N.Y. 10017.

As a boy, for many years 4 rode a bicycle every day in the city of Honolulu. In those days, I was not permitted to ride on the sidewalk, and on the highway, I had several very narrow escapes from death - and that was in the days before automobiles. Today, of course, the hazard is many times greater.

SEX IN TEEN-AGERS

I just read in a release from the Planned Parenthood-World Population News service that a study was made of 2.4 million never-married teen aged girls had had sexual intercourse. The researchers, Johns Hopkins sociologists John F. Kantner and Melvin Zelnik, found that more than half of the girls (1.3) million: did not use any method. of contraception.

The girls studied were between the ages of 15 and 19, and what is astounding is that tewer than one in 10, or about 200,000. of the girls had used the reliable. medical methods such as the pill, ICD, or a diaphragm Nearly four in 10 relied on withdrawal, douching, rhythm, or over-the-counter methods like toam and condoms.

In questioning the girls further, the researchers found that only 16 per cent never used contraception, but just 19 per cent report always using a contraceptive method. The doc fors concluded that the use of contracéption tends to beerratic and often unreliable among the teen-agers because of the episodic and sometimes unanticipated nature of teen-

Also, the younger the teenager, the more likely she is to go without contraception. About one-third of the 15-year-olds never used contraception, while only 12 per cent of the 19-yearolds had never used contraception. Most whites using medical methods reported that they got their contraceptives from a physician, while the blacks said they got theirs usually from a clinic, but sometimes from a private physician or a drug-

Today, the condom is being used more frequently by 35 per cent of the blacks and 25 per cent of whites. For blacks, the pill is the second most popular method, and douching is third, For whites, withdrawal is the second most popular method. and the pill is number three. Only two per cent of whites report douching as their most recent method

One advantage of using condoms is that they can help to avoid venereal disease.

In his booklet "Juvenile Diabetes Melletus" Dr. Alvarez explains the causes of Diabetes Melletus as well as outlining the suspicious symptoms and reactions. You may have a copy of his booklet by sending 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. CCC, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa-

Studded tires must be removed by May 1

The Michigan Department of State Highways reminds all motorists that studded tires must be removed from all motor vehicles fraveling state highways by May 1

A survey conducted by the department says that nearly 450,000 cars and tracks were egupped with the metalstudded tires last year

The study have created a state wide controversy because of the damage they cause to Michigan roads Measurements at state highway locations show the tungsten carbide studs cause millions of dollars of damage each year by digging

Last year, legislation to ban the tires failed when a disagreement arose over whether or not the upper peninsula should be exempt from the law Similar bills have been intro duced in the state house and senate with backing from the State Police, the Highway, Commission, and Michigan Good Roads Federation Tuscola County Road Com mission Clerk Jim Miklovic said the salety factor of the fires is a questionable one. He said he personally believes that drivers with studs tend to drive faster and are more prone to accidents. He added that he believes the damage done to the roads may not be worth what little additional safety is gained.

on the part of the round-up to drop the horse show and blamed the misunderstanding on faulty communication between the groups. He urged joint meetings between each to iron out such differences in the future. Dick Root said the two shows would not be in conflict and that persons attending one would, in all likelihood, attend both. He added that the round-up's show might act as advertising for the 4-H event and urged that the young people take advantage of the situation.

Club President Jack Mc-Daniel said that the round-up was designed to bring groups in the community together and not to cause any ill feeling between parties in Cass City.

The club approved a motion to continue with plans as made this year and to keep open the lines of communication between it and the 4-H so that such a conflict would not develop next

The club will also send a representative to the next 4-H meeting to begin this communication process.

The service club also approved a motion, on condition of agreement with 4-H, that next year, both groups would be in charge of scheduling the horse

In other business at the meeting, the club established a policy of charging all groups a participation fee at the roundup with the exception of the highschool groups. This was in response to a request from the sophomore class-senior trip committee to sell raffle tickets at the round-up to raise money.

Church groups, Boy Scouts and other groups of this type have been willing in the past to pay and the policy established this year follows along those

Some question arose over a group from Caro which was allowed to participate last year and then failed to pay its entry fee. Tighter controls over this practice were advocated.

At the conclusion of the summer, the students will have one week free to travel anywhere they wish without a chaperone. Most would like to see Paris, Rome and Venice before returning home Aug. 8.

The courses taken in Spain can be applied to college credits. These credits are recognized by most major universities in the United States.

While the students are looking forward to their summer, there will be a few problems.

Most indicated separation from family and friends will take some adjustment along with the shock of not being able to use their native language except when they are together in small groups.

Another problem will be food. Spanish cooking can hold many surprises, both friendly and unfriendly, and students are urged to take it easy until their stomachs adjust.

Most also indicated that someday they would like to return as individuals and gain an even deeper appreciation of Spain and its culture. They agreed that the trip would add greatly to their own personality development and growth.

Church uses own labor in renovation

These days, $6,000 doesn't go very far when it comes to furnishing and redecorating a church. It doesn't go very far unless a lot of congregational co-operation comes with it at no extra charge.

Yet, that's precisely what happened at the Cass City Church of the Nazarene.

The church recently underwent a complete renovation and redecorating program which saw the installation of new pews, carpeting, draperies, paneling and ceilings. A big order for any church, the problem was compounded by an indebtedness and a congregation numbering only 45 mem-

The Rev. Kermit Phillips, pastor of the church, said everyone in the congregation chipped in and worked ex- tremely hard to see the project to completion.

"The building, which was built in 1956, was never completed," Rev. Phillips explained. "We had the old pews they took out of the old Methodist church in here."

A few of those old pews now serve in a small chapel at the rear of the edifice. They have been replaced by a new set in the sanctuary, each purchased through the generosity of a member of the congregation.

gift of the president of Prestolyte Corp. of Pt. Huron, Herbert Gilroy.

Church members aided in laying carpeting, installing new ceiling tile, paneling and draperies. Others who could not help physically gave donations. Rev. Phillips told of a parishoner who gave $200 as a special gift to be used in the renovation work. Others gave money, time and talent.

The renovation work took about a year to complete. The entire inside of the church is paneled to add warmth, especially in the Sunday School and nursery rooms.

The organ and piano in the sanctuary were furnished by a music store in Caro. The church hopes eventually to buy the instruments.

Rev. Phillips, who has served as pastor of the church for the last four years, credits the will of the congregation to reach its goal of a modern church as the major force in accomplishing the fact.

Rev. Phillips said that only a small indebtedness remains on the church and he expects this to be erased before too long.

Asked to sum up his reaction. to the congregational response to the renovation work, the reverend said, "Wonderful, Simply wonderful,"

Raises given to court reporters

Circuit Court reporters in Tuscola county will now earn $10,500 after a meeting of the Board of Commissioners' personnel committee with its counterpart from Lapeer worthless, Judge Baguley ordered him to stand trial.

Pre-trial examination was set for May 7. Bond was set at $100.

The figure represents a raise from $9,000, one of the lowest court reporter's salaries in the state.

The action was taken in response to the large turnover in court reporters in the Circuit Court. Many believe the county post served only as a training ground for the reporters, who subsequently left for more lucrative positions in other parts of the state.

Tuscola's share of payment is about 40 per cent, with Lapeer picking up the remainder. The circuit includes both counties.

Earlier this year, a court reporter resigned and his reunable to carry out his duties. In such emergencies, the court can draw from a pool of reporters at a rate of $75 per

The new salary figure also includes health insurance bene-

In other action, the board approved the dispensing of some $80,000 in federal revenue sharing funds among the townships. Elkland township will receive $2,800 which it can apply to any area it deems necessary.

Commissioner Maynard Mc-Conkey explained that the townships will not lose the money if it is not spent immediately but can carry it over to the following year if necessary.

In other action, the board has hired Roland Price of Caro as a probation officer. The post a criminal justice program grant from the state of some $29,500. Money for salaries of Price and an additional clerk will come from this grant.

The board will provide office space for the work.

The board declined to act on a request from William Scott, county school superintendent. who protested the annexation of a parcel of land to the village of

Scott, acting as a private citizen, claimed the petitions used in the annexation drive were invalid. Roland Kern, lawyer for the board, said that the petitions were valid and that the matter was really out of the board's hands. The petition has already been sent to the state. for approval

According to McConkey, the board felt the dispute should be handled between the property became available as a result of owners and the state.

Plans underway to revive new Capitol building proposal

Rumblings are heard again in Lansing that Michigan needs a new Capitol building. The proposed new Capitol has been talked about for years. The ground on which it would be built has been purchased, cleared of buildings and some preliminary work was done at a cost of $3.5 million. At one point a few years ago all systems were go. 90 plans had been approved, and the money was ready to be appropriated.

That was before 1970 with its recession and General Motors strike which put state government in a financial tailspin. The $5 million included in that year's budget to continue work on the new Capitol was cancelled quickly as part of efforts to keep the state in the black.

Now, three years later, no further progress has been made, and some people who originally favored the idea aren't so sure it has that much merit any more.

Gov. William G. Milliken declined to ask the Legislature for any money for the building this time around and has made it clear it was not just an oversight on his part. He is one of those who decided the state needs a lot of things right now worse than it needs a new $100 million building to house his staff and the Legislature.

One of the reasons the new Capitol was pushed so hard a few years back was the lack of space in the current Capitol. The Legislature kicked every state agency out of the building in its quest for space and then began making extra floors by dividing vertical space between each of the high-ceilinged floors. This provided two rooms where there used to be one. The result is a group of rooms with only a small window showing up a third of the way into the room in the overfloor sections.

Best estimate now is that the Legislature has spent a total of $8 million remodeling the building -- more than five times its original cost back in the 1800's. Milliken and a number of others say there isn't much sense in spending that kind of money to remodel the building, then rush off to spend $100 million right away on a building to replace it even if the remodeling helps fireproof the building with the use of new materials.

> +++++ The current Capitol was opened in 1878. That makes it 95 years old at the present time. It was built after an architectural competition which was won by a Springfield, Ill., man named Elijah E. Meyers.

The first Michigan Capitol was in Detroit on a triangular plot at Griswold, State and Shelby Streets. As the result of British agressiveness in the War of 1812, state officials decided to move it to the interior of the state. In 1847 the town of Lansing, which then was just a cluster of cabins, was picked over the town of Marshall. Marshall is still not sure if this was a good or bad turn of events. The first Capitol in Lansing was a frame, two-story build-

+++++ There are now many state operated buildings near the Capitol. The entire block to its west consists of a complex of four buildings and a two-level underground parking lot which holds 2,000 cars.

There is also talk of erecting a legislative office building to the south of the Capitol where the Plymouth | Congregational church stood before it burned. Latest speculation over the Capitol was spurred when the State Building Commission came out in early April in favor of beginning a new Capitol building "without delay." The Commission sent a special report to the governor saying $5 million starting money should be provided for the project this year.

Milliken immediately threw cold water on the idea, pointing out all the remodeling which has been done in the present building.

The report of the commission said it would take eight years to complete a new Capitol if it were started right away. By then, it said, there will be a real need for it

"The structure is overcrowded and is being used beyond practical capacity," the report said. "The present Capitol has some potential for state government, particularly during the lengthy period of construction of a new state

With talk of a tax cut this year and with other programs needing so much attention, it's doubtful the money will be appropriated right away. But the idea of a new Capitol has proven to be very resilient - one which continues to pop up and will not go away.

And with all that land sitting there vacant waiting for something, it's a good bet there'll be a lot more talk about a new Capitol in the future.

In the first instance, only a handful of people have expressed any interest in renovating the 1913 structure in Owendale and the 1903 structure in Unionville. It would seem then that most people believe that the buildings have run their life of usability. Unfortunately, the vote, if carried, next Monday can only provide a legal body which at a later date can ask the voters of the consolidated district to bond themselves to build a secondary structure. This structure would be absolutely essential if the real benefits of the consolidation are to be realized. For only then can the students really derive the benefits of a opportunity. The cost of that structure would be less costly than for each district to build similar structures in the separate districts. I want to stress the use of the term "less costly". There can be no doubt in anyones mind that any construction is costly. If there is to be any realization of cost of construction efficiency, it should be found in the construction of a combined building. Neither district can complain about the services rendered by its respective secondary structure. Therefore, or the very same reasons that the successful farmer buys a new costly tractor when his

Students defend 'Acapulco Gold'

Cass City Chronicle Cass City, Mi. 48726

Having read your article on the controversy surrounding the book, "Acapulco Gold", we the undersigned, who have read this book, fee! several objections can be made.

(1) The book neither advocates nor condemns the use of marijuana. Your article said that the book "glorified the smoking of marijuana." Not

The book only told of the plan to merchandise marijuana once it had been legalized. It offered no support or opposition to the smoking of marijuana.

(2) The book did not contain "pornographic sex scenes". Looking up the term pornography in a dictionary, it was found that pornography meant: obscene literature, art, or photography; having little or no artistic merit. Had any of the people that claimed Acapulco Gold was pornography read it in its entirety, this misunderstanding might never have happened

May we suggest that before determining literary value of material, read such material in its entirety. Reading or "skimming" the "offensive" portions of this book does not allow the reader to discover what artistic merit it has.

If the approach used by Mr. Hoag, Helwig, Siebeneicher, and Streeter had been taken on Catcher in the Rye; required reading in many college English courses. Canterbury Tales; a classic of English literature written in the sixteenth century.

The Godfather; a book many in this community have read. Each of these books would also have been denounced. Each book contains, in our opinion, sex scenes or references far more objectionable than those in Acapulco Gold. (3) The School Board and the pastors could have been more responsible in their handling of the matter.

While not arguing the merit of an inquiry, which shows that parents and community are concerned for their children, bringing up the matter at public hearing, without first looking into the matter quietly seems very irresponsible.

The result: inflammatory headlines, a furor over the book, and people more interested in the book now than they would have been had the matter been handled quietly.

And, once again, attempting to judge literary quality of a book without first reading that book in its entirety is utterly ridiculous.

(4) We object to your paper's coverage of the incident. You sensationalized what should have been just an objective investigation. What purpose was served by headlining . .Pastors, parents claim school library book is pornographic." on page one?

Perhaps it sold more papers.

In a community such as Cass City, where yours is the major news source (for many people, the ONLY news source), it would be advisable to print news stories fairly, not resorting to cheap tricks such as sensationalism to sell more papers. This is your responsibility. The people have a right to know and read the truth, not some slanted, twisted, distorted version of it.

We also resent your usage of the word "pornographie". We don't appreciate being called readers of pornography.

We hope that in the future. people will not be so quick to condemn anything that does not conform to their idea of Right, and that your newspaper will Hews events

Farmers in Tuscola county will not find the going easy this spring, thanks to cold, wet

According to County Extension Director William Bortel, most farmers have been extremely delayed in spring plowing this year and so far, the rend seems to be continuing Bortel said the land in the Cass City area has been much wetter than land lying in the western sections of the county. He said that since April 18, Bortel said he does not expect farmers to get out of farming because of the poor conditions.

"Good land will continue to be farmed," he stated. "Marginal land will be more difficult and the most unprofitable land will go idle."

farmers have invested in corndrying systems to help save grain that would otherwise spoil. In the last two years, he said, 90 such units were installed on county tarms. He expects that number to increase by another 40 or so this year. Prices of these units range anywhere from $8,000 to $40,000.

One such drying system which has already paid for itself belongs to Allan Hartwick, 1751 Cemetery Rd., Deford, Hartwick farms about 300 acres, most of it in corn and hay. He estimates that his drying system saved most of his 1972 harvest and that it paid for itself in those few months alone.

Hartwick has his seed corn and tertilizer and is merely waiting for his land to dry enough so be can begin plowing. Most of his fields no longer have standing water and he hones to be on the ground within a week and D will participate in the day long event sponsored by the Gavel Club as a benefit for the participating athletes. About 25 schools are expected to participate, bringing nearly 350 athletes to Cass City for the meet.

The event has evolved over the years into an annual thing on which the club makes very little money, according to Bill Wallace, an officer of the club.

"We take in anywhere from $700 to $1000 in admissions on the track meet and, after all the bills are paid, we have about a hundred left," Wallace said.

The club sponsors a lunch for the coaches and those who participate in setting up the meet. This includes much volunteer labor of gavel club members who act as scorekeepers, referees, and starters. They also rake the track to get it ready for the runners and prepare the areas for other

The participating schools keep the date for the Gavel Club meet open each year and participants come from long distances to compete. Community support for the event has always been good.

The club awards a medal each year to the top five finalists in each event at the meet. The medal is bronze, the size of a quarter. In addition, trophies will be presented to the top four schools with best performances at the meet.

The admission charge of one dollar defrays expenses.

poised for

season's opener

Twenty-nine Cass City High School girls comprise this year's girls softball team. This is the first year for the squad and, according to coach Brenda Breidinger, it should be an interesting season,

This is also the first year for each team the girls will play. Five contests are scheduled for the month of May, including a scrimmage against a team from Bay City Central on May

The schedule is as follows: May 1--Marlette--there May 8--Reese--here May 14-Bay City Central (scrimmage)--here

May 15-Millington-there May 22--Vassar--here Ms. Breidinger said her Cass City team has lots of depth on the bench and looks forward to lots of improvement over the season.

Tigers upset

Hawk thinclads

in dual meet

The Caro Tigers scored an upset victory over the Cass City Red Hawks Monday in the opening Thumb B Conference dual meet for the Hawks at Cass City Recreational Park. The score was 66-57.

Cass City was hampered by the loss of Kip Hopper in the dashes and failed to take the crucial distance events that figured to be the school's strength this season.

Coach Paul Clabuesch expeets the team to round into shape as the season progresses. Unfortunately for Cass City, for the first time this year the results of dual meets counts in determining the Conference champions.

Each meet won gives the school two points in the Conference this season.

Surprisingly enough, Cass City scored its only sweep in a field event where pre-season estimates indicated the squad would be its weakest. In the longjump Kip Hopper finished first followed by Drew Guernsey and

It was Toner who shutout the Lakers in the opener. He allowed just four hits, walked one and struck out four. He supplied enough trepower at the plate to win his own game as he bashed a long home run in the third inning

The Hawks played errorless ball behind Toner and his teammates combed Jim O'Connor and Ray Leppien for eighthits. Pete Frederick showed the way with three hits in three tries. Kip Hopper added a pair and Dan Mellendort and Gene-Salas added single safeties

The Caro Tigers jumped on Don Galbraith for seven runs in 4 2, 3 innings with eight hits while the Hawks were making three errors.

Chuck Bliss finished and closed the door on the Tigers the
