

CASS CITY'S annual Memorial Day parade was highlighted by a number of horses and drivers. The annual event drew large crowds along Main Street under mostly sunny skies.

Two juveniles caught shoplifting here Friday

Two area teenage girls were arrested Friday on charges of shoplifting at Kritzman's clothing store.

The two, whose names were withheld due to their ages, were apprehended Friday afternoon after attempting to hide an article of clothing in one of the girls' purses. Both juveniles are 16 years old.

According to Cass City Police Chief George Wilson's report, the girls took a bathing suit and a set of shorts with matching top into a dressing room to try them on. After they returned, one of the girls paid for the bathing suit and the other returned the shorts to the counter without the top.

A salesclerk stopped them as they were leaving and one of the girls admitted taking the top. It was subsequently found in her purse.

The girls were released and their parents notified, according to Wilson.

Two youths were arrested Wednesday, May 23, on charges stemming from the theft of a wallet and $10 belonging to a Cass City High School student.

Police arrested Clarence Freyaldenhover Jr., 18, Decker, and a 16-year-old companion from Cass City, on charges of stealing $10 from Eugene Safes at the high school.

According to police reports, Freyaldenhover allegedly entered a locker room at the high school and stole the wallet and money from Safes' locker while he was at the gym. Freyaldenhover allegedly used his companion as a watchman for him while the theft occurred.

In a voluntary statement made after the arrest, the youth said he had nothing to do with the larceny. He said he thought Freyaldenhover would not really steal the money and stated that he left the high school area after his companion entered the locker room.

Police indicated that after the theft, Freyaldenhover split the money with the youth, who stated he did not think the money was stolen.

Freyaldenhover was taken to the Tuscola county jail where he was booked and released on $500 bond.

Tuscola County Sheriff's officers reported a vandalism at the home of John Zyrowski, English Rd., Kingston Tuesday, May 22.

Deputies reported that someone threw two bricks into a swimming pool owned by the Zyrowskis, causing damage to the plastic liner. Two holes punctured the pool.

Officers have no suspects at this time.

Tuscola County records one fatal holiday traffic accident

Tuscola county recorded one traffic fatality over the long Memorial Day week end. According to Sheriff Hugh Marr, the toll was kept down this year for two basic reasons. He credited the increased patrols of special state police units with aiding in the reduction, along with the fact that inclement weather kept many motorists off the roads.

In the county's only fatality, Marilyn Louise Fritz, a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Hazen of Schewaing, was killed when the auto went out of control and collided with a car driven by Anna Cirulis of Saginaw.

According to the deputies' report, the Fritz auto passed another vehicle on M-25 near Bradford Road and, as it attempted to re-enter the lane, the car went out of control, skidded sideways and slammed into the Cirulis auto.

The injured were taken to Bay City Mercy Hospital.

The body of Mrs. Fritz was taken to Caro Community Hospital.

Four car-deer collisions were reported in the area last week. Connie Sue Connolly, 3880 Cemetery Rd., struck and killed a deer while traveling west on Decker Road about one-half mile west of Dodge Road around 9:30 p.m. Thursday. She told officers the animal jumped into the path of her car and she could not avoid hitting the animal. She was not injured.

Earlier that same day, two more car-deer accidents were reported.

At 5:20 a.m., a car driven by Ronald Rutkowski, 3396 Lamton Rd., struck and killed a deer while traveling south on Kingston Road one-half mile north of Mushroom Road. Rutkowski told Tuscola deputies the animal jumped into the path of the vehicle and he could not avoid a collision. Rutkowski was not injured.

At 7:45 a.m. the same day, Sylvester Kubiak, Gageton, escaped injury when the car he was driving east on M-25, about

Retiring teacher recalls 33 year career

After some 33 and one-half years of teaching in area schools, Mrs. Abina Sweeney will call it quits at the end of this school year. And she says she probably won't miss it at all, in spite of what her friends might say.

The daily struggle to keep the learning process going for two classes of kindergartners at Ubyly Public Schools will be a thing of the past for Mrs. Sweeney when she retires at the end of this school year.

Mrs. Sweeney's career began in rural Tuscola county schools where she taught the first eight grades in one-room school houses that required her to build a fire in the stove, carry in water and carry out general housekeeping chores in addition to teaching the first eight grades. She taught in Tuscola for seven years before moving to Huron county for five more years of the same before going on to Ubyly.

Those rural days were not easy.

"I made $75 per month," she remembered as she sat in the living room of her partially remodeled house, "and when the depression really hit hardest, I was cut to $50. I quit before my wages were withheld for lack of funds. Other teachers weren't so lucky."

She recalled that moving to the Ubyly school was "like heaven" compared to those tough days in the country.

Asked if she missed those one-room schools or if she ever wanted to go back to that type of education, Mrs. Sweeney said no.

"Teachers are made differently now," she laughed. "Besides, the facilities are so much better in a modern public school. We have things such as tape recorders, overhead projectors, movies and the like. In the rural school, I remember that if we even had posters, I had to make them myself."

Mrs. Sweeney, a native of Gageton, approves for the most part of modern trends in education. She explained that now her kindergartners are starting to read and work with simple mathematics concepts and seem to have no trouble at all understanding it. In the early days of her career, kindergarten involved more in the area of socializing the students to the classroom situation and teaching them to identify colors, tell time and instruction toward making them follow instructions properly.

"Youngsters know more about the outside world today," she said. "I think it's wonderful, too, because it will help them later on."

She also explained that children do not seem as shy now as they did in earlier days. She said the effect of television and radio is responsible to a large degree for this change.

"Children are much more knowledgeable these days," she added. "You really have to work to keep up with them."

Occasionally, Mrs. Sweeney said, you come on a shy child in the classroom and you must, as a teacher, praise him for an accomplishment a little more, perhaps, than others. This will help break down the barrier and allow the child to open up.

She related an incident concerning a shy child from her afternoon class this year who would return after school and stand outside the door with a small handful of flowers. "Dandelions or any other wild flower she could find" and wait patiently until Mrs. Sweeney appeared so that she might present them to her.

"There is a real affection involved in something like that," Mrs. Sweeney said.

Mrs. Sweeney said that the kindergarten teacher knows everything in the eyes of her students and that this carries with it a very large responsibility.

"The teacher is always right," she said. "To the little ones, you know everything."

Mrs. Sweeney said she is looking forward to retirement and has for a number of years. This year, she made the decision to call it quits. She is looking forward to spending more time at home on the 120 acre farm she and her husband, Angus, own on Huron Line Road.

"I won't miss traveling these back roads in the winter in order to get to work," she chuckled. "I won't miss it a bit."

She plans to work on her hobbies of knitting and crocheting even more, now that she will have the time. She has knitted a cape, an afghan and done a few ponchos.

Mrs. Sweeney said she also wants to do some traveling, but that staying home will be nice too. Additionally, she hopes to help complete a house remodeling project she and her husband embarked on some time ago.

8 property owners affected

Village fringe area residents face annexation or loss of water service

The Cass City Village Council went on record Tuesday evening to extend a six inch water line some 350 feet north of current village limits to serve all properties outside the present limits which wish to annex to Cass City. In addition, top priority will be given to the construction of a sanitary sewer for these properties in 1974 provided that seven of the eight properties involved agree to annex at the same time.

The action came at the council's regularly scheduled meeting.

Seven property owners in the affected area sat in on the council session that attempted to answer some of the questions raised by these owners in recent weeks.

The issue arose when a waterline serving the MacRae property along North Seeger Street began to fail recently. This line also served properties outside corporate limits as well as MacRae's, which is inside Cass City. Replacement of this line is now under way.

According to council policy, any properties wishing to tap into this line may do so if they annex to the village. If not, they may continue to use the old waterline until it fails.

A major concern voiced by citizens attending the meeting surrounded sanitary sewer service to these properties. As planned, sewer service to these lots would not be able to include servicing floor drains in basements.

According to Village President Lambert Althaver, construction of sewers to include basement drains would entail an expenditure of between $6,000 and $8,000. He indicated that such construction was not in current budget planning.

He said that the extension of the current sewer was the only economically feasible plan the village has at the present time.

Questions arose from several property owners regarding an existing sanitary sewer to the east of the affected area. It was suggested that the properties be tied into this line.

Althaver replied that such a move would involve the granting and arranging of easements in the Donahue property and would involve hundreds of feet more of sewer tile to do the job. He said the current plan was the most economical way.

In order to install a sewer to drain basements, much of Seeger Street would have to be torn up, Althaver said, at additional expense.

"It's entirely a matter of economics," Althaver said.

Most owners were not entirely satisfied with the floor drain problem. Many indicated that they had basement toilet facilities which could not be used with the sewer plan as proposed by the village.

Trustee Dr. Delbert Rawson commented that a sewer line should be deep enough to serve these basement toilets. While it might be more convenient to put both water and sewer in at the same time, he said that an adequate sewer was important.

"We may have to make a mess twice," he added, "but if the people want a deep sewer, then it might have to be done separately."

Althaver indicated that if the village could not stay with the higher sewer, then a line would have to be run across Seeger Street in front of the Proctor property and run up the east side of the street.

Responding to questions regarding rates for water and sewer, Althaver said that there would probably be no sewer charge made until such time as the properties had one. Current sewer charges are based on water usage and compensation in figuring such rates could be made until a sewer were installed.

Althaver also said that a $200 tap-in fee would be charged for a sewer hook-up, along with an additional $200 tap-in fee for water service. Asked if persons already hooked into the old line would be charged the tap-in fee for water, Althaver replied that, yes, the fee would be charged. Each time a tap-in is made to a residence, this fee is collected.

Fears of forced annexation were also expressed by some of the property owners.

Althaver explained that there is no realistic way the village can force property into the village against the owner's will. To do so would require a majority of property owners voting in the village, the township and in the area in question. One defeat would kill the move, he added.

Questions regarding possible curb and guttering along Seeger Street adjacent to the properties were also brought up.

It was explained that other streets in Cass City hold higher priority for curb and gutter presently but that someday, it is possible that the area would have to have it. Althaver added that Seeger Street is considered a major street and, with these properties in the village, the possibility of curb and gutter work along it sometime in the future might exist.

Each property owner was presented with a prepared petition declaring a desire to annex to the village. These petitions were taken by the owners to be returned as soon as possible with their signatures, if they wish to become a part of Cass City.

There were no indications Tuesday evening as to how many might return signed petitions.

In other business, Jack McDaniel, representing the Cass City Service Clubs, asked council for permission to erect six temporary mercury vapor lights at the tractor pulling track for the Western Round-Up event. McDaniel explained that the lights would be powered by portable generators and could be removed after the tractor pull event.

McDaniel also suggested that the lighting might be made permanent and that the track could be used for ice skating in winter months.

Trustee Rawson said that current regulations call for any permanent lighting to be wired underground and must be hooked into regular electrical supplies.

The tractor pull, according to McDaniel, is scheduled for evening hours in order to allow as many farmers as possible to participate in the event.

Council approved the request for temporary lighting and tabled any action regarding making the lighting permanent. In other business, a bid of $150 was received for the 1970 Plymouth automobile which the village is attempting to sell. The bid, from Phil Rockwell of Shover, was rejected.

Council had hoped for a bid in the neighborhood of $400-$600 for the vehicle which has approximately 70,000 miles.

Supt. Lou LaPonsie was named as superintendent over M-81 in Cass City. This is a formality required by the state in order for the village to receive state maintenance funds for the highway.

Plans were also discussed for the summer's recreation program. The parks and recreation committee reported that workers are still needed to work with the young persons involved in the activities and that it would prefer to hire able workers from Cass City itself.

Kelly Pine, Jim MacTavish and Jim Maharg will head up the program this summer.

Swimming pool survey under way

A voter survey questionnaire is currently being circulated by the Cass City Parks and Recreation Committee of Village Council in an effort to determine voter sentiment concerning the construction of a swimming pool.

The survey form is being sent to all citizens asking for comments and opinion concerning the pool along with a question section asking whether or not the voter would approve a millage assessment to finance its construction.

According to the accompanying letter, the village council has requested that the Cass City School Board consider the possibility of constructing an indoor pool at the high school as a year-round facility. The school board has agreed that they would like an indoor pool at the school if the taxpayers approve.

According to the letter, it is estimated that the pool attached to the high school could be constructed and operated for an additional three mill assessment on property within the Cass City School District.

Last year, Cass City voters approved a millage assessment to construct a new outdoor pool provided that the Federal government would finance 50 per cent of the cost. Since that vote, Federal funds have been cut back and the village will get no government grant.

According to Trustee James Ware, a member of the committee, around 550 responses have been returned so far and of those, 272 favor the increased millage while 283 do not. He urged that the questionnaire be returned as soon as possible.

He indicated that a total of 1,885 questionnaire forms were mailed out and that on the average, two voters per form are responding.

MRS. ABINA SWEENEY plans to do a lot more knitting after she retires from teaching kindergarten at Ubyly Community Schools this year. Mrs. Sweeney has taught in area schools for over 33 years.

"If It Fitz . . ."News from the auto industry

BY JIM FITZGERALD

The 1st resignation and 3rd wedding of swinging John DeLorean was the most exciting news to come out of the automotive industry since Henry Ford fired Bunkie Knudson.

Which should tell you something about the ho-hum products rolling out of Michigan these days. You need a degree in automotive engineering to distinguish a Cadillac from a Chevrolet at 30 paces. The lucksters say you should buy a so-and-so model so you can split diamonds in the back seat without smashing your thumb. Or so you can drive down the railroad tracks without spilling your glass of nitroglycerin all over your tie.

There's even a car you should buy so The Flying Wallendas can do their high-wire act on your hardtop while you speed down the freeway.

(In the warranties, it says if the car is recalled the owner is allowed to retain custody of the Wallendas and the diamond cutter.)

In view of such nonsense, it is not surprising that the newspapers are eager to do a complete job of in-depth reporting when the auto men finally do something significant — such as quit or get fired.

You probably remember the marvelous job done by the media when Bunkie Knudson got the heave-ho as Ford president. Reporters even interviewed the Knudson garbage man to see if there had been any fall-off in the quality of the Knudson trash since Bunkie's income had been cut from $10 million a week to only $8 million.

The most revealing moment came when Knudson had to admit he was so distraught he couldn't answer a reporter's penetrating question concerning his personal cars. Bunkie couldn't remember whether he had 7 Fords and 10 Lincolns or 10 Fords and 7 Lincolns. Thanks to compassionate and thorough reporting such as this, the world was able to weep along with Bunkie.

Now comes handsome John DeLorean's resignation as vice president of General Motors. Why would he do it? Everyone knew he would some day have become president and then chairman of the board and then secretary of defense. Why would a man walk out on such a glittering future?

It is a puzzle. You might as well ask why a man would give up being Ricky Nelson's brother-in-law? Or why would a man stop being the son-in-law of Tom Harmon, the football hero who became a war hero who became a sports announcer who became an actor of Kellogg's Product 19 on TV?

John DeLorean lost all these marvelous things at once recently when he was divorced from the gorgeous Kelly Harmon.

But he has also gained some things. At age 48, for instance, he just married a 22-year-old Hollywood starlet named Cristina Ferrare.

Some newsmen have suggested DeLorean may have been eased out of GM because his life style doesn't fit the image of the president of the world's largest corporation. I don't believe it. All the world loves a lover and this includes GM board members who could doubtless see that a man of DeLorean's talents could open grand new horizons for all of them (his old address books might become corporate property).

I saw Cristina Ferrare in a TV movie the other night. Wow. As far as I'm concerned, DeLorean quit GM simply so he could stay home every day. Ford never had a better idea.

Michigan MirrorDeath rate grows along with interest in cycling

Recent years has seen many Michigan residents turning away from the traditional four-wheeled form of transportation to the two wheeled form.

The state is not alone, either. Last year for the first time since the automobile became a factor in the American economy, more bicycles were sold in the United States than automobiles. The count was 13 million bicycles against 10 million automobiles.

In addition, motorcycles and motorbikes have enjoyed a booming popularity in recent years. Their numbers increased by 110 per cent from 1967 to 1971.

These developments have raised a new safety problem for the state. The main problem is that when something happens to a person on a cycle of any kind, the rider has very little protection from injury.

A person in an automobile is surrounded by steel and, so long as he isn't thrown out, has that protection against trees, fences, other cars or pavement. A cyclist involved in an accident has no such protection.

Thus nationally, for all types of vehicles, 8.2 per cent of the accidents result in death or injury. For cycles, 80 per cent of all accidents involve death or physical injury.

The growing problem has been noticed in the office of Secretary of State Richard Austin, who is in charge of registering all motor vehicles in the state.

Austin prompted the Michigan State Safety Commission to sponsor a Cycle Safety Conference in which 60 people from around the state took an in-depth look at the problem.

They concluded Michigan needs better education and training programs, new laws, and improved safety equipment to help the growing numbers of cycle riders.

The conference concluded there currently are three million bicycles in the state and that within three years their number should more than double to outnumber the six million registered motor vehicles.

It also decided the education problem is a two-way matter. Not enough cycle riders know how to operate their cycles safely and properly. At the same time, automobile drivers do not know how to share the highway with cycle people.

Cycle people at the conference recommended a statewide registration system for bicycles to be implemented by local governments and development of bicycle safety education programs for schools.

They also recommended the establishment of state standards for bicycle paths, something which may be helped by the fact a tiny portion of the state gas tax has been allocated for bicycle paths.

The motorcycle group recommends much more training for inexperienced motorcycle drivers. It is these people who are involved in 70 per cent of all motorcycle accidents. It also called for a statewide education program and inclusion of motorcycle safety education in driver education classes.

LEAVE IT ALONE

The Department of Natural Resources has some advice for anyone who sees a baby wild animal in the woods and thinks about taking the baby home as a pet. The advice is simple — Don't.

Wild animals, it says in an advisory, never make good pets. While that baby raccoon may be cute and submissive while young, it retains its wild instincts and never becomes as trustworthy as a dog or cat. It isn't really interested in pleasing its masters.

As it grows older, some of its more undesirable traits may begin to surface. When the owner decides to get rid of it, a second problem occurs.

Most zoos have more of this kind of animal than they can handle already. And after spending its growing years in a domestic setting, the animal may no longer be able to fend for itself in the wild.

That, the DNR says, is why the legislature made it illegal for a person to take wild animals from the wilderness. It says anybody who finds an abandoned or orphaned wild animal should notify the nearest conservation officer.

This "Dear John" note is to express my first surprise, later my appreciation at the honor and expression of friendship so ably and aptly, and publicly stated.

Your well written (and truthful) article covers not only myself as a local personage, a brief look at the problems of producing high quality printing for local business, and your obvious ambition to keep the Chronicle and its commercial printing department as a progressive business in touch with all sectors of the community.

Sincerely,

FROM THEEditor's Corner

It's Memorial Day morning and in an hour or so Cass City's traditional parade will be sweeping past the office and all of the peons that are working here on this vacation morning will pause to see the band go by. Marching in memory and tribute to the dead of our many wars.

I'm sorry but I just can't get excited about a parade for the dead. It's likely that I look on this the wrong way . . . that the parade isn't for the dead but to show the living that we care.

If that's it who can argue? But is it still that way or is it merely tradition . . . equating Memorial Day with a parade, a speech and pop for the kids?

It's still not my thing. I prefer to think about the guys I knew who died fighting in my own personal way and in times of nostalgia I've paid them my own private tribute time and again over the years.

It's funny but any school kid can tell you the date of the attack on Pearl Harbor that's hammered home in the history books.

But not one in a thousand can come up with the dates of V-E Day (that's victory in Europe Day) or V-J Day (that's victory in Japan Day) and to me these are the dates worth remembering.

The day that for a few short years Americans weren't parading around the earth killing and getting killed.

I lived through it and I had to think a minute before I could be sure which came first V-E or V-J Day.

I know it's V-E Day. Because I can remember some of my buddies shipping out when everyone knew the war in Japan was about over, too.

Things don't change much. When V-E Day came I was on a furlough in Chicago. When the announcement was flashed over the radio and extras hit the streets there was literally dancing in the streets.

And in case you middle-agers forgot there was vandalism and destruction, too.

Every store in Chicago's loop boarded windows to try and save them from the hysteria of young and old releasing pent up emotions after years of war, war, war.

They swam naked in the pools, they got gloriously drunk and they did most everything else that you read about from time to time about today's youth.

Then, like now, it was a minority that got carried away. It always is.

Still celebrating a peace is something worth celebrating for.

We haven't had many opportunities to celebrate the complete cessation of fighting since.

If we ever do, it's likely that there will never be a parade to commemorate it.

And that's too bad because a parade for peace would really turn me on.

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Along about this time I suspect that the bargainers for the Cass City School District and the Cass City Teachers' Association are getting down to serious negotiations about a contract for 1973-74. Every year the two teams hassle around for weeks then settle the thing in a couple of long deadline sessions.

I can't say for sure because this year I'm not a member of the "team". I observed the bargaining table heroics for three years at the school because the CCTA was issuing news releases and the school felt that a reporter could do it better.

As far as I know neither side had serious objections to the stories that came out of the negotiations.

Frankly I'm not unhappy to be forgotten this spring. It was a learning experience but after the first couple of times it was largely repetitious. When the contract is signed I'll know where to look for the significant features in addition to the amount of salary increases granted.

The old questions keep popping up: binding arbitration, personal business days, fringe payments, . . . and I'm sure many fruitless hours were spent wrestling with them again this year.

No-hitters in high school baseball are, well, if not a dime a dozen, at least two for a quarter. A fast ball pitcher racks them up easily. But a perfect game, the kind pitched Saturday by Jerry Toner, is another story. I can't recall ever reading about one. Certainly they are a rarity. Kid pitchers are usually wild, usually issue one or more walks. If not somewhere along the line someone makes an error Jerry and the team are to be congratulated.

Some days you try to do someone a good turn . . . and look what happens.

Mrs. Brunodine "Bunny" Keyser was talking to herself last week after she advertised a pair of parakeets free via the Chronicle liners.

Now parakeets are in demand. . . . Bunny could have sold them, no doubt. But she got them free and felt she should dispose of them the same way. Anyway she received 28 calls.

After awhile husband, Larry, got a little tired answering the phone so instead of saying "hello", started lifting the receiver and saying, "the birds are gone".

At least he did until the time he lifted the phone and announced, "the birds are gone". . . only to find later that it was his mother-in-law.

Farm Bureau services sales hit record

Farm Bureau Services sales of supplies and Marketing in March totaled $15 million to establish a new all-time, one-month record for the state-wide, farmer-owned cooperative, according to Donald R. Armstrong, executive vice-president.

Total sales for the first nine months of the cooperative's fiscal year have reached $102.2 million and appear headed for a new record, Armstrong also announced. The firm's fiscal year ends June 30.

The strong sales performance in March indicated that many Michigan farmers heeded advice to purchase fertilizer and seeds early. Fertilizers, particularly analyses containing phosphates, have been in short supply and will remain in a tight supply situation through the planting season. Most seeds have been available except for soybeans which already are on back-order in many locations.

Hardware and building supply sales have been exceptionally strong this year, although some construction materials are requiring six to eight week delivery delays.

Chemicals have been in good supply and are available for farm users.

Great Lakes shipping has started and grain and beans are moving from Farm Bureau Services terminals at Saginaw and Ottawa Lake. Rail facilities continue tight and many Michigan elevators still have accumulated stocks to move to market.

of a labor dispute at General Cable Corp., was reported to the Bad Axe State Police Post May 22, by Edward Kata, owner of the truck.

Scholarships awarded by Walbro-Rawson

Scholarships from two local sources were announced this week by authorities at Cass City High School.

The annual scholarship presented from the Rawson Foundation was awarded to Cheryl Kozan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kozan of Cass City.

CHERYL KOZAN

Cheryl plans to study elementary education and perhaps teach pre-schoolers after graduation.

Harvey proposes fuel-saving resolution

Congressman Jim Harvey has introduced a resolution in Congress urging motorists to save gasoline by adopting conservative driving practices.

Rep. Harvey's resolution suggests that the states reduce by 10 miles per hour all posted speed limits which are 50 mph or more. "Such a reduction would save the American motorist anywhere from 11 to 25 per cent in gasoline," commented Harvey.

"I am extremely concerned that a critical gasoline shortage will occur this summer when automobile travel peaks. Such a situation would have serious economic effects throughout the country," stated the Michigan Eighth District Representative.

According to Government statistics, if every user of gasoline were to decrease his weekly consumption by one gallon, any shortage would be averted. "I am hopeful," stated Rep. Harvey, "that the American public will voluntarily cooperate in taking steps to reduce gasoline consumption in order to avoid a serious situation."

Harvey also suggested that auto owners keep their car engines tuned and drive at a steady pace. "This will decrease our auto's gasoline consumption by an estimated 10 per cent. Motorists should also be aware that warming up an engine before driving, keeping tires properly inflated, using air conditioning sparingly will reduce gasoline consumption," commented the Eighth District Representative.

The creation of car pools and the planning of vacations closer to home will also help greatly," Harvey said. "I have been in contact with the Department of Agriculture, the Office of Emergency Preparedness, and the Office of Oil and Gas," stated Harvey. "All have assured me that everything will be done by them to avoid a critical shortage of gasoline to consumers."

The Harvey Resolution also asks the Federal, state and local governmental units to take the necessary actions to increase the public's awareness that using other modes of transportation will reduce gasoline consumption.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

Watergate and Cass City

By Jim Ketchum

I was talking with a friend of mine not long ago and, naturally, the subject of the Watergate investigation came up. He said that if I had an angle on the story applicable to the Cass City area, I should write something on it.

Well, now I have. I guess I had it all along and didn't realize it until this week. So, for the umpteenth time, a piece on Watergate.

The president offended me greatly this week when he alleged that the use of questionable investigation tactics could be justified when such tactics were used in the defense of national security. He further advocated secrecy as a way of governmental life for us all.

This offends my intelligence. Here we have the greatest "law-and-order" man ever to hold the office of President of the United States, telling us that a little illegality now and then is a good thing, when used in the greater interests of the nation.

What we are being told, in effect, is that a wrong can be counteracted with another wrong. It merely depends on who is doing the "wronging".

Secondly, he picked a speech before a group of former POW's to say that we should stop making heroes out of people who steal secrets and publish them in the newspapers. This brought an expected, almost choreographed, standing ovation from this "captive" audience.

How does this all apply to Cass City? Very directly.

It applies for these reasons. In the Watergate mess, the president's campaign organization, in effect, stole the people's right to vote for and to choose a president. They stole the right of Cass City, Elkland township and Tuscola county to have a voice in choosing the man who will lead this nation for another four years.

The reasoning for this act of treachery becomes almost as ludicrous as the act itself. Let's face it. The president had this one sewed up. He need not have gone past the banks of the polluted Potomac to campaign and would have won hands down. So why did his campaign organization try to steal the election?

Part of the reason lies in the character of the persons involved. Most are conservative, disgruntled with what they feel is an unfair press, a probing press that will not let their activities go unreported. They believe, quite earnestly, that the president has been given the short end of the shaft too many times by the press and this election was the perfect chance to prove the people supported their man. And, just to insure that the landslide would be a pervasive one, they pulled out all the stops to make it so.

One of those stops was the law. The organization men saw the line between right and wrong in politics to be a flexible one, one that had been crossed before on occasion and one that could be bent again, just to make certain the landslide would not shrink away at the last moment.

Hence, the bugging. What has become increasingly apparent in the last few weeks is that the operation designed to make the president look good has, in fact, made him look bad. Very bad. Talk of impeachment runs rampant all over. Certain Cass Cityans have spoken of it in less-than-unrealistic terms.

The operation, carried out by a team that would have rivaled the Three Stooges in vaudeville, failed drastically. The foul-ups, bungling and ineptness of the burglars, succeeded only in eroding confidence in politics, government and the presidency, and has cast aspersions on persons who, when all this dirty laundry is on the line, will probably be vindicated.

The operation, worst of all, backed President Nixon into a corner and, like a wildcat, when he is backed into a corner, he comes out swinging sharp claws.

This statement on the benefits of secrecy and damnation of those who attempt to get at the truth smacks of the gut politician tactics which have characterized this man from his days in Congress when he was chasing down elusive Communists.

The result of all the charges, counter-charges and recrimination has brought effective government to a standstill in Washington. It has effectively stifled Cass City's voice in the nation's capital and has halted action on any number of bills designed to benefit localities such as ours all over the nation.

Jefferson's admonition that that government is best which governs least does not hold much water anymore. This government is now governing hardly at all, and is bogged down in denying that certain of its members were involved with any number of acts that amount to and are called the Watergate affair.

What can we in Cass City do about it? We can make ourselves as informed as possible concerning the investigation. We can make it our business to demand to know what our leaders are doing for and to us. We can demand a more open administration, something the president promised us in his 1968 campaign.

Shrugging off the matter as "politics" won't make it go away. Ignorance of the facts is what helped make this affair into a scandal. We may get jolly well sick and tired of listening to reports of corruption in high places and wish that our soap operas, ballgames and movies were back on television instead of those long hearings.

But it is our business. We, according to the constitution of the United States, are the government. Our leaders are our servants, initiators of action in our behalf and our voice. It behooves us to know exactly what they are doing and to make ourselves heard.

Former President Lyndon Johnson once said that constituent mail is the most effective tool the electorate possesses in dealing with Congress. It also holds effectiveness with the executive branch.

So write to your congressman. Stay informed, even though it hurts.

Remember it also on the next election day.

Knowledge is power only when hatched to the right theory.

Conservation trip involves area 5th graders

When you hear the term conservation I am sure it means different things to each of you. The many 5th grade students in most Tuscola county schools had the opportunity to study and expand their knowledge of Conservation in the 4-H School Conservation project.

Also, there were two county schools who participated in a special field trip to check out and add to what they had learned in the classroom. This trip was conducted in the Deland Game Area along Deckerville Road. These schools were Cass City on the morning and Caro in the afternoon of May 23.

This program was sponsored by Bernard Jardot of the Cooperative Extension Service 141 office and in cooperation with Cyril Jacot, Alvin Smith and Bill Siems of the Tuscola County Soil Conservation District office; Tom Bower, Game Area Manager with the State Department of Natural Resources; and the administration and 5th grade teachers in the Caro and Cass City Schools. The tour included a stop at the pond of Warner Lane, a soil stop and a stop to identify wildlife and wildlife habitat.

In all, the students and teachers expressed their appreciation for the many individuals and organizations who in cooperation made this field trip possible. On behalf of all who had a part in the planning and conducting this educational trip, we were all happy to have the opportunity to share educational conservation information with the young people involved with the 4-H school conservation projects in our Tuscola county schools.

Wars and arguments will not solve the world's problems.

BRINGS PROBLEMS.

It's very easy to figure that self confidence is half the battle, but it's the other half that cuts down the percentage.

Researchers work for ecology standards

By Don Kebler

Two weeks ago I attended a conference dealing with the various studies being made to obtain data for ecology standards. No conclusive data or standards are available yet, but the agricultural people are working on these questions.

Phosphate and other nutrient retention levels of various soils and various rainfall levels. Which insecticides can be retained by soils, soil relationships to nitrate levels and formation and pilot community waste disposal research programs using irrigation systems to soil purify waters.

Many facts need to be established yet before we can know for sure any particular soils ability to absorb and digest human and animal wastes. Each soil is different to its capacity to handle these and industrial wastes.

Right now, there is no better water purification system known that can accomplish a better and cheaper means for waste water than our soils.

So behind the scenes these researchers are trying to develop the knowledge to help us not to make organic and chemical waste handling system mistakes.

inside can't be killed by insecticides. Malathion sprayed in the fall after leaf drop and again on the tree before the new leaves expand. After the leaves begin expanding and until they are 25 to 50 per cent of their full growth is the time to apply Morestan. Young trees are affected more by this gall than older ones, and no tree has been known to die from this insect.

Our office, Michigan State University, Vo-Ag Instructors and cooperating agri-businessmen are initiating a joint Bean Booster Campaign. Cooperating bean producers will be asked to keep records on the cultural practices they follow in producing their navy and other dried beans. This data plus a harvest yield from at least a ten acre plot will be analyzed and correlated to determine those grower practices that produce the best yields. This Bean Booster Campaign will be promoted in all our bean producing counties. The greater number of producer cooperators we have the better the source of data we will have and the sooner we can release the results to the people. Bean producers wishing to participate should contact the County Extension Office.

There's a new emergency safety standard for using certain pesticides by apple, peach and grape growers. Basically, applicators of these pesticides are required to be absolutely sure no one is in the area of application when applying the chemicals or allowed to enter the area for a prescribed number of days after application. Non-compliance can leave the grower vulnerable to fines up to $1,000. Here is a case where improper use of certain chemicals has required stiffer control - what will be next?

I have had several calls regarding the warty-like, red-dish bumps on soft maple leaves. These are bladder galls caused by a small mite. Once the gall appears the little grub

And now, tomorrow

The cap . . . the diploma . . . symbols of achievement. They mark the end of one way of life and imply the beginning of another.

But ten years from now, where will this diploma be and what will it mean? Will it be packed away in an attic trunk . . . framed on the wall of a room or office? Will it have been thrown out by accident or cast into a seldom-noticed corner? And what of the hopes and dreams that go with it? What will have happened to them?

Who knows? There is no set answer to life, no single solution to all its problems. Nor can anyone live life alone. Whether your diploma is still crisp or has gotten dusty—whether your dreams are still bright or have become slightly tarnished—forget about personal ambition as the sole answer to everything. Think of your own immortal soul. Go to church, and talk to God about it, through prayer.

BETTER HEALTH

Facts about mental health

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

I have been informed by the National Association for Mental Health, Inc., that May is Mental Health Month, and I have here a fine pamphlet, "Facts About Mental Illness" that can be of interest to the many persons in our country who are struggling with mental problems, or who have a loved one who is depressed, schizophrenic, or simply not quite sane enough to live happily and comfortably with other people.

According to the association, one in 10 people in the United States have some form of mental illness, ranging from mild to severe, that would benefit from professional help. This means that 21 million families are affected by mental illness from someone in their immediate group.

Actually, during the years at the Mayo Clinic, I found that perhaps a third of the patients who came to me complaining of abdominal pain or other abdominal symptoms were primarily suffering from psychic troubles. Oftentimes, they were much distressed by some life-problem, but in other cases, they were suffering from a borderline schizophrenia, or a form of epilepsy which gave them not convulsions, but abdominal pain and irritability, depressions or a little stroke.

Interestingly, children suffer from mental illness about as often as do adults. Three per cent have severe emotional problems, while another eight per cent have less severe troubles, but are still unable to function normally.

In recent years, there has been a trend away from locking up people with mental problems in state and county hospitals; and the number of people discharged from this type of hospital has more than tripled since 1950.

Today, the newest concept in mental health care is that of emptying out community mental health centers.

Recently, I read a report of a number of sane persons who, unknown to the staff and doctors, checked themselves into a mental hospital. When they received the treatment that the patients were receiving, they soon felt that their own sanity was beginning to lessen. This is a strong argument for the new type of mental health outpatient clinic, where persons are not isolated from the world where they hopefully will someday be able to live comfortably.

In 1971, 2.3 million people were receiving treatment in outpatient facilities, while it is estimated that some 120,000 were treated by private physicians. One-third of the hospital beds for mental patients are in psychiatric hospitals, residential treatment centers for children, and psychiatric units in general hospitals. An advantage of using a psychiatric unit in a general hospital is that the community does not learn that the patient had a mental trouble. Hopeful is the fact that the number of apparent cures has increased from 394,600 in 1970, to 418,750 in 1971. In 1970 and 1971, discharges outnumbered admissions.

In 1971, a study by the American Psychiatric Association showed that there were almost 24,000 psychiatrists in the United States, of which 16,267 were in active practice. Ten per cent of the actively practicing psychiatrists were child psychiatrists.

There are, nationally, some 11 psychiatrists for every 100,000 people, but unfortunately, these psychiatrists are unevenly distributed throughout the country, with most of them in large cities, and more than half of them in five states: New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Illinois, and California.

Besides psychiatrists, there are a number of other workers in the mental health field: these include psychologists, social workers, nurses, and mental health technicians. The majority of psychologists are clinical psychologists and counseling and school psychologists. There are also psychiatric social workers and psychiatric nurses.

Today, according to the National Association for Mental Health, the average cost of a private psychiatric session (which usually lasts 50 minutes) is $33. Naturally, some psychiatrists charge more than this. Group therapy sessions generally last longer and are less expensive.

Altogether, the cost of mental illness to the country - according to a 1968 estimate - was $21 billion, which includes not only the cost of direct services paid by individuals, government and private agencies, but also research and vocational rehabilitation programs and the loss of potential earnings of people who cannot work or must be absent from work because of being mentally ill.

Clearly, mental health is an important issue in the United States, and much still has to be done. I hope that researchers will continue to find out what changes in a person's body chemistry can do to his state of mind. Already, much is being learned regarding the unusual body chemistry of schizophrenics and depressed persons, and hopefully, in time, we can find ways of correcting faulty body chemistry.

The National Association for Mental Health has a number of publications available on the subject of mental illness. Anyone interested can write to the association at 1809 North Kent Street, Arlington, Va. 22209.

Nervousness is the source of many so-called physical complaints. Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

I see where the Russians now has invented somepun called standing around the corner and telling jokes. This come to light in a report about juvenile delinquency in Russia. It seems the young folks over there are laying out of school to stand around and talk, and some have took to drinking vodka on the school ground.

Ain't it a wonder, Mister Editor, what them Russians come up with. This piece I saw quoted the interior minister, a Mr. Shumilin, as allowing the trouble with the younguns was that their parents was to busy to spend time with em. This official went on to say the breakdown of youth could be traced to "mistakes in education." But this feller was quick to point out that juvenile delinquency in his country is not a natural result of the social system, like it is in some places he could mention.

There's a chanet that Mr. Shumilin was talking about us agin. I reckon they claim to have invented their own brand of bored younguns, but its the same old tune. We was there first with the most, and they're jest trying to catch up. I won't say I'm happy they have invented juvenile delinquency, but I will say that misery allus did love company.

I brung up this report from Russia during the session at the country store Saturday night, and the fellers was general agreed that younguns is the same all over. Bug Hookum said he heard the preacher say the other Sunday that back in Old Testament days ma and pa was jest as worried about the wild ways of the younguns as they are today. Its that there seems to be so much more for young folks to git into today, was Bug's words.

General speaking, Mister Editor, country preachers git right down to the rock bottom of problems. The few times I been in a city church I couldn't figger half the time who the good parson was aiming at. It ain't no mistaking the target when a country preacher takes his text. The feller in the city pulpit may bag a few birds, but you can rest assured the country parson has his eye on the whole covey. If we could git some of his practical words into action, we wouldn't have to blame our troubles on the Russians and vice verser.

For instant, our preacher said the other Sunday we was putting on a little drive to git up money to put air conditioning in his study afore real hot weath-

Freiburger's grocery holds memories of bygone era

By Jim Ketchum

They used to call it Laing. It consisted of the combination general merchandise store and post office, along with very little else. The post office is gone, but the little store still stands at the often-lonely corner of Decker-ville Road and M-19.

Originally known as "Peter Freiburger, General Merchandise," the store is now simply called "Freiburger's Grocery" and still sells a varied assortment of items.

According to Mrs. Zella Freiburger, who, along with her husband, Theodore, runs the country store, business is still "fair", but not like it was in the days when Freiburger's father, Peter, opened for business in 1927.

"In those days, most of the people around here still drove horses and buggies and they did their weekly shopping here," Mrs. Freiburger said. "Now most of the business is evenings and week ends. People come here when they run out of something or when the big stores are closed."

The little store is open seven days a week and proves handy for anyone in the neighborhood and could save a trip to the nearest small towns, Decker-ville and Snover.

The store still bears signs of the past. Individual light bulbs hang from wires suspended from fixtures in an ornately designed ceiling made of metal. Above the counter, a string holder hangs suspended from a hook in the ceiling, ready to furnish cord to tie packages of meat or other produce from the assorted bins, shelves and containers in the market.

Behind the counters, bins once used to hold bulk rice, flour and sugar still contain these items—except now the produce is stored in bags.

A covered opening in the chimney indicates the former presence of a wood stove, a popular gathering place in bygone days where farmers, as well as passers-by could sit and talk by a warm fire.

An old twist-type switch near the door still functions as it did nearly 50 years ago, turning on and off lights in front of the store.

Freiburger's Grocery still sells a wide variety of goods, from breakfast cereal to formaldehyde. On one series of shelves on the east side of the store, a customer can choose from canned meats, vegetables, aspirin, clothesline, toothpaste, milk of magnesia, and insect spray, in addition to several bottles of formaldehyde.

Along with assorted meats, most kinds of refreshments and fresh fruits, the store sells transistor radios, "penny candy", soap, newspapers and gasoline from two pumps in front of the station.

"We've pumped gasoline here from the beginning," Mrs. Freiburger said, pointing to two awards for long service dating past 40 years.

Mrs. Freiburger explained that she and her husband have been running the store since 1967. His father, Peter, died about 12 years ago, and his mother lives next to the store, now retired.

In the early days, the store also sold clothing, shoes, and general merchandise needed by most farmers. Additionally, the post office run at the store made it more convenient for rural dwellers to receive and send mail.

Mrs. Freiburger explained that suppliers don't deliver groceries and supplies to the little store anymore because orders from the store are no longer large enough to warrant a stop. She said she must travel to Saginaw once a month to stock up on needs for the business. Beer and wine deliveries are made regularly.

She would not speculate how much longer the store can continue to operate but that, for the time being, the Freiburgers plan to stay in business. She added that they have plans to panel the room and probably to cover the old metal ceiling. The outside of the building was recently resided.

"That old ceiling is nice, but it's hard to keep clean," she said, pointing to an errant cobweb in a far corner. "Last time we painted it, we had to spray the thing."

Mrs. Freiburger smiled as she commented that the store also serves as a haven for persons who can't find their way.

"Quite often someone will come in and say, 'I'm lost. Where am I anyway?'" she said.

She said she could not recall any specific events at the store that stand out particularly, that things run pretty much the same most of the time.

"I enjoy meeting the people that come in and talking with them," she commented. She added that it does take a lot of time, however, and this makes it more difficult to manage a home and raise two children, one of which is not yet in school.

The Freiburgers plan to remodel the inside of the store and keep it operating as an oasis of sorts as long as they can. She said however that rising costs make it more difficult each year to maintain the store.

So what used to be called Laing and is now Freiburger's Grocery will be around awhile longer, dispensing meat, cheese, rope, epsom salts, shoe polish, sunglasses, tobacco, INSIDE FREIBURGER'S Grocery you can find almost anything under the sun. The store has been a family-owned business near Decker for over 40 years.

OUTSIDE Freiburger's, new aluminum siding updates facade of the country store.

Children in narrow escape from fire

Two children escaped serious injury in Sandusky Friday evening when they were rescued from their burning bedroom by their father.

Sandusky firemen were summoned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Robinson after fire was discovered in an upstairs bedroom around 10 p.m.

Robinson, who is a coach and physical education instructor at Sandusky High School and a former Cass Cityan, said he smelled smoke and found the fire in a bed where one of his two daughters was sleeping.

He told firemen he pulled her from the bed unharmed and managed to get the two girls out of the house before the fire spread.

Firemen speculated that the blaze broke out from a lamp which had fallen over onto the bed.

According to Fire Chief Tony Doerr, the fire caused extensive damage to two rooms on the top floor of the two-story frame home and the rest of the home sustained extensive smoke and water damage.

Firemen estimated the loss at $5,000.

The children, Laura and LuAnn, will stay with relatives until the damage can be repaired.

The Robinsons lost all their clothing and upstairs furniture in the blaze.

Chronicle asks citizens: What's your pet peeve?

Cass Cityans are a generally happy lot with few pet peeves, if an informal and unscientific poll conducted by the Chronicle holds any credence.

This week, the Chronicle asked persons on the street what their pet peeves were. Of 19 people interviewed, 10 said they had no pet peeves at all.

H. P. LANGLOIS

JUDY MATHEWS

VIOLA JOHNSON

Of those expressing an opinion, pet peeves ranged from national politics to personal affairs.

H. P. Langlois of Gagetown said his pet peeve at the moment was "too much Watergate." He indicated that it would help the situation if less publicity were placed on the bugging incident.

Mrs. Elizabeth Rand, also of Gagetown, said her pet peeve involves trash.

"I hate it when people throw litter from cars," she said.

Mrs. Kathy Martin, Cass City, said people being late for an appointment was her pet peeve.

Old age and the weather are the two peeves that bother Clark Helwig, 4333 Ale St., more than anything else. "Other than that, I guess I'm pretty happy," he said.

Mrs. Judy Mathews of Caro stated her pet peeve simply. "I don't like gossip," she said. "It only hurts people, and I don't like it."

Mrs. Viola Johnson, also of Caro, echoed these sentiments and added a pet peeve of her own.

"I don't like two-faced people," she said. "I don't like the kind who'll say hello, now are you to your face and then turn around and talk about you behind your back."

Mrs. Arlene Szarapski of rural Cass City dislikes people who turn unwanted pets loose in the country.

"It seems like they always turn up at our place," she said. Animals also involve a pet peeve of Mrs. Chuck Erla of Pine St.

"I don't like all the stray dogs in our neighborhood," she said.

Mrs. Vera Nicol summed up her pet peeve in one word.

"Democrats!," she said.

One woman who wished to remain anonymous indicated that she had no pet peeves, other than the fact that she was pregnant.

Mild weather greets Memorial Day throngs

Mild temperatures and partly cloudy skies greeted spectators and marchers alike for the traditional Memorial Day program in Cass City.

The festivities began at 10:00 a.m. with a parade stretching along Main Street toward the east village limits and Elkland township cemetery.

The parade featured the Cass City High School Marching Band, colorfully decorated bicycles, horsemen and the fire trucks from the Elkland Township Fire Department.

The event is sponsored annually by the village and Elkland township. Parade co-chairmen Richard Hampshire and James Ware were in charge of organizing the various entries this year.

Services at Elkland cemetery were organized by Elkland officials.

The event is sponsored annually by the village. Parade co-chairmen Richard Hampshire and James Ware were in charge of organizing the various entries this year, along with Edwin Karr, Elkland supervisor.

The parade also featured Boy Scout and Girl Scout troops from the area, along with veterans from the nation's wars.

The parade concluded at Elkland cemetery where a large crowd gathered for services.

The Reverend James Kidney, pastor of Cass City Missionary Church, spoke at the cemetery. Following his address, veterans fired the traditional three-volley salute in honor of those who died in action. Taps were then sounded, signaling an end to the program.

Bell to expand exchange in Gagetown

Michigan Bell Telephone Co. will begin a three-year program of expansion in the Gagetown area which will ultimately cost $184,000.

The program is designed to reduce eight party lines to four or less by 1975 and will require complete rebuilding of most of the cable and wire facilities now serving the Gagetown exchange.

Local Manager Thomas D. O'Reilly said that a contract has been let for a 244 square foot addition to the front of the Gagetown Central Office building, located at 4720 State St.

This addition will house expanded long distance facilities and equipment for 100 new local lines that will be installed in 1974.

Sentence Ross to probation, fines

One sentencing and one arraignment were handed down Tuesday in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

Circuit Judge James P. Churchill sentenced Douglas Ross, Easton, to three years probation and fines and costs totaling $400, after he pleaded guilty to breaking and entering a house in Watertown township in October of 1972.

He was also sentenced to begin serving a jail term of 60 days on June 12. Judge Churchill allowed this date due to an illness in Ross's family.

In another case, Robert Pratt, Easton, was arraigned before Judge Churchill on a charge of attempting to defraud Mayville State Bank. He is charged with attempting to sell a trailer on which the bank held a mortgage without making proper arrangements with the bank.

Pratt stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered in his behalf. Bail was continued at $200 and a pre-trial examination was set for June 11.

In another case, Clifford

Bentley, Clio, will face trial in Circuit Court Aug. 14 in connection with a breaking and entering of a house in Arhela township last year.

Bentley is charged with the break in of the house belonging to Ray Torpy.

No protection

If Michigan housewives want protection against finding parts of snouts, eyes, ears, stomachs, glands and esophagus in their hot dogs, sausage and lunch meats, they are going to have to provide it themselves, according to State Senator Alvin DeGroot.

DeGroot, in a statement released last week, said it is obvious that the U. S. Supreme Court and the Department of Agriculture will not help by permitting Michigan to legally outlaw use of such questionable substances in meat.

"This is just another example of the dangers of federal meddling into the affairs of the states," he said.

Cass City man sentenced on marijuana charge

A Cass City man and a companion from Port Austin were sentenced to jail terms and fines Wednesday, May 23, on charges of possessing marijuana.

Larry James Erard, 20, Cass City and Bruce P. Gibb, 22, Port Austin, each pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana Wednesday before District Judge John T. Schubel at Bad Axe.

Huron County Sheriff's Deputies arrested the pair at 1:05 a.m. the same day at the intersection of Grassmere Road and M-142. Gibb, who was driving, failed to stop for a sign at the crossroads and was apprehended by deputies.

As they approached the car, the officers said they detected the odor of burning marijuana and, after investigation, took the pair to the Huron County Jail where they were booked.

Judge Schubel sentenced each to pay $250 in fines, $54 in costs and ordered them to serve 60 days in jail. An additional 30 days will have to be served if the fines and costs are not paid.

Elected ROTC Queen

Becky Parrott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Parrott, Rt. 3, Cass City, was chosen queen of ROTC for 1973 during ceremonies held at the annual ROTC Military Ball May 12, at Lake Superior State College, Sault Ste. Marie.

She was among seven candidates for the crown and was chosen by the cadets of the corps to represent them at various events during the coming school year.

Becky is a sophomore majoring in nursing at LSSC.

Her escort and fiancé was also honored at the ball. Cadet Major Tom Kolb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kolb, Rt. 3, Cass City, was selected as outstanding Senior Cadet of the corps. Kolb, a senior majoring in biology, had held the position of corps commander for two terms. He was then promoted to Special Projects Officer to organize the military ball and other social events for the corps.

two miles southwest of Caseville, struck and killed a deer.

Kubiak told Huron deputies two deer crossed the road in front of his car. He said he had no chance of avoiding a collision with one of the animals.

Tuesday, May 22, David Lee Martin of Cass City, escaped injury around 6:15 p.m. when the car he was driving struck and killed a deer on Sebawaing Road about seven miles east of Owendale.

Martin told state police he was headed east when the deer ran out from the north side of the road.

Martin's mother, Elaine, a passenger in the car, also escaped injury.

Cass City Police reported a minor accident at the intersection of Oak and Church Streets Wednesday.

Police reported a car driven by Marie Pena, Doerr Rd., collided with a parked car owned by Judy O'Harris, 6555 Church St. According to the report, Ms. Pena said that a gallon of milk she had on the front seat of the car fell on the floor and, as she went to retrieve it, her foot hit the gas pedal and the car struck the O'Harris vehicle.

Thursday, James R. Warack, Gagetown, sustained bruises and abrasions, but escaped serious injury when the car he was driving south on Owendale Road, about two miles south of Owendale, went out of control and rolled over twice, coming to rest on its top in a field.

State police investigating the accident said Warack's car ran off the east side of the road, then came back onto the road, crossed the west side and ran into a field, turning over twice. His 1972 model auto was demolished.

Warack sought his own medical attention and was not hospitalized.

The accident occurred around 11:00 p.m.

Set July 9 for arguments in hospital lawsuit

Oral arguments will be held July 9, in a case involving a lawsuit against Hills and Dales Hospital by a former employee.

In her suit, Madeline Sontag, Gagetown, charges the hospital with firing her from her position as purchasing agent for the facility after she returned from a seminar in Chicago in the fall of 1971.

The suit states that the hospital gave her verbal assurances that her job was secure. She charges that her dismissal was uncalled for. Mrs. Sontag worked at the hospital for a little over two years.

The suit asks $250,000 in damages. It names hospital administrator H. Byron Landholt and Mrs. Florence Karr, a member of the staff at the facility, as co-defendants.

Impressive victory earns Cass City 'team to beat' tag in district Saturday

Cass City served notice to Thumb area schools that they will be the team to beat in the district play-offs Saturday at Marlette as they rolled past Uby, 6-0. Saturday behind the perfect pitching of Jerry Toner. Saturday, Toner had it all. His fast ball and curve kept whipping in at the knees all day as the Bearcats kept missing or hitting the ball into the ground for routine outs at first.

The closest that the visitors to Cass City Recreational Park came to getting a hit was on a good bunt down the third base line that went foul at the last moment and was snatched by Scott Hartel, third sacker, in foul territory.

Toner whiffed seven of the 21 hitters and the outfielders took a vacation during the game.

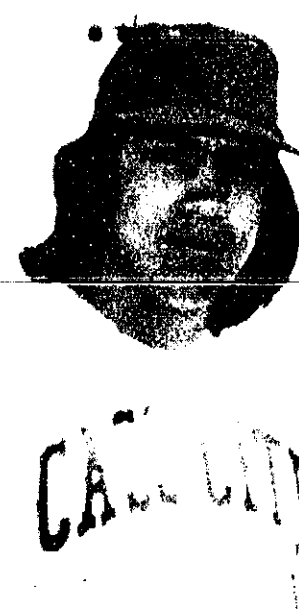

Meanwhile, the Hawks donned their hitting togs for the day. Led by Pete Frederick with a single and a triple, Cass City scored all the runs it needed in the first when a single counter was chalked up.

The Hawks added another in the second inning and then iced the game with three more in the third. A single run in the fifth concluded the scoring.

Toner is now 8-0 for the season and was hit hard in only one game... against Frankenmuth... but his teammates slugged their way to victory in that outing. In the only loss Cass City registered during its 10-1 season to date, Toner was not with the team.

The Hawks face North Branch at 1 p.m. Saturday in the opening round of the district tournament at Deckerville. If they win they will face the winner of the Marlette-Sandusky game which is slated Saturday at 10 a.m. The Hawks have defeated both of these schools.

FRED HURLBURT
Coach of year

Erla's open season with 2 victories

Greying balding Al Bosch, veteran hurler for Erla's, proved again that time has done little to diminish the effectiveness of his fast ball that has mowed down opposing hitters for years and years and shows no signs of stopping.

Bosch was the key figure in the first game of the year in the Thumb Traveling League as the Foodmen opened with a 3-1 decision over Akron Merchants Monday, May 21.

Bosch struck out nine and allowed just two hits. One of them was a triple by Joe Kata that led to the lone Akron run.

Meanwhile, Erla's counted a run in the second on a single by C. McGill and a hit by Bob Holcomb. The winners wrapped it up in the sixth on hits by Walt Hempton and Rollie Nicholas and a three-base knock by Larry Jamieson.

DEFEAT LOG CABIN

Erla's made it two in a row Thursday with a 4-0 win over Log Cabin behind the slants of D. McGill. McGill had six hits but was tough in the clutch as he recorded the shutout.

The Foodmen wrapped it up in the third inning as D. McGill singled, LaRoche doubled, Charlie McGill walked and Hempton banged out a clutch single. The three runs were more than enough, but Erla's added an insurance marker in the sixth on a hit by Hempton and a single by Holcomb.

Earl Hurd, 82,

dies Sunday

Earl J. Hurd, 82, Gagetown, died Sunday, May 27, at Hills and Dales Hospital following a short illness.

Mr. Hurd was a lifelong resident of Gagetown and was born on July 7, 1890, the son of the late Levi and Matilda Hurd. He married the former Blanche Novess in Pontiac in 1915.

Mr. Hurd was a retired farmer and a member of Gagetown United Methodist Church and Acme lodge No. 446, F & AM.

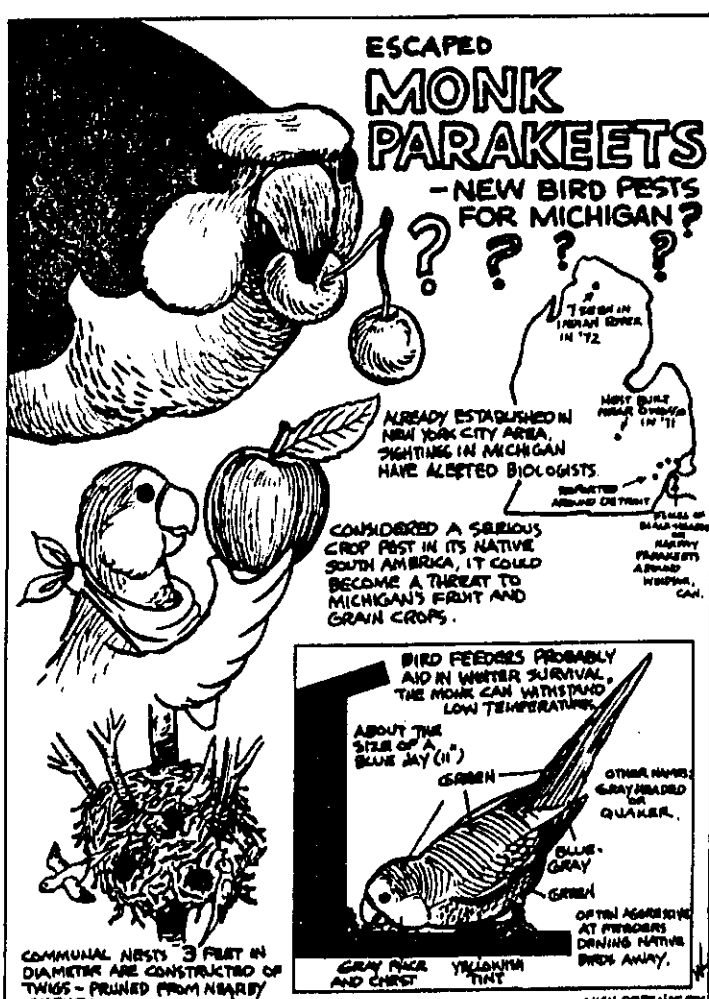

Surviving are his widow, Blanche; one son, Leslie of Gagetown; two brothers, Albert of Alma and Steven of Berkley; one sister, Mrs. Violet Potter of Taylor; three grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Wednesday, May 30, from the United Methodist Church in Gagetown with the Rev. Paul Amstutz officiating. Burial was in Elmwood cemetery.

PARTIAL RECOVERY

The only man who can retire comfortably is the one who can sell his experiences for half what they cost him.

People who ask for criticism are usually seeking praise.

In an effort to size up how many monk parakeets may be on the loose in Michigan... and where... the Department of Natural Resources is seeking positive sighting reports on these birds. Evening grosbeaks are often mistaken for monk parakeets, being about the same size and having a prominent beak. However, their big beak protrudes noticeably. The monk parakeet's beak is stubby, making the bird look "pug-nosed." A good look at the panel in this illustration will give you a sharper eye for identifying monk parakeets. The DNR is cooperating with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in this survey effort to see what may need to be done to keep monk parakeets from becoming new bird pests in Michigan. The first authentic record of these birds came from the Owosso area in 1971. DNR wildlife officials suspect these escaped pets may be free elsewhere in Michigan. To date, there is no indication that any monk parakeets have successfully reared young on the state's scene.

Hawks dominate area C-B All-star team

Prior to Saturday's game the Hawks played a scrimmage game Thursday, defeated Port Austin, 7-6.

The game was meaningless except that it featured the pitching of Don Galbraith. Galbraith pitched five strong innings before weakening in the sixth and his portside slants will be needed if Cass City plays two games this Saturday.

Against Port Austin every Hawk except Toner and Chuck Bliss collected a hit with Hartel and Galbraith showing the way. Coach Fred Hurlburt singled out Dan Melendorf for several fine defensive plays in the outfield.

Players from Cass City's championship baseball team dominated the all-district team as named by the coaches of the schools in the district which includes all of Sanilac, Tuscola and Huron counties.

Named to the B-C squad were Gene Salas, Kip Hopper and Jerry Toner. Salas and Hopper are Seniors while Toner is a Sophomore.

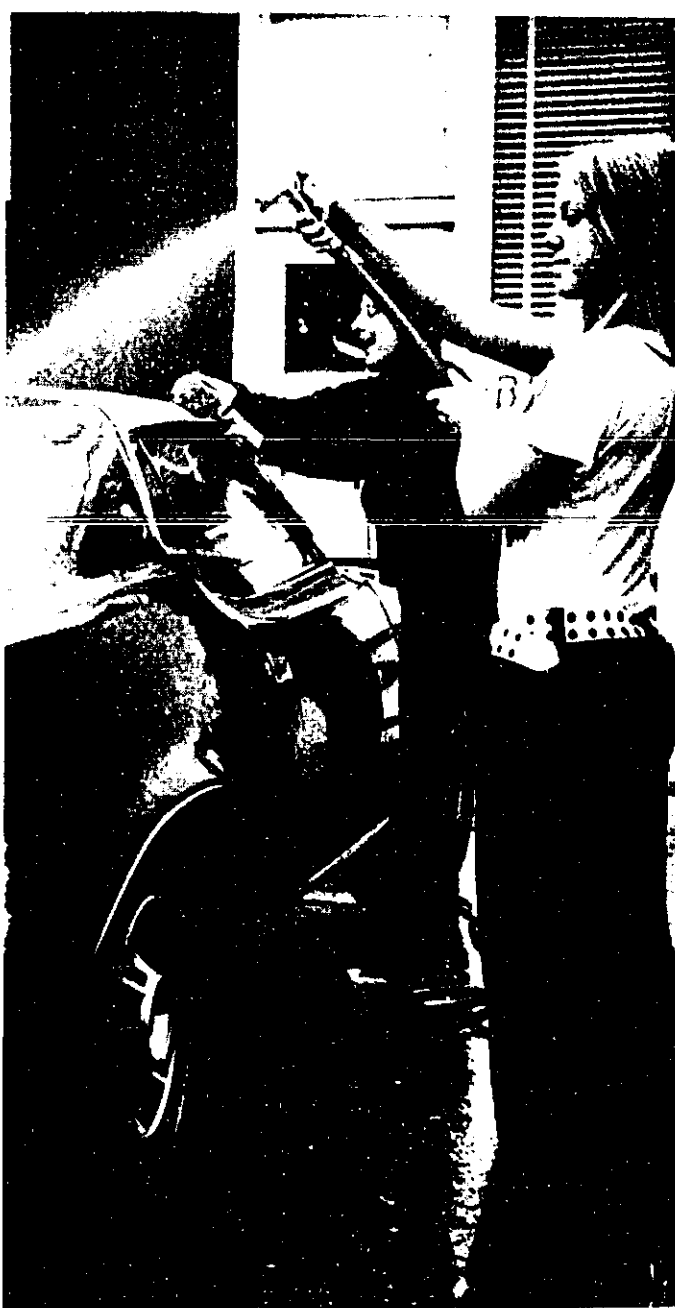

Rounding out the team of outstanding players are Tony Fisher, Millington; Randy Hecht, Vassar; Brian Yonke, USA; Dan Boylan, Caro; Randy Rutkowski, Uby; Bob Bishop, Vassar; and Bill Barteld, Mayville.

Besides placing three on the dream team, Cass City also walked off with coach of the year honors for class C schools. Jim Tate of Vassar was named all-star coach for class B schools. In class D, one area player, Ed Kolcz of Kingston was named. Others are: Mark Hatch, Port Austin; Bob Nowatny, Carsonville; Steve Schmidt, Port Austin; Jim Winkley, Carsonville; Jim Leckner, Carsonville; Dave Craig, Akron-Fairgrove; Charlie Green, North Huron Kinde; Ed Kolcz, Kingston; Dave Miller, Kinde North Huron; Bob Dunham, Akron-Fairgrove; and Dave Gierheart, Port Austin.

Dave Gierheart of Port Austin was named class D coach of the year.
