Police report 3 incidents

Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson reports a relatively quiet week with only three minor incidents reported.

4 car-deer crashes reported in area

Four car-deer collisions were reported in the area last week.

Wednesday, a car driven by Edward Nemeth, 6651 Rossman, Kingston, struck and killed a deer on M-46 near Vassar Road.

Tuscola County Sheriff's Deputies said Nemeth was traveling west on M-46 when the deer ran from the south side of the road into the path of his car. Nemeth was not injured. The accident occurred around 9:20 p.m.

About half an hour later, another deer was struck and killed by an auto, this time on Colwood Road, one-half mile north of Elmwood Road.

A car driven by Benny Remnitz, Detroit, killed the animal shortly before 10:00 p.m. He told deputies the deer ran out from the east side of the road and into the path of his northbound car.

Remnitz was not injured.

Early Friday morning, a car driven by William Ricketts, 6065 Wilcox, Deford, struck and killed a deer while traveling east on Bevens Road about one-half mile east of Burman Road. Ricketts told deputies the deer jumped from the north side of the road and into the path of his car.

Ricketts was not seriously injured in the mishap that occurred around 7:00 a.m.

Two persons escaped serious injury Saturday evening on M-46 near Froede Road, when a herd of deer ran into the paths of their cars.

Joyce Schell, Sandusky, was traveling east on M-46 when she pulled out and passed a car driven by Douglas Nelson, also of Sandusky. Before she could return to her proper lane, a herd of deer ran onto the road from the south.

The Nelson auto struck one of the deer and veered off the path of the Schell car, forcing her off the road.

Neither driver was seriously injured. The accident happened around 9:00 p.m.

A Cass City man and his companion from Bad Axe were sent to Huron Memorial Hospital, Bad Axe, Monday afternoon, the result of injuries suffered in a freak motorcycle accident.

The accident occurred two miles east of Elton as Ervin Rummage, 19, Cass City, and William Eisinger, 19, Bad Axe, traveled west on M-42.

Huron county sheriff deputies said both men suffered cuts and bruises after their handlebars locked as they changed speed while a motorist passed them.

Both cycles were extensively damaged.

Driver swerves, kills dog deliberately

Some people really have to go out of their way to be mean. That's what Theron Middaugh, 3655 Phillips Rd., thinks, after what happened Sunday afternoon.

Middaugh told Tuscola County Sheriff's Deputies that around 5:00 p.m., three persons in a pickup truck towing another car and traveling north on Phillips Road, swerved into the left lane, struck and killed Middaugh's one-year-old French poodle valued at $100.

Middaugh said whoever struck the dog did not have much self-respect or respect for others.

Asked if he would replace the animal, Middaugh said, "I will if I can find one like it, but it's hard to replace something that's practically become part of the family."

Deputies have no clues and the case remains open.

Nothing else in the garage was reported missing.

Sunday, a rented floor scrubber was reported stolen from

Spring 'monsoons' hault area farmers

The weatherman has not been kind to Thumb farmers this spring and indications are that conditions will not improve in the near future.

While some areas of Tuscola county are being planted near normal times, the eastern part, including the Cass City region, finds itself about two weeks behind schedule, according to County Extension Director William Bortel.

Bortel characterized conditions in some of the area south of Cass City and over toward Kingston as "critical". He indicated that what is needed now are a lot of dry, warm days.

"In the Cass City area, there is a lot of field work that is just not done," he said. "Folks in that region are just about two weeks behind. This last series of rains has put them just that much farther behind."

He said that about 50 to 60 percent of the county's corn crop was in as of May 31. Under ideal conditions, all corn should be planted by this time.

Bortel added that most small grain crops such as oats and wheat are in. The major problem remains the corn.

He said a few farmers are switching from planting corn to other crops, but that for most, including dairy farmers, their operations obligate them to plant considerable amounts of corn. Bortel indicated that, if plantings went in too late, more silage might have to be made.

Bortel said that the bean crop is not behind yet, but that if the next two weeks did not produce some warm, dry weather, growers of this commodity crop would also fall behind in their schedules.

Cass City seems to be the dividing line between the wet lands and dryer areas, according to Bortel. North of the village, most farmers are just about on schedule, he indicated.

The worst area runs from Cass City southward to Kingston and then west to Mayville.

According to the director, He said the extent of damage caused by recent late-May frosts has not yet been determined. Most damage was caused to strawberry and fruit crops.

A drive through the farmlands near Deford would seem to confirm Bortel's gloomy report. As of last Friday, many fields lay untouched, with remnants of last year's corn crop still standing. Water stood in some rows, making plowing impossible.

At the Lester Kappan farm on Severance Road, no corn is in yet and won't be for some time to come. The Kappans farm 80 acres and raise some beef cattle.

According to Mrs. Kappan, some oats have been sown on the farm. Recent heavy rains have left these fields with standing water, inundating small oat shoots.

A field plowed recently for corn now resembles a small pond. The land is not tilled, and

Four candidates vying for 2 board posts air views on education issues

Voters will go to the polls next Monday to decide who will fill two vacant seats on the Cass City Board of Education. In addition, voters will decide on an additional one-mill levy spread over a four-year period for purchase of 46 acres of land adjoining existing school property.

Sup. Donald Crouse predicted a "moderate" turnout, numbering somewhere between 800 and 1,000 voters. There are currently about 3,000 eligible electors in the district.

Crouse said the turnout should be a little heavier than usual, due to the land-purchase proposal which will appear on the ballot. Additionally he said weather will have an effect on the turnout.

The four candidates vying for the two positions on the board gave their views on a series of issues facing the system.

JOANNE ESCKILSEN

Joanne Eskilsen, 4314 Maple St., is a graduating senior from Cass City High School this year.

She said her reason for seeking a position on the board involves diversity of representation. She said the board should represent persons from many different walks of life with different interests.

"I think it would be an asset to the board to have a former student as a member," she said.

On the subject of a new municipal swimming pool, Ms. Eskilsen said she supports the idea of building the facility at the high school. She said it would be an asset to the physical education program and could still be used by the community as well.

She quoted figures which showed that, while most school systems collect on the average of 25 mills, Cass City collects only 16.5 mills. On a statewide basis, she said, Cass City ranks 493 out of 527 in terms of high mileage paid to run the system.

She said she supports the idea of an open campus, adding that it will eliminate skipping of classes by students.

On the "Acapulco Gold" issue, Ms. Eskilsen said she would have concurred with the action taken by the school board and approved the book to be used on a restricted basis.

Restrictions are necessary, she said because, "There are some kids who really shouldn't read it."

She added that, in cases such as "Acapulco Gold", it is important for the board to act as a unit after the discussion is completed, and said she would concur in this case.

Ms. Eskilsen said she supports the purchase of 46 acres of land from Dr. H. T. Donahue adjacent to present school property. The acquisition would cost one mill in additional taxes for a four-year period.

She said the land is needed because the system must look to the future. She stated that the land should be viewed as necessary in terms of the intermediate school for expansion.

DEAN HOAG

Dean Hoag, 4137 Vulcan, is seeking a second term on the board. He was first elected in 1971. Hoag is an employee of General Cable Corporation and has lived in Cass City for the past 15 years.

Hoag said that, after a two-year stint on the board, he is "beginning to learn the ropes" and wants to continue to serve. He has five children, three in elementary and two in the intermediate school, he said, and as a concerned parent and citizen, wants to make sure they have the best education possible.

He added that he believes his views reflect the majority views of most Cass City taxpayers, and cited his experience on the board as an asset.

On the pool issue, Hoag said he could not come out in support for or opposition to a new swimming pool at the high school.

"There are just too many ifs involved," he said. "We don't know the costs to build. We don't know the costs to operate it. Would we transport kids from Evergreen and Deford to use it? Would we give swimming lessons? We need a lot more answers than we have now."

He said ultimately, the issue will be settled by the taxpayers.

Hoag said he opposes the notion of an open campus at Cass City High School. He said students should be allowed to leave school grounds only if they are involved in the co-op plan where they work at a local business part of the day, or if the student has written permission from his parents to leave to work at home on a farm.

He maintained that it is the school's responsibility to know where its students are during class hours.

On the "Acapulco Gold" question, he reiterated his opposition to the book. He said taxpayers' money could be spent in better ways on educational materials and not on books similar to this one.

Hoag advocated the purchase of the Donahue property. He cited a case involving the Unionville-Sebewaing system in which a sanitary sewer for a proposed school site alone would cost as much as the Donahue property adding that we already have a sewer servicing the land now.

He said that, in time, construction involving the intermediate school might be necessary and this property will fill that need.

DONALD DOERR

Donald Doerr, W. Huron Rd., owns and operates a farm north of Cass City. He was born in Cass City and has lived here all his life. He is a charter member of the Cass City Lions Club and a past master of the Masons. He is active in the Trinity United Methodist Church of Cass City.

Doerr said his interest in Cass City schools involves the education of his five children who are enrolled in grades 4 through 11. He said until now, time has been a limiting factor keeping him from seeking election. He said he now feels he can devote the time necessary to serve on the board.

On the pool issue, Doerr said he could not come out in support for or opposition to a new swimming pool at the high school.

On the "Acapulco Gold" issue, Doerr said he would probably have approved the book's placement in the school library.

"I understand that the book was screened by a company before they sent it to schools," he said. "This company would not have sent the book unless for our high school students to read."

He said he has never read the book and would have to trust the judgement of the firm which sent it.

"I believe that standards of what is proper in literature and many other subjects have changed since I was in high school," he added. "Therefore we should attend the matter with an open mind."

LYNN ALBEE

Lynn Albee, 4243 S. Seeger, of Albee Hardware store has been associated with the firm since 1968. He is a native of the village and taught for three years at the Intermediate School. He attended Albion College and has two children in the school system.

Repaving plans in Tri-county
area announced

Over 31 miles of state highways in the tri-county area will be resurfaced in the year beginning July 1, according to an announcement from the Michigan State Highway Commission.

The four projects affecting the area will cost $1,040,000, to be financed entirely with state funds.

Much of the resurfacing program is necessitated, according to the commission, by the wide use of tungsten carbide studs in tires, which wear roadway surfaces 100 times faster than conventional tires, along with normal wear.

The commission said limited funds permit resurfacing only of highways showing most critical surface conditions, or about 30 per cent of those showing more than average surface deterioration.

In Tuscola county, 6.6 miles of M-81 from Vassar Road east to Handy Road near Wahjamega will be resurfaced at a cost of $200,000.

Also in Tuscola county, 5.2 miles of M-138 from Akron Road north to near Unionville will be repaved at a cost of $150,000.

In Huron county, 6.7 miles of M-53 from the Sanilac county line north to the north limit of Bad Axe will be resurfaced at a cost of $240,000.

Repaving is also set for 13 miles of M-53 from M-46 north to M-81 near Cass City at a cost of $450,000.

Bituminous patching will also take place on M-81 at four locations in Reese at a cost of $13,000.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

We ate the bacon anyway

By Jim Ketchum

I went down in the basement to find the grill, packed away behind numerous piles of junk I hope someday to throw out. After hauling the pieces upstairs, I discovered the handle to the top grate was missing.

So, back downstairs for the handle. I eventually found it in the tool box, beneath two pipe wrenches, a ball peen hammer and several screw drivers. Back upstairs, I discovered the screw to hold the handle to the grate was missing. Wife to the rescue with a bolt she found lying in the junk drawer. Good old junk drawer.

Gary and Kathy arrived, all the while the sky in the west continued to darken. We loaded the equipment and supplies in his van and we started for Sanilac County Park No. 3.

We got two blocks from the house when my wife asked if anybody brought the ketchup. No ketchup. A hot dog without ketchup is like a town without a saloon. But we decided we could live without it, considering the darkening sky.

Three blocks from home, we discovered we forgot the camera which was to record the event.

About a mile east of Cass City, sprinkles began to dot the windshield of the van, but Gary resisted the temptation to turn on the wipers. If you don't have to turn on the wipers, it isn't raining, according to Gary.

Arriving at the park, we set up the grill, dumped the coals in, soaked them with starter fluid and reached for the matches. He had a grand total of three matches. I struck the first. It flickered momentarily and died. I struck a second. It sputtered once and disappeared in a puff of smoke.

Now things were getting crucial. It was either light the fire now or cook the hot dogs on the manifold of Gary's van. A tissue donated by my wife saved the day and, as it ignited, so did all that wonderful charcoal.

We set the grill under the roof of the shelter at the park, expecting the worst. It happened. The rains came, along with frequent flashes of lightning and cracks of thunder. The table was also under the shelter roof, so we were safe.

My wife put the first five hot dogs on the grill to cook.

"Oh, well," Julia said, "at least it's not pouring or coming down in sheets."

At that point, it began pouring and coming down in sheets. Anyway, I thought, at least we are protected and we have all the food. What could go wrong now?

As Gary opened the package for more hot dogs we found out seems he grabbed the wrong package. Inside, wrapped in white paper, were two or three pounds of bacon. The hot dogs were still back at his place in the freezer.

Another flash of lightning ripped across the sky and a loud crack of thunder shattered the drone created by the raindrops on the roof and in the river which borders the park. We looked at each other for one or two ejected moments and decided there was only one thing to do.

We ate the bacon anyway. It didn't taste bad, either. We spread two pieces of foil on the grill and fried the strips, three at a time. It went pretty well until the tin foil caught fire and burned up in a cloud of black smoke.

"Anybody want a hot dog when we get home?" my wife piped up.

I looked at her, then at the rain, at the empty book of matches, then at the bacon.

"No, thank you," I answered, munching on a crisp strip of meat. "I'm really not hungry."

Hungry or not, we ate the bacon anyway.

Hoof trimming
courses offered at MSU

"A needed service, a skill and a profession" are three terms used by Bill Bivens, Tri-County Thumb Dairy Extension Agent to describe dairy cattle hoof trimming.

To provide this service eleven men from Michigan and one from Cumber, Ontario, Canada, attended a skill training session recently at Michigan State University Dairy Barns. The instruction in the course was by Andy McFarland, a professional Hoof Trimmer from California. Mr. McFarland has trimmed over 50,000 cattle in the last ten years.

According to Bivens, he and other county Extension agents were concerned with the number of poorly maintained feet that they were seeing in dairy herds, and ones that they were hearing about from veterinarians and dairymen. It was then decided to hold a session that would provide anyone interested in commercially trimming feet, the skill, and the business experience necessary.

Some of those who attended were herd owners themselves, interested in doing a better job of taking care of their own herds. Cows with sore feet or lame legs don't go to feed bunks or water tanks as often, and do poorly on pasture. Consequently these cows do not produce well either. Michigan State University has had their dairy herd's hoofs commercially trimmed regularly for several years now. And according to one of the more experienced herdsmen "it is some of the best money that they have spent around here for some time".

At least two of the men taking the course from the Thumb area are planning to commercially trim hoofs. Dan Miller, Cooper Road, Sandusky, and Mike Kraft, 422 Main Street, Brown City. Miller is already set up with a tilting table and equipment and has done some herds in the Deckerville area.

The tilting table rolls the cow up off her feet making it easier to do a good job. Once their feet are off the ground the cow does very little struggling and is actually less likely to hurt herself.

A six month regular program was recommended by McFarland. "This way you are only six months away from any problems and of course it would not be necessary to do all the cows every time."

If dairymen are interested in maintaining this service in their area they should contact either Dan Miller at 648-2573 or Mike Kraft 346-2040 and schedule an appointment.

Corrosion testing under way here

Those white pipes sprouting at various spots in Cass City with wires running inside are not a new type of bugging device installed by the FBI or the CIA to spy on village citizens.

They are a part of a corrosion detection system installed by the Southeastern Michigan Gas Co. in an effort to monitor the condition of gas mains. The installation of these units was completed last week by the company.

According to Melvin Krabach, Public Information Director of the firm, the operation is carried out periodically to insure all lines are in proper working order and to head off a gas leak before it takes place.

The procedure involves augering a vertical hole eight to 10 feet in depth near buried gas mains at various points along the line. Anodes, a cloth bag enclosing a 17 pound magnesium bar surrounded by a chemical powder, are placed one to a hole and covered with dirt.

Wires are connected to the gas pipe, inserted up through the white two-inch pipe and then connected to a company test station box. Located above the surface, this then allows company personnel to measure an electrical current flowing on the various lines, caused by natural corrosion.

Corrosion to gas pipelines occurs as the result of electrochemical action between the steel pipe and chemicals in the surrounding soil. This results in the small current flow along the pipeline, looking for a place to leave it.

Any flaw in the coating on the pipe might be a departure point. When the current escapes, it takes particles of the pipe with it. Over a long enough period of time, a hole in the pipe could form.

This protection system utilizes expendable anodes which allow current to flow from the anode to the pipe and back to another anode, which corrodes instead of the pipe.

Architects meet with Owen-Gage school board

Architects met with the Owendale-Gagetown Board of Education Monday night to discuss plans for a new high school building.

The firm of Wiggin, Tucknell and Associates of Saginaw has been retained by the board to design a number of alternative structures at various prices.

According to board member Ronald Good, no solid dollar figure was determined, but costs of $25 per square foot were mentioned as possibilities. Good said the firm was instructed to aim for a cost figure in the neighborhood of $1.5 to $2 million.

Construction sites were also discussed at the meeting. A location somewhere between Owendale and Gagetown was mentioned.

Another meeting with the architects was scheduled for June 12.

Witherspoon elected Lions Governor

Allen A. Witherspoon, a Cass City businessman, was elected Governor of District 11-D of Lions International in Grand Rapids, Saturday. His term will run for the coming year.

Witherspoon, a graduate of Michigan State University in Business Administration with an insurance major, has practiced in Cass City for the past 10 years. A veteran Army officer of the Korean War, he is past president of the Cass City Lions Club and has served as deputy district Governor, region II.

ALLEN A. WITHERSPOON

Witherspoon will assume office in July over 84 clubs in his district which covers nine counties in northeastern central Michigan and includes over 3,200 active Lion members.

Other local persons participating in Witherspoon's campaign were Harry Little, campaign manager, and Alger Freiburger, publicity manager. Ronald Keegan will act as his cabinet secretary.

At the state convention, it was announced that the Lions of Michigan have spent over $500,000 on sight conservation and local projects in the last year.

Reduce sentence of Cass City man Monday

A Cass City man, convicted of larceny late last year had his sentence reduced Monday in Tuscola County Circuit Court by Judge Norman Baguley.

Bruce Allen Brown, who was originally sentenced to probation for 36 months and fined $200 plus $200 in costs for the June 22, 1972 larceny near Detord, will instead spend three weeks in the Tuscola County Jail. He will be given credit for three days already served.

Brown pleaded guilty to larceny at the home of Alfred Conally, 6114 Shabbona Rd., and was originally sentenced Oct. 9. At the time of her arraignment, she stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered and accepted by the court.

According to the motion filed before Judge Baguley, Brown has complied fully with his probation and has not been involved in any "anti-social" activity, as specified in the document. Baguley based his decision on these factors.

In another case, Duane Englehardt, Vassar, was arraigned before Judge Baguley on charges of uttering and publishing. Specifically, he is charged with writing a counterfeit check for $2,600, and signing another man's name to it. The check was written on the Community Bank, Elkhorn.

Englehardt stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered on his behalf. Pre-trial examination was set for July 10, and bond, originally placed at $2,000 was reduced to $1,000.

In other court action, Terrie Mannarino, Caro, was sentenced to extended probation for probation violation.

Mrs. Mannarino was originally convicted of illegally possessing quantities of phenobarbital taken from Palmer Drug store in Caro last October. As part of her probation, she was ordered to pay the court $35 a month toward her fine of $200 in the case. She failed to meet the terms of the probation.

Student exchange, leadership boosted by Rotarian Tom Proctor

For many years now Cass City area residents have become accustomed to seeing students and adults from foreign countries visiting or living and learning about the area and the United States.

It didn't just happen; it was, and is, the work of Rotary in Cass City.

It's a long established program in the village and it has grown by leaps and bounds in recent years. One of the prime reasons has been the long hours devoted to the program by Tom Proctor.

While Proctor has been devoted to the "service above self" motto of Rotary since he joined the Cass City club nine years ago, his very special interest has been in the Rotary Educational Foundation and Exchange program.

Because of his efforts he was recently named a Paul Harris Fellow. It's an award that means that $1,000 has been donated in his name to the Rotary Education Foundation to swell the program reserves and make more scholarships available for study in foreign countries.

Rotary annually sends deserving students on study missions with Foundation money. There is just one restriction. Sons and daughters of Rotarians are not eligible for a grant. All grants are presented on the basis of competitive examinations.

Cass City has yet to have a student qualify and Proctor's wish is that one would try and win one of the coveted awards.

The scholarship program is not the only educational program that Proctor is involved with. Another is the Group Study Exchange.

That's the exchange that brought a group of Rhodesians and South Africans to Cass City and the Saginaw Valley and sent a group from the Thumb to South Africa a year later.

It's also the program that will bring six Japanese visitors to Cass City this fall. Proctor was one of the original committee that set up the program.

In addition he now serves on the International Service Committee representing the United States. He is one of seven, world-wide.

Perhaps the study program that Proctor is most proud of is the Leadership training school held at Camp Rotary. It was a program he originated when he served as District President of Rotary. It sends deserving young men to Rotary for a week-long work seminar, highlighted by addresses from noted professionals in various fields.

Last year, for instance, Cass City Rotary sent Paul Prangley, Rick Erla and Kim Glaspie.

While much of Proctor's civic work has been devoted to Rotary related projects, he has been active in local affairs.

He served as president of the Retail Division of the Chamber of Commerce and has been a booster of community-sponsored events such as Artrain and the Western Round-Up.

He has maintained a strong interest in school affairs.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Thieves with a yen for tobacco and alcohol broke into Erla's Food Market early Monday morning, taking 500 cartons of cigarettes, an undetermined amount of beer and wine, and approximately $15 in petty cash.

Six candidates will vie for the two four-year positions on the Cass City School Board at the June 10 election.

A proposed ordinance regulating the use and erection of private swimming pools was discussed at the village council's Tuesday night meeting.

Racing to beat a Tuesday afternoon strike deadline, members of the United Steel Workers of America employed at General Cable Corporation in Cass City, voted to accept a new three-year company contract offer.

New curb and gutter will be installed on selected streets in July. Village Engineer William Schram said last week after bids were opened Tuesday at the regular meeting of village council.

TEN YEARS AGO

A request for a mill and a half in additional tax revenue for three years for capital improvements at Cass City schools will be on the June 1 ballot. It will be the fourth time that the board has gone before taxpayers in an attempt to secure much needed funds.

Superintendent Willis Campbell was honored for the second time this year Tuesday when the Cass City Elementary School was named after him.

Cass City will retain its traditional free swimming periods at the pool, but upped fees for the pay swim periods to combat rising costs.

Detroit Community Schools will ask taxpayers for three mills for three years for improvements to its facilities.

POLICE Chief Carl Palmateer recovered an allegedly stolen car while investigating one of four accidents in the Cass City area during the week.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The 70 members of the Class of 1948 received their high school diplomas Tuesday night from Superintendent Willis Campbell before a large audience of parents and friends.

Tribute to departed heroes who made the supreme sacrifice for our country's cause was paid by a large concourse of citizens of this community Monday afternoon.

Salem church honors youth

The accent was on youth in the Sunday morning worship service in Salem United Methodist church. Honored were James Morgan and Ronald Hendrick, who are members of the 1973 graduating class. They were presented with a gift from the church by Charles Tuckey, president of the senior high youth fellowship.

A class of six youth, John Tuckey, Scott Hendrick, Kathy Kinn, Elaine Stoutsburg, Colleen Truemmer and Julie Ann Auten, were confirmed and welcomed into church membership. Mrs. Esther Kinn was their instructor. Each confirmand was presented with a copy of the New Living Bible.

A coffee hour honoring the grads and confirmation class was held in the church dining room following the service.

MRS. L. F. NAPLES examines a charred timber in her old house which she and her husband are remodeling. Timber came from a cedar tree that went through the Great Fire of 1881.

Naples discover hidden history in old house

When Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Naples bought an old house out on Cleland Road just west of Germanna Road, they never realized they were buying a piece of history.

This spring, Naples began tearing down the west portion of the house as part of a remodeling plan. As he tore off siding boards, he found a number of hand-hewn cedar studs in the old structure appeared burnt

No other signs of fire appeared in other parts of the house, so he began to investigate.

After talking with neighbors in the area, he determined that those charred studs were victims of the Great Fire of 1881 that roared through the area, consuming nearly everything in its path.

"The studs came from the swamp at the back of the place," Naples said. "The fire burned the trees and this lumber was salvaged from them."

Each of the studs is hand-hewn and bear the marks of craftsman's long dead.

As Naples tore further into the old house, he found even more history. In a partition, he found a 1923 issue of the Michigan Farmer, several pamphlets, and a letter addressed to a Robert Cleland dated August 5, 1902.

The letter, from the "Upper Peninsula Hospital for the Insane" in Newberry, was a response to one Cleland sent the institution earlier, asking for work. In it, Cleland was advised that a position was available for him at the facility.

The note was signed G. J. Chamberlain, Medical Superintendent.

The Naples plan to use the burnt studs in the remodeled remainder of the house for an open beam ceiling. There, a re-ender of the Great Fire will still remain a part of the home, no longer buried between the walls of an old farm house.

Summer program planned at Rawson Library

A full summer program is being planned at Rawson Memorial Library. A "Treasure Hunt" reading club is being formed for children in grades three through eight. Children may begin signing up June 11. Details are available at the library.

The summer story hour will be held on Fridays at 10:30 a.m. this year. Children three years old through third grade may attend. The first one will be June 22. Anyone interested in helping with the story hour should contact librarian Barbara Hutchinson.

Nearly a hundred new books were selected from the bookmobile Tuesday with summer reading in mind. There are many mysteries, novels and young peoples books in the group.

New novels purchased by the library are "The Summer Before the Dark" by Doris Lessing, "Science Fiction Hall of Fame" by Ben Bova, "The Gods Themselves" by Isaac Asimov, "The Great American Novel" by Philip Roth, "Breakfast of Champions" by Kurt Vonnegut and "Tightrope Men" by Desmond Bagley.

New non-fiction works are "Enemy at the Gates" by William Craig, "Serpico" by Peter Maas and "Go Broke" by Arnold Palmer.

Other new titles are "How to Make Treasures from Trash", "The Week End Camper", "Veterinary Guide for Farmers", "The Judy Collins Song Book", "American Silver", "The Story of Language", "Brewer's Dictionary of Phrase and Fable", "Know Your Antiques" and "New Oxford Book of English Verse".

District champions! Hawks roll on with breathtaking double win Tuesday at Deckerville

Cass City rolled into regional competition Tuesday with a double header victory in the district competition at Deckerville but it took a circus catch by Chuck Bliss to quell a last inning Marquette rally and keep the Hawks on the tournament trail.

It appeared to be all over and skittles for Cass City for 13 of the 14 innings played. The club opened with an easy 13-7 decision over North Branch and had a comfortable

5-0 lead going into the last inning against Marquette.

But the old bromide that the game is never over until the final out never proved more apt than in the game with the Red Raiders Tuesday.

Jerry Toner was coasting along on a three hitter and Cass City was ahead 5-0 going into that last inning. What could be more secure?

Only suddenly Toner tired and his usual excellent control deserted him. Marquette clipped him for a couple of base knocks.

Coach Fred Hurlburt switched to Scott Hartel who pitched well in the opener. But Hartel, who has pitched little all year couldn't find the plate. He walked two.

Hurlburt went back to his ace, Toner. But now three runs had scored, the bases were loaded and there was no one out.

The first batter popped to Gene Salas at shortstop. Paul Diegla was next. He stepped into a Toner slam and hit on the line to right. The runners were moving, it appeared as if Marquette would stage an almost unbelievable rally.

It was here that Bliss came to the rescue. Running with the crack of the bat he dove for the ball and caught it just off the ground, rolling over two times after the catch.

After that it was easy to double the runner at first and the game was suddenly over and suddenly Cass City was the district baseball champion of the Thumb in Class C.

In the first game Don Galbraith started on the mound. He went 4 1/3 innings before he was relieved by Toner who quelled the rally and then turned the mound chores over to Hartel who breezed the final two innings.

Galbraith's job was made easy as the Hawks opened with four runs in the first inning and added to the total steadily.

Pete Frederick was a terror at the plate. He was six for eight for the double header. Hartel hit a home run against North Branch and Dan Mellendorf chipped in two hits in four tries.

PLAY SATURDAY

The Hawks' next stop on the tournament trail will be at Sebewaing. Cass City is scheduled to play SS Peter and Paul at 10 a.m. Saturday.

A special meeting of the Cass City Village Council was held on May 15, 1973, at the Municipal Building at 7:00 p.m. All trustees except Bliss and Hampshire were present. Pursuant to notice duly given, a public hearing on the special assessment roll for public hearings on the special assessment roll for curb and gutter on Maple Street from Main to Church and Houghton Street from Seeger to West was opened. Hearing no objections, it was moved by Trustee Ross, supported by Trustee Jones that the special assessment roll be adopted. By roll call vote motion was passed 4 to 0.

Upon recommendation of the Planning Commission, proposed Ordinance No. 30 concerning revised Subdivision Regulations was adopted by roll call vote 4 to 0.

Upon recommendation of the Planning Commission, proposed Ordinance No. 31 covering Engineering Design Standards was adopted by roll call vote 4 to 0.

A delegation of citizens then questioned Council concerning the issuance of a SDM beer and wine license to Wood Drug.

After considerable discussion, Council determined to continue an investigation into the unorthodox manner in which said license was issued, including certain questions about the procedure followed at the Tuscola County Sheriff's office and by the Liquor Control Commission.

Discussion followed on the suggested solution to deteriorating water service to the several parcels of property located immediately north of the Village along North Seeger Street. Since these parcels are outside the Village limits and in accordance with Council policy of not extending Village utilities outside the limits, it was decided to extend a new six inch water main to service the MacRae property which is in the Village limits, and invite all other property owners to annex and to tap into the new water line. It was further agreed by Council that at such future time as existing water lines in the area failed, no additional repairs or improvements would be made.

There being no further business, it was moved by Trustee Ross and supported by Trustee Jones that the meeting be adjourned. Motion carried.
