Cass City prepares for gala Western Round-up

Volunteers from various Cass City Service Clubs have worked at a hectic pace in order to put the finishing touch on this year's third annual Western Round-Up. Festivities get underway Thursday with the Garden City Carnival which runs through Sunday at the Cass City Recreational Park.

Activity is expected to hum Friday, kids' day at the carnival. All rides will be staged at reduced prices from noon to 5 p.m. During the day, the Service Clubs Association will be giving away two bicycles, one to a boy and one to a girl. Contestants in the drawing must be present to win.

Tickets for the drawing are a bonus for riding at the carnival and are free of extra cost. The drawing for the two bikes will be held at the park at 5 p.m.

There will be games for the children from 9 a.m. to noon, including a sack race, a wheelbarrow race and other contests. That evening, there will be a church league softball game.

Saturday is the big day of the festivities. The horse show gets under way at 9 a.m. and continues through the day with recess during the parade which starts at noon and will stretch down Main Street to the park.

Trophies will be awarded to grand champion, reserve champion and high point winner, plus three or more ribbons to top performers in each of 17 classes.

At 2 p.m. Saturday, the popular firemen's waterball tournament starts. At least five area fire departments are expected to be on hand for the fun.

At 6 p.m., the highlight of the four days—the tractor pull—will get under way. Tractors will be entered in 10 different classes; three classes of garden tractors, five classes of regular tractors and two classes of modified tractors.

Trophies will be awarded to winners in every class. A sum of $500 in prize money is guaranteed.

Sunday is set as a rain date.

for all events, in case inclement weather delays any of the activities. The carnival will open and run throughout the day.

The hospital auxiliary will be selling sloppy joes at the carnival.

Report vandals hit school, library

Vandals struck at two Cass City locations last week, once at the elementary school and at the Rawson Memorial Library.

On Saturday, a group of four juveniles attacked the library building with spray paint. The boys apprehended had been reported earlier that day across from the theatre throwing lighted matches at a building. Police told the youngsters to go home.

Later that day, the library was spray-painted. The boys involved with the matches earlier had some of the paint on them and later admitted spraying the building. They were released to their parents, pending further police action.

The boys also admitted stealing the paint from a local store and spraying a car and trailer owned by Floyd Dodge, 4297 Maple St., and a speed limit sign in the village as well as the library building.

Police continue their investigation.

On Tuesday, several windows were reported broken in the library of Willis Campbell Elementary School. According to police, the incident happened sometime in the night. The windows, located on the south side of the building, were valued at about $20 apiece.

Police have no suspects in the vandalism.

An attempted burglary was apparently foiled for three suspects Saturday at the home of Larry Karpovich, 3732 W. Dixon Rd., Caro.

According to Sheriff's reports, the thieves broke out a pane of glass in a rear door of the house, reached in and turned the knob, opening the door. Once inside, they opened an unlocked gun cabinet containing several weapons.

At this point, the suspects were scared off and were seen running from the house.

Witnesses described the suspects as three males wearing long hair.

No loot was taken and officers have no clues.

On Friday evening, police received a complaint from Ruth Reynolds, 2640 Hutchinson Rd., saying that shots were being fired in the direction of her house. Upon investigation, deputies found no clues and heard no more shots.

The blaze broke out on the front porch and spread rapidly. Flames, whipped by gusty winds leaped onto the roof of the two-

Donald Koepfgen killed in truck mishap on farm Tuesday afternoon

Donald Koepfgen, 49, 5206 Koepfgen Road, was killed late Tuesday afternoon in an accident involving a hydraulic lift on a truck.

Koepfgen, a lifelong resident of the area, was apparently working on the truck at the time of the accident.

Tuscola County Sheriff's Deputy Paul Berry said the accident happened around 2:30 p.m. He indicated that Koepfgen was pinned between the box and the frame of the truck when the hydraulic hoist failed, allowing the box to slam down on him.

According to Berry, Koepfgen's son, Donald, heard his father scream and ran to his aid, trying to lift the box. Failing to do so, he raced for aid, but by that time, it was too late.

Berry indicated that, upon his investigation, he discovered a hydraulic hose had blown on the unit which allows the box to lift. He said he did not know why Koepfgen was working in the position he was at the time of the accident.

The accident occurred on Koepfgen's farm, located about a mile and a half north of Cass City.

Koepfgen had recently announced his retirement from the Cass City Board of Education after 11 years of service. He said at the time that he wanted to devote more time to his farm and especially to the horses he raised.

He was well-known in harness racing circles and his horses had won races at Wolverine Harness Raceway in Detroit. He had been in the horse raising business for a number of years.

Upon learning of Koepfgen's death, Tuscola County Commissioner Maynard McConkey expressed shock at the news.

"Don contributed a great deal to the community," McConkey said. "He was a fine dairyman, horseman and person. This comes as a terrible shock."

Elkland Township supervisor Edwin Karr expressed shock at the news.

"The community will miss him greatly," he said. "It's untimely and terribly unfortunate. I am sorry for his wife and family."

Karr said Koepfgen was going to have a sale at his farm in five weeks and begin to slow down. "I knew him all my life."

Karr continued, "We went to school together and did many things together. It's a terrible thing."

School Supt. Donald Crouse characterized Koepfgen as a "real solid board member who thought issues through and voted his convictions."

"I knew him for nine years and I felt he was a good friend," Crouse said. "I feel shock over this thing."

Crouse said Koepfgen's death would not cause a problem with the continuity of the board. In the recent election, Lynn Albee was elected to the seat Koepfgen vacated. Koepfgen's term was due to expire as of July 1. No regular meetings are scheduled before that date.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete at press time. Services were expected to be conducted from Little's Funeral Home.

Koepfgen leaves a widow, four daughters and one son.

THIS IS THE TRUCK that killed Donald Koepfgen, 49, Tuesday afternoon. Tuscola County Deputy Sheriff Paul Berry said the hydraulic unit on the lift bed failed, causing the box to fall, crushing Koepfgen between the box and frame of the truck.

Two persons injured in four area accidents last week

Four traffic accidents involving area residents were reported last week.

On Friday, a car driven by Louis Pierce, Jr., 6406 Seventh St., collided with a car driven by Ronald Horiski, Harbor Beach, near the intersection of Leach and Houghton Streets.

Cass City Police said Horiski was parked on the west side of Leach Street and started to back out into the street when he collided with the Pierce auto. Horiski told police he did not see Pierce approaching.

Large piles of dirt in the vicinity, caused by reconstruction work on Houghton Street may have contributed to the accident, police theorize.

No ticket was issued and neither driver was hurt.

On Saturday, June 16, a car driven by Robert Crosby, Froede Rd., Kingston, went out of control and rolled over on Stevens Road just east of Plain Road.

According to Tuscola County Deputies' report, Crosby was traveling east on Stevens Road when he attempted to pass another vehicle. The vehicle apparently swerved to the left, forcing Crosby off the left shoulder. Crosby brought the auto back onto the road and then hit a mailbox on the right shoulder. The vehicle skidded 132 feet and then rolled over and slid another 93 feet on its top before coming to a stop.

Crosby was treated for injuries at Caro Community Hospital and released. No ticket was issued.

On Sunday, a car driven by Bud McGuire, 4140 Hoppe Rd., Gagetown, rolled into a ditch on Kelley Road about one-half mile east of Warner Road. According to deputies' reports, McGuire was heading east on Kelley Road when a deer ran out in front of his car. He stopped the vehicle and started to back up when the car rolled into the ditch.

McGuire was taken to Hills and Dales for treatment of his injuries. No ticket was issued.

On Tuesday, a car driven by Robert Bender, Caro, struck and killed a deer on Wells Road about one-fourth mile west of Hensman Road. Bender said he was traveling west on Wells Road when a deer jumped out from the side of the road.

Bender escaped serious injury in the mishap which occurred around 7:00 a.m.

Pair buy road building

Two area businessmen will purchase the old Tuscola County Road Commission offices in Caro with an eye toward leasing it as a future State Police Post for the county.

William Tuckey, co-owner of Tuckey Block Co., and Dave Wendling, owner of the Thumb Fruit Market, will purchase the building, for $50,000, some $7,000 under its appraised value.

The two businessmen say they are buying the building on Millwood Street as an investment. They said they hope to lease it to the state for use as the Caro Post of the Michigan State Police.

The state legislature is now considering a bill to establish a state police post in Tuscola County.

Dillon home suffers fire damage

Mrs. Edward Dillon Jr. came to Cass City, Friday, to bring her daughter home from the hospital after a tonsillectomy and, as she drove home, Elkland Township Fire trucks passed her with sirens wailing and lights flashing.

"I had the funniest feeling that they were headed for our house," she related afterward. Unfortunately, she was right.

Fire had broken out at the home, located at 2911 Dickerson Rd., around 3:10 p.m.

The blaze broke out on the front porch and spread rapidly. Flames, whipped by gusty winds leaped onto the roof of the two-story brick structure and spread over a wide area of the second floor.

The fire was confined to the eastern wing of the house. Neighbors aided in removing furniture and valuables from the home while firemen fought the blaze.

One of the Dillons' six children spotted the blaze and succeeded in making sure the rest of the children who were at home escaped without injury. It was learned later that she had some difficulty in reporting the fire due to a telephone party line user who did not relinquish the line quickly.

Cause of the fire was undetermined.

Joanne Esckilsen not Cass City's McGovern

BY JIM KETCHUM

While she may have been defeated soundly in the recent Cass City School election, pretty Joanne Esckilsen says she is definitely not the George McGovern of the village.

Joanne, 18, ran for a post on the board of education and polled 183 votes, lowest of the four candidates who ran. Winner Lynn Albee registered 417. She took her defeat philosophically.

"I had actually hoped to win," she commented as she sipped a steaming cup of freshly-brewed coffee at her dining room table. "Maybe I expected too much. But I don't think my effort was wasted. I know I learned a lot from it and I think it was a good thing."

Joanne recalled that she decided to run the Thursday before nominating petitions were due to be filed. She said her decision encouraged many of her 18-year-old classmates to register to vote so that they could sign her petition. Additionally, her government teacher and employer aided in circulating petitions for her. "Although I'd hoped to win I really didn't expect it too much," she said. "But I think my running made a lot of people realize that youth do care about the world and want to serve. I think this has opened the door for other young people interested in public office."

She said some persons tend to categorize others by age or sex or status and that young persons in particular, are not responsible. She disputed this notion.

"Youth are responsible and hold positions in the House of Representatives, for example," she said. "It's encouraging."

She decided to run in order to add a new dimension of representation to the board, she explained. Persons from differing age brackets and walks of life should be represented, she said.

Joanne characterizes herself as a Republican who supported President Nixon last year and continues to give him support. Recent Watergate revelations have had little effect on her position. "The Democrats have probably done things just as bad," she said. "I personally think this has been blown way out of proportion."

She recalled election night, June 11, and the air of tension that hung in her house as she awaited the results.

"We were sitting on the edge of our chairs and each time the phone rang, we'd jump up to answer it, only to find out it was someone else," she explained. "Finally, around 11 o'clock, Fritz Nitzel called and told me I'd lost. I tried to keep it from everyone else while I was on the phone, but they all rushed around me and I couldn't."

Joanne said her initial reaction was one of great disappointment, but that it soon mellowed.

"Afterward, we talked for awhile, and Mrs. Geraldine Prieskorn told me she didn't win the first time she ran either," she said.

Joanne said the two men elected to the board, Albee and incumbent Dean Hoag, are both qualified men.

Has her interest in politics and public office waned, now that she has one defeat under her belt? Not really.

"I probably would run again for an office if I felt I were qualified to handle the job," she replied. "There's no reason why I shouldn't. Young people can win, too."

In reviewing her unsuccessful campaign, Joanne said she probably would not have changed things very much. She said a group of her friends staged a telephone canvass of the village the weekend before the election reminding voters of the polling and urging them to cast ballots. Newspaper publicity also helped, she added.

"I really hesitated going door-to-door, asking people to vote," she said. "They might have thought I was just more interested in my own candidacy than with getting out the vote."

Political apathy bothers Joanne more than her own defeat. She recalled that only about 50 persons attended the Citizens for Improved Education meeting held shortly before the election in which the candidates had a chance to articulate their views. The fact that only 718 voters turned out for the election also disappointed her.

"People gripe all the time about the way things are, but they don't seem to do anything about it," she said. "That's one of the reasons we had the canvass, to remind people to get out and vote."

She said political apathy is a nationwide problem, citing the fact that only a little over 60 per cent of all eligible voters cast ballots in the last presidential election.

Joanne said her age probably had a lot to do with her defeat. Another factor she raised was the fact that she was a woman. She quoted statistics on women who hold posts on school boards for all of Tuscola County. "There are 63 members of school boards in the county," she said, "and of those 63, only four are women."

The four serve in Caro, Vassar, Millington and Cass City. She commented that she did not favor the equal rights amendment to the constitution now before the states for ratification. In her view, the amendment would take away protection women now enjoy in industry, government and other fields. She said the possibility existed that women might even be drafted into the armed services, if the need arises, under JOANNE ESCKILSEN, who was soundly defeated in the recent school board election, says she hasn't let her defeat get her down and might seek office again someday.

"If It Fitz . . ."Nixon loses the dogs

BY JIM FITZGERALD

President Nixon, who shaves in the dark, still has 2 friends he can trust, Bebe Rebozo and Robert Abplanalp. One of them should advise His Majesty that it is poor politics to describe women as dogs.

Abplanalp, who is not a typographical error, has obviously earned Nixon's favor. He's the millionaire who loaned Nixon $625,000 to buy a California home and, a few months later, bought the surrounding property - but not the home - from Nixon for $1.2 million. With friends like that, Nixon doesn't need the golden touch.

Everyone knows Rebozo. He's the Nixon buddy who took pity on a homeless sportswriter and his wife, an out-of-work school teacher. Rebozo bought a $127,000 home in Maryland and rented it to the young couple at a special rate simply because David Eisenhower is a Prince of a fellow (and his wife is a Princess and her father is King).

As an ex-sports writer, I am delighted at David's overnight success. Newly discharged from the Navy, he was hired off the street, with no experience, and started right off writing a weekly column for the Philadelphia Bulletin. This is unusual. Most sports writers don't get a personal column until after they have done some straight reporting for a week or two. And it is almost always a year before they are able to move into $127,000 homes.

George R. Packard, managing editor of the Bulletin, explained how David advanced so swiftly. The explanation came in response to a complaint from 2 students at the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism. These guys, obviously Democrats, claimed the Bulletin had told them there were no job openings - just a few days before David was hired. How come?

Packard's answer: "The first thing we teach new reporters is to get the name right. You flunked on mine. David did better."

In their letter to Packard, those stupid students got his middle initial wrong. David Eisenhower made no such mistake. His Pulitzer prize will be announced next month.

Of course, there are those skeptics who think guys like Packard, Rebozo and Abplanalp are simply buying better seats in the throne room. That is a foul charge, made by the same sort of nonbelievers who think Nixon was the outside lookout at the Watergate burglary. Our President has nothing to fear from such small men.

But he'd better watch out for the women. The other day, within hearing of newspaper reporters, Nixon advised a former prisoner of war to attend lots of Washington dinner parties. "But watch out for some of those dogs they have you sit by," he added.

Washington hostesses yelped in anger. A typical reaction came from a congressman's wife. "In some cases there are many more male dogs than female dogs," she snapped.

There goes the bitch vote. Leaving the sons?

People find it easy - they can size everyone up but themselves.

THIS SECTION OF A HOUSE belonging to James Gray collapsed late Thursday as he and a companion were attempting to dig a basement under the house. Gray had crawled from under the addition only five minutes before it fell in.

Man escapes injury in house collapse Thursday

So you think you've got troubles. Consider the case of James Gray, who was digging a basement under his house at the corner of Pine and West Streets, Thursday.

Gray and his companions had been excavating under the north wing of the old house and had come up from their diggings for a few moments, when that portion of the house began to creak, groan and pull away from the rest of the house. In an instant, all that remained of the kitchen addition was a pile of rubble.

"We'd just come out of there five minutes before it happened," Gray related the next day. "Everything just caved in."

Mrs. Gray said the men probably would have been under the house at the time of the cave-in if she had not detained them for a few moments with conversation.

"That's one time my talking to them helped out," she laughed.

Gray said he'd been digging a basement under the house for about two months or so, replacing a Michigan basement which had begun to give way under the strain of encroaching tree roots. He said footing forms were all in place, ready for pouring the next day.

Currently, the remaining portion of the house is supported with just two piles of cribbing. Forms were due to be poured under the rest of the structure Friday.

Gray said he'd been working under the north wing of the house since Tuesday.

Inside the collapsed portion lay a new water heater, dish washer and kitchen sink.

Gray estimated that repairs to the house will now run him an extra $2,000 at least before he's done.

Mrs. Gray looked at it optimistically. "Well, this is one way of getting out of scrubbing my kitchen floors," she said.

Saddle shoes and short skirts. Movies about the 1940's. Songs like the "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boys."

Nostalgia is the in thing these days. They are bringing everything back except the prices. The nickel ice cream cone (two dimes) and the foot-long 10-cent hot dog. But then you can't have everything.

I've been waiting for them to talk about cars of the period. Just waiting.

Back in the 1940's the Hudson Motor Car Co. made the Terraplane. They didn't make them long. Or all that good.

Don't ask me how it happened but I was involved with two of them. One my mother owned, the other my future in-laws owned.

Both of them qualified for the name bestowed on them by 1. disgruntled owners or 2. laughing friends. We called them terrible pains.

There were a lot of things that car wouldn't do that it was supposed to.

There were a lot of things that it did that it wasn't supposed to.

I've been calling those terrible-pains an "it" and that's wrong. I should have been calling them her. (My apologies to all Ms.) They were as temperamental as any woman.

But go man how they would go. The car was light, tight and the motor was powerful, powerful. In other words about as safe for a kid to be driving as a hand grenade with the pin pulled. Especially one who was tooling around several years before he was old enough to legally drive. But that's another

I was pleased to notice nice guy Amie Ouvry doing something that I do constantly even though I keep telling myself to quit it.

That's walking down the street head down deep in concentration not seeing anyone or anything ahead.

Amie walked by the Chronicle that way and after I got his attention he verified that he was miles away.

It's easy to do and what makes it especially frustrating is that folks who don't do it think that you're either unfriendly or downright rude or just plain nuts.

It's hard sometimes to find something different in ads. But kudos to Don's Barber Shop in Elkton. They ran a diamond jubilee celebration ad in a neighboring paper listing prices charged way back then when Fitch's Shampoo was 60 cents and plain old shampoo 35 cents.

To top it off Don's advertised a 75-year celebration special. They offered to shave ladies' legs for 75 cents.

My Little League coaching experience backfired this week. My youngest hit me up for ice cream cones for the Cass City Babe Ruth Number 2 team of which he is a member.

Recalling that parents dug down for treats for Little Leaguers I didn't give it a second thought and sent the money with him for cones after the game.

What was a yes, yes in Little League evidently is a no, no in Babe Ruth competition.

When I got home I got my money back because there is no way these kids could have a cone Monday.

I haven't yet learned whether it was because the team is in the older league or because they have yet to win a game.

The Cass City Chamber of Commerce has, in one man's opinion, come up with a perfect solution to the problem of staging a party where beer will be sold.

You'll remember that a similar plan for beer sales at the park was nixed after a referendum.

In July a party will be sponsored by the Chamber at Wildwood Farms. It's the proper place for it and I'm sure will be pleasant, profitable and eliminate all objections.

A week ago 20 or so golf hackers from Cass City took an annual jaunt to Lewiston to play at Garland Golf Course.

It was generally agreed that there is nothing finer, more soul satisfying than a beautiful day in Michigan...especially rural northern Michigan.

And last Wednesday and Thursday were beautiful days, none finer.

It was also the consensus that these ideal conditions weren't quite as great, quite as spectacular now as they were when the middle-agers in the car were seeing them a decade or more ago.

What's the point? None, I guess. But how sad and how true.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

to be called a everthing store. He said he saw garden tools and swimming suits, a hole room full of bicycles, and down at the far end he saw this little counter where you got your drugs. They was everthing in that store you can think of, except the pony you would need to pull one of the little carts that was out front, was Bug's words.

Actual, went on Bug, what struck his eye first was the magazine rack. He said they was the usual girly books they sometime could find stuck under the counter at the country store, but they was magazines lined up that he'd never heard of. They must be a book out fer ever hobby and ever cause going in this country, declared Bug. He said he thumbed through books on taking pictures, on putting model trains and airplanes together, on learning to cook, and there even was one called Money that showed you how to make it and spend it.

Clem Webster broke in to say it looked to him like the way to make it is to start a magazine. Clem said he saw recent where they are 6,000 different ones published in this country, and he had thought when Life died that was the bell tolling for the magazine business. Clem said he was reminded of the feller that wanted to write a book, and he learned that books on Abraham Lincoln, medicine and dogs was the most popular. So the feller called his book "Lincoln's Doctor's Dog" to fit in somepin fer everybody. They probable is a magazine jest fer dogs, allowed Clem.

General speaking, said Ed Doolittle, that's the way everthing is run these days. We're getting to specialized, he said, with confusion about the only thing left the same. Ed said the last census missed 5.3 million people, and more than 90 per cent of folks that filled income tax this year got their own address wrong.

Ed was fer starting a magazine called "Lost" fer folks that don't know who or where they are.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Rawson Library adds new titles

A new shipment of books arrived at Rawson Memorial Library this week. A few of the titles are "The Chandler Heritage" by Ben Hass, "Mantida" by Paul Gallien, "No Holiday for Crime" by Dell Shannon, "The Ledger" by Dorothy Umak, "Feathers in the Fire" by Catherine Cookson, "The Condor Passes" by Shirley Ann Grau, "The House of the Dead" by D. E. Stevenson, "The Bloody Field" by Edith Pargeter, "The Crystal Mouse" by Babs Deal, "The Summer Queen" by Alice Graham, "The Informant" by Mildred Gordon, and "On Court with the Superstars" by Merv Harris.

A series of six weekly story hours will begin this Friday at 10 a.m. Children three years old through third grade are invited to come.

Twenty-six children have enrolled for the "Treasure Hunt Reading Club" so far. There is still time to ask Mrs. Hutchinson at the library for details.

Group collects coupons for fire truck

Before you throw away that empty cereal box, check to be sure you've removed that General Mills coupon. You could use it to help buy a fire truck.

Members of the Ladies Auxiliary of VFW Post 4164 in Caro, are asking all area residents to save those coupons to help purchase a new fire truck for the Veterans of Foreign Wars National Home, located 20 miles south of Lansing.

The home, situated in a village setting, provides a place to live for about 200 children (orphans of war veterans), their mothers and house parents. It is entirely self-sufficient, even to the operation of its own fire department. Ten high school boys act as volunteer firemen. They assist neighboring communities in emergencies as well as providing fire protection to their own village.

The junior girls unit of the National Home has undertaken the project of replacing the 20-year-old fire truck now in use. It is estimated that between six and eight million coupons will be needed to purchase a new truck.

General Mills has agreed to give one-half cent for each coupon toward the goal of $31,000 to $40,000.

The main sources of revenue for the home are the sale of poppies, proceeds of the national home Christmas Seals, gifts and life memberships in the home purchased by VFW and Auxiliary members.

Coupons may be sent to Lena Haney, R#3, Cass City, or to Beatrice Cox, 633 Meek St., Caro. Coupons may also be deposited in a box located in the lobby of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department in Caro.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

Chautauqua

By Jim Ketchum

There aren't too many Shangri-Las left anymore, and the number continues to dwindle. More and more, air, water and noise pollution continue to turn once-beautiful, peaceful retreats into nothing more than touristtraps, complete with popcorn stands, gas pumps, vending machine and overflowing garbage cans that do nothing more than allow the winds to scatter refuse to the four corners of the globe.

More beaches are succumbing to the bulldozer and his bulldozer, the wire fence and large and unattractive KEEP OUT signs.

When an unspoiled place can be found, it is a rarity indeed. Such a place is Chautauqua.

Chautauqua Institution, located on the shores of majestic Lake Chautauqua in western New York remains resplendent in quiet solitude if you want it and the joy of a return to the good things of life.

Chautauqua began as a Sunday school camp about a century ago where instructors could gather for study, rest and inspiration. Nestled among giant maple trees which come aglow with autumn majesty, the camp grew into an institution which nurtures music, the arts and philosophy, as well as religion.

But there is something else preserved at Chautauqua. Peace.

During the season at Chautauqua which usually runs from the last week in June through the last week in August, no automobiles are allowed on the grounds. You either walk or ride a bicycle. It seems strange, indeed to be able to walk down paved streets without fear of being run down by a supercharged Hemi or a semi. Birds build nests undisturbed practically anywhere handy and squirrels roam back and forth across the streets at a leisurely pace.

I discovered beautiful Chautauqua last year. My wife's parents own a summer cottage on the grounds, shaded all day by ten-foot plus maple trees that keep the house cool even on the warmest of days. They call the cottage "Rest Haven" and a better name could not be found.

The routine of life lends itself to the name. On a typical day, we awaken to the sound of the wind rustling the trees or an occasional robin or blue jay making his morning music. After breakfast and a leisurely stroll to the post office which occupies a columned, brick building, and a peek in some of the store windows, the morning lends itself to sitting in the porch swing, reading a magazine or a book or merely watching people go by.

At Rest Haven, games of marbles, scrabble, hearts, darts and chess command portions of the day. After lunch and another stroll around the grounds, a nap may be in order, along with more life-watching.

During the season, evenings can be taken up with any one of numerous activities. Something is usually going on at the Amphitheatre, Norton Opera House or in Restor Plaza. Concerts, lectures, folk singing, and on occasion, a jazz band may be featured.

Sundays are special at Chautauqua. Scattered about the grounds are denominational houses for nearly every branch of Christianity, where morning worship services are held. Following these, a general morning worship is held at the Amphitheatre, complete with choirs and a pipe organ that literally rattles the rafters on the old place.

As this crescendo of activity dies away, the afternoon melts into uncluttered quiet, with only the breeze to disturb the peace of it all.

The famous from other eras have visited Chautauqua. President Ulysses S. Grant was there. So was William James, the author. President Franklin D. Roosevelt delivered his famous "I hate war" speech at Chautauqua.

Chautauqua strives to keep its traditional atmosphere as much as possible. Residents scurry about each spring opening their houses, painting, washing, sweeping and airing their homes, many of which date to the turn of the century. On a still evening, the smell of drying paint can be detected in sections of the grounds.

Lawns are well-manicured and most are rich with a myriad of flowers that defy description.

No hot dog stands, hamburger joints or crass, take-out restaurants can be found on the grounds. A place called the Rectory supplies these needs without so much as a neon sign or flashing lights. Inside, a Franklin stove highlights the store where a customer can order any quick snack without being rock and rolled to death with blaring music or having the person waiting on you ignore you until you forget what it is you want.

At the book store, not so much as one dirty book can be found. Questionable publications are also hard to come by. So far, I've never found a copy of Acapulco Gold on the shelves. There really is not much of a clientele for such publications in Chautauqua. Most residents living there are either intelligent enough or old enough to not be interested in that sort of thing.

In Restor Plaza, a Yoga devotee can stand on the hands, knees, head or any other part of his or her body completely unmolested. On a nearby bench, another student of the arts will study Aristotle while, near the fountain, a group of young people play guitars and sing folk songs.

But the ultimate attraction is the lake. A walk in the evening by its shore makes every care you ever had or hope to have melt into total oblivion. Lake Chautauqua runs about 20 miles in length and narrows at one point where a small auto ferry daily transports cars back and forth. This, unfortunately, is the last year for the Stowe Ferry, however. A touch of progress has invaded the place and the boat will be scrapped in favor of a bridge which will span the short distance.

At night, the lake takes on a serenity that can only be experienced. The rest of the world melts away, along with its pettiness, war, hatred and misunderstanding, and leaves the observer with a feeling of contentment not found in the world of timeclocks, deadlines and hurry-up-and-wait that boggles the mind and confuses perception of self and neighbor.

As the venerable bell tower chimes the hour and the sun sets in the west, glistening on the shimmering waters of the lake, you realize that this is what nature is all about and this is what we, as humans are about. So, boss, take this as a warning. If some Monday I don't show up for work, don't worry. I'll be filing my dispatches from the shores of beautiful Lake Chautauqua, reporting on real life.

Ability helps men set a sane policy today out of the blunders and troubles of yesterday.

Services held for John Tekieli

John Tekieli, 85, Decker, died at McKenzie Memorial Hospital in Sandusky, Sunday, June 17, where he had been a patient five days. He had been in ill health the past four years.

Mr. Tekieli was born in Andryehor, Poland, June 6, 1888, the son of the late Jacob and Anna Tekieli.

He came to this country when young and settled in Detroit. He came to Decker from Detroit 25 years ago where he lived until his death.

Mr. Tekieli was a retired farmer in Evergreen Township. He is survived by a number of nieces and nephews. Two brothers and one sister preceded him in death.

Wake services were held Tuesday evening from Little's Funeral Home.

Funeral services were conducted from St. Pancratius Church, Wednesday, with Rev. Leo Gengler officiating.

Interment was in Elkland cemetery.

The world-famous Stearns Collection of Musical Instruments, given to The University of Michigan in 1899, now contains more than 2,500 items.

Crop insurance

reporting date

June 30

Area farmers who are federal Crop Insurance Corporation policyholders are reminded that the final date for reporting their acres of crops for insurance purposes is June 30. Any crops that are reported after this date and suffered previous damage could result in no insurance coverage, explains Earl Wilson, Director of the Contract Service Center, Springfield, Illinois.

In the five states serviced out of the Springfield center, Federal Crop Insurance Corporation has approximately 20,000 spring crop contracts with farmers protecting their crops against all natural hazards from planting until harvest.

Convention set for Michigan twins

It's convention time again for the Michigan Twin Association. Kit Okerstrom, 8736 Third St., and her identical twin sister Carrie Blades, are co-Presidents of the club this year and are making final plans for the convention which will be held at Edelweiss Lodge at Cadillac. This will be the 27th annual convention of the association. Several contests will be held, including most alike twins for boys or girls in three age divisions, most unlike twins in two categories and youngest and oldest twins.

All twins are invited to participate in the convention beginning Friday night and running through Sunday.

For further information, contact Kit Okerstrom, 8736 Third St. at 872-4243.

The Michigan Twin Association is a non-profit organization and was formed in Grand Rapids in 1947.

BETTER HEALTH

Being a better patient

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

That friendly and able physician, Dr. William Nolen, recently wrote an article (Today's Health, April, 1973), containing some rules to make a person a better patient, and this information is often much needed.

During my lifetime in medicine, hundreds of times I have marveled at the fact that the person who came to consult me said that he had been to a dozen doctors and clinics and had gotten no help. Why had he gotten no help? Because he had either failed to tell the doctors the important facts about his illness, or he had failed to answer their questions honestly.

Hundreds of times, in trying to find out whether or not a certain symptom was psychically or nervously produced, I have asked a patient if there was any severe neurosis or epilepsy in any close member of his family, and he has said, "absolutely not."

Many and many times I got an honest answer only after I had made friends with the patient for 10 days. It was because of this refusal or failure to tell the story properly that he had not gotten help before.

Dr. Nolen tells how so often a woman will lie to him about how long she has known about a lump in her breast. She will say she discovered it two or three days before, when in reality she has known about it for several months. The danger of her lying is that if the lump has grown virtually overnight, it is most probably a cyst, but if it has grown steadily for six months, it will be necessary to schedule surgery immediately.

I have known of patients who lied about bleeding from the rectum, not mentioning it to their doctor until it was too late to save them from a cancer of the rectum that has spread to other organs of the body. Also, as Dr. Nolen says, patients consistently lie about how much they drink or smoke; I had one woman patient who had been from clinic to clinic, complaining about a bad diarrhea, and it was only because her family doctor tipped me off that she drank much more whiskey than was good for her that led me to the cause of her troubles.

Another patient of mine, a sweet, merry old farmer, ran up several hundred dollars worth of bills to find the cause of his abdominal distress, before I asked his wife what she thought was wrong. She said, "I don't know why he's here wasting our money; he knows what the trouble is. He goes on a binge of chewing tobacco and swallowing the juice, and that makes him sick."

When I asked the old farmer if his wife was right he said, "Yes, but I hoped you'd find something else, so I could go on chewing."

Dr. Nolen has some other suggestions for patients: Don't ask to be hospitalized unnecessarily. He says that oftentimes, when a patient learns that she needs some X-ray studies which could be done outside the hospital, she asks to have them made in the hospital, so as to be able to take the expense off of her insurance. What such people don't realize is that unnecessary hospitalizations raise hospital costs, and eventually this means higher insurance premiums which we must all pay.

Another bad habit some patients have is the avoidance of some part of the examination, when the doctor feels this is necessary. Dr. Nolen tells about a Mrs. Robbins who dropped in when he had a cancellation, asking for something for her stomach. When he asked to examine her, she said that she didn't have time because her daughter was getting married and she was in too much of a hurry.

Mrs. Robbins was insistent on rushing out as soon as she got an antacid, and she did not come back soon for an examination as Dr. Nolen asked. As a result, a month later she had to have an emergency operation for a perforated stomach ulcer. Although Dr. Nolen admits to part of the blame, because he did not insist on examining her, he says that she had acted irresponsibly in putting a hair appointment before her examination, and she had made his job of helping her much more difficult.

Another good suggestion Dr. Nolen makes is that the patient follow his doctor's instructions. This is so important. Many and many a time, I have found a drug that gave a patient much relief, only to find that after a while he stopped taking it, and was then soon back in my office with his old problem. When I ask the patient why he stopped taking the drug, he says, "I just wanted to see if I could get along without it."

Other patients fail to return to the doctor for a follow-up check; or they fail to fill a prescription, or to go for a test that was ordered. Or they leave the doctor's office without fully understanding what the doctor has said.

Dr. Nolen encourages patients to ask questions, although he admits that some doctors do not care to answer a patient's questions. Others do not think to explain to the patient what they know so well themselves, and they may not like to have the patient tell them if he does not understand.

As Dr. Nolen says, "You're entitled to the information and the doctor has an obligation to give it. I don't know any reputable physician who wants to keep pertinent information from his patient."

Dr. Nolen would much rather have the patient ask, than to leave the office, muttering about his failure to get information. Finally, Dr. Nolen says so wisely that it takes two people, a doctor and a patient working together, to cure illness, and the sensible patient helps his doctor as much as possible.

Are nervous pains real? What can a physician do to help? Dr. Alvarez answers these and other questions in his booklet "Triumph Over Nervousness." For your copy send 15 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. CCC, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

Set Jr. Wrangler horse show for June 30

Preparations are under way for the Cass City Jr. Wranglers 4-H Club Horse show to be held June 30 at the village park.

Gate fee is $1.00 per car. Entry fee is $1.50 per class. The show will consist of 20 different classes for judging in four major categories. Such categories as halter class, showmanship, western pleasure horses and horsemanship with horse or pony will be judged. Ribbons and trophies will be awarded.

Anyone wishing to enter in any class should contact Ronald Kuenzli, 5087 Green Rd., before June 23. Mail-in entries should be postmarked by that date.

Judge for the show will be Elmer Snyder of Swartz Creek.

Youth Action Day set for June 23 at MSU

Tuscola County residents can get a peek at the future when General Motors' "Previews of Progress" research-in-action science show appears during "Youth Action Day," Saturday, June 23, in Spartan Stadium Concourse at Michigan State University.

"Youth Action Day," the climax of 4-H Exploration Days, includes action exhibits, workshops, demonstrations, and live performances. "Previews of Progress" along with more than 100 other displays will be open to the public without charge beginning at 9 a.m. and running continuously until 2:30 p.m.

"Previews of Progress," a noncommercial show, seeks to inspire more interest in science, engineering and related technical and vocational fields," according to Bernard Jarlot, Tuscola County 4-H youth agent.

Featured in the show are demonstrations depicting current research in America's laboratories and contributions of research to modern living. Included are two energy conversion demonstrations which show how gas turbine engines and solar cells can be used as alternate power sources. Solar cells change sunlight into usable energy. Viewers will also be shown recent developments aimed at solving air and water pollution problems.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hunter of Grosse Pointe Woods spent the week end here. They brought Mr. Hunter's mother, Mrs. C. P. Hunter, home. She had spent five weeks with her son and wife.

George Gardner of Lincoln Park brought Mrs. Irma Proulx to her home Saturday evening. She had spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Gardner and visited her son, Gerald Proulx, at Veterans Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Wald were their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. William Merz and family of Saginaw, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wald and family of here.

Last Tuesday the following ladies spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Polk at their new home near Uby: Aura Beaudon, Lucille LaFave, Cecil Zurov and Gerry Carolan. They took a birthday cake to help Mrs. Polk celebrate her birthday, which was June 10.

Are you insuring just half a house?

Like everything else, your home costs more to replace today than it did a few years ago. If your insurance isn't up-to-date, you may be insuring just half of it.

A talk with us about current values, and how we actually can give you more coverage, economically, with Michigan Mutual's Home-Gard Homeowners Policy, will be worth your while. Give us a call.

Mrs. Earl Springstead and niece, Debbie Horvath, attended open house Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Regnerus of Mt. Clemens. The occasion was in honor of Mrs. Springstead's grandson, Bill Regnerus, who graduated June 7 from Mt. Clemens High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Johnson were Sunday visitors of Mr. Johnson's brother, George Johnson, and family of Vassar.

WOMEN'S DEPARTMENT

The RLDS Women's Department met Thursday, June 14, for a noon luncheon with Mrs. Curtis Cleland, hostess.

The meeting was begun by Mrs. Don Smith, women's leader, reading poems. The worship service was in charge of Mrs. Dean Smith. The lesson from "Women to Women" was taught by Mrs. Wilfred Turner.

The friendly visitor, Mrs. Voyle Dorman, gave her report for the last month. Roll was answered by guessing secret friends and new names were drawn for next year.

There won't be a meeting or bake sale in July, due to the church reunion. The August bake sale will be held one week earlier, due to the Gregg and Gazan wedding, with Mrs. Don Smith and Mrs. Ryerson Putbaugh in charge.

The August regular meeting will be with Mrs. Gerald Miller. The group voted to serve at the Women's tea at the Blue Water Reunion at Lexington in July.

W S C S

Diane Loeding, Sally Smith, Sue Cooklin spent Saturday overnight with Sherrie Smith and to celebrate her birthday.

The W S C S of the Methodist Church met Wednesday evening, June 13, with Mrs. Lloyd Bader. The Deford WSCS were guests.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Robert Bader, president. Two poems were read by Mrs. Dick Wallace and Mrs. Arlie Gray. Allen Lewis, vice-president of the district Methodist Women, was guest speaker. She spoke on "Who Are You?"

The next meeting will be held July 11 at the home of Rev. Carl Shambien.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Smith were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Geister and family of Marlette.

Bruce Kritzman came home Thursday morning after being a patient in Hills and Dales Hospital.

The RLDS Vacation Bible School program is Friday evening at 8 p.m. Mrs. Robert Sawdon is director.

Services Friday for Mrs. Summers

Mrs. Wealthy Summers, 84, Gagetown, died suddenly Tuesday, June 12, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Milton Woolner near Bad Axe.

She was born Feb. 25, 1889, in Gifford township, the daughter of the late Parley and Carrie Schaefer Summers. She lived in the area all her life.

She married Ostrum Summers in 1909. He died in January of 1952.

Mrs. Summers was a member of the Gagetown Church of the Nazarene.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. William Severen and Mrs. Frank Atkinson, both of Elkton, Mrs. Harry Russell of Owendale and Mrs. Milton Woolner of Bad Axe; three sons, Lawrence of Gagetown, Alton of Saginaw and Chilton of L'Anse; 22 grandchildren, 33 great-grandchildren, four great-great-grandchildren, one brother, Mose Sherman of Flint, and three sisters, Mrs. Harriet Moore of Gregory, Mrs. Lucina Graeger of Ann Arbor and Mrs. Ruby Baker of Ann Arbor.

Diane Leslie takes 4-H course in Washington

Diane Leslie returned this week from Washington, D.C., where she attended a Citizenship Short Course at the National 4-H Center. Miss Leslie was one of 39 delegates from the counties of Sanilac, Huron and Tuscola to participate in the course. During the summer more than 6,000 teenage 4-H members from 42 states will attend.

Designed to develop a greater understanding of individual responsibilities of citizenship, the one-week session was filled with listening, learning, sharing and touring.

"The most interesting part of the Course was being part of a huge group of people who are interested in improving the country they live in," Miss Leslie reported.

The program featured small group discussions of contemporary topics. She attended sessions on Family and Community Development. It stressed how to create a better community and to develop a closeness in family.

The group saw the federal government in action through a session of the executive branch held at the U. S. Department of Agriculture and by spending a day on Capital Hill with James Harvey, House in session, June 13.

Field trips to historic sites included Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Arlington Cemetery, Marine, Mt. Vernon, White House, Capitol and Gettysburg.

"Most important of all," Miss Leslie said, "was learning ways to put citizenship into action in our own community. I intend to give the most I learned from this trip to my 4-H Club." The Citizenship Short Course is conducted by the National 4-H Foundation in support of the 4-H Program of the Cooperative Extension Service.

Commissioners order speed-up to cut drain work backlog

A backlog of drain construction caused by a number of factors, has caused concern on the part of the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners.

Drain Commissioner Leslie Lounsbury appeared before the board's Tuesday session and explained that a lack of personnel is hampering the operations of the commission in terms of constructing new drains and repairing old ones.

According to County Commissioner Maynard McConkey, the revolving drain fund, set up to finance preliminary work such as engineering and condemnations, has been depleted to the tune of some $90,000. That figure could increase, he said, unless action is taken soon.

According to McConkey, the board told Lounsbury to begin utilizing a drain inspector on a full-time basis. Until now, the inspector, Ed Goodchild, has been working on a part time basis for the drain commission.

He indicated that locating absentee owners and completing condemnations is also holding up drain progress. Normally condemnations take between 30 and 60 days to complete.

McConkey explained that money paid to complete preliminary drain work comes from the revolving fund. When the drain work is completed, and the valuation of the property is adjusted accordingly, this money is recovered from taxes in the first year.

The board is currently holding the fund until it can be determined how it could be used more effectively. Another meeting between Lounsbury and the commissioners is set for next Tuesday.

McConkey said that in the past five years, drain construction costs have more than doubled. Still, a backlog exists and continues to grow, he added. He indicated that a Port Huron firm which has done drain work in the county is asking for payment on seven drains. So far, however, these monies have not been assessed on the tax roll.

The board also heard a report from Dennis Johnson, Mental Health Director for Tuscola County, Johnson, who has been head of the department since April 19, reported that he had hired staff personnel including a counselor, Randy Atwood. Atwood holds a masters degree in social studies.

Johnson indicated that approximately 350 persons in the county are in need of some kind of aid from his department.

The board also heard a report from two representatives from a plumbing firm concerning the possibility of air conditioning for the court house building.

The structure, built in the late 1920's, currently has an air moving system which has been deemed inadequate to meet present needs.

Preliminary estimates place the cost of air conditioning the building at about $100,000. Commissioner McConkey said the project, when finalized would have to be let out for bids. He indicated that other firms will be contacted with estimates before any action by the board is taken.

Services held

for Julia Baker

Mrs. Julia Baker, 64, DeFord, died Tuesday in Hills and Dales General Hospital following a long illness.

She was born Sept. 5, 1918 in Longdale, W. Va. She married Joseph Baker, Oct. 21, 1950. She is survived by her husband, Joseph; a sister, Mrs. John Mahes, Unionville; four brothers, Julius and Joseph Pistro, both of Detroit; John Pistro, Colorado Springs, and Charles Pistro, Gagetown.

Funeral services were held Friday from Little's Funeral Home with Rev. Chester Swaffer, pastor of the Carsonville Full Gospel Deliverance Church, officiating.

Burial was in Novesta Cemetery.

Abortion issue far from settled despite supreme court ruling

The abortion issue is far from settled despite the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling that abortion cannot be outlawed in the United States. The highly controversial subject still is debated.

The final determination that it is legal has produced other problems. For example, should a doctor or nurse who believes abortion is murder be forced to take part in such an operation?

Legislation guaranteeing any medical facility or person the right to refuse to participate in an abortion already has passed the Senate and appears sure of legislative approval. Its backers hold that persons with a strong moral objection to abortion should not be subject to any penalties for refusing to participate.

The issue simply isn't that simple.

Some people feel such legislation might have the effect of depriving a woman of an abortion when the nation's highest court has ruled she has the right to have one if she wants it.

Nancy Hammond of the Michigan Women's political caucus said such bills "in effect give publicly-funded institutions the right to deny medical services to women in Michigan on religious grounds without regard for their constitutional rights."

It's impossible to resolve the question to the satisfaction of everyone involved because it is such an emotional issue and people on both sides are convinced they are right.

Backers of abortion are firmly convinced the operation does not constitute "murder" of the embryo since it is at a stage where it is unable to sustain itself outside mother. They do not concede human life begins at the moment of conception.

Opponents feel just the opposite. It's an issue, in other words, that may linger for a long time with neither side convincing the other.

HELP OFFERED

Two recent actions in Lansing are designed to help make it possible for the "average citizen" to get a complaint through to state government.

One involved establishment of a toll-free telephone service in the Land Sales Division of the Department of Licensing and Regulation. The number is 800 (which means it is toll free) 292-2431.

Anyone who feels he was dealt with unfairly in the purchase of resort land or who has questions about a possible purchase should call the number to check with state officials about the purchase.

The other action involved the appointment of an "ombudsman" to field citizen complaints made to the State Highway Department about construction of I-96 Freeway through Macomb and Oakland counties. The ombudsman is Lloyd Jakubus and he is stationed in Huntington Woods. His telephone number is 548-7350 - not toll free.

NO WOMEN'S PRIVILEGE

Efforts to reverse state ratification of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the U. S. Constitution can't go far. The controversial proposition was approved in the Michigan Legislature last year, and in other states too. Now some of the states have changed their minds. An effort to reconsider the issue here was proposed by some.

Then Attorney General Frank J. Kelley pretty well shut the door on the idea. He said that once the Legislature ratifies an amendment to the Constitution it stays ratified. Otherwise, he said, when it was decided to repeal Prohibition, it wouldn't have been necessary for Congress and the state legislature to pass a repeal amendment.

Kelley's ruling didn't convince all the members of the legislature and a few say they'll keep trying to rescind the approval anyway.

Rep. Josephine Hunsinger, D-Detroit, the lawmaker who originally asked for Kelley's opinion, said she'd ignore it because "I believe that there is a substantial legal doubt in his opinion."

Since both houses originally overwhelmingly approved it, it's doubtful enough minds will be changed to put Kelley's opinion to a legal test.

One powerful voice on the side of the ERA is House Speaker William A. Ryan. After Kelley released his opinion, Ryan said that took care of the matter and said, "The time is now for us to move forward to eradicate inequality of the sexes and I would call on my colleagues in the legislature to turn their attention to this most crucial task."

What Ryan wants, he most usually gets.

Church loop in power shift

It may be that the balance of power in the Cass City Church League has shifted.

In the early running the surprise of the league have been Catholics who have been taking their lumps with regularity in contrast to recent seasons when they were strong challengers for the league and play-off titles.

A team that has been stronger than in recent years is the Baptists who are riding the strong right arm of Craig Helwig to easy victories.

Of course the Baptists have yet to meet the Methodists and the defending regular season champs show no signs of relinquishing their toga without a struggle.

Tuesday, June 12, Helwig pitched a strong one-hitter in a 7-2 decision over Church of Christ. Helwig struck out 14 and only Scott Hartel was able to garner a safety. Don Englehart took the loss and Dean Hoag went 2 for 2 at the plate.

Thursday Shabbona squeaked by Owen-Gage, 9-8, in extra innings. Dale Smith hurled the win and Dennis Koch was the loser. Roy Sefton went two for four.

In the nightcap Thursday, the Methodists edged the Lutherans, 2-1, in a well played game. The game was featured by the hurling of two crafty veterans. Eldon Stoutenburg was credited with the win while Nelson Willy took the loss. No one was able to pick up more than a single safety.

Friday the Church of Christ had a field day at the plate with a 14-4 win over the Catholics. Don Englehart breezed to the win while Phil Gray was pounded and took the loss. In the final of the week Cass City Missionary romped over Snover Laing 16-2 in a game called after five innings when the winners were ahead by more than 10 runs.

Roger Root was the easy winner and Gene Dorman charged with the defeat.

Nearly every player in the Missionary line-up picked up a couple of hits. Stine registered a perfect night with four for four.

Girls lose first in softball loop

The Cass City's Women's softball team lost their 1st game to Peck last Tuesday night at Sandusky. The score was 14 to 4. Betty Ballagh was the leading hitter with a single and a double. Char Fahrner was the losing pitcher.

Cass City played a home game against Carsonville Wednesday night and won 22-12 in a five inning game. Betty Ballagh hit 2 doubles and a single. Char Fahrner had 2 singles and a double and Kally Pine had 2 hits. Mrs. Fahrner and Elaine Stoutenburg shared the pitching duties with Mrs. Fahrner getting the win. Cass City is now 3-1 for the season.

Cass City plays the late home game Wednesday against Marlette, and Thursday in Sandusky at 7:15.

3 girls at CMU school for basketball

Three Cass City girls are currently participating in Central Michigan University's Girls' Basketball School. Melonie Kelley, Cris Krueger and Caren Martin are enrolled in the school which is a part of the off-campus education program of CMU in conjunction with the women's physical education program.

The school is open to girls enrolled in grades eight through 12. It is the only school of its kind in the state sponsored by a university.

The school divides the participants into two groups, beginning and intermediate, on the basis of past experience, with these groups divided into teams for instruction. The groups get together several times during the week for various contests, as well as work on fundamental skills.

The final day of the school features the finals of a free throw shooting contest and several games, with each participant getting the opportunity to play.

Present service awards at Walbro picnic

Service awards were presented at the annual Walbro Corporation picnic held June 6 in Caro and June 8 at Cass City. The company presented two awards for 20 years of service to Walter E. Walpole, company president, and to William Eberline, engineer.

Four persons qualified for awards for 15 years of service. They include Maynard Helwig, Charles Tuckey, Eleanor Franzel and Beatrice Peters.

Completing 10 years with Walbro were Hedy Kessler, Florence Searls and Betty Elliott.

Employees with five years included Wilbert Neiman, Jim Peyer, Bobbie O'Dell, Chuck Holm, Lee Hartel, Richard Wright, Robert Osentoski, Joyce Brown, Sue McNeil and Emma Nichols.

Two employees were recognized for service on their retirement. They included Charles Hartel of Cass City and Helen Schmidt of Cass City. Ms. Schmidt had completed over 10 years with the company.

WAYS AND MEANS

The paramount issue at this time of year seems to center around the annual vacation and the family budget.

Erla's roll to 4 wins in week

It was a good week for Erla's Softball team. The club played three games and was credited with four wins advancing in the Thumb Traveling League and in the Pro-Am Tournament at Saginaw.

In the unique Invitational tournament that stretches over two week ends, the Foodmen whipped Polzin Carpet Friday and won by a forfeit over Hillside Merchants Saturday.

The opening week end is single elimination competition. Teams surviving then play in a double elimination tournament this Friday, Saturday and Sunday to determine the Pro-Am winners. Erla's will play its first game Friday at 7 p.m.

Don McGill pitched a three-hitter in Erla's 8-2 nod over Polzin. Charlie McGill with three hits in four tries showed the way for the winners.

In league play the victory was tougher. Vassar State Bank bowed in a donnybrook that saw most of the action occur in the final inning.

It was a pitching duel between Don McGill and V. Albrecht. Going into the last inning Erla's trailed 3-0 and things looked dark for Coach Dan Erla's crew.

But a couple of walks, coupled with an error and key hits produced four big runs and the victory. Key blows were collected by Wally Hempton, who doubled, and Don McGill, who rapped a single.

While it was nip and tuck against Vassar, the last league game of the week was a slaughter as Erla's won 20-3 in a game called after five innings.

It's well that it ended then as the scorekeeper might have needed a computer to keep up. If it continued, in the fifth inning Erla's scored 11 runs on eight hits and the blasts included two home runs. Don McGill was again on the mound.

ELKLAND TOWNSHIP FIREMEN assisted the Caro Fire Dept. in fighting this blaze at the home of Edward Dillon, Jr., 2911 Dickerson Rd., Friday afternoon. Officials estimated a $10,000 loss to home and contents. See story Page 1

Summer cage team open to high schoolers

Cass City has entered a team in the Thumb-area summer basketball league. Coach Fred Hurlburt announced this week.

The summer league basketball is open to all boys of high school age and Hurlburt said that all boys who sign will have a chance to play in the games.

The squad was to have played Caro at the high school gym Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the second of a nine-game schedule that will be completed by mid-July.

The schedule:
June 20 Caro, at home.
June 25, Vassar, away.
June 27, Millington, at home.
July 2, Kinston, away.
July 9, Caseville, at home.
July 11, Akron-Fairgrove, away.
July 12, Mayville, at home.
July 16, Sandusky, at home.

Colonial Cattle

Beef was considered a by-product of cattle by early American colonists who valued the animals more for their ability to work, their milk and hides. With wild game in plentiful supply and cattle scarce, the meat from cattle was of little economic importance. Some of the town meetings of the time even passed ordinances prohibiting the slaughter of oxen before they had passed the useful work age.

Recreation schedule

Here is a schedule of activities for the girls' summer recreation program for the week of June 25:

Monday: 9 a.m. noon, arts and crafts; noon to 1 p.m., tennis; 1 p.m. 2 p.m., softball; ages 5-10; 2 p.m. 4 p.m., softball; ages 11-13.

Tuesday: 9 a.m. noon, arts and crafts; noon to 1 p.m., tumbling and gymnastics; 1 p.m. 2 p.m., girls basketball; ages 5-10; 2 p.m. 3 p.m., girls basketball; ages 11-13.

Wednesday: Trip to Caseville. $1.00 per student. Bring sack lunch. Bus leaves at 10:00 a.m.

Thursday: 9 a.m. noon, arts and crafts; 1 p.m. 2 p.m., girls basketball; ages 5-10; 2 p.m. 3 p.m., girls basketball; ages 11-13.

Friday: 9 a.m. noon, arts and crafts; 9 a.m. 11 a.m., tennis; 1 p.m. 2 p.m., girls softball; ages 5-10; 2 p.m. 3 p.m., girls softball; ages 11-13.

Arts and crafts meet at the Intermediate school cafeteria. Softball meets at the Little league diamond. Tennis meets at the tennis courts. Basketball and gymnastics meet at the Intermediate school gym.

Students wishing to participate must be registered. Registration cards may be picked up at the old pool room.

AGENT'S CORNER

The great onion shortage

Allene Mills - Extension Agent

Yes, there really has been an onion shortage--quantity down and prices up! In fact, it was the greatest shortage in fifty years, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service.

The spring crop coming to market now from Texas, California, and Arizona is responsible for bringing onion prices back down from the record high they reached earlier this spring. However, the spring onion crop is down 9 percent from last year, so prices probably will remain above normal until the summer crop reaches the market.

The blame for the absence of the "rose of roots" from the American dinner tables earlier this year lies chiefly with the weather and the crop damage it caused in the number two and three onion producing states, Texas and New York. California is number one.

New York's crop is a main source of supply for all states in the East. Its product is the storage onion--the bright yellow, pungent bulb usually in ample retail supply through the fall and winter.

What happened in New York state? The rains from the tropical storm, Agnes, that physically washed out the soil made it impossible to replant many of the same fields. This cut New York's onion production in half and reduced the total U. S.

crop by nearly seven percent. Under normal conditions, onion lovers might have looked to the 1973 early spring crop in south Texas to alleviate the March and April shortage. But this past winter brought cold weather and rain.

Looking back--during the Korean War and World War II, onion supplies were a little tight--but, this has been the "greatest onion shortage".

But--then there has been a worldwide shortage, too--which compounded the domestic onion situation this year. The U. S. void could not be filled with imports from western Europe, Chile, or Canada, because they were suffering from scarcities of their own. Although Mexico doubled its normal exports to the United States, this was still not nearly enough to make up for the short crop in New York.

The American Consumer likes onions. But--how many onions does the American consumer want? Statistically--even when supplies do not meet demand, and prices are up, each of the 210 million consumers still wants 13 pounds of onions each year. This includes onions consumed daily in vast quantities in America's network of restaurant and roadside chains, the onion products--especially dried onions and French fried onion rings. And, we use a lot of those, too.

How small a man seems -- walking down a lonely road on a rainy day, with gaunt trees towering over him.

How small man is, and how frail in body. The trees in the picture and even the chimneys on the old house will probably long outlive the man.

Yet how big man is -- in the things that are not of the body, but are of the mind and soul. God has not made man mammoth. But He has made him potentially great -- if he will but accept the blessings given him, and use the tools of Christian teachings.

Man finds in the Church, the encouragement and the instruction to enable him to make from his God-given divine spark something great and enduring -- and of benefit to all human-kind.

Coleman man begins internship at Trinity

Calvin Long, Coleman, has begun a nine-week internship at Trinity United Methodist Church. Long, a graduate of Delta College, was selected from several applicants by the Detroit Conference Summer Vocational Intern Program Committee to work in youth ministry at the church.

Long will work in youth activities, visit homes, help plan the fall program and assist with the worship service and Bible study group on Sundays.

The church also announces that a Vacation Church School will meet every Wednesday morning from 9:30 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. in the educational rooms of the church. Classes are provided for children from nursery through grade 6.

The series began Wednesday. Special services for children will be held at the church during regular worship hour at 9:45 a.m. Called Children's Chapel, the services are designed for elementary school children.

Rev. E.D.K. Isaacs, pastor of the church, has announced that, for the third consecutive summer, the Sunday morning worship service will be held in cooperation with the Salem Church. Persons may attend either the 9:45 a.m. service at Trinity or the 11:00 a.m. service at Salem. There will be an exchange of pastors with each preaching at both services on alternate Sundays.

Women's Study

Club meets

The last meeting of the Woman's Study Club was held at Crossroads, where a luncheon was served to 33 members and visitors.

A letter from Mrs. J. David, president of East Central District was read. She reminded club members that a work shop will be held in Flint, June 28 and a Federation Day will be held in Interlochen on July 25. Mrs. E. McCullough gave a report of the County Federation of Women held at Akron in May. It was the club's 50th anniversary and a tea was given for all past presidents.

The yearly club reports of treasurer and secretary were read. Mrs. F. Pinney gave the treasurer's report and Mrs. E. Croft gave the secretary's report.

Pet peeve

No shows

Persons who don't show up for appointments is a pet peeve of Mrs. Barbara Hutchinson, librarian at Rawson Memorial Library.

"It really gets me when someone will set a time for an appointment and then change it at the last moment without any notice," Mrs. Hutchinson says. "Usually there is a telephone at hand that the person could use to notify the other party that the time had been changed."

Persons who show up extremely late for appointments also bother Mrs. Hutchinson. Mrs. Hutchinson has been a librarian at Rawson for the past two years. She is a native of Cass City. She and her husband, Alvin, reside at 4129 Leach St., and have five children.

MARILEE G. TURNER

Marilee G. Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Turner, 3189 N. Decker Rd., is a candidate for a bachelor of arts degree from Michigan State University.

She will take her final seven credits during summer term at MSU and will graduate with high honors. She currently carries a 3.76 grade point average. Students must carry at least a 3.4 average to achieve this recognition.

Miss Turner graduated from Cass City High School in 1969 and was salutatorian of her class.

She served an internship in accounting last winter and hopes to go into public accounting after her marriage in August.

and Leonard Wooster, Birch Run were sentenced to terms in Jackson prison by Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Norman Baguley. Mason was sentenced to from one and one-half to five years in jail while Wooster received a sentence of from two and one-half to five years in prison.

They were convicted of stealing a safe from the home of Erwin Manchester. Earlier charges of breaking and entering were dismissed.

Mason will receive creditor 50 days already served in jail. Judge Baguley also recommended vocational training for Mason.

Baguley recommended rehabilitation and counseling for Wooster.

In other action, sentencing in the case of Dean Emery, Caro, was continued to June 29. Emery pleaded guilty May 21 to charges of stealing a television set from an appliance store in Caro on March 18.

Sentencing in the case of Courtney Bedell, Vassar, was delayed for six months. Bedell pleaded guilty to an amended charge of obstruction of justice against a Tuscola County Deputy Sheriff last July.

Gordon Houghtelling, Fairgrove, was arraigned on three counts in two separate cases. Houghtelling was arraigned for breaking and entering and larceny of an eight-track tape player from a house in Fairgrove, May 10. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered in his behalf. Pretrial examination was set for July 16, and bond was continued at $500.

In a second case, Houghtelling was arraigned on a charge of stealing six copper cables valued at $190. Further, it is charged that he tried to sell the stolen cables. The theft from Vassar Electroly Products took place May 18.

Houghtelling stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered in his behalf. Pretrial examination was set for July 16, and bond was continued at $500.

Retired railroad worker recalls 42 years on the job

The milk train doesn't stop in Cass City anymore. Neither does the passenger train. And fewer and fewer freight trains are shattering the air with their whistles on the old Grand Trunk.

Frank Mosher, who retired last week from the Grand Trunk after some 42 years of service, remembers when things were different. Mosher is a native of the Owendale-Gagetown area and recalls the regular passenger runs to Cass City and south.

"I remember when Cass City put on its fair," Mosher said, "we'd hop on the train in the morning and come down for the day. When things were over, we'd catch the late afternoon run back home. They used to have real good passenger service here."

Mosher began his career with Grand Trunk on Feb. 10, 1931, and worked on the railroad section gangs most of his time. He recalled during those depression days, his pay amounted to $3.08 per day. When economic conditions reached their worst, the men voluntarily took a 10 per cent pay cut in order to keep their jobs.

"The reason I wasn't laid off was because we shared a job," he said. "There were two men and only one job. We worked it so that we each worked a four-day week every other week. It wasn't a good way to do it, but a loaf of bread was better than not having any at all."

After the depression began to ease and the union became established, work and pay began to improve. By the advent of World War II, six day weeks were mandatory.

In his last two years, Mosher worked in a supervisory capacity until illness forced him to retire.

Mosher says that, while steam locomotives draw a lot of attention and elicit interest from railroad buffs, the diesel powered engines perform as well, if not better than the coal-fired machines. For example, he recalled that between Caseville and Pontiac, a steam locomotive had to stop five times to take on water, while the diesel goes straight through.

"One man can control multiple engines too," he said. "If he needs extra power, he can switch on another engine from his control panel."

Snow was a problem faced by the locomotives over the years. Mosher remembers one instance when a train tried to leave Caseville for Pontiac and traveled less than 300 feet before a large drift stalled it in its tracks.

"The snow rolls up under those wheels and forms ice,"

Evelyn Merchant

receives Delta

scholarship

EVELYN MERCHANT

Evelyn Merchant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Merchant, 5549 Cemetery Rd., has received a scholarship from Delta College for the fall and winter terms.

Miss Merchant is a 1973 graduate of Cass City High School. She plans to study in the medical assistant program.

he explained. "When you get just so much packed in there, you just don't get anywhere."

He remembered in the winter of 1958-59, the tracks were nothing but snow and ice from about Oxford on up. The railroad decided the run was too treacherous and tried to let mother nature take care of the problem. But the Interstate Commerce Commission told Grand Trunk that the line must be cleared.

"It must have taken a good two days to get a path made through the snow and ice so we could get a train through," he said.

Mosher said he has seen a number of train wrecks in his years with the railroad. About the worst one involved a pile-up near Lum, northeast of LaPeer. He said a flash flood had washed out three sections of track. A train tried the run and got past the first wash-out but failed to negotiate the second one. A number of cars were scattered in a swamp in which the accident happened. This was in 1959.

Mosher said he probably won't miss his railroad days too much. He owns a cabin on Caribou lake in the Upper Peninsula where he plans to catch up on some fishing.

"Mostly fish and rest," he said, "that's what I'll be doing."

His cabin, located near Drummond Island, will afford him leisure from years of walking many miles along the rails in all sorts of weather. He said he won't miss that either.

"There's pike and Muskies in that lake and I'd like to fish for them," he smiled. "I can be up there in any kind of weather, because the pantry's stocked with canned goods."

At a retirement party held for Mosher at a local restaurant a couple of weeks ago, he was presented with a gold watch and a pin, honoring his 42 years of service.

Legislature moves to close loophole for drunk drivers

DRUNKS CAUGHT EASIER

A legal loophole so big a drunk driver can go right through it may be closed this year in the Michigan Legislature.

The loophole is this -- under current Michigan law, a state policeman must actually see someone driving a motor vehicle before that person can be forced to take a breathalyzer test. A drunk involved in an accident cannot be forced to take the test if he is able to get from behind the wheel of his car before a policeman arrives.

The loophole causes real fury in the heart of a policeman who knows someone is killed by a drunk driver, yet can do nothing to convict the driver of drunk driving if the driver refuses a test for alcohol blood content. It is a case where the letter of the law clearly violates the spirit of the law.

To correct this incredible situation, State Rep. Dale Warner has introduced legislation which would allow an officer who has "probable cause" to believe someone was driving to force that person to take the test. That person then would be covered by Michigan's "implied consent" law, which says anyone who is driving automatically gives his consent to have his sobriety tested.

Since half of all the people killed on Michigan streets and highways each year -- and the number is already approaching 1,000 for 1973 -- die because they or someone else in the accident was involved to some degree with alcohol, it seems only basic that police would be given the tools they need to combat the problem.

Warner's measure has already passed the House and is waiting for Senate action. There is a question whether the bill will pass the Senate, but backers are sure to make a strong try. With alcohol-involved drivers killing more than 1,000 persons this year in Michigan, they've got strong motivation.

HOT DOG FIGHTS ON

Michigan's beleaguered hot dog may be down, but its goose is not cooked yet.

The most recent installment in its fight for survival came, when the U. S. Supreme Court refused to do anything with a lower court order which said Michigan can't enforce state standards which are stricter than federal on production of meat sold in Michigan but made elsewhere.

That meant such items as lips, ears and udders could be used in hot dogs, sausages and the like. Michigan has, for the past 20 years, allowed only fresh skeletal meat to be used.

Now comes Sen. Robert P. Griffin, who introduced in the U.S. Senate a bill which would let states have standards higher than the federal standards. The bill is before the Senate subcommittee on Agricultural Research and General Legislation. Should anyone want to write to support the bill, the chairman of the subcommittee is Sen. James Allen of Alabama. Address him at the Capitol, Washington, D.C., 20510. Send a copy to Sen. Griffin, same address.

TIRE COMPROMISE POSSIBLE

A compromise may be in the making on the question of whether Michigan should allow the use of studded tires on its highways during winter months. The studded tires have caused a great deal of controversy among those interested in highways because of the substantial damage they do to a pavement.

Visitor lauds area residents for help

June 18, 1973

Editor
Cass City Newspaper
Cass City, Michigan 48726

I visited your area the weekend of June 10, 1973 and wanted to relate an experience with you and the citizens of your area.

The reason we came to your area is that our son races motorcycles and he was competing at the track near Heman and Deford, Michigan. I had just turned west on Stevens road off of M-53 when my car quit operating. I tried and tried to start it, but it would not cooperate.

First, a gentleman and his son stopped and tried to start the car, even to getting greasy by removing and checking various parts of the motor. Second, another couple and their family stopped and they said we will take our trailer and motorcycles to the track and come back and haul your trailer in. My son then rode one of his racing bikes to the track. The first gentleman loaded up my father and folding chairs and gave him a ride to the track. The second gentleman returned and helped push my car off the road and hooked onto the trailer and took it in. He also raced motorcycles and missed his turn for practice runs on the track. But this is only the beginning; he then helped fix one of my son's motorcycles that quit running. The first gentleman then offered to take me back to try again to start my car, but I had called a tow service. My mother, who attended her second race, became ill and one of the lady members of this Motorcycle Club drove home and got her some medication.

Thank you,
Mr. & Mrs. James McDonald

Water wonderland: Michigan leads in boats, facilities

Michigan--the acknowledged boating capital of the nation--has developed a program of boater safety and convenience along its Great Lakes shoreline that is unparalleled in North America, according to Automobile Club of Michigan. Sailors who venture onto the Great Lakes will find they are seldom more than 15 shoreline miles from any of the 61 protective harbors and public marinas sponsored by the Michigan Waterways Division of the Department of Natural Resources. Add to this total the more than 500 commercial and special service marinas scattered all along the lakes, and Michigan provides its boating enthusiasts with the country's finest water safety and recreational facilities.

"Despite the shorter Great Lakes boating season, Michigan has more than twice as many boats using its waters and marina facilities as they have in the year-round vacationland of Florida," explains Joseph L. Ratke, Auto Club touring manager.

"In fact, this state ranks first in the number of registered boats with more than 534,000--9 percent of the nation's total. California is a distant second with 456,000 registered boats, or 7.7 percent of the country's total," Ratke points out.

"This network of inland seas is dotted with many tiny islands and ports of call, all just waiting to be explored by adventurous and non-adventurous sailors alike. And since many boaters travel great distances along the lakes, it is important their basic needs are met."

This is certainly the case as the 61 "ports of call" on Auto Club's map provide a complete number of services. Twenty-one ports have nearby U.S. Coast Guard stations, 47 have holding tank pump-out, 27 marine repairs, 52 launching ramps, 41 at least 10 transient wells (only three have none), 55 gasoline and oil, 55 electricity, 56 water, 53 telephone, 52 ice and supplies and 54 restroom facilities. Ten render all of the listed services.

Sailors may choose from the urban areas of Southeast Michigan, where the emphasis is on day-sailing, racing, boating clubs and waterside restaurants; the sandy beaches and dunes along Lake Michigan; or the virtually unspoiled beauty of Lake Superior.

"Each of the Great Lakes offers a different and unique experience so that boaters should never run out of new and exciting things to do," Ratke states. "The state's harbor system has helped bring these experiences within the realm of nearly all sailors."

A relatively new pastime for vacationers is attending popular festivals and tourist attractions by boat because many of these attractions are located near public harbors.

For example, sailors can take in the Big Mac Bridge, Fort Michilimackinac and Mackinac Island simply by boating from Mackinaw City to Mackinac Island. During a stopover at Grand Haven, boaters can see the world's largest musical fountain while Upper Peninsula boaters can dock at Munising to see nearby Pictured Rocks or at Sault Ste. Marie to see the famed Soo Locks.

For the hundreds of thousands of Michiganders who annually enjoy Great Lakes boating, it comes as no surprise that this state sets the pace in watercraft activity, especially since our Water Wonderland has nearly 3,200 miles of Great Lakes shoreline. This is nearly 800 more miles than the combined ocean coastlines of Florida and California.

MSU seeks parasites to control weevil

Michigan State University scientists are hoping to use parasites to control the alfalfa weevil and greatly diminish the use of insecticides.

Cooperative Extension agents from lower Michigan teamed with MSU scientists at the university's Gull Lake Experiment Station June 8 in an effort to capture one of the natural parasites of the alfalfa weevil, Microctonus aethiops.

The agents then took the parasitized, adult weevils back home where they were released in alfalfa test fields which had not been sprayed or cut. If the program is successful, the parasite will multiply sufficiently to control the alfalfa weevil population and reduce the need for insecticides.

"The alfalfa weevil infests about 800,000 acres in Michigan, costing farmers about $11 million per year in hay losses and control costs," Dr. Richard Sauer, MSU entomologist, said.

"The alfalfa weevil can destroy 20 percent or more of an alfalfa crop," Sauer said. "On the average this means about a half-ton per acre, which is a lot of feed."

The pest can be effectively controlled by insecticide spraying, but this method is undesirable.

"Alfalfa is a low-value crop, and pesticide spraying is relatively expensive," Sauer said. "But by initiating biological control, the parasite will do the job with very little trouble or cost."

Another drawback of spraying is that the insecticide residue can remain in the environment and could be passed along to other insects and animals and perhaps humans.

"We hope to get a high survival rate this year so that the parasites might begin to attack the adult weevils on a large scale in the next few years," Dr. James Bath, MSU entomologist, said.

"In New Jersey, farmers were spraying as much as 30 percent of the alfalfa crop," he said, "but a few years after the parasites were introduced, they were only spraying 10 percent."

Sauer pointed out that the goal is not to eliminate the pest completely, but to reduce its population to a tolerable level. "It's unrealistic to think the weevil can be wiped out," he said, "and even if we wanted to, the parasites aren't dumb enough to wipe out their food sources completely. We'll be happy to reduce them to a level we can live with."

At previous "bug-ins," parasites of the cereal leaf beetle were gathered by county extension agents for distribution back home. But this is the first attempt by MSU's Cooperative Extension Service to spread alfalfa weevil parasites throughout the state.

"We had a 50 percent establishment rate with the cereal leaf beetle parasite in 1972 from 1971 releases," Dr. Frederick Stehr, MSU entomologist, said. "We think the alfalfa weevil parasite can do even better because it follows its food supply (the alfalfa weevil) very closely, and it is easier to work with."

If agents can successfully establish the parasite on the test farm now, parasite use can hopefully be extended to entire counties, and insecticide use can be diminished greatly.

Former Cass City resident takes European post

A former Cass Cityman has accepted a managerial position with the Dana Corporation's European affiliate, Floquet Monopole.

WILLIAM MARTUS

William Martus, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Martus, 5159 Milligan Rd., will head engineering activities for the French-based company. He is expected to leave for his new assignment the week of June 24. Martus is a 1953 graduate of Cass City High School and graduated from Michigan State University in 1958. In that same year, he affiliated with Perfect Circle Division of Dana Corporation as an engineering trainee.

Assigned to original equipment applications engineering in 1962, Martus was named a sales engineer and transferred to the Chicago office in 1966. He returned to the company's headquarters in Hagerstown, Ind., in 1969 as sales operations manager and was promoted to sales manager in 1970.

Since his return to Hagerstown, Martus has been active in the Jaycees. His wife, Marilyn, is a member of Psi Chi Xi. They have three children, Craig, a freshman; Carrie, an eighth grader; and Curt, a third grader.

Martus said his assignment in Europe is for a minimum of two years.

Practice begins

Dr. Richard P. Chappel will begin practice in his clinic Thursday, June 28.

A SPECIAL MESSAGE TO OUR CUSTOMERS

Dear Friends!!!!!!

The lands offered for sale in this ad are a group of choice properties. And although the prices quoted are firm, it has always been our policy to help finance the sale if the buyer lacks cash, yes even the down payments are flexible up or down. A larger cash down payment will lower the monthly installments.

Your inspection of these properties is invited and free to call for any additional information you may want. Make your selection now for the best choice.
