

Possibility of food shortages, higher prices looms larger

Cass City consumers could be faced with shortages of certain foods along with skyrocketing prices on other items within the next few months unless current trends in governmental regulation and balance of trade change.

According to Tuscola County Extension Director William Bortel, supplies of items such as red meat, chicken and eggs are all being affected by the recent price freeze imposed by the federal government. Supplies of these items must increase, along with prices for them, or shortages will begin to be felt. "The answer is to get the agriculture business out of the control program," Bortel said. "With controls lifted, prices and supplies would stabilize."

He said a number of factors brought on the present conditions, including rising prices, increased export trade, rising food demand and the devaluation of the dollar. As prices have risen, consumers have protested cost increases and have blamed farmers.

Bortel said Tuscola farmers are perplexed by the present situation.

"They don't know what to expect," he said, adding that there is still a mood of optimism among farmers and they are still willing to gamble. Bortel cautioned that farmers will not gamble forever.

"They've had a number of poor years in a row and they won't go on forever losing," he said. "The farmer of today is a businessman and if he can't get a fair price for his goods, he will simply quit producing. The farmer is no dummy."

Bortel cited the recent killing of baby chicks in Texas and the withholding of some livestock from the market as indications that the producers will simply not go on producing at a loss.

Bortel stated that the embargo of shipments of soybeans to other countries will not only hurt those producers but will also hurt the balance of trade of the nation. He said that agricultural products provided the main stay in the balance of trade for years and, with embargoes on feed grains, serious effects are bound to be felt.

Bortel said the consumer has been blessed with low prices for foodstuffs for years and is just now realizing that prices must go up in order to keep eating.

"The consumer had better be willing to pay the higher prices for food or he is going to be in serious trouble," Bortel said.

Food prices cannot go down, Bortel said. Livestock and poultry especially have to increase or else the producers will simply have to go out of business due to a lack of profit.

Bortel added that poor weather this year in the county and in the nation as a whole has contributed to the possibility of shortages by the end of the summer. Rains hurt all cereal crops, he said. Water damage in the Colwood and Quanienssee areas sustained severe crop damage, he added.

Bortel said the solution to the problem of pricing and supplies involves a complete elimination of controls and payment programs. He said the situation had begun to improve before the latest freeze, which has forced some producers to curtail production of soybeans and other feed grains, along with poultry and livestock.

"Farmers are not good samaritans any more," he said. "They are tremendous businessmen who are in business to make a profit. For many years, consumers relied on the farmer to produce at cheap prices. Now they realize that it can't go on."

Bortel said over the years, the small farmer has given way to the large producer whose operation must be run on a business scale.

"The farmers left today are the businessmen," he said.

Blaze injures woman

A rural Cass City woman was listed in critical condition as of Tuesday in the University of Michigan Burn Center in Ann Arbor where she was being treated for burns sustained in a flash fire that destroyed her home in Evergreen township Sunday evening.

Sanilac County Deputy Sheriffs said Mrs. Linda Long, 23, sustained burns over 75 per cent of her body in the fire, which broke out around 10:30 p.m.

According to Elkland Township Fire Chief Richard Root, whose department responded to the alarm, Mrs. Long's husband, Duane, was attempting to fill his motorcycle with gasoline when he accidentally spilled some of the fuel on the hot motor. Root said the can containing the fuel had a hole in the bottom.

Fire broke out and Long dropped the can. Mrs. Long then picked up the can in order to move it away from the house. At this point, the can exploded.

She sustained third degree burns and was rushed to intensive care.

The home located on Leslie Road, was totally destroyed. Loss was estimated at $15,000.

The Longs' two small children escaped injury in the blaze.

FIRE DESTROYED THIS home belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Duane Long Sunday night. Mrs. Long remains in the University of Michigan Burn Center in Ann Arbor with third degree burns.

Two injuries reported in five area accidents

Five traffic accidents involving area residents were reported last week.

Tuesday, June 26, two farm tractors collided on a narrow road west of Cass City. The tractors, driven by Ronald Lee Trish of E. Dutcher Road and Randy Bardwell, Caro, were traveling on Hurds Corners Road near the intersection of Dutcher Road when they came together.

According to Tuscola county sheriff's deputies, the road was too narrow to allow the tractors to pass. Trish was headed south on the road while Bardwell was going north.

Neither driver was injured. The accident occurred around 4:10 p.m.

Thursday, a car driven by Russell Maxwell, 5823 Bruce St., Deford, went out of control and skidded into a ditch on Cemetery Road near DeLong Road.

Deputies said Maxwell told them he lost control of the auto on the rainsoaked pavement, skidded into the east ditch along Cemetery Road and flipped end over end, landing in the ditch. Officers said the auto traveled some 210 feet from the time Maxwell lost control of the car until it came to rest.

Maxwell was taken to Caro Community Hospital where he was treated for his injuries. The accident took place around 2:30 a.m.

Also on Thursday, a car driven by Viola Lee Begeman, Phillips Rd., Kingston, collided with a car driven by Doris Austin, Mayville.

Deputies said three autos were in line to make a left turn off M-24 near Wireline Road and that Ms. Begeman came up on them too rapidly to stop. Officers said she swerved to avoid a collision with the rear auto, striking the Austin vehicle which was traveling in the oncoming lane.

Neither driver was injured seriously and no ticket was issued.

Friday, a car driven by William Knowlton, 1539 Cedar St., Deford, collided with a motorcycle driven by Donald Lajoie, 1623 Colwood Rd., Caro.

According to the deputies report, Knowlton was prepared to make a left turn off M-81 near Ellington Road and did not see an approaching motorcycle. Knowlton turned into the path of the motorcycle, driven by Lajoie.

Knowlton was cited for failure to yield to oncoming traffic.

Dennis R. Thick, 30, Gagetown, suffered cuts and bruises about the face around 6 a.m. Saturday when the car he was driving ran off Caseville Road, about three miles north of Pigeon, skidded along a ditch and jumped a culvert before coming to rest.

Huron County Deputies said the northbound auto skidded about 265 feet after leaving the road, apparently after Thick fell asleep at the wheel.

Thick was treated for his injuries at Scheurer Hospital, Pigeon.

Report larcenies, burglaries to police, sheriff last week

A series of larcenies and burglaries were reported to Cass City Police and Tuscola County Sheriff's Deputies last week.

Thursday, a purse belonging to Ms. Margaret Mericksko, director of nurses at Hills and Dales General Hospital, was stolen from the hospital.

Cass City Police said Ms. Mericksko left the hospital and returned for the purse some time later. When she returned, the purse was gone. According to the report, the purse contained around $65 in cash, a birth certificate and several other documents.

Police have no leads at this time.

Also on Thursday, Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies reported the theft of $80 in bills from the Eugene Salgat home on Colwood Road. Deputies said

Mr. and Mrs. Salgat left home around 10 p.m. and returned home around 12:30 to find the house ransacked and the cash missing.

According to the deputies, the culprits took only the cash and did not touch a camera and several other items in the house. They said the house was left unlocked.

The case remains open pending new information.

Friday, deputies apprehended two juveniles on charges of breaking and entering a barn and a shed located at the corner of Hoppe and Colwood Roads. The juveniles, both from Gagetown, were turned over to their parents and, under questioning, admitted breaking into the barn and shed.

According to the report filed on the case, the boys forced the door on the barn and broke into the shed by taking a brick and smashing a lock on the door. Nothing was taken, according to the report.

The barn is located on a farm owned by George Goka, Caro. Goka said he did not want to prosecute the boys.

Wednesday, June 27, George Henderson, Marlon Rd., Kingston, reported the theft of a .22 calibre rifle, a camera, a watch and a .32 calibre revolver from his home.

Tuscola deputies said two suspects were being questioned. Their names are being withheld pending the issuance of warrants. The incident reportedly occurred in early May, and Henderson gave no reason for the long delay in reporting the thefts.

An investigation continues.

State Police drunk driver crackdown deemed success

The program is being financed with money from the Department of Transportation and will finance the payment of salaries to the officers involved with selective enforcement.

Under provisions of the program, officers involved earn time and a half for any time worked over eight hours. This includes appearances in court on the officer's day off and covers those officers called in to operate a breathalyzer equipment.

The program will cost $401,000.

Gray indicated that the patrols involve state police units exclusively and do not involve personnel from the sheriff's office, due to a lack of available manpower. He said the department has been very cooperative regarding selective enforcement and results have been encouraging to this point in time.

Gray urged the support of drivers and owners of drinking establishments alike, saying the success of selective enforcement depends on cooperation from everyone involved.

According to State Senator Alvin DeGrow (R) Pigeon, two new proposed pieces of legislation would further combat the drinking driver.

One would require drivers involved in personal injury accidents to be governed by the chemical test law when the arresting officer has reasonable belief that alcohol was a contributing factor in the accident.

A second would prohibit the transportation or possession of alcoholic liquor in an unoccupied container in the passenger compartment of a vehicle.

Still another proposal would provide more money to support the selective enforcement program.

On a statewide basis, over 35,000 persons were arrested in Michigan last year for driving while under the influence of alcohol. This compares with only 6,000 similar arrests in 1967.

County State Police post nears reality

Tuscola county's long-awaited state police post is now all but assured after State Senate action Monday approving the state police appropriation bill, which contains a special appropriation for establishment of the post.

State Rep. Loren Armbruster, R-Caro, said the Senate cut the original appropriation from $300,000 to $200,000 when it approved the overall state police funding Friday.

He said he believes a post could be established in the county by November.

Tuscola county has long urged creation of an additional post in the area to help combat the large annual traffic death toll and provide more law enforcement coverage in the county.

The bill still must be signed by Gov. William Milliken before it can be enacted.

Earlier in the spring, Armbruster amended the state police appropriation bill in the Michigan House to add funds for the Tuscola post before it was approved.

At that time, Armbruster said State Police Director Col. John Plants informed him that a post for the county was a top priority matter across the state.

INCLEMENT WEATHER fails to stop postman Dick Root, who has been delivering mail for 16 years. Root has served on the Elkland Township Fire Department for 21 years.

Nothing stops mailman-fireman Dick Root

BY JIM KETCHUM

"Neither rain nor snow nor sleet nor dark of night nor gloom of day shall keep this courier from the swift completion of his appointed rounds."

Whoever said it must have had it in for mailmen or reporters following mailmen around. For postman Dick Root, it's an everyday fact of life. It's a fact he's known for the last 16 years. Not only does Root battle the elements during the day, he also wrestles with the more serious problems of fire protection.

For, when the fire whistle blows at the Elkland Township Fire Station, he takes off his postman's cap and dons the helmet of a fireman. He's been doing it for the last 21 years.

Root enjoys his mail route and does not let something like a major downpour interfere with mail delivery. He never wears a raincoat. "Raincoats are too hot," he says. "Besides, what's a little rain?"

Most any rainy day, at each stop on Root's business district route, invariably he will be asked a dozen times where his raincoat is or if he doesn't have enough sense to come in out of the rain.

"Raincoat'll get all wet and moldy," Root jokes as he lays the daily mail down and turns to fight the elements once more.

Root began his mail route in 1957 after having worked in a gas station for some 13 years. He says there wasn't much future for him pumping gas, fixing flats and cleaning windshields, so he decided to find some outdoor occupation that would provide a better living along with the chance to meet people. So he chose the post office.

He estimates that in the last 15 years, he has walked about 52,500 miles, figuring 70 miles per week and a 50 week year. That's a lot of shoelather.

"My shoes always hurt my feet until I get them soaked at least once on the route," he joked as he negotiated a flooded sidewalk in the midst of a downpour last week. "After that, they feel fine."

While the job is enjoyable, there are times when he says it's difficult to start out. Rainy mornings such as last Thursday sometimes start out poorly.

"Some mornings, like this one for instance, you look out and want to crawl right back in bed," Root says. "But once you're up and out in it, it isn't so bad."

The congenial postman pops in and out of businesses each morning with the mail, stopping to say hello or exchange a few pleasantries. When it rains, those comments become questions regarding Root's sanity for not coming in from the rain.

"How come you've got holes in your cap, Dick", a store employee asks.

"That's so my hair will dry when it quits raining," he retorts.

While rain doesn't seem to bother him, electrical storms cause some worry on another front—fire.

Root has been on the Elkland Township Fire Department since 1952 and becomes serious when the role of firefighter is mentioned.

"The job of a fireman grows on you over the years," he says. "I can't state the exact reason but it gives you a great sense of accomplishment to know you're helping someone in trouble. When you save a structure, it's really something."

Root says it is the wife of the volunteer fireman on whom the real pressure falls. While the fireman carry life insurance, it is no substitute for the man.

"What's an insurance policy compared with a life?", Root asks. "Not much. A wife of a fireman puts up with a hell of a lot. When he goes out on a call, she never knows how he'll come back or if he'll come back at all."

Root, who is now Fire Chief, recalls the two worst fires in recent memory in Cass City were the fire at the Ben Franklin Store and the fire at the old grain elevator which he calls the biggest fire he has seen.

He takes his firefighting job with the seriousness of someone on whom life literally depends. A recent incident which upset him involved a truck that passed a group of fire engines on the way to a housefire on Lamton Road. Such an action is not called for, Root says, and only interferes with the fireman who is trying to do his job.

When he is not doing battle with fire or involved with some project sponsored by the Cass City Service Clubs, of which he is a member, his mail route takes up a major part of the day. He says he carries about three or four times more mail

"If It Fitz..."*The hungry children

BY JIM FITZGERALD

In your heart, you know he's right.

Barry Goldwater, of all the stubborn people, threw in the towel on national TV the other day. After 35 years of doing his bit for this country, he said, he now has mornings when he doesn't see much use in getting out of bed. He admitted saying to himself:

"Oh well, what the hell can you do?"

I know the feeling. I think more and more Americans are knowing the feeling. What the hell CAN you do?

Goldwater is mostly ticked off by Watergate. He sees the scandal doing terrible damage to his beloved Republican party. He feels betrayed by people he trusted. He's like a devoted Boy Scout who has suddenly learned his scoutmaster is a pervert.

There's a lot more than Watergate bugging me (excuse me). The world is jammed with terrible problems that defy solution. There's ecology and inflation and bombing and unemployment and racism.

But most of all, there are hungry children.

A few hours before writing this, I saw the NBC TV show called "Sins of the Fathers." It was about the thousands of fatherless children left behind when U.S. soldiers finally escaped Vietnam.

After looking at the incredibly sad faces of those kids, I couldn't write a funny column if Bob Hope loaned me his battalion of joke writers. And I couldn't write anything indignant about the Watergate mess, either.

After all, if this nation can allow its youngsters to starve, why should anyone be shocked that many of our law-and-order politicians are lousy crooks?

And those poor kids in Vietnam ARE our responsibility. They were there, lonely and hungry for sex, because they were drafted to fight an unjust, immoral war that was none of their business.

Now the war scene has changed. The battle is in Cambodia and our warriors are strictly airborne. Their bombs don't impregnate peasants, just kill them. So, as the TV announcer said, there will be no more American-Vietnamese children born to misery. Isn't that marvelous?

But what about the 25,000 half-American kids born before the killing became completely push-button? I hope you saw them on TV. They are living under unbelievably horrible conditions, packed into orphanages or abandoned in alleys. They are bloated and they have running sores and they sleep a lot because they have no energy. Their eyes are sad and bewildered.

There is no love for these children. The Vietnamese are racists and they scorn racially-mixed youngsters, particularly if the father was a Negro. Long before they are old enough to learn why, the children experience the cruelty of bigotry.

In your heart, you know he's right.

Remember when it was reported that Cass City's Artrain effort was so outstanding that it would become a magazine feature? Well it has been. But don't rush to your friendly neighborhood news stand to find a copy of "Topic", the magazine in which the story appears.

It's not available for general distribution. Two copies were allotted to Cass City. One belongs to Chairman Mrs. Holly Althaver and the other is at the Rawson Library next week.

There are scads of local folks pictured in the three-page spread and Cass City's response to the Artrain visit is the central theme of the presentation.

No, I'm not going to list names of those pictured. Go to the library and see.

*****

If you saw that over-all panoramic view of the Western Round-Up parade in last week's paper and liked it add your thanks to ours to Steve Harp and Schneberger's Furniture.

Steve works for our next door neighbors and I guess Russ and Bud paid him while he operated the camera on top of the roof of the Chronicle.

He scaled those heights without a qualm. I was up there but only got as far as the first level.

In case you haven't guessed, I chickened out when I looked at our slanted porch roof.

*****

Sneaky, I call it. That's what J. D. Tuckey was the other day. He was out selling those Chamber of Commerce Ox Roast tickets over a week ago and I bought one.

The next day at Rotary I and several other members learned that all the clubs in town were committed to selling a share of the 500 tickets issued.

It's a fair guess that J. D. sold more tickets to Rotarians than Rotarians sold to themselves.

Oh well, all the money ends in the same place and for the same good cause.

*****

There's one family in town that should give up fishing. Or give up fishing on the Cass River. Or figure out a way to see without glasses. Or change their way of living.

Anyway they should do something different than they have been doing.

A month ago Jim Duerr was fishing the river and lost his glasses. It's not reported just how that was received at home. For his own sake I'd hope that dad, Jack Duerr, wasn't too mean about it.

For just last week Jack slipped down to try his luck and you know what happened. He lost his glasses.

No one said anything about fisherman's luck.

FROM THE

Editor's Corner

We took a vote at our house recently and for a change guess who won?

By the time you read this, if all goes well, this editor, his wife and son will be basking in Montana and catching big, big trout.

Funny, but our 13-year-old Clarke and his old man are already getting excited 3 days before departure but the third member of this party isn't all that agog about leaving. In fact, it took a bribe after the 2-1 vote in favor of this trip to keep her from exercising the executive veto and kill the whole thing.

The bribe was a visit to Montana's Big Sky resort. In case you missed it, that's the multi-million dollar promotion featuring golf, fishing, stores, skiing, condominiums, tennis, and what have you.

The one promoted by Chet Huntley, as in NBC's "Good night, David", "Good night, Chet" news broadcasting.

Some things pay better than news reporting...even TV news reporting.

But I'm getting the distinct impression that this development isn't at all interested in seeing or serving poons like the Haires or most of the other Thumb area persons.

I wrote asking for reservations (and rates) and never received a reply. What's more the travel company agent that handled the charter, of which we are a part, said that he had 16 other charter members asking for reservations, too...and he has yet to hear from them even though he sent a follow-up letter.

Maybe they asked about the rates, too, and Chet's boys at Big Sky feel that if the customer is so plebeian that they need costs in advance they just wouldn't be worth worrying about.

But I just can't help think it's far more likely that some clerk was just too darn lazy to answer the request.

I happen to know that there are some persons with M-O-N-E-Y on this trip and could afford anything that Big Sky has to offer, if they wanted it.

Or maybe the whole thing is still pie-in-the-sky promotion and the fancy layout in the brochure is just an ad agency expert's pipe dream.

Anyway, it's a number one trip priority to find out. Find out what's at Gallatin Gateway and maybe sneak in when no one's watching and ease the joint.

Besides this unnatural curiosity, there's another reason. If we don't go someplace where there's something to do besides fish, the trip may not be as relaxing as planned.

If we just fish on this vacation there will undoubtedly be another vote after returning home.

If a vote is necessary...shake hands with a born loser.

Cancer drive
tops goal

Ruth Hoffman, chairman of the recent Cancer Crusade in the Cass City area, reports that, on a county-wide basis, the drive netted total contributions of $22,629.33.

This is some $22,229.33 over the original goal of $20,400.

Mrs. Hoffman worked with area women in the drive, designed to distribute cancer information to every household in Cass City and neighboring townships.

AROUND THE FARM
Food prices are cheap

by William Bortel

There's been a lot of talk lately about how food prices are going up. In some cases, this controversy has led to action, such as the meat boycott. And, many people have eagerly sought someone to blame for the whole unpleasant situation. Unfortunately, the someone has often been the American farmer.

It is very easy to point a finger at the farmer, but how many individuals would care to change roles with him. Would you care to cope with the hazards of rain, hail, uncertain weather conditions, insects or the many other trials and tribulations of farming?

The high feed prices are now forcing many livestock and poultry operations to close their doors with ceilings on livestock prices and no profits to be made. Many hundred thousand chicks are being killed since the poultryman is forced to pay more for the feed than broilers will bring at the market place.

I believe we as Americans should stand and praise the excellent job the farmer is doing to keep the United States one of the best fed countries in the world. Farmers have been making a tremendous contribution to America's well-being, but have seldom been adequately rewarded. Only 4 per cent of our people farm the land, and produce the world's highest standard of living. In Pakistan, 70 per cent of the people are tied to the land and still have starvation level diets.

Half of the world's people work their hearts out from dawn 'til dark and still can't produce or earn enough food to eat. There's no steak on the menu—people are fortunate to have a loaf of coarse bread or a bowl of rice.

The United States and other developed countries are an oasis where plentiful food on the table is an accepted way of life. Americans spend only 15.7 per cent of their income for food. That's about 6.3 hours out of a 40 hour week. Some African countries spend 70 per cent of their income for food. India 60 per cent, Eastern Europe 36 to 54 per cent, Japan 38 per cent and Canada 20 per cent.

If food had gone up as much as wages in the United States in the last twenty years, round steak would cost $2.67 per pound and eggs would be $1.61 per dozen.

The cost of everything we buy is moving higher. Because food purchases are a cash item paid every week or more often, increases are highly visible. The truth is that the cost of food has increased less than almost anything else purchased by the American family in the last twenty years. Food costs have risen 30 per cent, compared to clothing 43 per cent, auto repair 45 per cent and hospital room 165 per cent, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The outstanding productivity of the American farmer has made it possible to hold food prices at today's levels. We have been able to have abundant food at relatively low prices only through increased production per man. It is time we stand up and salute the American farmer and thank him for our bountiful living.

Happy
Independence Day

By Jim Ketchum

Independence Day, otherwise known as the Fourth of July, is upon us again. Once more, it's time to dust off the flag, unfurl it in the breeze and display it forthrightly from your nearest flagpole.

In some localities, parades, resplendent with marching bands, drum majors, fire engines and troops of boy scouts will wind their way through streets before less-than-wildly enthusiastic crowds.

As you have no doubt guessed by now, I greet the occasion with some mixed feelings. My lack of enthusiasm does not stem from Watergate or left-over hard feelings about the war. Things just aren't the same anymore and the Fourth of July especially has changed.

As a boy, I remember the big build-up for the day. Flags would begin popping out a couple of days before the Fourth. Sparklers went on sale in the grocery and hardware stores, along with those snake-like things you would light and watch expand. Plans would be formulated as to just what we would do to mark the day.

For a number of years, we would journey to Highland, about 15 miles west of Pontiac, for the fireworks. Somehow, it just wasn't the fourth without seeing those particular sky-rockets shoot off the ground, hesitate a moment in the air and then burst forth in a display of color that would put a rainbow to shame.

We never went by ourselves to the event. Either assorted aunts and uncles would come along, or our friends and owners of the farm on which we lived. Mr. and Mrs. Grayson would accompany us to the show.

Mr. Grayson loved fireworks. We usually went over in his green Packard, and I got to sit in the front seat, next to him, with my finger on the other side. Mr. Grayson always looked for the best place to park so we wouldn't have far to walk to the center of attraction.

Once positioned, we would wait for the big moment when they set off the first blast, always followed by an approving ripple of oohs and ahs. Each explosion seemed to rival the last, increasing in spectacular color and design. Occasionally, one would fail to go off and merely hang with a report that shook the whole town and which could probably be heard far away.

Through it all, Mr. Grayson oohed and ahhed right along with the rest of us, gesturing with his hand in the direction of the shot and commenting that I should look very closely to be ready for the next one.

After what seemed hundreds of displays, the finale greeted us. They must have shot up a dozen or so displays at once, literally taking our breath away. After the approving round of applause, we hopped back in the Packard for the trip home, talking of what we had just seen all the way.

Each year we did that as long as we lived down there. Then we moved away and the next summer, we thought we'd come back to see the fireworks again. But it was different.

Mr. Grayson had moved away and had sold the Packard in favor of a Cadillac. The trip was now 50 miles or so and, when we arrived, it was raining. It kept on raining the entire afternoon and evening. So we gave it up as a lost cause and went home.

From then on, Independence Day celebrations kind of went down hill. The next year it rained also, cancelling out any fireworks displays. The year following, we managed to stumble onto a display while we were on our way home from Lansing.

A drive in theatre was featuring fireworks and so we merely pulled to the side of the road and watched. I remember thinking at the time that these fireworks weren't as good as the ones I had seen with Mr. Grayson. They were pretty, but somehow it wasn't the same.

Each year it has grown increasingly more difficult to find good fireworks displays. Of recent memory, the best came eight years ago when we were on the Lake Michigan shoreline at Frankfort.

As the fireworks display began, nature set off its own, in the form of an electrical storm which was boiling in from the lake. The combination of the two is something I probably will never see again and almost rivaled those early displays in Highland with Mr. Grayson.

Since then, I have lost a lot of interest in fireworks. Last year we saw a display that lasted all of five minutes, after having driven 10 miles to see it and photograph the event.

I don't know about this year. We may be back home in time to see something. I suppose I should attend a display just to try to bolster my sagging spirit of independence.

I wonder if Mr. Grayson feels the same way I do.

BETTER HEALTH

It's poison ivy season

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Soon many people who are sensitive to the oil of poison ivy will have to be on the lookout. Some persons already know to their sorrow the discomfort that can come from contact with the oil of the three-leafed, red-stemmed little poison ivy plant, or its close kin, poison oak. The plants may grow as low bushes or climbing vines. They may be mixed with honeysuckle and other climbers. Poison sumac, an eastern swamp plant with 7 to 13 leaflets and small white berries, usually grows as a shrub.

According to the American Medical Association (AMA), poison ivy can grow in a person's garden, as well as in the woods and fields. The smoke from your neighbor's burning trash may give you a terrible attack of poison ivy. You can get it from your dog's coat, if he has been out in the bushes and some of the oil from crushed leaves has gotten onto his fur.

Some persons are not bothered by poison ivy while others are extremely sensitive to it. I remember how when a lad had been rabbit hunting in the hills and would come home and kiss his mother, her face would swell up because she was so sensitive to the oil of the poison ivy that was in his perspiration. He was immune, so he had no trouble.

Ivy, oak and sumac poisoning start with itching and redness within a few hours to several days after exposure. Then watery pimples appear; wet dressings of boric acid or Epsom salts solution bring some relief. Calamine lotion also reduces itching.

A patient of mine who was a surveyor, often spending the day tramping through farm land, used often to get badly poisoned by poison ivy until I taught him that he might avoid it if only he would take a bath with soap the minute he came in from work, to wash off the oil from his skin; that helped him greatly.

The AMA writer suggests that if you know that you will be near poison plants, or working with them, you can have your druggist make a 10 per cent sodium perborate ointment, and you can apply this to all the areas of skin that are likely to be exposed. Then, after contact with the plant, wash off the ointment and scrub all clothing — even shoelaces.

Naturally, the doctor advises to recognize the poisonous plants and then avoid contact with them.

DANGERS OF TRANSPLANTING HAIR

For some time, physicians have been helping some bald men by transplanting many tiny patches of hair from the back of the scalp and neck onto the front of the scalp where baldness has occurred. The transplanted hairs then grow longer, and in time, cover the bald spots.

I just read in a release from the American Medical Association that sometimes the results of this procedure are not always satisfactory. Much depends on the doctor's skill and experience. One of the problems is that sometimes the doctor fails to consider what type of hairline looks right and natural on the man, and may give him a hairline that looks peculiar, causing the man much embarrassment.

Another problem, according to Drs. Charles M. Monell and Walter E. Berman, of the University of California at Los Angeles School of Medicine, is that some doctors take grafts that are too large to survive and look natural; Drs. Monell and Berman say that it takes 20 small grafts per square inch to give the best density of hair.

PAIN IN A SHOULDER

A very common trouble with many persons is pain which may come suddenly without any injury to a shoulder. Sometimes this pain comes only with certain movements, and perhaps the patient cannot sleep at night lying on that particular shoulder. During the day, when at work in an office or store, he may have absolutely no pain, but at night he cannot lie on the bad shoulder. Pain may come only with certain movements, and this pain may be arising in what is called the bursa, a little bag of fluid under the muscle that caps the shoulder. Another such bursa is in the elbow joint. Inflammation in it can cause tennis elbow.

Once, my wife got a bad shoulder. When six weeks of excellent physiotherapy with massage, heat, and diathermy, did no good, I took her to an X-ray man, and three X-ray treatments put an end to her pain.

Recently I too got a very painful shoulder. First, I had an injection that helped; then I had four treatments with the very powerful new type of X-rays. This helped much, but still did not cure, so I had another hypodermic injection into the painful spot — with a local anesthetic, plus some cortisone-like drug — and that appears to have cured me. The injections must be made by an expert who knows exactly where to put the needle.

Cass City building boom continues

Cass City's building boom continued last year, despite inflation and at times, inclement weather.

Figures for the period June 1, 1972 through June 1, 1973, show the dollar value of construction in the village up 51 per cent over last year.

In this period, 66 building permits were issued with a total dollar value of $1,664,515. This compares with $936,865 for the same period last year. Forty-four permits were issued in last year's period.

Of this total, $997,000 went into new commercial construction. The largest of these projects was the $900,000 nursing home being constructed north of Hills and Dales Hospital.

Also included in this total was a $14,000 air conditioning system installed in the hospital, a $29,000 dental clinic, a new barber shop and additions and new fronts for two stores in the downtown area.

New house construction for the recording period totaled at $540,000, nearly double the figure for last year. Another $227,000 worth of additions, garages, patios, driveways and other outbuildings were constructed.

Current building trends are expected to continue in the coming year. The village recently adopted two ordinances covering subdivision regulations and engineering and design standards.

Ground is also expected to be broken soon for a four-man clinic on Hill Street near the present Donahue clinic. Cost estimates for construction of this new facility is expected to run in the neighborhood of $130,000.

New construction also continues in the Herron subdivision.

Many Cass City homeowners have expanded their present homes, added porches, aluminum siding and roofs. Permits for concrete driveways and sidewalks were also issued.

The trend toward building outside the corporate limits of Cass City also continued. With the number of suitable lots for building in the village dwindling, land near the village continues to increase in desirability and price.

Elwyn Helwig of Croft-Clara Lumber Co. says the trend to build outside the corporate limits is not isolated in any one area—that development is taking place on all sides. He explained that the village is handicapped to expand due to a lack of adequate sewage facilities.

He said Cass City's desirability for building comes from the fact that it has small industries along with facilities such as a hospital, providing, in essence, the best of small town life and city services. He cited the large number of real estate firms doing business in the village and the number of properties exchanging hands.

Helwig maintains that a coordination of facilities with growth of the area is a necessity.

Backyard swimming pools gain popularity with homeowners

Every summer, the backyard splash-in is making more of a splash.

Estimates of the number of backyard pools...permanently excavated...are now as high as 650,000. Then there are an estimated two and a half million above-ground pools...and that doesn't even include portable wading pools, notes the National Swimming Pool Institute.

How to get the most out of a swimming pool...and how to

Check pipes, drains for durability

Plan to buy a new home this summer? Make sure that the underground pipes and drains are of durable, water-tight material.

Tree roots "instinctively" spread in the direction of nearby water. Once there's a leak or break in interior piping, destructive roots will invade it and clog the line, notes the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau.

Clearing out clogged lines can be a complex and expensive proposition, depending, of course, upon the extent of the damage, the location of the pipe and other factors.

The most effective method, which requires the knowledge and tools of a plumbing contractor, is cutting out the roots with a flexible auger that can be reeled into the lines.

The contractor also has special root solvents that can be flushed through the lines to retard further growth.

use it safely...are two prime considerations with families who now have, or are planning to install, a backyard pool.

Here are some suggestions for safety in the swim:

1. Maintain a pool on a regular schedule. That means checking chlorine content, vacuuming the pool and generally cleaning up.

2. Provide supervision for swimmers, especially children. But even adults shouldn't swim unaccompanied.

3. If only one person is present to supervise, limit the number of guests accordingly. Again, this applies especially to children and their youthful visitors.

Planning the right surroundings for the pool can add to family enjoyment. Fencing for both safety and beauty and attractive landscaping are important.

The landscaping might consist of portable planters or tubs, filled with greenery, or shrubs planted against the fence. Or, for waterproof and carefree gardening, the Oriental approach...mostly stones and statues...could be used.

Poolside furniture for family dining or entertaining needs to be practical as well as good-looking. This practicality can save the home-owner from many maintenance chores, just as casual outdoor eating reduces work for the homemaker.

Leading a splash-proof existence during casual hours around the pool are sun lounges, chaises and chairs with frames of wrought iron or tubular aluminum. New seating materials, too resist weather and water.

Vinyl cushions welcome the swimmer who's ready to relax. Vinyl webbing, metal mesh and simulated cane are other types of seating suitable for pool-side

Well-planned kitchen can be used by every family member

When it's time to remodel the kitchen, then it's time to call a family conference.

Naturally, everybody has a real interest in the kitchen, the source of all that good food. But family concern for the kitchen goes beyond this basic.

A well-planned kitchen is a room the whole family can use, so it's wise to get opinions at the outset.

What should the new kitchen include?

The food preparation area, the food storage area and the clean-up area come first, of course. Good kitchen design brings dishwasher, sink, refrigerator-freezer and oven-surface cooking units together in close harmony.

What's more, modern work-saving appliances pay attention to color and design, in ways that fit any decor. And that leads to another point. The kitchen should be attractive.

Family preferences come into play here. What shall be the color scheme? Shall the walls be paneled, painted, papered? What should be done about floor and ceiling?

Discussion—with some compromises, no doubt—should help the family come up with a general plan. To some extent, decorating will be determined by the other functions of the kitchen.

If space is available, choice may be a kitchen that doubles as a family room. The family room-kitchen is a favorite in many new homes, and it's often possible to create such a setting in an older home.

A desk-study area, which Mom can use for household planning and the youngsters for homework, is another possibility. Even the smallest kitchen should have room for a bulletin board and message center.

An informal dining area continues to be one of the most popular kitchen additions. In the smaller kitchen, the choice could be a breakfast bar.

Some extra attractions of the kitchen come from modern appliances...for instance, a range with its own hot water tap or a refrigerator-freezer with an exterior dispenser for chilled water or ice cubes.

To create the custom look, there are a variety of wall ovens and cooktop units. And a new dishwasher comes with a decorator front.

At this point, the family conference should probably adjourn in search of information from dealers in appliances and building products.

Such information can be a guide to final decisions, budgeting and the distribution of work—what is to be professionally done and what can be done yourself.

Remodeling Expands Kitchen Space, Scope

ADDING A DINING AREA or refreshment center is one way to "open up" a small kitchen. Companion wallcoverings help to coordinate the two rooms. On the walls here are vinyls. From J. Josephson; the larger pattern is "Spring Beauty."

BREAKFAST CORNER GETS a custom look, thanks to a new window shade kit which offers choice of two hemshades. Here, scalloped hem is trimmed with ball fringe, and window is framed by make-believe beams. Shade kit is by Breneman.

Family's Needs Guide Modernization Plans

Remodeling ambitions often center around the kitchen, and for good reason. As the heart of the home, the kitchen deserves attention. What's more, it usually needs it.

In older homes, the kitchen may be large, but chances are a good deal of the space is wasted, simply because appliances and furnishings have been added at random, without changing the original room plan.

Remodeling calls for a thorough study of family needs and work and traffic patterns in the kitchen. With thought, the larger kitchen can be reorganized on a time- and step-saving basis.

There may even be some space left over, to use as a dining area or game corner.

In newer homes, the kitchen problem may be too little space especially where there's a growing family.

When it's time to remodel, emphasis goes to the devices that save or stretch space.

Adding cabinets and shelves can be one way to expand the scope of the kitchen, while new appliances bring a bonus in compact design, taking up less of the floor area.

For major remodeling projects, adding a room certainly opens up a lot of possibilities. A family room, a laundry area or a dining room make sense as adjuncts to the kitchen.

The same kind of convenience can be created by transforming an adjoining room into an extension of the kitchen—again, as dining, laundry or family area.

Kitchen modernization brings decorating opportunities—new coverings for floors and walls, new treatments for windows. These vary, of course, according to tastes and needs.

Veteran builder Fay McComb looks at past, future of homebuilding in Cass City vicinity

BY JIM KETCHUM

A lot of changes have taken place in the building business since Fay McComb began work in 1936. He has seen trends come and go and watched subdivisions filled with homes rise from land that used to grow alfalfa and provide cover for pheasants in earlier days.

McComb has watched and aided in Cass City's growth in terms of one family dwellings over the years. He says he has probably built between 50 and 75 homes either by himself or with some aid since the mid-1930's. At that time, a lot has happened.

"For one thing, prior to 2 years ago, all work was done by hand," McComb recalled. "We had very few power tools available. We did have access to a mill, but we used hand-sawn, hand-saved materials."

He said there was no prefabrication in those early days of his business. He recalled that window frames had to be built on the job. All that could be purchased was sash material. The rest came from scratch.

"It took us about a third again as long to build a house in those days as it does now," McComb said.

He added that plastered walls today are practically a thing of the past. Most new homes use large sheets of plasterboard which go in faster and cut costs for both labor and material.

Flooring has also changed. The three-quarter inch ship-lap wood sheathing formerly used in subflooring has been replaced with plywood sheets.

When carpeting is used, a top floor consists of another layer of plywood nailed to the subfloor.

McComb said tastes in homes have changed over the years. When he began, two-story homes were the fashion. These were replaced by the one-story, rambling ranch-style homes of the fifties and early sixties. Now, McComb said, the two-story home, on a modified basis, is coming back again.

"The advantage of a two-story house is that you get more living area under less roof," he said. This is important if a person is reseeded for room on a lot.

Among some of the trends in homebuilding, McComb said persons tend to like prefabricated cabinets and pre-decorated walls, disliking the idea of hiring an interior decorator.

"Most folks would rather take a paint roller and do their own painting," McComb smiled.

He said most homes today being built have basements. Trends also run in the direction of family-sized kitchens, large living rooms and fireplaces while bedrooms are smaller than in previous years.

McComb said that, while there are some good prefabricated homes, he still prefers houses built from scratch.

"There isn't really that much of a cost savings by the time you get a pre-fab built," McComb said. "You have to pay that labor cost somewhere, either on the job or in the factory. No matter how you look at it, the labor is still there."

He said the one advantage of a pre-fab home is that they can be constructed at the site more quickly than the conventional home. But in the long run, he said a builder will build a better home.

"I doubt you'll see many prefabricated houses up here for a long while," he said. "Down in the city where a housing shortage really exists is where most of them are going up. It would take a lot of building pressure before you'd see a lot of them built here."

There have been changes in the building business as well. McComb said in the early days, labor costs ran about 10 cents an hour. This allowed the person ordering a house built to make numerous changes along the way. Now, with labor costs ranging between $5 and $6 per day, it's a different story.

"Back then, you could build a five-room house for $2,800 easily," McComb explained. "Now, the cheapest home constructed runs about $20 per square foot. The average is somewhere between $30 and $35 per square foot."

Today builders must be licensed by the state and belong to the state safety commission. Changes in lumber have also taken place. In addition to greatly increased costs, quality has fallen in some instances. In the beginning, he said, a 2 x 10 board would come through entirely free of knots. Today, according to McComb, it is difficult to find a board of that size without knots.

McComb commented that the trend toward building outside the corporate limits of cities and villages such as Cass City is beginning to bring about some problems.

"Some persons are finding that, after they bought a piece of land out of town to build on, they can't get a perk test to pass, so they can't put in a septic tank," he said. "This never happened until a few years ago. Also, in some communities, if you live within a mile of the corporate limits, they make you look onto the city sewer."

He also explained that inspections will eventually be made on a township-wide basis. If the townships don't do it, then the counties will be obliged to step in. And, according to McComb, if the counties don't take the initiative, then the state will do so.

McComb said a trend in the Cass City area to multi-family dwellings is taking place and that, in the future, the number of these units will increase, as the need increases for rentals. School teachers, for example, will need this type of housing, along with temporary employees in industry and those just wanting to find a house to buy or build.

"I've been saying since 1946 that things were going to start slowing down in the building business here," McComb said. "Well, they haven't yet and I guess they won't, either." McComb says he works on a 12-month basis and has for the past 20 years or so.

And, if building trends in Cass City continue, Fay McComb will be busy for a long time to come.

IMPORTANT TIPS

Local hardware and building supply dealers are a good source for important home improvement tips.

NAIL BINS

Easy storage of nails is empty milk carton that has been cut down to three-inch depth.

BUILDER FAY McCOMB has seen a great number of changes in the building business over the 37 years he has been constructing homes in the Cass City area.

Kenneth Anthes dies Monday

Kenneth Anthes, 58, a lifelong resident of Cass City, died Monday at his home.

Mr. Anthes was born in Novesta township Aug. 7, 1914, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Anthes.

He married Miss Leota Palmateer in Napoleon, Ohio, June 20, 1939. Following their marriage, they made their home in Cass City.

Mr. Anthes was employed at Wesley's Milk Company. He attended the First Presbyterian Church of Cass City. He was a member of the Royal Order of Moose No. 1049 of Caro.

He is survived by his widow, Leota; one daughter, Mrs. Robert (Dorothy) Steigman of Grand Ledge; one sister, Mrs. Pauline Fryer of St. Petersburg, Fla.; two brothers, Edward and Gordon, both of Cass City. One brother preceded him in death.

Funeral services were to be held at Little's Funeral Home, Thursday, July 5. Rev. Howard Woodard, pastor of the Novesta Church of Christ, and Rev. Melvin R. Vender, pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian Church, were to officiate, with burial in Novesta cemetery.

Let Rib Eye Rest

For easy carving and attractive servings, it is best to let a rib eye roast "set" 15 to 20 minutes before carving. Simply place the roast on a board or platter of adequate size, hold it firmly with a fork and carve across the grain into slices of desired thickness with a sharp knife or electric knife. Carving across the grain means simply carving down to the board when it's a boneless rib eye.

KNEE HIGH BY the Fourth of July is the old saying among farmers. However, Chester Kulinski of rural Cass City has that goal well-surpassed as he demonstrates here. ## LeRoux recalls successes, failures as EOC head

When Raymond LeRoux left as director of the Thumb Area Economic Opportunity Commission last Friday to take on his new assignment as director of Big Brothers of Chicago, he explained that his transitional period would be a short one.

"I'll drive there Saturday," he said, "get settled in Sunday, grab a hot shower that night and go to work Monday."

LeRoux, who stayed on his job until three days before his new assignment was set to begin, reflected on some of the accomplishments and disappointments of the agency he ran for about a year.

"When I came here we had 15 operational programs," he recalled, "and we were literally running into each other around here. We were too diversified. Then when the budget cuts for the Office of Economic Opportunity were announced, it changed the whole ballgame."

That change meant consolidation of programs and services, staff cuts and pay cuts. Some of this had begun under LeRoux's direction before the economic squeeze came.

Today the Thumb EOC consists of three agencies: Operation Mainstream, designed to put persons on welfare back to work; Headstart, and the Neighborhood Youth Corps.

LeRoux admitted that in some areas of the county, the commission's reputation has not always met with enthusiasm. He mentioned that Cass City specifically was an area in which more might have been accomplished.

"Cass City has probably the most aggressive plan to expand medical services of any place in the county," he said.

He recalled that the agency transferred three dental chairs to Hills and Dales General Hospital which were stored in a warehouse and which had been donated to EOC.

LeRoux said that initial hostility to EOC is fading and that the commission wants to become a viable part of the community. Acceptance, he said, is growing.

"We've tried to move in closer to the family of the community," he said. "Trust is something we had to build. The board of commissioners, for example, asked us to organize the alcoholism program with the health department. This is encouraging, because in the beginning, they didn't want anything to do with us."

LeRoux stressed the necessity of the EOC to do a selling job for itself. He reiterated the point that none of the commission's employees is a government worker or a civil servant. They receive no fringe benefits, seniority or job security.

"In fact, our staff, which we reduced by a half in the last year, took a 20 per cent reduction in hours and pay," LeRoux explained. "Where else would you find employees who would do something like that?"

He said the agency's funding will not be especially hurt by federal cutbacks to OEO. Only one dollar of every seven used by the EOC comes from the federal anti-poverty agency.

Most of the Thumb agency's funding comes from private sources, along with the Department of Labor and school districts which participate in operation Headstart. Cass City does not participate in the program.

"If OEO closes down completely, we're still in business," LeRoux said. "This year, they're giving us $101,000. Our total budget runs something like $800,000."

He said he has had disappointments in other areas of work. For example, he said the loan program which aided nearly 17 county businesses to either begin or expand facilities had to be scrapped in light of belt tightening.

On the plus side, LeRoux said the agency itself has matured in eight years of existence.

"This place has changed," he said. "It used to be very staff-oriented and concerned with hours, benefits and the like. Now I think it's a fairer place all the way around. I think it's a more honest place to work now. I know it's more accountable."

LeRoux admitted EOC did not have all the answers to the economic ills of Tuscola county, but that through a better understanding of human needs, it has become more human and is striving to meet those needs.

"We've tried to do what common sense dictated," LeRoux said.

He said he believes he has served his purpose in Tuscola county and that now is the time to move on. He wants to organize Big Brothers in Chicago and perhaps, in a few years, slow the pace.

"If I do ever decide to slow down, I just might move back to Tuscola county," he said. "And if I did, I think I'd come to Cass City."

RAYMOND LeROUX, resigning director of the Thumb Economic Opportunity Commission, talks with new acting director Sally Atkinson. LeRoux began a new assignment with Big Brothers of Chicago Monday.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

When folks 200 year from now read our history, I wonder what they'll think of our way of celebrating. Ever time we have a national holiday I am reminded of them heathen tribes that pick somebody to throw off a cliff in honor of some special occasion. Except that we pick hunderds.

The fellers was setting around the country store Saturday night and they got to thinking of the Fourth coming up this week. They was asking first if the Fourth had been moved to Monday by act of Congress, then they'd have to call it the Second or go back to Independence Day, which is long to say let today's country in a hurry to get on with the celebrating.

Ed Duolittle said from what he sees in the papers, the Fourth will be held on the fourth, which means folks got a week end in front of 'em ready and, if they're lucky, a week end behind to recover. Either way you count it, declared Ed, the Fourth will break up the week and a lot of people in the boragan.

It was Bug Hookum that said the American way of celebrating takes two basic forms. If you're celebrating in hot weather, you usual choose between second degree burns over your body or running your 300 horsepower car wide open down the busiest road you can find. Whutther you cook under the sun on the beach or in your backyard is some of the personal touches you can add to your celebrating, and you can pick between wrecking your car drunk or sober.

Ever day in this country, went on Bug, 150 people die in car wrecks, and 11,000 is hurt. On holidays you can multiply this number by four or more, and you can blame most of the accidents on drunk drivers. You don't have to get drunk to kill yourself on the road, said Bug.

but it helps.

Actual, Clem Webster said, Americans have got some kind of sick love affair going with cars. He said all the trouble they had running the Memorial Day Indianapolis 500 was the hole country's feelings in a nutshell. Some folks truly love cars and car racing for the beauty of the machines and the skill of the sport, but most of us drive and watch cars as a excuse to do somepun else, was Clem's words.

Ed was agreed with Clem. He said his daughter that works in the city is allus talking about her season ticket to the football games. Ed said she don't know the first thing about football, and she don't want to learn. She goes to the games to have a reason to be with her friends, and probable to see what the other wimmen is wearing. Ed said when some folks want a excuse to be with their friends they play a game called bet your life on the highway.

Mister Editor, the gas shortage could be a blessing in disguise. It looks like the only way to stop us.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Scout phone-a-thon set for Kingston July 5

The Boy Scouts of America will conduct a "Phone-A-Thon" Thursday, July 5 in Kingston. All residents, including the parents of boys in Cub Scouting and Boy Scouting will be contacted by telephone during the early evening of July 5, and asked to provide financial help in the Operation of the Lake Huron Area Council, Boy Scouts of America.

This drive is necessary because there is no United Fund in Kingston, so scouting must raise on its own all of the money it needs to continue serving the community.

The average cost per boy is $20.40 for one year. All contributions are voluntary. The pledge can be paid anytime during 1973. There are 29 boys active in the Scouting Program in Kingston. Local Scout leaders include Ken Packey, Dick Peters, Eugene Rasette, Bob Sanders, and Tom Schaible.

LOOKING OVER THE contracts are three winners of Hills and Dales Hospital $1,000 scholarships. The girls receive $1,000 per year and the grants are renewable each year if grades are maintained. In return the winners agree to return to the hospital to work for one year after graduation or to refund the scholarship money. From left: Administrator Byron Landholt; Mary E. Powell of Cass City, in her second year at Delta, who expects to graduate in 1974; Paula Decker of Cass City who plans to attend Ferris State College and graduate in 1975, and Nancy Kerbyson, a Sophomore at Michigan State who expects to graduate in 1976.

Rev. Prong to begin Novesta post

Harold C. Prong will assume his duties as minister of the Novesta Church of Christ, 2892 N. Cemetery Rd., July 15.

Rev. Prong will assume his duties at the church which has been without a regular pastor for about one year. During the interim, Rev. Howard Woodard, a former pastor who is now retired, served as supply pastor. Rev. Woodard had served at Novesta for 13 years prior to leaving for pastorates in Pine Run and Lapeer. He retired two years ago.

Rev. Prong was born in Watson, Ohio and received his elementary education in Delta, Ohio. His higher education was taken at Ft. Wayne Bible College and at Olivet College, Kankakee, Ill. He entered the ministry in October, 1948 and was ordained Feb. 5, 1951.

In the 17 years of his ministry in Ohio, he served at the Bethel Church of Christ, near Ada, Ohio; at the Belle Center Church of Christ and the Church of Christ in Utica, Ohio. Before coming to Cass City, he ministered at the Christian Church of Allen Park, for six years.

He is married and has three children.

The Novesta church broke ground about one year ago to build an educational unit near the present church building. That facility is nearly completed and will be dedicated in the near future.

It will comprise six classrooms with the possibility of an additional six being added later. Labor for finish work inside the structure has been donated by members of the church.

According to building committee chairman Lee Hartel, this is the first step in a three-phase building program which will eventually see the construction of a new church building and a fellowship hall in approximately five years.

The educational unit cost just under $25,000 to complete and measures 40x92 feet. Additionally, the church has renovated the parsonage, costing approximately $3,000 and has purchased three acres of land for future expansion.

Make it a habit — economize on the time spent complaining.

HAROLD C. PRONG

Rev. Prong is a Master Mason and has served as chaplain in several lodges in Ohio. He is also a member of Royal Arch, Detroit Commandery No. 1, and is the immediate Past Sovereign Prince of Carson Council of Detroit Valley of Scottish Rite. He now serves as chaplain of the Moslem Shrine in Detroit.

Erila's slow torrid pace by dividing four games

Erila's slowed their torrid pace of last week and split the four games played from Friday through Sunday. On Friday they defeated the Bay City Arrow TV club by a 5-4 count.

Erila's opened quickly with a run in the first on a single by Elwyn Helwig, a wild pitch and a sacrifice fly by Walt Hempton. They scored again in the third on a double by Helwig and a single by Jim LaRoche.

Helwig went four for four including a home run in the fifth, driving in two more runs.

Erila's capped their scoring in the eighth on a single by Dave Puckett, an error by Bay City first baseman Paul Anderson and a sacrifice by Rollie Nicholas.

Bay City scored in the first and again in the sixth on an error and a home run by Dan Johnson.

Dave Puckett, pitcher for Erila's, struck out 10 Bay Cityans and issued only one base-on-balls.

Erila's pounded out 11 hits in the game played at Mayville.

Mayville was the scene of the action Saturday as Erila's took on Mueller Reese and demolished them by a score of 10-2.

Gene McGill was the big gun in the attack by pounding out four hits including a double and three singles. Walt Hempton smacked a home run, a triple and a double and scored four of Erila's runs, as did McGill. Nick Weycker also chipped in with a home run in the second and a single in the third.

Erila's scored three runs in the third, fifth and sixth innings, along with one in the second and one again in the seventh. Pitcher Al Bosch struck out 9 and walked only one.

Mueller Reese scored their two runs in the fifth on three singles and a double.

Things turned sour later as Erila's bowed to the Mayville VFW team by a score of 2-1 in 10 innings.

Erila's broke into the scoring column first in the fourth when Jim LaRoche was hit by a pitch and scored on a sacrifice and a stolen base.

Mayville came back in the seventh on a single and two doubles to tie the contest and send it into extra innings. Erila's undoing came in the tenth when a double, a walk and a single won the game for Mayville.

Dave Puckett took the loss, despite a superb pitching performance in which he struck out nine and walked only two.

Sunday saw Erila's nine drop another squeaker, this time by a 1-0 count to Jones Bar of Lapeer.

Jones scored the lone run of the game in the first inning on two singles and two flyballs to center.

Erila hurler Don McGill took the loss. He struck out one and walked no one.

Softball teams

take two

victories

Cass City's Women's Softball team blasted Deckerville 17-4 in a make-up game played in Cass City Monday night. The game had originally been scheduled for last Wednesday.

The batters had their hitting clothes on as Betty Ballagh and Kally Pine each collected four hits, while Pat White had three safeties and Harriet Richards had two hits.

Elaine Stoutenburg was the winning pitcher.

Cass City broke things wide open in the second inning when they pushed five runs across the plate.

Defense was also superb as Pat White cut down a Deckerville runner at the plate with a throw from center field, and catcher Ballagh put the tag on the sliding base-runner.

Last Thursday the team whipped Argyle 12-10 in a game played in Sandusky. Pat White again led the team with a double in the third inning and a home run in the seventh. Charmain Farner was the winning pitcher.

The team's next action is Wednesday, July 11, against Snover Stamping at the Cass City Recreational Park.

Sentence Emery in Circuit

Court Thursday

A Caro resident will face 36 months of probation after being sentenced Thursday in Tuscola County Court after being found guilty of larceny.

Dean Emery was sentenced by Judge Norman Baguley to probation, along with a fine of $200 and costs of $200 plus the cost of his court appointed attorney in connection with the theft of a television set from a Caro appliance store March 18.

In addition, Emery will make a restitution to the firm for the television set. Emery will also serve 90 days in the Tuscola County Jail with credit for four days already served.

At the end of last week several teams had two games left to play but it was all academic... the Yankees had sailed away the toga for the third straight year.

The champs were undefeated with a 10-0 record and have completed the regular season.

The team boasted strong hitting, according to Manager Lee Hartel. Tony Doerr slammed the ball at a .642 clip and three other players were over .500. Jeff Hartel hit .566; Tim Johnson, .514, and Tim Severance, .500. Doerr hit two homers during the year and Tim Severance and Jeff Hartel, one each.

The mound chores were shared by Hartel, Tim Severance, Doerr and Johnson.

Looking towards the future, Craig Tonti, 9, was given a chance to throw and he was credited with a win. Brad Hartel, 9, also pitched two innings.

The league play-offs are scheduled to start July 9.
