

Selective Service still in business despite end of draft

By Jim Ketchum

Any man who thinks the Selective Service System folded its tents and silently stole away when the draft expired July 1, is in for a rude awakening. It's still there, operating just as it always has, and still requires men to register on their 18th birthday.

No small amount of confusion was caused last January when former Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird announced an end to all inductions by Selective Service five months before the president's power to induct expired. Many assumed that an end to the draft meant an end to all phases of Selective Service.

This is not the case. Men reaching their 18th birthday must still register. Local boards will classify them as to their availability for possible military service in the event of a national emergency.

The law requires that all men, except certain non-immigrant aliens, must sign up within 60 days of their 18th birthday. Under the law, men must register at 18, must notify their draft boards when they change addresses and must carry their draft cards with them until their liability expires, which for most men today is age 26.

State Selective Service Director Arthur A. Holmes advises those men who have not registered to do so promptly. Holmes emphasizes that failure to register is a violation of the law and could result in prosecution by the Department of Justice. It is expected that approximately 85,000 young men will be subject to draft registration this year in Michigan.

According to Virginia Milbourne of the Selective Service area office in Saginaw, no prosecutions have yet been made for late registrants from Tuscola county.

"We haven't been prosecuting anyone for coming in late," she said. "We are more concerned with having them come in and register. If they do that, even though they do come in late, we don't prosecute."

She indicated that so far this year, 433 young men have registered with Board No. 83, which covers Tuscola and Huron counties, and replaces the two boards formerly in Caro and Bad Axe. She said about 60 per cent of the men came from Tuscola county.

Of these registrations, approximately 100 were completed through an experimental plan by which the young man could register by mail. Forms were available at most municipal institutions. She deemed the program highly successful for this area.

The program is under analysis currently and it is hoped that within the next two months, word will come from State headquarters in Lansing regarding future use of the plan.

Ms. Milbourne said registrars are still available at most high schools to register the young men and saving a trip into Saginaw to complete the process. She said registrars are currently working in Vassar, Akron-Fairgrove, Millington, Cass City, Caro, Kingston and Mayville.

Ms. Milbourne said registrations were down somewhat on all boards, but she could give no statistics. She said it is difficult to compare one year's number of registrants with any past year, due to the fact that the number of available men will vary.

She explained that when each

18-year-old registers, he is given a pamphlet detailing the process of the draft, according to the publication.

The pamphlet explains that once the lottery numbers for the year are drawn, men holding numbers below the cutoff will be processed for possible induction and will stand ready for induction during the calendar year of their 20th birthday. It further explains that preinduction physicals will probably not be given unless a mobilization is called or unless the president receives legislation from Congress reconstituting the draft.

Those men holding lottery numbers above the cutoff figure will be classified 1-F and will not be subject to further Selective Service processing, unless there is a general mobilization. Applications for deferments and exemptions will still be processed, along with requests for conscientious objector classifications.

After the man completes his year of prime vulnerability, he is placed in a lower category of draftability and is returned to 1-F status. Each succeeding year, he drops one rung on the ladder of draft vulnerability.

After reaching age 26, most men need no longer be concerned with the draft, according to the publication.

The end of the draft has brought increased pressure on recruiters of the four service branches to bring more men into the service. The services themselves, now offer more attractive enlistments, better pay and conditions, and place increasing emphasis on the educational role of the military life-style rather than concentrating on the killing aspects.

The Navy, for example, is now sacrificing numbers of men for quality sailors, according to Chief Petty Officer John Linsley, Naval recruiter in Caro. He explained that the Navy wants intelligent men who want to continue their education and who want to "become more than paint-chippers."

He said that since the first of the year, 10 men from Tuscola county have volunteered and qualified for entrance into the Navy. These recruits all had to have high school diplomas, had to pass entrance examinations and had to have, in Linsley's opinion, the kind of temperament suited for life in the Navy.

"The final decision is strictly up to me," he said. "If a man comes in and qualifies for the Navy, it's up to me to judge whether or not he should go in. If we don't think he should, we send him home."

Linsley said that the men recruited from the county seem to be of higher than average caliber and that the future of Naval recruiting in Tuscola county looks bright.

"Men entering the Navy now must go to some kind of school that the service offers," he explained. "The programs are so varied that we feel we have something for nearly everyone."

He added that the Navy will not take any man with any kind of police record.

Navy base pay begins at $307.20 per month plus allowances. A choice of assignments and trades are also offered, and in many instances, guaranteed.

While most of the men he talks with are high school graduates, he indicated the Navy does not limit enlistment to 18-year-olds. Programs designed for college graduates are offered, along with officer's training.

The Army has also responded to demands for change by liberalizing longstanding traditions, raising base pay and hiring an advertising agency in New York to conduct a campaign to entice more men into joining.

According to Army recruiter Sgt. 1st Class James W. Allen, his quotas are being met with little problem and, in some instances, he has surpassed manpower requests. For example, in June, a quota of six was set and met. This month, he had a quota of five and expects seven to sign Army contracts.

"The end of the draft did affect us at first," he said. "because we had major adjustments to make. But we've made them and things look very good."

Allen said he likes the all-volunteer Army very much because it brings in a soldier who wants to be a soldier and not someone who comes because he has to be there. The recruit is of a higher caliber than his predecessor and carries a better attitude about military life.

He said over 90 per cent of his enlistments this year were for men who had graduated from high school. He added that the Army will take non-graduated men, but they must score higher on entrance examinations than the graduates.

"We're looking for quality now, not quantity," he said.

Allen explained that the Army also offers guaranteed enlistments and assignments, providing the proper vacancy exists at the post he requests. All this is placed in writing before the recruit raises his hand. As with the Navy, base pay starts at $307.20, with a raise to $340 in four months.

Allen emphasized that Army training is still rugged. "It's no bowl of roses," he commented. He added that there is less harassment now and that men are treated more as individuals instead of bodies waiting to be molded into men.

He said some career officers in the Army balked at liberalization at first, but soon realized that they would have to be flexible if they wanted to stay in the service.

"The Army simply woke up to the changes in the society and has responded accordingly," he said. "I like the changes that have come about. They're all for the good."

Fairgrove woman killed in one car crash Saturday

A Fairgrove woman became Tuscola county's 15th traffic fatality early Saturday morning when the car she was driving struck a tree on Kingston Road near Detroit.

Tuscola county sheriff's deputies said Pauline Martinez, 41, was driving north on Kingston Road just south of Deckerville Road when she lost control of the car. According to the report filed on the accident, the vehicle left the roadway on the east side, then came back onto the pavement and traveled north another 500 feet before swerving off to the left and striking a tree.

Police investigated the accident at 7:00 a.m. It was theorized that the crash occurred around 4:30 a.m. The victim was last seen leaving Wal-Mart at a high rate of speed shortly before that time.

She was pronounced dead at the scene of multiple injuries. Funeral services for Mrs. Martinez were held Tuesday at the Shetler-Bussena Funeral Home, Pigeon, with burial in Grandlawn cemetery.

She was born Aug. 29, 1931 in Hazel Park. Surviving are her husband, Crillo; three daughters, five sons, one grandchild, her mother and three brothers. A freak accident Friday afternoon took the life of a Saginaw boy as he rode in a car driven by his mother on M-15 just west of Bradford Road. Jeffery Leaman, 8, of Free land, was killed when wind blew a road sign from a rack on a state highway department truck into the car, striking and killing the boy.

According to the deputy's report, the Leaman auto was traveling west and the truck was proceeding east. As the two vehicles met, a gust of wind forced one of three signs on the truck loose, carrying it through an open window into the car. One of the legs of the sign struck the boy in the head.

He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw where he died about an hour later of a skull fracture.

The driver of the truck, Timothy L. Flier of Saginaw, was not held in connection with the accident which occurred around 3:00 p.m.

A 16-year-old migrant farm worker from Texas was struck by a car and killed Sunday, just after midnight, as he and a young girl companion were walking along Sebewaing Road, about two miles east of Sebewaing, apparently after they had missed their ride to Owendale.

Director R. Rodriguez was pronounced dead at the scene. He had been living at a migrant worker's camp in Owendale and originally came from Seguin, Texas.

Franklin G. Ondraika, 19, Gaytown, was identified as the driver of the car involved in the accident. Huron county's 16th fatal for the year.

He told Huron sheriff's deputies he was directly alongside a car he was passing when the accident occurred. He said he heard a thump and saw the victim on the windshield of his car. Ondraika was driving east on Sebewaing Road, the same direction in which the two were walking.

Officers noted that both the young persons were dressed in dark clothing, making it hard to see them alongside the road.

Rodriguez's companion Leria Leal, 13, Owendale, suffered injuries to her right hand when the car also struck her.

Rodriguez landed some 200 feet from the point of impact. His body was five feet off the road on the north side. Officers said he sustained massive abdominal hemorrhaging and fractures of the neck and skull.

Miss Leal was treated and released from Scheurer Hospital, Pigeon.

Ondraika was not held in connection with the accident. At least one witness said he was driving within the speed limit as he passed the other car.

Rodriguez was born Dec. 27, 1956 in Seguin, Texas. He came to Owendale with his family about two months ago to work as a farm laborer.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Urbano Rodriguez, three brothers and four sisters; and a grandfather, Pedro Rodriguez, also of Seguin, Texas.

Funeral services were to be held Thursday at the Catholic church in Seguin, Texas, with burial in the Guadalupe cemetery.

Several other accidents were reported last week. Friday, a car driven by George John Wrubble, 4895 Sheldon Rd., Saver, collided with an auto driven by Mary Edwards, Seeger Road.

According to Cass City Police, Wrubble was traveling west on Church Street and had stopped for the Seeger Street intersection. He then started into the intersection and was struck by the Edwards vehicle.

Witnesses said Wrubble pulled into the path of Ms. Edwards. No skid marks were found on the pavement.

Committee sets plans

Indoor pool information to flow to all district voters

Everything there is to know about the proposed indoor swimming pool in Cass City will be brought before the voters in the school district prior to the Aug. 13 election that will decide the issue.

That was one of the main decisions reached in a joint meeting of the school board-council held Tuesday night at the high school.

"Let's put the whole issue before the people and let them decide," said Councilman Jim Ware as he echoed the consensus of the officials present.

To do this every avenue of communication available will be used. A direct mail letter will be sent to every registered voter in the district.

A full page advertisement (not purchased at school or village expense) will tell all the facts concerning costs, operation, design and answer any questions that taxpayers are asking about the pool. Area radio stations will be provided with full information for broadcast purposes.

One thing sure. The pool will be open 12 months of the year and district taxpayers will receive a bonus because the current members of the village council have agreed to run its traditional summer program in the indoor pool.

It could well be that the pool would be the most used facility at the school. For in addition to its regular use during the school day it would be open after school and during the evenings. If constructed the pool would be added to the south side of the high school building. Tentative plan was displayed at the Tuesday meeting.

However, Supt. Don Crouse said that there undoubtedly will be changes before the final plan is accepted.

It is sure that a floor plan of the building would be available for general distribution before the Aug. 13 vote.

As previously disclosed the total cost of the indoor pool including a mill for operation would be a maximum of 2.9 mills.

Concluded on page 13.

Drive for four-doctor clinic moves forward with prospectus release

The drive to build a four-doctor clinic swung into high gear this week with the release of the prospectus and the start of a selling campaign by five volunteers who are officers of the corporation working without salary.

The aim is to sell a minimum of $30,000,000 shares with a par value of $100 and hopefully to secure $220,000 through the stock sale.

The $220,000 is estimated to be the total cost of building, equipping the clinic, financing the search for doctors and subsidizing of physicians for the first year in the community.

It is estimated that the cost for lawyer's fees, independent audit report and advertising will total $3,700.

In addition another $56,300 is earmarked for payment of medical finder fees averaging $4,000 to $4,500 per doctor, taxes, building maintenance, salary guarantees to doctors and other similar costs.

The Pinney State Bank and the Cass City State Bank have agreed, according to the prospectus, to finance construction costs of the amount needed that is over $80,000 at an interest rate of 7 per cent with payment stretched over a 10-year period.

While the prospectus calls for payment of expenses connected with securing doctors in the village, a campaign spearheaded by Fred Auten may make this cost unnecessary.

A drive to raise money through donations from industry and a few businesses is about half completed. Auten reported this week. When the goal is reached this money will be used to buy the "Donahue" clinic and to pay out-of-pocket costs in the new corporation.

If all goes according to plan stockholders in the new corporation will not be making donations and supporters envision selling the clinic to doctors after a year or so and returning investments to stockholders.

After the first year, doctors will be charged rent based on the total cost of the buildings.

Dr. Yongkyun Kim, now operating from the Donahue clinic, could be the first to occupy space in the new building.

It's no secret to area folks that doctors are in short supply in the area. Cass City's 65-bed hospital is served by just three physicians within a seven-mile radius.

Most persons agree with a statement in the prospectus that says, "There is now and will continue to be a critical medical need in this area for more general practitioners and specialists in the fields of OB-gynecology, pediatrics, internal medicine, surgery and dental medicine."

Handling the sale of the stock are the directors of Hills and Dales Medical Center, Inc. They are: Tom Proctor, president; Kenneth M. Weaver, vice-president; Ms. Geraldine Prieskorn, secretary; Frederick Auten, treasurer, and B. A. Calka, director.

Before the general campaign started the prospectus indicated that 10 individuals had subscribed to 300 shares of stock for an average of $3,000 per person.

"If It Fitz . . ."*Get thee behind me

BY JIM FITZGERALD

It was somewhat ironic. Because of a crime, I had to quit watching the TV Watergate hearings long enough to go to the court house. I had to pay a speeding ticket.

"You must come with me," I told my wife. "You have to sit behind me while I testify."

"You must be kidding," she said.

"Not a bit. You've seen John Dean and Jeb Magruder and the others on TV. Their wives always sit right behind them. Wear something sexy but dignified. Maybe a bare midriff but fold your arms in front of the bare. Nothing flashy. We don't want to appear ostentatious."

"That's funny. Everyone knows why I'm the first to volunteer to work at the rummage sales at 15 different churches. It's so I can get first pick. Besides, those wives are behind their husbands because the TV cameras are there. I really don't think NBC will be in Magistrate Ruth Knack's court today."

"That's not the point. The point is that behind every decent man there is a loving, faithful wife who smiles quietly at his quips and frowns politely when someone calls him a liar. And she always sits with her knees pressed tightly together. It is called the Dr. Joyce Brothers sit."

"I don't think either of us have to worry about sitting in magistrate's court. There is only 1 chair and Ruth Knack is in it."

"I don't think you are taking this matter seriously enough," I said, getting slightly perturbed. "A wife is an important part of her husband's image. Smart politicians send Christmas cards with photos of their families posed in the Nativity scene. The voters are suspicious of bachelors. They like a man who is happily married to a solid woman with a dog in a cloth coat. And when that man goes to court, his wife must go with him. Otherwise, people will think she doesn't love him because he is a liar."

"I could bring the cats to court," she said. "I could dress them as the 3 Wise Men. I could borrow our granddaughter to play the part of the holy infant. We can tell the magistrate there was no room in the Holiday Inn. And you could be the jackass whose breath keeps the baby warm."

"Listen, I'm serious about this. John Dean admitted he temporarily swiped $4,000 to finance his honeymoon. But who could blame him after seeing that blond dish sitting behind him? Any American boy from Harvard would have done the same thing. I need the same kind of backing. I am going to tell the magistrate I was speeding because you were deathly sick and I had to get to the Blue Cross office quickly to pay overdue premiums. I need you there to nod your head and caress the back of my neck when the going gets tough."

"I'm sorry," she said. "but I cannot live a lie. If that is the type of wife you want, you'd better get a new one."

"At this point in time," I said. "I think I will go up to Camp David to prepare a report on the reaction to your tempting suggestion."

Hulls receive 'keys' to Cass City Friday

Letter to Editor

California reader corrects fire story

July 10, 1973

Hello, John:

Correction: The house that burned down on Leslie Road did not belong to the Duane Longs; that was our little green house that Ron and I built in the 30's. A lot of sentimental value went up in smoke along with the physical.

The Chronicle's weekly arrival is always enjoyed! Best wishes in its continued success.

Sincerely,

Irene D. Warren

When Rev. Wilton H. Hull and his family arrived in Cass City Friday to assume his duties at Cass City Missionary Church, his four-year-old daughter, Brenda, knew exactly what to do.

She boldly knocked on the door of one of the parishioners who had the keys to the parsonage and, when the parishioner answered, she stated emphatically, "We came for the keys to Cass City."

Rev. Hull began his pastorate with a sermon July 15, succeeding Rev. James Kidney, who left to begin a pastorate in Kalamazoo.

Rev. Hull came to Cass City from Lafayette, Indiana, where he had worked for four years with a youth group from the Evangelical Mennonite Church. He was born in Illinois and, after serving a tour of duty in the Navy, graduated from Ft. Wayne Bible College. While in Ft. Wayne, he served as assistant pastor at Brookside Missionary Church.

The Hulls indicated that in their short time here, they are impressed with their church and the friendliness of the area. He said he hopes to begin visitations in the near future.

After receiving the "keys" to Cass City, Mrs. Hull said her daughter and son Mark, 2, began making friends before the moving van arrived. They all look forward to their time in the area, Rev. Hull added.

FROM THE

Editor's Corner

People aren't the same everywhere. Regardless of what you've heard they aren't. Persons in the west are different from midwesterners, easterners, southerners.

They have different standards, different ideals, different goals.

And one of these goals is to be left alone.

They aren't interested in "progress." Or at least most of them aren't. They don't want multi-million dollar developments, new improved airports, easy access roads.

In Montana at least they want wide open spaces, the amateur rodeo, plenty of elbow room.

A beauty shop operator told this to my wife, a motel employee told it to both of us and keeping the big development out was a topic heard or overheard all across Montana.

Why should Montanians be different from the head of a local Chamber of Commerce in nearly any Michigan community?

Instead of promoting, promoting, promoting, dragging their heels in the dusty slopes of this semi-arid country?

Sure, most persons resist change consciously or subconsciously. But it's more than that and I think one of the guides we had on a river float trip is the key to this lack of ambition in the traditional (or establishment) view of the way to get ahead.

His name was "Buzz" Rogers. And he's not a native of Montana. Far from it.

About as far as you can get. He was born and raised in Vermont. After a service hitch he worked in several states.

He worked with the moderate success that most of us achieve. Not especially brilliant. . . but not terribly inept either.

But for him this work was simply wheel spinning. It made him money. That's all.

So about eight years ago he chucked it. Sold everything he couldn't pile into the back of a station wagon and headed west.

He sold his golf clubs and kept only the essentials. . . his fishing and hunting gear.

Now he's a licensed guide when he isn't fishing for fun.

He drives a 10-year old car but has a very valuable collection of bamboo rods that today sell for $200 or more each.

He's quietly contented and one of the highlights of his year is the fall when most of the tourists have left and he has days to himself to fish for big trout.

November is one of the finest months, he confides.

You couldn't expect persons like Rogers to welcome with open arms a development that promises to intrude on what he chucked everything to get.

There's a lot of folks who would like to live in the west if they could figure out how to make a living there.

And that illustrates what I've been trying to get across.

In Montana there are a lot of folks who feel that making a living is secondary to the way they are living now.

They don't want to change it.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Eric Huenemoeder of Unionville is an old-time printer now retired. Several years ago he quit after many years with the Tuscola County Advertiser in Caro.

He was in the office with work for the Chronicle print shop the other day and because I'm a ham who likes to show what we have here to guys that understand, I twisted his arm into a shop tour. Because he's a pro he could appreciate and understand the value of the new equipment and printing techniques but because he's been gone five years or so only two pieces left in the place are similar to those he worked with.

I bring this up for two reasons: to show the rapid changes in printing technology and to print a not too subtle plug for our modern commercial printing department.

If you ask I'm sure that Athletic Director Robert Stickle will say that scheduling problems are one of the headaches of his job with sports at Cass City High School.

It must be worse in lesser populated areas. In Montana I asked a native how they worked it when towns are 60 miles or more apart and only a handful are bigger than Caro and most are smaller than Cass City.

The answer is that the teams go where the action is. Dillon, Montana, for instance, travels up to 350 miles to play a game and then back again. . . most times making the trip both ways in one day.

What's this do to attendance. Well, says my informant, the moms and dads still make it but the rest of the student body waits for the home games.

A serious note: twice this week that I know of kids nearly became accident victims in Cass City. . . once on Main Street and once at the entrance to the park.

These were really close calls. . . the kind that send cold chills up and down the back.

Maybe it's time for a campaign. Parents working on the kids, adults driving with a renewed awareness of the dangers, and a strict enforcement of bike safety rules could avert a tragedy yet this summer.

Small populations bring small schools and small salaries and large problems.

A Montana first-year teacher I rapped with said that the starting salary was $6,600. In addition she was forced to handle so many different grades that she had six class preparations every night plus a host of extra curricular duties. . . play leader, class sponsor, etc. In Montana these jobs are part of the job. . . not an extra at added pay.

But it's changing there, too. A school board member in Dillon said that the grade school is in the throes of union organization and he regards a similar move by the high school as inevitable.

To be eligible for the academic honors list, a student must have a cumulative grade average of "B" or better for his or her entire college career.

The straight "A" list is based upon winter semester grades without regard to cumulative averages.

The students achieving academic honors were among 13,420 enrolled at CMU for the semester which ended May 11.

Students who achieved straight "A" averages from this area are:

State Police probe Gagetown break-in

State Police from Bad Axe said Tuesday no new leads have been uncovered in what appeared to be an unsuccessful attempt at stealing a welding rig being stored in a building at the Evans Products plant in Gagetown.

The rig, which consists of two tanks and a cutting torch, was discovered early Saturday beside railroad tracks near the plant.

William Ingalsbee, night plant security guard, told police he observed a lone male subject dressed in a plaid shirt, walking along inside the fence that surrounds the plant.

DO YOU HAVE A DRINKING PROBLEM? ALCOHOLICS ANONYMOUS & AL-ANON
Every Friday evening, 8:00 to 9:00.

Ingalsbee told officers the subject shouted something at him apparently after he became aware the guard had seen him. He then fled the scene.

The rig was not discovered until the following morning. It had been stored in an unlocked building at the plant.

Police are continuing their investigation.

Cass City Police arrested a rural motorcycleist and charged him with eluding police and with improper motorcycle equipment.

Charles T. Lauria, 4135 Cemetery Rd., was spotted driving recklessly on Elizabeth Street Saturday evening, according to police reports on the incident. Police chased Lauria on his motorcycle down Elizabeth Street and into a gravel pit at the end of the street.

A warrant for his arrest was issued Monday and he subsequently appeared in Tuscola County District Court, pleading guilty to charges of eluding a police officer. He paid a $48 fine and $52 in costs.

Wednesday, Tuscola county sheriff's officers reported a breaking and entering at McCrea's Restaurant on E. Sanilac Road, Caro.

Officers said the thieves entered the building through a rear door, prying three hooks loose with what they believed to be a crow bar. The thieves then walked through a food storage room and took several items from an upper floor.

Among the items taken were a transistor radio, a stereo tape player, a typewriter, nine cartons of cigarettes and $300 in cash. Total loss was placed at $553.96.

Deputies investigating the incident discovered a partial bag of marijuana at the scene, presumably left there by one of the culprits.

The investigation continues. A seven-year-old Holly girl sustained lacerations about the face Sunday night when the German shepherd dog she was petting turned on her and bit her in the face.

Cass City police said Katie Christolerson was visiting with her parents at the home of Mrs. Florence Engel of Robinson Road, when the incident occurred around 8 p.m. The girl was taken to Hills and Dales Hospital where ten stitches were required to close her wounds.

According to Sanilac county sheriff's deputies, who also investigated the incident, the dog was ordered confined for a period of 14 days in order to determine if it has rabies.

The girl was released to her parents after treatment in the emergency room at the hospital.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

The killer-fire

By Jim Ketchum

Linda Long didn't make it. Everyone did the best they could, but she still died. The injuries she sustained when her house burned to the ground July 1, were just too much and she died. Expired is probably the word a nameless nurse used to break the news to the family. It still meant the same thing. She was gone.

I never knew Linda Long. I never met her. Yet, for some reason, the fire and her resultant death has really knocked the wind out of these sometimes blustery sails of mine.

I don't know exactly what reason I can give for feeling the way I do. People die in fires every day all over the world. Young people, old ones, babies and centenarians. They go by ones, twos, dozens and hundreds. It happens in three-room tenements and gigantic hotels.

So why did Linda Long's death leave me with this empty feeling? Maybe part of the reason involves the very nature of her death. According to firemen at the scene, she tried to move a leaky can of gasoline away from her house after it had gotten too near the hot engine of a motorcycle and the can exploded. She sustained third degree burns over 75 per cent of her body.

They rushed her to the University of Michigan Burn Center in Ann Arbor and fought a losing battle for the next week and a half. Her home was gone; now she is too. Fire was responsible for both. We hear warnings about it and we watch Smokey-the-Bear commercials until we simply tune out and fail to get the message. The it-can't-happen-to-me syndrome takes over and we march blithely on our merry way, never giving it a second thought.

Then the fire whistle goes off in the dead of night, cutting through the stillness with a wail signaling the education of another non-believer. The hair stands up on the back of my neck when the siren goes off before dawn. The thought of how did it happen this time whirled over and over in my mind, making sleep all but a forgotten experience.

Even an incident such as this fails to jar us into a more careful use of and guard against fire.

I guess what frustrates me most is the fact that once a fire gets any kind of a start in a house, usually it's pretty hard to stop it without a superhuman effort. Around here, we call our superhumans volunteer firemen. Yet, even they can't always do the impossible, and sometimes people die. Just like Linda Long, they die.

Fire is so non-human, so unwilling to respond to reason, and so deadly because of its very nature. It makes doing battle with it that much more difficult.

In our minds, when someone is killed, the killer is brought to justice and punished for his crime against one segment of humanity. Yet, in this case, no one can really be punished. Nothing can be punished. No justice can be wrought out of Linda Long's death.

A husband is without his wife and two young children no longer have a mother, thanks to fire. In that, an emptiness dwells that can never be filled.

I know it's been said over and over, but I want to say it again, just in case it might help. Fires can be stopped before they start.

Look around your house. Do you have a pile of rags sitting in an unventilated corner? Get rid of them. These are a source of spontaneous combustion. If you don't understand this phenomenon, ask any farmer about it who tried to pack baled hay into his barn before the alfalfa had cured properly. It's a very real threat.

How old is the wiring in your house? If you don't know or can't verify its adequacy, have it inspected by someone who knows what he is doing. And don't just settle for a quick peek with a flashlight. Feel the wire and determine whether or not it's brittle and lifeless.

Check the fusebox. Do it more than just in passing. I found a penny stuck in our fusebox shortly after we bought our house, stuck there by someone who did not care or whose IQ ranked with an eggplant. Make sure your fuses aren't too large for the circuits. If you need more circuits, install them. Don't depend on extension cords to do the job. More than one house has been leveled by overloaded extension cords.

Go over the furnace with a fine-tooth comb. Chimneys, burner units and proximity of fuel supply should all meet codes and be checked at least once a year. If you have a fireplace, make sure the screen cap on the chimney is properly installed and doing its job.

If you must burn trash, do it away from buildings and never on a windy day.

Above all, invest in a fire extinguisher, preferably in one that will put out most fires. Keep it handy, ready to go on a moment's notice. And plan a couple of escape routes in case the doors are blocked by flames.

What more can I say? Take care, people.

End space needs use wall valet

Space! No home ever seems to have enough of this precious commodity, so you have to look for and find it.

Finding storage space in a bathroom is a particular problem, since this is one room it's generally difficult to add onto.

Rutt-Williams offers an answer in a new wall valet to mount over the toilet, where wall space is often wasted. Styled with louvered or paneled doors above an open shelf, the compact and attractive unit is only 22 inches wide, 9 inches deep and 24 inches high.

A brass or pewter gallery rail in effect adds a top shelf for decorative accessories such as colorful boxes and bottles.

The wall valet is a fine example of easy improvement for an existing bathroom; a unit to keep in mind also if you're planning to carve a half-bath out of a closet or tuck one under the eaves. You'll find it at your neighborhood bath shop.

Home water fountains cool idea

With the first signs of spring—young Americans think of baseball, and with spring and summer sports comes a steady stream of traffic around the kitchen sink.

To serve the needs of your thirsty moppets, consider installation of an Elkay water cooler designed for home use. Featuring an all stainless steel cabinet, it can be installed on the patio or any convenient outside location where there's suitable overhead shelter. Fan-cooled unit has a capacity to serve 5 to 8 gallons per hour of chilled drinking water. Freeze proof protection is available for installations where temperatures occasionally fall below freezing.

Class of 1968 holds five-year reunion

The five-year reunion of the Cass City High School Class of 1968 was held Saturday at the White Creek Club in Detroit, with 70 persons attending.

Toastmaster for the gathering was Paul LeValley. Sharon Francis opened the reunion with a prayer, followed by the reading of the prophecy by Debbie LeValley. The Gary Deering Band provided live music for the reunion. Prizes were awarded to classmembers who had come farthest, had changed most and had the oldest and youngest children.

Rick Lorenzen, who had traveled 735 miles from Connecticut, won the prize for having traveled farthest. Tim Barnes won a prize for having changed most. Linda Hutchen won the oldest child, age 12, and Ann Rutkowski had the youngest child, 1 year and one-half months.

BETTER HEALTH

Mental patients have rights

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Four years ago, I told in this column of the horrible experience described by Mrs. Barbara Field Benziger in her splendid book, "The Prison of My Mind" (Walker, New York City, 1969). She tells how, because of much nervousness and depression, she was put in a mental hospital. Soon she was horrified when she found that she could not telephone to her husband or her lawyer, and she could not mail an uncensored letter. She was further distressed when the psychiatrist came to see her and she felt an intense dislike for him, and was so helpless that she could not do anything to get rid of him. It was six weeks before her husband came to rescue her and find for her another hospital where the doctors and nurses were so kind and friendly and understanding that she got well.

Today in parts of some mental hospitals the doors are not locked, and patients who are almost well can go out to see a movie. In the Journal of the American Medical Association, there is an editorial in a recent issue on the "Legal Rights of Psychiatric Patients." For instance, if the hospital psychiatrist decides that the patient is sane, should he send him home? Or if the patient demands his liberty, should the doctors give it to him? Does the patient have a right under the Emergency Admissions Statute to demand mental examination by a physician of his own choice?

Recently, Drs. Tancredi and Clark asked such questions of a number of doctors, residents, nurses, and social workers, and one or more of the questions were answered incorrectly by all personnel interviewed. As the Journal of American Medical Association (JAMA) editorial writer says, attending physicians and residents should be well versed in all aspects of the legal rights of their patients during hospitalization and at the time of release. We need today more special courses to educate people running mental hospitals regarding the rights of their patients.

DIVING

Dr. Donald Pearson, a Chicago neurosurgeon, recently wrote that 100,000 Americans are paralyzed because of broken necks. On reading this, my mind went back to a day when I was visiting the great Dr. Howard Rusk's Institute for Rehabilitation in New York City, and saw there a young man paralyzed from the neck down, strapped to a large board. I learned that he had met with disaster when he dived into a tank of water, the depth of which was much less than what he had assumed it would be, and he had broken his neck.

I have known of other cases in which a person dived into a swimming pool in which there was no water at all, or had dived into water where there were rocks just below the surface. I had a very narrow escape when I was a boy, and dived off the porch of a yacht club building. I hit bottom, but luckily I was able to absorb most of the blow on my hands and arms.

It is unfortunate that some people ignore "No Diving" signs, or make careless mistakes that may mean that they will have to spend the rest of their lives in a wheelchair or in bed, paralyzed.

REPAIR FOR A PUNCTURED EARDRUM

Quite a few people, perhaps as a result of an accident or infection, have some deafness as a result of a hole in their eardrum. The eardrum is a thin membrane between the outer and middle ear, which vibrates with the soundwaves coming against it; these vibrations are transmitted, with the help of three little bones in the middle ear, the malleus, incus, and stapes, to the auditory nerve which in turn carries the message to the brain. Naturally, when the little membrane is punctured, the person cannot hear well.

Recently, Dr. Eugene L. Derlacki, a Chicago surgeon, wrote about the operation to heal perforated eardrums which for 26 years he has been performing successfully, and with which he has helped more than a thousand persons.

Dr. Derlacki's technique does not require hospitalization. The doctor first checks the patient to see whether his deafness is likely to be lessened with repair of the eardrum. If he is a likely candidate, the doctor then puts some antibiotic powder into the ear, and presses a cotton gauze patch, moistened with two drops of antiseptic, against the eardrum.

At home, the patient puts antiseptic drops into his ear twice a day, and returns to the doctor every two weeks for the next three months, or perhaps the year, that it takes for the eardrum to form new tissue to close its hole. Sometimes this type of treatment does not work, and then, Dr. Derlacki says, the patient can still have an operation to attempt to repair the perforation. Unfortunately, eardrum surgery is not always successful either.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Ed Doolittle told the fellers at the country store Saturday night that he don't know nothing about the stock market and he gets that mixed up, but he was of a mind that about the only thing people are taking stock in this country is the land and them that work it. Ed produced a clipping, as usual, to back up his claim.

This piece Ed had saw was about the commodities market, and he quoted one trader as saying "the only thing worth a damn in this country today is its agriculture." Ed said he was agreed, on account of just about everything else comes from somewhere else. America has quit making cameras and televisions, Ed allowed, and the cars we make either is recalled or they break down twice a week and you can't find nobody to fix em.

Clem Webster said Ed was right about the land, and he went on to say that Americans is fast killing the goose that is laying the only golden egg we got left. Clem had saw where parking lots and buildings is covering this country at the rate of a million and a half acres a year, and Clem said you can't grow no soybeans in asphalt. The good Lord ain't making no more land, allowed Clem, and folks is burying what's left under roads and shopping centers.

General speaking, broke in Bug Hookum, the economics of this country has allus caught the farmer and rancher on the downtown and he, for one, was glad to see them riding a little higher. Bug said it looks like right now we got a seller's market for meat in grams and everything to eat, and he said he is happy to see the day when we got things looking up. If the idea of that feller in England catches on, went on Bug, the farmer may even fix the gas shortage, Bug said the feller has come up with a way to run his car on pig manure, and if we can harness the energy of America harnards it'll open a hole new day for agriculture.

Atted, said Clem, even when a farmer can sell soybeans on contract afore he plants em, he's still taking a chance at ever turn. He's just added another enemy. If the flood or drought or bugs don't cut him, the commodities market will, Clem said, and you can add the same risks for the rancher's cattle. All gumbys, including stock brokers, is pickers aside at farmers and ranchers, was Clem's words.

Personal, Mister Editor, I'm agreed with Clem that the farmer still has a tough row to hoe. He still has got to get out and dig for what he gets, and they ain't no way he can bugger the odds on him gitting anything. All them economy experts that say we now got Government by the people, of the people and for the farmer know about what they eat from meal to meal is that their old ladies has to thaw it out afore she cooks it, and the only risk they take is that a computer might beat em out of a job.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Planning for complex continues

The construction of a Senior Citizens' Housing Complex for Tuscola county continues to look promising as of this date, according to State Representative Loren S. Armbruster (R-Caro). The proposed structure of approximately 150 units to be built on West Gifford Road, Caro, is the combined efforts of Caro community citizens, the village council and K-Way Development, Inc. of Flint. Representative Armbruster has assisted in the joint efforts of the interested parties in an attempt to secure funds from the Michigan State Housing Development Authority for the project.

"The complex is designed and intended for senior citizens from all of Tuscola county and possibly elsewhere," Armbruster stated. "A survey of the number of potential parties who would be interested in using these facilities is being conducted at this time." Armbruster continued, "and when the survey is concluded it is hoped that the Michigan Housing Development Authority sees fit to give financial support to the complex so vitally needed." Representative Armbruster feels that the proposed housing complex is of real need and concern to the residents of Tuscola county.

Are you insuring just half a house?

Like everything else, your home costs more to replace today than it did a few years ago. If your insurance isn't up-to-date, you may be insuring just half of it.

A talk with us about current values, and how we actually can give you more coverage, economically, with Michigan Mutual's Home-Gard Homeowners Policy, will be worth your while. Give us a call.

Sale of Champion Advertising Co. recalls memories of 70-year business

A chance meeting in a Cass City barber shop around the turn of the century began one of the most thriving businesses the village has ever seen, a business which covered the Thumb area and which was only recently sold.

The business was S. Champion Advertising Co., and the meeting in that old barber shop was the beginning of an idea which lasted over 70 years.

The story, retold from yellowed newspaper clippings and pictures belonging to Mrs. Lucile Bauer, widow of Andrew Champion, began with Samuel Champion, the firm's founder. Champion was a barber by trade who had a shop in Cass City. One day, George Rumble, a salesman for the American Tobacco Co., came into the shop and asked Champion if he would help him tack up a few signs advertising the product. Champion agreed.

From there, he decided to become more involved in outdoor display advertising and, as the years passed, barbering took a back seat to the more lucrative profession of producing billboards. The business grew rapidly from that time into one of the largest outdoor advertising firms in the state.

Eventually, Champion bought the Smith Poster Co. of Vassar, and expanded his operations to take in the north-central and Thumb area of the state. The firm covered more territory than any other outdoor advertising company in the state.

Mrs. Bauer recalled that Champion Advertising posted all kinds of billboards which sold nearly every kind of product ever made, with one notable exception.

"We never posted a billboard that sold hard liquor," she said. "We were always very careful about that."

In the early years of the business, she said, a large billboard could be posted for about seven dollars per month.

Fixing up apartment calls on imagination

More and more owners of cooperative and condominium apartments are becoming aware of the advantages of remodeling their property. An improved apartment has a higher value and is easier to attract buyers to.

Many older apartments which were converted from rent-control have outmoded kitchens and baths and are generally without laundry areas.

The bedrooms in these older apartments were oversized and lend themselves readily to sub division. Think of the difference between a three bedroom apartment and a five or six bedroom apartment, all possible with imaginative remodeling.

Costs are incurred only in construction of partitions. When subdividing a room keep in mind the size of the furniture and the necessary allocation for storage areas.

Another caution: when remodeling an apartment check your wiring for electrical load. The addition of air conditioning units, laundry appliances, etc. may require an upgrading of your load capacity.

The owner of a condominium has few of the restrictions imposed upon the owner of a cooperative apartment. For example, the condominium owner can sell his apartment to anyone he pleases, whereas the cooperative apartment owner generally is required to submit his prospective buyer to the cooperative reviewing board.

It might be well to consult your lawyer in anticipation of any legal restrictions your remodeling plans may meet.

Today that same poster would cost in the neighborhood of $50.

She recalled that the business thrived continually for the most part, with the notable exception of the early depression years and the Second World War.

"The Army took away our posters and painters as well," she said. "I remember I posted and coaxed Mr. Champion, asking if I could paint a poster. Finally he gave in and I ended up painting 15 highway bulletins."

She remembered that during the war years, much of the firm's outdoor display advertising was free gratis. Posters for the Army, war bonds, national service and defense took away considerable space usually devoted to paying customers.

"The war years were rough," she said. After the fighting ended, the business picked up again and continued to grow.

When Samuel Champion died, his sons, Frank and Andrew, took over the operation of the business. Frank managed the plant located in St. Louis, Mich., and Andrew took over as manager of the Cass City branch. Another son, Clifton, held stock in the company but took no active part in the day-to-day management of it.

When Andrew Champion died in 1949, his son, James, took over as general manager of the firm. James took over the firm straight from Bay City Business College at age 21 and continued guiding the company, the third generation of Champions to do so. He posted his first billboard when he was 14, and learned the business after school and on week ends. His father, Andrew, taught him how to post.

The company was recently sold to Dingman Advertising Corp. of Traverse City, which previously owned nearly all of the advertising territory north of Bay City. The firm will headquarter in the northern Michigan city, eliminating the need for the Cass City operation.

Mrs. Bauer recalled that, in the company's heyday, small towns such as Owendale and Gagetown were vigorous spots of activity, requiring many Champion billboards.

"At one time, we had as many as four and five large billboards in Gagetown alone, because we had the traffic for it," Mrs. Bauer said. "Then the major highways came through and eliminated the small towns."

Champion advertised for all the major corporations. Automobiles, oil companies, bakeries, soft drink firms—all used the services of Champion Advertising from time to time.

"I think those Coca-Cola ads used some of the most beautiful girls," Mrs. Bauer said. "Those were some of my favorites."

Occasionally, a customer would come in and complain that their billboard was not catching enough notice. Sometimes, these complaints would become more than a little nettlesome to some of the bill posters who would take revenge, according to Mrs. Bauer.

THIS CAR was demolished in the accident that claimed the life of Ms. Pauline Martinez Saturday. (Story page one.)

Fairgrove woman dies in crash

Wreble was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way. The accident happened around 10:30 a.m.

Saturday, a car driven by Gary Bess of Roseville collided with an auto driven by Wayne Schroder, 3874 Howard St., Deford, at the intersection of M-24 and M-46.

Tuscola deputies said Bess was traveling north on M-24 and stopped at M-46. He then pulled out and did not see the Schroder vehicle until both collided. Bess was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way. Neither driver was seriously injured.

The accident occurred around 5:30 p.m.

Two accidents were reported Sunday. A Caro woman escaped serious injury at 7:10 a.m. when the car she was driving collided with another auto on M-81 just east of Deckerville Road.

According to Tuscola deputies, Helen Mae Eskelson of Chambers Road was traveling east on M-81 and slowed down to make a left turn. She had begun the turn when a car driven by Niola Jean Osborn of Detroit, traveling in the oncoming lane, struck her.

Ms. Osborn told officers she had no chance to stop when the Eskelson vehicle pulled in front of her.

No ticket was issued and neither driver was seriously injured.

Later that day a car driven by Mary Campbell of Pinellas Park, Fla., struck and killed a deer on M-46 just west of Cemetery Road. She told deputies the deer ran out from the south side of the road as she traveled west.

She was not injured in the mishap which occurred at 11:00 a.m.

A Cass City motorcyclist escaped serious injury Monday afternoon when he lost control of his machine on Cemetery Road just north of Elmwood Road.

Michael Strickland, 6667 Third St., was traveling south on Cemetery Road when a dog ran into the southbound lane. Strickland told deputies he swerved to miss the animal but struck it anyway.

The force of impact spun the motorcycle out of control and it traveled another 57 feet before coming to a stop. Strickland was thrown from the machine.

Deputies estimated the cycle to be traveling at approximately 40-50 miles per hour when the accident occurred, at 2:30 p.m.

Strickland was ticketed for failure to have a motorcycle endorsement and with failure to have proper registration. He was not seriously injured in the mishap.

Monday evening saw another accident at nearly the same spot on Cemetery Road. James Haley, of Jacobs Road, Caro, was driving a truck south on the rural highway and attempted to pass a group of slow-moving bicyclists when he struck a car driven by Donald E. Greenleaf, 6053 E. Cass City Rd.

Neither driver was injured in the mishap that occurred at 7:15 p.m.

A Cass City man sustained minor injuries Sunday when the car he was driving plowed into a herd of cattle which had wandered from a pasture onto M-33 in Oscoda county.

Timothy McComb, 21, drove his car into the herd, killing 14 heifers.

Two of the six passengers in his car also suffered minor injuries in the mishap.

Pool question

That's probably no more than village taxpayers would shell out for building and operating an outdoor pool. That's because the valuation of the village is only about a third that of the entire school district.

Actually there is little time left to run an informational campaign. That's because both the school board and the council desired an early decision so that plans could go forward to provide swimming to the Cass City community again.

It's been two years now since a pool was available and it is likely that it will be at least another year at best before one is available again.

At worst, Cass City could become one of the very few communities in the Thumb without a pool of any kind.

With the election deadline bearing down, a committee was appointed from among members at the joint meeting to work on the project presentation.

From the school the workers will be Supt. Donald Crouse and board members Bob Hira and Lynn Albee. Representing the council will be Dr. D. E. Rawson and James Ware.

Panel walls for beautiful room

A wall is a wall is a wall. Put four of them together and you have a room.

After all, that's what a room is — space that has been "walled-in." For that reason, when it comes to lightening, brightening, beautifying or simply redoing a room, it's a good idea to start with the walls.

One way to begin is with paneling. Modern wall panels of prefinished hardboard offer a variety of designs, easy installation, and low maintenance. They make ordinary walls "come alive" in a number of ways.

Home highlight
A highlight for today's homes are walls of beauty. Panels in natural wood-grain finishes add a warm glow to any room. They range from pale ash and pecan to deep tones of rosewood and walnut.

If you prefer walls of color — bright or subdued hues that fit any setting — consider panels in decorator colors. They can be used in family rooms, bathrooms, bedrooms or kitchens to great visual advantage. Like all hardboard paneling, they are easy to keep clean with an occasional damp-wiping, won't dent, mar or scuff and are tough and durable.

For every room
Prefinished panels in colors, woodgrain finishes, patterns and textured designs are ideal for areas such as kitchens, baths and laundry areas.

Running out of space?
Then you will need walls that can multiply present storage space. Perforated hardboard panels, which accept hooks and shelf brackets, can create a convenient storage wall in virtually any room: in a child's bedroom for getting those clothes off the floor; in a kitchen for hanging extra pots and pans; in family rooms to provide storage for books, games and hobby materials.

With sound-resistant hardboard paneling you can also have walls of silence — especially suitable for families with noisy youngsters around the house.

Living rooms, playrooms and other noisy areas can be quieted down with the installation of prefinished hardboard wall panels. Tests show that when used as facing materials over partition walls built of recommended backup materials, the paneling has a high resistance to noise transmission.

Easy installation
Hardboard panels are easily installed over furring strips, and in some cases right on the existing wall. Matching moldings, color-matched nails and special adhesive for nail-less applications are available to simplify installation.

More information on building rooms around paneled walls is contained in an illustrated color brochure, "New Dimensions in Living." It's available for 25 cents from the American Hardboard Assn., 20 N. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Illinois 60606.

Suspicion grows that energy crisis may not be all real

There is growing suspicion in Lansing that the current energy crisis may be more artificial than real. There are many facts which show it to be genuine, but the uneasy feeling develops that there are those who are capitalizing on it and not anxious to bring it to an end at this time.

Few come right out and say it yet, but actions of oil companies have added to suspicion of the doubters that the "crisis" was at least in part created in an attempt to fight against environmentalists and save the oil depletion allowance.

Among the most outspoken at this point is State Rep. William Fitzgerald, D-Detroit, who is chairman of a special committee investigating the fuel situation.

"A crisis of major proportions is facing Michigan if a fuel shortage does in fact exist," he says. "This lack of power and fuel could drastically affect all pocketbooks and jobs of Michigan residents."

But he adds this statement: "There is some evidence that the petroleum industry has purposely created this shortage to increase gas prices and government subsidies to the industry."

Fitzgerald's committee has power to subpoena witnesses and examine books and records, so it may do a lot to resolve the question.

Part of the suspicion comes from the way the oil companies have been dragging their feet in cooperating with the special task force on fuel supply set up earlier this year by Gov. William G. Milliken.

The reluctance on the part of the companies to supply information to the task force has produced some strong words by both Milliken and the man he named to head the task force -- State Commerce Director

Richard Helmbrecht. Milliken said the response of the companies "has been disappointing."

"We need more information than we get from Johnny Cash on television," he said in a pointed reference to the advertising of one major brand.

Of the 15 firms the task force asked to submit data, says Helmbrecht, only four sent anything that might be of use. "I don't know what their reluctance has been based on up to this point," he said.

"We simply aren't in position to recommend actions that will impact on citizens -- such as, for example, lower speed limits or something like that -- until and unless we have data on which to base our recommendations," he said.

Between the legislative investigation and the governor's task force, the answers as to whether there is a real shortage and why the oil companies are slow in providing solid figures may be answered.

LOTTERY SHOWS IMAGINATION

You've got to hand it to State Lottery Commissioner Gus Harrison and his staff. They keep coming up with something new.

Harrison has produced by far the most successful lottery in the country. It would have been easy for him and his crew to sit back and rest on their laurels.

But they aren't doing that. Instead, they keep coming up with something new to attract attention and ticket buyers.

First it was the four cars they gave away in a bonus drawing held as part of Michigan week. The cars sparked record ticket sales.

Then, for the week of the Fourth of July, a second special drawing was held with prizes of, naturally, $1,776 for each winner.

And there's the new wrinkle being worked on that would allow people to pick the same number for a whole year and be guaranteed that number.

These special twists, plus the normal weekly publicity of the

Retired trustee Bernard Ross reviews council years

When he began his work on the Cass City Village Council, former trustee Bernard Ross carried with him the perception of the community as a friendly one, ready to lend a hand at a moment's notice.

Now, six years and three terms later, he says that his perception has not changed with regard to Cass City. It remains open, cooperative and willing to serve.

Ross, who resigned recently due to eye surgery, said he had a pretty fair idea of what he was getting into when he won his seat on council the first time. Prior to council service, he worked for three years on the Chamber of Commerce and combined with meeting and dealing with individuals in the Federated Clothing Store, which he owns, Ross said he came to council with working knowledge of Cass City.

He served on various committees dealing with the land fill problem, zoning, street improvement and the retirement fund for municipal employees. His pet project, however, was street improvement.

"When I began on council, we were losing our hard-surfaced streets faster than we were replacing them," he recalled. "So I felt it would be in the best interests of the village to bond at four per cent and do all the streets at once."

His proposal would have involved proper drainage, along with curb and gutter.

"It made sense, I thought, because inflation goes up about 10 per cent each year," Ross added.

About the same time, the federal government raised requirements for the village's sewage disposal plant, forcing Ross to withdraw his proposal due to the necessity of upgrading the plant.

Now, with the help of state and federal revenue sharing funds, he added, more dollars are available for building more permanent streets in the village.

Ross maintained a significant accomplishment during his years on council was the acquisition of the Orr property for park expansion. He gave credit to Trustee Dr. D. E. Rawson and the late Scotty McCullough for the success of this project.

Ross, who tends to shun credit for his own accomplishments, said another major achievement of council during his tenure was the adoption of a uniform accounting system for the village, which was required by the state and which helped to streamline accounting procedures at the municipal building.

"This is an improvement very few people realize, but it is a very important one," he said.

Looking to the immediate future, Ross sees the passage of millage for a year-round swimming pool as an important vote, one which he believes, stands a 50-50 chance of passage. He earlier approved of the millage vote to construct an outdoor pool. This proposal was shelved when federal matching funds were not made available to complete construction.

"It will take a good selling job to carry this bonding issue through," Ross said, "but I believe it can be done."

Ross sees the future of Cass City as one of continued growth at a slow, steady pace, maintaining a good balance between industry and residential.

"I don't foresee a boom as such," he said, "but with increased pressure from town-state, I see more people coming here because it is a very desirable community. The next ten years look very good."

He said Cass City is fortunate to have the industry it possesses, since this provides the village with the proper tax base necessary to allow it to operate within reasonable parameters. In addition to the tax base, he said, industry has cooperated with the council and chamber of commerce very well.

"I recall we had a little problem with papers from General Cable blowing all over the landfill," he said. "It was a problem, so we contacted the company and asked them if anything could be done to correct it. Right away, they began bundling the paper tighter and eliminated the problem. This is a sign of real cooperation. All the industries have cooperated in similar fashion."

Ross cited long-range planning in the village, especially with the school, as having helped eliminate some of the problems faced by other communities of similar size. He pointed to Reese as an example of a community with many problems and inadequate financing to solve them.

"Cass City has sufficient money to meet the day to day operations of government," he said. "We're able to purchase a new police car each year, for example. All our trucks and other large equipment is in good shape. And we've done it without a raise in millage."

He summarized by saying that most of the citizens of Cass City are pulling in the same direction and work together to make a progressive community. He sees nothing to change that analysis in the coming years.

BERNARD ROSS, retired village trustee, is back at work following recent surgery. Ross served six years on council.

Secret to outdoor fun: start out with proper equipment

Ask any dedicated camper, fisherman, boating enthusiast, hunter, how to make the most out of the pristine glories of the Great Outdoors and he will focus his reply somewhat as follows:

Once you know what you want to do and where you want to do it, it's all a matter of getting fitted out with the right gear.

Following the experienced outdoorsman's advice promises the avoidance of any serious problems during the precious time one devotes to escaping from the tensions of daily living, assuring a return for all — refreshed and revitalized.

Individual Choices Widened

The advice is by no means new. But the emphasis is more significant than ever before because the cumulative growth in the vast number of people who have developed a burning appetite for periodic returns to nature is rapidly making participation in outdoor recreation a basic nationwide life-style involving all members of the family.

The response to the emergence of this new basic life style from institutions serving the general public — state and federal, even many local governments, organizations of citizens dedicated to conservation and expansion of the wilderness and park lands of the nation, and the resourcefulness of industry in production of equipment and gear for all manner of outdoor recreation — has widened the choices individuals now have in seeking outdoor fun.

The broadened interest in escaping to the spirit lifting, revitalizing return to nature is being accomplished by an extension of the dimensions of the many opportunities so eagerly sought by so many more people.

The Time Factor Take this matter of time as one of the basic dimensions. The additional days, long weekends, even extra hours of leisure have added opportunities for more folk to get back to nature more often than just during vacation time.

Take this matter of facilities — planned places for people to go to. Here too there has been an expansion of the dimension offering easier access to an infinite variety of outdoor pleasure, from rugged woodlands for campers and for lazy-bones who just want to relax at handsome resorts featuring participating sports available at will.

The fact is, as has been noted before, that the opportunities for satisfying the hunger for escape actually can begin in one's own private slice of the Great Outdoors — this is one's own backyard.

This can be a place for something more than entertaining friends with "cook outs." It can be the area where the kids get their first experience camping out now that such efficient equipment as "pop" tents, that should also go on vacation, is available.

It can be an area in which dad tries out his new fishing gear, teaches mom and maybe the kids, too, how to cast.

Of Growing Appeal It can be the scene for introducing mom, and dad too, to the graceful and challenging sport of archery, now rising in popularity.

Very important, it can be utilized as the location for a "shakedown camp-out" in which all members of the family participate to make sure all preparations and gear needed for the coming vacation are properly assembled and that all members of the family know just what specific duties will be required of them "in the field."

Finally, aligned with the dimension of time as broadening the opportunities for enjoyment of the Great Outdoors, is modern transport, thanks to resourcefulness of the builders of Recreational Vehicles.

Fully Equipped Vehicles The latter, being constantly improved, are the station wagon or pick-up truck combinations with trailer campers and the sophisticated self-powered motorhomes that make it possible for whole families to roam the outdoors together without need for hotel or motel accommodations.

Further extension of this dimension is cruising the waterways, thanks to the outboard motor industry which provides economical power for houseboats that will serve families and parties of friends with accommodations on water like those furnished by campers and motorhomes on land.

Finally again in this area is the discovery by more outdoorsmen of the utility of the privately owned airplane piloted by the owner. Models accommodating families or parties and all their gear are being acquired by more folk to whisk them over the top of traffic to their destinations for time saving travel.

Muskegon State Park offers sand, sun, fun

Sand dunes, scenic Lake Michigan shorelines, and thick forest are the lure at two western Michigan state parks, but Muskegon State Park has the edge in everything except fame and size, according to Automobile Club of Michigan. Muskegon State Park is four miles west of North Muskegon on M-213. Its 1,125 acres include three miles of sandy beach on Lake Michigan, two miles of Muskegon Lake frontage and three-quarters of a mile on Muskegon channel.

Camper have 346 sites at two locations to choose from. One is located at the north end of the park in a heavily wooded area along the Lake Michigan shoreline. This campground has 242 sites with modern facilities, bathroom and a parkstore. The other site is three miles south in a tract of Jack Pine growth along the channel leading into Muskegon Lake. There are 104 modern sites here with fair privacy and adequate but spotty shade. Swimmers must go to the day use beach on nearby Lake Michigan.

From the crest of some of the higher dunes, distant views over the tops of tall trees also afford a wide, sweeping of Lake Michigan. A boat launching site at Snug Harbor, on Lake Muskegon, provides access to the lakes and channel. Picnic sites also are available.

The park has many well-marked foot trails which make the interior interesting because of the different stands of trees covering the ancient sand dunes.

Fishing in Muskegon Lake is excellent for large and small-mouth bass, bluegills, perch, pike and walleyes.

Muskegon State Park's attendance last year was 465,579, making it seventh among the 32 parks in the Michigan Department of Natural Resources Region III, which covers the southern half of the Lower Peninsula. Its counterpart, D. H. Day State Park, with only 130 campsites, exceeded Muskegon's attendance by more than 110,000.

Besides camping, other attractions in Muskegon include the Hackley Art Gallery, the Muskegon County Historical Museum and Deer Park, on US-31 north of Muskegon.

The Seaway Festival in Muskegon, now in progress, continues through July 8. If Muskegon State Park should be full, other state parks in the vicinity include P. J. Hoffmaster, on Lake Michigan between Grand Haven and Muskegon, three miles west of US-31 on Pontaluna Road, 333 sites; Grand Haven State Park, a mile southwest of Grand Haven on US-31, 172 sites; Holland State Park, seven miles west of Holland, 342 sites; and Silver Lake State Park, eight miles southwest of Hart, 250 sites.

Tigers upset Yankees to cop play-off title

The Tigers are the play-off champions of the Cass City Little League following an upset, 6-5, win over the Yankees Friday night.

Before the play-off finals the Yankees had been undefeated, winning the regular season title with ease.

It looked as if the champs would continue their domination in the early going as they scored three times in the first. Hits by Jeff Hartel, Tony Doerr and Joel Palmateer, coupled with a Tiger error, did the damage.

The Tigers started cutting into this lead at once. They scored a run in the third on hits by Steve Richards and R. Langmaid. They added single counters in the fourth and fifth on four walks issued by pitcher Jeff Hartel, and a hit by Kurt Proctor and the score was tied.

The Yanks came bounding back in the last of the fifth to score twice on three walks and a hit by Tim Johnson.

But the Tigers refused to die and scored three runs in the top of the sixth on hits by R. Hoag, R. Langmaid, K. Martin and L. Harrison.

OTHER GAMES

Tuesday, July 10, the Pirates moved into the semi-finals with a 9-6 decision over the Cubs. Dean O'Harris pitched a five-hitter for the winners. Ridenour and Alexander collected three hits in four tries for the winners. Don Doerr slapped two for four for the Cubs.

The Yanks moved into the semi-finals with a 2-4-8 decision over the Giants Wednesday.

Tony Doerr went the distance for the Yanks and was backed by 22 Yankee hits. Tim Johnson slapped six for seven. Hartel, Doerr and Severance picked up three hits while Tim Severance and Joel Palmateer collected two hits each.

For the Giants, Dave Nye was the loser with relief help from Ernie Stoutenburg. The Giants slapped out eight hits.

The Yanks defeated the Pirates, 16-5, to move into the finals.

Tim Severance went the distance and allowed seven hits while whiffing 10. Randy Severance led the hitting attack with ease.

three hits in three tries.

Johnson, Doerr and Hartel each had two hits for the Yanks. Hartel hits included a circuit clout. Ridenour and Fahrner collected two hits for the Pirates. Fahrner was charged with the loss.

Erla's take two in Thumb League

Erla's won two of three games played in the Thumb Traveling League during the week to remain the team to beat as loop competition moves into its final stages.

Everything started out smoothly for the Foodmen Thursday as they rolled over Fairgrove VFW at Unionville, 8-0, behind the two-hit pitching of Don McGill.

Erla's pounded out nine hits including three for three by Elwyn Helwig and Rolli Nicholas and a home run by Charlie McGill as they scored almost at will in the easy victory.

Maybe it was because it was Friday the 13th or maybe it was just one of those nights. Anyway, Erla's weren't even in the game against Unionville State Bank at Unionville the next night as the Bankers deposited an 8-1 decision to their account.

Don McGill was a different pitcher Friday. He was combed for eight hits including a home run by Garth in the first that capped a four-run rally and settled the issue early.

Coach Dan Erla had his ace on the mound for a Monday contest against Vassar State Bank and the result was no contest as Erla's walked off with a 12-2 decision.

Al Bosch allowed five hits and whiffed 11 in his victory stint. Bob Bonaduer solved his slants for a home run that accounted for two of his team's three markers.

Walt Hempton led the attack with three for three while Rolli Nicholas helped with two hits in three tries. The game was close for four innings. In the fifth Erla's scored twice and in the sixth added five more to turn the game into a rout.

Gagetown sets annual bloopers ball tourney

July 20, 21, 22 the Gagetown Athletic Club will sponsor its 3rd Annual Bloopers Ball Tournament at the Gagetown Park. Twenty-two teams from Bay City, Flint, Cass City, Essexville, Sebawaing, Gagetown, Bay Port, Unionville, Bach, Mud Creek and Owendale will be competing for the championship.

Games will be played from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. Friday night; 10 a.m. until 9:15 p.m. Saturday night, and from 12 noon until 7:30 Sunday with the championship game beginning at 7:30.

The Gagetown Athletic Club will serve food and refreshments throughout the tournament and the Owendale Lions Club will have a chicken barbecue beginning at 1:00 Sunday.

Methodists—Baptists meet in crucial Thursday game

The stage is set for the biggest single game of the season in the Cass City Church League Thursday night when the Methodists and the Baptists tangle at 9 p.m.

A victory by the Baptists would all but cinch the title for the undefeated league leaders while a Methodist win would snarl up the race and give three teams a shot at the title. Right now the Methodists trail by a game and the Missionaries by two in the all-important loss column.

Tuesday, July 10, Shover-Laing pounded out a 14-12 decision over Shabbona. Big sticker of the game was Lowell Smith who banged two home runs in a losing cause. Gene Dorman paced the winners with two for four. Walks hurt Don Caister and Shabbona. Caister took the loss and Gene Dorman was the winner.

In the nightcap the Catholics rolled past Deford, 12-2 in a game called after five innings. John Maharg pitched a strong game and several of his teammates picked up two hits. Jerry Curtis took the loss.

Owen-Gage got back on the winning track and handed Cass City Missionary its second defeat, 10-2, Thursday. Dennis Koch pitched a strong game and helped his own cause with a pair of hits.

Mark Tuckey took the loss. Gary Summers slapped two for three for the losers.

The Methodists brushed off Shabbona behind veteran Eldon Stoutenburg, 17-5, in the nightcap. The game was called after five innings. Dale Smith took the loss.

Mike Murphy, Jerry Toner, Don Galbraith, Phil Nichols and Stoutenburg each collected two hits.

Robert J. Garner, 24, Mayville, was arraigned before Judge Bagulev on a charge of possession of marijuana. He entered a plea of guilty and it was accepted by the court. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered. Sentencing was set for Aug. 13.

The incident occurred in Mayville July 1.

The charge is a violation of probation for Garner, who was convicted last year for the Jan. 7, 1972 theft of an automobile in Mayville.

Nat Tuttle

appointed to

Village council

Nathaniel "Nat" Tuttle, 54, 6799 Third Street, has been appointed to replace Bernard Rass as a member of the Cass City Village Council.

The appointment was revealed Tuesday by Lambert Althaver, village president.

NAT TUTTLE

Tuttle is the plant superintendent at General Cable Corp. in Cass City. He has been a resident of the community for nine months.

He was transferred to Cass City from a Cable plant in the east. He had previously served on the recreation commission and the fire department in Terrytown, N. Y.

He was born in New York and graduated from Ithaca College. He and his wife have two grown children and five grandchildren.

Tuttle said that one of his fears in moving here from the east was the community that he was going to live in.

That turned out to be the biggest plus of all, he confides. My wife and I were both born and raised in small towns and we just love it here.

The nicest thing about the entire community, he said, is the friendly people.

Broken tooth results in 140-mile bicycle trip for Rev. Gene Sickler family

By Jim Ketchum

When Rev. Gene Sickler of Belding broke a front tooth recently, he never imagined that a direct result of the accident would be a 140-mile bicycle trip to visit his wife's parents in Cass City.

Yet that's what happened as he, his wife Maxine and daughter Sue pedaled their way from the western Michigan community, leaving Monday, July 9, and arriving here the next day.

Rev. Sickler explained that the farthest they had previously traveled on their bicycles was a 50-mile jaunt from Belding to Morley earlier this year.

"We'd planned a trip to Monterey," he explained, "but then I broke this front tooth and I have to be back at the dentist's office next Monday morning, so, in place of that trip, we decided on this one. Actually, it was my wife's idea."

The Baptist minister was scheduled to preach at an evening service in a local church, so the family decided to take advantage of circumstances and come over on bicycles.

The Sicklers started out at 6:15 a.m. Monday and traveled back roads which were black-topped. The weather remained good, except for the gusty winds largely from the east, which made the going a little tough at times.

The first night, the Sicklers made it as far as Cheaning when they decided to find a motel.

"We stopped at that point because motels are pretty scarce in that area," Mrs. Sickler commented.

Tuesday, they pushed off again at 6:15 a.m. and rode for about three hours before stopping for breakfast.

"When we did stop to eat, we gobbled up a double breakfast," Rev. Sickler said. "You don't realize just how hungry you get until you've ridden a bike that far."

He said breakfast and the evening meal were the two big meals, while lunch was practically skipped altogether. Instead, stops for rest and soft drinks kept the family going. They arrived in Cass City at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Rev. Sickler said the only mechanical malfunction on the entire trip was a flat tire on his bicycle, a three-speed model. He said that the problem was the fault of the manufacturer and not from the trip itself.

Mrs. Sickler said the roughest part of the trip was negotiating the mile-long hills between Caro and Cass City on M-81. The east wind again caused problems. Rev. Sickler recalled one spot where it gave them a boost.

"Just coming into Vassar, we hit a stretch with the wind at our backs and I'll bet we did 20 miles an hour or better," he recalled.

The Sicklers love their biking expeditions and said this trip gave them a chance to take a closer look at their world.

"One of the good things I noticed," he said, "was that the corn around here is much higher than over our way. I saw some of it above our heads in height. One thing that distressed me was that the streams at home are clearer than over here. I saw a lot of mud and silt in the water, which I didn't remember as a boy."

Rev. Sickler, 43, was born three and one-half miles south of Cass City, and his wife was born three and one-half miles east of the village. Both graduated from Cass City High School.

The trip added to their appreciation of the good things in life.

"On a trip like this one," he said, "you get tired enough to appreciate rest; you get hungry enough to appreciate food; and get thirsty enough to appreciate good, cold, clear water. It's wonderful."

The Sicklers carried one change of clothing each and only the barest of necessities and ate their meals at restaurants along the way. Their daughter recalled that as soon as she arrived at her grandparents', Mr. and Mrs. Max Agar, one of the first things she did was to do some laundry.

When word began circulating in their congregation of some 200 members at Green Corner Baptist Church in Belding that they were planning the trip, some expressed apprehension, but for the most part, they received encouragement.

"After we started," Rev. Sickler said, "when we would climb off our bikes at a restaurant and go in to eat, usually someone would notice these sun and windburned people and either think we were crazy or else liars."

He said morning was the most beautiful time during the trip, not only from a scenic point of view but also because traffic was lighter during those early hours. He advised anyone attempting a similar trip to stay off main roads as much as possible and stick with good, paved back roads.

"It also helps to plan if you listen to a weather forecast before you start out," he advised. "If it's going to be windy, then you can plan your directions of travel a little better."

While time does not permit the family to pedal back to Belding, plans for other bike trips are already beginning to form. A friend planned to pick the family up in Cass City early Monday morning.

Rev. Sickler said he would like to organize a 500-mile bicycle trip in the upper peninsula next summer, involving a number of young people from his congregation. He states repeatedly that riding for long distances is a great amount of fun. But there is another project he wants to accomplish that is even more ambitious.

"I'd like to take about three months and hike through the Great Smokies," he said. "Man, that would be sensational. It's really a beautiful part of the world."

He said a long bicycle trip allows a person to obtain a greater appreciation of his world around him and allows for self-examination. He touts bicycling highly.

In fact, last Thursday, he planned to bicycle to Sebewaing to visit his sister, just for the sake of doing it.

He's hooked.

Pleads guilty

James Pruett, Kingston, pleaded guilty to the unlawful possession of a blank cartridge pistol. He paid a $30 fine and $15 in costs.

Charles T. Lauria, Cass City, pleaded guilty to eluding a police officer. He paid a $48 fine and $52 in costs.

REV. GENE SICKLER, his wife, Maxine, and daughter, Sue, rode bicycles from Belding to Cass City, 140 miles in two days. They plan future excursions in the Upper Peninsula.

Texan Harry Wentworth still considers Cass City home

Although he has lived in Dallas since 1944, Harry Wentworth still considers Cass City home territory. Wentworth, who retired recently from a purchasing position with the Navy, came back home to visit relatives and renew old friendships.

Wentworth was born in Decker, 64 years ago and graduated from Cass City High School in 1927.

"Our class was one of the last to come out of the old high school," he recalled. "That was just before the building you now call the intermediate school was opened as the new high school."

He remembered growing up on the farm south and east of Cass City and said farming today cannot be compared with those old methods. Mechanization has replaced much of what he knew as life in the country.

From high school, Wentworth attended Alma College and eventually wound up at the Detroit College of Law from which he was graduated in 1933. He holds a degree which he decided not to use. He passed the bar examination in 1935.

When World War II came along, Wentworth joined the Navy and, when he was discharged in 1944, landed a job in Dallas, working in purchasing for the service. Over the years, his work reached into the areas of buying hardware for the aerospace program including missiles, rocket engines and airplanes.

Wentworth has seen changes in his adopted Texas over the years, too.

"When I first came to the southwest, most of the activity was in cattle and oil, and that was about it," he recalled. "Then industry came during the war and recognized the advantages of the climate. From that time, there's been tremendous growth."

He finds it humorous when he meets someone who says a particular day is exceptionally warm.

"They'll tell me it's hot and I'll be chilly," he commented. "We get a lot of 90-plus weather in Dallas. This is much more agreeable weather here."

On the other hand, Wentworth said the mercury can drop to around ten degrees in his area of Texas, partly due to the fact that the air is a good deal thinner.

"Our wind currents come from the north and south primarily, so you never know what it'll be tomorrow," he added.

Wentworth clearly remembers Nov. 22, 1963, the day President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas.

"I remember the girls in the office had the radio on when the news came in," he said. "Of course then came the uncertainty of about an hour or so until final word came in that the president was dead."

He said for a time Dallas suffered from the stigma of the assassination, but that after the initial shock wore off, people came to realize that it was just one isolated incident and not the tenor of attitude toward individuals.

"The people of Dallas are pretty similar to people here in Cass City," he said. "Attitudes run pretty much the same," he added.

Although he has been back for periodic visits over the years, still much has changed. "What hasn't?" he said.

Wentworth said he will probably remain in the Cass City area for the remainder of the summer and then decide on the future. He does want to travel around Michigan and then maybe settle back in Dallas for the winter months, making Cass City his summer home.

Harry Wentworth

It's nice to see a headline about a good kid—because that's what most of them are.

Of course, his parents worry about him. That's one of the reasons he is a good kid. He's had plenty of opportunity to learn how much they love him . . . how much they care.

They have given him many things, some at considerable sacrifice to themselves. Fortunately, though, their giving didn't end with material gifts.

They have given him ideals . . . standards . . . principles. These are the intangible treasures that you aren't likely to acquire if you didn't find them at home.

And they have given him a faith. It was their faith first. At home and in church they shared it with him. Out of it the ideals and standards and principles naturally grew.

Yes. He's a good kid—due to the Lord.

Your neighbor says

Yes to bond issue

The Cass City Board of Education will present a $750,000 bond issue to voters

Mrs. Joseph Steadman, daughter Joy and son Joey

August 13 designed to raise funds for the construction of an indoor swimming pool at the high school. An additional one-half mill levy for operation of the unit will also be decided. Should this package be approved?

Mrs. Joseph Steadman of rural Cass City thinks so. "I would vote for it," she says. "The kids really need a pool. It's something for them."

The Cass City native says usage of such a facility in winter is an important factor to consider.

"There's so much more that can be done with an indoor pool," she adds.

Mrs. Steadman's husband works at a local filling station. The couple has two children, Joey, 4, and Joy, 2.

ARTHUR ESKILSEN, 6456 Third St., enjoys a warm summer afternoon on one of the park benches placed in the downtown shopping area by the Golden Rule class of Salem United Methodist Church and the Women's Study Club.

Light room with... Glass doors

With sliding glass doors off the bedroom, den, kitchen—on the ground level or on a deck—all the beautiful scenery of the outdoors becomes a part of the room.

The changing seasons offer a panoramic view to highlight the seasonal accessories inside and delight all who enter the room.

In effect, there is a living fourth wall that requires no painting yet looks constantly fresh as the outdoors.

Tempered safety glass, usually professionally installed, or installed by advanced do-it-yourselfers makes the sliding doors practical, economical and safe.

The advantage of tempered safety glass is that, should it ever break, it crumbles harmlessly into small rounded pieces that reduce the chance of serious injury.

When teamed-up with a mirror on facing walls, sliding glass doors offer more light than conventional sources.

A SPECIAL MESSAGE TO OUR CUSTOMERS

YOU & I AND THE NEW "LAND SALES ACT" THAT GOES INTO EFFECT OCT. 1, 1973.

Land has become a very valuable commodity in Michigan and has made it lucrative for the big developers and money interests to set up operations in Michigan.

They are also the sponsors of the "New Land Sales Act" which act under the false cloak of "Protecting the Buyer". It was really enacted to wipe out by legislation 30 to 40 percent of the marginal operators and Brokers and eventually to create a monopoly on the sale of land in Michigan.

This new law is so complicated that a local competent attorney after a 2 day seminar said he was really confused as to the responsibility or possible involvement of the seller of land.

Therefore, at the end of September, 1973 we are going to withdraw from the market any unsold properties we have and add 25% to the selling price when again placed on the market. We urge other property owners to consider the same action!

To the Buyers —

You have all the protection you need under the present Michigan law if you will follow the guidelines. I also urge you to purchase land before Oct. 1, 1973 if you are in the market for land. After October 1, 1973 we will have a minimum down payment of $1000. on any property!

Open every Sunday thru September.
