

SUPT. DONALD CROUSE, right, explains details of the proposed indoor pool to residents at Cass City High School Monday night. Assisting is board member Bob Hirn.

New school aid formula mixed blessing for area districts

While you can't get something for nothing these days, the Cass City school district may be in for a chance to cash in, thanks to the recently-passed school aid bill in the Michigan Legislature.

Under a complicated formula detailed in the bill, the more a district levies in property taxes, the more state aid the district receives, which ties in directly with Cass City's upcoming vote on a proposed $700,000 indoor pool bond issue. The proposition also includes a 1.9 mill operating levy which, when applied to the rest of the district's operating millage, puts it in a position to build the pool for practically nothing.

According to School Supt. Donald Crouse, if the pool is not approved, the possibility exists that the district will have to ask voters for more millage next year.

"The bill actually penalizes districts that don't levy at least 20 mills for operation," he said. Under the bill, state aid is tied directly to operating millage. Before, millage had nothing to do directly with state aid.

He said that approval of the pool now would push us over the 20-mill figure and bring more state aid to the district. Without it, sometime next year, the district could conceivably have to ask for an increase in operating funds anyway.

Crouse is unhappy with the bill over the long haul, however, because it does not keep up with the changing economic conditions of the district. For example, the system received $667.61 in total revenue per pupil last year, with $444.22 of that figure coming from the state.

Next year, per-pupil revenue will come to $703. However, within the bill is a computing factor which allows the district to use two-thirds of its under-20-mill deficiency this year, but only one-third for 1974-75.

If a district levies over 20 mills, it is not penalized in this manner and is guaranteed $37 per mill in state aid in computing the figure.

The choice seems to be either approve the pool now with a tax increase or wait until next year and pay a tax increase without a pool, according to Crouse.

Under the present bill, it remains to the advantage of the district to accept transfer students from districts such as Owen-Gage with no tuition charge, since state aid will also increase with added enrollment.

Most political observers believe the bill as it currently stands will probably be amended and not allowed to run its three-year course without major revision. Some sources feel the bill is a response by Governor William Milliken in the wake of the defeat of his plan to eliminate property taxes for the support of education and replace them with a state income tax levy.

Once the effects of the bill become fully felt, some believe, pressure enough to pass an income tax-based plan to support schools will materialize.

The bill still hurts the Cass City district, even in its first year. According to Crouse, total state aid to the district for the coming school year will total $72,600. He indicated that over the last two years, the annual budget for the system has risen about $100,000 each year.

This leaves an ever-widening gap between revenue and expenditures as long as the district levies less than 20 mills. In the Wendell-Gagetown district, Supt. Glen Sanford agrees that the bill probably will not last three years without some revision.

"I'd bet a dollar that it won't last three years," he said, "and I'm a pretty conservative man."

He said his district will receive $817.50 per student in total revenue which will amount to less than a $100 increase and will be less than his district's increase in expenses.

"This bill is geared primarily for schools like Detroit and Flint and leaves districts like ours out in the cold," he said.

"We won't profit from this bill at all."

Under the bill, the state will guarantee $38 per mill for existing millage. Additionally, during the first year, the state will cover two-thirds of the difference between its 20-mill minimum and whatever the district levies.

However, in the second year, the state will insure only one-third of the difference and in the third year, it will cover no additional millage. The plan in effect, encourages districts to raise millage.

Rep. Roy Spencer, R-Attica, one of the bill's original sponsors, admits old state aid formulas favored low-millage districts. His answer to objections raised in districts such as Cass City's was an optional income tax clause, a provision left out of the bill in its final form.

Under Spencer's plan, districts could replace up to 13 mills with an income tax with a two per cent maximum. A one per cent tax would equal six and one-half mills; the state would still guarantee $38 per pupil per mill. The income tax option would help districts whose residents are unwilling to approve property taxes.

"Districts that can't levy property millage should be able to replace it with an income tax. I say we should either provide property tax relief or quit talking about it," Spencer said.

Gov. Milliken is opposed to Spencer's income tax plan, saying public support for such a measure does not exist.

Spencer hopes to put the income tax option back into the bill this October. His plans seem to hinge on an upcoming primary vote in Detroit where the basic plan will be put before voters. They will be asked if they want to retain their current income tax plan or switch back to property taxes exclusively.

If the income tax fails this test, political observers see it as the death knell for Spencer's state plan.

Another change Spencer wants is to place a ceiling on state aid levels over the next three years. Presently, the bill calls for guarantees of $39 per pupil per mill up to 25 mills in 1974-75, and $40 per mill without limitation in the third year.

Spencer said he wanted a lid on millage at 22 mills equated at $42 per mill per pupil. He said this would put an end to the property tax.

Authorities are cautiously predicting a medium to heavy vote Monday when electors in the Cass City School district go to the polls to decide whether or not the community will have an indoor pool attached to the high school.

Specifically, the issues before the voters will be to authorize a bond issue for $750,000 on one ballot and to authorize a one-mill increase in operating tax money on the other.

School officials now point out that the one-mill for operating will not be needed to operate the pool. Regardless of whether the issue passes, the money will not be levied and the total increase in taxes is expected to be 1.9 mills next year and one mill thereafter. A mill equals $1.00 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

Voting will be at the high school and all registered voters will be eligible to vote. It is not necessary to be a property owner to cast a ballot.

About 25 interested residents of the Cass City School district attended the first of three meetings Monday to learn first hand the details of Cass City's indoor pool proposition.

They came to listen and to learn about the cost and the construction of the pool.

Judging by the questions asked of Supt. Donald Crouse areas of concern included:

- The schedule for the pool's use.

Crouse said that during the school day it would be for classes 7-12. He emphasized that it would be open to all age groups after school, and evenings, week ends and during the summer months. He said that there wasn't enough time to schedule classes below the seventh grade level.

- The use of the pool during other athletic contests, primarily basketball.

The answer was that the pool would have separate locker facilities and could be used while the gym was occupied.

- The cost to senior citizens and others on fixed incomes.

In this connection the new tax laws in effect were discussed (see box accompanying this story).

- The depth of the pool.

It was explained that the L-shaped pool would enable the school to have the water deep enough for competitive swimming and still have an area where the facility would be shallow enough for young beginning swimmers. The shallow part of the pool will be about three feet deep.

- The village's role with the pool.

Village Trustee Dr. D. E. Rawson said that the village would sponsor the summer program in the indoor pool in much the same way as it did in the former outdoor pool at the park.

Naturally, the major portion of the time was devoted to the financial aspects of the proposal. The group learned that the pool will cost 1.9 mills ($1.90 per $1,000 of state assessed valuation) the first year and one mill ($1.00 per $1,000 assessed) after the first year.

One visitor at the meeting, Willard L. Dodson, said that he had written a letter printed in the Chronicle against the pool but felt he was changing his mind about the proposal after hearing the pool plans and the new lower cost to taxpayers.

Crouse said that as a member of the school committee he was simply presenting the facts to the voters so that a decision can be reached.

Regardless of whether a pool is built here, Crouse feels that relatively soon pools will be erected in Thumb area schools.

The second meeting was to have been held Tuesday night at Evergreen School and the third and final meeting Thursday evening at Deford school.

Cass City youth loses life in farm accident

Funeral services were held Saturday for Dean Allen Stover, 10, of 5634 Milligan Rd., who smothered to death Wednesday afternoon when he sank into a corn bin on his father's farm about two miles northeast of Cass City.

Dean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stover, was reportedly walking on top of the shelled corn in order to determine if there were any large chunks of corn which could plug up the elevator that Dean was buried in the corn.

The Stovers are living on the Allen Merchant farm, William Merchant, a brother of Allen, and James, another brother, were at the scene at the time of the accident.

William told officers he was at the farm and was taking corn from the bin. He was on a truck load of corn when he heard that the boy was buried. He went into the bin with one of his brothers while the other brother started cutting holes in the bottom of the bin.

He said he saw the boy's arm sticking out of the corn but that he could not pull the boy out.

William further stated that there was a cable running from the top of the bin to the bottom within easy reach of Dean if only he had reached out and grabbed hold of it. Reportedly, all the time the firemen were trying to get the boy out, they could still see his arm.

But, as they would remove corn covering him, more would slide down.

Reportedly, the boys had been in the bin several times before the accident with no problems.

Dean was born Sept. 11, 1962. He was in the fourth grade at Campbell Elementary School and was a member of the Cass City Little League, playing on the Giants' team.

Huron County fair now free

The Huron County Fair is now a free fair as the result of a decision by the fair board to eliminate gate admission charges.

Frank Nichol, a member of the fair board, said the decision to have a free fair this year was made Saturday.

He noted that there still will be a charge for parking.

Nichol said one of the reasons for dropping the admission was to help persons with large families. The free gate, he explained, will leave families with more money to spend on the grounds.

According to Nichol, the free fair will be on a trial basis this year only.

He commented that the free admission is in response to similar actions taken by most other county fairs in the state, including those at Ionia, Midland, Sandusky and Crosswell.

Dennis Davis finds nursing career challenging, enjoyable

By Jim Ketchum

When Dennis Davis, 25, kisses his wife and five-year-old son goodby each morning and drives to Hills and Dales Hospital, he heads into a world until now relatively unoccupied by men. And he enjoys every minute of it.

Davis is one of eight student nurses currently receiving their clinical experience at the hospital in the nursing program sponsored by St. Clair Community College.

The Sandusky native currently resides with his family in Pigeon and came by his career while serving a hitch in the Air Force at McConnell Air Force Base in Wichita, Kansas. His training as a medic made him decide to pursue the career and, after his discharge he enrolled in the training program in St. Clair Community.

How have patients reacted to the husky student nurse? Very favorably, he says.

"Some patients feel more comfortable when they see a man coming in to get them out of bed," he says. "They feel like I'm stronger and have more confidence."

Davis' fellow student nurses have also reacted favorably to his presence in the class, so much so that they elected him class president.

He says that nursing has been based on the female perspective for so many years that it takes time to become oriented to the routine.

"The hardest thing is finding the men's room," he joked. "Once you've passed that hurdle, you're set."

Davis says he feels equal with everyone on the staff and with his classmates. He adds that the profession is an ideal one for male personnel to advance and to find satisfaction in helping others.

"There aren't really enough men in nursing now," he adds. "There's room for more."

Davis says he likes a smaller hospital such as Hills and Dales and hopes to work in such a facility after graduation. He will earn a degree as a practical nurse and hopes to use it until the time comes when he can enter a program for training as a physician's assistant.

Davis explains the difference between a physician's assistant and a para-medic.

"A para-medic can be designated by a doctor without any other requirements," he said, "while a physician's assistant must earn a degree and pass a state medical board examination."

He adds that an assistant acts like another pair of hands for the doctor, making casts, dressing wounds and conducting certain lab work which would consume the doctor's time.

Does he have any plans for medical school? Maybe some day, but for now he'd like to stay in nursing.

"I enjoy it because you can see the results of your work," he says. "You really get a feeling of accomplishment and that means a lot."

It also means a lot, according to some of his classmates, to have a man on duty late at night who can fix a funny noise in the boiler or the air conditioner and who can help handle the situation in the emergency room.

Davis credits his wife with the moral support needed to complete his training. "She's the main reason I kept going to make it in the program."

With the cooperation he's been getting from his classmates and other nurses, Dennis Davis is more than satisfied that he made the right decision. So is everyone else.

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Where has the summer gone? The trees on South Seeger are already acquiring their brilliant fall hues, the nights have that brisk feeling of fall and it's not daylight anymore until 6 a.m.

Tune this out if you're not a sports fan... or more specifically a Tiger rooster. It takes an old line baseball fan like me to appreciate George C. Scott who had the celebrity guest slot of the NBC-TV game of the week Monday.

Scott, a Detroit native, is a Tiger fan and he rejoiced when the Tigers were ahead and was glum when they were behind just like the other 50,000 in the stands and the thousands watching on TV.

You just know that the only reason he accepted the job offer was because he is a fan. He doesn't need the money.

When Lansing Solons got through with the state-aid to schools one thing remained unchanged. That's the difficulty the average guy has understanding what it's all about.

Better to concentrate on the important facts, I guess, than to figure out how they are arrived at.

For most Cass City district taxpayers that means if they want a pool the extra amount they will pay is 1.9 mills the first year and a mill yearly after the first year.

It's a dirty trick to tell this story without the name, but it's only a grapevine tale which may or may not be authentic.

Anyway, in the wee hours early this week some joy riders were doing their thing over on Houghton Street in the east end of town... squealing tires, roaring the engine and all the rest. The car left the road and broke the curb.

It awoke a resident on the street who jumped into a pickup in his underwear and took off in pursuit. He didn't stop the car, but he did get the license number for the police to follow down the next day. Maybe he could moonlight for our police department?

"If It Fitz . . ."

The fertile alumni

BY JIM FITZGERALD

You can't go home again. Home has been sold and Mother has moved into an apartment with no room for free-loaders.

But you can visit the Holiday Inn recently built on the edge of your hometown. And from there, after dark, you can sneak into the city to see if anyone except bartenders remembers you.

That's what I did the other week end, back to Port Huron. And one of my big-little sisters said the St. Stephen Alumni Assc. was having a dance at the Legion building that night and we all should go. My wife immediately began to whimper. The last time I'd taken her to an alumni party I'd somehow checked her at the cloakroom and danced with a raincoat all night.

"You can go without me," she said. "I am not a member of the St. Stephen Alumni. I do not enjoy hanging around the cloakroom all night while you get mad at old classmates because they don't read your column."

"Forget the alumni," I said. "There is much more meaningful nostalgia involved this time. The dance is at the Legion post. You've never been there. If you were interested in seeing the hospital where I was born, and the school where I was educated, you certainly want to see Charles A. Hammond Post 8 of the American Legion. That's where I reaped the benefits of winning World War 2. That's where I learned how to play euchre and how to drink a bottle of beer with a lit cigaret under my tongue without putting the cigaret out."

"I want to go home," my wife whimpered.

But she went to the alumni dance. I can be very persuasive. I simply reminded her of the time she entertained her old classmates and 2 of them had a fistfight in our rose bushes. I also promised faithfully to never take her to a reunion of my old draft board.

The first familiar face at the dance belonged to Helen. I hadn't seen her in 23 years. What had she been doing? She'd been having 9 children.

Then came Suzanne. She was a couple of grades behind me. She'd had 8 kids.

So I began to keep score. I interviewed 56 old friends and the least-fertile guy I could find was Dick. He admitted to having only 4 children.

"But I was a Trappist monk for 18 years," he explained.

I bumped into my wife who had been having the same type of conversations. "Every couple in this place must own their own school bus," she said. "I never heard of so many kids. I feel barren with only three."

"St. Stephen was not the chaplain for the Planned Parenthood League," I explained. "These are good Catholic people and he would have been proud of them."

"Aren't they worried about over-population?" she asked.

"That's what I just asked Helen. And she said there couldn't be too many people. Otherwise, I wouldn't be dancing with a raincoat."

Onward and upward.

Success is the result of good productive work - not luck.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

The State's politicians have played the old shell game with taxpayers in the Cass City School District. You know the one... you try to guess which shell the pea is under as you watch it placed... only it isn't under any, it's been surreptitiously spirited away. It's been palmed.

Only in the political shell game it's our tax dollars that we are being forced to spend by the latest legislative sleight of hand.

The newly passed school-aid bill which is deemed sure to get the governor's signature penalizes the district running an economical operation.

It's too complicated to go into here but because Cass City doesn't raise enough mills in total taxes the amount per pupil returned to the district from the State is reduced.

For boosters of the school pool there is a bright side to this latest monstrosity from Lansing.

Supt. Donald Crouse said that the proposed pool can be built and operated after the first year for one mill more than will be needed to maintain the current curriculum.

Before the new bill passed the tax bite facing the district for building and operating the pool was 2.9 mills. Now if the pool passes 1.9 mills will be added to your tax bill next year and the increase will increase the amount that the state returns to the district under the bill.

These are the new figures: The total in 1973-74 without pool is 23 mills.

The next year (1974-75) the cost would be 22.1 mills with pool and 21.1 without pool.

In other words after the first year for $1 per $1000 assessed valuation over the anticipated cost of running the school as it is the community can be the first in the Thumb with an indoor pool.

It's been a long time since we've been a leader like we once were.

There was a time when the present Intermediate School building and gym was the best anywhere. There was a time when Cass City was the only spot in the Thumb with a pool of any kind.

That cycle turned and for awhile we were last among comparable schools to expand our facilities.

To paraphrase that classic line in "Fiddler on the Roof", I know that it's no disgrace to be last but, then it's no great honor either.

It is disappointing that Cass City will spend at least the most of three summers without a pool.

When you've had it and it's gone you know what you are missing.

For taxpayers within the village a pool should be a very attractive proposition.

If the pool is not at the school then village residents would be looking at the present school tax and two more mills for an outdoor pool.

I'm not at all sure under these circumstances that they would look as favorably at the proposition as they did when they okayed it under the assumption the government would pay half.

Rightfully, I think, many of them are asking how much of the load they should shoulder for recreational facilities serving the entire area.

Bomberg reunion held at Mizpah

The Bomberg family reunion was held Sunday in the Mizpah Missionary church fellowship building, with 37 present from Owosso, Detroit, Snover, Uby, Harbor Beach, Lapeer, North Branch, Akron and Cass City. The group were descendants of the late Charles and Katherine Bomberg.

Among those attending was Mrs. Alice Layman Walker, whose home is in California but who is visiting Michigan relatives now. Also among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Archie Dorman and James Dorman of Snover, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Knoblet, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Putnam and Rinerd Knoblet.

The potluck dinner was followed by the business meeting and program. A history of the Bomberg family, mailed from relatives in Idaho, was read. Officers for the coming year are Albert Frank of Harbor Beach, president, and Mrs. Dorothy Harrington of Akron, secretary-treasurer.

The 1974 reunion is planned for the first Sunday in August at the same location.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

Come to the fair

By Jim Ketchum

Some years ago, a predecessor of mine at this typewriter described his experiences with county fairs and likened them to the grief wrought by Genghis Khan's Mongol herds on an invasion of Rome.

Sad as it is to say, I now agree. In light of an incident reported in last week's Rabbit Tracks, I feel obliged to relate my tale of woe.

Tuesday morning dawned cloudy with a hint of rain in the air, a gloom which would darken even the most optimistic of hearts and cast a pall on any Sunday School picnic you could name. I checked in at the office, grabbed my camera and headed for the fair.

As I traveled to this year's offering, I kept hoping things would be different this time. In past years at other county fairs, it seems I can only remember the bad things that have happened. I tried to dispel this kind of thinking and to enter with an open mind.

Other fairs have been either totally non-descript or fraught with near-disaster. When I was 15, my cousin and I went to the Ingham County Fair at Mason and I lost nearly every cent I had on one of those pitch-and-win-a-prize gimmicks, walking away with only the admonitions of my cousin and the barking of the proprietor ringing in my burning ears.

The rest of the day and the rest of the exhibits meant little. In fact, I don't remember anything else about that particular day.

The next one at Mason I remember was when I was a sophomore at Michigan State University. A friend of mine and I went over one evening to check out the action. We nearly got killed. We seated ourselves in the grandstand to watch a demonstration by a group of trick-race drivers. These fellows would drive their high-performance vehicles through burning hoops, off ramps and over each other, always landing just a hair away from disaster.

In one stunt, as I recall, a car was to jump a series of other parked cars, land on the track and skid to a halt near the grandstand.

He did just that, except that he came just a little closer to the spectators than he planned and the first two rows of customers had to bail out. We sat in the third row and yours truly did just as much bailing as the rest of them. I left.

The next fair I remember at Mason was just last summer. My wife, who at the time was still my intended, kept asking me if we could go to the fair. She wanted to ride the ferris wheel and begged me to come along, too.

So, abandoning my notorious fear of heights (basically because I was not anxious to lose the love and adoration of this charming creature), I gave in. I paid our fee and we climbed aboard. "Isn't this going to be fun," she said.

"Oh, heaps," I groaned, as acrophobia began to reassert its deadly grip on me. Just then, the machine jerked and we were off.

This was no ordinary ferris wheel. This was a double-wheeled job that went 5,328 feet off the ground. I know because I looked down once and I could tell.

Then I remember I started screaming at the top of my lungs. "Get me off this +!?! +&?!... thing!"

After what must have been six or seven hours of this, the car finally stopped and I crawled out.

"Gee, that was fun," my wife said. "You didn't enjoy it, though, did you?"

I could not speak for several minutes. Finally I whispered to the bravest woman in the world (not only for the ride but for marrying me) "Let's go."

It was with this in the back of my mind that I shouldered my trusty 138-pound camera and flash unit and boldly began roaming the Caro fairgrounds in search of pictures.

After flashing some shots of the things I wanted, I walked the midway, the exhibit halls and the merchants hall and decided that maybe this might not be such a bad fair after all.

For an instant, I even started enjoying myself until a man in his mid-50's dressed in dark clothing approached me in the merchants exhibit hall, flashed open a leather-bound pornographic picture and asked me if I wanted to buy it.

"No thanks," I said as I walked away. "I was just leaving."

Genghis Khan liveth.

Tougher drinking driver law latest weapon in enforcement

Another step in the fight against drinking drivers has been made with enactment into law of a measure prohibiting the transportation of open bottles or cans of alcoholic beverages in the passenger compartment of a motor vehicle.

The law is "actually" a new concept. It replaces an old form which wasn't really enforceable.

The old law only forbade drinking of alcoholic beverages while driving. In practice, however, unless a policeman actually saw someone take a drink while driving, he couldn't charge him with violating the law.

The new law is much broader. It says anyone transporting inside a vehicle an alcoholic liquor in a container that is open or uncapped or on which the seal is broken is violating the law.

Law enforcement agencies faced with the problem of keeping drinking drivers off the road and the gruesome job of cleaning up after the accidents they cause worked hard to get the legislature to pass the new version.

"We're hoping it will strengthen the enforcement position considerably," says State Police Director Col. John R. Plants.

"Discretion" will be used in enforcing the law, says Plants.

"It is apparent that there has been consumption, if there's an open can or bottle of beer or liquor on the seat next to the driver that's rather obvious," he says. "On the other hand, if there might be a bottle in the back seat on which the seal has been broken that's not nearly as obvious. We're asking the officer to exercise discretion."

But that discretion is definitely not intended for the drinking driver.

"This one facet -- drinking from open containers while travelling down the highway -- is just another action that can lead to injury and death," he says. "The whole idea of course is to prohibit this sort of abuse and, ultimately, reduce the highway death toll related to the drinking driver."

No passing zones are established wherever the driver cannot see the road at least 1,000 feet ahead of the car.

Lawmakers actually started out to make the limit 90 days, tacking that limit onto a bill with some other election provisions. But Gov. William G. Milliken said he'd veto the 90 day bill unless leaders promised to amend it right away to 180 days.

Cynics have noted the new law will make invalid most of the petitions raised by a Grand Rapids group which would like to lower the salaries paid to legislators.

With the lower eye level, it became necessary to lengthen many of the 7-94 no passing zones which already existed in the state.

In addition, the new ones were created in slightly hilly areas where slopes in the road cut visibility below the 1,000 foot length in the lower cars.

The gradual but continual lowering of the American automobile has caused the State Highway Department to lengthen all the no-passing zones in the state as well as add 1,348 new locations where passing no longer is allowed.

The problem is that in years past the average eye-level of motorists on the road was 48 inches, meaning they sat with their eyes 48 inches above the highway. But the lowering of cars produced a situation where the eye level now averages 42 inches above the road, a highly significant difference when it comes to seeing over rises in the road.

Among other things the Legislature accomplished this year, is a provision which makes it more difficult for citizens of the state to petition their government.

The lawmakers succeeded in putting a 180 day limit on petition drives by persons who want to amend the constitution or either pass a new law or challenge an existing one. That means any signatures on petitions handed to the secretary of state that are more than 180 days old will be invalid.

Faraway Places

I've never seen the Taj Mahal. Nor have I looked up at the Leaning Tower of Pisa, or out across the broad Sahara to the Pyramids and the Sphinx.

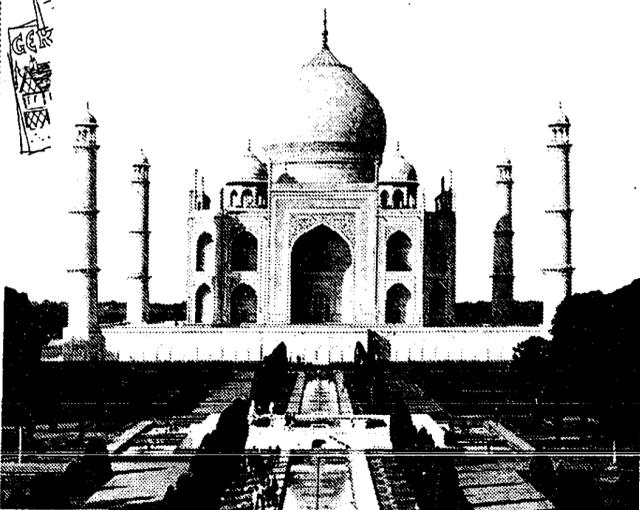

Most of my life, as a matter of fact, has been spent right here in my own town. Not because I don't want to travel. To visit these faraway places is one of my big desires—and, one day, I hope to do it.

But I know, deep in my heart, that even if I never leave my home town I'll have more to do than I can hope to accomplish. Because God is just as much here as he is anywhere. Our minister used that thought in his sermon last Sunday, and he told us how much there is for all of us to do in our own particular place—and how much remains undone!

If we'd bring just one other person to church with us on Sunday, we'd really be doing something, he told us. And, as I thought it over, I knew how true that was.

That's why I'm asking you.

Governor lauds EOC for Youth Corps role

August 3, 1973

Cass City Chronicle
6550 Main Street
Cass City, Michigan 48726

Dear Editor:

On August 3, I received a letter from Governor William Milliken concerning the recent release of funds for the Summer Neighborhood Youth Corps program. I feel this letter should be shared with the community to convey his interest in the youth of our area.

August 2, 1973

Miss Carol Ross, NYC Director
Thumb Area OEO
264 N. State Street
Caro, Michigan 48723

Dear Miss Ross:

As you may know, I have in this State and in Washington, D.C., expressed my concern over the fact that NYC funds should be released. The youth in your area and many other parts of the State, certainly can benefit from these jobs. Fortunately, the funds have finally been released.

I know, however, that as far as you are concerned, that

Cat killers on the loose

Mr. Editor,

Could we air the fact that cats are being killed by some sadistic citizens?

I have lost two healthy young cats recently, and I found another dead cat near my home last week.

Some one is really working at this. Why?

Harvey will accept judgeship

Rep. James Harvey, R-Saginaw, said over last week end that he has changed his mind and now would accept an expected presidential nomination as a federal judge for the eastern district of Michigan in Detroit.

Harvey earlier in the year told Senate Minority Whip Robert Griffin, R-Mich., that he was not interested in the $40,000 per year post. Now he says he's had second thoughts and would accept the nomination.

Griffin made the recommendation of Harvey to President Nixon recently to replace retiring Federal Judge Ralph Freeman.

The appointment is for life. "Any further announcement, of course, will have to come either from the White House or Senator Griffin," Harvey said. "Until then, I intend to represent the Eighth Congressional District and be the best congressman I know how to be."

Harvey, 51, a 13-year House veteran, would become the second long-term Michigan Republican House member to step aside this term if he becomes a federal judge. In February, Sixth District Congressman Charles Chamberlain, R-E. Lansing, announced he would not seek re-election when his current term ends. Chamberlain has been a member of the house for 17 years.

As a federal judge, Harvey would be spared of the rigors of campaigning for office every two years.

Last Jan. 30, Harvey underwent surgery in Bethesda Naval Hospital for an intestinal blockage. A small part of his colon was removed. He said health played no role in his reconsideration of the judgeship.

It was also learned that Harvey's former administrative assistant, James Sparling, would probably seek the GOP nomination for Harvey's seat when he steps down.

Sparling, 44, who has a home in Saginaw, was with Harvey for 12 1/2 years, moving two months ago to the White House congressional liaison staff. He is married and has three children.

Property owners mount battle for transfer from Owendale-Gagetown to Cass City

By Jim Ketchum

A group of property owners in the Owendale-Gagetown school district will proceed with an appeal to the State Board of Education after their request for transfer into the Cass City School district was turned down Thursday night.

The denial of petition requests came at a joint meeting of the Huron and Tuscola County Intermediate Boards of Education held at the Owen-Gage High School.

A crowd of about 50 persons attended the meeting to show support for the effort to transfer land in sections 16-21 of Elmwood township, 80 acres in Grant township and 40 acres apart from the large portion in Elmwood. Additionally, three parcels of land in Columbia township also requested transfer to Cass City.

The area in question carries a state equalized valuation of approximately $1,390,000 and involves about 65 students, some of which are still pre-schoolers.

Ben Hobart of E. Hobart Road, acted as spokesman for the owners in the largest parcel under consideration and recounted the events which led the owners to request transfer, including the latest move to consolidate the Owen-Gage district with Unionville-Sebewaing which went down to defeat by a three-to-one margin April 30.

Hobart said the petitioners, parents of 40 students, have enrolled their children in the Cass City system and will attend classes there this fall.

"We understand that a larger system does not necessarily guarantee a better education," Hobart told the joint board, "but it does provide the opportunity for better education that this (Owen-Gage) district does not."

Hobart told the board the parents are convinced a larger educational system offers more opportunity, especially in the vocational area, and cited this as another reason for enrolling their students in Cass City.

He added that the parents are faced with a large transportation problem, because Cass City buses are not allowed to stop and pick up children from Owen-Gage.

Hobart said, however, that this will not deter the enrollment of the students in Cass City.

He said the parents explored different approaches to the problem and traveled to Lansing for discussions with representatives from the State Board who advised them to take the avenue of property transfer.

Owen-Gage Superintendent Glen Sanford replied that he and the Owen-Gage Board of Education opposed the transfer action on three grounds: "First, the transfer will weaken the Owen-Gage system, to the detriment of the rest of the children in the district," he said.

"Secondly, it sets a precedent for others to attempt the same thing, which, in my opinion, is not a healthy precedent.

"Third, it is not in the best interests of the children either being transferred or for the children remaining."

Sanford said the Owen-Gage board wants a good, reasonable educational opportunity for its students and that it is working toward that end. He cited plans for an approximate $1.9 million school building as a signal from the board that it is working to keep the local district going.

"We have to consider all the property owners in the district and all of the children before a decision can be made," Sanford added. "The short-term advantage for the few will be to the detriment of the rest of the members of the district. I personally request that the transfer not be granted."

Mrs. Vincent Sattelberg, 2777 Dickerson Rd., told the board that if this transfer signaled the beginning of the end of Owen-Gage, "then the sooner, the better. Our children need a better education than they're getting here." She has two children enrolled in Cass City this fall.

Keith Goslin, 3351 Bay City-Forestville Rd., added that most of the students in the property in question are already enrolled in Cass City and will go there, no matter what the eventual outcome of the transfer action might be.

Goslin, who resides in the largest parcel of property in question, said about 40 students are enrolled in Cass City, or about 10 per cent of the district, including the pre-schoolers. Current enrollment of the Owen-Gage district is 666.

It was also pointed out by Clare Comment, 3780 Bay City-Forestville Rd., that a number of students living in Gagetown are enrolled in Cass City for the upcoming school year.

Huron County Intermediate Board member George McKenna accused the transfer group of "underhanded" tactics and charged that they did not want the issue settled in a democratic manner.

"I for one don't like to see school districts chopped up a piece at a time," McKenna told the group. "I'm also not for dissolving small districts. I think they can offer a very good education if they receive the proper support."

McKenna said after the meeting that, if transferring out of the district is the will of a majority of residents, then it should be decided in a special election with every member of the district voting and with the majority decision holding force.

"It isn't fair to the rest of the district to do things this way," he added.

Tuscola County Intermediate District Supt. William Scott, acting as secretary for the combined boards, responded that there was nothing underhanded about the action and that, while disagreement on the basic issue existed, the group's action was perfectly legitimate.

This statement was greeted with a round of applause from the assembled crowd.

It was pointed out that, if such a transfer were effected, taxes for retirement of current debt presently being paid to Owen-Gage would still have to be paid until such taxes expired. No additional levy could be made on the transferred properties for such an expenditure as a new school building in the Owen-Gage district.

When the joint board voted, it decided 8-2 against transferring the six-section block in Elmwood township, 73 acres against transferring 40 acres owned by David Loomis, 4353 Dale Rd., and 64 against transferring 80 acres owned by James Belk, of Hartwell Road.

Michael Lasorska, a member of the Huron Intermediate Board who acted as chairman of the joint board, advised the group that they could appeal the decision to the State Board of Education within 10 days.

Hobart said after the meeting that the group would definitely proceed with an appeal action. Supt. Sanford said the issue is far from settled and would not speculate on the eventual outcome.

BEN HOBART, representing a large segment of Owen-Gage property owners who want their property transferred out of the district, makes his point to the joint board hearing the case.

Accident sends 2 to hospital

A collision at the intersection of Pine and Oak Streets late Saturday afternoon resulted in temporary hospitalization for two persons and extensive property damage.

A car driven by Susan Koepfgen, 5206 Koepfgen Rd., collided with a car driven by Jacqueline Anne Miller of Mt. Clemens.

According to the report of the Cass City Police Dept. on the accident, Ms. Koepfgen said she was traveling west on Pine Street and did not see Ms. Miller who was traveling north on Oak.

Ms. Miller told police that she saw the yield sign of way sign but did not see Ms. Koepfgen and did not stop.

Two passengers in the Miller auto were taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital where they were treated for injuries and released. They were Virginia Miller of Mt. Clemens and Victoria Dewitt of Detroit.

Neither driver was injured in the accident that occurred around 5:20 p.m.

No ticket was issued.

REAR-END COLLISION

Monday saw a rear-end collision on Lakeside Drive near Doerr Road. A car driven by Brenda Sue Phillips of St. Clair Shores, collided with a car driven by Lawrence Shatena, 624 Lakeside Drive.

Police reports indicated that Ms. Phillips said she stopped to look at a trailer when the Shatena vehicle struck her in the rear. Shatena told officers he did not see Ms. Phillips stop and struck her.

No ticket was issued.

BICYCLE ACCIDENT

A Livonia girl was injured Saturday when she accidentally rode her bicycle in front of a motorcycle being driven by a Detroit man.

Michael James Stone, 19, of 1255 Lantorn Rd., told Tuscola County Sheriff's Deputies he was traveling west on Kelly Road three quarters of a mile east of Cemetery Road when he saw three girls riding bicycles in the same direction.

He said when he came along side the group, one of the girls pulled in front of him, officers said he had no chance to avoid an accident.

The girl, Ann Marie Grunth, 13, was pinned beneath the motorcycle, suffering cuts, bruises and burns. She was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital where she was treated and released.

No ticket was issued in the accident that occurred at 3:45 p.m.

SINGLE CAR ACCIDENTS

Two single car accidents were reported last week. Friday, a car driven by Floyd Wrobel of Hurd-Cornel Road, Caro, went out of control and ran into a ditch on Kingston Road just south of Giltford Road.

He told officers he came to a curve and lost control of the vehicle, eventually coming to a stop in the east ditch along the road. He was not seriously injured and no ticket was issued. The accident happened around 1:25 a.m.

Saturday, a car driven by Patricia Tucker of Ryan Road, Caro, struck a chuck hole in the road while traveling north on Hurd-Cornel Road just north of Mushroom Road. It went out of control, ran off to the right and struck a tree.

She was not seriously injured in the mishap that occurred at 6:15 p.m.

MRS. VINCENT SATTELBERG, of E. Dickerson Road, explains why she wants her property transferred to the Cass City School District Thursday at a joint board meeting in Owendale.

Interest focuses on Church League playoffs

Interest in the Cass City Church League is shifting to the upcoming play-offs now that the Baptists have clinched the regular season title with an undefeated 10-0 record.

Most of the teams are now finishing up the regular season just for the record books. The top eight teams in the final standings were to enter the play-offs that start Thursday.

All positions were decided this week with the exception of Shabbona and Snover-Laing who were to have played Tuesday night to decide who gets into the post season classic.

Already out are Deford and Lamotte, the tail-end teams in the league this season.

Last year's titlists, the Methodists, have been having rougher sledding than usual in the final weeks. Monday, July 30, they were forced to go all out to register a 9-8 decision over Owen-Gage. Eldon Stoutenburg bested Dennis Koch on the mound. Jerry Toner, Mike Murphy and Phil Nickels chipped in two hits each for the winners.

In the nightcap, the Baptists kept rolling with a 9-3 decision over Missionary. Craig Helwig pitched the win while Roger Root took the loss. Elwyn Helwig lashed two hits for the winners while Luis Arroyo collected a pair for the Missionaries.

Thursday, Aug. 2, Snover-Laing kept alive its hopes of earning the final play-off spot with a 9-7 decision over the Lutherans and Nelson Willy. Gene Dorman pitched the win and helped his own cause with two hits. John Backer registered a perfect three for three for the Lutherans.

Friday the Baptists defeated Snover-Laing in a make-up game, 11-1. Craig Helwig was the winner and Dorman took the loss. Every Baptist participated in the hit parade. Saturday Cass City Missionary outslugged Lamotte, 18-12, to keep the Lamotte nine from the victory column. It was a hitters' night as both Roger Root, the loser, and Leland Hirsch, the winner, were roughed up on the mound.

Monday in a crucial game in a fight to get into the play-offs Snover-Laing topped Deford, 10-6. The win pushed Deford out of the play-offs. Gene Dorman pitched the win and Alvin McKee took the loss. Gene and Mike Dorman had two hits each for the winners while Randy Wright did his bit in a losing cause with a pair of safeties.

Out of the race, Lamotte forfeited the final two games of the season to Church of Christ and the Lutherans.

Your neighbor says

Kids aren't safe

The Cass City Village Council last week authorized the installation of three new traffic signals at problem intersections in town to ease congestion around the schools and to help children cross streets more safely.

One person who thinks it is unsafe for her children to walk to school is Mrs. Harold Adams of 6291 Church St.

She has two children in school this fall, Scott, 5, and Michelle, 9. She considers it unsafe for either to walk to school alone. "I will probably walk Scott to school when he starts in the fall," she said. "I particularly don't like Seeger Street. It's not safe to cross, especially after the high school lets out."

Mrs. Adams says she would like to see pedestrian traffic signals installed north of the main intersection to aid children crossing the street. She also feels that adult crossing guards command more attention and respect of motorists than regular safety patrol boys and girls.

Mrs. Adams has lived in Cass City for the past seven years, and grew up near Elkton, attending Lakers High School. Her husband is employed at Saginaw Steering Gear

Area man faces marijuana charge

A Cass City man demanded examination Friday on a charge of possession, cultivating or manufacturing marijuana before Sanilac District Judge Eugene Deegan.

Donald Walker, 25, was released on personal recognizance and ordered to return next Friday.

Walker was arrested by State Police from Bad Axe Thursday for allegedly growing marijuana in the back yard of a home he was renting, located on the Bay City-Forestville Road about seven and one-quarter miles east of Gageton.

Officers said they found the plants growing in three rows ranging in length from 10 to 60 feet and averaging between two and a half and three feet in height.

Only two of the plants were reportedly ready for harvest. Roughly 100 pounds of uncut marijuana were seized in the raid.

The harvested marijuana would have reportedly brought in an estimated $1,600 at current prices.

Police received an anonymous tip that marijuana was being grown at the Walker residence. Officers said Tuesday they had no evidence that any of the crop had been sold.

VANDALISM

Vandals reportedly struck Friday night and damaged a fluorescent sign at Gross Meat Market on Main Street.

According to the police report, the sign was damaged when vandals threw an object at it. Police have no clues in the case.

Elwin Vender

dies in Florida

August 6

Elwin E. Vender, 84, died in the Broward Hospital Medical Center in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., Monday, Aug. 6, where he had been a patient for some time. He underwent surgery one week ago.

Mr. Vender was born in Kinde, July 12, 1889, the son of the late William and Elizabeth Ramsey Vender.

He lived in Pompano Beach, Fla., since his retirement in 1950 from the E. W. Bliss Industrial Corporation, where he had been employed as comptroller for 15 years. For 25 years previously he was associated with the Ernest and Ernest Accounting firm of Detroit. He also taught school for several years in Harbor Beach and Port Austin.

He is survived by two brothers, Rev. Melvin R. Vender of Cass City and David Vender, and a daughter, Mrs. Lee Adair of Battle Creek.

Debate workshop set for

August 20-22

Cass City High School will hold an Early Bird Debate Workshop Aug. 20-22 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the high school library.

Any students interested in becoming members of the debate club are welcome to attend at no cost. Attendance at the workshop does not automatically imply membership in the debate club, advises Karen Krauss, coordinator of the workshop, but will provide experience for those interested in joining.

Students will learn some of the basic techniques of debate and apply these techniques through various activities.

Anyone planning to participate in this workshop is asked to contact Miss Krauss at the high school by letter or phone.

Football practice set to begin

August 13

Football practice will begin Monday, Aug. 13. Workouts for the first week will be held at 6:15 p.m. at the Cass City High School. All prospective players must have their physicals before they can participate in practices.

Physical cards may be picked up at either the high school or intermediate school offices.

To size men up get acquainted with the company they keep.

House to represent Kreger in murder trial August 20

Cass City Village Attorney Clinton House will represent Timothy Kreger, 25, Caro, when Kreger faces charges of first degree murder in the slaying of Dan Anger, 30, Caro, June 8.

House, who will also represent Kreger in a case involving two counts of arson in Dayton township last March 31, asked presiding Judge James P. Churchill to delay the arson case and try the murder case immediately.

Churchill refused to change the scheduling of the cases, due to the fact that he has been appointed to hear a conspiracy case in Detroit later this summer.

Trial in the arson case is set to begin Wednesday. Pre-trial in the murder case is scheduled for Aug. 20.

In other court action Monday, Lester McCoy, Millington, was arranged for resisting arrest and assaulting an officer in Caro June 30. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered in his behalf.

Pre-trial examination was also held in connection with the case. Bond was continued at $1,000, with the trial date to be set as soon as possible.

McCoy is charged with resisting arrest and striking Tuscola County Deputies Thomas Kern and Lee Teschendorf.

Rich Freeman, Akron, was arranged on a probation violation. He pleaded guilty and accepted probation on the same terms to be continued.

Specifically, he was charged with consuming alcoholic beverages outside his home and was arrested for being drunk and disorderly in Akron July 8.

Charence Freyvaldenhoyer Jr., Decker, was sentenced for the larceny of $40 at the Cass City High School locker room last May 23. He was sentenced to 30 days in the Tuscola County Jail.

Freyvaldenhoyer was convicted of the theft of the money from a wallet belonging to Eugene Salas of Cass City. Freyvaldenhoyer reportedly went into the locker room and took the money from the wallet while Salas was in the gym playing basketball.

A bench warrant will be issued for Roger Stevens who failed to appear on a probation violation charge. He is charged with not making $50 per month payments to the court in connection with a fine in another case.

Salem women hold meetings

Meetings of United Methodist Women of Salem church for August have been held the past week. Aug. 1, the Dorcas group met at the church. Twenty-eight enjoyed the noon luncheon, which was followed by the business meeting and the lesson on "Justice" presented by Mrs. Betty Kirm.

Members voted several contributions: $25 to Hong Kong relief; $15 to buy yard goods and materials to be sent to Mrs. Ruth Parrott in Zaire, Belgian Congo, and money to help finance a youth to attend church camp.

Monday evening 15 attended the meeting at the home of Mrs. Newell Harris, where the lesson was again presented by Mrs. Betty Kirm.

Wednesday, Aug. 8, the women were to go to Columbiaville to be guests of Mrs. Traylor.

PROPOSED COMMUNITY-SCHOOL POOL

A YES vote will provide all-year swimming for residents of the Cass City School District.

SUMMER PROGRAM

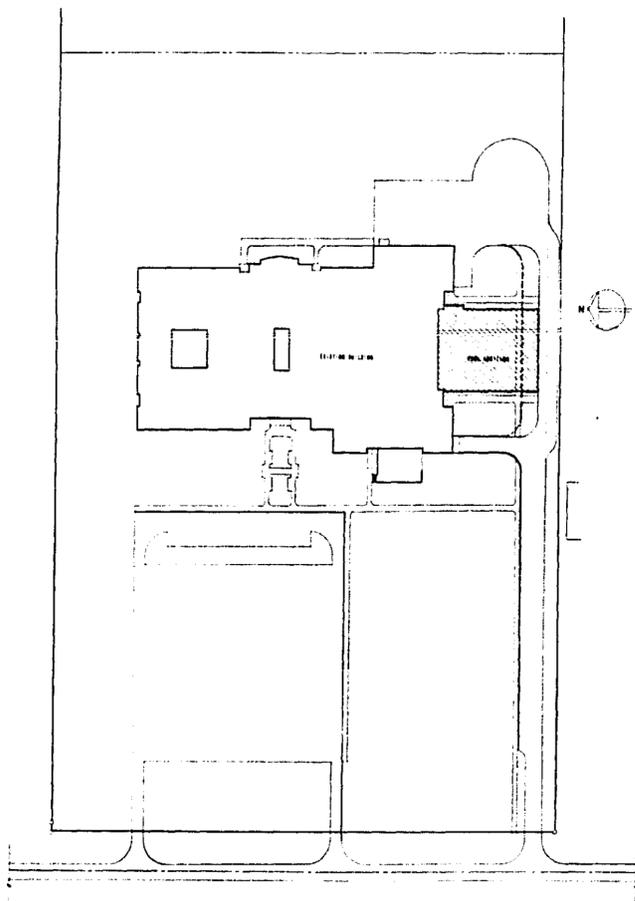

This project has the endorsement of the Village Council. During the summer months the village will sponsor a recreational swimming program available to all of the people in the school district.

EVENING AND SATURDAY PROGRAMS

Evenings and Saturdays during the school year the pool will be available for use to all residents of the district REGARDLESS OF AGE. The facility will be scheduled for adults, pre-school children with their parents, elementary children, community groups and for open swimming.

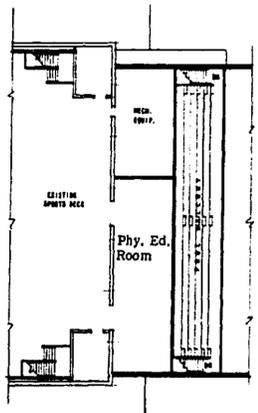

In addition to providing space for spectator seating, the area above the shower rooms will provide some additional space for the physical education program. The addition of wrestling, gymnastics, girls' athletics, and weight programs to our curriculum has created a demand for additional facilities.

During the school day instructional and conditioning swimming will be available to junior and senior high school students -- grades 7-12.

THE STANDARD BUILDING COMPANY, INC.

The proposal before the voters will be authorization to bond the school district for $750,000. A yes vote on this issue will mean a tax increase of 1.9 mills.

An additional 1 mill is being requested on a separate ballot for operation of the pool. However, because of the recently enacted State Aid bill THIS ADDITIONAL MILLAGE WILL NOT BE NECESSARY.

Therefore the total millage for building and operating the pool the FIRST year will be 1.9 mills. After the first year this MILLAGE WILL BE REDUCED TO ONE MILL. As in the past a nominal charge will be collected for evening and summer programs. . . just enough to cover the cost of the life guard or instructor.

Through a complex formula, state aid money is granted according to the millage levied in each district. The additional tax increase being requested for the pool will increase future state aid and can be converted to cover future operating cost increases. Without it, additional operational millage will be needed by our district just to run our present program.

AROUND THE FARM Fair brought top swine

By Don Keblor

Another County Fair has just ended, but I am sure the winning youth exhibitors of swine will remember that week for a long time. I passed a real delightful day last Tuesday working with these youth, Doug Graham, Clarence Merchant, George Cooklin, Ford Boyer, Art Battel and other parents and leaders.

These leaders should be commended for past years' accomplishments and present, as they have moved the swine projects and fair entries to an all-time high. There are two leaders, whose sons exhibited hogs Tuesday, that exhibited hogs 18 years ago when I first came into Tuscola county. They are Eugene Palmreuter and James Trump who made their own excellent record as 4-H youth hog exhibitors.

Crops sure have a much better looking appearance since the rains began. I'm keeping my fingers crossed and hoping common blight in navy beans and halo blight in colored beans doesn't materialize. These rains can bring on the blight. Remember, there is no spray control satisfactory for navy bean blight. Halo blight can be controlled using tri-basic copper. Spraying if necessary for halo blight may need to be done by aerial application. I haven't seen any northern corn blight yet and am expecting some calls for southern corn blight on fields of T-cytoplasm corn planted by mistake.

With the wet fall and spring this year, many of our alfalfa fields became loaded with non-feed value weeds. Yellow rock- et, wild radish, and many of the annuals and winter annual weeds joined the weed population explosion.

These weeds can be controlled if the operator wants to put a few dollars into herbicides. New seedlings can be sprayed with optam pre-plant and incorporated and no small grain planted. Small grain with seedlings can be sprayed too.

Established stands a year old can have effective weed control if sprayed after the killing frosts this fall and alfalfa is dormant. Use M. C. P. A. or simazine on heavy soil and M. C. P. only on sandy loams and loamy sands.

I spent a good part of last Thursday with your Tri-County Livestock Agent, Lee Warschevsky. We are scheduling four swine facility tour stops in Tuscola and Huron counties for Aug. 30. Watch for further announcements of this day-long event in your newspaper. Swine producers of the tri-county area will be visiting any one, two or all stops.

Insulo Cushion is a 2"-3" thick cotton felt quilt. It is stitched to muslin by parallel stitches 4 inches apart. This quilted "Insulo Cushion" pad is secured to the innerspring unit around its entire perimeter, covering the border wire and forming an inner-roll to prevent "coil feel."

Locked Edge. A cloth strip is sewn 1" from the top and bottom of the border. This cloth strip is stapled to the main spring unit where the "Insulo Cushion" is fastened to the spring. This cloth strip forms the Locked Edge. It prevents any filling material from working into the innerspring unit.

Sanilac County 4-H Fair starts Monday in Sandusky

The roar of tractor engines and the music and lights of the midway will sound the opening of the Sanilac County 4-H Fair in Sandusky Monday evening, Aug. 13.

Popular tractor-pulling at its best, from the little garden tractors to the show and heavy-weights, will be the opening attraction at the grandstand at 7:30 p.m. Monday. The tractors will return again for more endurance tests on Friday night, at the same time. The fair continues through Saturday.

Other grandstand attractions this season will include country and western singers Jean Shepard and Tommy Cash on Wednesday evening, two shows

Saturday by the International Fairtime Circus, and the Sanilac Saddle Club Show and crowning of 4-H and Golden Agers kings and queens Tuesday.

The Crown Amusement Co. will be set up on the midway Monday with all rides offered at 10 cents off to persons bearing special tickets from various merchants. These rates will be good for Monday only. Parking will be free Monday night only.

Tuesday and Wednesday will be important days for 4-H club members, who will be bringing their displays and livestock to the fair. Registration will go on all day Tuesday and judging will be held Tuesday and Wednesday. Nearly 3,000 projects representing the 37 clubs in Sanilac county, are expected to be on display until the end of the week.

Senior citizens will also be permitted to display handicrafts at the fair.

Tuesday evening at the grandstand, the Sanilac Saddle Club will offer a family-oriented program of horsemanship, clowns and good western music. In addition, the crowning of the 4-H and Golden Agers kings and queens will be held.

Wednesday and Friday will be Children's Days at the fair.

All children will be admitted to midway rides at reduced prices until 6:00 p.m. and boys and girls bicycles will be given away each afternoon.

Grand Ole Opry star Jean Shepard and singer Tommy Cash will appear Wednesday evening at the grandstand in a program of country and western singing. There will be repeat performances at 6:00 p.m. and 9:00 p.m. Tickets will be on sale at various locations prior to the fair.

Thursday evening, 4-H and FFA livestock sales will be held at the livestock arena, beginning at 7:00 p.m. Also that evening at the grandstand, beginning at 7:30, there will be horse and pony pulling events.

Tractor pulling will continue at the grandstand again Friday night, this time with the granddaddy-sized tractors up to 16,000 pounds in competition. Also competing will be garden tractors, middle-weight tractors, hobby tractors and 4-wheel drive pickups.

The International Fairtime Circus, with eight feature acts; aerial performers, clowns, elephants and wild animals on stage, will be at the grandstand for two performances Saturday at 2:00 and 8:00 p.m.

Admission will be charged at the gate after 4:30 p.m. daily, and for all grandstand events.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

A pair of Cass Cityans provided Tuesday's primary elections with an old-fashioned tooth-and-nail battle before Elkland Township Supervisor Ed Golding defeated Township Treasurer Mac O'Dell by just 42 votes in the contest for District Two Supervisor. Golding received 580 votes to O'Dell's 538.

Negotiations on a contract for Cass City teachers have been "preceeding quite smoothly", according to Don Crouse, superintendent of schools.

Wet conditions following a harsh winter are causing below average wheat yields in the county.

TEN YEARS AGO

The Village of Cass City has purchased some five acres of land within the village limits from Mrs. Frank Morris. The land will be used as a site for the new water tower to be erected as a part of the new $150,000 water system slated for the village.

Threatening weather curtailed the crowd as only 1,200 persons attended the Seventh Congressional District rally of the National Farmers Organization Wednesday, July 31, at the Cass City Recreational Park. Authorities had hoped for as many as 5,000 persons.

Andrew N. Bigelow, a former village president and businessman for many years, died Sunday at Hills and Dales Hospital. He was 60.

James Seals, assistant principal, announced this week that Junior High and Senior High students not at Cass City High School last June should register Aug. 12-16.

Dr. Marion Stewart Hostetter, 51, will assume the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church of Cass City Sept. 1. He currently is pastor of the Kinde and Chandler churches in Huron county.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Tuscola county is apparently experiencing one of its best annual crop productions in recent years. Crops may total over $19 million dollars. The county leads other counties in the state in barley and sugar beets.

The fourth annual 4-H Beef Cattle Show will be held at Cass City on Saturday, Aug. 14, with Graham Boudwell of Oxford serving as judge.

After a lapse of two years, the Woman's Study Club has resumed its annual flower show, sponsored by the associate members of the society.

First Lt. Gerald F. Kercher, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Kercher, completed three round trips between Frankfurt and Berlin within 24 hours piloting a plane carrying relief supplies to the blockaded city 110-miles deep in communist East Germany.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Thousand of fish met death in the Cass River from Snover to Shabbona, a distance of about eight miles last week. The cause appeared to be pollution of the water by seepage from a pile of pea vines at the viner at Snover.

Lifesaving practice at the Cass City Municipal swimming pool continued with 12 boys completing the water safety course.

Three Cass City golfers carried away the honors of the golf tournament of the inner-city Rotary gathering at Caro Monday. Robert Keppen won a prize for low score of 83, Earl Douglas was awarded a prize for making a birdie, making the eighth hole in three shots and Leslie Townsend won a prize for high score.

Rev. Harry E. Lang, formerly of Cass City, will sail from Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 20 for Wuchow, South China.

The 69th annual Bad Axe Fair opens Tuesday, Aug. 16, and continues through Aug. 19.

AGENT'S CORNER

Want a picnic? Try the cemetery

MARGARET ANN ROSS — Extension Agent

You may have second thoughts about it - but, some folks are finding cemeteries the only place left in their towns that offer green space.

It seems that two Forest Service researchers from the Forest Service Research Facility at Amherst, Mass., were looking for a place to eat their "brown-bag" lunch. They found a perfect spot, right next to the local cemetery. They found, to their surprise, that others had the same idea. In fact, it looked like many folks were taking walks, bird watching and riding bicycles in the cemetery - as well as eating their lunches.

The reason was obvious. In a steel and concrete urban area, a cemetery may be the only open green space left!

It is possible that cemeteries could be used for needed recreation areas without being disrespectful to their original intent. The researchers conducted a survey - and it was discovered that in an area where cemeteries make up 35 per cent of the remaining open space, two-thirds of the people visiting them were there for reasons other than visiting family graves. Historical touring, walking, and bicycling were some of the reasons given.

The researchers concluded that since multiple use of cemeteries is already occurring what is needed, perhaps, is the development of areas that will accommodate compatible activities and exclude those that are incompatible.

More information on the research is available from Information Services, 6816 Market Street, Upper Darby, Pa. 19082.

In the Thumb we still have some green spaces, but as our communities grow and vacant lots become filled, let us consider the importance of green spaces - no matter what kind they may be!

20 juniors attend Baptist camp

Speakers were evangelist, Ed Morrell, and missionary, William Bump.

BETTER HEALTH

Herbs widely used in medicine

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Many a time during my long life in medicine, people asked me why we doctors don't often use the old "herb woman's" medicines. Some years ago, when a doctor wrote a book about the old drugs used by people in New England, it was a best seller, because so many people were interested in the subject.

Actually, we doctors have always used some herb-medicines, and I read the other day that our big drug houses are still spending many thousands of dollars a year hunting through the jungles of the world for new drugs.

As some people know, the chemical base from which we Americans got our now most commonly used drug - aspirin - was discovered by Indians in Canada, and was brought down to the United States by a missionary.

Common laxative, cascara sagrada, was found by the Spanish explorers when they reached the city of San Jose, in California. Years ago, when I read the Ebers Papyrus, an ancient medical book of Egypt, which experts think was first put together about 1500 years before Christ, I found it contained names of drugs like opium and castor oil which are used today.

Long years ago, the opium that was made from a plant was used to relieve pain. One of the most valuable drugs ever discovered was cocaine, which was found by the Spaniards when they went to Peru. In the South American forests they found also quinine, which has been so useful in treating malaria. Some Indians in Brazil used curare as an arrow poison. Today it is used in our operating rooms to relax contracted muscles.

Interesting to the lover of ancient herb medicines will be the story of the discovery of digitalis. In 1776, that very able British student of "vegetable drugs" - Dr. William Withering - heard that an old "grandame" in England was using "fox-glove" for dropsy, or edema, as we doctors call it, a condition in which there is swelling in the lower legs and ankles due to an accumulation of fluid - and getting good results. Dr. Withering immediately tried the herb, and when he found it worked well, particularly in cases of heart disease, he popularized its use. It is still used today, and is known as digitalis; it is often prescribed for heart and kidney troubles.

Another drug found in South America was ipecac, which has saved many a child's life by causing him to vomit some poison he got hold of and swallowed. The drug is very useful also in the treatment of a certain type of diarrhea.

I remember well the excitement that was caused in 1922 by Dr. Chen, a Chinese scientist working in America, who discovered a fine drug now known as ephedrine, and used for the relief of asthma. He found it in a plant used by his people in China for brooms.

Recently, out of the periwinkle shrub, for long used as a medicine in several countries, experts have isolated the drug Vincristine, which is now helping children with leukemia to live longer than they used to do.

I have just been reading the remarkable story of Dr. Livingston's long travels through Africa. One of the things he did was to study for years the medicines used by African "witch-doctors." Experts on drugs keep searching the herb medicines now being used by "primitive" peoples, and sometimes they find something of great value.

THERE ARE MANY NEWLY LICENSED PHYSICIANS

In a release from the American Medical Association I read that in 1972, another 14,476 licensed physicians were added to the United States medical profession - the largest increase in newly licensed physicians in any one year in the history of U. S. medicine. Almost half of them came from foreign medical schools.

As of December 31, 1972, there were 356,000 physicians in the United States. New York State again had the greatest number of new physicians receiving their first license; California and Pennsylvania followed.

Persons of all ages need to recognize heart symptoms. You may obtain Dr. Alvarez' booklet on "Heart Trouble" by sending 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope for it to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. CCC, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

Cindy Doerr appointed to 4-H post

Cindy Doerr, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Doerr Sr. of Huron Line Rd., was recently appointed to the 1974 4-H Youth Week Planning Committee at Michigan State University.

4-H Youth Week, an annual event, is designed to give participants a better insight into the American culture, its ideals, successes and failures. 4-H'ers from across the state gather on the MSU campus for four days of intensive interpersonal contact highlighted by speakers, films and a variety of other activities.

All events scheduled for the 1974 4-H Youth Week will be decided on by the planning committee selected during this year's Youth Week. Meetings will be held throughout the coming year.

Miss Doerr, a student at Cass City High School, is president of the German Club and a member of Future Medics.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Ed Doolittle allowed during the session at the country store Saturday night that what this country needs more than a good five-cent anything or a freeze on prices is a freeze on the standard of living. Ed told the fellows that he had saw by the papers where it now takes $11.46 a year for a family of four to keep up what the U.S. Labor Department called a "moderate standard of living."

What has gone up faster than the price of hamburger, declared Ed, is living in the manner to which we became accustomed. Ed was of a mind that "moderate living" today would be called filthy rich living 25 year ago. Ever time Congress meets, moderate living gets more expensive, was Ed's words. He said we got along a heap cheaper back when we used to compare ourselves with the Russians, and we figured we was well off if we had more food, more spare time and more gadgets in the house than they did.

Actual, Ed said, we has gone so far ahead of the Russians we has gone back to comparing with one another, and ever time a new and bigger color TV is made all of us that ain't got one is living below the Government's poverty level. A fellow that ain't got but one TV and one car ain't got a chance to qualify for the moderate living side of life, Ed allowed.

Clem Webster's preacher had stopped by the store, and he was full agreed with Ed. The preacher said folks in this country is confusing affluence with inflation, and he said affluence was living better than you got to. He said it's confusing to talk about a loss of useable income when we keep setting records in sales of new cars, boats and campers, not to mention spare homes at the shore and in the mountains. The preacher said he had saw where, even after allowing for price increases, useable family income in this country is up 22 per cent since 1965.

General speaking, broke in Clem, people has got numb to money loose in this country. Clem said he used to worry about that $400 or so billion the Government is in debt, but now he can read about 20 consultants gitting $100 a day apiece to help Nixon figger a legal way out of the Watergate and it jest seems like the way to do things in Washington. Clem said he never had heard of a billion anything until he was 30 year old and some sanitary worker from the county seat was talking about germs on the dipper at the church pump. During the New and it give me four nubs. I got 10 five year ago.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim
