

Southeastern freezes new residential gas applications

Cass Cityans not already being serviced by Southeastern Michigan Gas Co., will have to wait an undetermined length of time before they can hook onto company lines.

Robert J. Thomson, President, announced Thursday that no new customers will be accepted by the company. He said the cutoff had to be made because of dwindling gas supplies.

Thomson explained the decision was necessary because of curtailments in gas supplies from Southeastern's major supplier, Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co. He added that gas commitments previously made by the company would be honored.

Thomson said prospective new space heating customers are urged to apply for gas space heating permits through their dealer or at any Southeastern office. No permits will be issued, however, until natural gas supplies are adequate to honor the applications.

"At that time, they will be issued on a first-come-first-served basis," he said.

Southeastern and dealers will continue to sell gas appliances, space heating and air conditioning equipment for replacement purposes only. The company pointed out that new equipment can assist in the conservation of energy where older models may be less efficient.

The company said the curtailment will not affect deliveries of gas to present customers because of Southeastern's supplies of natural gas in storage and supplies expected from local field production.

Panhandle Eastern began limiting gas supplies to Southeastern in 1969. With the exception of a brief curtailment period in the winter of 1971-72, all new residential gas needs have been met, Thomson explained.

He said the company is currently in the process of exploring additional natural gas supplies.

Southeastern serves over 50,000 customers in portions of Lapeer, Macomb, St. Clair, Sanilac, Calhoun, Hillsdale, Jackson and Tuscola counties. The firm has been supplying gas to Cass City since 1964.

A spokesman for Consumers Power Co. said Monday that the company is taking on new residential gas customers but already has plans for interrupting service to certain industrial users.

Jack Carroll, operations manager for Consumers Power Co. in Bad Axe, said new residential customers will be added to current lists. He said the company will have enough gas to meet residential needs but will shut down 22 interruptible industrial users on October 2.

Among industries to be affected will be the Michigan Sugar Co. of Sebawaing and Caro. These firms are currently searching for a way out of the current fuel pinch which threatens to wipe out this year's sugar beet crop.

According to Carroll, the firm has been on the interruptible or "dump" rate for about five years and has gotten by until now. Gas service to the firm was also curtailed for a period last year.

Companies such as Michigan Sugar receive gas between ten and 11 cents per thousand cubic feet cheaper than the standard, residential rate. With this rate, they must run the risk of having gas shut off for up to 90 days in any one calendar year.

Carroll explained that the 22 firms in question will lose gas service in October through Dec. 31, then again from Jan. 1, 1974 through March 31. In effect, gas supplies to these companies will be shut off for six months.

Carroll said the gas situation for the coming year continues clouded. He predicted eventual governmental intervention in the fuel crisis, probably along the lines of mandatory allocations.

While some of the gas used by Consumers comes from northern Michigan, the majority comes from the Gulf states and is handled by two pipeline firms. One, Panhandle Eastern, also services Southeastern Michigan Gas Co.

"Something will definitely have to be done soon," Carroll said. "Too many persons are being affected by this thing. When it starts affecting residential customers, something has to be done."

Consumers serves customers in Gageton, Uby, Caro and points west and north of Cass City.

Driver escapes unhurt as truck, train collide Thursday

Property damage was extensive Thursday morning when a semi-truck loaded with foodstuffs collided with a southbound freight train in Owendale. The accident took place shortly before 9:30 a.m.

The truck had just left Owendale-Gagetown High School where it delivered supplies for the kitchen. Larry Pirkola, 36, Drayton Plains, driver of the truck, said he was headed west toward Sebawaing on his delivery route when the accident occurred.

Pirkola, who escaped injury, said he simply did not see the train coming, adding that he had checked his mirrors just before starting across the tracks. He said he looked to his right, or north, and suddenly saw the train bearing down on him.

"I didn't have any time to think when I saw him coming," Pirkola said. "I just kept going."

The train struck the trailer in the right rear section. Police said the train was traveling approximately 30 miles per hour at the time of the collision. The truck was traveling at about 20 miles per hour.

The truck was owned by Continental Coffee Co., of Detroit and Pirkola normally makes the route which takes him through Owendale.

Don Gussell of the Owendale Police Dept., estimated damage at approximately $50,000. In addition to the food destroyed and damage to the truck, three cars parked in a lot adjacent to the tracks sustained property damage. One was estimated to be totally destroyed.

Also damaged were a number of fence posts, an overhead street light and crossing signs at the railroad.

Pirkola was ticketed for failure to stop for the train. Michigan State Police from the Bad Axe Post investigated the accident.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Several other minor traffic accidents were reported by area police agencies last week.

Wednesday, a car driven by a Kingston man collided with an auto being driven by a Unionville motorist on M-81 just west of Cameron Road.

Tuscola county deputies said Larry Allen McCreedy, 19, Unionville, was attempting to stop for a school bus when he was struck in the rear by a car driven by David Crosby, 19, of Froede Road, Kingston.

Crosby was ticketed for failure to stop in assured clear distance ahead. The mishap occurred at 7:45 a.m.

Also Wednesday, a Cass City man sustained injuries after the car he was driving went out of control and struck a bridge abutment on Cat Lake Road a quarter-mile south of Rossman Road.

Clarence Donovan of Elmwood Road, was reportedly traveling north on Cat Lake Road at a high rate of speed when he lost control of the car and veered off the west side of the pavement.

Officers said he skidded on shoulder gravel approximately 500 feet before striking the abutment and traveling another 50 feet, coming to rest in thick brush.

He was taken to Caro Community Hospital where he was treated for his injuries.

The mishap occurred at 8:00 p.m.

VILLAGE COLLISIONS

A Gageton woman sustained property damage to her auto Friday after she was struck from behind by a car driven by a rural Cass City man.

Diann Micholski, 5540 McAlpine, Gageton, told Cass City police she had been traveling south on Weaver Street and had stopped at Main, preparing to make a left turn, when she was struck from behind by a car driven by Daniel Dean Lowe, 7776 E. Cass Rd.

Lowe told officers he tried to stop but the brakes on his auto failed. He was cited for failure to stop in assured clear distance ahead. The accident took place around 8:15 p.m.

Two autos collided as they attempted to leave the Cass City High School parking lot Friday afternoon. Cars driven by William VanAllen, 6386 Severance Rd., and Elaine Kloc, 6191 Shabbona Rd., Deford, collided as they attempted to leave the parking lot from the north entrance.

Officers said a row of parked cars obscured the vision of both drivers, contributing to the accident. No tickets were issued. The accident occurred around 3:30 p.m.

DEFORD ACCIDENT

An ill-timed sneeze contributed to extensive property damage Monday when a Deford woman lost control of her car and struck a bridge abutment.

Ladonah Teague, 140 Clothier Rd., Deford, told Tuscola deputies that, as she was traveling west on Bevens Road just east of Kingston Road, she sneezed, losing control of the auto.

The car struck a bridge abutment. Concluded on page 14.

A DRAYTON PLAINS man narrowly escaped serious injury Thursday when the semi-truck he was driving was struck by a southbound train in Owendale. The truck was loaded with food supplies for area schools and had just made a delivery at Owendale High School when the accident occurred. Property damage was set at $50,000.

Increased costs, shortage of manpower plague animal shelter

An old man with no teeth and smoking a cigar in an ivory holder drove up to the Tuscola County Animal Shelter in Caro, stopped his car and got out. He walked up to the cement-block building housing the facility and stood in the doorway.

"Hey," he said. "I've got two stray pups out here that someone dumped in my yard yesterday and I sure as hell don't want 'em."

"Bring them in," Mike Franko, Dog Warden for the county said. "We'll take them."

The man disappeared behind the far side of his car and reappeared in a moment with a long box. Inside two light brown pups huddled, both underfed and frightened.

Franko took each out of the box in his big hands and placed them in a pen containing seven other dogs about the same size. Two more animal lives to be dealt with. Two more attempts at finding a home. Two more liabilities for county taxpayers.

This scene takes place over and over each day at the animal shelter, located at the foot of Columbia Street in Caro. Franko oversees the entire operation which involves collection of stray dogs and cats, those found and those no longer wanted by their owners.

Usually, he has a stack of calls to make waiting for him on his desk each day. A glance at his log sheet shows trips all over the county which he, alone, must make. Thursday of last week he picked up 13 homeless dogs.

The animal shelter houses about 35 dogs at maximum and the pens are usually full. So far in 1973, about 1,000 dogs have been handled by the shelter with about one-quarter of them finding new homes. The rest are destroyed.

Dogs are picked up each week after being held the mandatory five days by a firm which trucks the animals to the southern part of the state where they are put to death. Franko declined to say on the record where the animals are taken.

"Sometimes, something like that might upset some people and cause trouble," he reasoned. "So I'll just say they go to the southern part of the state."

Does it bother him to see all these animals destroyed? It sure does.

"It gets to you after awhile," he said plaintively. "It kind of makes you go limp in the knees. I've always had a feeling for animals. Like them and if there was any better way of doing this job, I'd like to know what it is."

Franko's department works directly for the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners, who pay his salary and allocate funds for the animal shelter. This year's budget calls for an expenditure of $11,050, which pays Franko's salary, buys food for the animals and maintains a pickup truck he uses to make his rounds. He says that it just is not enough.

"I need at least two more men on the road just to sell licenses and to follow up on calls," Franko said. "Right now I make a call and tell the party I check with to get a license for the dog and that I'll be back in two weeks to check it out. Well, chances are I can't get back in two weeks because I simply can't. So I've got no way of knowing if they bought the license or not."

A recent study requested by Commissioner Maynard McConkey confirmed Franko's analysis. Dog owners in Elkland, Juniata, and Fairgrove townships were checked to determine the number of licensed dogs.

Elkland township figures showed that of 71 parties with dogs, only 39 had purchased licenses. In Juniata, of 96 owners, 67 had bought the required license and in Fairgrove, of 25 parties with dogs contacted, only 17 had purchased licenses.

Both McConkey and Franko maintain a lack of manpower is the cause of the situation. A formal request for one more full-time employee and one more truck has been made to the commissioners.

Of those townships surveyed, villages were not included. Franko thinks the percentage of non-licensed dogs in Cass City probably runs about the same as for Elkland township as a whole.

Beside extra manpower, Franko would like to see a public education campaign launched, urging all dog owners to have their pets licensed and to have female dogs and cats spayed to cut down on future overpopulation problems.

Meanwhile, the problem continues to mount. Franko does sell a few dogs from the shelter. In July, 20 persons came by, paid the flat rate fee of two dollars and walked out with a new pet. Dogs of all sizes and all breeds come through the facility.

When the Chronicle visited the shelter Friday, a St. Bernard and a purebred male mutt were waiting for a new owner. They had already been held back from the executioner three to four weeks. Franko said he couldn't hold them much longer.

"I managed to sell a purebred beagle and a purebred St. Bernard here not long ago," he said. "I also had an ARC registered silky terrier that I ended up shipping out. No one wanted him and I couldn't keep him any longer."

Franko said the two dollar fee does not begin to cover the cost for boarding the dogs and caring for them. He said he would like to be able to charge variable rates, according to the breed and type of dog. He also said he would like to have a larger facility to hold more dogs.

But Franko, with all the kind intentions in the world, cannot hold dogs and cats forever. Once a week, the truck from the southern part of the state drives up to the side door of the building and those dogs whose time has run out are methodically loaded onto the vehicle and are taken away.

When they arrive, they are quickly gassed and destroyed. They say the process is painless, but not entirely, at least not for Mike Franko.

"It's an awful crude way of doing things," he said. "But it has to be done. I can't say as I like it."

Franko handles about 10 cats per week. If someone comes in, looking for a cat or kitten, Franko gives them away.

"I haven't been told not to," he said. "I'm still pretty new at this job and, until I hear otherwise, that's what I guess I'll do." Franko has been Dog Warden since February.

He keeps scrupulous records of each pick-up made, each animal taken in, and each dog sold and cat given away. Books, files and papers bearing such records can be found atop his desk and in a filing cabinet against one wall.

From the other side of the wall, the barking and cries of animals waiting for someone to either take them home or take them to a point in the southern part of the state filter through.

Franko receives a copy of each animal bite case reported to the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department. He must make sure the animal in question is confined, either in the shelter or at the home of the owner for 15 days to determine if rabies exists. So far he has been lucky. No rabid animal bites have come through his office.

The telephone rings. Someone calls to report a dog they have that strayed onto their property. No identification. No collar. Another pick-up order is written and another dog is on its way to the animal shelter.

When he arrives, he'll be well-treated, get all the food he wants and be kept in clean pens-for at least five days. Anything beyond that time is uncertain.

Mike Franko wishes it always wasn't that way. But it is.

Traffic flow increased, West Streeters say

While residents along West Street are happy with recently-completed paving of their street, some expressed concern this week that some alteration in traffic patterns might be necessary in the wake of increasing flow.

The street was widened, curbed, guttered and blacktopped at a cost of a little over $17,000. Currently the street is open from Main to Garfield with no stops or yields in between. This creates two open intersections at Houghton and Third Streets, both of which carry a steady volume of traffic.

Most residents of West Street contacted by the Chronicle in an unscientific sample survey would like to see some kind of regulation to make traveling the street safer and to slow down traffic.

Bruce Holcomb, 443 West, said cars are definitely traveling past his house faster than before the street was widened. He said he has also noticed an increased volume of traffic since the paving work was completed last week.

"The crossing at Houghton is a bad one," he commented. "So is the intersection at Third. They really whiz through there and very seldom do they stop for West."

Holcomb, who has lived on the street for 36 years, said he favors keeping West a through street and placing stop signs at all streets crossing West.

"I'm afraid there'll be an accident if something isn't done," he said. "I've always been cautious about looking both ways at those streets. If I hadn't, I'd have been hit a couple of times."

Another resident of West Street also favors making the street a through street. Louis Salas, 4255 West, said the intersection of West and Garfield will now become even more dangerous because both are wide and carry heavy volumes of traffic.

"I think there should be a four-way stop at West and concluded on page 14.

THESE PUPS WAIT patiently for someone to give them a new home. Dogs such as these are kept at least five days before they are shipped out and destroyed. Currently, about 35 dogs are being held.

The Great American Billy

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Move over, Bunky Knudsen. Here comes Billy Martin, roaring around third and storming for home plate, manfully determined to score another run for The Great American Game of Baseball.

What I mean is, I thought Bunky left with class when he was fired as president of Ford Motor Co. a few years ago. He held a farewell press conference in which he admitted he wasn't sure how many cars he owned. And he said he had hired a lawyer to stand in line for him at the unemployment office.

Bunky gave a pretty impressive performance. Most middle-aged men, faced with the sudden loss of their paycheck, don't show that much bounce (except after jumping from tall buildings).

But it turns out Bunky is a bush leaguer compared to Martin. When Billy was fired as Detroit Tiger manager the other day, he had his last Goodbye already taped and ready for immediate viewing on TV. There was even a "Goodbye Billy" song already written and recorded.

Now, that's real class. The ordinary Joe Sloh, when he is fired, starts thumbing to the last page in his checkbook, with a trembling thumb. But not big league baseball managers. They've rounded that final base before (Doesn't that grab you? I should have been a sports announcer.) They know there'll be a greener job on the other side of the dugout. They know the game isn't over until they have been paid for the remaining 2 years on their contract.

There is no substitute for experience, no matter if the pitcher is a lefty or a righty. Experience is a switch-hitter. (Can you stand it?) It was his experience that enabled Billy Martin to make such a classy trip to the showers.

Three years earlier, Martin had been canned as manager of the Minnesota Twins. At that time, as in Michigan now, there was great gnashing of teeth and painting of banners. There was also a special tribute filmed by a Minnesota TV station. It was the kind of a tribute that gets you right here, or right there, depending upon where you wear your sliding pads.

The movie shows Martin standing in the deserted baseball stadium, looking out at the field with his most determined I'll-break-your-face expression.

In the background, a voice sings "You can't win 'em all, Billy, but we're damn sure that you'll try." It is made clear that only an exceedingly dumb gutless person would fire a great guy like Billy Martin.

Then the voice sings that Billy should put his hands in his hip pockets and walk away, bravely. Which he does.

It is 1 of the great moments in sports history. And, when Martin was fired again, that great moment was recreated: Detroit Channel 2 simply showed the Minnesota tribute filmed 3 years previously. After all, how many different ways can a man put his hands in his hip pockets while thumbing his nose?

Martin will manage another team. He will get fired again. And the local TV station can show that film again. It is a great convenience to all involved, including the fans who love to mew and puke as they watch their heroes suffer defiantly on TV.

Martin can even use the film as part of his credentials when applying for a new job. Have nose, will thumb.

Give me some peanuts and Crackerjacks.

Open house to honor Curtisses

The Rev. and Mrs. Basel W. Curtiss of Otisville will be honored at the renewing of their marriage vows and open house Sunday, Sept. 23, at the Otisville United Methodist Church. The 25th anniversary celebration will be held from 2:30-5:30 in the afternoon. The vows will be renewed at 2:30.

Basel Curtiss and Maxine Klinkman were married Sept. 25, 1948, in the Lincoln Park Methodist Church parsonage of Flint by the late Rev. Floyd Sullivan.

The event will be hosted by their children. Friends and relatives are invited.

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Useless information department:

Quick now, what is the name of the road that goes from Unionville to Bay City? Don't say M-25, that doesn't count.

Did you say Bay City-Forestville Road? You're right. . . and wrong. Did you say Center Road? Same deal. After travelling this highway for 20 years I discovered last week that in Bay county the highway is Center Road and in Tuscola county it's called Bay City-Forestville Road.

Confess. You didn't know it either, did you?

They don't build them like they used to. Not like the former St. Pancratius Church building anyway. Ed Bergman contracted to tear it down for the church. All went smoothly until the steps were reached. They are concrete laced with steel. . . and they yield only slowly and stubbornly to the pressure of a bruising air hammer. . . one chip of cement at a time.

There is a new fence along the sidelines of the football field at the park. It's designed for crowd control. Spectators previously crowded the sidelines and made life miserable for fans who stayed back, for players and for Athletic Director Robert Sickle who had the hopeless task of trying to keep order on the sidelines.

There's a cloud over this sorry picture. The fence ruins left field of the softball diamond and come next spring an alteration in the fence there will be necessary.

The reason that the vote for an indoor swimming pool was a hurry up affair was to allow time to get cracking on an outdoor pool in time for swimming next summer. It's dollars to donuts that the haste was wasted. Even if all the hurdles are overcome that's a big if) the chances of a new pool completed next summer are exceedingly remote.

There is talk going around that the present pool can be enlarged, revamped and made to work.

No one to my knowledge that talks this way has produced any facts showing that the demands of the State Health Department can be met for a reasonable amount of dollars.

I'd like to be shown. Meanwhile, there's another fact that says the proposition was poorly presented and most taxpayers didn't understand the proposals.

I'd agree that there was confusion. But I disagree when they say it would have made the difference. The margin was too great for that.

What's easy to understand is that there is a generation growing up without any opportunity to swim at all.

PHONE 872-2300 CASS CITY

FROM THE Editor's Corner

The work day was over and I sat alone in the joint catching up on odds and ends when the phone jangled.

It was Detroit calling. The questions: How does Cass City feel about blacks? How would they be received in Cass City?

I paused. Certainly this was someone pulling my leg. It took several minutes before I became convinced that the call was for real.

The caller was Ms. Winifred Schell, a former resident.

If you are asking, is there prejudice in Cass City, I said at once, there is.

As much bigotry, racial hatred and intolerance as you'll find in Detroit. Perhaps more.

How would a mixed group of blacks and whites be received? With covert glances. With little concealed hostility. With apprehension. And with genuine warmth. With Christian love. With good fellowship.

Sadly, there is sure to be more hostility than love. More apprehension than welcome.

Certainly Cass City couldn't remotely approach the record of the group that Ms. Schell wants to bring to the community one Sunday.

It's a Presbyterian church group from the ghetto of Detroit. It's more black than white today. The church membership has dwindled with the neighborhood.

What once was a congregation approaching 1,000 now is at about 100. Ms. Schell says.

The only resemblance to the church today and in former years is the minister. . . he stays by choice.

There must be a good deal of personal satisfaction in what has been achieved under his leadership in the congregation's metamorphosis.

For, Ms. Schell says, the black and white members work together and associate together. Good neighbors.

They are achieving despite all the hazards of the ghetto. Vandals stole the colored glass windows from the church building. It's a high crime-risk area. Anything not nailed down is as good as gone.

According to Ms. Schell the visitors she would like to bring in town do more than attend church together.

They work for a better neighborhood. Refuse to buckle under the pressures always present in areas like this one at the corner of Grand River and Trumbull.

Okay. So what did I decide? Should they come? Certainly. If they can survive on the corner of Grand River and Trumbull they can waltz past any ugly little incident that might pop up in Cass City.

And just maybe Cass City will be the better for it as residents see what can be done. Maybe it will be better. Maybe. But I doubt it.

Significant brake improvements are featured in the 1974 Chevrolet pickup line. Computer-selected brake systems are tailored to the loaded weight rating of the truck, as specified by the buyer, to give brake performance similar to that of a passenger car. With loaded weight ratings of more than 6800 lbs., a new hydraulic power assist is standard. Other improvements in the 1974 line include a larger displacement standard engine in most V8 models, full-time four-wheel drive in all 4 X 4 V8 models, interior refinements, four new colors, and optional bright roof drip moldings.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

Locks

By Jim Ketchum

File this under the "I Love My Wife But..." Dept.

My wife is one of the most intelligent, resourceful and ambitious persons I know (you'll pardon me if I sound a little prejudiced). She puts up uncomplainingly with my dirty socks, cluttered smoking stand and hair in the bathtub.

She's a great cook and feeds me too well. She washes my clothes, cleans my house, tolerates my eccentric relatives and generally makes life pleasurable for me. Except...

She has one habit that defies all sound attempts at breaking. She locks everything. I mean everything. If it hasn't got a lock on it, she'll find a place to put one. I've never seen anything like it.

One interesting facet of this habit involves locking the car. We own two of these malcontent beasts, hers and mine. On my car, when the doors are locked, that little button you press to open them will still go in, but will not activate the mechanism releasing the door.

Not so with her car. The button, along with the rest of the door, goes rigid, keeping even Eric the Red and his Scandinavian Hordes from entry.

Well, one of my lovely wife's neat little habits is to lock the door on her car and leave the window down. Why? Don't ask. I have no idea. It just seems like the thing to do, apparently. Maybe it is supposed to keep the door from falling off—I'm not sure. Well, anyhow, the other day the fire whistle went off and as I raced for her car to take off and grab some pictures, I ran up, pushed mightily on the button and nothing gave. I realized nothing was giving about the time my thumb started to buckle.

But it was too late to stop. My thumb was committed to a hard push on the button. As it buckled, it slipped, catching the nail on the edge of the still-rigid device and ripping it, (flesh from flesh, to my great displeasure and suffering).

There's nothing more frustrating than to realize you are doing yourself bodily harm and still knowing that it really isn't necessary.

When confronted with this information and my dripping thumb, throbbing in agony, her only response was a blank look of astonishment and the offer to get a band-aid.

She loves locks but she sometimes loses keys. This tends to make life more than just interesting.

The other day she had occasion to be out of town for the day. She left me with what I supposed to be our only existing key to the garage, which among other things, contained my car and bicycle.

At noon I came home, ate lunch and went out to the garage to take the bike out and ride back to work. Not only is this good exercise, but it tends to get the cholesterol out of my veins.

I reached for the key, stuck it in the padlock and—nothing! It would not turn. I twisted, cursed and shoved, all to no avail. Then it dawned on me. She had given me the key to her bicycle instead of the garage.

Yes. Her bicycle. She even locks that up! Locks it up in the locked garage, along with my locked car.

When she returned and was confronted with this bit of evidence, all I received was an apology and a look of puzzlement as to why I was so upset. Locking everything is a part of her being.

She'd even padlock the bathroom if I didn't put my foot down.

I discovered recently that, if a lock shortage developed, Cass City would be one of those places least affected by it. We went out of town for the week end not long ago and I inadvertently left my bicycle parked in back of the office, unlocked for two days and two nights.

When, panic stricken, I dashed down in what I suspected was a vain attempt at recovery, I found it still parked in the same place I left it the preceding Friday. It had not been touched.

Still our house looks like Fort Knox with all the locks around it. My key ring hardly fits in my pocket anymore and makes me look like I'm suffering from a hernia whenever I stand up. I've been told we need new locks for the windows as well, which will end up costing me more money and time than they'll be worth.

I remember once I had to break into her house before we were married because she had left her house key inside. I got in, thanks to the lack of a window lock.

I maintain that if someone wants to get in a building badly enough, he'll find a way. Yale and Master Lock companies notwithstanding.

I love my wife, but...

Baptists hold missionary series

A series of missionary meetings was to be held at First Baptist church this week Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, and concluding with Sunday services.

Participating in the services are three missionaries. Rev. Tad Jamison, a home missionary under Galien Baptist Missions, is currently located in Lansing. He will speak Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings.

Rev. Harold Curtis, who serves with Evangelical Baptist Missions in Niger, West Africa, will speak Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7:45 p.m. services.

The third speaker is Rev. Stan Brittain, who has served in Liberia under Baptist Mid Missions for several years. Mr. Brittain will participate in all five of the special services.

Evening services begin at 7 p.m. The Sunday morning services will be at 10 and 11.

The public is invited.

AGENT'S CORNER

Weeks food supply earned quickly

Alene Mills - Extension Agent

The true measure of the cost of food is the amount of time required to earn the money to pay for it. If you can earn a steak in 20 minutes, it's cheap. If you live in a country where it takes a half day, steak is expensive. In 1972, the average American spent only 15.7 per cent of his income for food. No other country on earth can earn its food with such a small proportion of working time.

This means that it required only about six hours and 20 minutes of a 40-hour week to pay for food last year. You could have your grocery bill earned by 4 p.m. Monday. Wages are continuing to rise faster than food prices. The USDA expects the percentage of income spent for food to go even lower. This continues a long term trend. In 1952, food took 23 per cent of after-tax disposable income, about eight per cent more than today.

Industrial wages rose an average of seven per cent per year over the last 20 years. Farm prices rose less than one per cent during the same time. This slight increase in raw food prices made it possible for Americans to spend a smaller percentage of income on food. It opened the way for disposable income to be channeled into TV sets, automobiles, vacations and the other nice things treasured by Americans.

Workers in other countries around the world spend a much larger percentage of their income for food. In England, France, Germany and other Western European countries the average is between 37 per cent and 39 per cent of income. A Japanese worker is in the same range. In India, workers spend 60 per cent of their

Zonta club holds monthly dinner

Zonta Club met at the home of Mildred McConkey for its monthly dinner Tuesday, Sept. 11, with Agnes Milligan as co-hostess.

Plans were formulated for a silent auction with Edith Little as chairman. A discussion was held concerning the possibility of the club selling Teen Ranch Christmas cards as a project.

Discussion was held regarding a bingo party to raise funds for the new four-doctor clinic. Beverly Little was appointed chairman.

Tom Proctor and Fred Auten addressed the club on the need for completion of the clinic and outlined funds still required to complete the project.

Edith Little was appointed delegate and Shirley Bushlein as alternate for the Zonta International Conference to be held at the Sheraton Motel in Flint, Sept. 28-30.

The next dinner meeting will be held at the home of Lucile Bauer with a representative from Teen Ranch as speaker co-hostess.

BETTER HEALTH

Mercy killing gains favor

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ and DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

In the American Medical News is a brief article telling the results of a recent Gallup Poll in which a majority of those polled (53 per cent) responded "yes" to the question: "When a person has a disease that cannot be cured, do you think doctors should be allowed by law to end the patient's life by some painless means if the patient and his family request it?" Forty per cent disapproved, and 7 per cent had no opinion. The same question was asked in 1950, and only 36 per cent approved. Interestingly, there was a big change in the opinions of people under age thirty. In the 1950 survey, 30 per cent of the under-30 group approved of the practice, but in the recent survey, this number had risen to 67 per cent. Another interesting fact is that the 1973 poll shows that men and women hold similar views on the subject, and that the higher the level of a person's formal education, the more likely he is to approve of euthanasia, (a good death).

Actually, I doubt if many physicians would care to give a patient a poison, but I think that in many a case they would like the privilege of stopping tube feeding or other measures designed to prolong the dying of a terminally ill patient; also, some doctors would like the right, when a person dying in great pain begs piteously for a bottle full of some drug strong enough to be fatal, that he could take some night if the pain became intolerable -- to get the drug and leave it on the table beside his bed.

As my wise and kindly friend, the great Dr. Irvine Page says, two big problems in medicine today are, when can a doctor "pull out the tubes" and who has a right to say, "Pull out the tubes." Another problem arises when, as sometimes happens, there is only one life-saving machine such as an artificial kidney available, and a number of people desperately need the machine in order to stay alive; who then is to decide which of these persons should have the use of the machine?

Also, I have seen cases in which a person rendered permanently unconscious and paralyzed by a big stroke, has been kept alive at great cost for several years. I am glad that laymen as well as physicians are thinking about these problems and are beginning to face them more frankly.

IS AN AGED PERSON'S ILLNESS DUE PURELY TO AGING?

Every so often during my days of busy practices I would see an elderly person with a story of aches and pains, some vague abdominal discomforts, and some mental and physical slowing up. If the person had previously been very active and was used to feeling good, this slowing up would be very distressing and even frightening to him.

When a thorough examination did not show much, the question was, was all of the person's illness, or most of it, due to aging or was some of it due to an old tendency to arthritis, or some plugging up of arteries in the brain and the heart? If the person was a heavy smoker or a heavy user of alcohol, that could be a factor. Also if the person, often a retired woman, was living a very lonely and uninteresting life, that could be a cause of illness.

Many wise experts on aging now feel that the retired person, especially if he or she is without a mate or children, would do well to find a job and keep working hard at that.

The commonest way that a person ages is with little strokes. A man may become irritable and short of patience; he may start to lose weight and get pains here and there. He may complain of spells of dizziness or of a failure in memory; he may feel "shaky" and his handwriting may have changed.

Often times the man will tell me of one or more brief dizzy or woozy spells, after which there were mental changes. The man may have fallen out of his chair, and then picked himself up and seemed to be all right, but he never felt "quite right" or "quite himself" again.

These changes are caused by plugging up of little arteries in the brain. An older person may have only one such incident, or he may have many. Often they do not produce serious brain damage -- just the feelings of discomfort and general malaise that I have described. The little spells may be very frightening to the person, but often I can reassure him by telling him that I have had a number of such little spells, and I am still going strong. I have a little more trouble remembering names and I have more "holes in my memory" than I would like, but I manage to keep hard at work and I continue to enjoy life.

AROUND THE FARM

Producers look to subsoiling

By Don Kebler

Last week on my Tuesday radio program, I made the comment that any crop producer who had the equipment, horsepower and time could well afford to subsoil. I further explained that the dry soil at the time of this program gave a most excellent condition for maximum subsoiling effectiveness.

That same afternoon, Jim Olson and I visited Allan Latimer near Akron and looked at the results of subsoiling on three of his fields. We noticed the large clods of broken soil as a result of subsoiling anywhere between 18 and 24 inches deep. At first appearance the fields look rough. However, over many years in our county, I have seen as large or larger clods of soil in fields which were fall plowed. A good hard winter with a normal amount of soil wetting, drying, freezing and thawing should break up these surface clods the same as on fall plowed ground as cloddy.

With this soil as dry as it was when Latimer subsoiled, the desired effects of subsoiling for shattering the soil to the depths reached was most possible. Heavy clays and clay loam soils at certain degrees of higher soil moisture will not shatter when subsoiled. Instead soil will be compressed away from the contact surfaces of the subsoiling tool compressed and even glazed. Under these conditions, little or no soil shattering will occur. Also, the compressed glazed openings will establish a density equilibrium possibly even before spring plowing.

What we don't know is whether or not Latimer's subsoiling techniques could have done a more effective job of increasing soil drainage by further use of this tool on the same fields. Maybe by more shattering of the subsoil to produce more drainage openings around and through the subsoiled area, better and quicker drainage can occur. When this drainage improves, we have a greater amount of soil oxygen available, and a proper amount of oxygen in the soil is necessary for best plant growth. Also, better drained soils warm up faster, release plant food nutrients faster, lessen the favorable soil conditions for root rot development. All these factors help plants to grow faster and more vigorously.

I really believe that Latimer will realize a satisfying crop response on his subsoiled fields. The subsoiled field on which he plans to plant this fall's winter wheat had a portion further fitted with a further breakup of the clods. It appears this wheat can be planted and grown satisfactorily on this field following completion of this fitting operation.

I'm sure others have subsoiled also, and we are interested in hearing of their techniques and observing the crops grown on these fields.

Two receive OES life membership

The annual memorial service and the presentation of life memberships to two members highlighted the September meeting of Echo chapter OES held Wednesday evening, Sept. 12. Thirty-six attended and 15 officers answered roll call.

During the business meeting, with Mrs. Marie Jetta presiding, the coming Grand Chapter session was announced for Oct. 9-11. Worthy Matron Mrs. Jetta and Worthy Patron Keith Murphy have been invited to serve during the session as grand escort and grand guard, respectively.

The chapter voted to give life memberships to two members who are now eligible and life memberships were presented to two members, Mrs. Susie Keating and Mrs. Myrtle Murphy.

Installation date for officers to serve Echo chapter for the coming year was announced as Oct. 24 by Mrs. Betty Greenleaf. At the close of the business meeting, a memorial service was conducted in memory of two members, Mrs. Mary Flint and Mrs. Eva Reugh, who died during the past year.

Mrs. Ruth Morell and her committee served refreshments in the dining room at the close of Chapter.

Lions hold broom sale

Cass City Lions Club conducted its annual Broom Sale Monday and Tuesday nights this week with some 40 persons taking part.

The group canvassed the village and sold all types of brooms, wash cloths, dish cloths and dusting cloths. Halloween candy was also sold.

Proceeds from the sale go toward sight conservation activities of the club. Alger Freiberger was chairman of the sale.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

I see by the papers where these "Who's Who" outfits all over the country is catching down the country on account they invite anybody and everybody to get wrote up in their books and to buy their books. The Government agencies that are trying to "alert the public" are calling these folks the "vanity press."

Mister Editor, the wonder to me is that it's any of the Government's business. This country runs on vanity, cause that's the stuff that sells everything we use from cars to cigarettes, from clothes to colleges, from toothpaste to automatic garage door openers. The desire to buy is built on making a show with other folks, and the products are made to fill the desire.

Actual, all the "vanity press" is doing is telling folks they have "been selected" to be included in such and such a publication. Course, everybody that has a Social Security number or a credit card is important enough to be selected, and for sure they will want the $25 book that tells all about their reasons for being famous and successful. This is the oldest selling pitch in the book, and no more brazen than most.

The fellows at the country store Saturday night took up this matter, and it was agreed they made a pore impression on the "Who's Who" press. Zeke Grubb said his preacher gets selected regular to appear in different books about distinguished people, but the preacher says he just ignores em. Zeke's preacher said the only difference between getting in "Who's Who" and getting a honorary degree is about $200,000. If you got $25 you can get a book with your name in it, and if you give some college a new library wing you get "Dr." in big type on paper suitable for framing. It's the same. Zeke's preacher said, as putting some-pun extry in the collection plate to get your name on a stained glass window.

Ed Doolittle said you can thumb through any magazine you pick up and get the same message "Who's Who" is selling. You got to wear our shirt to look successful, the ads tell us, and if you smoke this cigar and drink this whisky the gals will know at a glance you're first class material. And a cyclopedia salesman never has come to his door. Ed allowed, that didn't start off by telling him about some big shot that bought a set of books, and about how so-and-so down the road recommended Ed for a set.

Farthermore, Ed went on, this vanity business works backwards as good as forwards. Folks brag about how much they owe, and how much a feller can borrow these days is took as a measure of success. A feller that pays his bills from one month to the next is a "pore risk," but the big operator that can go in debt $30,000 jest by signing his name and paying 10 per cent interest is a fit subject for "Who's Who in the World of Finance."

Mister Editor, they is a heap of difference between growing and swelling, but folks get em mixed up.

Yours Truly,
Uncle Tim

Red Cross blood unit due Monday

The American Red Cross mobile blood unit will be at St. Pancratius Parish Hall from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday to accept blood donations. Persons wishing to donate are asked to contact Mrs. E. C. Fritz, chairperson of the drive at 872-2444.

The blood bank is being sponsored jointly by the Red Cross and the Hills and Dales Hospital Auxiliary. Donors in the program will be eligible to receive blood at no charge.

This will be the blood bank's second visit to Cass City this year. An earlier stop in April netted 138 pints of blood for use in the area and in the Flint regional blood center, which sponsors the bloodmobile.

Top 10 DHIA herds for August announced

The top 10 DHIA herds in Tuscola county for August were announced last week by William Bortel, County Extension director. Area herdsmen placed among the leaders again.

The Leo J. Marr herd of 43 cows produced an average of 54.4 lbs. of milk with a butterfat rate of 1.70. The Donald DeLong herd of 80 cows placed fourth averaging 45.7 lbs. of milk per day with a butterfat rate of 1.61.

Graham Brothers' 120-cow herd placed sixth in the top ten with a daily production rate of 42.1 lbs. of milk and a daily butterfat average of 1.56. Loomis Brothers' 64-cow herd placed ninth with 41.1 lbs. of milk per day and 1.50 daily butterfat average.

In the DHIA rolling herd averages above 500 lbs. of butterfat, the Leo J. Marr herd again finished first with 16,647 lbs. of milk and 618 lbs. of butterfat. Ronald Hampshire's 45-cow herd produced 15,106 lbs. of milk and 563 lbs. of butterfat. Loomis Brothers' herd ranked fifth with 15,095 lbs. of milk and 557 lbs. of butterfat.

Graham Brothers' herd ranked seventh with 13,853 lbs. of milk and 548 lbs. of butterfat. Donald Doerr's 64-cow herd ranked ninth with 14,384 lbs. of milk and 534 lbs. of butterfat.

Cass City Class of '23 renews old memories Saturday

They came from Cass City, Deford, Decker and Peck. They came from Bay City, Port Austin, Ypsilanti, Royal Oak and Toledo.

They came from Fort Wayne, Rochester, Lewiston and Orlando.

Students of the Cass City High School graduating class of 1923—that's who they were and they met at the Crossroads Restaurant Saturday night to renew acquaintances and relive memories of a half century.

As they met, embraced and tried to remember just when it was they had all seen each other last, a flood of memories for these former Cass City graduates filled the room and occupied most of the evening. Memories of those in the room, memories of those who could not come and of those who would never come to another class reunion took up a major portion of the conversation.

Of the 43 graduates, 24 attended. Eleven are deceased.

Helen Corkins Greig came from Sun City, Fla., for the event. Adrian Bixby journeyed from Fort Wayne, Ind., for the gathering. Ella Cleland, whom most of the group had not seen for 50 years, joined the reunion, traveling from Toledo.

Former Cass City High School

Supt. Willis Campbell, an instructor at the high school in 1923, was an honored guest.

A four-tiered cake was made for the dinner by Mrs. Erma Hicks.

Each classmate gave a short personal history of the last 50 years of life away from the surroundings they left as graduates a half-century ago.

Preceding the reunion dinner at 7:00 p.m., an open house was held at the home of Irene Hall. Plans were made to hold another reunion in three years at a business meeting held before the dinner. The same committee will be in charge of arrangements.

Plans for this reunion were made by Mrs. Paul Murray, Irene Hall and Herbert Bartle, all of Cass City, Mrs. Eldon Bruce and Mrs. Eber Stewart of Deford, Mrs. Otis Heath of Bay City and Mrs. Bruce Kritzman of Decker. Dr. Albert Law of Port Austin will also serve on the planning committee for 1976.

Those class members who attended were: Herbert Bartle, Cass City; Eleanor Bigelow Heath, Bay City; Adrian Bixby, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Carrie Brown Moynes, Royal Oak; Elsie Campbell Parker, Ypsilanti; and Ella Cleland, Toledo, Ohio.

Also attending were: Dr. Albert Law, Port Austin; Helen Corkins Greig, Sun City Center, Fla.; Mary Dunlap Kritzman, Decker; Alice Ferguson Stewart, Deford; Lillian Ferguson Bruce, Decker, and Marie Garety Murray, Cass City.

Those also in attendance were: Irene Hall, Cass City; Charles Hamilton, Mayville; Dr. Kenneth Higgins, Royal Oak; Annabelle MacRae, Royal Oak; Aletha Klein Auten, Goodrich; and Mildred Kosanke Cole, Huntington Woods.

Also attending were: Thelma

Kenneth McKenzie, Michigan Center; Oakley Phetteplace, Ypsilanti; Donald Seed, Rochester; Marian Wallace Callan, Saginaw, and Rev. Wallace Zinnecker, Peck.

THE CASS CITY HIGH SCHOOL class of 1923 held a reunion Saturday night at Crossroads Restaurant. Some 24 class members were reunited after 50 years. Honored guest was former Supt. Willis Campbell.

4-H ACTIVITIES
4-H'ers start
new year
 By Bernard Jardot

The many 4-H clubs of Tuscola county will start their new club year Oct. 1. At this time they are enrolling young people for the many 4-H projects and activities of interest to youth 8 to 19 years of age.

The theme for 1973 is "4-H Gets It All Together". Yes, 4-H has got it all together by involving more young people and adults than ever before. 4-H today brings together both rural and urban youth, boys and girls, all racial, economic and social backgrounds. No matter where you live, city or country, 4-H is there.

Through individual and group efforts they learn about the world around them, other people, customs, lifestyles, similar to and different from their own.

Among the problems tackled by 4-H'ers are concerns such as energy, fuel and electric conservation, improving health habits and standards, protecting our natural resources, and better agricultural efficiency.

If you wish to get your young people involved in 4-H, contact your local 4-H club or county 4-H office, Civil Defense Center, Caro.

Apprehend Owendale youth for shoplifting Friday

An Owendale youth was apprehended Friday morning after being caught attempting to steal a billfold from the Ben Franklin Store in Cass City.

Police said Gerald Prieskorn, owner of the store, summoned officers after he apprehended the 15-year-old youth, whose name was withheld because of his age.

Prieskorn told officers he had seen two boys looking at billfolds and one of the youths picked a billfold up without returning it to the counter. He said he stopped the youths on the street and asked to have the billfold returned.

Police said the boy was released to the custody of his parents. Prieskorn told officers that if this was the youth's only trouble, he would not press charges. According to Police Chief Gene Wilson, the case was dropped Tuesday.

PONY STOLEN

Tuscola county sheriff's deputies reported a pony belonging to George Sylvester, Cass City, was stolen from a site at the corner of Gilford and Hurds Corner Road Monday.

According to deputies, the pony was tied up Sunday night and was discovered missing the next day. The animal was described as a Welsh stud pony, reddish in color. Value of the animal was set at $40.

SQUASH STOLEN

For the second time in as many weeks, Mrs. Frank Ertman, 5627 N. Cemetery Rd., reported squash had been stolen from her garden. Deputies said they found three sets of tracks leading from Cemetery Road through a cornfield to her garden.

The squash were discovered missing Sunday morning. Thieves last week took seven squash and two watermelons from the garden. It was not determined how many squash were taken this time or their dollar value.

West Street traffic flow

Garfield," Salas said. "Now with both of them paved, this will send traffic through there even faster. The street should be through from Main with yield signs at Houghton and Third."

He said Houghton and Third will both be bad intersections until something in the way of signs are erected.

Salas further suggested that, during the times of heavy usage of plant traffic, Garfield could be open, while making it a four-way stop at other hours.

Mrs. George W. Cook, 4308 West, agreed that cars are traveling faster on West since the paving and suggested that stop signs should be erected on West instead of intersecting streets.

"That would tend to slow traffic down on West," she said. "I really think it would help."

Mrs. Cook has lived on West Street for 16 years.

Cass City Village Supt. Lou LaPonsie indicated that studies of traffic flow on West and adjoining streets are in the works, but tended to believe West itself would remain a through street from Main to Garfield.

"I've just talked with a traffic engineer who said he just concluded a survey indicating that it hurts traffic flow if you stop a street such as West," LaPonsie said. "We also find that, if you stop traffic, you get more noise and you find traffic traveling faster after they've stopped than if they hadn't stopped at all."

LaPonsie specifically said that studies will have to be made in the area with an eye toward placing either stop or yield signs on Houghton and Third Streets at West.

Nothing definite has been decided with respect to the two intersections, however, he added.

Move under way to review political ethics in legislature

ETHICS EVALUATED

The sensitive topic of ethics and public office holders may have its biggest public airing ever this fall in the Michigan Legislature.

A special Senate committee on political ethics is using the nearly three-month break in the legislative session to hold a series of public hearings around the state. The result will be a set of recommendations sent to the floor of the senate for a yes or no vote.

The special committee was formed late last year in the midst of a flurry of criticism in Lansing over legislative junketing. Other committees have been formed in the past and after a hearing or two they have quietly melted back into the woodwork.

Indeed, after a January hearing by the current committee, one long time observer in Lansing snorted, "Well, one whole hour. That takes care of ethics for the year."

With much more public attention focused their way this fall, members of the legislatures will be taking their most serious look at possible reforms.

Gov. William G. Milliken said earlier this year when he called for some reforms that the time for reform is now if it is to come at all in the next few years.

All of this is not meant to suggest Lansing is populated with crooks.

Michigan politics are quite clean when compared to the politics found in surrounding states. We have no former governors headed for jail as in Illinois. Nor do we know of any shoeboxes full of money in any hotel rooms.

There is no system here as in Indiana which requires state employees to check off part of their salary for political dues, even though employees are expected to buy tickets for fund raisers for whichever party the boss works for.

And the fact that this is a relatively clean state, means it might be easier to get more reform this fall.

There are two differences this time that may produce some tangible results.

The first is that the committee is headed by two young senators who sincerely want to change the law to make things more public and lobbyists more controlled. The two — Republican William Ballenger and Democratic Patrick McCullough — are trying to work out a package which will be strong enough to make a difference but not too strong for the legislature to swallow.

In the area of public disclosure, they don't want to make a law which would force officeholders to expose every bit of their privacy to the public. That would only discourage capable people from running.

Watergate is the second difference. The entire Watergate mess made the public more sensitive to the whole area of ethics than anything in this nation's history. And it has made it easier for reformers such as Ballenger and McCullough to prod their colleagues into action.

WOLVES SOUGHT

Perhaps the most slandered animal in existence is the timber wolf. The wolf has always been viewed as an undesirable animal by mankind.

All sorts of tales circulate about the supposed blood-thirstiness of the animal.

This is despite the fact there is not one recorded case of a wolf attacking a human without provocation.

As the wolf's image is starting to change, an attempt is starting to reinstate the animal in the good graces of Michigan people.

Wolves were plentiful when Michigan became a state and a bounty was offered for them. Now they are close to extinction in the entire United States. Only Isle Royale, northern Minnesota and Alaska report any sizable populations.

As a result, in January a group of four or five timber wolves from Minnesota will be transplanted from Minnesota to the Huron Mountains in northern Marquette county.

The wolves will have special collars with radio transmitters so their movements can be monitored. The hope is that they will multiply and establish themselves permanently in the area.

It is all part of a change in the basic thinking which is governing our approach to our environment. Man has learned that nature provides its own balance in populations and when he meddles with that balance, he can create more problems than he solves. So man is now trying to get the balance back closer to where nature had it before he began meddling.

JAILS EXAMINED

Innovations in a second area of penology are being undertaken by the Corrections Department.

The department has formed a seven-man unit to regulate, plan and assist in the training of personnel for local jails around the state. The program is made possible by a $123,000 federal grant. It replaces a set-up where only one man was in charge of "watchdogging" all the jails in the state.

The unit will provide technical advance on construction of new jails and remodeling of existing ones as well as serving as a clearing house for information on treatment programs and technical advances.

While federal money for the unit became available only July

Weather Hits Feed Crops

Bad winter and spring weather decreased the amount of corn, soybeans and other feed crops that could be harvested from a last year's crops and planted for this year's. Because farmers couldn't operate their equipment in the snow, ice or mud, much field work either could not be accomplished or was severely delayed.

Due to the resultant shortages, costs of many livestock feeds have more than doubled, adding to the expense of producing meat animals and making any immediate decrease in the price of meat unlikely.

A few new books were received at the library this week. They are "Survive the Savage Sea" by Douglas Robertson, "Starting Over" by Dan Wakefield, "Do With Me What You Will" by Joyce Carol Oates, "Not I Said the Sparrow" by Richard Lockridge, "The Best of Life" by Time-Life books and

OWENDALE ACCIDENT

An Owendale man was hospitalized Monday afternoon with injuries sustained when his auto ran off Sebewaing Road about two and a half miles east of Owendale and struck a ditch.

Harold W. Day, 63, was admitted to Hills and Dales General Hospital suffering from lacerations sustained in the mishap. He was kept overnight for observation.

State Police from the Bad Axe post who investigated the accident said Day was traveling east on Sebewaing Road near Maxwell Road when he lost control of his car and ran off the south side of the road, then crossed and left the north side of the road, striking a ditch.

Day told officers he might have fallen asleep at the wheel. Day was cited for careless driving in the mishap which occurred around 5:30 p.m.

Your neighbor says

How about a 6-year term ?

The recent revelations of the Watergate scandal have focused new attention on the office of the presidency and suggestions for reforming the office have been made by prominent lawyers and constitutional experts.

One idea put forth involves limiting the president to one six-year term, barring him from re-election.

Jayne Krohn, 6552 Main St., sees some merit in the idea.

"If we had a responsible person in the office with a responsible cabinet, I think it would be a workable idea," she said. "If, on the other hand, we wound up with an ineffective person, we'd be stuck with him for six years with no recourse but impeachment."

Ms. Krohn said she believes the power of the presidency has not been eroded by the Watergate scandal but the office will be held up to closer scrutiny in the future.

"The president, whoever he is, will have to choose aides and cabinet officials more wisely," she said.

Ms. Krohn teaches third grade at Cass City High School and is a native of Elkton. She received her bachelor's degree in education from Central Michigan University.

Lions Auxiliary holds monthly dinner meeting

The Lions Auxiliary met at Veronica's Restaurant for its monthly dinner meeting Monday night.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Molly Henderson of Sandusky, who addressed the group on the subject "Slim Living".

Committees were appointed for a card party to be held in October. Eloise Keegan was appointed chairman and Jackie Davis was appointed co-chairman. A raffle was also discussed as a money making project. Linda Herron was appointed chairman for the project, with Mary Damm appointed co-chairman. New Brownie troop chairman is Jane Lautner. The troop is sponsored by the auxiliary.

Edith Little was appointed publicity chairman for the auxiliary. Discussion was held on ways to bring to the community more information concerning the eye bank.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 8.

AARP holds Thursday meeting

Thirty-eight members of the Cass City American Association of Retired Persons attended a meeting held at the Cultural Center Thursday, Sept. 13.

Melvin M. Thompson, State Director of District Five, and Mrs. Thompson, presented a film entitled "The Times They Are A Changin'" featuring Henry Ford. The film explains how the association and its founder, Dr. Ethel Percy Andrus, have influenced changes in the quality of life for older citizens.

A monologue program was presented by Thelma Pratt. Mrs. Corinne Creguer was elected secretary pro-tem.

Cecil Brown, Mary Brown, Marie Roch, Ella Croft, Laura Bigelow, Ralph Sousa, Gertrude Falkenhagen and Catherine MacGillvary attended a legislative workshop Tuesday, Sept. 18, in Grayling.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 11, at the Cultural Center at 12:30 p.m.

I didn't know how to tell Billy about the accident. How can you say to your son that his mother is injured and there seems no hope?
I held him close, but could find no words of comfort. Suddenly I heard Billy start to pray softly. I had always left prayers and that sort of thing up to Mary. I somehow felt it couldn't really help, but I felt myself kneeling with Billy.
Softly he prayed as his mother had taught him. To my surprise I heard no begging plea but rather earnest conversation like that with a trusted and loved friend. "Thy will be done," not hopelessly, but serenely acknowledging the goodness of God's will.
Miraculously, we brought Mary home yesterday, and I plan to spend the rest of my life praising God, not only for her recovery, but also for the faith I have learned from our son.
You can bet that when Mary and Billy go to church next Sunday, I'll be right there with them—singing, praising and believing.

Big cars still popular with Cass City drivers

By Jim Ketchum

While economy minded motorists across the nation are reflecting their sentiments by buying more small cars, these trends have not yet been felt to great extent in Cass City. Car buyers still seem to prefer the full-sized offerings by the big three, although inroads are beginning to be made by the compact and sub-compact models.

On a national level, strong consumer demand for small cars has pushed General Motors into a $300 million program to shift production to smaller models. Small cars now account for more than 42 per cent of all U.S. sales, according to auto sales records.

Foreign imports account for about 15 per cent of all sales so far this year.

At GM, two assembly plants will be shifted to small-car production, while production of the sub-compact Vega will be increased by 20 per cent.

According to Amie Ouvry of Ouvry Chevrolet-Oldsmobile, most of his customers are asking more questions about fuel economy, but seem to accept the inevitability that never models will not be as economical to drive.

"People like a good ride in a car," Ouvry said last week, "and the smaller cars just don't ride as well as the large ones do. At that point, they are willing to sacrifice economy for a comfortable ride."

Ouvry said, on the whole, economy has not influenced purchases to a great extent. For example, he explained, during the summer, he sold only two cars with six-cylinder engines. The rest were either the four-cylinder Vega or eight-cylinder engines.

"I look for the Vega to come on stronger," Ouvry said. "They're a popular car with people who like to make short trips and want economy. But our major market is still with large cars."

Ouvry said he has not had much feedback on how the cars he has sold are performing, mileage-wise, leading him to believe that fuel economy is not a major concern as yet with area motorists.

He said that occasionally, a customer in the service department will ask to have the exhaust emission equipment on his vehicle altered or disconnected in order to improve mileage. This is a violation of state and federal law and such requests have never been honored.

"I did have one guy come in once with the system disconnected and I told him it was a violation of the law," Ouvry said. "He told me he didn't care—that no one was going to stop and look under the hood of his car, so what could you do?"

Ouvry said the standard 350 cubic-inch engine in the full-sized Chevrolet is supposed to deliver 15 miles per gallon, when tuned properly. The four-cylinder Vega is designed to give between 20-25 miles per gallon. He believes the lack of complaints from customers must mean that they are satisfied.

He said he looks for price increases on smaller cars, because of their increasing popularity. This is so because currently, carmakers get a larger profit margin on larger cars.

Ford Motor Company is also shifting part of its production in the direction of smaller cars. Two plants will be shifted to compact and sub-compact car production.

Ford buyers in the Cass City area seem to focus either on the small, four-cylinder engine or on the large V-8. According to Ron Geiger of Auten Motor Sales, his dealership sold as many of the compact and intermediate cars as it did full-size models. Small car sales, he said, are definitely up.

"People seem to want either the four or eight-cylinder engines and tend to ignore the six," Geiger said. "Last year I sold over twice as many Torinos as I did Mavericks and Pintos. This year those numbers are the same."

Geiger pointed out that the full-size Ford is still his best seller, but smaller cars are taking an increasing share of the market.

He said he does not look for changes in fuel economy in the 1974 models due to be released soon. He added that prices will go up on a greater percentage for the smaller car than on the large autos.

Smaller used cars are now in demand by buyers who are looking for vehicles built before new anti-pollution devices were required by law and which have robbed engines of gas mileage.

Lee Rabideau of Rabideau Motors, confirmed that he, too, is selling more smaller cars, while still selling as many large cars as before. He estimated that about 30 per cent of his total sales come from compact cars built by Chrysler Corp., most of these in the Plymouth Duster line.

Demand is up, he added, for six cylinder engines in the compacts, while intermediate and large cars are selling with V-8 engines exclusively.

While gas mileage is discussed, Rabideau said it is not really a determining factor in the sale.

"People realize that they just aren't going to get the kind of mileage they used to get and seem to accept the fact," Rabideau said.

He added that continued strong sales of full-size cars is due in large measure to safety. A large car, he said, affords more of a chance for survival in an accident.

"People value their lives a hell of a lot more than a couple of dollars for gas," he said. "With a compact car, you've got one chance. In a big car, you've got a second chance because you've got some metal around you to protect you."

Rabideau said used compact cars are in great demand, bringing prices about equal with a similar, used full-sized car. Demand is so great for these used, small vehicles, he added, that they are virtually impossible to find on a lot anywhere.

Rabideau said most of his small car sales involve young persons, while older buyers like the comfort and drivability of the larger auto.

"These older people just can't get into some of these compacts," he said. "They will buy the full-size car without regard to fuel economy because they don't drive all that much."

ELKLAND TOWNSHIP FIREMEN battle a grass fire Thursday evening west of Novesta cemetery. Fire officials could not determine the exact cause of the blaze which was confined to fence rows and destroyed a home made trailer, valued at $20. The alarm was turned in at 7:00 p.m.

USA snaps win string, 6-0

'New season' starts for Hawks in league game with Lakers—Pakonen

The first time that the Cass City Red Hawks had possession of the football in the 1973 season...

For a glittering moment things looked bright for the new edition of the Hawks but the glitter faded a moment later...

because of a clipping penalty. Hawk fans didn't know it, but that first play was to be typical of the entire game...

it was a game of mistakes, Coach Roland Pakonen said. Mistakes by both teams. Only the Patriots cashed in on one of ours and we didn't take advantage of any of theirs.

intercepted on the five-yard line. The Patriots gained yardage through the center of the Hawk line most of the night but were never able to sustain a drive.

Pakonen was extremely critical of the offensive blocking. He said that there would probably be some changes made before the team takes the field against the Lakers Friday but said Monday that just what they would be wouldn't be decided until after practice this week.

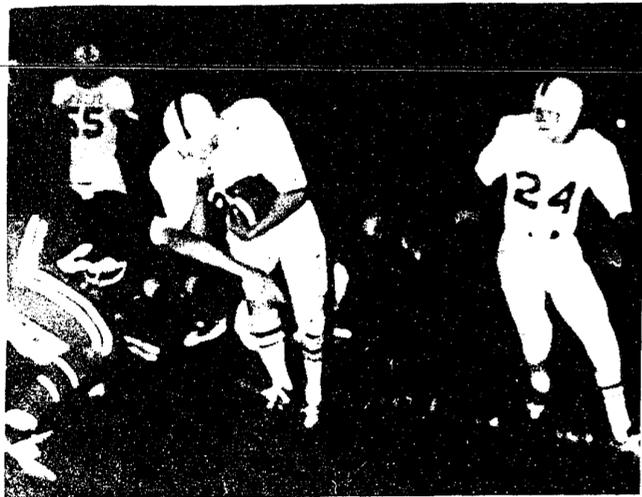

It's an all new season when the Thumb B Conference opens, says Pakonen, and we hope to be ready.

The Lakers opened with a victory over Yale and Coach Tim Anthes' charges will use plenty of passes and wide runs again this season if the opener against Yale is an indication of things to come.

For awhile Friday it looked as if Cass City would have little trouble repeating last year's victory over USA.

After the first punt return for a TD was called back, the Hawks mixed passes and runs to move smartly down the field only to have the drive halted by an interception.

Intercepted passes played a big role in shutting out the Hawks Friday. Another drive came to an abrupt halt when a Mike Frederick toss was ED STOUTENBURG picked up yardage on this play Friday in one of the few successful runs from scrimmage that Cass City was able to make against USA. Trailing the play is Dan Mellendorf.

JEFF FINKBEINER, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Finkbeiner, shot this 178-pound bear while hunting in the Upper Peninsula around L'Anse. The bear was shot around 7 p.m. as it rummaged around garbage pails in a roadside park.

Mellendorf 1st Red Hawk of week winner

DAN MELLENDORF

Dan Mellendorf was named Red Hawk of the week by the coaching staff at Cass City High School.

The junior halfback was a bright light in an otherwise dull game for the Hawks. He gained 57 yards rushing and played a strong defensive game.

Barring injury, Cass City can look for great things from Dan, listed at 170 pounds on the program roster, the next two falls.

School Night set for Sept. 20

School Night, an event sponsored by the Lake Huron Area Council of Boy Scouts of America, will be held at Cass City Intermediate, Deford Elementary, Uly Community and Kingston Elementary school Thursday, Sept. 20, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Boys and their parents are invited to come to join the Scouts, according to Bob Offenbecher, Mayville, School Night chairman for the Thumb District.

Scouting is more an educational than a recreational program, Offenbecher said, and parents find that the fun and activities of scouting all have a basis of character development, citizenship training and mental and physical fitness.

Set dedication at Teen Ranch

Dedication ceremonies for a new housing complex will highlight the fourth annual Open House for Michigan Teen Ranch Sept. 22.

Located on Mayville Road a mile north and two and one-half west of Marlette, the newly established operation is an extension of the present operations south of Kingston.

Called the Clothier-Johnson Ranch, the project was inaugurated last spring and comprises 150 acres.

Dedication ceremonies at the new site will feature Earle L. and Bessie (Clothier) Johnson. It is through their major efforts that the new program is possible. It is after them the ranch is named.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are retired and live at home in Fremont. Johnson has been active in scouting, Rotary, and is an active member of the First Congregational church. He originated and headed the sales force at Gerber Products until his retirement a few years ago as vice-president of Marketing and Sales.

Mrs. Johnson, the former Bessie Clothier, was born and raised in the community surrounding Teen Ranch; Koylton township, in Tuscola county. Her father, the late George Clothier, at one time owned the 150 acres.

The Open House schedule is from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. and will include guided tours with transportation between both sites. At 3:00 p.m. the dedication of the 'Clothier-Johnson Ranch' will include the placing of the cornerstone in the new complex located at 7536 Mayville Rd. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are expected to be present along with one of their two sons, Ted and his family, to participate in the ceremonies.

At 4:00 p.m. in the auditorium of the Kingston Road Ranch, a short presentation will include a 30-minute program featuring a new 'Campus Life' music group 'Friends'. At 4:30 p.m. a complimentary chicken bar-b-que dinner will complete the annual festivities.

Around 400 persons will join the 1973 event during the afternoon. The public is encouraged to attend.

Set hunter safety course dates

Gateway Sportsman and Snowgoer's Club will hold a hunter safety course at the clubgrounds located two and one-half miles west of Unionville on M-25. Dates for the course will be Sept. 24, 25 and 26 beginning at 7:00 p.m.

All hunters between ages 12 and 16 must have a certificate when purchasing their first hunting license. Everyone is welcome to attend.
