

Veteran Red Hawk quintet team to beat in Thumb B Conference cage scramble

Basketball fans will get their first look at the 1973-74 edition of the Cass City Red Hawks Friday when Sandusky, the league's defending co-champions, come to town. It won't be the same Redskin team headed by Al DeMott and Jim Hale that the Hawks will face. Sandusky was decimated by graduation and the pre-season estimate places them in an also-ran position this year.

Meanwhile Cass City, which fought Sandusky to the wire last year before bowing in the final game for the Thumb B title, will have most of the same players back...plus a couple of new ones that show promise.

After the first game Friday, Coach Fred Hurlburt could be starting a team with veterans at every position except one of the guard spots.

That's the only pair of shoes that need filling. But filling them may be a major problem. They belonged to Paul Bliss, Cass City's Mr. Everything last year. Another player who saw plenty of action was Randy Wright.

Right now a pair of sophomores appear to have the inside track in the battle for the vacant spot.

They are Chuck Bliss and Ken Lowe, up from the freshman squad. Bliss is a ball handling guard who stands 5 feet, 10 inches. He could be paired with Jerry Toner, the junior veteran whom Coach Hurlburt would love to see the "take charge" guy on the team. Toner is quick, a good shot and played plenty of basketball for the varsity last year when called up from the JV's at mid-season.

Ken Lowe stands six feet, is quick for a tall man and a good jumper. If he cracks the starting line-up, chances are that Dave Hillaker, a two-year letterman will trot back to guard. Hillaker is an outstanding shooter and led the team in free-throw percentage last year. He is six foot, 2 inches, and if Lowe plays, too, Cass City's starting five will be well over six feet.

Because the starting center is a lead pipe cinch to be Nick Gibas, Gibas is the best rebounder on the team. He stands six foot, two inches, and in games when he is really putting out, he plays at about 6 foot, four or more.

The other forward is Scott Hartel, who has been a regular since the middle of his freshman year. Hartel is Mr. Steady for the Hawks. He is always near the top of the team stats for rebounds. He scores well and plays good defense.

While the veterans will anchor the team, Coach Hurlburt is in a stance position this year. He has depth. Possibly more depth than he has had since taking over the coaching reins.

Helping the team will be a transfer from Owen-Gage, Brad Goslin. Goslin stands 5 feet, 11 inches, and some observers feel he may be the best pure shooter on the team.

There is height and rebounding muscle on the bench, too. Craig Helwig is out for the first time. He's a husky senior standing 6 feet, two inches.

Then there are juniors up from the JV's Charlie Walsh stands 6 feet Don Karr is five feet, 11 inches, and agile. Dave Eberline is 5 feet, 10 inches, and the kind of guy that can be shoved in most anyplace when needed.

All in all it's a team that could go all the way with ease.

THE OPPOSITION

That's what rival coaches are saying around the Thumb B Conference this year.

But the league looks stronger this year than it has for the last few years.

Look for Caro and Frankennuth to be in the thick of things. The defending co-champion Lakers, too, must be rated on a par with the other contenders.

It is almost certain that the winning team will not cruise through the season without at least one conference defeat and the odds are that the eventual champion will have more than one blemish on its record during the long season.

Frankennuth has a potent team with strong rebounding furnished by six feet, five-inch Phil Korkin. The last half of last season the Eagles came on strong. If they keep coming the same way, they could walk away with it all.

At Caro the season could hinge around Jay Owens. The tallest player in the league this season, the word from the county seat is that he's improved, improved.

If that's the case, look out for with Owens is Mark DeNoyelles, an all-league performer last season and possibly the premier player in the league this season. With John Gorleski in the back court feeding them the ball, the Tigers have the personnel to easily cop the crown.

The remainder of the teams will need to come up with unexpected strength to figure in the race although any of them can and will win when they have the good night and the leaders don't.

But Bad Axe, Marlette, Vassar and Sandusky just appear talent shy to make a sustained drive for the top spot.

Vassar, 39-20

Cass City's Girls Basketball team ended its regular season Nov. 20, on a losing note at Vassar, losing for the second time to Vassar, 39-20. Cass City had lost a heartbreaker earlier in the season to the same team at Cass City, 55-49, in triple overtime.

High scorer for Cass City was Melody Bacon who made seven points. Nancy Koepfen scored five points and Elaine Stutenberg scored four more points in the losing effort.

Cass City drew a bye in the first round of the district tournaments, and was to have faced Ubly Wednesday at 7:00 p.m. at Ubly. The winner of the game will play for the district tournament championship Thursday.

Instead, it left the matter in the hands of the Chamber of Commerce, which annually supervises the erection of lights and pays the bill for lighting them.

Dorothy Stahlbaum, Chamber president, addressed council asking for advice on the question regarding hours of operation and what lights should be used. She said lighting will definitely be limited, probably to about three hours per night after Dec. 15.

A formal policy is expected from the Chamber next week.

Both Chamber representatives and council apparently agreed that individually lighted Christmas trees along the sidewalks will not be lighted this year, in an effort to conserve fuel.

Village President Lambert Althaver agreed with this proposal, advising the group that Caro plans no Christmas lighting at all in 1973.

Trustee Nat Tuttle said the village should set an example for everyone by reducing its Christmas lighting, adding, however,

Washington computer snafu cuts into Cass City federal revenue sharing

Cass City's budget outlook for 1974 has begun to look less than rosy, thanks to a computer snafu in Washington which will deny the village the lion share of its federal revenue sharing monies for next year's village operations.

The foul-up was revealed by Village President Lambert Althaver during the first reading of Cass City's 1974 proposed budget Tuesday night at Village Council's regularly scheduled meeting.

Althaver told village trustees the mistake was discovered around mid-November when Cass City received only $2,000 for its quarterly payment instead of its anticipated $7,500 payment. A quick check with revenue sharing officials in Washington turned up a computer programming error which placed the village in an annual grant category of $8,000 instead of around $30,000.

Officials told Village Supt. Lou LaPonsie the mistake could be corrected, but not until the new fiscal year which begins July 1, 1974. Until that time, $2,000 per quarter is the most Cass City will receive.

It was also learned that when the mistake is corrected, cash payment will not come in one lump sum, but will be portioned out over the new entitlement period, ending June 30, 1975.

Althaver said he contacted Rep. James Harvey who said he would check further into the matter and report back. To date, nothing has been heard from Harvey's office.

"With this in mind, we decided to take the pessimistic view with respect to 1974," Althaver said, "and planned our budget accordingly.

Althaver indicated there will be a carryover of some $57,876 from the 1973 budget, but that this was not figured into the 1974 figures. This is normal procedure, Althaver added.

1974 BUDGET OUTLINE

First budget figures show total revenue of $230,000 against anticipated expenditures of $259,144, almost $29,000 out of balance. Althaver said this was planned purposely in order to allow room for alterations.

"There is nothing sacred in this budget," he said. "And I don't expect any final decisions to be reached tonight."

Of the $230,000 in revenue, $170,000 will come from a combination of property taxes, collection fee and federally shared revenues. This latter category budgeted with the thought that the bulk of this money will not begin coming until late in the year.

Real property taxes are estimated at $95,000, almost $8,000 from the actual 1973 total, but under the 1973 budgeted figure $97,000.

State tax income was set at $44,400, up about $3,000 from actual 1973 revenue. Althaver cautioned that this figure could be lower economic conditions worsen.

The general fund $259,144, includes $49,700 for police department salaries and fringe benefits, about $6,000 from 1973.

Also included in the budget is the purchase of another police car which would cost about $4,000 more, would replace the 1971 vehicle which is expected to have about 70,000 miles on it by the end of the year.

Another extra expenditure planned is the installation of 1,265 feet of fence to border Ale Street north Church at a cost of $4,040.

SPECIFIC FUNDS

In the major street fund the largest expenditure expected to be $33,000 which represents Cass City's share of a storm sewer which will be installed when M-81 is proved and widened either end of the village ne year.

This figure is based on the village taking 60 per cent of the cost of the sewer which is calculated on how much storm water runs through village property versus the way runs off state right-of-way property.

This leaves a balance, less than $7,000 in the fund most of which will go toward

Deputies probe tape deck theft

Tuscola county sheriff's deputies continued to investigate the theft of a tape deck stolen from the auto of a Deford man Tuesday, Nov. 20.

Manuel Sapien, 5818 Bruce St., told officers the tape player was stolen from his auto as it was parked on Treasure Road just off M-24. He explained he works in Pontiac and drives with several other persons.

He said he parked his car with a group of other vehicles in the car pool shortly before 2:30 p.m. Monday. When he returned to the car around 4:30 a.m. the next day, he discovered the theft.

Officers said the thief entered the vehicle by pulling out a front passenger side window and reaching in with a wire or similar tool to unlatch the door.

Once inside, the thief tried to unbolt the tape player with a socket wrench, but failed. Officers then suspect the thief tore the player out, damaging the dash in the process.

Police said three partial fingerprints were found at the scene, along with the

Parking ban to begin Dec. 1

Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson reminded village motorists this week that beginning Dec. 1, all on-street parking is banned between 2:00 a.m. and 5:00 a.m. to facilitate snow removal.

Wilson said parked cars on streets between these hours hamper snow removal and can create hazards for workmen and equipment.

Motorists not abiding by this ordinance will be subject to citation. The regulation remains in effect through March 31.

Deford man injured

A Deford man suffered face and head cuts and possible injuries to his arm and chest around 12:50 p.m. Saturday when his car went out of control on M-53 near Sebawing Road.

Harry H. Sherman, 44, told Huron county deputies he was traveling south on M-53 when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel. The car skidded 300 feet before striking a tree, according to officers.

Sherman refused treatment at the scene and was transferred by patrol car to his home. Later, he sought treatment at Caro Community Hospital.

Tuesday, Nov. 20, Michael Ziemba, 18, of Mushroom Road, Decker, reportedly backed into a parked car which in turn struck another parked car at the intersection of East Gifford Road and Crawford Road.

According to the accident report, no one was injured in the mishap which occurred at 10:30 a.m. and no ticket was issued.

CAR-DEER COLLISIONS

Thanksgiving Day, a rural Deford man escaped serious injury when he struck and killed a deer while traveling south on Cemetery Road north of Elmwood Road.

Henry Sherman, 21, of 3898 Lamton Rd., told officers he was traveling about 50 miles per hour when he suddenly came upon a deer standing in the middle of the road. He said he could not stop in time to avoid a collision.

The mishap occurred at 9:05 p.m.

Tuesday, a Snover man struck a herd of deer as he traveled east on M-81 just west of Sheridan Road.

Ralph Russell, 45, told investigating officers a herd of six deer ran in front of his car before he could stop. He said he struck four of the animals, killing one.

He escaped serious injury in the accident which occurred at 4:15 a.m.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

It was Thursday evening that he saw it. A big red glow in the sky, visible for several moments while he was deer nunting in Deford.

What Jim Groombridge wants to know is did anyone else see it, too? Jim says it's the first UFO he's ever seen and he'd like to talk to someone else who may have seen it also.

Price control causes shortages. . . or at least that's the conclusion I reach when I read these price comparisons in effect at the end of September. Copper on the London exchange was 87 cents a pound; in United States, 60 cents. Other comparisons: lead, 20.6 cents in Europe, 16.5 cents here; zinc, 48.6 cents in Europe and 20.5 cents in United States.

Erla Food Center had a chance to share in the loot of the State lottery and didn't know it until it was all over. Under state rules the store where a big winner in the lottery purchases a ticket gets a bonus for selling it. Erla's had a man in the million dollar lottery recently when Ronald Marchelewicz of Caro had a winning ticket.

Marchelewicz was "just" a $1000 winner in the big drawing and for producing a $1000 winner Erla's get nothing. . . except this free plug in the paper.

Progress department: That addition you see going up at IGA Foodliner will add 4,000 square feet to the present store, Bossman Harry Lenda tells us. That's about two-thirds more space than the store has at the present time.

That's one of two changes in the business community upcoming. Another is the purchase of the former shoe store building on Main by Dorothy and Jack Stahlbaum where the Clothes Closet will expand as soon as alterations are complete.

It was all planned for Christmas, says Mrs. Stahlbaum, but the shortage situation makes it unlikely now.

We are creatures of habit. The first couple of days I used the phone and had to dial seven digits about half the time I'd fowl it up. Dialing 872 and then the last four numbers makes it different somehow. I dial Walbro Corporation frequently and the number is 872-2131. I'd dial 872-131 or 872-22131 instead of doing it right.

It would bug me less if I knew it happened to you, too. . . not just to me.

Two special Yule features of the Chronicle will be continued. The first is the annual listing of special holiday church services. Pastors are alerted to get the data to us as soon as possible.

The second is letters to Santa. Small fry are invited to write Old Saint Nick in care of the paper and we'll see that a special edition gets to the North Pole between now and Christmas.

In addition to the letters we'll print pictures suitable for publication. They must be wallet sized. A first this year will be Yule drawings.

Drawings will be subject to space limitations and should be in black or red for best reproduction.

Cass Cityans recall days of wartime gas rationing

Someone once said that over half the persons living in the United States are too young to remember World War II. That means over half never experienced the inconvenience of gasoline rationing.

If the energy crisis gets much worse, however, they may just get a taste of ration boards, those funny stamps and staying home more.

In those days, gasoline was even more scarce than it is today. The armed services took top priority. Then came industry, farmers and finally, the average American.

He usually got four (later three) gallons per week. And all the money in the world couldn't buy more.

Farmers were considered lucky. They got all the gasoline they could use. Elkhart Township Supervisor Edwin Karr remembers as a schoolboy, his father's farm received regular supplies of fuel with no problem at all.

"My buddies in school had trouble getting gas though," Karr recalled, "and we used to get visits from them regularly. In fact, we had friends come out to visit that we never even knew we had until they ran low on gas."

"Funny thing though," he added wryly, "after the rationing was taken away, we never saw them again."

The lowest priority ration card was an "A" card, which entitled the holder to three to four gallons of gasoline per week. Those with connections in high places were able to buy extra coupons.

Counterfeiting was widespread. The Office of Price Administration estimated that five per cent of all the gasoline sold was purchased with phony coupons.

Holders of B cards (persons in essential occupations) and C cards (doctors and others who required cars in their jobs) got all the gasoline they wanted.

Historian Allan Nevins wrote that within two weeks, practically everyone in the nation had perjured himself in order to get preferred rationing status.

Fred McEachern of Calka Real Estate, was a salesman for the Ralston-Purina Co. of St. Louis, Mo., when rationing began. He said as a salesman, he rated only an A card and many times he and his fellow drummers ran out of gasoline.

"I was working and living in Indiana at the time and we did our extensive traveling by train," he recalled. "And we relied more on the telephone."

When he and other company salesmen became stranded for lack of fuel, the firm would go before the ration board and ask for a hardship ration which they got periodically.

"I was fortunate in that I had a relatively new car and so I never had to buy tires through the ration board," McEachern said. "My tires were good and I got by."

He said when rationing was announced, the initial reaction was panic.

"After that, we did a lot of walking," McEachern laughed.

Sometimes prevarication paid off. Workers often listed places of employment in Saginaw or Flint even though they worked nearby. It paid off for them in extra gasoline.

Black marketeering of gasoline was widespread throughout the nation.

Harry Little of Little's Funeral Home was a trade embalmer and lived in Royal Oak at the time. He said he had no problems getting gasoline because he was placed in the same category as a doctor.

"I didn't have any problems getting gas," he recalled, "but I remember a few guys who did. They got to be real friendly with me and I'd help them out from time to time."

He said occasionally, he could buy gasoline without a coupon. When this happened, he would then give an equal amount of unused gas stamps to someone else who needed them.

Once in a great while, Little recalled, he would slip away for a short fishing trip in northern Michigan. In those small towns, he said, buying gas was a snap.

"They never cared what kind of a coupon you had," he said. "All they were interested in was selling gas. Apparently they didn't have any trouble getting it and they didn't care who they sold to."

Gasoline was not the only thing being rationed. In fact, practically everything was rationed. Large families could swap food coupons for gas stamps, by cutting down on such items as meat.

The spectre of coupons, stamps and ration boards may be upon us again. It is estimated that anywhere from a 15 to 20 per cent energy gap will exist this winter.

If rationing comes, fewer persons will travel and many industries, including tourism will suffer. Others, such as the jigsaw puzzle business, game companies and playing-card producing, concerns will no doubt thrive.

3-day manhunt ends successfully

A three-day search which at its height involved over 100 persons ended successfully early Sunday afternoon when a 32-year-old man was found safe in a barn on his brother's Greenleaf township property.

Searchers found Jerry Haag in the barn where they suspect he spent most of the time he was missing. He was staying at the home of Ronald Haag on Hadley Road east and south of Cass City.

State Police from the Bad Axe Post explained that the man, a mental patient on leave from Lapeer, was reported missing shortly before 6:00 p.m. Friday after having been last seen at 10:00 a.m.

Police from Bad Axe began a search that night and called in a search team and tracking dog from the Pontiac post to assist. When this proved fruitless, search operations were suspended until the following morning.

Saturday, State Police, assisted by Sanilac county sheriff's deputies, members of the Elkhart Township Fire Department and a large number of private citizens, combed a 100-acre wooded area. It had been felt he might have headed in that direction.

The fact that Haag has a heart condition drove searchers on, assisted by private pilots circling overhead in small aircraft. A helicopter aided in the search.

Sunday, the man was discovered by an unidentified searcher in the barn. State Police believe he spent most of his absence there. He was reportedly found healthy.

State Police said they believe Haag had eaten nothing during his three-day and two-night disappearance. They added that no reason was given for the man's disappearance.

He had been known to assist hunters on the property and police theorize he may have wanted to aid a hunter Friday. This could not be confirmed, however.

The incident took place five miles east and one mile south of Cass City. According to Elkhart Fire Chief Dick Root, every member of his department was involved in the search at one time or another.

Additionally, seven members of the Explorer Troop of the Boy Scouts of Cass City assisted searchers.

Three Cass City men, Alvin Burk, Pat Rabideau and Tom Herron, aided in the search from a private plane which circled the area.

resolution

The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners passed a resolution Tuesday authorizing Chairman Shurford Kirk and the County Civil Defense director to take emergency measures to deal with energy shortages.

According to the resolution, Kirk is authorized, upon recommendation of the Civil Defense Committee to declare a heating emergency, should conditions warrant. Once such a declaration is made, he may then petition the proper authorities to establish an emergency distribution of heating fuels.

Homes, hospitals, apartments and other institutions of residency would come under such an emergency allocation program.

The resolution also authorizes Civil Defense Director Frank Kroswek to establish emergency shelter areas in heated public buildings as needed to house residents who cannot heat their homes.

This emergency power expires May 1, 1974.

Notably absent in the resolution is any mention of emergency fuel allocations for schools which may become hard-pressed for fuel. Coming under the program would be such institutions as the Caro Regional Facility which has experienced difficulty getting heating fuel.

The commissioners also approved the lowering of thermostats in the courthouse to 68 degrees. The system, however, has apparently not responded, and Tuesday afternoon, the temperature in the board room stood at a sweltering 82 degrees.

According to Commissioner Maynard McConkey, such an emergency fuel program could be adapted to aid persons in procuring home heating fuel, similar to a state program currently underway.

Presently, the county has not had problems obtaining gasoline and diesel fuel for its vehicles, but indications point to shortages by the first of the year.

The board passed the emergency resolution unanimously.

Revenue sharing snafu discussed at council

maintenance and snow removal. No new major street construction is planned for 1974.

Althaver indicated that bids on the M-81 project will be taken in the first quarter of 1974 with completion of the long-awaited project by the end of next year.

Local street funding could hold the key to a balanced budget for the village.

A resurfacing, curb and gutter project planned for Leach Street between the south alley to Garfield Street costing $29,000 has been planned for 1974.

However, Althaver indicated that this may have to be postponed another year in order to keep finances on an even keel.

Also planned under local streets is sealcoating for Vulcan, West, Leach, Sixth and Seventh Streets, costing $5,000. Another $2,000 will be spent paying for pavement on Dale Street from Hospital Drive to Hill Street.

Another large project planned involves the construction of toilet facilities and a meeting room in the Orr Woods addition to the village park. This has been budgeted at $40,000, with $22,566 coming from state recreation bond monies. This must be completed by Dec. 31, 1974 in order for the village to qualify for state aid.

WASTEWATER TREATMENT

Wastewater treatment funding for next year was set at $60,236, compared with $45,485 in 1973. Most increases show up in salaries and wages and costs of equipment to operate the plant.

Also planned are two sanitary sewer projects, one on North Seeger Street in the annexed portion and on Hill Street. These combined projects total $13,000.

NEW GRADER

During the budget review, council voted to purchase a used grader for street use at a net cost of $9,000. Original cost of the grader was $11,000. The village will trade in its present grader for $2,500.

The grader being purchased is a 1965 model and is designed to handle heavier loads than the present model.

During the budget discussion, it was suggested that office facilities might be expanded next year. A proposal was made to investigate the possibility of converting the old pool bath house into a separate police department building.

Also discussed was the possibility of expanding the present municipal office building.

SALARIES

Annual proposed salary increases show a jump of about $1,000 per person with the exception of one police officer whose proposed 1974 salary was jumped $2,000. This was done, Althaver explained, to bring him in line with the salaries of other policemen on the force.

Althaver emphasized the tentativeness of these figures stressing the point that these are in no way final and he expects to see some cutting done before final passage.

Also discussed was the addition of one paid holiday, the day after Thanksgiving. Additionally, the police department is asking for $1,500 for dry cleaning of uniforms.

Althaver added that "We can't allow an across the board 10 per cent increase of all salaries in 1974."

The budget is expected to be thrashed out in detail at a special meeting.

Christmas lighting

possibility of limiting some street lighting in an effort to conserve electricity. This met with generally unfavorable response by council. Dr. Rawson suggested waiting for state guidelines before such a move is taken.

FOUR-YEAR TERMS?

The possibility of electing village trustees for a four year term was also discussed by council, in response to recently enacted legislation in Lansing setting up such machinery.

Under the new law, villages would automatically adopt the system which would stagger the election of council to three members each time for four years. Those trustees elected in 1973 would automatically be extended in office one year and be elected in even numbered years.

If it wishes, however, Cass City can exempt itself from the law through passage of an ordinance to that effect. Another alternative would allow for two year terms with all six councilmen up for election at the same time.

Althaver felt this latter plan was not conducive to continuity on council, while not committing himself on either of the other two.

This will be studied and be taken up at a future meeting.

OTHER BUSINESS

Other business involved the final purchase of the Keith Pabanz property for use as a parking lot. Now council must deal with disposing of the structure.

Trustees approved a resolution accepting bids on the house to be opened at its Jan. 29 meeting, subject to review and rejection. The house, according to the resolution, would be sold on condition that it be removed by June 30, 1974.

This date could be negotiated, however, should difficulties arise in moving it.

Discussion involved a number of proposals, including renting the house on a short term basis until it could be moved, or moving it yet this winter and of selling it to be torn down.

It was decided to cut off utilities to the house and winterize it, along with planning it up for auction.

Council also decided to defer action on opening Seed and Huron Streets onto Ale Street to allow snow removal equipment to turn around. It was felt this should wait until at least the time Ale Street is straightened and fenced from the park.

Trustees also learned that Cass City's water supply contains enough natural fluoride to meet state requirements of 8 parts per million.

Council also learned that Barbara Rockwell is resigning her duties as village bookkeeper. Trustees will begin a search for her replacement.

Plans have been drawn up for water and sewer lines to the Orr Woods area and should be ready for bidding in the near future.

Council also decided to hold its next meeting Dec. 12, due to the holiday.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

I know a girl who graduated with a 3.5 average from Michigan State and is working as a waitress at Bay Valley in Bay City.

I know a guy who earned his college degree and is driving a truck. I know another who is working in a factory.

The odds are that you know scads of grads unable to find work utilizing their special training. They are everywhere.

According to the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, one of three persons, 18-20 years old, is in college, but only one of five jobs will require education beyond high school.

It's easy to see that if most kids are going to college to upgrade themselves economically, forget it.

If it's money only, better to be a plumber, an electrician, a TV repairman, a carpet layer.

Okay. So what do we do... cut down the kids going to college? Steer them to vocational courses?

You'll find many educators who advocate this course. It would help fill a need. Trained servicemen are rare jewels beyond compare especially in small towns.

But if I knew my kids were going to spend their working life standing at an automobile assembly line, I'd want them to go to college.

Just because a student graduates with a major in literature and then takes a production job doesn't mean that the college years were wasted.

If average persons spend half of their waking hours at work, there are still a lot of leisure hours left.

Any college worth its salt can open new vistas for those hours.

That's what it's all about. Changing living modes. Challenging the status quo. It's the rare family that has a kid in college that doesn't come home and question the old folks about their life styles, their values.

If you want the kids to think the way you do, then by all means keep them away from college.

They come home with wild ideas... just the way most of us did when our generation was testing its wings.

The kids are quite sure that we don't have the answers. Most of them aren't sure that they do either.

They question, question, question. They look for new answers to old problems. Certainly they have changed values... some times changed life styles.

That's what education is all about... and that's why it's a bargain even if it never nets a cent.

Flint man pleads guilty Monday

A Flint man pleaded guilty to an amended second count of larceny in a building Monday in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

Darwin Belknap, 27, entered the plea in a pre-trial examination before Judge James P. Churchill.

Belknap entered the plea after filing a motion to amend the information and to plead guilty to the charge. The plea was accepted by the court and sentencing was set for Jan. 7. Bond was continued.

Belknap was originally charged May 1, 1972, with breaking and entering of an occupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny. Proceedings had been held up due to filing related forms in three other counties relating to similar larcenies.

Clare D. Fryers, 28, Mayville, was arraigned on a charge of assaulting a police officer in Mayville. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered in his behalf.

Pre-trial examination was set for Dec. 10.

He is charged with assaulting an officer in Mayville Sept. 14. Bond in the case was set at $1,000.

Lionel Gottwalt, Caro, petitioned the court Monday for a reduction of his 90 day jail sentence after being found guilty of stealing two wheels from an auto parked in Caro May 4.

Judge Churchill denied the request, saying his court does not have jurisdiction regarding the reduction of his sentence.

Pre-trial motions in the case of a Cass City man accused of arson will be heard Dec. 10.

James Gray had been arraigned on a charge of burning down his house July 26 in order to collect insurance on the structure. The arraignment was carried out Oct. 29.

Clinic fund drive pushes for final stock sale

Members of the Hills and Dales Medical Center Corp. have put out another plea for funding in its goal to complete the four-doctor clinic currently under construction on Hill Street.

Vice-President Mike Weaver said Monday that presently the project is within sight of its goal but called for another push to reach the top.

"If we could get everyone who has promised to buy stock in the corporation to come through for us," Weaver said, "we'd be about $10,000 away from the goal. And that's awfully close."

Weaver encouraged any one interested in purchasing stock to do so as soon as possible so that work can be completed on the new facility located across from the hospital and next to the Denahue clinic.

"This doctor situation as it stands is killing us right now," Weaver added.

Weaver said Dr. Lawrence Kram of Temple City, Calif., would be in Cass City Thursday to look over the village's medical needs and discuss relocating here.

Weaver explained that Dr. Kram is a general practitioner educated at the University of Illinois.

He is married and has no children. Dr. Kram is 31 years old.

Arrest two

area youths on

shooting charges

Two area youths, age 14 and one age 11, were arrested Sunday by State Police from the Bad Axe Post and charged with firing 22 caliber rifles and a .410 shotgun at a home rented by Donald L. Walker of 6332 Bay City-Forestville Rd.

The youths were released to the custody of their parents and their cases were turned over to Sanilac County Probate Court.

Damaged in the shooting were two doors, five windows on all four sides of the house and garage, an outside light, a refrigerator, glass items and bulbs from ricocheting bullets, the living room ceiling, a lawn mower and a radio.

The home is owned by Ralph Albers of Roseville. Walker told officers he had been away from Thursday through Sunday and when he returned, he noticed three boys with guns in a nearby field.

After questioning the youths, Walker notified State Police who subsequently made the arrest. Officers believe the shooting took place around 12:15 p.m. Sunday.

A thermometer is indispensable in the home... even though it can't cure a thing. Its first function is to prove that someone is sick so that diagnosis and therapy can begin. Then it keeps tabs on the patient's progress. Ultimately it can suggest, though not absolutely, that the crucial stages of illness or infection are over.

You hear people call ours a "sick" society. Is anyone taking its temperature? Yes, the media is doing a thorough job reporting the fever of the times.

A more crucial question: Is anyone striving to heal society? The Church is! It has always been quick to diagnose men's spiritual ills and ready to make available the remedies God has prescribed.

Obviously, however, society isn't one person but many. Its cure will progress as we get the patients and the doctor together.

Snowmobilers may feel energy squeeze

By Jim Ketchum

What could have been a "terrific year" for snowmobiling may now be something less than good, in the wake of the nation's energy crisis, according to John Walker, conservation agent for the Department of Natural Resources.

Walker said the sport is facing the possibility of a downturn in popularity if gasoline should become rationed.

"If someone only has so many gallons of gas, they're going to use it in their car before they will a snowmobile," Walker said.

Walker said the same restrictions will be in effect this year as last year with regard to snowmobile operation in state game areas. Snowmobiles may be operated only on specifically posted trails. Some trails in the Deford State Game Area used by snowmobilers last year will be blocked off this year due to Put-and-lake pheasant hunting.

Offenders caught violating these restrictions will be ticketed by conservation officials. The maximum penalty for a misdemeanor is $100 and/or 90 days in jail.

Walker said the DNR has done away with all scramble areas. In addition, he said plans are currently being discussed concerning the leasing of farms in Sanilac county. Also, plans regarding the operation of a countywide snowmobile area is being talked about, with no concrete plans yet developed.

This year, the certification of children aged 12-16 will be required for operating a snow machine off their parent's private property without adult supervision.

A minimum of five hours of instruction based on standardized information supplied by the DNR is required, plus successful completion of a standardized test.

The Cass City 4-H Club will again sponsor snowmobile training classes and will begin instruction as soon as some snow appears. Interested persons should contact the Lynwood LaPeers regarding this free service.

Mrs. LaPeers said currently it is a toss-up with respect to the number of snowmobilers this year. Last year, some 70 persons took the instructional classes. She added more might sign up after snow comes.

Parents or machine owners will be held responsible and can be ticketed for a misdemeanor if their child is caught riding without a certificate, according to DNR officials.

CASS CITY REGULATIONS

Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson reminded snowmobile operators in the village this week of hours of operation and areas permitted under Cass City's snowmobile ordinance.

According to the ordinance, snowmobiles will be allowed to operate between 8:00 a.m. and 10:00 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and from 8:00 a.m. to 11:00 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Top speed allowed within the village is 15 miles per hour.

Snowmobiles are banned on Main Street between Ale and Brooker Streets and on Seeger between Garfield and Huron. Additionally, snowmobiles are banned from the village park and from all municipally-owned property.

Riders must be at least 16 years old or possess a certificate in order to ride their machines in the village, according to Wilson. He added that snowmobiles must possess one headlight and one tail light, along with brakes and a muffler.

Violation of any of these regulations is a misdemeanor and can result in a $100 maximum fine and/or 90 days maximum in jail.

Wilson added that the only time these regulations will not be enforced is in the case of a snow emergency, which he must declare.

He said last year cooperation of snowmobilers in Cass City was good, adding that most complaints received by his office involved either excessive noise or trespassing.

Insulation Pays in Savings, Aids Conservation of Energy

A mounting national concern over the shortage of energy may affect homeowners. Electric power shortages, limited natural gas supplies, restricted oil supplies, high worldwide demand for low-sulphur coal, the lag in atomic power plant development and energy conservation are all factors.

Conservation of energy is one area where a homeowner and do-it-yourselfer can help himself to a great extent. He can reduce fuel consumption, make his home more comfortable and reduce fuel bills all at the same time.

There are several sure-fire ways to conserve heat and cut home heating bills.

Storm doors and windows are very helpful but should be checked and made airtight each season. Seal with removable strips of caulking. Home insulation may be inadequate. Some indications of this are excessive fuel bills, prolonged furnace operating times, cold walls and dr. areas, snow melting on the roof when other roofs remain snow covered.

A small investment in insulation pays off all year by also keeping a home cooler in summer.

Tests indicate that optimum performance can be achieved when attic insulation is six inches thick. Insulation in sidewalls should be at least three inches thick.

If the home is built on an unheated crawl space, three inches of insulation is also recommended under the floor.

Uninsulated walls or partitions between storerooms or an unheated garage often are overlooked. Three inches of insulation in these areas also is recommended.

Some homes may fall below optimum insulation levels. But additional insulation in blanket form can be easily added in the attic area.

Additional insulation in sidewalls, however, is a job for an insulation contractor because the new material must be machine blown between the walls.

INCREASED ATTIC INSULATION CAN conserve heat and cut fuel bills. Blankets of insulation six inches thick provide optimum performance, and can be installed by the homeowner.

Traxler calls for national oil policy in Cass City stop

America should develop a national oil policy which would help ease the present energy crisis and help prevent future fuel crunches. That's the opinion of State Rep. J. Bob Traxler, D-Bay City, who was in Cass City Wednesday, Nov. 21, on a campaign swing through the Thumb in quest of Rep. James Harvey's Congressional seat.

Harvey has been nominated for a federal judgeship and is expected to resign from office around the first of the year.

Traxler spoke to two union meetings in the village and was scheduled to press his attack against the Nixon administration in the Eighth Congressional District in the coming weeks.

In an interview prior to his union appearances, the Bay City Democrat outlined a three-point energy policy which he would press as congressman, attacked administration energy and fiscal policies and viewed his chances of election in the traditionally Republican district as "excellent."

Traxler specifically said the nation should place greater emphasis on developing existing energy sources and expand research in developing new sources of fuel.

"I don't say we should spend billions on research that won't do any good," Traxler said. "I do think we should use money wisely and spend it in intelligent ways of producing more energy."

A second Traxler proposal would expand the refining potential of existing oil refineries.

Thirdly, Traxler advocated the construction of a pipeline across Canada to carry Alaskan oil rather than shipping it to the west coast and rail to the Midwest. He said presently railroads would make excess profits carrying the shipped oil.

Traxler said he believes much of the present shortage is a ploy by the oil companies to raise prices. He called it a "carefully contrived crisis," designed to maximize profits.

Traxler said he thinks the Harvey nomination to be a federal judge is being held up for political purposes. He said Harvey's most likely heir-apparent, James Sparling, will probably be his opponent in a general election to be held probably in March.

Traxler added that the delay is designed to allow Republicans to maneuver for the race. He said he has no fear that the nomination will not go through.

On economic issues, Traxler charged the administration removed Phase Two controls as a payoff to big business after Nixon's thundering re-election last year. He said while he opposes controls, Phase Two had been working and should have been eliminated gradually.

A solution to the problem, he added, is increased production with selective controls.

On the issue of the presidency, Traxler said the greatest pressure for Nixon's resignation is yet to come, adding that to resign would help restore confidence in government.

Republicans are worried," Traxler said, "and these off-year elections are a good indicator of voter sentiment. This will really send them a message," he added, borrowing a phrase from Alabama Governor George Wallace's presidential campaign.

"I'm not running against Jim Sparling or any other candidate," he said. "I'm running against the Nixon administration. I don't care who my opponent is."

Traxler will not seek re-election to the legislature where he has served since 1962. In that time, he has served on the Crime Commission, the Uniform Law Commission and the Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

He said his chances of election in the district are excellent and did not agree that it is Republican territory by default.

On the subject of crime, Traxler said he opposes the use of the death penalty.

"It's the job of the state to preserve life, not take it," Traxler said. "The death penalty does not act as a deterrent to crime. If people think elimination of capital punishment is codifying criminals, they should spend some time in the Bay County Jail. God, that's awful."

He said he supports prison reform, but said the establishment of regional detention institutions is the responsibility of local government.

Traxler said so far his campaign has met with favorable reaction in the district and that he has raised about $8,000 to date

Deer hunters end top season Friday

Firearm deer hunters will wind up a record season Friday, taking more deer in Tuscola county than ever before, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

DNR Regional Director Carlton R. (Bud) Jarvis said Tuesday that to date, 105 deer had been checked at the Caro office, compared with only 55 for the same number of days last year. Jarvis said as a rule, each hunter was more successful than his counterpart in 1972.

"For one thing, we had very little standing corn this year to act as cover for the deer," Jarvis explained, "where as last year very little corn had been harvested."

He said the mild weather did not provide tracking snow, but seemed to allow for a higher kill.

Jarvis indicated most deer brought to the Caro checking station were in excellent condition—just as expected, according to the DNR director. He said two or three doe were checked at Caro, but added that, as yet, no definite figures on the doe kill are available.

"We set a goal of 85 doe for this year and I would imagine we'll meet it," Jarvis said. "This compares with 40 doe we set as our goal last year."

Jarvis added that there were fewer violations of doe hunting this year than in the past. He also said there were fewer no-doe signs posted on private land this year.

Regarding other illegal hunting activity, Jarvis said there were more violations this year, but did not have figures to support this claim. He added possibly the rising cost of meat may have brought this about.

This statement tended to conflict with a statement from Conservation Officer John Walker of Caro who said 45 arrests were made this year which he said was a drop from 1972. Walker said fewer hunters were in the field during the 1973 deer season, in spite of the fact that more deer were taken.

Walker said to date, one arrest for taking a doe illegally had been made. He said six officers are assigned to the district.

Most of the violations involved night hunting and road hunting. Loaded guns in automobiles were also a major violation.

Walker indicated last year at this time, between 60 and 80 arrests had been made. He said heaviest hunting in the county came in the Deford State Game Area. He added private land hunting was also down in 1973.

Jarvis reminded hunters that bow and arrow season for deer opens Saturday and runs for the entire month of December.

He added another indication of a successful deer season was the fact that most licensing establishments were sold out of deer licenses by the first Saturday in the season.

Jarvis also said that put-and-take pheasant season re-opens in the Deford Game Area Saturday at 8:00 a.m. He said some confusion has arisen over the starting time, due to three changes from Lansing.

Pheasant hunting in the area had been closed for the duration of firearm deer season

"If It Fitz . . ."

3 cheers for elation

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Having written a particularly potent paragraph, I picked up my typewriter and joyfully smashed it into the floor.

Then I threw both arms toward the ceiling and jumped up and down on my desk.

You would have thought I'd scored a touchdown.

Why not? You've seen the football heroes. When Joe Widend scores a TD, he winds up and throws the ball into the ground as hard as he can. This is called spiking the ball. Sometimes, a well-spiked ball bounces out of the stadium. This has prompted team owners to insist that taxpayers build them new stadiums with domes, so as to eliminate the loss of balls.

I can't go along with this. It has been proven that nets are an effective way to save footballs. Many teams have hung nets behind their goal posts. (You probably thought there was something wrong with your TV picture, Dummy.) The nets catch field goals and extra point kicks, thus preventing the balls from going into the stands where greedy fans pocket them. Once I saw a real greedy fan pocket 2 footballs during one game. He had to walk home because he couldn't get through the bus door.

So why not drape a huge net over the entire stadium, thus preventing spiked balls from bouncing into the street? The nets could also serve to protect the fans from any beer or Chevrolet signs that might fall from circling airplanes.

Taxpayers could buy a team owner a lot of spare hamstrings and unpulled groin muscles with the money saved by buying a net instead of a dome.

Or here is an even more economical idea: Let the air out of the footballs so they won't bounce so darn far.

But excuse me. I haven't been following my game plan. I didn't kick off this column with the intention of saving footballs. My purpose was to point out the value of demonstrated elation — such as in spiking a football — and to suggest that the idea might be useful in fields other than gridirons.

When a man finishes a job well done, he should be allowed the liberty of showing his satisfaction, even to the point of making an ass of himself. A sigh of exhaustion may be enough for some men, but it is really a putrid thing compared to screaming and jumping out of your underwear.

I can see it now. . . . The doctor leaps onto the operating table and spikes his forceps into a neat incision, thus etching the sign of the Blue Cross on an abdomen.

The lawyer completes a successful pole-vault through a transom and celebrates by joyfully filling the air with 6 million $100 bills donated to the Committee to Re-elect the President by the Mexican Association of Laundromat Operators.

The newspaper columnist, having married a source close to the White House, makes the occasion noteworthy by going over Niagara Falls in a barrel full of unimpeachable sources, veteran observers and close friends of Julie Nixon Eisenhower.

Right here is where I spike my typewriter. Write your own extra point.

Save energy in the kitchen

Allene Mills - Extension Agent

These days there is much talk about energy. Have you considered how you can save energy while preparing foods for the family? The stove accounts for about 5 per cent to 7 per cent of your utility bill.

While preparing foods on the range surface, use utensils with flat bottoms. This means that the flat surface of the pan will have overall contact with the heating element. Make sure that the utensil fits the unit.

Small pans on small heating units and large pans on large units.

Prepare fruits and vegetables by the steam method. Less moist vegetables such as green beans need from 1 to 1 1/2 cup of water, while more moist vegetables such as tomatoes need 1 table-spoon to no water. Turn the switch to highest position until steaming point is reached. Turn to lowest heat and cover with tight fitting lid to finish cooking. This will not only save energy but also save vitamins.

Now take a look at how to save energy while cooking foods in the oven. Put food in the oven, the moment it is preheated. No need to preheat for broiling or roasting. When the oven is in use, plan more than one cooking purpose. Prepare the whole meal, and dessert or breads for later use. Most vegetables will cook nicely in the oven.

Do not peek into the oven. This will lose heat and might cause a cooking failure.

The utensils in the oven should not touch each other, oven sides or door. Also, when using more than one shelf, stagger the utensils. This will allow the heat to circulate and cook.

If the oven has a self-cleaning feature use this sparingly. While cleaning, the oven temperature is raised to about 900 degrees F for 2 to 3 hours. This cycle consumes about 3 to 4.5 KWH of electricity or 0.4 Therms of gas.

Make sure the stove units and oven are turned off the moment you are finished.

Never use the oven to heat the kitchen. A space heater will use less electricity and do a better job of heating.

Critics clamor for reduction in auto usage

Critics who view automobiles as a major cause of national ills ranging from urban sprawl to segregation are clamoring for drastic reforms which could bring today's widespread car usage to a halt, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

An article titled "Will They Kill the Car?" in the November Motor News magazine points out that automobiles and the mobility they provide have become "the fifth American freedom."

That freedom, Motor News warns, is now being threatened by a tangle of well-intentioned efforts to save gasoline and the environment by encouraging other means of transportation.

"It is time the auto's admirers came to its rescue and its critics to their senses," Motor News Editor Len Barnes comments.

Four of five Americans over 18 have drivers' licenses, Barnes points out, and five of six households have autos.

With 25,000 American communities entirely dependent upon cars and roads, it is dangerous fan-asy to speak of drastically restricting motor vehicle use unless and until other equally good ways of getting around are provided, he adds.

Because there are 97 million cars in the United States, and because the car population continues to rise each year, problems have been created, Motor News states. Unsightly heaps of rusting car bodies are in plain view in cities and are blighting the countryside, with no attempt made to hide them from view.

Even more tangible problems are traffic jams and air pollution, high repair costs in minor accidents, difficulty in getting cars repaired and the current threatened shortage of gasoline.

All these factors have brought to prominence groups which have zeroed in on curbing the auto and its use, Barnes points out.

Promotion of the airbag is cited as an example of misguided enthusiasm. Barnes states that Ralph Nader and other critics of the auto, claiming that the value of airbags as a life saver has been proved, demand that they be installed on all U.S. cars right now.

But General Motors, announcing that it would put airbags costing $200 each on 50,000 of its top-of-the-line models in 1974, stated that purchasers also will get safety belts unless they specify that they don't want them.

Auto Club states that GM fears lawsuits if people are injured or killed in accidents which are not head-on and in which airbags will not protect. It is pointed out that almost half the traffic accidents today are other than head-on.

The cost-effectiveness of airbags as compared with safety belts is unrealistic, according to many automobile and safety experts and the results of several studies, says Motor News.

The entire concept of "the nation's dependence upon the auto" is under attack by U.S. Senator Edmund Muskie, who authored the Clean Air Bill of 1970. Muskie hopes to reduce that "dependence" by massive spending for public transportation, including free mass transit, Motor News states.

Muskie would finance his mass transit by taking the required money from the Highway Trust Fund, which was set up to build the nation's Interstate Highway system. That fund is totally financed by gasoline and other motoring taxes, Motor News states.

The article points out that ultimate cost to motorists of the Clean Air Act of 1970 may never be known, but the search for technology to meet it on a crash basis will come out of the motorist's pocketbook.

Critics of the car may be completely sincere in their attempts to make automobiles safer, Motor News comments, but they have cost the motorist a bundle of money, running into billions of dollars, which has produced no benefit to the motorist.

"The car-killers work in two ways," the article states. "They get laws passed which are not cost-beneficial and they increase auto taxes, while diverting those taxes to non-highway uses."

Changes and improvements which are necessary must be made on a reasonable, workable basis. Motor News points out in countering the critics. Barnes quotes Ford Motor Company President Lee A. Iacocca: "Inflation, labor and material costs and safety and emission standards introduced over the past five years have added more than $1,100 to the cost of each 1974 passenger car on the showroom floor."

"It will be a sad day for the consumer as well as for us when he (the consumer) admires the new cars in dealers' showrooms that are pollution-free, damage proof, quiet and safe as a baby's crib—but can't afford to buy one," Iacocca adds.

It's obvious, Motor News says, that U.S. motor growth must slow down a little to be certain it doesn't plunge headlong into circumstances infinitely more harmful than those now endured with less-than-pure air and traffic congestion.

Barnes concludes by stating that changes must come about by dealing creatively with the challenge. He adds that the conflicting demands as to what should be done to clean up the air and improve mobility within the limits of the human, natural and financial resources available make this "a decade of decision for users of the automobile."

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

Claims to fame

By Jim Ketchum

Secretly, I think, we all like to boast of our own claim to fame. At family gatherings, cocktail parties or bull sessions, the conversation will eventually turn to a time when one of those present did something worthy of a line or two of newspaper type or else knew someone who did something famous.

I admit it, I, too, am a claim-to-fame. I relish chances to meet the great, the near great and the not-so-great. While remaining relatively cool and collected on the outside, I am usually thinking how I have arrived, now that I'm in the presence of a celebrity.

So sue me; I like it. I get a kick out of meeting the famous, with the exception, possibly of politicians. I know what they're after and that does not impress me.

I'm talking about actors, media personalities and other harmless folks. I'm a sucker for a celebrity. It doesn't start out that way.

Uby's Charles

Zinger awarded

Air Medal

Marine First Lt. Charles E. Zinger son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Zinger of 2091 Main St. Uby, was awarded the Air Medal during ceremonies held in Jacksonville, N.C.

He was cited for his distinguished service during sustained aerial combat operations.

Lt. Zinger graduated from Uby High School in 1965 and graduated in 1969 from the University of Dallas, Texas with a bachelor of science degree in pre-law.

but before long my resistance erodes in the uniqueness of it all.

Although I haven't been around that long I have a few of those claims to fame. For instance I watched George Romney eat an apple and read the Detroit Free Press during a session of the Constitutional Convention in 1962.

I once sat on the floor of the Michigan House of Representatives and watched various members talk, smoke, sleep and argue. Democracy in action -- you can't beat it for thrills.

I once ran into Michigan State University President Clifton R. Wharton in the shower room of the Men's Intramural Building. He was taking a shower at the time and so was I. Few persons can make that statement.

And, only recently, President Nixon landed at the very same Florida airport where I landed last year and will land again this year. No doubt he walked down the very same corridor and perhaps used the same drinking fountain and gum-ball machine I used.

These, however, don't begin to match my father's claims to fame. He once gave General Douglas MacArthur a cigar during the general's 1951 tour of the nation. The general had stopped in Webberville and as he sat in the open car, my father, who stood no more than two or three steps from him, walked over and gave him a stogie.

The general thanked him and went on his way.

Or how about the time, as a boy, when my father and a group of his friends knocked W.C. Field's stovepipe hat off with a snowball barrage? Pretty neat, eh?

But the best claim to fame he had was the time he talked with President Roosevelt on the telephone. This was in 1941, just after Pearl Harbor. My father's local draft board had gotten his records fouled up and were asking him to report for induction and stay on the farm at the same time.

The board's director placed a hurry up call to Washington and told my father to pick up the extension phone in the office. Soon, a booming voice at the other end asked to speak with Dad.

He told him to stay on the farm for the duration and said no one was to take him from it. After he hung up Dad asked who he had been talking with.

"Didn't you recognize the president?" he answered. How's that for a claim to fame.

Services held Friday for Jack LaPeer, 43

Mr. Jack LaPeer, 43, died at Hills and Dales General Hospital Tuesday, Nov. 20. He had been ill the past month.

Mr. LaPeer was born in Detroit, June 22, 1930, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey LaPeer. He came to Cass City with his parents at the age of six.

He married Mrs. Mary Yens, April 15, 1957. Following their marriage, they made their home in Cass City where he lived until his death.

Mr. LaPeer attended the Harvest Baptist Church of Akron.

He was a veteran of the Korean War, serving in the U.S. Army, a member of the Aircraft Owners Pilot's Association and the Huron Aviation Club of Bad Axe. He was a tool and die maker at Walbro Corp. in Cass City. He is survived by his wife, Mary, four daughters, Mrs. Valerie Barrett of Lake Orion, Pamela of Kingston, Jackie Lynn and Kelly Ann, at home, one stepson, Carl Yens of Jackson, two stepdaughters, Mrs. Peter (Joan) Franks of Lake Orion and Miss Peggy Yens of Kingston, his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey LaPeer of Cass City, and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted from Little's Funeral Home Friday with Rev. Albert Shanlian, pastor of the Harvest Baptist Church of Akron, officiating.

Interment will be in Elkland cemetery.

TEN YEARS AGO

Shock, disbelief, agony and frustration of an entire nation were mirrored in the faces and actions of Cass City and area residents Friday and Saturday following the tragic, wasteful assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Michigan Mirror

Singer's Civil Service resignation anti-climactic

Sidney Singer's resignation as state personnel director comes with what seems to be a bit of understatement.

Not long ago, Singer issued a memorandum on Department of Civil Service letterhead, complete with state seal, of course—to all Civil Service Department employees.

In that memo, he said "an honest assessment (of the situation) leads me to the conclusion that I do not enjoy the confidence of the full (Civil Service) Commission and that my continued stay would be detrimental to an effectively functioning commission and department."

There was little bally-hoo from the commission or the department workers in past weeks, until just before his resignation, but more developed later. This is understandable under the circumstances.

A sizeable group of state employees working under the Civil Service system, spoke loud and clear, and sometimes with relief and or pleasure.

The 19,000-member Michigan State Employees Association and the Michigan State Police Troopers Association called for Singer's resignation in no uncertain terms.

And the Troopers Association, in its letter to Dr. James Miller, Commission chairman, cited a "demoralization of Civil Service staff and the state's 50,000 classified state employees."

COPY, COPY, COPY

Mountains of press releases pour off the machines in state government offices each month.

Rep. So-and-So wants to tell the world about his latest proposal to save the state $50,000 by spending $1 million.

Sen. Such-and-Such hopes to spread the word that he's appalled by the latest egg prices in Honduras.

Director WWW of the XYZ Department figures his stock will rise if he lets it be known that HE testified at a committee hearing. (Some might suggest that that's one of his duties anyway.)

Whatever the word, those who are saying it want it known.

And it's been estimated that by year's end, the state government photocopyers will have come out with more than 43 MILLION copies!

All that with a paper shortage.

Gov. Milliken's office seeks these days to do something about the situation. Special messages, which usually run six to 12 pages or so, have been printed on both sides of the paper.

Rep. Alma G. Stallworth, a Detroit Democrat, also is using the hind side of the page with her releases.

Laudatory action, it seems, despite the protestations of some that it's difficult to work with "hand-outs" that can't be spread out for quick and easy perusal.

Then, there are folks like the freshman state representative who trudges out three-page releases at the drop of a pencil.

Does it really take seven pages to tell the world how delighted one is with the "depth and breath" (sic) of the governor's special message on consumer protection?

Especially when he also is "very pleased at my own personal role in this vital area?"

THE EASY WAY

Michigan motorists don't have to stand in line again this year to get their license plate tabs for 1974.

Many car and motorcycle owners received their 1974 license tab applications in the mail and can simply correct any erroneous information on the form, make out a personal check and send the stuff back to the Secretary of State office.

Others, who've purchased new vehicles recently, or don't get an application in the mail, will have to brave the lines at the office to get their tabs.

Secretary of State Austin inaugurated the plate (or tab) by mail system two years ago. So far, more than 750,000 Michigan drivers have taken advantage of this method of collecting their plates.

REGISTER BY MAIL?

While the mails are under discussion, consider this idea.

One state representative is suggesting legislation to permit voter registration by mail.

This would, according to sponsor Lucille McCollough, a Dearborn Democrat, "vastly expand our voter registration lists and give more people than ever before a voice in government."

Ag. training classes set at MSU

Special Agriculture Training "Agriculture Production Technical Course" is available this winter term (Jan. 2 - March 15) at Michigan State University. This would be an excellent opportunity for cash crop farmers to meet the specialized needs of today's agriculture.

Agriculture is rapidly changing and requires aggressive young farmers who have specialized training in modern scientific farming. To be successful the young farmer must apply the most recent developments dealing with farm finance, production, harvesting, and marketing of agricultural products. He also must be aware of the continuing changes in rural living which have a great influence on agriculture.

While the demands for success are great, the opportunities for success also are great.

The program in Agriculture Production consists of 11 weeks. A student may concentrate on cash crops, animal husbandry, dairy, fruit, agriculture engineering, etc. For further information contact the Tuscola Cooperative Extension Office, Caro. Telephone 673-3161.

Huron farmers to elect ASC committeemen

Dan Franzel, Chairman of Huron County ASC Committee, reminds farm owners and operators to cast their votes by mail to elect community committeemen and return ballots to the ASCS office by Dec. 3.

If an eligible voter did not receive a ballot by mail, he may obtain one at the ASCS office. The county committee will tabulate ballots at a meeting Dec. 5, beginning at 10:00 a.m. in the ASCS office. Elected committeemen and delegates to the county convention will be notified by mail after Dec. 5.

The county ASC convention will be Dec. 13, at 10:00 a.m. in the TVO Hall, Uby. Delegates will elect members of the county committee and alternates whose terms expire in 1973. Meetings are open to the public.

BETTER HEALTH

Drug usage not new

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ and DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

Very few people seem to remember, and many do not even know, that until 1915 when the Harrison Act made narcotics illegal, opium, the crude drug from which morphine and heroin are derived, was as readily available to Americans as aspirin tablets are today.

Indeed, at the turn of the century, a popular brand of aspirin was combined with heroin and so advertised in daily newspapers. Many cough mixtures sold over the counter were proudly labeled as containing heroin.

Other patented nostrums often contained morphine or heroin, although in some cases that fact was not disclosed.

Dr. Hamilton Wright, who in 1911 bore the imposing title of United States Opium Commissioner, was not in that year happy to announce that the 90 million people then making up the population of the U.S. had consumed over half a million pounds of opium.

The per capita consumption of such drugs, just a little more than 60 years ago, was greater in the U.S. than in half a dozen countries in Europe and more even than in China, the reputed home of the opium pipe.

In the face of these statistics, it was not difficult for zealous moralists to drum up laws prohibiting the sale and use of narcotics, just as a few years later equally zealous moralists promoted the ill-starred Eighteenth Amendment, which made alcohol legally forbidden fruit.

We are all very much aware that the so-called Prohibition Amendment not only fostered the massive black marketeering of booze, but the massive contempt of all law as well, which grew from the simple beginning called "boot-legging" into the bloody enterprise of organized crime.

The Harrison Narcotic Act has never acquired the aura of jocular stupidity which surrounded the Eighteenth Amendment, and ultimately wiped it off the books, but its part in creating a narcotic black market has been no less pernicious.

Organized crime has flourished joyfully and profitably ever since.

The moral fervor and gut anxiety of those who are horrified by the taking of drugs have been more than a match for the few professional voices that plead for more study and research into the mechanisms of drug-addiction.

Many concerned doctors would welcome the establishment of heroin maintenance clinics in which the miserable addicts could be taken out of the grip of the pushers who peddle their wares in the street at astronomical profit.

At the same time, in such clinics the doctors could study the process of addiction at first hand. These doctors plead for some versions of the British system, in which the distribution of hard drugs to addicts is managed by government doctors and not by the parasites of the underworld.

Opponents of such proposals insist that heroin maintenance clinics would only make addiction "less costly and more attractive and socially acceptable". Researchers agree that their proposals would make addiction less costly, but they roundly counter the argument of its being more attractive and socially acceptable by demanding rhetorically, "Has penicillin made gonorrhea attractive and acceptable?"

The answer is obviously an emphatic "no," and until drug addiction becomes the object of serious study, with the implicit hope of finding effective treatments, prohibitive laws are going to continue to light up drug abuse with the stardust of the forbidden delight, and unscrupulous criminals are going to continue to profit from our stupidity.

Cut school week

Schools are one of the numerous victims of the nation's energy shortage, and heating these buildings has become a challenge for boards of education across the state.

Presently, Cass City Intermediate has no firm source of fuel yet arranged. Some have speculated that the school might have to close during the winter months and remain in session during the summer.

One person who doesn't want to see schools closed during winter months is Mrs. Howard Wills of Greenland Road.

"I just don't want to see it happen," she said. "What I'd rather see is a four-day school week. In that way, the kids' education would not be interrupted."

She recalled half-day sessions and how, in her estimation, this failed to do a good job of educating students. She said her two children, a seventh grader and a third grader, would be better off under this type of plan.

Mrs. Wills is a Cass City native. Her husband is a foreman at a Marlette firm.

AROUND THE FARM Synthia saves dollars for farmers

By Don Kebler

Synthia paid off for one of our cash crop operators last week. In fact this talking computer earned $1200 for this operator because of a less than $600 phone call. After comparing his earnings to what the phone call cost, this operator commented he would spend $100 any day to earn almost $300.00 tax free.

This 300 to one earnings were not really earnings in one sense of the word. They were income tax savings and Synthia the talking computer figured it out for him.

We started Synthia computing this operator's income tax on the basis of his current cash receipts, expenses and depreciations. We plugged in his estimated itemized deductions, his dependents and investment credit. We made several adjustments to see how buying or not buying machinery, fertilizer, seed, herbicides, parts etc., selling or not selling crops and income tax averaging would affect the taxes due.

The right combination was found after four adjusted analyses were made and 17 minutes of telephone use.

After determining the tax route he would follow he told me he would be able to tell the tax accountant he hires what he did. By doing this he would save the accountant time in figuring the best report for maximum tax advantages. Therefore the accountant could charge him less.

You too can let Synthia work for you in planning the best income tax advantages you can make before the end of the year. A visit, phone call or letter to your extension office is all that is necessary to let us have Synthia save you money in any one of many computer programs.

One of the more frequently asked questions is "what can I afford to pay to rent land?" This is really a hot question and we're endeavoring to come up with some good standards to use as guidelines. The real difficulty is that cost and return figures are varying so rapidly one can only estimate possible probabilities. For instance a two-dollar change in the navy bean price could mean a $21.00 difference in what one could pay per acre in rent.

We can come up with guidelines for giving an estimate of cash and non-cash fixed and variable costs to produce an acre of corn, beans, beets, etc. However, if you cannot supply certain cost information as pertaining to your actual farm business, these guidelines cannot be right.

An error the wrong way can lose one many dollars. We hope to point out these guidelines during the bean day, Saturday, Dec. 1, at Akron-Fairgrove High School. Plan to attend from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and be the guests of the county elevators for lunch.
