Magic of Voorheis circus comes to Cass City Tuesday night

For the rest of the year, Cass City High School's gym is just that... a gym. But Tuesday night, thanks to the magic of Col. Bill Voorheis and his performers, it became a two-ring circus, complete with animal acts, high wire performers, and a daring young maid on the flying trapeze.

Voorheis Bros. circus captured the imagination and wonderment of every boy and girl who viewed each act from the chimps to the Great Ryonus who inched his way up an inclined wire to the roof of the gym... rather, circus and then carefully made his way down.

It was a taste of the big time in Cass City. Many of the performers have worked all over the country and delighted millions of kids and parents who, for one night, became kids again.

The magic of the big top captivated the children especially, who squealed with delight at the antics of the Lange Chimps or noed and ahed when the Great Ryonus faltered momentarily on his ascent to the heavens on the inclined wire.

They loved it all, from the cotton candy and popcorn down to the man who made ladders and poles appear out of torn newspaper.

Voorheis Bros. Circus specializes in small towns, mostly in one-night stands. Wednesday night, his troupe was scheduled for three performances in Owosso before pushing on to another town for another one-night billing.

Admittedly, it isn't exactly like the old days. The tents are gone and the steam calliope has been replaced by an electronic organ which may momentarily quit when someone accidentally pulls the plug.

Wilma Rench of Colon, magic capital of the world in southern Michigan, grinds out about 50 different tunes each night, some repeated a dozen or more times. She needs no sheet music... she knows each melody by heart.

Schools forced to seek extra operating millage next year

Supt. Donald Crouse reported to the Cass City School Board Monday night in its regular session at the high school that the school will be forced to ask for extra operating millage to run the facility next year.

He said that under the current State Aid formula the district would receive about the same amount next year as it did this year.

School costs, like other costs, are going up. Besides the natural increases due to inflation there has been an increase in the curriculum with a corresponding increase in the cost of instruction.

This year there are more teachers working in the Cass City School system than ever before in history. Two new teachers were added to the staff as a part of an over-all plan.

Then about a week before school started the school board bowed to a pressure group and hired an additional teacher.

Cost for three new teachers in the system approaches the amount received by the district from one mill in taxes.

Presently the school raises 16½ mills ($16.50 per $1,000 of valuation) for school operation. Of this amount, 7½ mills is a special operating tax authorized last year for three years in a special election.

At that time it was hoped that asking for the money for three years could eliminate the every year election that has been the practice in recent years.

The announcement by the superintendent was the only item on an abbreviated agenda that caused a stir among board members.

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS

Daylight savings time occupied a good share of the agenda time. Supt. Crouse reported that he had five complaints about the early hour starting time but suggested that changing has problems, too.

His plan for a survey before school next year brought board approval although Trustee Lynn Albee said that he would like to get an opinion now while the children are walking to school in the dark.

If someone should get killed it would be too late, he said.

OTHER BUSINESS

High School Principal Russell Richards reported that a high school curriculum survey among the teachers revealed that more emphasis on courses for non-college students was top priority for the majority. The teachers' second choice was remedial reading.

A reading support service (remedial reading) will probably be started next year. The State will pay an undetermined amount depending on available funds towards this program. Tops in any case would be 75 per cent, but Supt. Crouse said the figure might well be between $4,000 and $5,000 of the total salary.

The teacher would teach students in need of special instruction and also aid teachers and aides in proper procedures for teaching students with special reading problems.

Richards also presented a policy for students who receive part of their education with correspondence courses and want a Cass City diploma.

The policy adopted stipulates that the student must meet school graduation requirements and attend the school for at least one semester. Credits must be approved in advance by the school.

A contract with Alan Luce, professional negotiator, was approved for another year. Luce will receive the same amount as last year: $350 per month, payable in advance.

A discussion of boundary lines for students attending Evergreen, Deford or Cass City schools brought no concrete decisions and will be reviewed at the next meeting.

Mrs. Linda Gray was granted a leave of absence beginning April 15 and Mrs. Barbara Tuckey was signed to a second semester contract in Evergreen.

Fewer calls reported by Cass City Police in 1973

Cass City Police answered 103 fewer calls in 1973 while patrolling over 6,000 more miles than in 1972 and paying out over 400 hours in overtime to officers, according to a report prepared for village council by Police Chief Gene Wilson.

In the report released Friday, Wilson said during 1973, the department answered 3,573 calls for service and enforcement action, compared with 3,676 calls for 1972—a 2.8 per cent drop.

The largest single area of decline came in enforcement and crime calls. Enforcement was down five per cent with the largest drop coming in traffic tickets and parking violations.

Cass City Police issued 202 traffic tickets in 1973, compared with 243 in 1972, and issued 53 parking tickets compared with 92 in 1972. Parking meter tickets issued were up six, from 1,193 to 1,199 in 1973.

Under crime calls, 109 larcenies were reported, down 30 from the previous year, and burglary calls dropped to seven from 19 in 1972. Burglaries have been on the decline the past three years. In 1971, 24 were reported.

Vandalism complaints also dropped 14 per cent to 83 in 1973. This also continues a three-year decline from a high of 123 in 1971.

One area, bad checks, showed a sharp rise from nine in 1972 to 23 last year.

Under minor complaints, 65 traffic accidents were reported, down 48 from 1972. Traffic complaints also showed a drop from 170 in 1972 to 118 last year.

In the report, Wilson noted this is the first time in a number of years that the number of crimes reported has dropped. He cited Tuscola County Sheriff's Department records showing an increase in crime of 10 per cent and a state crime report showing an eight per cent increase with the largest increases in rural areas.

Wilson also reported $11,358.83 in property was stolen from the village in 1973.

Police patrols traveled 82,269 miles in 1973 compared with 76,125 in 1972 and paid 445 overtime hours to officers.

TIME STUDY

Wilson also reported on a six-month survey of police activity in the village to determine the busiest times for police and to aid in scheduling of officers.

The study determined that the heaviest workload for officers comes between noon and 5:00 p.m. The largest number of calls are received by the department Fridays and the least Sundays.

Wilson also said, as a result of the study, the village officer's starting time was changed from 9:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

IGA installs unique heating system

Sparked by the energy crisis, Harry Lenda, owner of the Cass City IGA Foodliner, is installing an unusual heating system in the 4,000 square foot addition to the supermarket.

In a nutshell, the system will use heat from the cooling compressors in the building to heat the addition.

The new system, says Jim Wolpert of Wolpert Refrigeration in Saginaw, should pay for itself in five or six years or sooner, depending on fuel costs.

Lenda reports that originally the building was to have been heated with a conventional system. However, the energy crisis caused him to switch to the heating conservation system. Estimated cost of the new type of heat system is about $5,000. According to Wolpert, the system will provide all the heat necessary for a normal winter day.

However, when the temperature sinks to the levels experienced last week end a stand-by unit kicks in. It will be fueled by propane gas.

The fuel saving unit has a fan and duct work to carry the condensers' heat to all corners of the 40x92-foot addition. In the summer the fan reverses and pushes the hot air outside.

Under the current system all of the heat generated by the condensers is wasted.

Mrs. Walker reviews 30 years as Argyle postmaster

By Jim Ketchum

"I got it, I did it and I was done." That's how Mrs. Theodora F. Walker summed up her 30-year career as postmaster in Argyle. Things don't change too much over the years in the operation of a fourth-class post office, but still, they've been interesting years for her.

Mrs. Walker retired Dec. 29 from her job, turning it over to Mrs. Virginia Greenlee, a former Cass Cityan who has lived in Argyle nearly 30 years herself. She can still be found at the post office, however, answering a question or giving a pointer to the new postmaster.

Mrs. Walker was born a half-mile south of Argyle and attended Cass City High School. "In those days, we didn't have school buses, so I had to room in Cass City during the week," she recalled as she sat in that portion of the post office building which used to house the general store she and her husband, Allen, ran for many years along with the post office. The Walkers went to Detroit and worked there a number of years before returning to Argyle about 1938. Five years later, they applied for the post office.

"We took the application for it out in my name," she recalled, "because we thought my husband was going to be drafted for World War II. Then, after we got it, they changed their age requirements, so he didn't have to go."

The post office was kept in her name, she added with a smile. The Walkers ran both businesses until about seven years ago, when they disposed of the grocery. Her husband has since retired from a carpenter business.

Why did they take the post office in the first place? "Well, we took it because it meant extra income and also because nobody else wanted it," she said. She recalled how the postmaster's position changed hands depending on which political party happened to be in control of the township or county.

She compiled a list of postmasters at Argyle which demonstrates these changes. Family names repeat themselves throughout the list, most notable of these being McLaughlin. As the 11th postmaster, Mrs. Walker succeeded the last of that family to hold the job—Archie J. McLaughlin, who served for 23 years.

The Argyle post office was established Feb. 18, 1876. Mrs. Walker's research shows that when the office was established, the people in Argyle received their mail once a week from a route running from Peck to Tyre.

Mrs. Walker recalled a story involving the early post office in Argyle and the Great Fire of 1881.

The postal carrier from Sandusky encountered flames about eight miles south of Argyle too hot to allow him to continue. He dismounted the buggy he was driving and sought refuge from the heat in a nearby field.

"The story has it that the man died but the horse and the mail got through," Mrs. Walker said.

Before its establishment, the nearest post offices were Tyre to the north and Peck to the south. Cumber also had a post office at that time. In those days, Argyle township population stood at 100.

Today the fourth-class post office services Argyle village residents with their mail—no deliveries or rural routes operate from it. These are handled by Shover and Uby. A star route brought mail from Sandusky to Argyle for distribution, but this ended over 15 years ago.

CHANGES

While some businesses have come and gone from the little community on M-19, life remains pretty much at the same pace it has been for most of Mrs. Walker's tenure, she said.

"We're handling about the same type of work we did when I started," she said. "We have more customers now. We rent 79 boxes and with the general deliveries, it comes to nearly 100."

This is about double the number they serviced in 1943.

She and Mrs. Greenlee both agreed that growth had taken place in Argyle, citing new houses, mobile homes and a large hardware store. Three groceries and a new-car dealership which existed in 1943 are now gone, however.

But the two churches, two gasoline stations, a barber shop and one of the few remaining blacksmith shops in the state still do business.

At the center of life in town was and is still, the post office. Patrons congregate and visit while waiting for mail to be sorted.

Sometimes it looks like a town meeting in this place in the mornings," Mrs. Walker laughed.

What are her future plans? Mrs. Walker hasn't decided on anything definite yet. She said she and her husband might like to travel to California eventually.

Right now, she can still be found at the post office from time to time, answering a question or filling in when Mrs. Greenlee has to be away.

"Only difference is now if I make a mistake, she (Mrs. Greenlee) is responsible," she laughed.

But chances are she won't make any mistakes—not after 30 years in the job.

MRS. THEO WALKER (left), retired Argyle postmaster, gives a pointer to her successor, Mrs. Virginia Greenlee. Mrs. Walker retired in December after 30 years on the job.

MRS. WALKER points to the plaque on the original postal window and boxes used when the Argyle Post Office was established in 1876.

Friend tells why Helen Stevens bequeathed Cass City a new pool

Editor: Cass City Chronicle

Sir:

Your very nice column concerning Helen Stevens to hand. Having been very close to her as a friend for some years and much closer to her the last months of her life I must say that it touched me very much.

Outside of her "brittle temperament" she was indeed the perfect lady in every sense of the word. As to her brittle temperament; it wasn't so brittle when one got to know her. One must remember that for many years she was captain of her own ship. As such she must have found out that a sharp tongue often got the feet off the desk when nothing else would. She must have used it so much to get things moving that it became a part of her. Aside from that she was a lover of the community, a grand person to know and a lover of children and the underdog.

Helen and I had a lot of fun over the last months of her life. My blue Maverick was much in evidence in her driveway. We traveled over much of Illinois and Iowa together last fall and together to California in June. Having naval connections, I was able to take her all over San Francisco and to Treasure Island, even alongside of the giant aircraft carrier Enterprise. She had connections in Los Angeles where we also had fun. At that time she was able to outwalk me. We went to Disneyland, Knot Berry Farm (where she insisted on doing all of the rides) and the Queen Mary where we enjoyed cocktails in both lounges and had lunch in the magnificent deep sea museum. Coming back from California she rapidly went down hill and finally left us.

Of Helen I must say that she was the most cheerful and fearless person I have ever met. She always had a smile and a grin. Even though she knew the end was in sight she never complained. When I would visit her in the hospital she always greeted me with a smile and a joke. Her greatest pleasure was to have me place her into a wheel chair and ride her to porches where she could visit with other sick ones. Her cheerful and positive attitude must have been a great lift to them. None of us realized how sick she herself was.

So much for that. What I really am writing to you for is in regards to her bequest, which is for a community swimming pool. I would like to think that I am partly responsible for that. It happened this way: It seems that when the community was discussing the pool and it came to a vote she was mildly interested. She thought that it would be nice for the children which were always close to her heart and intended to vote for it. During the course of the discussion her and I often spoke of it and I was able to tell her of my own experience.

It seems that I spent some months in Cologne, Germany. I lived on the Kalk Cola side of the Rhine River, which as you know is as Windsor to Detroit only that it is all in Germany and the Rhine River is much narrower than the Detroit River. In fact at that time there were two bridges over it: the main railroad and street car and road bridge and the Kaiser Wilhelm suspension bridge.

Kalk Cola had a beautiful and spacious community swimming pool and bath house where I enjoyed many happy hours. The whole community used it and it was a kind of a recreational center. My view is that every community should have such a center where the adults could be charged a nominal amount for services and maintenance and the children could have it for free at certain hours.

From our discussions her viewpoint seemed to change. She must have realized that a high school pool would be a high school deal. That they would become very possessive and though the adults would be saddled with its cost they would be unwelcome or even denied its use. At least those are my views and the ones I discussed with Helen.

As for myself, I always insisted that I wanted no part of her financial affairs. She did plead with me one day to help her, but I told her that it was all hers and that she should dispose of it as she thought fit.

As to her bequest, I am probably in the best position to tell what she had in mind. She told me that her heart was set on an enclosed pool that would be used by the whole community. She probably had in mind my story of the Kalk Cola pool. She did not tell me that she was leaving the bulk of her estate for that purpose. She probably realized that I would have advised her against it in that I expressed the thought that it should be a community enterprise. She did tell my daughter that when she went Cass City would have its pool so that it was no surprise to me when I heard of her final disposition.

My personal thoughts are that Cass City is in an enviable position as a community. It should be able to show all communities how a great thing can be accomplished with a little help.

As for Helen, May she rest in peace. I doubt if she will though. I am certain that her sharp tongue is working away trying to get somebodies feet off the desk and getting things moving. She was a great lady.

Yours sincerely,
John L. Boycott

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

It doesn't look anything like a star, Dave Ackerman informed me after reading that Kohoutek looked like just another star to me. A star doesn't have that long tail, according to Dave. When my view was verified by others who saw Kohoutek like I did, it was decided that perhaps clouds obscured the tail.

It was there on at least three nights when I saw it, said the veteran Cass City teacher.

"You probably knew this all the time. The other day I attempted to call information for a local number not yet listed in the book. No luck. Later I cornered Jim Courtney of General Telephone. A big part of his job is placating guys like me. He tactfully informed me that when local numbers are wanted the best bet is to dial O for operator and forget the traditional 555-1212.

That's because there is often a delay (and sometimes a snafu) when new numbers are sent for listing with the regular information service.

The latest in a welcome barrage of old papers came our way this week from Larry and Sandy Cooper of Ritter Road. It was a 1930 issue of the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Small world department: A story told of an arrest of Chicago's infamous Al Capone. Cooper explained that a former neighbor's relative was a close relative of "scarface".

The ads, as always, were full of nostalgia. Gas ranges for $39.75. Fur coats for $75 and sailor pants for 88 cents. And the unkindest cut of all. . . new Chevys for $385.

Everyone knows now how the community will benefit from money left by the late Helen Stevens. Not so well known is that the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Cass City, also received a grant. The exact amount is not known but it is an absolute minimum of $20,000.

Dick Erla is prejudiced, no doubt about it. He claims that the $2.50 button that lets you into the time trials and the snowmobile races in Caro are the biggest bargain going.

That's because the button is good for everything. Without a button you pay $2.50 everytime you are at the track. With the button $2.50 does it all.

Erla has the Cass City Rotary selling the buttons for a dual purpose. First Rotary makes a half buck for every button sold by members and second the organization that sells the most will have its queen candidate elected.

Rotary has nominated Miss Sandy Eisinger for the honor. Why do I say Dick's prejudiced? It's because I heard the same story about the Gavel Club circus and Mrs. Edith Little had me just about convinced that the Zonta Bingo was the best deal ever.

And I'm sure that you have a favorite project that ranks over any or all of these.

Owen-Gage board to study proposals

The Owendale-Gagetown Board of Education Monday night authorized Supt. Glenn Sanford to study what kind of a revised building proposal might be placed before district voters as well as exploring "joint ventures" with neighboring districts.

The action came after some 15 district members appeared before the board to discuss the recent building defeat and possible alternatives. Sanford described the meeting as largely an input meeting.

Under his authorization, Sanford will study building proposals and submit a revised plan to the board. He will also begin discussions with the superintendents of neighboring school districts to explore the possibilities of working together in some way.

"One of the things I have to do is to try to find what kind of a minimal building program exists and also whether or not the voters would accept it," Sanford said. "Also I am to talk with other superintendents about joint ventures. Just what form these will take, I don't know. It could involve taking some of our students. It could involve splitting the district."

Sanford said he felt the last building proposal calling for a $2.66 million building was a minimal program. "Obviously, the voters didn't."

Sanford said he hopes to have his report before the board by next month's regularly scheduled meeting.

In other board business, bills of $4,800 were reviewed and paid.

The board also discussed the effects of the energy crisis and determined that the district should be able to meet its needs for heating oil and gasoline.

Women campaign to keep family name on licenses

They wanted middle names for the holidays. They didn't get them—but there is a glimmer of hope.

The Committees to Encourage Richard H. Austin to Give Michigan Women Their Middle Names took their plea to Lansing, asking the Secretary of State to allow them their maiden names on drivers' licenses.

For some time, it's been Michigan Department of State policy to allow only given names on the licenses. That means if you were born Jane Ann Jones, got a license with that name on it, then married and became Jane Ann Jones Smith, you couldn't be Jane Jones Smith on your license. You'd have to be Jane Ann Smith. (You could sign the license with your choice of names, but officially, you'd still be Jane Ann Smith in the Department records.)

You could be Jane Ann Jones still—not using your married name at all. But you just couldn't use maiden and married name unless you went to court for an official name change.

The policy, initiated long before Austin took office, bothered some women not at all. But it irritated others constantly, and they finally decided to try doing something about it. One woman is threatening legal action. Others petitioned Austin to change the policy.

The Secretary of State, who says he's received about 50 letters concerning the middle name controversy in recent weeks, is looking into the problems that would be encountered by such a policy change.

"When there are these many interested, it is a concern we have to address ourselves to," Austin says. "So we're trying to see if we can accommodate the ladies without a major system change"—without spending too much money.

"We save a lot of money because we do not need a cross check file now," Austin says. "Since we do not allow options, we do not have to maintain an alias file."

Among possible options, Austin says, would be a complete change in the coding system, so the records would involve just first and last names. That way, the licensee could be known by Jane Ann Smith or Jane Jones Smith—and the Department would know her as Jane Smith.

Austin declines to predict when the required cost data will be pulled together. But he emphasizes that it's not just another "study" that's going on. "We're really working on this question."

TO PUFF OR NOT TO PUFF

"Non-smokers have rights too."

That's the theme this week (through Jan. 17), dubbed National Education week on Smoking by the National Inter-agency Council on Smoking and Health.

In conjunction with the observance, the Michigan Health Council and the Wayne County Council on Smoking and Health are stepping up their urging that smokers stop and non-smokers not start lighting up this year.

In addition, the Michigan State Medical Society recently distributed special editions of the publication "Smoking and its Relationship to Health and Disease" to schools throughout the state.

Michigan has yet to follow the lead of some states setting up stringent regulations against smoking in certain areas.

But there is at least one smoking-related bill pending in the Michigan Legislature. Sponsored by Democratic Sens. John McCauley of Grosse Ile and Jack Faxon, Detroit, the bill would authorize the State Public Health Department to designate areas in hospitals in which smoking or carrying lighted tobacco would be prohibited.

Michigan's Air Pollution Control Commission already has acted against the pollution of smoke at its meetings. It's banned smoking at its own sessions.

"It didn't seem reasonable to me that we are so concerned about the external environment and then we sit in a smoke-filled

Editor's Corner

You can read just about anything you want to about the state of the economy in 1974.

If one expert doesn't please you read on, there will be another with a prediction you want to hear.

An article by one expert, John Kenneth Galbraith, predicts a "Nixonian" recession with high unemployment and continued inflation.

On the other hand, administration economists predict higher unemployment but a "leveling" of inflation.

Even the most optimistic are not predicting a banner year.

This wide diversion appears more political than economic. Galbraith, you'll recall, was the economic advisor to Presidents Johnson and Kennedy.

Okay, so what we have is essentially a guessing game. One guess is as good as another.

It doesn't take a genius to figure out that unemployment in the city is on the upswing. . . that pay checks are going down because of a reduction in overtime or part-week work schedules.

All this will be reflected in the national figures and will be reflected in attitudes in this area. Gloom feeds on gloom, pessimism feeds on pessimism.

It shouldn't. Because, strangely enough, the upper Thumb scored some of its best years in off years for the national economy.

A recession in the Thumb and especially in Cass City comes when local plants aren't working. When farm prices are low and crops are poor.

It's hard to see how the community can be too hard hit, judging by these guidelines. Employment here is good and farm prices are better than even the most optimistic could dare hope.

Consequently business has been and continues to be good. That doesn't mean that everything is wine and roses. Inflation is a spectre. Uncertainty abounds. The energy crisis is looking over our shoulder.

To add one more opinion to the maze, it's the thought here that 1974 could be a boom year on the farm, a fair year elsewhere.

It's almost certain that if a business downturn comes the results will be less severe for us than it will be for our city cousins.

No Pong for the Ping

BY JIM FITZGERALD

The Detroit USO has been forced to close because of a lack of Ping Pong players.

This sounded like good news to me, similar to closing the hospital because no one is sick. Which simply shows again how dumb I am.

One of the USO volunteers put it this way: "It's sad. I used to bake cookies for the boys, but I didn't bake any today because I was too heartsick."

The Detroit USO director said: "We started feeling it when they cut back the personnel at Selfridge air base. We're lucky to get 35 to 40 servicemen a day now."

Ah, for the good old days of World War 2. The USO volunteers were really lucky then. The soldiers and sailors came by the thousands and there were never enough cookies. A GI could spend an entire week end pass wandering around the local USO, looking in vain for a place to sit down. I remember a soldier who had to re-enlist to keep his place in the line waiting for an open Ping Pong table.

A lot of those World War 2 Ping Pong players soon went to Germany or two Jims and got killed. They would never again jitterbug with a nice USO girl who was doing her duty (which didn't include letting a guy get any farther than her busttop).

In later wars, the USO business slipped as the U.S. practiced "limited warfare." This meant it was no fair winning and all the dirty fighting was done by a few young men who didn't have anything better to do, such as go to college or get married. But there were still plenty of boys who stopped at the USO on their way to Korea or Vietnam where they put shattered flesh on Pentagon statistics.

In view of all this senseless bloodshed, I figured there should be a celebration when a USO must close because there's only 1 GI in the place and it takes two to Ping Pong.

For the first time in years, no one is shooting at American soldiers. There is no more draft. Our military posture is shrinking to the point where we can overkill the rest of the world only 3 times. With less men in the military, there is automatically a decrease in the need for the USO. Marvelous, right?

But I forgot about the USO workers. They are heartsick that there are cookies left over, and Ping Pong balls unlost. The purpose of the USO is to give servicemen a home away from home. If the boys aren't going to leave home in the first place, what patriotic purpose is there left for a USO volunteer?

It is a puzzlement not confined to the USO. In the face of a shrinking military, what happens to the people who make the guns and uniforms and Purple Heart medals?

Is war the only answer? Does this nation need trouble to keep its citizens untroubled?

No. This nation needs a USO to comfort workers laid off by the munitions industry. Let them eat those cookies and walk those hostesses to their bus-stops.

I think I just solved another great problem. Onward and Upward.

A contract of $157,208 was awarded in late November by the State Administrative Board for construction of a skeet and trap shooting facility at Pointe Mouillee State Game Area, Monroe county.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

The good old days are back

By Jim Ketchum

Radio mysteries are back and, while they may not win any Pulitzer prizes for complexity of plot, they are still good to hear.

Dubbed the CBS Radio Mystery Theatre, it's a new venture in the type of radio programming done 20 or 30 years ago. It provides a new story each night, seven nights a week and, best of all, lets the listener use his imagination to the hilt in a way the boob tube never could.

E.G. Marshall hosts the program, utilizing everything that made old-time radio mysteries great—proper mood music, sound effects such as creaky doors, telephones that ring that funny sort of ring you used to get in those old handsets with the large ear and mouthpieces, and combinations of wind, rain, traffic and crowds that make for suspense.

The programs feature star performers—Agnes Moorhead, Kim Hunter and Zero Mostel—to name just a few.

The producers of the program readily admit it to be an experiment. They have set themselves the almost impossible task of wooing as much of the tired, television-tortured multitudes as they can back to the good old days of turning the lights out and the volume up to catch each word, each noise, each door slamming or the sound of a body falling down a flight of stairs.

Chances are they realize they won't grab the majority of the listening market. What they are after is a hard core of listeners who will faithfully shut off the magic screen each night and dial their radios to the proper frequency.

A relatively strong showing should encourage more national advertisers to purchase spots in the less-expensive radio market than in television. Presently, the program is interrupted three times during the hour for a commercial.

The series began Sunday, Jan. 6, and so far, the stories have all had interesting twists to them. The best one involved a man who spiked his wife's hot cocoa with sleeping pills to do her in. Seems she was prepared to give her entire fortune to a Far-Eastern doctor of philosophy who peddled the theory of reincarnation.

After disposing of his late wife, the man is tormented by a number of animals and is finally driven to his destruction by a cat, who, after his death, devours a fat mouse.

Chances are the plots will get better as more writers submit stories and competition grows.

So far, initial reaction in the Detroit area has, apparently been good. Listeners who either missed part or all of a program will call station WJR the next morning to find out what happened.

If this is any kind of barometer, somebody must be listening.

One complaint I have so far is that sometimes the performers appear to be trying just a little too hard. Since they cannot be seen, they apparently think they must over-project to create the mood.

And, since it is something new, it will take awhile for the actors and actresses to adjust. But it's still fun. We usually listen to the stories on our old Silverstone radio which is over 35 years old. This, somehow, gives the experience an added flavor, in spite of the occasional hokiness of a scene. At $350 a script, what can you expect?

But, maybe we as a nation longing to be entertained are tired of super-sophisticated plots thrust at us nightly on the tube and at the movies. Maybe a simpler story line is just what the psyche needs.

That, along with a little exercise of the imagination, can make for some enjoyable listening.

Excuse me, I think I just heard a door creak.

Police, Sheriff report several area accidents

Several area traffic accidents were reported to Cass City Police and the Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies resulting in property damage and minor injuries to several persons.

Tuesday, Jan. 8, Valerie Jean Yax, 32, of Burman Road, Deford, struck and killed a deer while she was traveling east on Stevens Road a half-mile west of English Road.

She told Tuscola deputies the deer came from the south side of the road and she did not see it in time to avoid a collision. She sought medical treatment of her injuries from a family doctor. The accident took place at 7:20 p.m.

Friday, cars driven by Ronald Mark Haas, 19, of Marlette and Donald Ray Parsell, 19, of English Road, Kingston, collided near the intersection of Dorrance Road and Phillips Road.

Investigating Tuscola Sheriff's deputies said Haas was heading east on Dorrance Road when Parsell pulled in front of him from a driveway.

Parsell was cited for failure to yield the right of way. Neither driver was seriously injured. The mishap took place at 11:10 a.m.

Three area accidents were reported Saturday. At 3:15 a.m., a car driven by Ann Marie Bean, 21, of 6405 Sixth St., went out of control and struck a mailbox before coming to rest in a field west of Cass City.

Tuscola deputies said Ms. Bean was heading east on M-81 and drove left of the centerline, striking a mailbox belonging to John Juhasz of 4975 E. Cass City Rd.

The car then crossed over to the south side of the road, coming to rest in a field about 100 feet east of Dodge Road.

No ticket was issued and Ms. Bean was not injured. Officers noted the road was snow-covered and slippery at the time of the mishap.

At 2:05 p.m., cars driven by Randy Scott Doerr, 23, of 1974 Dickerson Rd., Unionville, and Peter J. Rienstra, 66, of 4543 Oak St., collided near the intersection of Main and Oak Streets.

Cass City Police said Rienstra was preparing to make a right turn into the Standard service station when he was struck from behind by the Doerr vehicle.

No ticket was issued. Police said the road was slippery at the time of the mishap. Neither driver was injured.

At 11:30 p.m., a passenger on a snowmobile was injured when a pedestrian, attempting to flag the driver down, accidentally struck the passenger with his hand.

Paul Richard Bliss, 18, of 5855 E. Cass City Rd., was operating the machine as it traveled north on Dodge Road near the Shabbona Road intersection. His passenger was LaDonna J. Brown, 18, of E. Cass City Road.

According to the Sheriff's report, a pedestrian was standing in the roadway attempting to signal Bliss. As the machine passed, his hand accidentally struck Ms. Brown in the head.

She was not seriously injured. Sunday, a car driven by Robert Dale Alexander, 40, of 4426 Woodland St., backed into a parked vehicle as he was attempting to leave his driveway.

No one was injured and no ticket was issued. The mishap took place at 8:45 a.m.

Sunday, a Bad Axe man lost control of his car while driving west on M-81 a quarter-mile east of Spence Road and landed in a ditch.

Gerald C. Hartman, 19, was headed west on M-81 and attempted to pass another car when he lost control and went into a ditch on the south side of the road. He was not injured and no ticket was issued. Tuscola deputies investigated. The accident occurred shortly after midnight.

Also Sunday, a car driven by Robert Ryan Walker, 25, of Dorrance Road, Kingston, struck and killed a deer while traveling east on Stevens Road near Hurds Corner Road.

Walker told Tuscola deputies he lost control of the car as the animal leaped in front of him and went into a ditch. The car rolled after trying to avoid the accident.

Walker said he was driving about 50 miles per hour at the time of the accident. He was treated by a private physician for his injuries. The accident occurred at 6:00 a.m.

DEFORD MAN INJURED

A Deford man received bruises and abrasions Friday morning when his car collided head-on with a car driven by a Harbor Beach man on M-142 about a mile west of Harbor Beach.

Claude William Bell, 29, was injured after the car he was driving east on M-142 skidded left of center on icy pavement and collided head-on with a car driven by Michael R. Bosch, 17.

Huron county deputies who investigated said no ticket was issued, due to the slippery conditions. Both drivers sought private medical attention. The accident occurred around 9:00 a.m.

Harbor Beach police also assisted in the investigation.

Vassar man

enters guilty

plea Monday

A Vassar man entered a plea of guilty to a charge of simple assault after having originally been charged with assault with a dangerous weapon at a pre-trial examination Monday in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

Earl L. Sockow, Vassar, entered the plea before Judge Norman Baguley. Baguley ordered Sockow to pay fines and costs of $200 and gave him one week to pay or be faced with a 30-day jail sentence. The offense occurred in Vassar Oct. 18. At that time, he was charged with assault with a steel drift pin.

Bernard L. Stratton, 18, Kingston, was arraigned on a probation violation charge. He entered a plea of innocent and a hearing was set for Jan. 28. Bond was set at $1,000.

Stratton is charged with violation of parole by associating with two men he was ordered not to see following two earlier convictions.

The hearing into three counts of assault by William H. Collins, Otter Lake, was continued until Jan. 17. He is charged with assault with a dangerous weapon, destruction of property and being armed with a dangerous weapon.

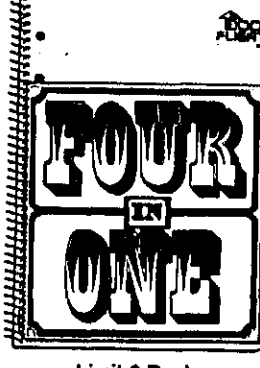

The incident took place in Postoria Sept. 29.

We don't like daylight time

Daylight savings time is with us again—this time until October of 1975. The change was instituted as an energy-saving move to help stretch short supplies of fuel used to generate electricity.

One person who doesn't see it making much difference is Mrs. Sanford Powell of Hartwell Road.

"I don't particularly like daylight savings time," she said. "It makes the forenoon too short. Monday morning I still had to have lights on at 8:45."

The Powells live on a farm and, while they have no dairy cattle, daylight time does have its effects, she said. Working time in the morning is greatly reduced, she said.

AGENT'S CORNER

Try newspaper logs in fireplace

Ann Ross - Extension Agent

Many families are turning to their fireplace to take the chill off the house.

But - in many areas, wood is hard to come by. Next choice?
Why not newspaper logs, and roll your own. The key to making good newspaper logs is compaction. The tighter the newspapers are rolled and packed in forming the log, the greater the intensity of heat generated and the less fly ash formed when the log burns.
Materials needed: (1) a discarded broomstick (old curtain rod or round piece of garden stake or bamboo, with as small diameter as possible), (2) stack of old newspapers, and (3) water for soaking logs.

Newspapers should be inter-folded and rolled tightly; ideal compaction can be obtained by soaking the logs in water after they are formed. Because of the short fibers of the newsprint, the water will tend to break up the fibers, then, knead or squeeze the roll after soaking.
Take two full double sheets of newspaper, lay them on the floor, unfolded in front of you.
Overlap the two sheets so the vertical edge of one meets the vertical fold of the other to form a panel of three newspaper pages wide (a single sheet on left, two overlapped sheets in the middle and a single sheet on right). Fold the uncovered half of the sheet next to the floor over the other sheet, to the centerfold. Now, you have two newspaper pages laid out flat before you, with three layers on one side and a single sheet on the other.

Take another full sheet (two pages folded in the middle) and place its vertical edge to the vertical fold on the stack before you. Close the free page on the opposite side over this to again form a flat surface of two newspaper sheets, one on a stack of five thicknesses, the other a single sheet. Continue this process for 10 full, two-page sheets, fold the tenth open page closed to complete a flat surface the size of a single newspaper page, 20 sheets thick. This interleaving makes the paper more compact and easier to roll.

Then, make a second inter-leafing stack, exactly as you did the first. With the bottom of the first page sized stack touching your knees, place the second stack on top of the first, with the bottom of the second being about six inches away from your knees.

The sides of the two stacks should be parallel, but with the far end of the second extending about six inches over the first.

Make a third stack (as you did the first two) and place it in the same manner over the second, again with the far end of the third extending on six inches from the far end of the second.
Then, repeat this process through five stacks. When laid out, they will form a continuous ribbon in front of you about four feet long.

From your starting point, curl
the exposed end of the bottom stack over the broomstick or rod. Keep rolling it onto the second, third, fourth and fifth stacks until you have the entire ribbon wrapped around the rod, forming the log. While holding the roll to keep it from unwinding, tie a string, fine wire or piece of tape around the two ends of the log, in about two inches from the edges.

Pull out the broomstick or rod, for use on your next log.
The log is now ready for the fireplace. However, a hotter, more efficient fire from the log can be achieved by following the soaking process described in the succeeding steps.

Soak the completed log in water overnight, perhaps in a laundry room sink, galvanized washtub or wheelbarrow. A tablespoon of detergent in the water can be added to help soaking compaction and minimize fly ash when the log is burned.

As you take them from the water, knead them with your fingers along the full length.
This tends to break up the fibers of the newsprint even more and compact the log. Lay the log out to dry, either outside or on the concrete floor of your furnace room. Depending on heat and humidity, it will take one to several weeks for the log to dry.
Then, it is ready for burning. A supply should be built up, so dried logs can be used as others are drying.

The Want Ads Are Newsy Too!

Pre-school to hold Jan. 22 meeting

A general meeting of the Cass City Pre-School will be held at the Presbyterian church Tuesday, Jan. 22, at 7:30 p.m. Work day schedules for the second semester will be determined and plans for the luncheon-bazaar, which will be held in April, will be discussed.

Mrs. Harold Isard, membership chairman, announced there are openings in the three and four-year-old classes. Registration also may be made for the Sept. 1974-May 1975 session by contacting Mrs. Isard at 872-2228.

Correction

The Chronicle wishes to clarify a report concerning a fire at the John Hanson residence in Huntsville Trailer Court published last week.

The car had not been working and a light was placed under the hood to warm the engine. The light developed a short, causing the fire. There had been no trouble with the light prior to the fire.

Echo Chapter slates meet

Plans were made for a special meeting to be held Wednesday evening, Jan. 30, when the monthly meeting of Echo chapter OES was held Jan. 9. The special will be a "Friends Night" when four candidates will be initiated into the Order. During the business meeting, with the worthy matron, Mrs. Betty Greenleaf, presiding, sunshine chairman, Mrs. Donna Holm, reported one gift and one sympathy card sent during December.

Following the formal opening of the meeting, attended by 22 members, the charter was draped in memory of Mrs. Dorothy Merchant and Mrs. Mildred Harrison, who died during the past month. Eighteen officers answered roll call.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served in the dining room by a committee of men.

NO SYMPATHY

Men who blame wine, women and song for their downfall had better cut out the wine.

Menswear exhibit set for Jan. 23-24

Get some new ideas for tailoring menswear by seeing suggested fabrics, patterns, and construction techniques at the exhibit "Vogue-Butterick Make Your Own Menswear". Come at your own convenience and study the exhibit housed at the Civil Defense Center in Caro. The dates and times are Jan. 23 from 9:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. and Jan. 24 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

Aliene Mills, Extension Home Economist, will be present to answer questions. This is open to the public.

Egg-taking operations to stock State hatcheries for this year's fish production were completed during October by the Department of Natural Resources. Spawn harvested included 10 million each of coho and chinook salmon eggs, 15 million lake trout, 5 million brown trout, and 5 million rainbow trout.

AROUND THE FARM

Buyer beware

By Don Kebler

In the last couple of weeks I have been hearing some reports from our farm operators which lead me to say "buyers beware".

Apparently, with the advent of reports on energy, fertilizer, feed concentrate shortages plus zooming prices and predictions, the quacks are among us.

I've not heard of any quackery regarding energy saving devices but I have on fertilizer and feed additives. For instance the fertility fly-by-nights are approaching people in an area who have high soil fertility levels. They know these soils can support good crop yield at least one year even when a different fertilizing program is followed. These persons are clever enough to identify high fertility level farms.

The materials offered for sale by these persons may be totally worthless. Some may have limited value, but usually are extremely expensive compared to known and tried reliable products.

It is not easy to spot a quack. However, a simple rule is to beware of products where claims are made saying the product produces equal yields at a lower cost. A few other sale pitches that should make you suspicious go like this:

1) The cost of the standard good product is excessive. The old line companies are getting rich at the expense of the farmer.

2) The material we offer for sale is so new that research foundation experiment stations and county agents have not had time to test it.

A $57,000 day-use park development at Bates Township Park in Iron county was recently completed, announces the Department of Natural Resources. The project was cost-shared with $28,500 in federal monies, $25,650 from the State Waterways Fund, and $2,850 from local sources.

Cass Cityan earns all A's at Harding

Mrs. Margie Kay Crutchfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Clarke, 3475 Cemetery Rd., was one of 81 Harding College students who achieved straight "A" grade averages for the fall semester which ended Dec. 20. A total of 427 students attained the Dean's List for the semester, which had a record enrollment of 2,319 students.

Mrs. Crutchfield is a senior majoring in elementary education.

A new law raising in-lieu-of-taxes payments on 3.5 million acres of State-owned land from 20 to 50 cents per acre has gone into effect. Among other things, the law changes the designation of these lands from "homestead and swamp lands" to "tax-reverted recreation and forest lands."

4-H ACTIVITIES

Burlap adds design to rooms

By Bernard Jardot

Try a new twist with burlap. All you need are a pair of small scissors, a piece of inexpensive burlap, a little imagination, and you're ready to decorate any room. You can make interesting and exciting wall hangings, window shades, room dividers, place mats, pillows, or give a new twist to lamp shades or bedspreads. This can be done through one easy process called foggling.

Even the youngest member of your 4-H club or other youth group can do it. And older teens will delight in creating unique designs.

Foggling is a simple process involving bundling or tying together loose strings; it amounts to clipping and pulling out all vertical or horizontal threads, within a design on a piece of burlap, then tying exposed threads into hour-glass groups.

You can buy burlap for foggling at any yard goods store, selecting from a widely colorful variety. You will find two grades of burlap, one with a musty burlap odor, the other with none. Either grade is fine to use for this project. The burlap with the odor is cheaper and will lose its odor with a little airing after the piece comes off the bolt.

This can become a group project in arts and crafts and will be very inexpensive. It involves five basic steps: (1) drawing a design on burlap; (2) sewing around the design; (3) clipping threads; (4) pulling threads, and (5) tying exposed threads in groups.

Cass City Village Council Meeting

The regular meeting of the Cass City Village Council was held on December 18, 1973, at the Municipal Building. All Trustees were present.

The minutes of the regular November meeting were read and approved.

The financial report for the month of November was presented. A letter was read from Pinney State Bank transmitting a gift of $1,000.00 for park development.

A motion was made by Trustee Tuttle and supported by Trustee Bliss that the Council acknowledge with thanks the forthcoming contribution from the Stevens estate and state its intention to carry out their wishes in building an outdoor swimming facility. Motion carried.

Hearing no objection concerning a new State law requiring Trustees to serve a 4 year term rather than a 2 year term, the Village Council will comply with the new law.

A wage increase for Village employees was discussed. Action was tabled until the next meeting.

Clinton House was present requesting that Church Street stop at Hill Street because traffic has a hard time stopping on Hill Street in the winter. The request was referred to the Street Committee.

A motion was made by Trustee Rawson and supported by Trustee Bliss that the bills as examined be approved for payment. Motion carried.

A motion was made by Trustee Bliss and supported by Trustee Ware that the meeting be adjourned. Motion carried.

BETTER HEALTH

Hope for ALS sufferers

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ and DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

Anyone who has recently learned to his sorrow that he or a loved one has amyotrophic lateral sclerosis will want to read an excellent article on the subject by Robert G. Dicus in the "Rehabilitation Gazette" (4502 Maryland Ave., St. Louis, Mo. 63108. Volume XVI, 1973).

Mr. Dicus says that he has fought the disease (called ALS or Lou Gehrig's disease, after the famous baseball player who died of the disease in 1941) for 10 years; although he is in a wheelchair, he is able to write and produce motion pictures. He is supporting his wife and family. He has just learned to be a computer programmer.

What is wonderful about the article by Mr. Dicus is that he can give much hope to people with ALS. Unfortunately, the picture is discouraging for the person with the disease, because the cause is not known and there is no known cure. The doctor may say, "There is nothing anyone can do." Mr. Dicus says, "As a patient, I have come to know that there is hope of survival from ALS and that there is a great deal which the patient and his family must do to survive."

ALS generally strikes a man when he is about 50. Twice as many men as women are affected. The patient would do well to have the diagnosis confirmed by two or three able neurologists, but then, as Mr. Dicus says, there is no use in traveling around hunting for a cure; this only wastes money, time, and energy; and certainly there is no sense in giving money to quacks.

One of the first things that the patient and his family can do is to join the National Paraplegia Foundation, 333 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60601. This organization is concerned with furthering research, and can keep its members informed about any progress that has been made. Also, families with ALS members have formed the ALS Foundation, Inc., 10212 Noble Ave., Mission Hills, Calif. 91340, which can offer help and advice on meeting some of the problems that come with the disease.

Mr. Dicus warns the patient and his family against becoming too frightened. He says so wisely what I have known for many years -- that fear can kill a person. The person can do things to keep fighting the disease. For example, it is important to eat nutritious foods and avoid infections that can weaken the body. There may come extreme fatigue, muscle cramps, and twitching and increasing weakness of the muscles. Some patients have trouble breathing.

It should be very encouraging to people facing ALS to know that Mr. Dicus is still able to work and be productive after 10 years with the disease. Perhaps soon research workers will find some clues as to the cause of this strange and distressing disease. Curiously, although many people know very little about the disease I read that it is as prevalent as multiple sclerosis (a disease of the nervous system) and four times more prevalent than muscular dystrophy (a wasting disease of the muscles).

Some people wonder if the disease is hereditary, and there is some question about this. There are two papers on the subject by Drs. L.D. Kurland and D.W. Mulder of the Mayo Clinic. Years ago, Dr. Mulder, a distinguished neurologist, found a surprisingly large incidence of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis in the natives on the island of Guam. The cause there could possibly be much in-breeding in a small population.

In 1960, Lieutenant J. B. Green reported in a paper about a family in which ALS showed up in four generations -- in the father, two sons, a daughter, two granddaughters, and one great-grandson.

There seem to be three separate types of the disease: (1) the sporadic form, which is the most common type found in the U.S. and accounts for more than 90 per cent of the cases occurring in North America and Western Europe; (2) the familial, or hereditary form; (3) the Guam type, which is the major cause of death among Chamorro people.

Now we are four. Our family has assumed a new dimension. Molly has a brother, and we have a son.

There is new richness and happiness in our lives, but there is also new responsibility. Sure, we'll need to keep that "roof over the head," but there's much more to being a parent than that. Sometimes, when you look at the headlines in the paper, you get scared. As these kids grow up, can you face "the new moralities," the endless changes?

No—not alone. But you have the strongest ally in history to help you: the Church. In case you haven't noticed, the Church has been keeping pace with change.

Why not start next Sunday—and bring yourself up to date?

Greg Hampshire happy to be home after ordeal of leaving Brazil

By Jim Ketchum

Had it not been for a number of coincidences and a lot of plain luck, Greg Hampshire might still be sitting in the airport at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, without a cent, waiting for an unknown official to sign an exit paper.

Greg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hampshire, 6255 Virginia, found out what it's like dealing with a military government in a foreign language—a government with even more red tape and bureaucrats than in the United States.

The saga of Greg's attempt to leave Brazil began after he spent a year as a Rotary Exchange Student in Araguari, a town in the state of Minas Gerais, about two hours' flying time from Rio. In that time, he had lived with five families and had grown to love the country and its people.

The problems arose when he tried to leave. Greg explained he had confirmed his airline passage when he arrived in Rio Jan. 2.

"As I was passing through passport control, I was told I couldn't leave," Greg recalled. "I asked the official why and he told me I did not have permission of the police to leave. This was something no one had told me I would need. Then I asked him what I should do. He replied that it was my problem, not his."

Greg said the passport official gave him the name of a man who could help him out. He later found this official could not help either, adding to the frustration. "To make matters worse, he had spent his last time in the airport, thinking he would be leaving shortly."

After spending the night in a hotel at the expense of the airline which was to have flown him back, Greg waited hours in the office of a man who was to clear the matter up. Unfortunately, when this official arrived, he told Greg he was in the wrong office and directed him to another nearby office.

It was at this office that Greg found out nothing could be done for him in Rio—that he needed to return to the capital of the state in which he was staying, Belo Horizonte, which is 90 minutes away by air.

"I had no money to get back, so the airline bought me a ticket and I got back later that day," he said. "When I got there, I went to talk to a Rotary member and explained my problems. We then proceeded to make the rounds of the town, to the police, public officials—everyone. Finally, we got the papers we needed."

At 8:00 p.m. that night, Greg climbed aboard another plane for the return trip to Rio, arriving at 9:30. Since he missed his earlier flight, his reservation to Miami had been cancelled, so he was, in effect, flying stand-by.

Airline officials told him he could be assured of a seat as far as Caracas, but after that, the only chance of a flight would be if someone cancelled.

Greg boarded the Caracas-bound plane at 11:30 p.m. On arriving, he had the good luck to get a cancellation and so the journey could continue to Panama where he hoped for still another cancellation.

Things were going his way now, he thought, as he did get a seat on a plane headed for Miami.

MORE TROUBLE

Greg's problems were not over, however. Not by a long shot.

His parents had been waiting for him some 24 hours at Miami International Airport, checking every arrival from South America.

"When my plane finally landed, I walked into the airport and toward customs," Greg said. "There are two corridors the passengers walk through, a left one and a right one. Well, my parents were waiting in the left corridor and I went through the right one. They never found me and went back to their motel."

Once in customs, he said, he realized he was about $200 over the limit of how many duty-free goods he could bring in. He explained all his troubles to the inspector, who let him off with a duty bill of $1.59.

Then he realized he didn't even have that much money.

"I started rummaging around in my suitcase and found eight cruzeiros, which should have covered it," Greg said. "Except, when I exchanged the money, I wound up with only 75 cents."

At that counter, he met another Rotarian who, after hearing the 17-year-old's plight, gave him a dollar so he could at least clear his baggage.

Now the problem became making contact with his parents. He had them paged on the airport intercom, but to no avail. Carrying his bags with him through the airport (checking them cost 25 cents and he, by this time, had only 12 cents) he suddenly remembered he had his grandfather's telephone number in Florida.

Placing a quick call to him, he found at which motel they were staying and another phone call (compliments of an airline clerk who came from Brazil and spoke Portuguese) finally placed him in touch with his parents who rushed to the airport to greet their long-lost son.

ATTEMPTED THEFT

While all this was going on, the Hampshires themselves came within an ignition lock of having their car stolen.

As they waited one night at their motel, a car thief attempted to steal the Hampshire auto. He broke the door lock but could not get past the ignition switch on the steering column. The thief subsequently stole another auto in the parking lot and has not been heard from since.

After repairing their auto, the Hampshires checked out of their motel the day Greg was to have arrived. When he didn't show up, they began hunting another motel and decided to check back into the place they'd left.

Had they not done so, all contact with them would have been lost for Greg.

YEAR'S STAY

Now safely back in Cass City, Greg said he loved his year in Brazil and would go back if he could scrape up a way to get there. He found the people more open and willing to do things for you than people in the United States, he said.

School proved to be somewhat of a problem until his last two months when his grasp of the language became more complete. He speaks English today with a hint of an accent.

"I wish I'd picked up more of an accent, though," he said. "It would have helped me know I was speaking the language more like a native."

He said even now he will occasionally answer the telephone in Portuguese or greet someone by either shaking hands, slapping the back or kissing both cheeks.

Greg toured the country and visited Brasilia, the nation's new capital city carved out of the jungle. He found the futuristic city an exciting place to visit, though it is designed for 20 years from now.

This advanced design makes for a certain sadness and coldness to the city, he said.

His impressions of the country changed greatly during his year. He came expecting to find a largely backward nation composed mostly of Indian tribes and cannibals.

He found a nation of contrasts—much development and industrialization in contrast to large areas no white man has yet penetrated.

Greg has his sights set on the University of Michigan when high school is finished. Chances are, one day, Greg Hampshire will again visit Brazil. . . . this time with his papers in order.

Report gasoline

theft near

Wilmot

Some 12 gallons of gasoline were stolen Thursday, Jan. 10 from a farm tractor belonging to Calvin Caverly, of 5706 Bond Rd., Wilmot.

According to a Tuscola County Sheriff's report, the gasoline was siphoned from the tractor as it sat in a garage. The theft is believed to have occurred sometime between noon and 3:30 p.m.

Deputies apprehended three suspects but could not tie them with the incident. No arrests were made. The case remains closed due to a lack of evidence.

Police are also investigating the theft of a large roll-top desk stolen from a trailer located at the rear of the Leo Flos residence at 3845 S. Kingston Rd.

The desk had apparently been stolen on Jan. 3, but was not reported missing until Jan. 10. Value of the desk was placed at $190.

ELVIA POZZI, Cass City's newest foreign exchange student, plays not only the guitar but also piano and has studied ballet for eight years. Elvia is staying with the Robert Ridenour family.

Brazil's Elvia Pozzi newest exchange student graduate with her class in the spring. However, she will return next fall to make up the first semester of classes she missed this fall.

She has already toured the school and received a great deal of help from ex-Rotary students. She will begin classes with the second semester later this month.

During her year in the U.S., Elvia said she would like to visit such tourist attractions as Hollywood, Disney World, Miami Beach, and the Statue of Liberty. These travels will probably wait until summer.

Elvia hasn't experienced any homesickness yet and, instead of thinking about Brazil, eagerly looks forward to her year here.

"It is an opportunity that I want to experience very much," she said.

Elvia's home is located near Sao Paulo. Her father runs a coffee farm and her mother is a homemaker.

She said most Brazilians she knows think of the United States as a good country and want to know more about it. Little anti-Americanism is in evidence in her part of the country.

Upon her arrival, Elvia noted some immediate differences in the two nations.

"The houses are very close together in Brazil, but here there is much space between them," she said. "Also the cars in the United States are much larger than ours."

Mrs. Ridenour said Elvia helps make up for the absence of her own daughter, Chris, who is spending a year in New Zealand. Already, she is addressing Mrs. Ridenour as "mom."

"I don't know how these kids do it," she said. "If I were in their shoes, just as soon as I landed, I'd be checking to see when the next flight home took off."

Not Elvia. Chances are she'll feel right at home, if all goes according to plan. She is anxious to get started.

Campus Life

slates pageant

Jan. 26 kicks off the annual Campus Life Sweetheart Contest Pageant with the introduction of the 16 sweetheart candidates and their mothers at a concert presented by Campus Life Singers at Marlette High School.

DELORES SHERRARD

A mother-daughter tea will be given at 6:00 p.m. and at 8:00 p.m., during the concert, the girls will be introduced.

Sweethearts from Cass City, Marlette, Sandusky, Peck, Deckerville, Cross-Lex, Brown City, Inlay City, North Branch, Kingson, Mayville, Millington, Unionville-Sebewaing, Caro, Akron-Fairgrove and Vassar were selected at recent Campus Life club meetings at these schools.

Delores Sherrard, a senior, will represent Cass City.

The Sweetheart Queen will be chosen Feb. 16 at Vassar High School. The queen is chosen by the money raised before the pageant, votes by the audience that night, talent and poise.

The contestant receives one vote for each penny raised. A goal of $1,000 has been set for Delores, according to her campaign manager, Sharon Cox.

For the last two years, Cass City's representatives have finished in the first runner-up slot.

Funds raised by the contest go toward paying for the pageant. Money over expenses is used to finance the Campus Life Clubs. Contributions for Delores may be sent to Sharon Cox, 6807 W. Elmwood Rd., Cass City 48726.

Winner of the pageant can choose either a free trip on Campus Life's European bike trip or a $200 scholarship to the school of her choice. She may also choose a $200 gift certificate.

First runner-up may choose either $150 off the European bike trip, a $100 scholarship or a $100 gift certificate.

HANDOUT

Today the state right that's most highly valued seems to be the right to federal aid.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

The Cass City School Board voted Monday night to ask taxpayers of the school district for an additional four mills for three years to cover increased operating expenses of the schools.

The Tuscola County Board of Supervisors continued its January session this week by hearing reports from various agencies, with the most important action of the session slated before the week end, the setting of salaries.

Ten-year-old Mike Corl has shown little improvement at St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw where he has been a patient for 12 days following a snowmobile accident Saturday, Jan. 4.

Kindergarten students at Willis Campbell Elementary School in Cass City will participate in a pilot program designed to test the effectiveness of an experimental speech program.

The first class meeting for Central Michigan University's spring semester class in elementary education at Cass City will be held next week.

TEN YEARS AGO

Village authorities in Cass City were jubilant Monday after bids for the proposed revamping of the water system revealed that they were some $13,000 under the estimated $150,000.

Circuit Court Judge Richard D. Smith, Bay county, signed an order Wednesday morning restraining ousted Probate Judge Henderson Graham from receiving his salary until a show cause hearing is held Tuesday, Feb. 4.

A committee to "weed out" applicants for the superintendency of Cass City Public Schools was appointed Monday night by Board of Education members at their January meeting.

The full impact of the rising cost of living hit a number of Cass City students this week when it was learned that their lunches were going to cost an additional five cents a day beginning second semester.

Authorities are still baffled as to what caused an explosion which demolished the home of Mrs. Mack Little Tuesday morning and put her and a Cass City man in Hills and Dales General Hospital.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Major General Ralph Royce, who commanded American Forces in the Middle East during World War II, gave a detailed description of the two contending sides in Palestine at a program sponsored by the Cass City Community Club Tuesday night at the high school.

Novesta township has contributed $238 to the CROP drive presently underway in Tuscola county.

Huron county is leading the state in the drive to fill 135 freight cars with food for the starving people of Europe.

Arthur Whittenburg has resigned as Tuscola County Farm Superintendent.

H. M. Bolen has returned from Detroit where he attended a dealer meeting and preview of the 1949 Chevrolet passenger cars.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

E. B. Schwaderer, Cass City highway contractor, was awarded the job of paving 4.873 miles of M-81 commencing at Cass City and running west. The contract was awarded by the State Highway Department Wednesday.

Money to the amount of $16,632.53 was received from the state for Tuscola county schools by County Treasurer Arthur Willets and check will be mailed to the schools within a few days for the amounts due each district.

Some 150 White Leghorn chickens were stolen from the Elber Stewart farm a mile east of Wilmet Friday night. Officers are endeavoring to locate the thieves.

Cass City Independents defeated Pigeon here Saturday night in an overtime game, 35-33, which was packed with action and thrills.

"Men With Wings", starring Fred MacMurray, Ray Milland and Andy Devine was playing at the Cass Theatre.

"Jubilee"

plans new

show for 1975

Tentative plans are being discussed by Uby's "Alabama Jubilee" to bring back last year's hit show "The Big Circus" for the Uby Homecoming sometime this summer, according to director Dian M. Holdship.

The revival of 1973's success would be performed outdoors and would be staged in the same format as before. Final plans will be announced later.

The cast, crews and committees also met with Ms. Holdship to decide on issues for future performances. It was decided that the new show will follow the theme "The Season Swing."

Jubilee personnel also voted to stage the new show in the spring of 1975.

Circus magic comes to town

This is her third tour with Voorheis. Prior to this, she worked for Pollack Brothers Circus which, she estimated, played in 40 states last year.

"With them, it's nothing to pick up and travel a thousand miles during the night for a performance the next day," she said. "I like this circus because you don't have to travel as far and it isn't a problem trying to find fuel."

Voorheis came over and sat down beside his organist.

"This beautiful creature is my youngest daughter by my fourth marriage," he joked. "She's been all over the world and played at some of the best places."

Later she confided that, while she has been all over the U.S., the world still holds a lot for her to see.

Before joining the circus, she worked in nightclubs for 18 years before chucking the same old scene each night some four years ago. She doesn't regret her decision in the least.

"With the circus, you see a different show each night," she said. "An act can be added or dropped out or the line-up can be rearranged. In a club, it's the same old thing."

Wilma said she particularly enjoys the flying and tightrope acts.

SLIP ON PURPOSE?

Ron Perri, billed as the Great Ryonus, is a favorite. He has been at the business about four years and is striving for the top of the heap.

When he's performing high above the audience, does he ever slip just to make the act look good?

"Oh, once in a great while I might," he cautiously replied. "But that slip tonight was not planned. It just happened."

Perri explained he had not been on the inclined wire in some two months and went up cold. . . in front of a nearly packed house at the 6:00 p.m. show. He had not even practiced before the performance.

"I probably shouldn't have done it," he said. "But I just felt inside I could."

In another act, Perri balances, rides a unicycle and juggles flaming torches on a slack wire. This act is down to perfection and he hopes to work new material into it on his way to the top.

Both acts are spellbinders. Eager eyes watch as Perri inches his way along the wire. One slip at the top could be disastrous. The crowd knows it and so does he.

A particularly dangerous act is introduced by Voorheis with the caption, "One slip will bring instant and painful death."

But he's pretty sure his performer will succeed. . . so sure that he only glances up from the drums he plays occasionally. That's confidence.

SPONSORS DELIGHTED

Cass City's Gavel Club, sponsors of the circus, came away smiling, too. According to Ron Geiger who has been coordinating the ticket sales drive, the club will probably clear between $600 and $700.

"We sold more in pre-sales than we had expected," Geiger said. "The gate will push that up even higher."

He said proceeds from the performances will go toward a commitment for the four-doctor clinic and any remaining funds will go toward the park fund.

The club will receive half of the advance ticket sale.

But this wasn't on the minds of most who paid to get in. They came to see the circus and they got their chance.

And, even when the circus is gone and the room becomes a gym again, chances are the memory of the big night under the big top will linger for many a small boy and girl.

Circuses do that to you.

WILMA RENCH grinds out another tune.

WIRE ACTS are a part of any circus. Ron Perri demonstrates his skills on the slack wire.

Treasurer's report shows receipts up

Tuscola county took in some $201,605.81 more in receipts in 1973 than had been estimated for the year, according to a report released last week by Treasurer Arthur M. Willis.

The figures cover the 10 county departments and show that they took in $1,508,146.81 as opposed to $1,306,541.00 it had estimated at the start of the year.

The largest single surplus appears in the treasurer's office itself, where it took in $174,252.33 over its estimate of $1,114,900.00. Of the 16 subdivisions within the department, taxes show the largest bulge, with $93,550.07 over the estimated $800,000.00 received.

Another tax subdivision is equally impressive. The county received $43,210.38 over its estimated $200,000 from state income tax revenues.

This, coupled with almost double the amount anticipated from use of money and property and five times over the amount estimated for reimbursements helped account for the total.

Use of money and property had been estimated at $25,000. The county received $47,363.48. Under reimbursements, Willis had projected $2,000 and received $12,696.11.

Willis also reported his department wrote 2,819 delinquent tax receipts amounting to $535,814.66. Interest totaled $3,111.74 and collection fees totaled $17,953.01.

The county's share of delinquent tax collection totaled $102,649.16.

Other departments in Willis' report also show healthy surpluses over estimated receipts.

District Court took in $90,075.35 against an estimated $60,000. Register of Deeds' office took in $8,565.55 over its estimated $60,000 and the Clerk's office took in $17,595.97 against an estimated $15,400 in expected receipts.

On the minus side, Sheriff's Department receipts came $14,471.13 below an estimated $30,546.00 and the Probation Department showed its annual receipts at $4,908.00 against an anticipated $6,200.

Elkland twp. hard-hit by new equalization hikes

Figures released last week by the Tuscola County Equalization Department show Elkland township residents face a projected tax valuation increase of over $1 million, while Novesta residents can look forward to an increase of nearly half a million dollars.

Figures compiled by Equalization Director Mac B. O'Dell show Elkland township residents could wind up facing increased adjustments of $1,384,978. Novesta residents would face increases of $444,143.

O'Dell emphasized Monday that these figures are only tentative and could be adjusted either up or down over the course of the year. The increases came from a residential tax study completed by O'Dell Dec. 31. The last study of this kind was made in 1971 and was applied to 1972 taxes.

He explained the increases are based on current market data for the three previous years' sales figures.

"We analyze the market to determine the true cash value of property at 100 per cent," O'Dell said. "Then we take half of that and base our level of assessment on it. If our assessments don't match this 50 per cent figure, then they are adjusted upward."

The increases will be applied next December.
Elkland township was the hardest hit of the county's 24 units of government. The township's increase was based on 40.54 of the 50 per cent required by law.

O'Dell said the increased adjustments reflect sharp rises in property values, particularly in Cass City, in the last few years. He added there is more value in the township than in others, adding that these comparisons can draw a somewhat distorted picture.

"There are a multitude of reasons for the increases," he said. "Primarily, Cass City has developed more within the last five to six years than other areas of the county."

"As far as Novesta is concerned, that area is just now catching up with the rest of the county."

Other area increases show somewhat less dramatic jumps. Ellington township, for example, faces a $474,255 upward adjustment, while Kingston township's adjustment will be $312,565 and Elmwood's will be $216,625.

Novesta had been appraised at 30.56 of the 50 per cent required by the State Tax Commission.

O'Dell cautioned against making strict comparisons between townships, saying each is evaluated individually and should be judged with that thought in mind.

On a county-wide basis, the increases will amount to nearly $12 million.

3-county hunting survey set for 900 landowners

During the last two weeks of January, about 900 randomly selected landowners in Huron, Sanilac, and Tuscola counties will be receiving a mailed survey from Michigan State University. The survey concerns attitudes of private landowners in the three-county area towards hunting on their land. More specifically, survey questions will seek opinions about hunters and hunting in general, hunters' use of private land, and types of programs which might be desirable for managing hunter-access to private land.

The results will be made available to planners, decision-makers, and organizations concerned with economic development and wildlife management in the area. A summary of the results will also be sent to landowners who respond to the survey. The cooperation of all landowners receiving the survey is essential to the success of the study.

The Hunting-Attitude Survey is being conducted by Jon

MRS. CLARA BIRD'S farm, located north and east of Cass City, has been recognized as a centennial farm by the state. The original homestead was established in 1856.

Early days recalled

A farm owned by the family of Mrs. Clara Bird located at 7395 Bay City-Forestville Rd., will soon receive centennial recognition by the state.

The farm, in possession of the same family since 1856, will receive a centennial certificate signed by Governor William Milliken and Secretary of State Richard Austin, along with a plaque presented in cooperation with Detroit Edison Co.

The 80-acre farm is part of an original 320-acre site originally settled by Mrs. Bird's husband's ancestors before the Civil War. An adjacent 80-acre farm owned by Mrs. Ethel Bird was recently given similar recognition.

According to the family, the first white settlers of the land journeyed in on foot, after leaving their wives and children in Watrousville. They erected log cabins and rude outbuildings before returning for their families.

In those days, numerous Indian encampments still existed in the area. The first post office in Elkland township stood on Bird land.

The original buildings stood on Mrs. Clara Bird's portion of the homestead.

When the Great Fire of 1881 roared through the area, all the women and children were evacuated. By some miracle, all the buildings on the land were spared, but surrounding timber lands were burned to the ground.

Practically all the trees now standing on the land are second-growth, since the fire.

Mrs. Bird currently lives with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McEachern.

Hawks notch win over Hatchets, prepare for crucial tilts ahead

One thing that the Cass City Red Hawks appear to lack these days is the killer instinct. While wading through the easier portion of its schedule in the last 10 days the team won as expected but failed to post sizable margins after having opponents on the ropes in the early stages.

The team did it again Friday when winless Bad Axe Hatchets came to town. After racing to a comfortable first half lead, the Hawks let down and then had to fight off a Bad Axe rally to come up with a 68-56 decision.

Leading by 12 points or more at one stage in the third period, Cass City let down and Bad Axe came roaring back in the final period to be within a point before the Hawks settled down to the business at hand again to pull in front by a safe margin in the last four minutes.

A performance like this at Sandusky Friday could be fatal. The Redskins aren't the team they were last year but they are a sound quintet. . . a point they proved when they defeated Cass City in the opening game for both clubs.

Following this test, the Hawks will meet Harbor Beach at home Tuesday in a game that has more than usual interest for a non-conference title.

The tall, talented Pirates are considered the biggest threat to the Hawks in the upcoming district tournament in March and the game will give fans a line on the comparative strengths of both teams.

Cass City moved in front in a slow paced first quarter with Nick Gibas controlling the boards and Scott Hartel pacing the offense.

At the end of the first period the score was 15-13. The Hawks lengthened that margin to 10 points, 37-27, by halftime.

Aided by a full court press that resulted in several Cass City turnovers, the Hatchets came back strong in the third period, holding the Hawks to a mere nine points while scoring 14 themselves.

As previously described, the rally continued into the early minutes of the final period before Jerry Toner started hitting shots from the top of the key to get the team moving again.

Toner scored 10 of his 18 points in the last quarter.

Hartel netted 22 points to lead all scorers. Other Cass City scorers were: Dave Hillaker, 8; Gibas, 9; Chuck Bliss, 7; Ken Lowe, 2; Brad Goslin, 2.

For Bad Axe, Neil Rogers scored 16 points and Dave Eisinger added 12.

JUNIOR VARSITY

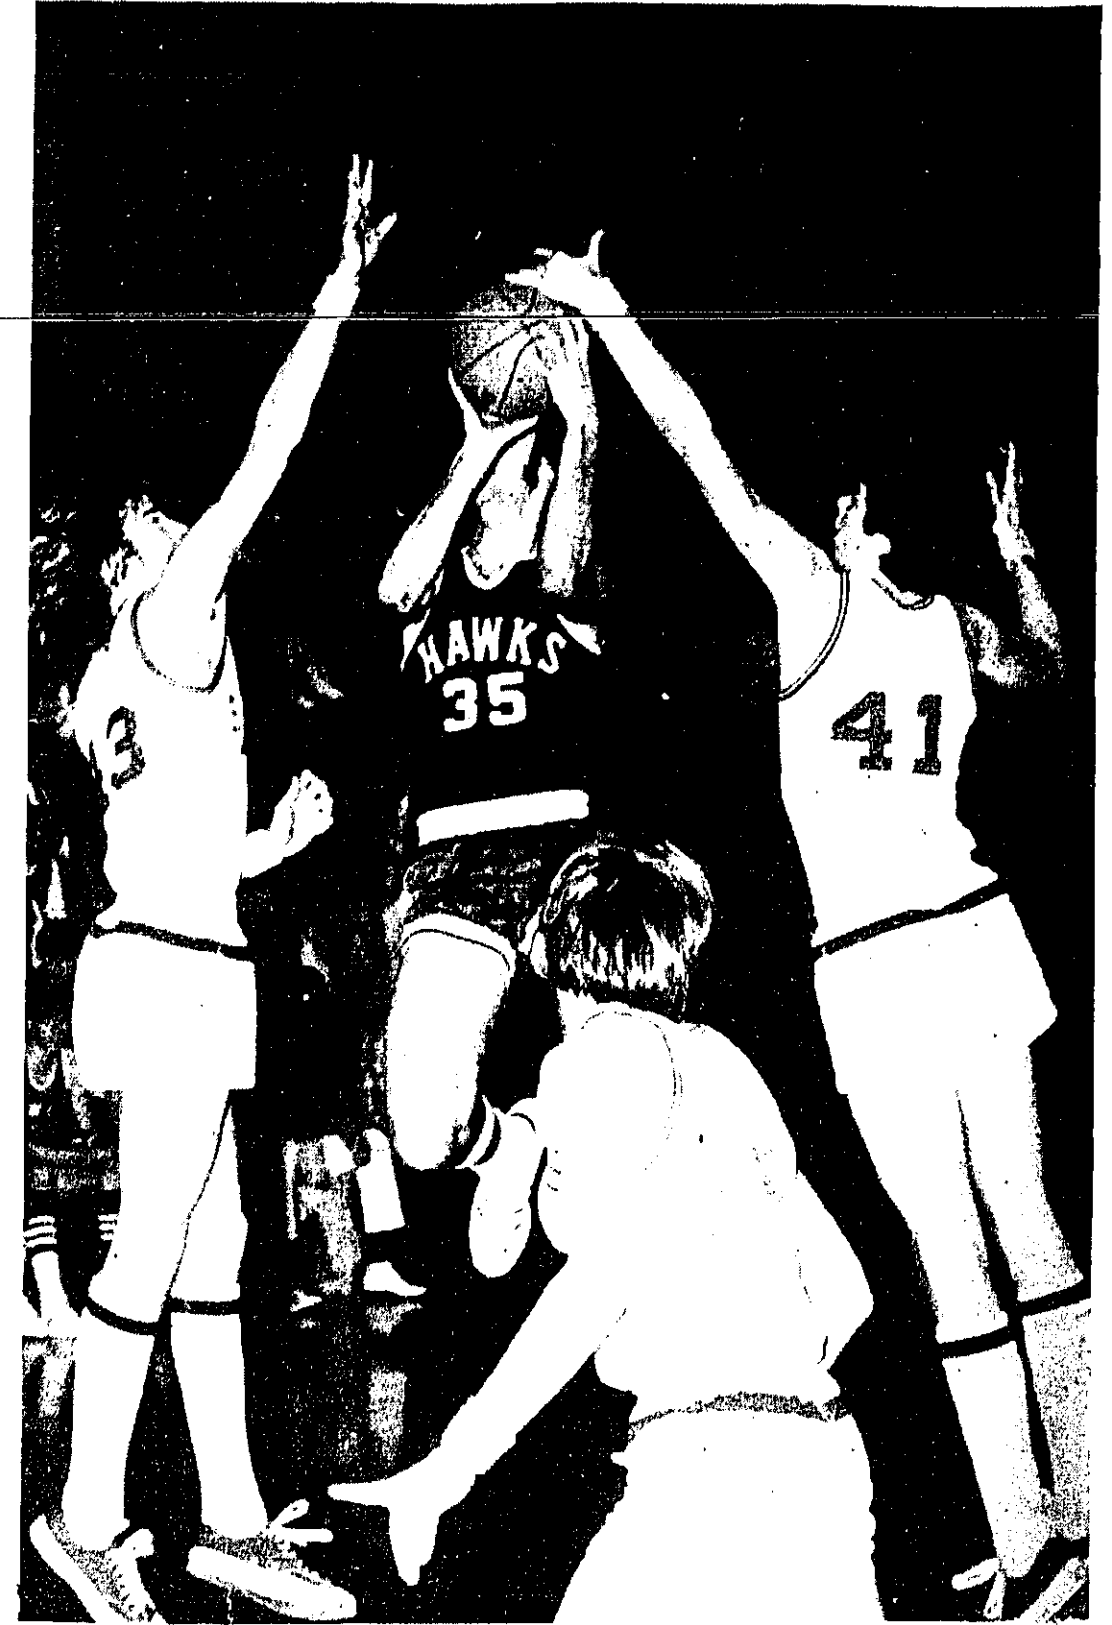

The junior varsity continued to rack up the victories as Coach Skip Pranger's charges had little trouble rolling over the visitors, 76-62.

Program snagged

An experimental program to test the Florida strain of largemouth bass in Michigan recently struck a snag when 30 pairs of fish imported as brood stock by the Department of Natural Resources were hit with a fungus disease, causing high mortality. It is hoped enough can be saved to get some fry production next spring. Florida largemouths grow much larger than their northern cousins. Whether they can thrive in Michigan's colder waters is the question behind the experiment.

SCOTT HARTEL didn't score on this basket as he was surrounded by Bad Axe Hatchets. But the Senior Hawk forward connected enough in the Cass City victory Friday to lead all scorers.

Hawk wrestlers split 2 meets; prep for Marysville tourney
