

Commissioners OK elected officials $2,000 pay hikes

Elected Tuscola county officials were granted $2,000 pay increases by the Board of Commissioners at the board's regular meeting Wednesday, Feb. 13, at the courthouse.

Those receiving increases included Sheriff Hugh Marr, Clerk Elsie Hicks, Treasurer Arthur Willis, Register of Deeds John Marshall and Drain Commissioner Leslie Lounsbury.

Second District Commissioner Maynard McConkey said the new salary levels are still low in comparison with neighboring counties but added that an accurate picture cannot be drawn by making straight comparisons.

All officers, except Marr, will now receive $12,000 per year.

In a related item, the board also approved a working agreement with the sheriff's office employees which closely matched that of courthouse employees, with the exception that life insurance is also offered.

In other business, the board awarded a $10,546.00 bid on draperies, carpeting and carpentry work in the circuit court room and judges chambers to Clement and Kirk Inc. of Lapeer.

The firm's bid came well under several other area bids for which carpeting and drapes alone would total over $12,000. The firm is a reputable one, McConkey said, and has done work for other government buildings in neighboring counties.

Scott Engineering of Alpena, architects in charge of the remodeling, will closely supervise the work, he added. The firm is the same architects which designed the new County Road Commission building.

McConkey said the Lapeer firm has indicated it will submit some of the work to Caro area people.

SOIL SURVEY

In other business, the board approved spending $3,417.00 for 300 copies of the updated county soil survey which is in the final stages of completion. McConkey said field work has been completed and the findings are being correlated with the 1926 soil survey and with data gathered by the county Soil Conservation Service over the past 25 years.

This will involve new designations for some soils and reclassification of some lands.

The survey will be of use to farmers, real estate firms and the County Equalization Department in determining values and taxes.

Half the cost of the updating is being borne by Michigan State University's Cooperative Extension Service. Individual copies of the survey update will be sold, McConkey said. Prices for individual copies have not yet been set.

The board also received an official request from Gagetown for contracted police protection. While costs are not yet set, the service, to be provided by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, will give the village some 25 hours of protection per week, during hours yet to be established.

McConkey said the request was referred to the public safety committee, which will base the cost of protection on a 40-hour basis and then reduce it to the 25-hour figure. He indicated an answer should be forthcoming within a week to 10 days.

No gasoline bids for the Sheriff's Department were received, but the department will still continue to receive fuel through Neeb Corp. of Bad Axe.

McConkey said the firm has indicated it will meet the needs of the department unless something unforeseen happens.

A spokesman for Neeb said Friday it will supply the department with 100 per cent of its needs. The department is a priority user and, according to government fuel allocation guidelines, this need must be met first.

The department will be charged regular tankwagon prices, which vary from day to day, the spokesman said. He declined to give figures being charged the department, but McConkey indicated the price averaged slightly above 30 cents per gallon. Price could not be guaranteed, he added.

Commissioners also approved the hiring of attorney Gary Crews as assistant to prosecutor George Holmes on a part-time basis at $6,000 per year. Attorney Leo Maki will continue to work from the prosecutor's office.

Reports were also received from the Department of Corrections approving procedures in the Tuscola County Jail and from Dog Warden Mike Franco.

McConkey said the dog situation continues to be a problem county-wide, adding that the problem is one the county will have to learn to live with. He said a ban on dog ownership or restrictions on the number of dogs owned by one person would probably not work.

Flu bug cuts Cass City school attendance

Authorities at Cass City Schools are casting a fearful eye at the flu bug that has closed several area schools and appears to be headed toward Cass City.

Tuesday, a combination of icy roads and the flu cut heavily into attendance at all schools.

Hardest hit was Deford school. Seventy of a total enrollment of 166 were missing from classes. Authorities there placed nearly all of the blame on illness.

Since Kingston was hard hit prior to the outbreak at Deford, school heads are fearful that the entire district will be hit before the week is over.

Mrs. Bernard Freiburger, principal at Campbell Elementary, urged parents to leave children at home at the first sign of illness to avoid spreading the disease.

She said that several students at her school came to school and were sick.

Contrasting with the Deford school situation is the outlook at Evergreen. No flu here.

CHARLES SOPER, 46, Kingston, remains in fair condition in Hills and Dales General Hospital after his car went out of control and struck a tree late Monday afternoon on Cemetery Road south of DeLong Road.

Kingston man 'fair' after car strikes tree Monday

A Kingston man was listed in fair condition late Tuesday afternoon following surgery for injuries sustained in a one-car accident late Monday afternoon on Cemetery Road just south of DeLong Road.

Charles F. Soper, 46, of 3370 River St., Kingston, sustained multiple injuries at 5:41 p.m. when the car he was driving south on Cemetery Road went out of control and struck a tree.

Tuscola county sheriff's deputies who investigated said Soper attempted to pass another vehicle when he lost control of the car. It left the roadway on the west side and struck a tree stump. It then traveled another 115 feet before striking the tree.

Soper was alone in the vehicle at the time of the mishap. He was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital where surgery was performed Tuesday.

Officers noted that the road surface was slippery at the time of the crash and no citation was issued.

Cass City Police assisted in the investigation.

police, and sheriff's deputies.

Thursday, Feb. 14, a car driven by Wayne David Dillon, 29, of 1866 Hoppe Rd., Unionville, backed out of a parking stall and into another vehicle in the Cass City High School parking lot.

Cass City Police said Dillon failed to see the parked car which was situated in front of the school in a no-parking area. No ticket was issued. The mishap took place at 4:25 p.m.

Friday, Nancy Peruski of Bad Axe reported to Cass City Police that someone had struck her car while it was parked in the General Cable parking lot.

She told police when she came out to leave work, she found the left front fender of her car had been hit. Police said a suspect was not found. The mishap was reported at 12:10 a.m.

Also Friday, a car driven by Edward Jay Vanhorn, 23, of Silvernail Road, Deford, struck and killed a deer while traveling west on Bevins Road near Plain Road.

State Police from the Caro Post said the deer came from the south side of the road into the path of the car, was struck and then ran back toward the south.

Vanhorn was not injured in the mishap which took place at 7:50 a.m.

Monday, a car driven by Arthur Zimmerman Sr., 30, of 6483 Merchant Rd., struck and killed a deer while traveling west on Bevins Road a half mile east of English Road.

Zimmerman was not injured in the mishap which occurred at 11:35 a.m.

Tuesday, a car driven by Janis Kay Benjamin of Hunt Road, Mayville, went out of control and struck a guard rail on Cemetery Road just south of DeLong Road.

Cass City Police who investigated said Mrs. Benjamin was traveling north on Cemetery Road when she lost control of her car on the icy road and struck the guard rail.

She was not injured in the accident which took place at 7:05 a.m.

Lamotte twp. hears plea for more fire funds

The chief of Lamotte township's new fire department submitted his budget before the township board Tuesday night that called for an expenditure of over $6,000 for expenses and new equipment. Generally, the board's reaction was cool.

Art West submitted the budget calling for $2,926 in department expenses plus $3,691 in new equipment including boots, coats and helmets. In addition, West requested a sinking fund of $3,400 be set up to meet the cost of major new equipment such as fire trucks.

West proposed financing the department by the institution of a one-mill township tax, if necessary, which he felt would raise sufficient funds.

Township Supervisor Cecil Hayward informed West and some 20 persons who gathered for the meeting at the fire hall that there is not money available for such a large outlay and that revenue sharing funds, used largely in the construction of the building, would not be available for some time.

He proposed that township residents be taxed when the need for a fire truck arose rather than establishing a sinking fund, citing inflation at 10 to 12 per cent.

West argued that the fund was necessary as a ready reserve in case of emergency.

West contended to the board that instead of spending funds in the building to complete a small kitchen area, this money should be used to purchase badly needed fire fighting equipment. In the budget, he called for purchasing 14 pair of boots, citing that he, himself, has no boots when he must fight a fire.

"I'd say 95 per cent of all the people I've talked with in this township don't want more money spent on this building," West told the board. "They want the fire department built up."

Hayward replied that before the general room in the fire hall could be put to use, a kitchen area with a three-stall sink must be installed, according to state health regulations.

A number of voters in the crowd contended that the board could rent the building as is, without any further expenditure on kitchen facilities if it would provide 20 tables and 200 chairs. Members of the fire department auxiliary said that the building then could be rented for wedding receptions or reunions when there would not be a need for a kitchen. Such rents could then be used in the fire department.

Hayward replied that the kitchen was a necessity by law before the building could be rented.

"We're fortunate to have a building here at all," Hayward said. "I think it should be completed so it could be used."

Treasurer Jack Gillig contended that money for the department is non-existent in the township treasury, contending the treasury is behind last year already.

Clerk Wayne Adams agreed that the funds do not exist for this kind of an outlay and added that the building of the department takes time.

Adams accused West of constantly coming before the board, asking for more money.

West replied that the board appointed him chief and could remove him if it wanted.

"You put me in charge of protecting the people of the township and I'm trying to do that the best way I know how," West said. "If you don't like my work, then you can remove me."

The board decided to study the budget and bring it up at the next meeting.

After the meeting, West said he felt he was still at odds with the board and that nothing was settled.

SOME 20 persons gathered to hear Lamotte Township Fire Chief Art West submit a $6,000 budget to the township board Tuesday night at the fire hall. West emphasized the need for more firefighting equipment.

Plan 40 more beds

Huron hospital addition won't close down Hills and Dales

Plans for the construction of a 40-bed addition to Huron Memorial Hospital in Bad Axe will not spell the end to Hills and Dales General Hospital, according to the president of the Hills and Dales Board of Directors.

"There's no reason why it should be," attorney Clinton House said Friday. "We have a good hospital here and we have the potential to keep pace."

House said, however, if moves are not made to add more doctors to the Cass City facility, it would put a strain on the hospital. But, he said, if Huron Memorial does not have the physicians to staff the addition, then their problem becomes greater.

"I personally feel Huron is grossly overbuilt," he said. "But, I must say if I were in their position, I would approach it the same way. They're doing an excellent job getting doctors and that's the key."

House's comments came in reply to a statement from Dr. Robert Oakes of Harbor Beach Thursday, Feb. 14, who said construction of the new wing at Huron would be a death-knell to Scheurer Hospital in Pigeon, Harbor Beach Hospital and Hills and Dales General Hospital.

House said he felt the addition would not hurt Hills and Dales or drive it out of business, providing it remains strong medically and works to get more doctors.

"There is plenty of room for new doctors in Cass City," he said. Even now, a substantial number of people are finding medical care outside Cass City. It is the general practitioner who makes greatest use of the hospital and if we eventually lose our older doctors without replacing them, patients are just naturally going to leave."

House said an all-out drive in the community—including the medical community—is needed to increase the number of physicians in Cass City.

"Our people must realize that this is a major need and support it," he said. "In Bad Axe, they are trying to build and they're getting all the doctors to work together to pull it off. That's what we need here."

House said small hospitals such as Hills and Dales have a place in the medical community, but that it is getting harder to meet stricter standards. He said in 10 years requirements have changed drastically, making it difficult for the hospital to compete with larger facilities or to even keep pace.

He said the outlook for acquiring new physicians for Cass City is presently good, citing the fact that the new four-doctor clinic is nearly complete, along with the acquisition of Drs. Yongkyun Kim and J.Y. Lee in the past year.

But, he added, the community is still not fully behind the drive.

"We seem reluctant to face the fact of life that doctors are a merchantable commodity and that they're going to go where they can get the best offer," he explained. "You don't improve a hospital by merely adding beds. It takes bodies to staff those beds. This is the need."

House said Cass City is in an advantageous position geographically, in that it can draw people on four sides, while Bad Axe, in effect, has water on three sides.

Similarly, hospitals in Harbor Beach and Pigeon would face these kinds of geographical problems.

"It is up to us to provide the service here," he said. "Some people don't think it's right to give new doctors coming here a break on location and expenses. But, again, doctors will go where they can do the best financially."

Hills and Dales can accommodate 62 patients. Last week there were 38 patients listed, up from a low of 15 before Christmas.

Huron Memorial Hospital currently has 67 beds available.

In its announcement Wednesday, Feb. 13, hospital co-administrator Roger Bonnema said the hospital plans to move forward immediately with bids and the letting of contracts.

Critics of the plan in nearby communities said this would upset a survey presently being conducted by the East Central Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning Council. The planning council must certify the need for additional hospital beds before construction can begin, according to Michael L. Jones, assistant director and health facilities planner for the council.

Bonnema said, however, that the hospital is not restricted by the council, since its plans were already complete before limiting legislation was passed.

Bonnema said published reports to the effect that Huron's addition would drive other hospitals out of business were "grossly wrong" and said this was not the purpose of the expansion program.

Bonnema said patient origin has shown an increase of 50 per cent both from east and west of Bad Axe with some increase from the south.

Jones said Friday he has verbal assurances from Bonnema that Huron will wait from four to six weeks after bids are opened before beginning actual construction. This will give ECMCHPC time to complete its study of county hospital needs, he said.

"Right now, we have indications that Huron county hospitals are over-bedded," Jones said. "As far as what will happen if a 40-bed addition is built at Huron, no one really knows. We do know that if they do go ahead with it, they must come up with 1400 more admissions each year to keep it going."

Jones said if the hospital went ahead without waiting for the study to be completed, one of two things would happen. One, it would draw patients away from smaller hospitals and force them out of business or two, and more likely, a lack of patients at Huron would put it in financial trouble and force it to close down.

"Our position is that the situation could end up being worse if they went ahead now," he said. "Population projections show Huron county losing population instead of gaining."

Jones said Hills and Dales General Hospital draws very little from Huron county presently, with the exception of the Sebawa area, where two doctors use the Cass City facility instead of Scheurer Hospital in Pigeon.

Jones said he is hopeful Huron Memorial will wait on its building program, although the commission has no authority to make them wait. Huron was entered into the program after it had begun plans for expansion.

Jones said eventually, comprehensive studies will be made of Tuscola and Sanilac county hospital needs. The results will be merged into a Thumb-wide planning council to aid hospitals in meeting their needs.

He said hospitals such as Harbor Beach won't necessarily be shut down by Huron's expansion, but it is too soon to tell.

"It's going to take time and we're going to need a great deal of community input in order to arrive at any conclusions," he said.

FATALITY

Tuscola county recorded its third traffic fatality of 1974 late Sunday afternoon when a 28-year-old Flint man died in a two-car crash on Bray Road at Arhela Road, about nine miles southwest of Millington.

The victim was Ralph Ecker. Two passengers in his auto, David Ecker, 24, and Elmer Gould, also 24, both of Flint, sustained cuts and bruises.

The Ecker car collided with a car driven by Clifford Bentley, 20, of Clio. James Warren, 16, a passenger in the Bentley auto, escaped with cuts and bruises.

All were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in Flint.

State Police from the Caro Post who investigated said the Ecker vehicle was traveling west on Arhela Road and ran a stop sign at the intersection of Bray Road.

The vehicle struck the Bentley auto, southbound on Bray Road.

Both cars went off the roadway into a field. Witnesses said they saw the Ecker vehicle headed west at about 50 miles an hour when it ran the stop sign.

The accident took place at 5:50 p.m.

OWENDALE MAN INJURED

An Owendale man was hospitalized Friday afternoon after the car he was driving ran off M-25 and hurdled Mud Creek, northeast of Bay Port, crashing head-on into the north bank of the frozen creek.

Ennis Alton Haley, 19, was taken to Saginaw St. Mary's Hospital in critical condition with head injuries.

Haley was traveling alone when his northbound car ran off the west side of M-25, traveled for several feet along the shoulder, then crossed an access road that leads to a boat launching area at the mouth of Mud Creek before it became airborne and crashed into the opposite bank.

Huron county sheriff's deputies said Haley may have fallen asleep at the wheel.

The accident occurred at 12:30 p.m.

"If It Fitz . . ."

Stuck at the top

BY JIM FITZGERALD

A few years ago there was some talk about opening a saloon in the building that formerly housed the Ballentine Dry Goods Co. I immediately protested, claiming such an action would be similar to hiring a harlot to dust the church.

The saloon was never built and I like to think my righteous indignation helped prevent the sacrilege. It is sad enough that there is no longer a Ballentine Dry Goods Co. But it would be pure tragedy if its hallowed walls should be scarred by boozey graffiti and Pabst Blue Ribbon signs.

Ballentine's stood on a prominent corner in downtown Port Huron for hundreds of years, or so it seemed, and never changed. All around it, the world turned to leather and knotty pine, with a chargeplate in every fist and a check-out counter blocking every exit. But, until the 1950's, Ballentine's remained a hushed oasis where elderly women sat down to try on gloves, and you could hear the soft fingering of fabrics mixed with the slight slap of turning pages in huge pattern books.

And a few times each day you could also hear the exasperated whispers of clerks telling each other the dumb elevator was stuck again.

I operated that rickety elevator in 1943, when I was 17. There were 3 floors plus a basement used only for storage. The elevator traveled through a cage and was therefore exposed to public view at all times, on all floors. I controlled it by pushing a lever to the left for down, to the right for up, and center for stop. I was a chronic daydreamer and sometimes stopped the elevator when it made no sense at all. Thus waiting people on the 2nd floor got long looks at the passengers' legs while 3rd floor waiters counted dandruff.

It was not easy to manipulate the lever so that the car stopped flush with the floor. I never told passengers to "Watch your step, please." I always told them to either step up or jump down. Once I advised a departing woman to step up and she asked me for a boost. "Maybe you could cup your hands together and give me a foothold," she suggested.

But the ultimate calamity was when I overshot the 3rd floor and got the elevator stuck to the top of the cage. I did this 4 or 5 times a day, thus making me the world champion marooner of passengers.

Passengers often accused me of deserting the ship. You see, to get the elevator unstuck I had to squeeze through the elevator door, jump down to the 3rd floor, and then run down 3 flights of stairs to the basement where the elevator power plant was located.

This trip took me from 1 to 3 minutes, depending upon how crowded the stairs were with people afraid of the elevator. At each landing there would be several clerks wishing me Godspeed. My clear duty was to free the marooned passengers before their cries for help could be heard above the fingering of fabric.

Propped against the elevator motor were 2 sawed-off broom handles, ever ready. I would push these handles against 2 watchamacallits, there would be several sparks, and the elevator would tremble loose and sag slowly downward.

This was a real experience for the suddenly unstuck passengers. For 3 floors I had remote control of their fate and they didn't know what the hell was going on. You should have seen their frightened expressions when they finally descended into the murky basement where I reboarded to once again take physical control of the ship.

If I ever saw a rescued passenger a 2nd time it was on the stairway.

Editor's Corner

It's enough to blow your mind. I keep thinking what I would have done if it were I instead of Randolph A. Hearst.

If it had been my daughter kidnapped, my daughter in the hands of the political radicals of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

I think about it and I come to one sure conclusion. I'm sure that I couldn't handle it as well as Hearst.

There he stands in front of the mikes and you know what must be inside. The heart wrenching agony. The nerve sapping uncertainty. The endless torture of hoping for the best while fearing the worst.

You know that he must be feeling exactly like his wife who broke down in one of the newscasts.

Yet this man keeps calm. He appears to be casting aside every personal feeling, every outward show of emotion. Concentrating with every power at his command on bringing his daughter back home safely.

It's easy to say, "what else would he do . . . or anyone do in a situation like this?"

For one thing the normal reaction would be to plead for mercy for his daughter. To point out that she is not responsible. . . has done nothing to deserve to be kidnapped. Thoughts like this would have to race through every parent's mind. How could you help it?

That approach gets you nothing and Hearst has been able to avoid it. At who knows what cost?

Instead he is going ahead with plans to do what he can to meet the demands of the terrorists. . . negotiating in good faith and, as this is written, apparently with some hopes of success.

But more than what he is doing is the way that he is doing it. The composure, in public anyway, of this man is astonishing. It's almost as if he were an interested bystander.

His high esteem rose another notch here when he berated an official for a remark about the case that was slightly critical of his daughter's kidnappers.

Instead his line is that the persons who have his daughter are honorable people with a cause who are bargaining in good faith.

If any approach can keep his daughter alive certainly this must be the one.

There's no guarantee of course. With persons irrational enough to try and advance the cause of justice with an action like this anything is possible.

Even the most radical of groups prior to the SLA never attempted this and most of the persons they are supposedly trying to help are turning away from the SLA.

The sympathy of the nation is with the Hearsts and if he succeeds in bringing his daughter home safely the respect of the nation should belong to him too.

And if he fails, it's the thought here that there would have been no way to succeed. From the view halfway across the country Randolph A. Hearst comes across as a true giant of a man.

(And anyone else he can get to help)

One of the few spectators without a kid on the squad of the Cass City eighth grade basketball team, that is playing a tournament, at Sandusky Monday was Vern Palmer.

Or, it might be more accurate to say that he has about 25 kids playing. Vern is a former teacher at Cass City who left the ranks for private industry.

He also was coach of the eighth graders when they were in the sixth grade and won a tournament for him.

It's like we guessed in this trivia last week, nothing's been settled in the Owen-Gage school district. Supt. Glenn Sanford wants that to be abundantly clear.

He's getting flack from both factions in the district. . . the ones who want to go it alone and those who want to split the district. Please, he pleads, tell them again that nothing's been decided and won't be for awhile yet.

Band Director George Bushong and the weather just don't get along. You'll recall his cancellations of various band shows last year because of the weather.

Well, another show was held Saturday and, no, George and his kids weren't weathered out. So what's the beef?

It's simply that early this week a combination of flu and icy roads kept so many kids out of school that he couldn't round them up for pictures.

Results in the Solo and Ensemble Festival held at Caro Saturday were good, struts George. Four firsts, 9 seconds and one third in 15 events are worth pictures for the winners, he added.

Considering his bad luck in other years we agreed to wait a week to get the photos. Look for them in next week's paper

The business scene is looking up in Gageton. In recent years several businesses died and were not replaced. But in the last month a new concern and an enlarged old concern opened its doors.

The new business is the upholstery and drapery shop of the L. Spencer family. The new (old) store is Bill's Foodland, owned and operated by Bill Downing.

Everything about the food store is new and modern from the carpet to the fixtures.

It's a store needed in Gageton and from the comments I hear, one that the residents are happy to have there. In addition to all this, Gageton Elevator will start construction of a new 60 by 60-foot storage silo in April.

It's nice to be needed and respected. Sometimes we can even be helpful.

Thursday afternoon a lady called the Chronicle and asked how to get the carbon out of an oil space heater. Another day a reader asked our high school trainee how to spell luminous.

It wasn't hard to shed a little light (pun intended) about luminous, but we were out in the cold when it came to talking about space heaters. (Pun intended.)

Old-timers used to rely on this mill. This mill used to depend on the right wind.

Despite man's most valiant efforts the wheel was frequently at a standstill. What then? Waiting, waiting, waiting! What patience they must have learned—only faith sustained them. The wind would blow again.

The patient life also requires a foundation of faith. It can come early or late, slowly or fast.

If you lack the necessary faith to fulfill your life's needs, turn to the Church. The wind will blow again.

Sparling calls for Congressional appointments, UN review in area stop

Stating he supports the idea of a Constitutional amendment to allow the appointment of Congressmen to vacant seats and favors a "long, hard look at our role in the United Nations", Congressional hopeful James M. Sparling Jr. began a campaign swing through the Eighth Congressional District Thursday.

Sparling was in Cass City on a trip designed to meet with media representatives and said he believes he has the inside track on the nomination to fill the seat vacated by the resignation of Rep. James Harvey.

Harvey was sworn in as a federal judge Feb. 1. "I definitely feel I have an advantage over the other candidates in the race because I know the district," he said, citing his ties with the Saginaw News as well as his years as Harvey's administrative assistant.

"I can come into Cass City and I know people," he said. "I've worked in the area and I've built bridges over the years in the district."

Sparling said the fact that he was in the district 176 days last year is an example that he is in touch with the mood of voters. He added that he conducted office hours for Harvey during that time and plans to continue the practice if elected.

Sparling said continuing contact with voters would be a major goal for him as a congressman. He said he discounts the theory that representatives should rely solely on their own judgments.

"I want to come back to the district with the major issues before congress and hold a series of public meetings on them," he said. "I want to make voters aware of the effects legislation will have on them before it is enacted into law. So many times people don't realize how a law will affect them until it's long passed. I want as much input as possible from the voters."

PLATFORM

Sparling admitted he has not developed a platform per se, adding he has no specific legislative proposals in mind. He did say he favors some sort of U.S. Constitutional amendment which would allow the governor to appoint an interim representative the same way he now appoints U.S. Senators to fill unexpired terms.

"I'm deeply concerned that right now the Eighth Congressional District is without a voice in the House of Representatives," he said. "I would like to see some kind of amendment which would not allow that to happen. As it stands, the voters will be without a representative for over eight weeks."

Sparling said such an amendment might include a clause which would stipulate that the governor would have to appoint a replacement from the same political party as the outgoing representative.

This, he acknowledged, would give constitutional sanction to political parties, something which does not exist in the document.

"It would insure continuity in the district," he said, "because it would recognize how constituents voted in the last election."

Sparling also said he favors a "long, hard look" at the American role in the United Nations.

"We pay over half the operating costs of the UN," he said, "and it seems time to study it closely. I think we should either build up the UN and bring it up to date or we should get rid of it."

He cited the fact that the charter was written in 1945 and said it needs revision to make it stronger. Sparling acknowledged the organization's work in the fields of health and education, but wondered if the U.S. is getting its money's worth.

"I want to give it a real shot in the arm," he said. "Just paying the lion's share of the costs isn't the way to do it."

When the UN was organized, it had 46 nations. Now it has upwards of 140. And they all have the same voice in the General Assembly. Yet we pay most of the costs."

RESIGNATION

Sparling denied any wrong doing surrounding the timing of Rep. Harvey's resignation and his formal candidacy for the vacant seat. Opponents have charged that Harvey resigned only after a strong political base for Sparling had been established.

"Where was it to my advantage?" Sparling said. "There was none. In fact, I probably lost any political advantage the way things turned out."

Sparling said between the time Harvey's nomination was announced in August and his confirmation, opponents really had the advantage because they had time to build organizations and raise funds.

He cited the fact that during the long investigation of Harvey for the federal judgeship, he was tied down supplying committees with information on the congressman and could not have done any campaigning.

TURNED OFF

Sparling said one of the major problems confronting his campaign is voter apathy. Many persons are turned off by politics and politicians, he said. He added that there must be a political force in the nation to restore confidence in government, relying on principles.

"The integrity and credibility of politicians at the federal and state level needs revival," he said. "Voter confidence must be restored in elected officials."

Sparling said he does not foresee great problems in the district because he is a Republican at a time when President Nixon's popularity is at an all-time low.

"This is a Republican district," he said emphatically. "How big the margin will be is a question, but it will definitely send a Republican to Congress."

He said the president's popularity will probably not have too great an effect in the district because it is an off-year election and also a special election.

Sparling, 45, has served as Harvey's assistant since 1961 and is a former reporter for the Saginaw News. He also edited a monthly publication of the Packard Motor Car Co. and served two years in the Navy.

He is married and has three children.

Your neighbor says

We've slowed down

Are motorists driving any slower today than they were before the onset of the energy crisis? The State Highway Commission thinks so. It said last week that in January, the average freeway speed was 62.3 miles per hour, compared with 68.6 miles per hour in January of 1973.

Mrs. Tom Kelly of Huntsville Trailer Park, thinks so, too.

"We've noticed as we've traveled that traffic isn't moving as fast," she says. "My husband drives to work in Bay City and he says traffic is moving slower."

The Kellys have also slowed down to 50-55 miles per hour from 60-65. Mrs. Kelly said they've noticed that the gasoline gauge needle doesn't drop as fast as it once did, either.

The Kellys moved to Cass City recently from Midland. They have a daughter, Michelle, age 2.

AROUND THE FARM
Apply by March 15
for additional fuel
By William Bortel

If you plan to use more fuel for farm production this year than in 1972, you must order it through your local distributor by March 15.

Although farmers are guaranteed 100 per cent of their fuel requirements based on 1972 use, any additional fuel must be ordered with a special form. Called FE-017, the form will be available at local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) offices by Feb. 15.

Use your own records or records at your distributor to detail the amount of various fuels you used in 1972 and 1973. Then estimate your additional needs for the coming year.

To calculate fuel requirements for various crops and acreages, write for a free single copy of "Agricultural Engineering Information Series No. 285," Plan Service, 226 Ag Engineering Bldg., MSU, East Lansing, Mi. 48824.

You must justify your needs for additional fuel by listing additional added acreage, new equipment and changes in operations.

Take your fuel request to your local distributor. He will then submit the request to his supplier.

If your distributor disagrees with your estimated needs, consult your local ASCS office. When necessary, the ASCS will act as an auditor to verify your needs.

All agribusinessmen with fuel questions can call the Fuel Crisis Center in Lansing: 517-373-8250.

AGENT'S CORNER

Suit up for snowmobiling

Alene Mills - Extension Agent

Snowmobiling can be a lot of fun.

It can also be miserably uncomfortable -- even dangerous.

What makes the difference?

Often a major factor is the clothing you wear.

To really enjoy snowmobiling, you must be warm and dry, free to move around easily and able to see well.

The proper clothing will provide comfort, freedom to move and good visibility, and it will not be a safety hazard.

BETTER HEALTH Modern medicine's emotional strain

Almost all of us, when we are sick, or think we are, suffer from more than just our physical ailments. And sometimes modern medical cures become so threatening that they arouse that suffering and can drive quite normal people up the wall and even out of their minds.

Doctors are aware, or ought to be, that sometimes for some patients just screwing up enough courage to go and be examined can constitute emotional distress of major proportions.

This is especially so in hospitals, where we manage to contrive unfamiliar and thus threatening environments, such as the operating theaters, post-operative recovery rooms, intensive care units and the like, where the encounter can be psychologically overwhelming.

Even the simple matter of blood-letting for laboratory tests, or being hooked up to electrical recording machines, or plugged into breathing devices, can unloosen a rush of inner fears and panic that often distress and can in fact temporarily unhinge patients who were previously apparently quite normal.

Some years ago, a thoughtful psychiatrist talked with some 30 patients who within the previous 24 hours had had laboratory studies made upon them. Some were in a poorly concealed state of anxiety. Most of them were frightened. Some were seriously depressed.

He found that the main causes of such distress included an absence of information on what was to occur or, worse, misinformation; the strangeness of the laboratory technicians; fear of what the tests might reveal.

Sadly, he concluded that most of the distress -- taking into account, of course, that the patients' basic personality structure played some part -- could have been avoided if the doctor involved had taken more time and had shown more insight in preparing the patients for tests they were to undergo.

The emotional reactions of patients who are anesthetized for surgery have also been studied in the post-operative recovery room and again, 18 to 24 hours later. Anxiety and irritability suggestive of a serious emotional disturbance were not seen in those who had general anesthesia until 24 hours after the operation.

Those who were awake during surgery, having had only spinal anesthesia, showed such symptoms when first seen in the recovery room.

The same reactions were found with patients treated for serious disease in intensive care units and on medical wards.

In another study, nearly a third of some 400 consecutive patients admitted to a coronary care unit required psychiatric supervision because of the severity of their anxiety or depression, or because their behavior became so inappropriate that their safety was in question.

Their treatment consisted sometimes of the administration of quieting medications, and sometimes, painstaking detailed explanations of their illness helped to quiet them. Others had to be moved to a less stressful environment.

An almost universally stressful encounter is that of open-heart surgery, evoking not only anxiety in the patient but in the professional staff around them as well.

Among twelve "normal" subjects undergoing such surgery, one psychiatrist found only four who had not developed overt psychoses in the course of their hospital stay. Five of the others became for a time quite out of their minds with delusions and hallucinations. Three suffered temporarily profound confusion and for a time loss of memory.

Happily these episodes are, for the most part, short-lived, but that does not make them any more acceptable. And the single most important factor in trying to prevent them, or in making them more bearable, is an understanding, devoted and on-the-job physician.

Heart attack victims live in mainstream of activity

By Jim Ketchum

A patient in the hospital has just been told he has suffered a heart attack. The reassurances from the doctor which quickly follow do not penetrate the mind as those two words "heart attack" reverberate, over and over.

Heart attack. The nation's leading killer, it took 675,000 lives and directly touched the lives of nearly four million more in 1971. Yet, the patient wonders, how can the doctor sit there and tell me I'll be fine?

Many patients approach the aftermath of a heart attack with the idea that they are condemned to a life in a wheel chair or in bed, a financial burden on their families and a useless part of society.

According to many who have been there, this is not necessarily so. Though some persons are severely restricted, the majority are capable of nearly full recoveries and can lead equally normal lives.

The watchword in that recovery which rings over and over is care. Patience, slowing down a little and a desire to return to an active life all go hand in hand toward a recovery.

Mrs. Royce Russell of Green Road, Gagetown, is living proof that it works.

Mrs. Russell, at the time, mother of three, was a walking dynamo. She recalls that before her heart problems, everything had to be done immediately.

"I think what led to my problems was that I was simply doing too much," she recalled as she relaxed in a living room chair in the comfortable, well-kept family farmhouse.

"I was helping my husband in the barn with chores, keeping house, raising my children and attending to all their functions in school and church. I just got completely tired out."

"I'm not a hustler by nature and I think I pushed myself too far."

The pushing ended in 1969 when an ominous shortness of breath took hold of her. Three times she wrote it off to an upset stomach or some unknown malady. The fourth time was too much.

Taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital, her problem was diagnosed as a heart attack. Fortunately, no damage had been done and, after a 21-day stay, she went home.

"I don't seem to remember being fearful," she reflected. "Although there was one time while I was there I remember someone came in and told me if I followed the doctor's orders completely, I'd be fine.

If I didn't, I'd die. "I remember I had a bad dream about it that night and even now, I'll wake up thinking about it. I wonder sometimes if I'm doing exactly what I should. It still haunts me."

Once back home, she began a regimen of walking a mile each day, while slowly taking on more and more to do.

NEW LIFE

She said her heart attack helped open a new life for her—a more relaxed life with things taken in stride. No longer must every task be accomplished in one day.

Today, at age 47, she finds she accomplishes just as much and enjoys it more. After conquering the emotional stress of adjustment, she finds the most important lesson she learned is to pace herself and not get tired.

This new philosophy has extended to every facet of her life. Three years ago, she gave birth to a daughter, Lisa. She said she bore up well under the added strain of a baby, better, perhaps than with the other three children.

"I wasn't cautioned against having more children," she said. "I was under a doctor's care and I didn't let myself get tired. Everything's been fine."

Today, she takes a blood-thinning drug and watches her diet. But for the most part, life still holds as much as it ever did.

"I think maybe it holds even more," she smiled. "My days are planned and I allow myself the rest I need. I really feel fine."

She and her husband were married 27 years ago by Rev. Melvin R. Vender in Cass City. Now retired at 83, Rev. Vender has had his own experience with the trauma of a heart attack and what it takes to recover.

It happened in 1959 in Marietta, Ohio, where he and his wife had moved following his leaving the First Presbyterian Church of Cass City.

Rev. Vender had decided to work part-time with the Marietta church in Christian education, along with calling on parishioners until he reached the mandatory retirement age of 70.

"Marietta is an extremely hilly place," he recalled as he sat at the kitchen table of their small, neat home on Church Street. "Most of the houses are built into the side of the hills and you have to climb steps to get to the main floors."

One day, after leaving the home of a parishioner, the pastor got into his car and prepared to drive away.

"All of a sudden I became very short of breath," he remembered, demonstrating the panting that overtook him. "I began to break out into a sweat and had chills. Then I started to feel the pain in my chest and I thought, is this how it's going to end? I never once thought about a heart attack."

As he sat there, struggling to breathe, a friend came by and noticed him sitting in the car. He stopped, jumped into the vehicle and drove Rev. Vender home where a doctor was summoned. By then the pain had subsided and the doctor decided not to hospitalize him.

REST AND RECOVERY

"The doctor told me to remain very, very quiet," he recalled. "He told me if I did, I'd be all right."

Recovery came, although he retired from the ministry at 68.

Today, Rev. Vender states emphatically that he feels fine. He daily walks downtown and has had no lasting ill effects.

"After the attack, my doctor told me that if I took care of myself, I might have another 15 or 20 years," he said. "This is the 15th year," he smiled, crossing his fingers. "And I feel fine."

Of those who suffer heart attacks, 80-85 per cent of them return to their same jobs and lead normal lives. Although the problems faced are very real, they should be dealt with as realistically as possible, according to Alton L. Blakeslee, science writer for the Associated Press.

In the publication "How to Live With Heart Trouble", Blakeslee states that the record of people with heart disease justifies hope and confidence. He emphasizes optimism in the recovery of a coronary patient.

Tuscola County Equalization Director Mac B. O'Dell embodies optimism in dealing with heart attacks. Stricken in 1959 with a coronary thrombosis, O'Dell found optimism a key element in his recovery.

Looking forward to a return to a productive life helps make it so.

"You find you can lead a useful, modified life," he said as he sat behind his desk in the basement of the courthouse in Caro.

After being stricken, O'Dell found his construction job too much of a strain and drifted through a series of jobs before going to work for the Equalization Department.

"There were plenty of ups and downs along the way," he remembered.

O'Dell agrees that the biggest problem faced by someone who has suffered a heart attack is the mental adjustment.

"You have to realize from that point on, you are limited," he said. "It's difficult to realize all of a sudden that you have a handicap. But you find that you can't ignore it. It won't let you forget."

O'Dell said another need the patient has is encouragement, but not to the point that he is not allowed to lead any semblance of a normal life.

"The family and friends of a heart attack victim have to adjust as well as the patient," he emphasized.

Planning, he agrees, is important. "If we make plans and it gets to a point that I'm just too tired, we don't go. You can tell right away when you've used up your energy."

O'Dell finds he must work at not getting uptight, saying tension is probably the greatest single cause of heart problems. He added that a heart attack patient has an advantage in that he can legitimately avoid the useless frenzy in life the rest of us must face.

Is O'Dell afraid of dying?

"No," he said. "I think about it once in awhile, but I'm not really afraid. A heart attack prepares you in that you've faced the reality of death squarely. It leaves you either fearful or composed. It takes a great deal of faith and adjustment."

He added that the heart attack victim probably has a better chance of living longer than the average person because he has had to slow down and face reality.

"And you get to live a good, full life," O'Dell said. "That's part of the problem with people these days. . . they take themselves too seriously."

MAC O'DELL. . . .concentrate on the essential and forget the frenzy.

MRS. ROYCE RUSSELL and daughter, Lisa, 3. . . . not an end, but a beginning.

Local FFA chapter looks toward farming challenges

By Jim Ketchum

"We're trying to keep their interest up and help these kids to develop themselves." That's how Lyle Clarke, vocational agriculture instructor at Cass City High School, describes his goals as advisor to the school's Future Farmers of America chapter. Clarke admits it isn't always easy, but he thinks the results are worth it.

He has served as FFA advisor for 20 years at Cass City High School and in that time, has seen a great deal of change in both the types of students who join FFA and in farming itself.

The local chapter boasts 35 members, all from farming backgrounds. It also boasts a girl-freshman Lisa Zimba as a member. And, while Clarke admits he has fewer FFA members today than in years past, he sees a positive future for the organization.

FFA is not a class, he explained. It is a voluntary part of the vocational agriculture program. FFA members have to take vo ag when they join.

Dues are three dollars a year, which include functions at the state and national levels. Meetings are generally held once a month the year round, including summer. Special meetings are also held as the need arises. FFA members participate in a wide range of activities and compete at county fairs and exhibitions showing and judging nearly every facet of farm life.

Among other things, members learn, through participation, how to conduct and take part in a public meeting, to speak in public, to buy and sell cooperatively, to assume civic responsibility and to finance themselves.

National headquarters of FFA are located in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and national conventions are held annually in Kansas City.

In Cass City, members have their own projects in crops and livestock. Clarke said emphasis is placed on record keeping to a great extent.

Members annually display their efforts at the Tuscola County Fair and the livestock show and sale held each July at the Cass City Livestock Exchange.

Members can also participate in a contest held yearly by Michigan Bean Co. in which they raise crops and keep records from planting to harvest. Prizes are awarded on the basis of both production and records.

Clarke explained that Cass City's FFA has sold Florida citrus the last few years. The organization plans to sell some 400 crates of oranges, tangerines and grapefruit this year.

With all these activities, FFA still finds time to study the basics of farming from planting to livestock raising to figuring monthly budgets. Clarke emphasized this as a major area of importance.

"I think markets are probably one of the most important things these kids will have to deal with when they get into the world of farming," he said. "This is one of the reasons we're involved at the livestock exchange. We want to do more than just turn these kids loose out there. We want them to understand how cattle are graded and judged and why they don't always get the price they think they should."

Clarke said about half the FFA members presently enrolled will stay in farming. Some may not enter it immediately after high school, he said, but eventually, they do return to some aspect of agriculture.

an unhealthy situation, he explained.

"Farms today are bigger and owned by a smaller number of persons than they were years ago," he said. "Thus, we don't have as many kids out for FFA as we used to have."

He said he foresees a renewed interest in farming among farm students, due in part to the dramatic rise in farm prices over the last year. But he added, money hasn't been the big object, even in the past.

Members have joined because of their natural interest in farming which has been maintained at a fairly constant level for years.

Clarke said FFA members tend to spread themselves pretty evenly between interests in cash crops as opposed to dairying. Hogs and beef cattle are also showing a strong upsurge in interest and study.

PROBLEMS

FFA is not immune to problems, the primary one being maintaining interest in the organization among the members as a whole.

"It's harder to get things going anymore," Clarke said. "Today the kids have more outside interests going and they have less time for something like FFA."

Meeting content has also had to change to meet new needs.

"Years ago, a movie was a big event at a meeting," he said. "That was before television. Now a movie is just another thing and it really doesn't hold their interest."

Strength of FFA organizations will vary depending on the state and its attachment to farming, he said. In Michigan, FFA has about 12,000 members in 225 schools.

FFA developed from an organization founded in Virginia in the mid-1920's and as a national organization marks its 46th anniversary this year.

It was chartered by Congress in 1950.

Clarke said a former FFA member is probably better-prepared to meet the complex problems of managing a modern farm than someone who has not been exposed to it. Its emphasis on markets, pricing and quality of products all aid in making farming decisions.

Clarke said it also helps a young farmer recognize when markets shift and why.

"We really can't train for the future," he said. "We can't even really train for next year or the year after that. But we do attempt to explain why change occurs and how to recognize it."

PREPARING FOR this year's cattle judging contest are three members of Cass City Future Farmers of America Jesse Zimba, Lisa Zimba and Randy Smith, vice-president of the chapter.

Police probe two gasoline thefts

Two gasoline thefts are being investigated by Cass City Police and Tuscola county sheriff's deputies.

Tuesday, Cass City Police reported gasoline was stolen from a car belonging to Andrew Parker of Lamton Road, Decker, while it was parked at Auten Motor Sales. The theft occurred sometime between Saturday night and Tuesday morning, according to Chief Gene Wilson.

Wilson reported several other vehicles parked in the vicinity had also been tampered with and several gas caps were missing. He said it was not known if any gasoline had been stolen from these vehicles.

Friday, Glen Van Wagoner of White Creek Road, Kingston, reported to Tuscola county sheriff's deputies that gasoline had been stolen from two tractors and a storage tank at his residence.

He told deputies he went to check the tractors and noticed the gas caps missing. A further check determined that the tanks were empty. The storage tank was also drained.

A total of 200 gallons of gasoline was stolen valued at $100. The theft occurred sometime between Jan. 29 and Feb. 14.

Both cases remain open. Cass City Police also re-

Croft named VP of assn.

Cliff Croft, president of Croft-Clara Lumber, was elected vice-president of the Michigan Retail Lumber Dealers Association at its annual convention held recently at Grand Rapids.

Over 2,000 lumber dealers attended the annual convention. Karl Vogelheim, Rogers City, is the new president.

Garrett to speak at Trinity

A minister participating in a program to reach Thumb-area vacationers will be the guest speaker at Trinity United Methodist Church Sunday, Feb. 24.

Rev. Robert Garrett, a member of the Detroit Conference Coordinating Committee on Leisure Resort Ministry, serves on an ecumenical ministry serving the Saginaw Bay Shore area from Bay Port to Harbor Beach.

He serves as pastor of the Grindstone City, Port Austin and Pinebush United Methodist Churches.

He will speak on "A New Look at Leisure."

ported the larceny of a tape player and four speakers from a car belonging to Henry Ciesielski of River Road. Police said the theft occurred while the car was parked in back of a service station within the last 30 days.

The theft was reported Saturday.

CATTLE ATTACKED

James Fader of 4609 Green Rd. reported to Tuscola deputies that sometime after noon Sunday, one of his cows was attacked by dogs while the cow was in the barn. He told deputies a similar incident took place Jan. 23. Also at that time, a 350-lb. heifer had been killed by dogs in the barn. He said he has no idea where the dogs came from or who might own them.

The dogs attacked the cow in its front legs, inflicting serious wounds.

Wednesday, Feb. 13, Walter Ann of East Bevens Road, Deford, reported to Tuscola deputies that the front license plate from his car had been stolen while the vehicle was parked in the garage at his home.

He said the theft occurred sometime between Feb. 8 and Feb. 12.

CCDC moves on site development

Cass City Development Corporation will move ahead with plans to develop land south of the Armet plant as a site for further industrial growth at a cost of approximately $15,000.

The decision was announced during a meeting of CCDC at the Municipal Building Tuesday night.

According to Secretary Michael Weaver, the site will be brought up to road level and water and sewer will also be made available. This latter cost goes beyond the $15,000 figure.

Weaver said six to nine months ago, two firms were interested in the site but the corporation was not ready to deal on it. Since then both firms have backed out.

"Once this work is done, we'll be ready to work with any firm immediately that is interested in building out there," Weaver said. He emphasized that the site will take a lot of work before it will be ready. No date for completion was set.

Weaver said the corporation is also pleased with the completion of Dr. Paul Chappel's clinic which did not exist a year ago. Weaver said Dr. Chappel has developed a strong, successful dentist's practice in Cass City.

At the meeting, Clifford Croft and Herbert Ludlow were re-elected to three-year terms on the board. Croft currently serves as president, while Ludlow is a member of the board.

The corporation presently has 163 voting shares of stock.

Arraign Fairgrove man Tuesday

A Fairgrove man was arraigned in Tuscola County Circuit Court Tuesday and charged with the unlawful distribution of marijuana at Akron-Fairgrove High School.

John Pierrof was arraigned before Judge James P. Churchill. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered in his behalf. Pre-trial examination was set for March 4 and bail was continued.

The offense occurred Jan. 17.

In other court action Tuesday, the court took under advisement a motion filed by Milton Shields asking for a new trial. Shields was convicted as a criminal psychopath and is presently serving a sentence in Jackson Prison. Judge Churchill also granted a motion for dismissal of charges against Lamont Whitlock, Caro. Whitlock had been charged with larceny of a service station in Caro.

A jury trial of one day was

Lorie Spear in review

Lorie Spear, a Michigan State University freshman and 1972 graduate of Cass City High School, explores her personal concept of culture as she reviews the MSU fine arts entertainment program as part of her humanities class.

Thirty-five MSU students attend a multitude of cultural events including the Lecture-Concert Series, Kresge Art Center Gallery exhibits and various programs offered by the Department of Music. Then they write a paper evaluating the event.

Bishop Pipes Jr., professor in the Department of Humanities, introduced the Humanities Performing Arts class in 1972 to encourage students to make use of the numerous cultural and educational facilities available on the MSU campus.

During the term, each student attends at least eight cultural activities. They also meet with their instructor to assess their personal concepts of culture and how they are expanding through the added contact made possible through the course.

Miss Spear is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Spear of Rt. No. 1, Phillips Road, Deford. She is majoring in psychology.

Sherrard queen Saturday

Reversing the trend of the past two years, Delores Sherrard captured the crown as Sweetheart Queen at the Campus Life Sweetheart Pageant held Saturday night at Vassar High School.

Miss Sherrard, a senior at Cass City High School, took the crown in competition with representatives from seven other schools. First runner-up was Renee Mowry of Akron-Fairgrove High School and Kerry Wells of Vassar High School was second runner-up.

DELORES SHERRARD

She indicated she will accept a free bike trip through Europe this summer as a member of Campus Life's European bike trip. She will spend most of July and August touring much of France.

For her talent entry, Miss Sherrard played the trumpet and sang a solo. She also collected between $800 and $900 in pennies through a collection drive at a number of Cass City stores.

Funds raised by contestants will go toward paying for the pageant and toward financing the Campus Life Clubs.

For the past two years, Cass City's representative finished in the first runner-up slot.

Uninspired Hawks bow to aroused Harbor Beach five

The Cass City Red Hawks move back into Thumb B Conference competition Friday at Vassar and must be hoping that the Vulcans prove to be more hospitable than the Pirates of Harbor Beach were Tuesday.

The Pirates soundly defeated the Hawks, 71-53, to make it a game each for the two clubs this year.

The Pirates dominated the game because they dominated the backboards. Paced by Ron Wruble, an agile 6' 3" center, Harbor Beach just about eliminated second shots for Cass City and picked up many points on second effort shots on offense.

Cass City was playing without Sophomore Guard Chuck Bliss, but it's doubtful if his presence would have changed the eventual outcome.

Cass City fell behind in the first quarter and it was all downhill from that point on. At the half, Harbor Beach had forged into a 37-28 advantage.

By the end of three quarters, the Beachers had stretched it to 15 points and about the only question that remained was how much the final margin was going to be. Cass City was guilty of numerous turnovers and in general played uninspired basketball.

The Hawks were led by Scott Hartel who netted 14. The only other Hawks in double figures were Dave Hillaker, 12, and Nick Gibas, 10.

Wruble netted 21 and Terry Woyechoski added 16 for Harbor Beach.

Time is growing short for Cass City prior to tournament time. After Vassar this Friday the Hawks play Ubyl at home and then conclude the regular season March 1 against Bad Axe.

That gives the team just three games to get ready for the district in Cass City. Judging by the results of games during the season, Harbor Beach will reign as slight favorites.

Despite recent reverses, the Hawks are not far behind and both Deckerville and Sandusky have shown flashes of brilliance. It promises to be a wide open tourney.

JV'S WIN BIG

While the varsity gave the home fans little to cheer about, the Junior Varsity sparked. It was no contest as Cass City pounded out a 64-43 decision in the preliminary.

MARLETTE GAME

Cass City got back on the victory trail last Friday with a win as expected over Thumb B Conference tail enders Marlette. The score was 76-56.

Most fans agreed that the Hawks have played better games than they did against the Raiders but there were bright spots for Cass City rosters.

One was that the Hawk guards found the open man with consistency against Marlette. Passes by Chuck Bliss and Jerry Toner helped Scott Hartel, 22 points, and Nick Gibas, 20 points, to big scoring nights.

But the Hawks were still guilty of numerous turnovers. Cass City was charged with 19 while Marlette was little better, committing 18.

Actually, most of the statistics of the game were close. Cass City shot 36 per cent and Marlette 27 per cent. Rebounds were 50 to 49 in favor of the Hawks and Cass City shot 68 per cent from the charity stripe as compared to 56 per cent by Marlette.

The statistics were closer than the game. Cass City moved off into a 14-7 first quarter lead and was never seriously threatened after that. Coach Fred Hurlburt turned to his bench liberally throughout the second and fourth quarters and seven of the 10 men on the team figured in the scoring.

After the relatively low scoring first period, both teams started to find the scoring range. At the half, the Hawks were in front 35-27.

The Hawks were led by Hartel, the team's most consistent player in recent games. Besides his game-leading 22 points, Hartel picked off 20 rebounds.

Pete Diegel led Marlette with 18 points, the only Raider to break into double figures.

JUNIOR VARSITY

The Hawk Junior Varsity rolled to victory in the preliminary with an easy 64-49 decision.

The line score:

Cass City	14	21	20	21
Marlette	7	20	14	15

Cass City — Hartel, 22; Bliss, 3; Gibas, 20; Toner, 12; Hillaker, 8; Helwig, 2; Eberline, 4.

Marlette — Pete Diegel, 18; Chapin, 2; Elliott, 2; Cambert, 7; Marsh, 7; Glad, 9; Elliott, 4.

Volleyballers

win one, lose

The Cass City Girl's Volleyball team racked up one varsity win and two losses in competition against Caro, Marlette and Vassar last week.

Wednesday, Feb. 13, the varsity lost to Caro 15-7 and 15-5. Sean Ouyry scored five points in the first game while Karen Martin made four points in the second game.

The JV's took two 15-6 wins over Caro's JV's, with Beth Erla scoring a total of 14 points in both games. Chris Stace made six points and Elaine Stoutenburg added five more to the total for the two contests.

Thursday, Feb. 14, Vassar took the measure of the varsity in three games. Vassar took the opening game 15-7, but Cass City came back to even the match by a 15-2 tally in the second contest.

Vassar won the third game and the match 15-10. Cass City showed some sparkling individual performances, with Karen Martin scoring nine points and Nancy Koepgen and Karen O'Dell each adding eight points.

Cass City's luck changed Monday against Marlette when the girls took their match in three games. The varsity won the first game 15-12, then dropped the second to Marlette, 15-8.

But then the girls charged back to take the match 15-7.

Among the top scorers of the night were Deb Selby with 10 points and Sean Ouyry with nine for the evening, followed by Karen Martin with eight.

Nancy Koepgen and Elvia Pozzi each scored four points. The JV's whipped Marlette's JV's 15-0 and 15-1 with Beth Erla scoring all of Cass City's points.

The team was scheduled to meet Frankenmuth Wednesday, Feb. 20, and wind up its season against Vassar next Monday.

Freshmen win final 3 games

The Freshman basketball team ended its season with a flourish by winning the last three games played.

The latest victory was over the Bad Axe Hatchets Monday when the team walked off with a 60-37 decision.

Selected as most valuable player was Rick Selby and as most improved player was Bill Shagene. Mike Lowe led the team in scoring with a 14.8 average.
