president of the Cass City Lions Club and was voted Lion of the year in 1971.

He was one of the first board members of the Cass City Development Corporation and served as president of the former Cass City Community Club. Little is also a former director of the Chamber of Commerce, former area director of the American Red Cross and served on the district committee for Boy Scouts.

Little was also instrumental in organizing the Tuscola County Health Department and served as a director of the Michigan Funeral Director's Associ-

In 1953, he was awarded the Genesee County Distinguished Service award for assistance in the Flint Tornado.

In 1970, he received the outstanding service award of the Michigan Funeral Directors Association and in 1971 received that organization's Humanitarian Award.

In making the presentation, James Bauer, a former recipient of the award, recalled the number of years Little worked to display Cass City's Christmas decorations and his aid in organizing the Christmas pageants.

Bauer also recalled that Little spent two nights a week at Teen Ranch near Kingston working with the boys in their shop. Bauer praised Little for his work with Artrain and his volunteer work in helping to construct the hospital gift

The award was presented to Little by Bauer in place of last year's winner, H.M. Bulen, who is in Florida.

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN-THURSDAY, APRIL 25, 1974

Farmers will feel brunt of new property tax assessments which residential property has increased with commodtook the heaviest increases, according to a report to the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners Tuesday,

The report, submitted by Equalization Director Mac B. O'Dell, indicates that Tuscola county presently ranks close to neighboring counties with respect to valuation in-O'Dell said the county averaged an 11,14 per cent increase in 1974 over 1972 totals. This compares with Sanilac county's 13.3 per cent assess farms this year. increase, Huron county's 10 ner cent jump and Lapeer's 14.2 per cent hike.

O'Dell explained that, under the law, all classes of property are to be studied each year. He added that his department is physically unable to handle that much work and so must do what it

He said that from 1972-74, 94 sales of acreage were recorded in the northwest part of the county and 67 parcels sold in the Kingston, Koylton, Ellington and Wells township area. In these sales, prices per acre ranged from a low of $480 to a high of $761.

Elkland township's average was $447 per acre. O'Dell speculated that land which sold for $350 per acre two years ago would go for a considerably higher amount "I would estimate that land would jump anywhere from $25 to $100 per acre, not across the board," O'Dell

O'Dell told commissioners all acreage beginning with 1972 through 1974. To exclude Commissioner Kenneth Kennedy asked why residences took the brunt of increases one year and farmers took it the next. He con I not follow Sanilac sponsors in the program county's lead and not re-

O'Dell replied that this would be an open invitation for the State Tax Commission to come in and reappraise without any method of protest by local officials.

Commissioner Maynard McConkey agreed that reassessing farms this year would be discriminatory, favoring Kennedy's statement.

O'Dell replied that this is where Sanilac county got into trouble and why it was jumped 32.64 per cent in valuation in 1973 over 1972.

"They just got too far behind on land values,' O'Dell said.

Board Chairman Shuford Kirk placed the blame for the present tax situation on what he termed "our do-nothing legislature". He said assessments are not too high, but "The problem is taxation," Kirk said. "I've said that for years. There needs to be restructuring of taxation at the state level."

The Equalization Departhe favors a complete study of ment plans to undertake the acreage study this year and O'Dell asked the board to regarding the work.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, the board learned that the tri-county manpower consortium it agreed to enter into with Huron and Sanilac counties was turned down by state manpower officials.

While not stating any reason for the refusal, state officials said the consortium did not meet the requirements, adding that only a wondered why the county limited number of prime federal sources in Washington. The balance of the state. which is grouped separately, must receive funds channeled through Lansing. Kirk said the consortium is effectively dead and the county can expect smaller, limited manpower funds.

Under the plan, a prime

In other business, the board decided to go ahead with plans for new heating, plumbing, ventilation and electrical systems for the courthouse at

Most of these systems are still original, Cmmr. Me-Conkey said, adding that this cost could be justified against the cost of constructing a new courthouse. He said the present structure is basically sound

The board asked the firm of Hyde and Wolters to prepare bids on the projects.

The board also approved the hiring of a new veterans counselor, James T. McCann of Akron. He replaces Lila DeBoer, who is retiring, McCann will begin work June

Voters OK millage Monday

Cass City School District voters approved 2.5 mills for operation Monday by a 479-137 vote, with four spoiled ballots, The vote does not affect the total millage paid by district voters-21.1 mills.

Without the additional operating millage, Cass City would have lost some $145,000

Supt. Donald Crouse explained that with the vote, the state will now assume the equivalent portion of debt retirement.

The protest sale saw 122 head of cattle sold for slaughter at Cass City's NFO collection point to the Murray Packing Co. of Plainwell, with estimates of up to another 100 cattle being sold Tuesday.

The protest involves an expected drop in the price of milk following a drop in the price of cheese of nine cents per pound last week on the Wisconsin cheese market. Dairymen fear this price will be reflected by June in their milk checks.

The protest, called by NFO, asked dairy farmers to sell one cow for slaughter Monday in an effort to create an artificial shortage and keep the price of milk from falling.

Presently, a dairy farmer receives an average of $9.30 per hundredweight for class one milk, according to Detroit figures for March supplied by the Michigan Milk Producers Association. NFO leaders contend that it costs farmers an average of $11.00 per hundredweight to produce the milk, citing rising food and transportation costs. Dairymen must also pay costs of transporting their Humphrey said cheese prices in Wisconsin have fallen sharply since last week which will translate into a drop of some 90 cents per hundredweight in the price of milk paid to dairy farmers.

"If we can move enough cows to market, they just won't be able to do it because they won't have the product," Humphrey said. "Farmers will simply go out of business because they can't afford to operate. Selling out is the only protest they have."

Humphrey said new prices will be set May 5. These are "Right now it only costs the American consumer 16 to 17 per cent of his take-home income to buy food. That's the lowest in the world. All the farmer is asking is that he be allowed to at least break even, just like any other business.'

There are blue Mondays, but this was ridiculous. The television wasn't working right. Then the dryer decided not to heat and moments later the washer started to thump, thump, thump and groaned to a halt.

That wasn't the worst, oh no. After spending several weeks looking for a willing boy to hire I gave up and had to help rake that monstrous lawn of ours on a day just perfect for golf, for watching baseball or for soaking up the sun.

I've the blisters to prove it, too.

Cass City's Science Quiz teams bowed out of competition in contests with two Midland schools. The results were taped and will be aired Sunday, April 28, over TV-5 at 7 a.m. when Midland Central was the winner, and May 5 at 7 a.m. when Midland Northeast was the winner.

Members of the May 5 team are Tim Spry, Mark Stahlbaum, Capt. Tom Brinkman and Cathy Hobart.

Almost before you know it regulations to kill pollution in the Cass River sneak up on you. And about time, too. Up for approval is a license for the sewage disposal plant to discharge treated waste into the river.

According to a legal notice published elsewhere in the paper, the Michigan Water Resources Commission will grant the license if no objections are heard.

If authorized, the permit means that the plant can operate until June 30, 1977.

"If It Fitz . . . " Dr. Brothers bothers me

BY JIM FITZGERALD

During 1 lunchtime, Dr. Joyce Brothers should be force-fed all the cheeseburgers I haven't eaten in the past

Also, Congress should reopen its investigation of TV quiz shows. There may still be a chance to prove Dr. Brothers is really Max Schmeling in drag.

Joyce Brothers is known today as the psychologist who regularly appears on TV talk shows with her knees locked together. She talks about sex as if it were something delivered to your home once a week in a plastic bag.

We oldtimers remember when Dr. Brothers was the world's greatest expert on prize fighting. Around 1955 she appeared on a TV quiz show and won thousands of dollars by remembering how many beers Tony Galento drank the night before he decked Joe Louis, Nobody could understand how a little lady who looked like a 3rd grade school teacher could possibly know so much about the violent world of boxing.

Then it was revealed that the quiz show was rigged. Several of the contestants admitted they were given the answers backstage before they were asked the questions on camera. TV viewers couldn't have been more shocked if they'd learned Walt Disney's Mousketeers were a Communist plot to put a rat in the White House.

Nothing was ever proven against Joyce Brothers, although the boys at Stillman's Gym could certainly be excused for making insulting accusations. She simply took her thousands and disappeared for several years. Then she returned to public view with a doctor's degree in psychology. She somehow gets paid for writing a newspaper column and appearing on TV. Her specialty is giving obvious answers to stupid questions, sort of an Ann Landers for people who can spell psychology without caught on that I am miffed at Joyce. Why? Because she recently decreed that the sexiest men today are those with paunches and short hair. I had a brush haircut for 20 years before my wife and kids finally convinced me I'd become an artifact in danger of being east in bronze or embalmed. Now my hair brushes my ears and I must wash my lousy head every morning to make sure it really isn't. I had a marvelous paunch but I got sick of hilarious friends asking me whether I wanted a boy or a girl or a beachball. So I quit eating lunch and candy and everything go at. I lost 20 pounds and I had to buy new clothes. Now every time I see someone eating ice cream I kick them in their fat stomachs. I drag complete strangers in off the street and insist that they measure all the room left when I put on my old pants. I no longer have to worry about my friends insulting me because I don't have any.

So now comes Dr. Brothers saying today's women like chubby men. "The phallic symbol is being replaced by the status symbol," she said, and nothing gives a man more status than a paunch and short hair.

Her theory is that times are tough and money is short.

"Serious times call for the man with the look of authority and stature," she said, and worried women "are drawn" to a father figure.'

No one is giving Dr. Brothers the answers ahead of time, so her theory is probably baloney. But women will believe it and there I am..... the skinny guy alone at the end of the bar with my hair -hanging_in-my_beer._All_the_ dollies are at the pizza parlor, kissing crumbs off sexy guys named Fatso and Tubby.

It is people like Dr. Brothers who make it difficult for people like me to proceed Onward and Upward.

His tunes "The Entertainer," "Maple Lear"
"Pineapple Rag" and others bubble over with rhythm, intricate syncopation and a zest which must have come from his life. The only tango he wrote, featured in "The Sting", is a piece called "Solace", which must have reflected something less than joy at the time Joplin penned it.

For it takes advantage of minor keys, a complicated beat and occasional mournful chords to get the message across that, yes indeed, this is solace that Joplin is trying to convey--an alleviation from some hurt and a source of consolation over something lost, never to be regained.

Joplin died in 1917, long before he had the chance to see his work truly appreciated for what it is worth. He did not live to see ragtime melt into jazz with all its offshoots such as swing, rhythm and blues and rock and roll.

Ragtime was a radical departure in Joplin's day and it took an innovative, somewhat brave individual to dare try making a living writing and performing in this new form of expression.

Ragtime was considered by some as totally lacking in socially-redeeming qualities as is rock and roll by some today. It was lewd, wicked, unfit for proper ladies and gentlemen to listen to or enjoy. Musical notes were never meant to be hammered, rearranged and trampled upon in such a manner.

But as time went on, popularity grew until ragtime blossomed into big money, Joplin, an innovator, must have seen something like it coming when he committed himself to its perpetuation with his contributions.

Joplin did not live to see other innovators build on his foundation and create new modes of expression in popular music: But those who succeeded him owe Joplin and his kind a debt of gratitude for legitimizing popular music and making it a saleable item.

Wherever Scott Joplin is now, he must be smiling broadly every time he hears "Solace" or "The Entertainer" being played on that newfangled thing called a radio.

It must be a satisfying smile because a third generation of listeners are appreciating his music and are enjoying.

That must be the ultimate tribute he could be paid.

By Tom Bartol 4-H Agent

Over 350 4-H youngsters, leaders and parents attended the Marlette Spring Achievement April 6, at the Marlette High School. The day-long program began with a series of evaluations of the garments constructed by the youngsters in the 4-H personal appearance projects. The youngsters' projects were evaluated in the areas of sewing, knitting and ero-cheting. The highlight of the day's activities was the evening style show MC'd by Diane Mittlestat in which the youngsters modeled their apparel before the audience. The style show also featured the presentation of awards to the individuals whom the judges felt did outstanding work in their project. I might add that the most prevalent comment from the judges was that there were so many outstanding garments that it was next to impossible to single out specific award winners.

Those youngsters receiving style review awards in Young Miss Knitting were: Terri Shephard, Shelly Mahaffy -Flynn Hustlers; Brenda Wood, Pam Wood - Germania Silver Stars; Kathy Innis, Barbara Roggenbuck, Chris Wendorf, Margaret Roggenbuck - Lucky Stars, Jr. Miss winners: Wanda Shephard -Flynn Hustlers: Carol Wood, Carolyn Weber, Luann Chappel - Germania Silver Stars; Dawn Adam - Lucky Stars; Christal Schulze - Odellville Orbitors, Sr. Miss: Ann Mc-Phail, Vicki VanEtten - Odellville Orbitors; Debbie Wood -Germania Silver Stars; Gail Pudelko - Lucky Stars.

Ballot battle begins as Dems blast Milliken

Political winds blow ever stronger-and it's still months until election day,

With a slick press brochure and a blast at GOP incumbent William Milliken, former State Sen. Sander Levin officially opened his gubernatorial campaign recently. Levin, the Democrat who lost to Millikon last time around by some 44,000 votes. "broke the news" (which most folks knew already) at press conferences in Berkley. Lansing and Grand Rapids. And he was sounding like he figured the Democratic nomination is already his. In a release handed out to reporters, Levin spoke of "my opponent, Mr. Milliken."

But another man is seeking the Democratic nomination, and others could crop up. How well the other announced candidate, Southfield attorn-

Wells has indicated he's interested in one main topic: busing. He's against it in no uncertain terms

Former Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanaugh's status as a candidate remains up in the air because of his health.

When he announced recently that he'd undergo an operation for a tumor on his kidney, Cavanaugh left the door slightly ajar. He might just get into the race if health Milliken, meanwhile, says he'll not hit the campaign trail in earnest until later in the year. Affairs of state come first.

But of course the governor thinks politically, a point much in evidence when President Nixon came to Michi-Thumb earlier this month to campaign for GOP congressional candidate James Sparling.

Milliken, not known for his closeness with the president, had plans to be in Toronto. But he did make time to say hello to Nixon in the Saginaw

Probe police car vandalism Monday night

State Police from the Caro Post are continuing to investigate the vandalism of a patrol car parked overnight in Cass City Monday. A police spokesman said the windshield on the vehicle was broken, the top light was stolen and the roof and rear deck were caved in. Damage was estimated between $200 and $300. Police said the incident may be related to another incident the same evening involving a Cass City Police patrol car. Vandals reportedly threw a large rock at that car while it was parked in front of a patrolman's home. Police are continuing to investigate.

the state could not do that. basically because such a policy discriminated against out-of-state processors who used some ingredients allowed by federal law, but not by state statute. So lawmakers came up with the warning sign idea. And state agriculture department inspectors are beginning to look for the signs. They don't seem to be finding many.

Many stores say they won't sell products below Michigan standards; that the signs would turn customers off.

The department has a suggestion for buyers, though: If you suspect a product isn't up to Michigan standards, but you didn't see one of the vellow-and-red signs, let the department know, "Contact us and we'll check it out," says Ronald Leach, chief department food inspector.

In other words, he may be thought of as belonging to one of the many subgroups of patients that have in common a heart attack. The patients in each subgroup may have a very different course and varying outcomes, depending on what else is going on in addition to the heart attack. There are probably a hundred or more subgroups of possible combinations of diseases that may affect the course of a heart attack, as well as complications in the heart attack itself.

As things are now, it would be a great help if your doctor had available to him a quick summary of the course and outcome of, say, a hundred similar patients of the same age and with the same complications, instead of having to depend solely on his own personal experience.

It is asking a lot of any doctor to put all the factors together in any individual case. Much depends on his own experience, how much help he can get from his colleagues, his books, his meetings and his study of medical reports.

Ideally, the more experienced he is, the better his grasp of the case at hand will be, but one physician can rarely have at his fingertips the absolutely correct course of treatment for every subgroup that comes his way. That is really what is meant by the old saw that the practice of medicine is the practice of making firm decisions on the basis of inadequate data.

No one can be sure how many subgroups would have to be defined in order to have a sufficient accumulation of similar case histories to cover all possibilities. But a beginning can be made. And this is where computers may well play a major part in the management of complicated medical problems,

The use for the computer would consist in the detailed accumulation of all the data necessary to describe accurately the course and outcome of a whole range of combinations of disease.

For example, suppose a young diabetic with liver disease whose eyes were giving him trouble and who has a peptic ulcer comes down with a heart attack, Computer information about similar young men, with those same combinations of problems, could be retrieved from the computer before any decisions are made concerning the patient at hand.

This way it is conceivable that every doctor would have access to the accumulatedexperience of one, or even all, of our medical centers to support his management of serious problems and help him in ways that his own personal experience simply could not be expected to do. Something like this is now being worked out at the Duke University Medical School in North Carolina and, once such a medical experience data bank is available to practising doctors, we can expect great benefits in the wise management of the sick.

Yes, you can

freeze cheese

You can keep cheese in good condition for several weeks or months depending on how you store it.

For short-term storage, just refrigerate the cheese in the original wrapper until you're ready to use it. After opening, wrap cut cheese in foil, waxed paper or plastic wrap to prevent drying. An alternative is freezing the cheese. If you do, only small pieces -- less than one pound and no more than two inches thick -- in moisture proof wrapping. Pressing the wrapping tightly against the surface will remove all air and keep the cheese from drying out. Cheese frozen at zero degrees or lower will keep satisfactorily up to six Freezing some varieties will affect their texture. Hard cheeses, such as Cheddar, Edam, Gouda, Swiss and Provolone, may become crumbly. However, they can still be used satisfactorily for cooking.

Other cheese varieties can be frozen with no texture change. Soft ripened cheeses like Camembert, Liederkranz and Limburger fit this category. You will have no problems with Roquefort, Gorgonzola, Stilton and blue cheese varieties because these are naturally crumbly. The very hard cheeses, such as Romano, Sap Sago and Parmesan, also freeze well. To thaw cheese, just place in the refrigerator and use as soon as possible.

FATALITY

Tuscola county recorded its fifth traffic fatality of 1974 late Wednesday night when Donald J. McDonald, 36, of Bad Axe died in a one-car crash on Frankenmuth Road about four miles southwest of State Police from the Caro Post who investigated said McDonald was injured about 11:00 p.m. when the car he was driving missed a curve on Frankenmuth Road, struck a fence and a tree.

McDonald was supervisor of a food concern in Vassar, Police said his car left skid marks 176 feet long at the crash site and the car tore up

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Area police reported several other traffic accidents attempted to pass another last week. Late Wednesday night, a car driven by Richard P. Brinkman, 16, of North the road, causing the car to go Dodge Road, went out of control and flipped over on Owendale Road south of Owendale.

> State Police from the Bad Axe post who investigated said Brinkman attempted to pass another car at a high rate of speed as he traveled south. The car went out of control, struck a mailbox and then a utility pole before rolling over three or four times.

A passenger in the auto, Jeffery S. Leinweber, 17, of Gagetown, sustained facial lacerations, according to police.

AROUND THE FARM Seed treatment still important

By William Bortel

The practice of treating seeds with chemical pesticides is presently receiving critical re-evaluation by the seed and elevator industry. Grain elevators are having difficulty complying with Federal Food and Drug Administration and Environmental Protection Agency regulations controlling pesticide application and handling of treated seed in and around food or feed grains. As a result, less pretreated seed will be planted by Tuscola farmers in 1974 than in previous years. This is especally true of seed processed and supplied by the elevator

The problems with treating seed are not related to the effectiveness of chemicals cide along with Streptomycin used in aiding seed germination and crop performance Seed treatment is still a recommended agronomic practice. Therefore we are listing several alternatives a grower may consider:

1. Buy pretreated seed if available.

2. Buy untreated seed and apply a drill box treatment at planting time (or slurry treat prior to planting if equipment is available).

Drill box treatment is recognized as effective for most crops and suitable formulations are available. A new three-way drill box bean seed treatment was registered last week with the State of Michigan. This is a John Hopkins Company product and contains a fungicide and insectifor surface-borne bacteria

> PLANTER BOX APPLICATION RECOMMENDATIONS

Barley & Oats: 0.7 - 2.1 oz actual Maneb per bushel. Soybeans: 1.75 - 2.5 or actual Chloranie or 0.40 - 1.75 oz. actual Chaptam per 100

Fire destroys car Monday

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed an auto driven by Jim Willis of Huntsville Trailer Park late Monday afternoon on Koepigen Road a mile and a half north of M-81.

Elkland township fire officials said Willis told them he was driving the car and noticed smoke coming from under the dashboard. Flames burst out just as he got out of the car. Willis was not injured.

Total value of the vehicle was set at $800 by the department. The alarm was sounded at 4:20 p.m.

Barnes speculated such a move by dairymen might have an adverse effect on the beef market which has already undergone a series of price drops in recent months.

Barnes said how much the price of milk might drop in the wake of downward fluctuations in the cheese market could not be determined presently and that figures tossed around by the NFO could not be considered accurate.

"They (NFO) don't know what they're talking about,"

He acknowledged a five and one-quarter cent drop in the cent drop in the price of cheese would eventually translate into lower milk prices, but he said it's too early to speculate how much.

He added that MMPA does not plan to get involved with the NFO protest on the basis of rumors or unconfirmed

The group left Saturday, April 6, from Detroit and flew to New York; then on to Zurich and eventually on to Munich, nestled in the heart of the Bavarian Alps.

All three had ample opportunity to practice their German under real-life conditions and fared well, according to Miss Krauss. They found the people willing to listen and to help them find their way.

They immediately discovered customs are not the same, especially in German restaurants where water is never served with a meal.

"To ask for a glass of water at a German restaurant would be like asking for water at an American restaurant and then dropping a Fizzie in it," Miss Krauss said. "It just isn't done and, if you ask for water, they consider it an

The food, they found, was excellent and all agreed that they overate.

Normally, Miss Krauss said, breakfasts are light, consisting only of coffee and a sweet roll.

The big meal normally comes at noon which includes several courses and no dessert. The evening meal consists of a lunch with desserts.

LANDSCAPE

The three agreed that the landscape of Bavaria and Austria holds some of the best scenery in the world. Karen said she enjoyed seeing farms tucked into mountain-side meadows. Spring was out in force when the group toured the area and they were amazed to see the number of flowers in bloom. 'They have flowers everywhere," Miss Krauss said. "The landscape is very clean and people plant flowers everywhere.

The traveling did get them down a few times, especially following the trans-Atlantic flight. They lost so much time that often they fell asleep on tour buses. "The guide would wake us up by saying we were to see something very important," Karen recalled. "Then we'd just go back to sleep."

When they finally got their bearings, they enjoyed looking at Munich's Olympic Village, site of the 1972 Olympic Games. They also toured the former Dachau prison camp where thousands of Jews were slaughtered by the Nazi's during World War

'The tour really impressed us," Pam said. "They could have made the presentation a lot more gory than it was, but they didn't. It's hard to imagine that it all really happened. It made you want to cry. Miss Krauss said the German people are still reticent about discussing their bloody past, particularly the prison camps. They would just as price of butter and a three soon not have American tourists asking probing questions about that phase of German history.

She said they particularly resent American servicemen stationed in their country because of the way their predecessors marched into their country. Many Germans feel the American GI's

COMBATTING ALCOHOLISM

Michigan wants to identify-and help-those state workers who have problems with drinking. To accomplish that end, the Civil Service Commission has authorized use of $50,000 for a one-year pilot program to help those employes with alcohol or drug problems.

Do you drink to build up your self-confidence? Do you want a drink the next morning?

Just one week after the governor sent that request to the commission, there came a related report from acronautics experts.

The Michigan Aeronauties Commission says that 61 new airports will be needed in the state by 1980. Its aviation study found that airline passengers in Michigan totaled some 4.5 million by 1970. That figure will be about 6 million this year and will continue zooming upwards--to 10 million in 1980, 14.5 million in 1985 and to 19 million in 1990.

The number of air craft based in Michigan also is going higher and higher, from 6,000 in 1970 to a projected 14,500 in 1990.

The air traffic report, along with Aeronautics Commission proposals for new airports, is being submitted to the Highways Commission for consideration in its comprehensive Woodcock has indicated the financial strain caused by devoting more time to county ably go down to defeat along government and less to his insurance business in Vassar is causing him to have second thoughts about running again.

his decision not to run was final "The demands of county government are simply too great anymore," Ducker said. "I sold my business and became semi-retired, but in the last three years I've had only three weeks vacation. I'm working as hard now as I did before. It's more than I care to handle.'

With Kirk, Ducker and Woodcock, (should be decide not to run) stepping aside, the complexion of the board is bound to change, according to has a leave of absence from District Two Commissioner Maynard McConkey.

McConkey told the Chronicle Thursday he plans to seek election to the board for his second term.

McConkey, first elected to the board in 1972, served as Elkland Township Supervisor for four years and called his first two years as a commissioner "very interesting."

"For one thing, I found out a lot of things I didn't know,' he said. "It takes a long time to become oriented to the job and what happens depends a lot on your committee assign-

McConkey presently serves on the embattled personnel committee, the health committee and public works. He said these assignments involve a lot of study and that it akes most of a commissioner's first term to become oriented.

Florida great, seniors agree

By Jim Ketchum

Senior trips have changed a lot since Miss Nancy Auvil, teacher at Cass City High School, graduated in 1968. Then a Cass City student, she recalls her class's senior trip consisted of an evening of dinner and dancing at Sherwood Forest in Gagetown.

This year's seniors celebrated a little more extravagantly. They spent a week in the fun and sun meccas of Florida and most agree it was something they'll never for-

And, most add, they're ready to go back anytime. "It sure beats wading through all that snow," Lori Stahlbaum grinned as her deep suntan told the tale of how she spent her week in the land of the swaying palms.

The group left Detroit's Metropolitan Airport at 3:00 a.m. Sunday, April 7, bound for a change of planes in Atlanta and then on to Tampa. From there, the 40 high school seniors boarded a bus and headed for St. Petersburg, where they spent the next four days doing just about what they wanted, but mostly soaking up lots and lots of Florida sunshine. And, while it wasn't quite the adventure of last year's class which spent a week in the Bahamas, it was still a trip everyone seemed to enjoy Following four days in St. Petersburg, the group toured Busch Gardens and then traveled to the Orlando area for a look at Disney World before flying back to Detroit the following Sunday at 3:00

Miss Auvil, who acted as chaperon for the group, gave high marks to the students for the way the trip went.

"The kids showed they were really mature," she said. "They realized that they had assumed a lot of responsibility in this and they behaved very well."

She said aside from a few cases of sun sickness, the group stayed healthy for the entire trip.

Praise for the group came not only from their advisor. Brian Althaver said managers from the various motels where the group stayed would come aboard their bus the following morning and compliment them for handling themselves so well.

"In fact, we had one manager tell us that we could be very proud of ourselves and that he wanted us to send another group like us down next year," he said.

How To Start Your Own Farm For Only $750,000

THREE EASY STEPS:

1. Find a real land buy, say one-thousand acres at $500 per acre. That totals $500,000.

2. Capital investments to get started add up this way: You'll need four tractors with various implements, a grain combine, a bean combine and lets say a modest pole barn. Total outlay $150,000.

3. Now you've got your land and equipment. Next you'll need working capital. Figure an overall working capital of $100 per acre. You've got a thousand acres so you'll have to borrow another $100,000.

You have just put together a three quarter of a million dollar corporation. That's what they call Agri-business.

They used to call it farming.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will conduct two rural soil and water conservation programs this year instead of the usual one, according to Bill Bortel, Tuscola county extension director.

from a U.S. District Court decision reversing the action which terminated the 1973 Rural Environmental Assisresult, funds are now available for implementing the 1973 REAP, as well as the new Rural Environmental Conservation Program (RECP) authorized by the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act

Rural residents have until May 1 to sign up for RECP cost-share funding of soil and water conservation practices under long-term agreements. Requests for annual practices under RECP will be received as long as funds last, while sign-ups for cost-sharing under the 1973 REAP will be available on a similar basis. The Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) is for livestock waste storage ponds, drainage tile and other conservation practices.

Hawks post track win over Caro

Cass City scored a comparatively easy victory in its opening dual track meet of the year as the Hawk thinclads rolled to an 82-41 decision over the Lakers Monday at Cass City Recreational Park

Despite the win, Coach Dale McIntosh said that plenty of work remains to be done. We had some decent times considering the weather and the wind, he pointed out, but showed definite weaknesses in field events and hurdling.

Lakers are in the midst of a rebuilding program and are one of the weaker teams in the Thumb B Conference, McIntosh feels.
