Drive to rehire McKinley fizzles at council Tuesday

An attempt to have former Police Officer William Mc-Kinley reinstated fizzled at Tuesday night's regular meeting of Cass City Village Council held at the Municipal

The attempt came in the form of a 22-page petition presented by Mrs. William Hollosy of 4125 West St., who described the effort as a way "to show how the people

The petition drive began May 1, following what some have called McKinley's firing from the force because of age and what others, including village council and President Lambert Althaver call re-

Althaver reviewed the situation, stating again that McKinley did not meet police standards. He said at the time retirement was offered to the former officer, he accepted, with the stipulation that he be offered further employment with the village on the Department of Public Works

Althaver noted McKinley has not yet reported for that

He admitted McKinley did not ask to be retired, but restated that early retirement was offered to him and he accepted

The village president also stated that a further check of birth records at the Tuscola County Clerk's office show McKinley to be 62 years old presently, making him eligible for social security pay-

Mrs. Hollosy said the former officer chose to take early retirement because he had no choice and questioned why the action of retiring him came without prior warning.

"The people want answers to a lot of questions," Mrs. Hollosy said.

She said the people who signed the petitions want McKinley back on the force if he will accept it. Council members noted many names appearing on the petitions were persons living outside the village limits, including Mrs. Hollosy, who lives a block south of the corporate line.

She replied that whenever the sheriff's department is called, many times a Cass City officer is dispatched. Village officers are deputized to handle calls when needed outside the village.

"The people are hollering about how unfairly this was handled," Mrs. Hollosy said. "This isn't right at all,"

Althaver responded that the council is charged with maintaining public safety and is charged with hiring men to handle it. He said McKinley was not in a position to do

"In fact, a number of citizens have asked that he be relieved of duty," Althaver said. He said the situation was handled in such a way to avoid a public hassle.

"As far as council is concerned, the decision stands and McKinley is considered to be retired," Althaver said.

Trustee James Ware said

no council members wanted to make the decision to retire McKinley, but said the need existed.

"Personally, I don't want a 62 year-old man handling a bar fight," Ware said. "I feel he's too old to handle it."

Mrs. Hollosy charged village officials had overworked the former officer the night before President Nixon's visit to Cass City and that he had only two hours sleep in a council faced many problems and it could not concern itself with the business of taxpayers outside the village.

The petitions, photostatic copies, were submitted to council for scrutiny, but most observers agree McKinley will probably not be rehired. Council took steps to fill the vacancy when it discussed the 51 applications thus far submitted for the job.

Many were submitted by Detroit area police officers who want to move from the The public safety committee has reduced the number of applicants to five and routine checks are being run on these candidates before final interviews are held. All are currently working police of-

The question of a starting salary came up without any definite answer. Council did pass a resolution giving the committee authority to hire a policeman at a salary somewhat lower than the present low of $8.712.

Some councilmen felt to hire an officer at a pay higher than the salary of the lowest in the department would cause morale problems Presently, Patrolman Donald Miller is low man in seniority. At the time of his retirement, McKinley was earning nearly

Trustee William Bliss strongly advocated a revision of salary structures for the police department which would eventually see officers doing equal work receiving equal pay,

He said policies ought to be established regarding grades, salaries, longevity and retirement age which would avoid the hassle of the McKinley incident.

It was noted that two applications for the vacancy came from officers 60 years old who are through in their own departments.

In the resolution vote, Bliss voted against the proposal because of its inequity in pay, The final vote was 4-1, with Trustee Richard Hampshire

Deford man fair after car slams house

A Deford man remains in lair condition in Saginaw General Hospital from injuries resulting when his car rammed a house at the intersection of Maple and Elizabeth Streets early Saturday morning. Russell Allen Maxwell, 19, of 6317 Shabbona Rd., suffered multiple injuries at 2:07 a.m. when his car, southbound on Maple Street, failed to stop at Elizabeth and struck the Gary Guilds residence at 6574 Elizabeth. Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies who investigated said the Maxwell auto was traveling at a high rate of speed at the time of the mishap. Maxwell was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital and later transferred to Saginaw General. No one in the house was injured, although an unidentified person was asleep on the couch at the time of the accident. Furniture in the living room of the home was overturned and dishes were jarred from kitchen cupboards and smashed on the

The house was jarred at its foundation and several large rocks were thrown into the living room by the force of the impact.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Several other minor area accidents were also reported to police last week, two occurring Wednesday, May

At 9:25 p.m., a car driven by Lambert E. Althaver, 43, of 4618 Kennebec Dr., struck and killed a deer while traveling on M-81 just west of Hurds Corner Road.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies who investigated reported Althaver was driving northeast on M-81 when a deer ran onto the roadway in front of the car. He was unable to avoid a collision, the

At 9:35 p.m., cars driven by Joseph Santos, 24, of 6404 River Rd., and Wilmer Gettel, 52, of 6258 Schwegler Rd., collided on Cemetery Road at Elizabeth St.

Sheriff's deputies reported the Santos vehicle stopped to pick up a hitchhiker while traveling south on Cemetery

Road and was struck from behind by the Gettel auto. No injuries were reported and no ticket was issued. Kurt J. Freiburger, 19, 4728

Two Church Street residents appeared before Village Council to complain about what they consider a serious water runoff problem from a neighboring construction project at council's regular Tuesday night session at the Municipal Building. Harold Adams and Mrs. Konrad Konwalski told trustees recent torrential rains have ruined their garden areas because of heavy runoff from the newest apartment building constructed by Smith Builders, Caro.

They claimed the runoff, caused in part because of changes in the contour of the area around the building, ruined their back yards and washed considerable soil onto Church Street.

They suggested construcwondered what council could do to help.

Village President Lambert Althaver responded that Smith Builders has met every village requirement including placing sod around the building and this should prevent future runoff problems.

Mrs. Konwalski replied that sod will not help ease the problem because the slope was changed too greatly. Althaver told them the situation would be studied but that he could-offer no ready solution.

Trustee Dr. D.E. Rawson suggested that perhaps a civil lawsuit is in order instead of municipal action. He said he did not favor getting village government involved in a matter strictly between neighbors. "While I certainly don't advocate lawsuits, if you can't resolve the problem any other way, you may have to resort to it," Rawson said.

The apartment building in question is located on Hill Street, but extends east to join the Adams and Konwalski properties. Mrs. Konwalski said she tried to discuss the problem with the building company but failed to get satisfaction. She and Adams claim Smith's property is now between five and 10 feet higher than their lots.

Mrs. Konwalski said she and Adams had discussed building their own retaining wall, but cannot because of holes 30 inches square in the sidewalks to plant the trees. Six trees per block are presently planned, Little said. Dr. Rawson raised the question of young children breaking the trees off. Little replied that experience in larger cities has shown generally the trees are left alone once they are in

The Chamber also advised council it opposed any restriction or ban of parking on Main Street in the areas

Courtney said such a ban would stifle business and halt growth at either end of Main Street.

Chamber fears arose regarding a "when-and-if" contract the village will be asked to sign with the State Highway Department regarding street parking.

Basically, the document states that, when and if the state deems it necessary, all on-street parking on M-81 can be prohibited. Althaver explained that the agreement is actually nothing more than a formality and the state has rarely used it. He cited Caro's crowded parking conditions on its Main Street as an example of state non-action. If it came down to signing the contract or losing the estimated half-million dollar improvement, the Chamber representatives said they would not oppose it, but went on record opposed to a ban on on-street parking.

Lynn Albee and Bill Kritzman, representing Cass City Development Corporation, came before council asking permission to tap into the village sewer running through the adjacent Curt scheduled for widening this limits without annexing its 3712 acres to the village.

President Althaver again restated council's position that no utilities could be provided properties outside the village limits without annexation. "Personally, I can't see what the fuss is all about," Althaver said, "I did some checking and the tax difference between staying outside the village and coming in amounts to $32.50 per year for the total property at present valuation He said CCDC could solve its dilemma by annexing. By doing so, Althaver said, the corporation would have access to village engineering services and be assured the sewer would be built to Albee said a possible client for one portion of the property retracted his offer because no water or sewer hookups existed, Kritzman added that the work should be done now because it is most economically feasible to the corpora-

"I don't want you to feel we're putting roadblocks in your way," Althaver said, "because we support your work. But this is established village policy." The CCDC representatives gave no indication what their next move would be.

OTHER BUSINESS

Cass City will be one of three locations in the state to receive a three-by-five foot plaque honoring General Lewis Cass, presented by the Masonic lodge, it was learned, Three members of Tyler Lodge No. 317 told council the unveiling is scheduled for July 20, and requested a place to put the marker. Council delegated a final decision to the park committee, but it is assumed the plaque will be placed temporarily and moved to a permanent location once swimming pool construction is completed. Council also awarded the North Seeger Sewer project to Andrew Barnes Construction Co. of Cass City. Bid price was $14,151. Construction is expected to begin shortly. Council learned that Federal Revenue Sharing for next fiscal year will amount to $55,666. This includes a normai $32,843 as well as $22,000 to make up for a computer error which shortchanged the village that amount in the last entitlement period. Trustees discussed issuing a license to Larry Mis of Caro to sell ice cream from a vending truck in the village this summer, Council decided to issue the license and consider rewriting its 1951

"If It Fitz..." Go forth and digress

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Once again it is the season for me to write the commencement address I won't deliver in person because speeches make me itch. Besides, no one asked. I am something like Spiro Agnew sitting in a Greek bar waiting for the phone to ring.

Anyway, speaking of vicepresidents, it's probably only fair that Gerald Ford be allowed to give all commencement speeches this vear. He should always have a speech scheduled tomorrow so he can explain he didn't really say what you thought he said about Nixon yester-

But I digress. My commencement address has added importance this year because my daughter Chris is graduating from high school. I have a lot of important things to tell her if I ever see her again. She only comes home to wash her hair and change overalls. I run into her in the hall once in awhile but by the time I've finished introducing myself she is always called to the phone. I'd like to tell Chris I remember her but I've forgotten the formal dress she willing to dance with his date the price tag, I do not recall if or burlap. So why couldn't she wear it to the prom this month? Why do girls insist they can't wear a formal twice in the same world because EVERYONE will know it's OLD and no one will dance with them for fear of catching boll weevil fever from cutton sabotaged by Eli Whitney's slaves?

There was once a gangster who wore his sox only once and then threw them away. I'll admit I thought that was pretty classy. I figured that neighbors would be mightily impressed by an ever-growing pile of sox under my bedroom window. But I don't have nerve enough to look under Chris' window. It must look like Saks 5th Avenue

Come to think, proms have become strange things.

When I was a two-stepping youth, each guy got a dance card and a pencil stub as he entered the hall. The first thing he did was fill out the card by finding a dozen guys wore to that dance a few while he danced with theirs. months ago. Even though I Everybody was thereby con-nights together, so. . . . . "). At today's proms, the kids dance once and then see how far they can go for a late dinner. By the time the last dance is played, some of them are having their luggage checked through customs. If they wanted to say goodnight to the band leader, they'd have to send a postcard.

But I digress, I always digress. In fact, that is the theme of my commencement address: "Students, go forth into the world and digress. To digress means to stray from the main subject. The main subject is usually a big pain and it is only while digressing that you smell the flowers, hear little children giggle, and look at girls'

Rotary Club sets travelogue June 7

The Cass City Rotary Club is excited about a show that it is bringing to Cass City High School Friday, June 7.

Excited because members are convinced that it is the finest presentation of its kind available and because it can be offered here for just $1.00 per admission. The cheap price is because Eastman Kodak sponsors the show and presents it without charge for charitable events. All proceeds will be used for the youth exchange program of Rotary International. That's the program that the many foreign students have used to find their way to Cass Equally as impressive as the screen are the experts who will present the show, "Caribbean. . . . Picture Treasures",

One is Robert S. Harris, a well-known lecturer, teacher, judge and author on photography who has directed photo teams in 20 countries.

The other is Edwin A. Austin, senior photographic specialist in the photo information department for Kodak.

Water is the way in the Caribbean and the show features it. Close up shots of the World Championship Sunfish Regatta off Martinique featuring underwater sequences and eye level shots of the boats approaching give the effect of being there, according to the experts.

The show takes the viewer island hopping through all of the stops of the famous explorers and buccaneers. . . Dominica, St. Croix, Curacao, Grenada, Isle de Saintes, Guadeloupe, Martinique, Jamaica and Trinidad.

One of the spectators at the Memorial Day festivities Monday was Bill Profit. If you are expecting a meaty news item. . . . or even a bit of trivia, forget it.

The only reason I mention this is that each time I see Bill I marvel at how young he looks. He's in his 70's (I think) and all of his hair (his own) isn't even gray yet.

It's strange but true. A lot of folks weren't all that pleased with Cass City's basketball record this year despite the enviable final results. They wanted a league championship,

I thought of this when writing that Fred Hurlburt had taken another job and was checking the records for facts.

His first year he was 12-8 following a 1-16 season here the previous year. Accolades for his coaching came from all sides. How easy it is to forget and expect more and more each year. The question is, "What have you done for us lately?", when you are talking about high school coaching.

Fred Auten called my attention to the current campaign to get pennies back in circulation this week. There are 30 billion pennies circulating today. . . . and 30 billion in hiding, the experts say.

The powers also say that a penny will continue to be a penny and will never have any numismatic value.

If just one billion pennies come out of the cookie jars the taxpayers will save $10 million.

And to think that most of us these days hardly figure a penny found in the street is worth the time it takes to pick it up.

The Memorial Day parade was a little larger this year than it has been in recent years, but the crowd along the main stem wasn't. I'd estimate it was about the same as it has been the last five years or so.

Enough to take all the parking on Main and comfortably fill the sidewalks. That was a sharp contrast to three hours earlier or three hours later when you could have shot a cannon down M-81 without injuring a soul.

Speaking of traffic it appears that the short-lived gas conservation program is over. Fritz Olsen, who runs Trend Vendors, has a cottage in the north country. ## College opens new doors for Deford mother of 14

By Jim Ketchum

Of the recent graduates at Delta College, none is probably more satisfied with the experience than Mrs. Laura Cherniawski of rural Deford.

What started as an avenue for as she sat down at the kitchen a better job turned into a personal growth experience that probably won't stop in the near future.

Mrs. Cherniawski, mother

"It was a challenge that I of 14 children, smiled broadly really enjoyed," she said, as Mary, her youngest daughter, 4, climbed on her lap. "With 14 children, a person can get into a rut with a family. You find after while, you need a new perspective on life. There has to be more to life than dirty diapers and bottles." So, in the fall of 1970, at age 40. Mrs. Cherniawski gathered pens, pencils, paper and text books and set out in quest of an associate degree.

The idea started at Marlette Community Hospital, where Mrs. Cherniawski has worked part time the last six years. Several of her fellowworkers urged her to seriously consider going to college and becoming a registered

The idea took root and grew until she acted.

"When I started, I hadn't cracked a book for 20 years," she recalled. "It was quite frightening at first."

The first year she took classes part time, while continuing to work part time and attend her large family. Then came two full-time terms, followed by a serious set-

"I broke down with tuberculosis and spent a whole year at home," she explained. 'Then a year ago last spring I went back and took one class. Last fall I took two and two more winter term.'

Her illness changed her plans and she ended up with a liberal arts degree. She still plans to continue her studies in psychology.

She has made an application at Saginaw Valley College and hopes the school can offer the courses she needs at

RESPONSIBILITIES

Mrs. Cherniawski said the most difficult part about going back to school was delegating her family responsibilities to the older children.

"The most difficult part of the experience was coping with the inner conflicts I felt," she said. "It meant leaving the children to manage for themselves when I was gone. But my kids are pretty responsible and they took over and did a beautiful job without any back-talk at all. They've worked together well for many years.'

Today, at age 43, Mrs. Cherniawski is a self-confident person who has a better understanding of herself and the world around her. She said she discovered a whole new life through her college education

"I find I can cope with the world and with my own mistakes now and be able to understand them better," she observed.

She said her college experience has given her a new perspective on life and opened her world socially.

"I feel that I can carry on a conversation with anyone now, whereas before I tended to feel inferior," she said. "I enjoy studying politics now and forming an informed opinion,-but-before-it-just didn't interest me, probably because I didn't understand

She said other attitudes, especially relating to cultural and religious matters, have changed.

"I was brought up in a strict Catholic home and was taught to follow the teachings of my parents and the priest," she recalled. "Now I realize that I can think for myself. Before everything was pure black and white. Now I can see the exceptions and understand that you have to live your own life.' She said her college experience has belped solve a lot of her inner conflict and has shown her that the world has changed. When her oldest son was doing his undergraduate work, she said they would always get into an argument when he came home because of his liberal views which at the time she did not under-

"Now, at least I can cope with that kind of thinking instead of simply rejecting it," she said.

NOT EASY

Mrs. Cherniawski readily admitted going to college at 43, after being mother to 14 children, was not easy.

Sometimes, days started long before sunrise and did not end until nearly midnight.

"For awhile, in order to get scholarship money, I had to attend 12 credit hours per week," she explained, "That meant at least one night class per week. On those days, I left the house at 6:00 a.m. and didn't get home until after 11:00 p.m. Other days would run from six in the morning until four or five in the afternoon. Through it all, she still continued to work two days a week at Marlette Hospital. Six of her children are on their own. Her oldest son has a bachelor's degree and is working toward a masters. The rest are either working, going to college or both.

Eight more remain at home. What do they think of their mother joining the ranks of the college-educated? "They think it's a pretty good thing," she said. "I've talked with a lot of women who have thought about going back. It's been a wonderful change for me because it's brought me the only real social life outside the home I've known.

Her studies of life have brought her the first selfconfidence she has known and have helped her through the especially tormenting experience of divorce.

Why does she want to study psychology? "It's helped me understand myself better and I'd like to know more about it," she said.

Her immediate plans call for her to remain closer to home for the summer. One day last week, 6,000 tomato plants waited to be planted in a shed outside the house. Along with other vegetables, the plants would become part of a truck garden.

Mrs. Cherniawski said this used to be a way of life for herself and her husband. One year, she added, she ended up in a hospital from exhaustion.

Next fall, when her youngest daughter starts school, she will resume her studies and continue on the path that has opened new vistas for her

Who buys tickets?

Who buys lottery tickets most frequently? A working man or woman with an above-average family income, living on the fringe of a metropolitan area.

That's the picture that emerges from research conducted by the Michigan Lottery Bureau advertising agency, the Leo Burnett Co. Lottery Commissioner Gus Harrison says the findings confirm many of his bureau's preconceptions about who buys tickets.

The average ticket buyer, the research shows, tends to be a bit more affluent than had been suspected. Areas with a predominance of people with family incomes in the $15,000 -$25,000 bracket appear to be better ticket markets than any other. The 1970 census estimated the average family income at $11,032, yet the areas with average incomes ($10,000 -$15,000) finished second to the next higher income group in the lottery survey.

"We would have guessed that those with average incomes would have been our best customers," Harrison says. But, he adds, "the study shows that the rich and the poor tend to buy less frequent-

Race appeared to be the least significant of the factors included in the study, the bureau reports.

As expected, ticket sales are below average in rural areas, Harrison says, and there is a direct relationship between the urbanity of an area and its ticket sales.

"We assume that the below average sales in rural areas are due primarily to the limited access to ticket selling locations, and the fact that the attitudes of those in rural areas are undoubtedly different," he says.

Jim Clothier, Koylton Township Supervisor, doesn't have a whole lot of free time these days. And, as far as he's concerned, that's just the way he wants it.

"I'm a work-a-holic," the 29-year-old supervisor smiled as he leaned back in the black leather chair behind his desk at his insurance agency in Clifford, "I guess I thrive on What Clothier, youngest , supervisor in Tuscola county, thrives on is two jobs, a golf league, a softball league, and starting a third business as well as supervising presently turbulent Koylton township and being a father to four pre-teen children.

Clothier became Koylton supervisor in January of 1973,

Sporting long hair and a trimmed goatee, his tastes encompass wild print shirts and equally colorful wide neckties

"Lots of times I'll have people ask me if they can see my father, the supervisor," he explained, lighting a cigarette and twirling the ashes in a nearby ashtray. "When I tell them I'm the supervisor, they can't believe it.

Clothier got the job because he was asked to take it. Sixty hours of training to become a certified tax assessor later, they swore him in.

Just then, the dispute over Thumb Teen Ranch's building permit started to boil

Work is nothing new for Clothier After graduation from North Branch High School, the Koylton native, whose grandfather served the township as supervisor, went to work at Pontiac Motor Division.

"The first year, after starting from scratch, I made $250," he laughed. Since then things have gone well, so well that he and a friend have bought the building next to his insurance office which will become a laundromat.

He said he likes being involved in so many things, not just for the money but because he gets to meet a wide variety of people.

"You get to meet people from just about every walk of life when you see as many as I do," he said. "Sometimes it's funny, I don't get home until 3:00 a.m. and somebody will call at seven to complain about their taxes. But that's the hours they work and I enjoy being a part of it."

He enjoys it so much that he plans to seek election to the office this November, He's fairly confident he'll win, too.

IN ECONOMY CARS, DODGE BOYS ARE RIGHT ON TARGET.

DART SPORT GOT 27.3 MILES PER GALLON.

Our Darts feature USAC-proven economy.

Our big winner was the six-cylinder Dodge Dart Sport which got 27.3 mpg. That was better gas mileage than the Chevy Nova or Ford Maverick got in the USAC test. (All three cars were sixcylinder, manual shift models.)

In addition, our popular Dart Swinger hardtop with automatic transmission got 23.6 mpgwhich was better than the Nova stick shift got. (Both Dart and Nova had six-cylinder engines.) For you V8 fans—the real topper was a Dodge Dart Sport with 318 V8. It got 21.7 mpg. Again, this was better than the Nova Six got. (Both the Nova Six and Dart V8 had manual shifts.)

The USAC "Miles Per Gallon Showdown" was a three phase test using nonprofessional drivers. Mileage figures appearing in this ad are from the open road phase of that test which covered a distance of 972 es at an average speed of 53 mph. The Dart Sport six cylinder car had the new standard 2,76 rear axle. For complete results and more surprising facts, see your nearby Dodge Dealer. The board of education is asking that the expiring 4 mill levy that was approved in 1972, be renewed and 212 additional mills be approved for operational purposes. This 612 mill request will be as a single separate issue for a two-year period. This 612 mill levy in addition to the 914 mills allocated at the county level and the 814 voted mills having one more year to run, total 24 mills for operation.

Curricular improvement is much more costly in a school the size of Owen-Gage and requires a much greater taxpayer effort for each improvement begun. Under the present state aid funding method, the number of children enrolled is the most critical factor in school financing. As student numbers decrease, state revenue does also, so that local tax effort must be on the increase just to maintain programs.

The building situation is such that at the secondary level, improved facilities are all but a necessity if curricular programs are to improve at that level.

One must keep in mind that many people who oppose the annexation split would read the rejection of that issue as a mandate to attempt another building program. There are as many facets of voting "yes" as there are voting "no". The electorate must be aware that there will be complications whichever road they choose to take. There are also many people that approve the annexation and split that would not consider any building pro-

With the present valuation of the district, to adequately house the children of the district could conceivably cost from 7 to 15 mills for a 29 year period. If the building costs were to be extended to keep the millage rate down to about 7 mills the life of the debt could increase to as much as 40 or more years. Such arrangements are possible and must be considered if one is to be adequately informed before voting.

BETTER HEALTH

Understanding needs of the aged

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ and DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

A few years ago one of my wife's relatives, at the age of 80, became too ill to go on living alone in a hotel room, and so the question arose: Where could the family find a chair, a small table, a rocker good nursing home where the or a lamp that they especially man would be cared for with . skill and much kindness? Fortunately, the man's sisterin-law found a splendid home, built and managed by a dedicated church group.

The kindly, able woman who runs the home writes the man's sisters from time to time to tell them how he is getting along. When he needed a prostate operation, it was well performed by an able surgeon. Because the patient had enough property, and turned it all over to the home, his two sisters have not had to pay a cent for his care, which is very fortunate.

There the man has had very good care.

I have read that some nursing homes are not entirely satisfactory. The book "Tender Loving Greed," by Mary Adelaide Mendelson (Alfred A. Knopf, 201 E. Fiftieth St., N.Y., N.Y. 10022) gives a distressing picture of the "nursing home industry," and the poor conditions which are too common in our country's nursing homes.

People who are facing a decision about whether they or a loved one should enter a nursing home, and must choose the proper one, will be interested in a booklet entitled "How To Choose A Nursing Home," prepared by Citizens for Better Care and the Institute of Gerontology, the University of Michigan and Wayne State University.

The authors suggest that people "shop" carefully in advance for a nursing home so that a decision does not have to be made during a crisis when there is not enough time to visit and compare a number of homes. Sometimes it is not necessary for the person to go into a nursing home; assistance from visiting nurses or relatives who can help with such things as preparing meals, shopping, and housekeeping can make it possible for the person to stay at home. The Visiting Nurse Association can provide experts on nutrition, physical therapists and nursing care. There are organizations like the Meals On Wheels, which bring hot meals twice a day.

In the booklet are a good many excellent suggestions on what to look for in sizing up a nursing home. For example, one should pay particular attention to the types of meals served. Notice whether the staff members seem to care for patients as human beings. Do they refer to patients as if they were habies or children? Older people resent this attitude. Are the staff members friendly; do they talk to the patients? Do they answer questions and requests... promptly and politely?

Is the patient's privacy respected, especially toilet privacy? Do the staff members help the patient keep in touch with friends, relatives and with outside activities? Are there newspapers and magazines, places for crafts and hobbies and recreation? Is there a beauty parlor and barbershop available? Is the patient's language spoken?'

In talking with the admini-strator, do you find him willing to show you all parts of the home? Is his current license displayed, or will he show it to you when you ask? Are all bills itemized, including drug bills? Is a lifetime contract required? If one is involved, be sure to have an attorney look it over in detail. Ask about the rules; do they seem reasonable? Can patients bring with them personal furniture such as a

It is important also to check on such safety features as fire extinguishers, well-marked exits, fire escapes, and whether the corridors and ramps are wide enough for wheelchairs. Are there hand rails in the corridors, grip bars in bath tubs, toilets and

Are there any offensive odors? This may indicate lack of attention to incontinent patients. Are the bed linens neat and clean? And most important for the patient is whether the home is truly "home-like," a place where a person can live happily and comfortably.

Mrs. Eloise Snyder writes that the booklet costs $1 and is available from the Institute of Gerontology, the University of Michigan, 543 Church Street, Ann Arbor, Michigan

Anyone needing a nursing home, or with a relative or friend needing such a home, should certainly get the booklet. It is invaluable.

Only Genesee, Saginaw and Washtenaw counties rank higher, he added.

Peterson explained that under the proposal, federal monies would finance 95 per cent of an estimated $50,000 to set up the program for the first two years, with the balance coming from state

The board also learned from Sheriff Hugh Marr that a grievance involving extra pay for overtime worked during President Nixon's visit

Marr explained to the board that the contract signed between the department and the Fraternal Order of Police states that scheduled overtime is paid at straight-time rates, while unscheduled overtime is paid at time-anda-half.

The grievance was referred to the personnel committee for final action.

Faith in God is essential to society. Without it there is friction - then distrust and . . . ruin.

In church people find faith that gives greater meaning to life in a complex and rapidly changing world. Is your life running smoothly? Why not attend church

Cass City Chronicle Cass City, Mich.

To the Editor,

We are in agreement with the comments made by Mrs. Ben Hobart in last week's paper in regard to high school consolidation.

We too have a tuition student attending Cass City High School and consider it money well spent. We and our son are more than satisfied with the curriculum offered by the Cass City schools. He finally was able to get the classes he wanted and needed which fit into the line of work he hopes to pursue after graduation.

The results definitely show themselves in better grades. Give a student a choice of subjects he likes and can use later as he follows his life work and he will do well. Subjects here referred to are Agriculture Farm Mechanics, Auto Mechanics and the very worthwhile FFA organization. Not one of these is offered in the farm oriented rural school of Owen-Gage. I can well appreciate the remarks made by Mrs. Murl LaFave. Since college is one thing and O-G does have the May 24, 1974 basies for that. But not half of the students attend or should attend college and it is these children that are missing out and losing the most from what is offered to students going for careers not associated with a college degree. There is O-G's greatest weakness - which ought to be strongest. There is no reason why a student, if he wishes, can not take part in as many extra activities as he wants or has time for in Cass City and no doubt Lakers. I can name at least a half dozen or more students from O-G going to Cass City this year that are just as active, if not more than they have been in O-G. The real issue in the upcoming split vote I think concerns a matter of economics. Where and how can we get the most for our education

You will either decide to join a still small, but well rounded school district, offering the best for all students or you will choose to remain in a smaller district which is unable financially to offer a well-balanced education for all students.

The choice is yours.

Mrs. Harold Koch Gagetown

YANKEES-CUBS

Doing the hurling for the Yankees was Tim Johnson who struck out 10. The Severance brothers, Tim and Randy led the attack for the Yanks, Tim went 2 for 3 and Randy picked up a safety in two tries.

The Tigers posted their second win of the week by lopping the Pirates Thursday, May 23, to stay perched at the top of the league standings.

the second inning. Terry Tuckey also went two for three for the winners. Stine struck out six for the losers, Joe Doerr went three for four and Joe Decker was one for one for the Cubs.

Hurlburt turned the basketball program around in his first year here, 1969-70. The previous year the Hawks were 1-16. In Hurlburt's first year Cass City turned in a winning season for the first time in years, 12-8. In the next four years the Hawks were 5-12, 5-12, 18-6 and 18-8,

Hawks roll to pre-district win

Cass City qualified for the district play-offs in the State baseball tournament Saturday at Sandusky by rolling over Mayville in the pre-district, 9-1.

There were bright spots galore for Hawk rooters last Saturday. One of the brightest was the pitching of Jerry Toner.

Toner, last year's mound ace has been slow rounding into form. Against Mayville he allowed just three scratch hits and struck out 11. It was by far his best outing of the vear.

The Hawks made Toner's task easy by hammering out nine hits while salting away the game in the second inning with a four-run outburst.

Leading the Cass City attack were Dan Mellendorf with three hits and Chuck Bliss with two hits in three

The victory pits the Hawks against the Lakers in the district. The Lakers own a victory over Cass City early in the year.

The Hawks are confident that they will be able to turn the tables when the chips are down Saturday. If they do they will play the winner of the Vassar-Marlette game for the title and the right to move into regional competition.
