NEW ADMINISTRATOR Randy D. Howard sees no insolvable problems at Hills and Dales Hospital.

Saginaw General takes over administration at hospital

Randy D. Howard, new administrator at Hills and Dales General Hospital, said Tuesday that after a day and a half on the job he can see no major unsolvable problems at the facility.

The greying, nattily dressed Howard leaned forward in his office chair and explained that he felt that the problems he sees ahead are minor compared to those that many facilities face.

Actually, Howard is employed by Saginaw General Hospital, and is coming to Cass City under a program that started in Greenville, N.C., and was copied successfully in Minnesota

The board at Hills and Dales has entered into an agreement with Saginaw General Hospital to provide full time hospital administration and management to Hills and Dales.

Howard sees two of the big advantages of the program as enabling Hills and Dales to ago. reduce costs through bulk joint purchases with Saginaw General and the financial experts that will come to help and advise Hills and Dales.

The hospital board issued a statement that said in part:

The two hospitals will explore and try to develop means of possible cost savings for Hills and Dales through joint purchasing of hospital supplies, food and drugs, analysis of department operations and nursing services, institution of employee and supervisor training programs, etc."

The new administrator has a long history of hospital service. He worked as a radiologic technologist at Methodist and Presbyterian hospitals in Dallas, Texas, and at Saginaw General.

He left hospital work to study at Cornell University where he earned a master's in While employed by Saginaw General, Howard said that he expects his duties at Hills and Dales to be a full time position.

Howard is not now married. He is a native of Dallas,

With around 10 per cent of the area wheat harvest in, indications are that this year's crop should equal last year's production barring a continuation of sprouting caused by rain.

price stood at $4.19 per bushel, compared with $3.37 per bushel just a year ago. Wischmeyer indicated the price continues to rise stead-

County-wide cooperative extension agent Don Kebler indicated this year's crop looks good, but recent damp weather has induced sprouting of grain still in the field, He added that much of the grain already harvested had

3 still critical after 2-vehicle crash Thursday

Three persons were in critical condition Tuesday in Saginaw hospitals suffering from injuries in a two-vehicle crash Thursday evening at the corner of M-53 and Bay

City-Forestville Road. At St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw are Marcia Ann Glaza, 36, Ubly, and Daniel Lee McAlpine, 17, of Cass City, At Saginaw General Hospital is Diane Kaye

Stanczak, 17, of Marlette. According to his mother, Daniel McAlpine is suffering extensive mouth, shoulder, face and brain damage in addition to other injuries. Both the youth and Ms.

Claza are in the neuro-surgical unit at St. Mary's. Ms, Stanczak was transferred to Saginaw General from Hills and Dales General Hospital. She suffered head, shoulder and leg injuries. Cynthia Ann Smith, 27, of

Ubly is recovering at Hills and Dales Hospital from a

The crash occurred when a car driven by McAlpine collided with a pickup driven by Ms. Smith. She was the only person of the four injured in the crash that was conscious. She told State Police from Bad Axe who investigated that McAlpine went through a stop sign without stopping and she did not have time to avoid the crash.

The two cars were hurled into an open field near the corner, about 100 feet from the point of impact.

Troopers administered first aid and neighbors brought blankets while waiting for ambulances from Cass City and Bad Axe to arrive. Ms. Stanczak was a passenger in the McAlpine car and Ms. Glaza was a passenger in the Smith pickup. It was a full hour before Little's ambulance arrived. Roger Little said that the delay was caused because fractured nose, bruises and authorities were under the impression that he had been bruises and no bones were called when he wasn't.

An unidentified lady called to report the crash but did not request an ambulance and said that officers were at the scene. Little said that he then figured that service had been obtained from another community.

BIKE ACCIDENT

Fourteen-year-old Steve Bean is recovering at Hills and Dales General Hospital after an almost miraculous escape from serious injury after he was hit by a car on South Cemetery Road.

The youth was riding his bike towards Cass City about 300 yards north of Elmwood Road when his shoelace caught in a spoke and he swerved in front of a car driven by Alan Lee Halasz, 21, of Cass City.

According to the boy's father, Steve was thrown over the hood of the car by the impact. He suffered only broken.

The youth attends Cass City Intermediate School and was the Thumb B Conference's best performer in the 100 and 200-yard dashes this spring.

MINOR CRASH

A minor accident was investigated by the Cass City Police Department Wednesday, July 24.

Cars driven by Donald Frank Yax, 18, of Cass City and Suzanne Wilcox, Louisville, Ky., collided on the Main and Seeger Streets intersection.

According to the report of Patrolman Donald J. Miller, Yax was in the left lane and Ms. Wilcox in the right lane, both headed east on Main.

Both attempted to turn right onto Seeger Street and the Yax vehicle struck the Wilcox car. No tickets were issued.

Good, bad news at school

There's good news and bad news emulating from Cass City Schools this week.

The good news is that district taxpayers will pay less in taxes than they did the previous year. . . . the bad news is that an apparent settlement between the district and the Operating Engineers has been rejected. The good news first. Supt. Donald Crouse said that his tentative assessment of the financial situation at the school and the State Aid provisions the school operates under indicates that the 1.1mill debt retirement tax levied last year will not be necessary this year. The reduction brings the total tax load to 20 mills from 21.1 mills in the 1973-74 school year.

The reason for the reduction is the complicated formula the State has for figuring tax monies they return to the district.

According to the law districts can carry only enough money in reserve to pay interest and principal payments for six months.

In the past the school has carried money equal to a year's payment. Consequently, the district needs to reduce the amount carried in reserve and this will be accomplished by not raising any debt taxes for 1974-75.

Crouse stressed that the reduction would be for just one year after which the debt service millage will be levied again.

The school board adopted a resolution to participate in the debt aid portion of the State Aid act in a special meeting Monday night. Also on the agenda Monday was the approval of a twoyear contract that Allan Luce, school negotiator, and Crouse hammered out with union representatives.

However, a meeting of the membership was held Saturday and the proposal went down. No report was issued on the actual result of the balloting.

Crouse talked with the board about the rejection and issued a statement saying that the issues will remain closed to the press and public until settled or until talks break down and the opening of school is threatened.

"If It Fitz . . . This lunch felt different

BY JIM FITZGERALD

The public relations director of a local bank took me to lunch, which is not an unusual thing. Businesses frequently seek favors from newspaper's through the timehonored custom of buying the editor some food and booze. As a completely corruptible freeloader, I love it.

But this lunch was different. This public relations director is named Judy. She is a doll — but I probably shouldn't say that.

What I mean is, the president of the same bank also buys my lunch upon occasion - at the A&W Root Beer stand. Rod is a presentable fellow, decently groomed and well shod. But it would never occur to me to describe him

Likewise, if I had a luncheon date with Rod, I wouldn't have to explain it to my wife. She would never ask, "What were you doing with Rod at the A&W yesterday?"

But somehow I felt it was necessary to tell her beforehand that Judy had invited me to a business lunch and we'd probably eat it in a local restaurant because I'd never seen Judy carrying a lunch

All of which proves I must make some adjustments before I'll feel comfortable in this new world of Women's Don't get me wrong. I think women suffer from shameful discrimination, especially in the business world. To get a "man's job," a woman usually must work twice as hard as a man for half the pay. Too often you hear the expression: "That's good pay for a woman." Which sounds like a plantation owner explaining his employee has it pretty good for a slave.

ANDERSON'S THUMB APPLIANCE

But old habits are hard to shed. For instance, Judy paid the luncheon tab. Geez. She stood in line, waiting to pay the cashier, while I waited at the door with several women who were also waiting - for their husbands. I felt like a cheapskate. "Listen," I explained to one woman. "That's really my money she's using. I'm not paying the bill myself because I'm afraid the girl running the cash register will ask me where I've been all her life. It was bad enough when the waitress pinched me.' And what about car doors? My mother brought me up to open them for women. But Judy was driving. She picked me up at my office, she chose the restaurant and she paid the bill. She had done everything Rod would have done. Would I open the door for him? How do I know? He always takes me to a drive-in. Life sure does get tedious.

I finally compromised. I opened her door but I let her slam it. Kissinger would have been proud.

One last but extremely important point: It is not only men who must adjust to an equal world where it is stupid to blink when she asks him to dinner. Some women have a lot to learn, too. . . .

Four females who work in my office were in that restaurant when Judy and I walked in. They fell out of their chairs looking for my wife and Judy's husband. When the search proved fruitless, the intensity of their conversation increased noticeably as their sandwiches turned stale. Later, back in the office, one of them demanded an explanation. (I told her Judy had lost an election bet.)

You get the point. If I'd been lunching with Rod, those women would hardly have looked up from their mashed potatoes - unless Rod had run over them.

Moral: In an equal society, sex should be irrelevant when you are having public relations with a public relations

If the date has been changed, the total amount of local service billed will have been changed, but not the monthly rate.

Customers will receive their next bill from 18 to 45 days after their last one, he said. Local service charges may, therefore, include less than or more than the normal 30-day billing period for the next bill only.

Kowalski explained that in most exchanges, customers are all billed on one or two days which means inquiries to the company's service office are likely to be bunched around those days.

"By spreading the billing evenly throughout the month in each exchange, we will have a more uniform work flow in our service offices," he said. "The peak calling periods caused by formerly concentrated billing dates in an exchange will have been eliminated."

Kowalski said it will give service office personnel an opportunity to provide more efficient personal service when a customer has a need to contact the company.

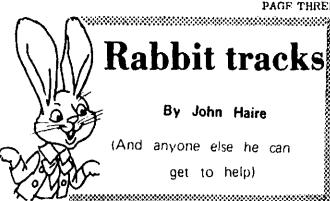

General Telephone is introducing the new billing dates statewide over a nine month period to be completed by mid-year 1974.

Okay, Tom Sutter, did you or didn't you? Tom swears he wrote me a letter chewing me out about the school board-superintendent position I voiced recently.

Now one of three things just has to have happened. The first is that Tom never mailed that letter. The second is that someone in this office lost it before it reached my desk. The third is that Pat Rabideau goofed up at the post office. (He wouldn't do that, would he?)

The easy solution would be for Tom to write that letter again. . . . and deliver it to me personally. Darn it, he's got me wondering what he wrote.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Tuscola county will be the focal point Aug. 13 as the State Farm Management Tour will be held in the county for the first time ever. Eight featured farms will conduct open tours throughout the day. The De-Long farm is one of them.

The five-way father and son DeLong dairy partnership is one of eight top notch farm operations to be featured on the 1974 State Farm Management Tour in Tuscola county Aug. 13.

Farm tour visitors can view the Donald DeLong and Sons dairy operation and another top dairy farm, three cash crop operations, a poultry farm, swine farm and horse breeding business.

Four farms are slated for morning viewing, with farm family interviews at 10:30 at each site. The remainder will be visited in the afternoon, with interviews at

In China nobody thinks acupuncture does not work. The Chinese use it to prevent the acute pain of surgery, tooth pulling and childbirth. And they use it to stop chronic pain as well,

It is in the field of stopping chronic pain that it has received its greatest endorsement among patients and practitioners in this country. The Acupuncture Research project at the University of California in Los Angeles reports that acupuncture produces significant improvement in 60 per cent of cases that do not respond to conventional western methods.

But nobody is quite sure how it works. The most widely entertained explanation is called "gate theory," which holds that the stimulation of one part of the nervous system closes a gate at the spinal column and prevents pain sensations arising in another part of the body from reaching the brain. There is no proof available that such gate closing actually occurs, and others think it may simply be the hypnotic effect of the needling.

Still others think that acupuncture works like a drug, and in fact stirs up a chemical substance in the brain that produces pain-killing action. They think so because with acupuncture, the threshold for perceiving or reacting to pain can be shown to rise and then gradually fall back to preacupuncture level, just as it does with a drug like

In carefully controlled experiments with rabbits, the pain threshold time more than doubled with acupuncture, and then after a period of about 50 minutes fell back to its usual pretreatment

If acupuncture does in fact release an active, pain-reducing chemical into the brain, then it should be possible to withdraw cerebrospinal fluid from the brain of a treated animal and inject it into an untreated animal and produce a similar rise in the pain threshold.

So, during a treatment session of test rabbits, cerebrospinal fluid was withdrawn and injected into untreated animals. They found an average 82 per cent rise in pain threshold in the animals that received the injection. This study was done at the Peking Medical College by the Research Group of acupuncture anesthesia.

Their work has persuaded them that an analgesic chemical probably is produced in the brain during acupuncture. What it is has not been determined, but it has been found that the analgesic effect of acupuncture can be atropine is given during the treatment.

Atropine blocks the action of a familiar chemical neurtransmitter of the brain called acetylcholine. All of which suggests that the action of acetylcholine may enter into the observed effect of acupuncture. When the mechanism is made clear, it may well be the ways will suggest themselves to augment the effect of acupuncture by chemical means.

AROUND THE FARM Soil compaction hurting crops

By Don Kebler

One of the comments I heard recently went something like this: "We could use another rain right now even though we had a good one during that storm last Sunday. Also, I have noticed in recent years that when we have rains of any good amount, there is more water running off the fields than is soaking in compared to what I used to experience". My comments were basically that compacted soils just won't absorb water as fast as the same soil having a lesser degree of compaction. Many people over the last 15 years have heard me say our soils are becoming more compacted each year, and this gradual worsening of soil structure has become more self evident in the last three years.

Speaking of hard soils, many of our crop producers were hurting their beans while recently cultivating them. The bean feeder roots are growing closer to the top of the soil than in the past, and are growing further out into the inter-row space. Using wide cultivator shoes is causing more root pruning than first realized.

Early in the growing stage when our soil was wet, a cultivation opened these soils and let beneficial air into the soil, plus helped to break the crust and reduce excess soil moisture levels.

As I visit livestock and poultry producers, it is becoming more evident that, if the price of feed grain and protein supplement continues to stay high, the production of animal and poultry protein will inevitably decrease if present price-cost ratios continue. If this price-cost ratio continues we may see a far greater shortage of these products later this year and next year which would make the shortages of last year look like a picnic. The far range effects from an animal protein supply deficit is that it will take far longer than a year to regenerate production to an equilibrium level between supply and demand.

BUILDING A LADDER

Runs of salmon and steelhead will be able to gain access to the St. Joseph River soon under terms of what's being called a "historic and unprecedented agreement' between the Indiana and Michigan Electric Co. and the Michigan Natural Resources Department.

The agreement calls for the company and the department to share costs for construction of a fish ladder at I&M's Berrien Springs Hydro Dam.

The fish ladder, which will include a sea lamprey barrier to prevent upward migration of the lampreys, is expected to get underway later this summer and be completed in time for the 1975 runs.

The ladder, the department says, is expected to open up about 10 miles of mainstream, as well as several top quality small tributary streams to runs of chinook and coho salmon and to steelhead.

New fishing areas will develop in the Buchanan-Niles vicinity in the main-Department officials say some natural reproduction in tributaries is likely to occur, but that the fishery will be maintained by hatchery planting.

Idle Cars Need Attention

Leaving the car at home and walking or riding a bicycle to work may save gasoline, but it may speed the deterioration of your car, according to a Michigan State University professor of mechanical engineering.

Frank S. Roop, Jr., says any car needs to be run at least once a week, and at least five miles each timeparticularly in cold weather-if the engine and the rest of the car are to function properly.

He says short runs of cars reduce performance, reliability, and economy in a number of ways and produce a great deal more wear on the moving parts of the cars than many miles driven in longer-continuous

ALUMINUM | No place like home, says Mrs. Waldrop

Two years in England has had one very definite effect on Mrs, Gene Waldrop, It's made her love of America stronger than ever.

Mrs. Waldrop, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Dodson of 6742 E. Main St., spoke resolutely of her feelings toward her homeland which she and her husband left in July of 1972. Her husband is a design specialist for the Chicago Bridge and Iron Co., and was assigned to the London office which conducts operations throughout Europe and the

"England is a beautiful country," Mrs. Waldrop said in her soft, native-Alabaman accent, "but this country is still the best in the world."

She explained she has traveled extensively throughout Europe and has observed a great nationalistic sense in every one of those nations-in every nation except the United States.

"The European nations all have a great sense of patriotism," she said. "They realize that there can never be one world as we have thought. They know they must keep their national identity. This is evident in the Common Market. England is thinking of pulling out. Italy wants to pull out. France wants everything her way. Those nations take great pride in themselves."

While this nationalistic trend is strong, these nations. who she says still look toward the United States for military security, wonder at Watergate and its ramifications. She said they fear the scandal will weaken the U.S.

"I remember my husband broke it to me gently by saying 'How would you like to live in England for four " Mrs. Waldrop recalled.

She said one of the first things they noticed about English life was the slower pace. Many things in everyday life are still done in

"They have many little shops where you have to stand in line, or 'cue up', as they say," she said. "You have individual shops for meat, vegetables, fish and so forth. Above all, you learn how to wait because things just move slower."

Prices in England range as much as two and one-half times greater than American prices, especially in housing. Food prices, high as they are here, are small by compari-

England currently labors under a 20 per cent rate of inflation which, Mrs. Waldrop observed, is cutting into the expanding middle class.

ENERGY CRISIS

England's bout with the energy crisis, brought on by last winter's coal strike which made power scarce, was not as bad as portrayed on American television, Mrs. Waldrop said.

"The power was never cut at our house, but we did notice some aspects of it," she recalled, "television stopped broadcasting at 10:30 each night. Stores used candles for tion stayed at 9 2 per cent."

She said while American media painted a blacker picture of life in England at that time, she really didn't mind, because much of the English press readily blows American problems out of proportion.

Today, gasoline, called "petrol", sells for about $1.25 per imperial gallon, or $1.00 for an American gallon. With the lifting of the oil embargo, fuel is more plentiful than last winter when gas lines of a mile or more were common.

Practically everyone drives a small car," she said. "American cars are generally owned by military personnel.

England's life style, as well as being slower, is also less convenient. Mrs. Waldrop said a recent survey showed 65 per cent of the British population owned refrigerthem," she added. She said she and her family have grown from the experience of living abroad and have come away with a different perception of the world-one which can be at once larger and smaller than would be expected. "It bothers me that our children aren't taught patriotism in their schools the way children of other nations are taught it," she said. " I think our stay has convinced me that the U.S. must remain strong if it and many other nations are to survive." England, she said, is beautiful, "but I still love America best of all.'

Politicians endorse Churchill

The Republican and Democratic Executive Committees of both Lapeer and Tuscola counties have endorsed the candidacy of Circuit Judge James P. Churchill for the Court of Appeals.

Churchill is one of 15 candidates for two new seats on the Michigan Court of Appeals in Michigan's Second District. He is now serving his 10th year as Circuit Judge of Lapeer and Tuscola counties.

Four candidates will be nominated in each district at the Aug. 6 primary election on the non-partisan ballot. Two will be elected in the general November election.

THIS HOUSE went rolling down Main Street Tuesday morning on its way to a site east of Cass City. It was purchased from the village for $1,500. Village Supt. Lou LaPonsie said that the basement hole will be filled and the site cleared by the village as soon as possible. It might be a week before work starts, the superintendent says, due to the demands of a storm sewer project now under way. The lot at the corner of Pine and Leach Streets will be used for off-street parking.

Crackdown on loud radios in State park

Watch the sound level on those portable radios and stereo tapedecks in Michigan's state parks and recreation areas this summer. If they're too loud, you could end up outside the park. The Natural Resources Department reminds campers and others that it is illegal "to use a loudspeaker, public address system or sound amplifying equipment of any kind without written permission" in these areas. In addition, the rule about noise says that "permission will not be granted if such system is capable of interfering with the use and enjoyment of the park by others. No person may operate any motor, motorboat, motor vehicle, radio, television or any device in such a manner that it produces excessive noise."

"Our intention is to enforce present rules vigorously when it comes to disturbances in our parks," says Parks Division Chief O.J. Scherschligt.

"Young people and others who operate loud, noise-producing equipment in state parks should be aware they can be arrested or ejected from the area if they are (in violation)," he says.

The department says campers who are disturbed should report the incident to the park ranger immediately, giving a description of the violator and the equipment he or she is using.

"If other campers are being disturbed, we are empowered to arrest the person operating the offensive equipment," Scherschligt says.

Braves cop title in girls' Little League

The championship of the Girls' Little League was decided in a free swinging game in which the Braves outslugged the second place

Tigers, 18-15. It was a crucial game. If the Tigers had upset the league leaders, a play-off would have been necessary.

The Braves roared into a lead with six runs in the first, only to see the Tigers come charging back with 8 runs in the first and second for a two-run lead. The Braves tied it in the third and the Tigers went ahead by two in the fifth.

The Braves salted the game with a five-run outburst in the sixth followed by three more in the seventh. The runs in the seventh proved to be decisive.

Late rallies

defeat girls'

team twice

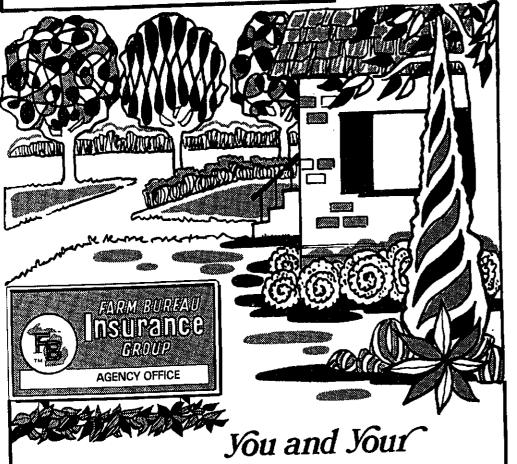

It's been a long season for the Cass City women's softball team. This week the club lost a one-sided game to Marlette, 20-12, Wednesday, July 24, and a heartbreaker to Dairy Queen in a tournament at Kingswood Inn, 10-9.

In the tourney game Saturday Cass City jumped off to a six run lead in the first inning and made it 8-0 at the end of 2 only to see Dairy Queen come charging back in the last four innings for victory.

Kathy Deering collected a hit and Sheila Mauer was 4-4. Karen Martin picked up a single and stand-up double. Mayville won the tourney defeating Marlette in the finals. In the summer league game Marlette broke open a tight game in the fifth inning with a 6-run rally as Lori Burton bested Kathy Kirn, Sharon Deering banged a triple among her three hits in five

The team ended the year after one more game. Currently the record is 3-8.

week program

In an attempt to spark greater interest in the arts and crafts section of the summer recreation program, a special crafts week has been scheduled for the week of Aug. 5.

Sessions will be held in the Intermediate school cafeteria and will involve a number of different handicrafts, according to Jim Maharg, program director.

Students will, among other things, be making kites, pottery, weaving and finger

In addition a stilt-making contest, a bubble-blowing contest and contests for music with pots and pans and candle dipping are also scheduled.

Work with paper, printing with vegetables and enameling is also on the schedule. During the week, students will be making a replica of Cass City and will participate in a puppet show.

The following week, a treasure hunt is scheduled for Aug. 13, and a clothes line art show is planned for the following day.

Church League in battle for second

The Methodists finally lost a game in the Cass City Church League as seconddivision Baptists pulled a giant upset, but the league leaders appear in no danger of losing the regular season crown as the season moves into its final stages.

The Baptist upset was pulled off Tuesday, July 23, and Gary Mellendorf was the mound architect who engineered the victory, 9-7. Dave Brooks hammered two hits for the winners while Mike Murphy slammed two hits for the Methodists.

In the early game Tuesday, Shabbona bested winless Snover-Laing in a pitchers duel, 3-0. Dale Smith collected the win over Gene Dorman. Lowell Smith supplied the offensive firepower for the winners with two home runs. Lenny King picked up two hits for Snover.

> DEFORD CHURCH OF CHRIST

Top pitching performances were also evident Thursday night when Deford topped Church of Christ, 3-1. Alvin McKee tossed the win and Don Englehart was the hard-luck loser. John Taylor and B. Babich slapped two hits each for Deford while Tim Knoblet slapped a pair of hits for the

In the nightcap the Catholics stayed in the race for second place and Snover-Laing was pushed deeper into the cellar as the team dropped a 13-3 decision. John Maharg had an easy night as his Catholic teammates showered hits up and down the line-up. Victim of the attack was Leland Hirsch.
