

THIS WAS THE SCENE Wednesday morning on Brooker (above) and Pine Streets as area farmers waited to unload grain at the Michigan Bean Elevator. Manager Bob Wischmeyer reported the long lines stemmed from a lack of rail cars. Should Grand Trunk succeed in closing down the rail line, farmers would face the problem of finding an available rail head or shipping solely by truck.

The action came following reports by Wigen on remodeling the 1913 high school building and by the Owen-Gage Citizens Study Committee that outlined recommended steps the board should Wigen told the board and around 10 citizens who attended the meeting that it will cost about $100,000 to improve the high school building to meet standards set by the state fire marshal and electrical inspector.

Wigen said if the board decided to close off the upper floor of the old building, the cost would run around $75,000.

The architect emphasized these were ballpark figures but added the final cost would be substantial. He urged the board to look into other solutions, namely a new building, before going ahead with further cost estimates.

"You don't have a hard and fast order to do this work or close down," Wigen said. "But the next step is probably an abatement order which in effect is an ultimatum to either show progress or close.

"I think you should ask yourself if it's worth spending $100,000 on a building that's probably served its pur-

Wigen said if the old building were remodeled, work could begin in January, but he would prefer to wait until the school year ended.

"You've been on borrowed time a long time up here," Wigen said, referring to the condition of the high school building. "Inspections such as this one are unusual."

The study committee recommended the board "take immediate action to replace the 1913 building with the following facilities to house grades 7-12:

Boys basketball to take top school sports priority

The Cass City School Board refused to bow to the pressure of a group of parents and coaches of girls basketball and voted instead to establish a system of priorities that places boys' varsity and junior varsity basketball at the top of the winter sports list, at the regular monthly meeting held Monday at the high school.

For practical purposes what the vote means is that the boys receive the choice, immediately after school, hours for practicing in the now crowded gym schedule. Besides placing boys' basketball at the top of the list,

The board members who approved the policy did so because they said that the community interest in winter sports centers around boys' varsity basketball. Boys basketball and football pays the freight for sports at the school.

Trustee Scollon said that he didn't feel that the community interest should have anything to do with establishing the program and he wanted to leave the girls practice at the "prime" after school hours until their season is concluded one to three weeks from now depending on tournament re-

Athletic Director Robert Stickle who presented the proposed scheduling to the school board said that at the schools he checked boys' basketball practices were held in the prime hours after school. If we are to remain competitive, he told the board, we must have a

A bid from Hunt Construction for snow removal at the school was accepted. A fourcubic-foot loader will cost $30 per hour (up $3 per hour), the 212-cubic-foot loader will cost $20 per hour (up $2.50) and a grader will cost $18 (up $3.00 per hour). Tuckey Block, which had earlier submitted a bid, withdrew its bid.

Bids for the sale of four buses were accepted. One bus was sold to Missionary Church, East Jordan, for $731. Other units were sold to the Rev. Don Severance of Taylor. The bids for three units were $677, $751 and $221. Finally, students attending Cass City High School from a neighboring district will not pay this year.

The board followed its established policy of charging the minimum tuition possible determined by the State for students accepted. Last year the minimum was $55 for high school students, nothing for elementary students. This year the minimum is nothing for both high school and elementary. Consequently the high school tuition students

Area retailers brace for state food tax repeal

The repeal of Michigan's four per cent tax on food and prescription drugs has left area food dealers in a state of confusion, with most agreeing the repeal is going to mean more headaches at the checkout counter after Jan. 1.

Voters approved the proposal at the polls last week. Some observers speculate repeal of the tax could cost state coffers as much as $200 million, while others peg the loss at closer to $80 million.

Whatever the loss at the state level, area dealers will be the first to feel the change. Customers will probably be asked to separate food items from non-food items with food being checked through first, according to Dick Erla, president of Erla's Inc. 'We'll probably try that for awhile to see how it works," Erla said. "But there are still a lot of things we don't know. We don't know for sure what will be classed as food. Is beer food? Is pop food? For awhile, it's going to be a mess."

Erla said it probably won't take cashiers much longer to check customers through the line once the system gets going. In the meantime, he and other area retailers are waiting for a list of rules from the Michigan Legislature on the mechanics of the repeal. Erla stated flatly he does not expect retailers to jack up their prices in the wake of the

"They (retailers) aren't a bunch of shady characters," Erla said. "It won't cost the customer any more because of the repeal.

Erla said his store will attempt to handle checkout lanes with conventional cash registers. He said cashiers will probably have to subtotal food items first, then check non-food items and tax those only.

"If this doesn't work, then we might have to go to a new till system and those things cost around six or seven thousand bucks," he said. Computerized cash registers are already in use at the IGA Foodliner. The two registers were installed about a year ago, according to Harry Lenda, owner.

Lenda said each register sells for $5,000. "We installed them originally to handle food stamps," Lenda said. "With the old register, if someone checked everything through and then told us they were going to pay with food stamps, we'd have to start all over. This way, the register automatically keeps taxable from non-taxable items sep-

Lenda said he still plans to have customers separate food from non-food items, just to make sure no one is accidentally taxed on a food item.

When asked if expensive electronic machinery such as cash registers might eventually drive prices up, Lenda said, "I hope not.

ualty of the repeal might be trading stamps, although it's too early to tell yet. "Already, I've heard some people complaining because they think they won't get as many stamps after the tax goes off food," Lenda said. Presently, stamps are not given on sales tax.

While computerized cash registers help speed up checkout, they require more training of clerks and are more expensive to keep going.

"If a memory bank burns out, it means a trip to Saginaw to repair it," Lenda said. He said he isn't sure when or if he plans to replace two other conventional cash registers at the store.

Smaller stores will probably not feel the pinch as much. Hans Schuchmann, owner of Gross Meat Market said the repeal won't have much effect on his operation. "That four per cent wasn't mine to begin with, so it won't Schuchmann said there might be a little confusion in the beginning but since most make any difference to me," of the items he sells are food items, the switch-over shouldn't take long.

Chuck Guinther at Quaker Maid Dairy Store said his main concern is knowing what items are taxable and which aren't. He said checking out probably won't be a big problem since he can sort items without much problem.

"What I'm waiting to find out is where this is going to hit us in the long run," Guinther said. "I don't think the people. realize what they did when they repealed that tax."

Still to be decided is how the tax repeal will affect restaurants and fast food establishments.

Some states charge the tax on food eaten on the premises but not if it's eaten elsewhere. Retailers expect to receive state guidelines later this month after the state legislature acts to establish taxing

Board sets final CETA fund grants

The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners gave final approval to the distribution of $217,579 in Comprehensive Employment Training Act funds during a special session Wednesday, Nov. 6, in Caro. Generally, most requests were cut in their final version, mostly because applying units of government lost a half-month. Initial requests were figured from Nov. 1 and final grants are figured from Nov. 15, according to Commissioner Maynard Mc-Conkey.

The big recipient was the County Road Commission, which came away with Concluded on page 14.

Plans tentatively call for an hour-long discussion in each of these three areas, including questions.

The audience at the hearing is expected to consist of four categories of users-private industry, local governmental leaders, local service agencies and local organizations such as the Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting comes in the wake of statewide hearings on railroad reorganization which would, if approved, abandon 37 per cent of the lower peninsula's trackage, much of it in the Thumb.

Also expected to be discussed is Grand Trunk Railroad's recent request to the Interstate Commerce Commission that it be allowed to abandon its line serving Cass City, Gagetown, Kingston, Deford and Pigeon.

Okay now, listen to your wife and drag on over to the Cultural Center tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. and attend that concert, "Music for a Late Fall Evening".

It's a quality show and the stop in small town Cass City comes only because of the efforts of the Cass City Arts Council. Other area tour stops are at Delta College, Midland and Olivet College.

Sorry, I can't tell you the actual program because details were not known as late as Tuesday morning.

But the talent is outstanding and I've learned that given the talent you don't need to be an expert to enjoy a good show. I suspect that a turn-away crowd would spur the Council to even greater things in the months ahead.

Quick quiz (and you should guess the answers). What school has won more Thumb B Conference championships than any other? Right, Cass City. Since the league was formed Cass City has won 27 titles in all sports, that's 11 more than the next best record compiled by

No. Virginia, we won't mention that 16 of these titles were earned before 1961-62 and that Frankenmuth didn't join the league until several years after the league was formed.

It could only happen to a non-hunter. The expanding area deer herd has moved right into town. Dr. Yongkyun Kim has built a home in the southeast section of the village.

To make an instant lawn, sod was installed. It's growing but there is a problem. My spies report that a deer has taken a liking to young green shoots and has been sighted several times making a dinner out of the expensive new grass.

Over the boob tube the other day a retiring city clerk in Flint told how he could remember when the city voted paper ballots when he first took office many years ago.

Not many go back that far. But sooner than you think it will take a "pioneer" to remember when Tuscola county used all paper ballots.

More and more are switching to machines. As little as five years ago, machine balloting was rare here. In the primary last week machines were used in 24 precincts, paper ballots in 12 and a computer punch card in another.

This piece of trivia probably means nothing at all to you. But political candidates anxious to get the returns and news reporters even more anxious to go home say a mental hallelujah every time a machine takes over.

You know we want a report from all successful deer hunters for our "Buck Luck" column. As usual we want a picture of the first deer reported shot Friday and pictures of any other trophy sized buck bagged during the

State Police probe series of break-ins

State Police are continuing their investigation into a series of breakings and enterings in the Deford and Kingston area.

Three incidents were reported last week. Thursday, a cash register valued at $150 and containing about $40 in change, was stolen from Dan's Sunoco service station at 1445 No. Kingston Rd.

Police said entry was gained by breaking the glass out of the front door and releasing the lock.

Owner Dan Allen told police he had seen a suspicious vehicle in the area earlier that evening. The investigation continues.

Two neighboring houses on English Road near Kingston were struck by thieves Friday. In each case, only money was taken.

Caro State Police said the first break-in occurred at the Charles Schlaud home. Thieves took a bank with about $70 in coins inside. Police noted the culprits walked past a television set. an expensive stereo and cameras to get to the bank.

Across the road, thieves struck the David J. Zvrowski home, entered by forcing a rear door and took $15 in cash

Edwards attends General Cable conference

Roy Edwards of Cass City recently spent two days attending General Cable's sixth annual Safety Coordinators Conference in St. Louis, Mo. Edwards was invited to represent Cass City on the conference's hourly safety panel, and was joined by representatives from Memphis, Tenn., and Williamstown, Mass.

The safety panel addressed the conference members with regards to further improvement of employee's safety at all General Cable facilities.

Edwards joined General Cable in 1963 as a twister operator and now holds the classification of cabler. He has held numerous union offices during his 11 years with Cable and is presently Chairman of the Union Safety Committee, Alternate Steward, In-Guard, and member of the Grievance Committee.

"If It Fitz... You only go around once

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Would you mind if I wrote a few words about TV commercials? Or would you rather talk about diarrhea?

If you understand that paragraph, you're watching too much TV.

The intellectuals say any amount of TV is too much, except maybe a geometry vs zoology debate on public TV. You know it's public TV if there are no commercials and you can't get a decent picture.

I am no intellectual, so I measure my TV watching by that chubby jerk who wants to say a few words about diarrhea. If I see him more than once in one sitting, I know I have been watching too long. This isn't exactly a scientific measurement, but it makes sense. This diarrhea commercial is so revolting, no TV station could be stupid enough to show it more than once a month, preferably on a holy day of fast and abstinence.

The chrome domes insist they never watch TV except for Alistair Cooke and specials about the River Nile. My dome is so mushy I sometimes watch 2 TV sets at once. During the recent World Series I had baseball on one TV and football on the other. I also listened to a 2nd football game on radio and read the newspaper. And I would have played some 2-handed euchre with my wife except she left the house, screaming.

To me, that's the beauty of TV. It is totally nonabsorbing. It is impossible for me to watch TV without reading at the same time. An occasional glance at the set keeps me up with the plot and the length of skirts (since pantsuits ruined the world, I get a lot more reading done). During one series of commercials on the Johnny Carson Show, I read all of "War and Peace."

Currently my favorite commercial stars the most beautiful girl in the world. Her handsome husband says: "This is my wife and I love her. . . . she keeps looking so good by taking Geritol regularly." Which prompted me to start hanging around the Geritol counter in the corner drugstore, in search of Truth in Advertising. I am prepared to ask a Geritol beauty if she needs help carrying her bottle home. So far the action has been exceedingly slow. I don't mind risking a slap in the face, but not from Lawrence Welk's mother. The bravest commercial is brought to you by the Schlitz people. They sell gusto. "When you only go around once, you should reach for the gusto in life." It also comes in bottles and cans. This filmed message shows 2 drunks on a tugboat. They can't get the engine started. It keeps belching smoke and sparks while they laugh uproariously and spill gusto all over each other.

brave because Schlitz is not afraid to blow suds at the Boy Scouts, the Red Cross and other stuffy institutions usually revered by Americans everywhere. You probably think the right thing to do is stay sober, save energy, fight pollution and practice safety in the water. But that's no way to grab gusto, you dummy. You only go around once. What would happen if a guy drank Geritol with gusto? Probably something that chubby jerk would want to say a few words about. Onward and Upward.

I call this commercial

Police probe rash of area accidents

Two Cass Cityans escaped serious injury early Friday morning when their vehicles collided on fog-shrouded M-53, a quarter-mile north of M-81 in Sanilac County.

Sanilac County Sheriff's deputies reported a pick-up truck driven by John Allen Hacker, 19, of 6166 Greenland Rd., was struck by a car driven by Oscar David Brooks, 45, of 6389 Seventh St., at 6:45 a.m.

Officers reported both vehicles were headed north on M-53 when the Hacker vehicle attempted to make a left turn into a driveway and was struck by the Brooks vehicle in the left front fender.

Hacker was not injured. Brooks was treated at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

The Rev. Eldred Kelley, and the Salem United Methodist Church of Cass City, announce the showing of the new Johnny Cash film, "The Gospel Road". It will be shown two different nights, Saturday and Sunday, November 23 and 24, 1974, at 7:30 p.m.

"The Gospel Road" was conceived by the Cashes whose desire was to tell the story of Jesus Christ in a realistic and meaningful way.

The film is a unique blend of Scripture-based narrative, and a series of in-depth character portrayals, with Israel, itself as the mixing bowl.

You are there, walking beside the Jordan and the Sea of Galilee; you are there, seeing Him in many human situations that establish rapport with every viewer.

You are there, being introduced to the disciples, and gaining insights into their personalities. You are there, experiencing the highly charged emotional impact of the trial before Pilate. "The Gospel Road" shows the crucifixion with its horror as Jesus' darkest day, that has become our brightest day. (Adv. .

SCS holds workshop

The Soil Conservation Service field office in Caro recently conducted a training workshop. Soil Conservation Service personnel from Bay, Genesee, Huron, Midland and Sanilac counties participated, according to District Conservationist Cyril M. Jacot.

Training was received in some of the more important conservation practices such as erosion control structures, grass waterways, diversion ditches and animal waste systems, held at the farms of Jack LeValley, Donald Price and Clare Smith.

The training workshops are important in keeping personnel informed of the up-to-date changes in design, methods, and ways of installing these types of conservation prac-

Coping with little strokes

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ and DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

Commonly we physicians recognize a little brain injury, such as can be due to a little stroke, when we see that the patient's face is much duller than it should be for his position in life, and that his formerly smooth handwriting has changed, and has come to resemble something like the cutting edge of a old saw. In many cases, I make the diagnosis when I learn that the man's bank asked him to give them a new signature for his checks.

As I say in my book, "Little Strokes," published in 1966, a series, of little strokes is probably one of the most common diseases of man, and such brain injury has most to do with producing aging in millions of elderly people. As a sweet old lady used to say every time she had a little stroke, "Death is taking little bites of me.'

In most cases the effects of a little stroke are transient. There will be perhaps 30 seconds of marked and frightening dizziness; after that, some lost of memory, loss of steadiness on the person's feet, a loss in ability, and perhaps a little slowing-up. In many cases, the man can have 20 or 30 little strokes before they pull him down and make it impossible for him to continue with his work. Rarely, a person with a little stroke will fall out of his chair; rarely he will be unable to talk for a few seconds or minutes; rarely he'll have a brief spell of

After some little strokes. some men will just sit in their office all day and get nothing done. Some men will lose their interest in bathing, shaving, getting dressed, or keeping their clothes clean. Many a time I have made the diagnosis of a little stroke the minute I saw an eminent man with gravy on his coat. In a few cases, a man's secretary has told me that one day as her boss was dictating a letter, he suddenly started to talk gibberish, without realiz-

On rare occasions, when a man has a severe little stroke in his sleep, he wakes terribly changed. I remember well the president of a bank who woke one morning and, without giving his wife any explanation, did not go to work. He was dull and greatly changed mentally, and he never went back into the bank again. Another very capable president of a big corporation woke one morning so changed that, even though he kept going to his office every day, he never ing what he was doing.

What is sad is that none of us physicians were taught at college that we are not likely ever to get a history of little strokes from a patient who is too dull to realize what has happened to him, or when he doesn't remember that disaster came suddenly one day with a terribly dizzy spell, or that one day he fell could do anything there.

on the floor while shaving. There are four quick and sure ways of diagnosing a little stroke: (1) by noting that the patient is not as bright as he should be for his occupation; (2) by noting that he is too dull to give much of a history; (3) by noting that he is not as well dressed and clean as he should be; (4) by asking his wife if a terrible change suddenly came over him. The physician who never asks the spouse what happened will rarely make the diagnosis of a little stroke. Also, the physician who does not note that the president of a large company sitting there before him, looks like a laborer, will never diagnose a little stroke.

What is sad is that, when I see a man with typical little strokes, I learn from his wife that he has seen eight or 10 physicians or been to numerous clinics, and the correct diagnosis was not made. Perhaps some of the physicians saw what was wrong but did not care to make such an unpleasant diagnosis. The word "stroke" has bad connotations because it suggests that God struck the man down, and hence must have been angry with him. That is why today, although in medical journals I find articles on little strokes, the articles are on "brief episodes of cerebral ischemia' - (''cerebral' meaning the brain, and "ischemia," lack of blood.) I use the words "little strokes"

TEAM (Teen Enrichment and Maturity) is a new statewide personal development program for older youth that was launched in five Michigan regions last year. The participants encounter experiences in value clarifi--cations, listening and communications, group dynamics and cooperation, exposure to community problems, and self-enrichment.

The major objective is to help 4-H teen leaders to become aware of problems facing their communities. and what 4-H'ers can do to help alleviate these problems. Participating in the weekend session from this area were 4-H members Ron Boyne, Marlette, and Paula Mohr, Otter Lake. After all five regional meetings have been completed, a committee composed of field and state 4-H staff will select 25 to 30 outstanding participants to represent Michigan in many leadership areas. Five will attend National 4-H Conference in Washington, D.C.; others will participate in exchange programs with other states, and some will have the opportunity to travel to a foreign country as six TEAM members did in 1974 when they helped build 4-H programs in Belize in Central America. This select group will receive additional

March of Dimes plans forming

"March of Dimes volunteers are looking forward to the most exciting program year in history," Benscoter, Tuscola County Campaign Director, reports. The excellent response to last year's drive has enabled us to expand research and medical service programs around the country."

Ms. Benscoter returned recently from a regional meeting of voluntary health organization in Chicago. There she met with delegates from neighboring states to go over the new dimensions of March of Dimes programs aimed at prevention of birth detects.

"The medical advances we heard about were particularly impressive," she said. "Improved methods of treatment, diagnosis, and consultation for high-risk pregnant women and newborns were explained by specialists. At one session. Dr. Watson Bowles Jr. and Dr. Joseph L. Butterfield discussed how their specialists are rapidly developing combined techniques to reduce many risks of pregnancy.

pect," she continued, "is the progress on plans for a strategic network of prenatal services throughout the country. These guidelines have been drawn up by leaders in obstetrics, pediatries, family practice, the nursing profession, and health agencies. The goal is to allocate highly trained staff and equipment to treat mothers and infants at different levels of risk to avoid duplicating costly services."

Ms. Benscoter also noted that there was emphasis on new March of Dimes programs to train nurses in recognition, evaluation, and team performance for treatment of sick mothers and infants. This course of action, she says, is intended to meet the alarming shortage of nurse clinicians as quickly as possible.

AROUND THE FARM Look for best retirement plan

As we draw close to the end of our '74 income tax business year, all businessmen should be taking stock of their tax barometer to adjust for in-

Here is one possible way for farm operators as well as all other self-employed people to legally reduce their income taxes. This is not a new option, but up until recently scription years and amounts most self-employed farm op- subscribed are entirely operators could not avail them- tional with the owner-emselves of its advantages.

This Federal Income Tax option is called the Keogh, or the self-employed retirement plan. In general it allows the self-employed person to subscribe to one or more controlled investment programs for his future retirement. In doing so the money set aside is subtracted from his gross income and he files his income tax on the difference.

A self-employed farmer who is a sole proprietor of a business or a partner who owns more than 10 per cent of the capital or profits interest in the partnership may contribute 15 per cent of his earned income up to a maximum of $7 500. This contribution is deducted from the gross income of cash and-or goods earned.

This self-employed, or as called the owner-employee, must contribute to any fulltime hired employee who has worked three or more consecutive years for the owneremployee. Part-time or seasonal labor need not be included in the contribution.

Briefly, here are the four common retirement funding programs. One may contribute to any one alone or to all in any one year just so he doesn't exceed the sum of the maximum. There are ramifications in each of these to a deeper extent than what I say here, so counseling with each agency is necessary to pick the best plan or plan combination. The retirement plan fundings are in general:

1) Trust or custodial account in a bank. 2) Special U.S. Retirement plan bond investments. 3) Trusts in annuities, endowment or life insurance contracts through a life insurance company.

4) Stock of a mutual or any regulated investment company which issues only redeemable stock. Even though retirement

MARKHAM DRAIN

Notice of Letting of Drain Contract

Notice is Hereby Given, That I, Leslie E. Lounsbury, County Drain Commissioner of the County of Tuscola, State of Michigan, will, on the 3rd day of December A.D. 1974, at the Drain Commissioners office in the Court House in said County of Tuscola at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon of that day receive sealed bids until 11:00 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, when bids will be opened and publicly announced for the construction of a as "Markham Drain," located and established in the Township of Elmwood in said County.

All stations are 100 feet apart. The total length of the Markham Waleria Pieczara, S30 A of W1/2 of W1/2 Drain to be excavated is 14,111 feet, or of SE14 and SE14 of SW14 and SE1/2 855.2 rods, or 2.67 miles. The bottom width is 4 feet the entire length of the drain. The average hub cut is 6.4 feet, and the average bottom cut is 1.5 feet. All bridges and culverts shall be cleaned to the specified flowline. This drain job is to be a clean out only, and side slopes will require no work other than removing brush.

Brush, trees, and other debris shall be placed in sultable piles and burned by the contractor except in wooded areas where the brush may be winrowed beyond teveled spoil, Burning will not be required on land owned by the Department of Natural Re-

Dirt is to be leveled to 12 inches and feathered out to field elevations (24 inches in wooded areas) except in front of lawns or yards, where dirt shall be hauled away. The excavating contractor shall bid on excavating, burning and leveling separately.

Winter in Antarctica offers challenge for Tim Cooper

By Jim Ketchum

Who would volunteer for a year's Navy duty in the wilds of Antarctica? Someone who'd spent too much time in the boiler room of a ship,

Tim Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Cooper of Hadley Road, did just that. Cooper. who returned recently from a year at McMurdo Station, 800 miles south of Christchurch, New Zealand, said it gets as cold at the bottom of the

The base was manned by Navy personnel but operated by the National Science Foundation, a civilian research organization, Cooper explained. During the summer, explorations of the continent take place. One experiment at McMurdo involved checking how deep the Irost line went. ''They drilled a hole over 2,000 feet deep and they still hadn't gotten out of the Cooper said.

Today, however, it's anything but the tropics. Cooper said the temperature hit an all-time high of 47 degrees the summer he was there. In winter, he said the mercury generally hovered around zero to -20 degrees.

Price too low.

bean growers protest

Dozens of farmers gathered Friday at the farm of James Sahr, 9121 East Washington Rd., Saginaw, to discuss a major problem of navy bean producers in the Saginaw Valley - low prices.

"Farmers just cannot sell their beans at a loss," said Paul Nagy, President, Michigan Bean Producers Marketing Cooperative, "We believe we are entitled to a reasonable profit and we cannot do it on present prices."

"Our costs of production in fuel, fertilizer, labor, machinery, and supplies have doubled and tripled in the last two years," according to Warner Maylan, a grower from Auburn.

Costs of one hundred weight of beans based on average yield is now calculated to be $18.00. Farmers feel they are entitled to a reasonable profit and concluded they would have to hold beans off the market until a profit can be achieved.

Lyle Sherwood of Breckenridge said that if all bean producers would cooperate in this effort, he felt the farmer could get a better price. Many farmers indicated they would hold beans for two or three years if necessary to achieve the goal of a reasonable #### around three per cent, if fire teletype machines were set breaks out, it burns practically out of control.

Cooper said during his stay, he never had to fight a fire. In fact, he said as a fireman, there really wasn't too much to do. While he was on call 24 hours a day, much of his time was spent helping paint the firehouse, keeping fire trucks tuned up, building bookshelves and generally anything to keep busy.

There wasn't much of a chance to go anywhere when winter set in," he said. "They had a rule that no more than two people could be gone from the station at one time and the chief was generally always gone. So that only left one other person who could go."

CUT OFF

Cooper and the other 130 men who stayed at McMurdo when winter set in were virtually cut off from the outside world from March through September.

Little if any mail came through and radio communications were chancy at best. Cooper said that's because radio signals travel by bouncing off the ionosphere, which is present only when the sun is out. With three solid months of total blackness and three more of skimpy light, reception wasn't good.

What do you do to keep busy during the long Antarctic night? Anything you can.

"There was enough to keep you fairly busy around the firehouse," he said. "During our off-time, we could read. We had about 600 books available. That's really about all there was to do. If you didn't read much before, you learned to like it."

He said two radio-operated

As might be expected, the offensive team was dominated by Vassar and Frankenmuth, the teams that finished one, two in the league. Only Cass City, Bad Axe and Sandusky were able to break the stranglehold that these schools had on the all-league selections.

set early as New Lothrop settled into their seats. Later in the same period New Lothrop scored again. This time it was Matt Cornell who used his 190 pounds to advantage as he bowled over tackles on a 30-yard run for the marker. When Cornell passed to Whelpley for the extra points the Hornets were in front 15-0 as the first quarter ended.

The visitors continued their offensive surge in the second

The Hornets scored from far out for the third time in the game. This time the pay-off play was a 34-yard pass from Cornell to Cliff Besaw, by intermission time with another sustained drive. The attack was featured by the running of Bryan Gross, a big 210-pound fullback who seemed to delight in running over people. He was probably as bruising a runner as the Hawks faced this season.

The only bright spot for Cass City came early in the third period when the Hawks put points on the scoreboard for the first and only time during the game.

The pay-off drive was capped by a scoring pass from Dave Zawilinski to Jerry Toner. Zawilinski's kick was good.

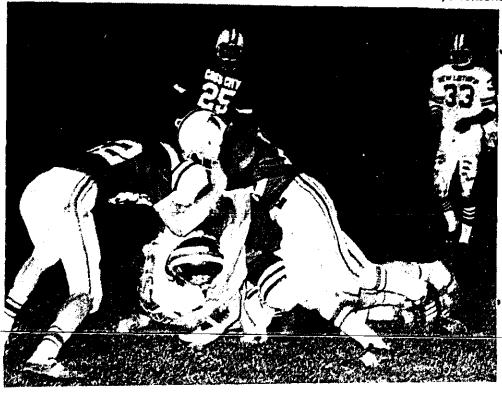

The Hornets got that one back later in the quarter. Gross hammered his way to the end zone in a play that covered 40 yards. Cornell converted and the visitors were in front, 35-7.

The final tally of the game was scored by Besaw as he capped a New Lothrop drive to score from four yards out. Cornell's kick was good to make the final score, 42-7.

Ed Stoutenburg was again the leading rusher for Cass City with 56 yards in 14 tries. Ron Sieradzki with 10 solo tackles and five assists showed the way on defense. Close behind were Guy Howard with 9 solos and 4 assists and Ken Lowe with 9 individual tackles and two assists.

Legion Auxiliary meets Monday

Fifteen members and two guests attended the monthly meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary held Monay night at the Cultural Center. Mrs. Elgene Keller presided over a routine business meeting in which members approved a contribution to the local United Fund drive.

Thirty-four 1975 memberships have been paid to date. Cards were signed to be sent to three ill members. The December meeting will feature a Christmas party and gift exchange. Group singing preceded the retirement of the colors. Games were played and refreshments served. The sistant prosecutor for less door prize went to Mrs. Frankie Anker.

The board learned Tuesday that Prosecutor George Holmes has found an applicant who can be hired using Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) funds, along with a supplement from the county.

Starting salary for the post is $13,500. Earlier, board members had feared it might not be possible to hire an asthan $14,000.

Under CETA provisions, the county will have to pick up the salary after June 30, 1975.

In other business, the board learned labor negotiations with District Court employees and sheriff's deputies are set to begin Dec. 3. Both sides predict rough going in the early stages with no quick settlement.

Negotiations with the recently-unionized courthouse employees have not yet been scheduled.

In other business, the board accepted a bid of $2,650 for a new half-ton pickup truck for the Dog Warden.

GOLF IN NOVEMBER? You'd better believe it, as Clyde Wells (left) and Maynard Helwig graphically demonstrate at Rolling Hills Golf Course Thursday. Cooler temperatures early this week sent most area golf clubs back into storage for the winter. The pair have been known to slap a few balls around on the course during the height · of winter. They use orange balls that show up against the white of the snow.

Free lunches for senior citizens in Tuscola county are scheduled to begin Monday, sponsored by the Human Development Commission. According to project coordinator Dr. Margaret Verbrugghe, the dinners will be served five days a week and will be of a higher protein content and contain more salads than regular school lunches.

The meal program is designed for persons over age

Reservations for the first week and subsequent weeks can be made by calling the Schall School lunch room in Caro at 673-3166, between noon and 4 p.m. starting Wednesday.

Approximately 50 meals will be served five days a week, with five of these delivered to shut-ins at home. These meals are free to Tuscola county senior citizens regardless of income. However, because of high operational costs, donations are requested, according to Becky Touchette, project consultant.

ABORTION INSPECTIONS

Another search currently is being conducted by the Department of Public Health. This one is for outstate abortion facilities.

The Department is preparing to move its surveillance of abortion clinics from the Detroit area to outstate regions. In connection with that action, the Department has asked local health department chiefs to report the names and addresses of all known abortion facilities or free-standing surgical outpatient facilities within their jurisdictions.

Miss Ferguson dies Monday

Miss Theresa Marie Ferguson, 17, died Monday at the Caro Regional Center, where she had been a patient 14

She was born in Wyandotte. April 5, 1957, daughter of Dugald and Janette Logg Ferguson. The family came to this area nine years ago.

She is survived by her parents of Decker; two sisters, Celine and Pauline, both at home, her grandmother, Mrs. Ted Vahovick of Decker, and several aunts and uncles.
