According to Clerk Donald Reid, a township check for $928.73 will be sent to the district. The amount represents the sum in question which was withheld by a number of property owners seeking transfer to other dis-

Reid said an earlier effort to pay the amount failed when Township Treasurer Ephraim Knight reportedly failed to sign the check. Reid said another check will be sent to the district immediately.

The battle began March 11 when Owen-Gage Supt. Ronald Erickson received a letter advising him of the township's action to withhold 5.79 mills debt retirement millage in escrow until several property transfer cases had been settled in court.

Erickson responded by threatening to take the township to court April 1 if the funds weren't made available. The money reportedly represents the amount not paid by five property owners.

Tuesday's township action should settle things, Reid said. "At least I hope it does," he said.

Reid called the failure to sign the first check an "over-

An earlier payment of the balance of township taxes to the district had already been made. The only funds in question were those withheld by property owners. Reid said those taxes would be recorded as delinquent.

Petroglyph shelter bids told

Hillyer Construction Co. of Birmingham submitted the lowest of five bids last Thursday when sealed bids were opened for the Sanilac Petroglyph Shelter to be constructed in Greenleaf town-

Hillyer's bid was $33,240 for the 1,800 square foot octagonshaped building to be constructed over the ancient Indian rock carvings located about 12 miles northeast of Cass City along Germania

Other bidders included Total Builders of Battle Creek at $38,169, Griffith Builders of Lakeview at $38,724, Patrick LaFave of Caro at $43,300 and O'Shea Brothers, Inc., of Marlette at $44,890.

A spokesman for the Department of Natural Resources said Monday the contract will be awarded April 5 and construction should begin from two to four weeks later. A total of $50,000 had been budgeted by state authorities for construction of the shelter which is expected to be completed in time for next

PAUL S. MILLER, Farmers Home Administration official, told Cass City Village Council Tuesday night massive funds to develop the industrial park aren't available. He advised trustees to scale down their plans and consider developing one or two lots instead of the entire 29 acres. Council agreed to seek preliminary engineering for water and sewer services to two lots at the southern portion of the property and apply for a small-

Council lowers sights on development grant

Think small,

That was the word Cass City Village Council received Tuesday night from an official of the Farmers' Home Administration who told trustees meeting in regular session at the Municipal Building their application for $350,000 to develop the industrial park had been turned down.

Paul S. Miller, community programs loan specialist for FHA, told council their request exceeded FHA's total allotment for Michigan by over $100,000.

"There's no question the improvements are needed," Miller said. "But we couldn't fund it because the request is in excess of our allocation."

The village applied for funds in January to bring sanitary streets, curb and gutter to land owned by the Cass City Development Corporation at the south end of town.

"We'd recommend you move to develop one or two lots at the site," he said.

velopment has just begun.

"We'd like to see you tunnel your vision and get the facilities in to meet the immediate needs. Then you can proceed with your ultimate goal.

"We would be glad to participate if you can scale down," he said.

Miller said there are some funds available since a project in another part of the state fell through. Just how much isn't known because Development Corporation officials aren't anxious to reveal their resources to potential construction bidders.

William Kritzman, CCDC president, told council there are no definite commitments by any companies and probably won't be until at least some of the lots are developed.

"Our whole weakness is that we can't move until we get some help," he said.

Robert Keating, another CCDC member, said the corporation has invested about $15,000 on the property to date. He said no more local funds are available.

Council agreed to spend a maximum of $2,000 on preliminary engineering for bringing water and sewer to two lots in the southeast portion of the property. Once that's done, a new application can be filed and bids can be taken for construction.

Basically, the village is risking about $1,500 in preliminary engineering to get the project rolling. If it succeeds, this cost will be reimbursed out of the grant.

Trustee James Ware questioned where the grant money çan be spent.

Miller said funds will go for improving public property only. Any improvements made on land eventually sold to a private firm must be

Council agreed to levy taxes at a rate of 13 mills again in 1977. It's the same figure trustees have approved for several years.

The levy will bring in an additional $12,058.70 in taxes in 1977, thanks to a boost in the village's State Equalized Valuation (SEV) of $927,900,

According to figures compiled by assessor Dan Erla, Cass City's current SEV stands at $12,773,000, compared with $11,845,100 in 1976. A breakdown shows real property assessed at $11,112,-600 and personal property at $1,660,400. This compares with $10,240,700 in real property and $1,604,400 in 1976.

Property tax revenues generated by 13 mills is expected to total $166,049. The current village SEV includes recently annexed property at the west edge of Cass City.

TENNIS COURTS

Village President Lambert Althaver reported Rotary Club is interested in funding a major park project, namely tennis courts.

Althaver told trustees the cost of building one new court and resurfacing two existing courts would run $8,500, while building two new courts would total. $10,400, excluding lighting. The cost of lighting one new and two old courts is estimated at $8,000, he said.

Althaver said while Rotary reimbursed to FHA, he said. has made no final commitment, the club is interested in constructing two new courts if the village would go along with new lights in its 1978 budget.

Trustees agreed to work with the club on the project while not formally committing themselves to any final

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, council okayed a request from TV Cable President James Mc-Coy to increase monthly charges from $6 to $7 beginning in April. By law, council had to approve the increase, Trustees approved a Planning Commission recommendation to zone the Charmont Lanes and adjoining property as general business. Frozen water lines have cost the village about $4,000 this year. Village Supt. Lou LaPonsie said 37 freeze-ups were reported this year along with six water main breaks.

County records third fatality

One person was killed and five others injured in a series of county traffic accidents during the past week.

Tuscola county recorded its third traffic fatality of 1977 when David Lee Petiprin, 19, Mayville, lost his life in a two-car crash on Saginaw Rd., 51/2 miles southeast of Vassar, Friday.

Sheriff's deputies who investigated said a vehicle driven by Jeffery David Brady, 19, Clio, was westbound when the eastbound Petiprin auto crossed the centerline, slid sideways due to snow and ice on the pavement and collided with Brady.

Petiprin was pronounced dead on arrival at Caro Community Hospital. Brady and a passenger, Terry Potter Jr., 18, Clio, were uninjured.

Police said the car struck a small tree, then continued on, striking a larger tree dead center.

The pair were treated at Caro Community Hospital, The accident took place at 6:05 p.m.

Judith Ann Holcomb, 22, of 5682 Severance Rd., Deford, suffered injuries Thursday morning when her car ran out of control and into a ditch on Cemetery Road, three miles south of Cass City.

Sheriff's deputies said Ms. Holcomb was southbound when her vehicle ran off the east side of the road and landed in a large ditch. She told officers the car's steering

MTPR eyes future Cass City rail takeover

While Michigan Thumb the sale agreement in Cleve-Producers Railroad Corp. is land Thursday, March 31. poised to begin operating track currently owned by the Chessie System from Port Austin to Croswell, the future of its plan to take over part of the Grand Trunk line serving Cass City is still in doubt. MTPR President William Jansen told the Chronicle this week his firm is in the final stages of hammering out an agreement with Chessie to purchase the eastern Thumb line with spurs serving Sandusky and Harbor Beach.

Jansen said he hopes to be operating the line within 60 days. He said the move now has the blessing of State Sen. Alvin J. DeGrow (R-Pigeon) who reversed an earlier position and now supports the concept of a short-line railroad in the Thumb.

DeGrow revealed his change of mind to James C. Kellogg of the state's Bureau of Urban and Rural Transportation in a letter dated March Jansen said Monday MTPR But Jansen's attempts to and Chessie officials will sign take over part of the Grand Trunk line serving Cass City could be stalled as long as three years.

He said if Administrative Law Judge J.F. Walker rules the Grand Trunk trackage from Imlay City to Caseville can be abandoned and if state authorities appeal the decision, the case could be tied up in court for up to three years.

"If the state keeps their mouth shut and goes along with the decision, then we're in business," Jansen said.

"I'll live by whatever Judge Walker rules," he said, "But for now, I've been forced to pull back from Grand Trunk in order to get some track operating.' Jansen said his group has bypassed state and federal funding and is using its own funds to purchase the Port Austin-Croswell track. He admitted the company would probably lose upwards of $100,000 in its first year.

He said after four or five vears and after MTPR gains control of Grand Trunk trackage north of Cass City, he predicted the company should show a profit.

According to federal law, Jansen said, if a rail line runs fewer than 34 rail cars per year per mile it must be abandoned. Testimony at the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing in Cass City in early February indicated Grand Trunk runs only, 16 cars per year per mile. "My question is how long is the state going to spend taxpayers' money to appeal this decision," Jansen said. He said since MTPR plans to operate only north of Cass City, the line will show 54 cars per year per mile, when combined with business generated on its eastern Thumb Jansen said he expects a decision from Judge Walker within two weeks.

MTPR officials and other interested parties met Friday at a session of the Michigan Rail Advisory Council to hear a decision on whether or not to recommend the State Highway Department support the concept of a short line railroad in the Thumb. Reportedly, no decision came down due to a lack of information from the highway department.

If the state does appeal an abandonment order, Grand Trunk could be forced, to operate the track until court challenges have run their the tracks will have deteriorated even further and increase the cost of refurbishing. But until a final abandonment order comes down, there's little MTPR can do. Local shippers who have

By then, Jansen believes, fought to keep rail service coming to the Thumb have generally opposed MTPR's plan since it would put Cass City at the end of a spur and would force southbound commodities to be shipped north in order to connect with a main line. Local shippers believe this would hike the cost of rail transport and eventually spell doom for the Cass City spur. At last winter's ICC hearing, Jansen said service could be maintained south of Cass City on a "will-call" basis. The proposal reportedly has not softened local opposition to the plan.

Some area shippers prefer to see Grand Trunk continue. its operation with help of federal and state subsidies. But there's a catch; no subsidy money can start flowing until the line is officially abandoned.

Little action is expected in the scenario until Judge Walker's decision.

"If It Fitz..." Profiles in light green

Mostly, I think, it was my nose. Also, there was my desire to try to understand George Raft.

That's what I told a reader who demanded that I explain the complexities of my bashful nature. I had refused to talk to her club, pleading shyness. But two days later she turned on her TV and there I was, hamming it up on Channel 4.

If I am too shy to give a speech before 75 women gathered for lunch, how come I blew my bazoo before thousands of TV viewers?

The clubwoman was implying that I am a phony. She figured I refused to make speeches only when the audience is too small to sufficiently reward my ego for going out on a cold night. This is not true.

I agreed to make my TV debut only when I learned the program would be taped in color before an audience of two cameramen, two directors, four bored technicians with bad coughs, and a program co-ordinator to tell them to quit coughing.

The taping was on Tuesday, with the show aired on Sunday. This meant I could sit home and adjust the color of my own nose, which is something I've always wanted to

The Pat part was tricky. I told her I was going to be on TV and invited her along to see the taping. She didn't know she was scheduled to be part of the show until the studio door was locked behind

Her protests could be heard inches away. "Where is my dressing room? she asked. "Who is my stand-in?"

Our TV vehicle was "Profiles" with Dr. Gil Maddox hosting smoothly. It used to be called "Profiles in Black" but they changed the name for my nose. This Sunday's theme was

"Boost Downtown Detroit." The star guest was Alex Pollock, the city's mad planner. Just recently he received the annual "Fine Mess" award for developing the Washington Blvd. trolley line which runs from an abandoned hotel to gang fights. Pollock thanked the man who gave him the prize by hitting him in the face with a pie.
On "Profiles," Pollock showed miniature models of the marvelous things which will soon be built in downtown Detroit. My assignment was to come on late in the program, like an author on the Johnny Carson show, to explain why I had moved my home into downtown Detroit. (I was simply following my nose, which now lives next door to Stroh's Brewery.) It was fun, and my shy sensibilities were threatened only temporarily. That was when Pollock and Maddox unzipped their trousers. I was afraid I'd stumbled into a closed-circuit production. But they were just hiding microphone wires inside their pants legs. TV can be a ticklish

Back home, five days later, I had a splendid time fiddling with the color of my nose. I finally decided on light green. For some reason, when my TV nose is light green, the rest of my face is purple. This may sound bilious to you, but it looks smashing with our new drapes.

As for George Raft, I decided he is right.

Raft insists he never watches his old movies on TV because it makes him uncomfortable. Amen. It made me uncomfortable to look at my friendly purple and green face and realize that thousands of people, by simply switching their dials, were at that minute throwing me out of their living rooms. I have probably been thrown out of better places, but never before so anonymously. It doesn't seem fair, somehow.

As for my wife, it is not surprising that her only complaint was that she didn't get to say enough. "I only had time to say nice things about downtown Detroit. I also wanted to say that the checkout lines are always too long and the floor is always dirty at the A & P Store in Lafayette Park," she said.

Take that, Price A & P When the program ended, the phone rang. I answered and relayed the message to Pat. "It's CBS," I said. "They saw you on TV and they want to hire you to take Grandma Walton's place.' Red noses, when poked tend to bleed more easily than light green noses.

We've got the blue ribbon recipe.

You know better than anyone that a good corn crop doesn't just happen. Your profit depends on good seed selection, effective fertilization, and timing. Our business is making sure you have the best of these vital ingredients. That's why professional growers like yourself are depending on our profit and performance program.

Ortho Unipel Fertilizers are ideally suited for top production in Michigan, where soils are cold, and something special is needed.

All Ortho Unipels contain fast acting nitrate nitrogen, the fast acting nitrogen, that doesn't have to wait for warm soils to become available. They also contain slower releasing nitrogen for the longer pull. This is the double action not found in other products.

Ortho Unipel Fertilizers that will fit your needs are 10-20-20, 16-16-16, 13-34-10, and 20-10-10. They all are proven high-yield corn producers for Michigan.

So, see us today, and plan for a high profit corn harvest next fall.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

Here are the questions that are being voiced around the main stem and the answers as seen from behind the desk at the corner of Oak and Main.

The scuttlebutt around town is that the former Ouvry Chev-Olds building has been sold and the community can expect an auto related business there in the near future.

Question: There's a good deal of speculation about whether or not there is room for more of this type of organization in the community. Can another survive?

Answer: Over the years I've seen it proved that nearly any business can prosper here if the management is sound. Conversely, any can-fail if the management is

The truth is that in today's competitive business climate there's room for merchants. no room at all for store keepers.

Question: Even the best of management is helped if there is a real need for whatever business is established. The question is what type of business do we really need in Cass City? Answer: That's much harder to answer. I'm sure that a survey would reveal as many different opinions as there are different businesses. It's easier to point out areas where we have an overabundance of businesses. The glaring example of course is the restaurants. For its population Cass City has more Question: Cass City has spent many, many dollars in the development of the Cass City Recreational Park. Have we gone overboard?

Answer: No. Anything that improves the quality of life in the long run pays dividends not only aesthetically but commercially for all of us making a living in the com-

However, the village does own a piece of land in the southeast corner of the village that has been undeveloped for more than a decade. It originally was purchased with the thought of establish-land became available plans for the alternate site were

It's the opinion here that perhaps the extra land is a luxury that village taxpayers can't afford. For the foreseeable future there doesn't appear to be a need for development there anymore. With taxes climbing as they are perhaps the best interest of all can be served by disposing of the land so it can be returned to the tax rolls.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

Let's build a hotel

By Jim Ketchum

Detroit has decided it can rid itself of its urban decay by building a monument of concrete and steel along its river-front called Renaissance Center.

Hotels, sports arenas and convention centers are supposed to draw new life into Detroit and make it vibrate with life. All it vibrates with now is the sound of gunfire and bodies dropping to the pavement. The Chamber of Commerce denies it, but it's true. It made news last week when the city went an entire week without a homicide. Well, almost.

The milestone had been given so much publicity that iust a few hours before the goal was to be reached, somebody decided to make even more headlines and turned his landlord's body into something resembling a piece of Swiss cheese.

Oh, well, back to square

City officials in Detroit still believe you can build a drawing card in downtown and bring in the masses who fled to the suburbs years before.

People, so the thinking goes, will bring themselves and their wallets with them, spend money which goes to paying the taxes which pay the police to protect the population from the criminals who live in the decaying parts

Keepsake

McConkey Jewelry

6458 Main Street Cass City, Michigan 48726

You could apply the same sort of thinking to other areas as well. Right now, Cass City is struggling, along with other communities, to keep rail service coming into the

It's been said there's no money in the present line and it should be abandoned. In line with thinking in Detroit, I propose the following: Cass City should build an 80-story hotel next to the tracks in the vicinity of the present abandoned depot. Actually, you wouldn't build it beside the tracks as much as you'd build it over the tracks.

Build it so the trains run through the middle of the lobby. Re-establish passenger service, bring back steam locomotives and real live bell-hops and you'd be in business.

Cass City would become a tourist mecca just because so many happy wanderers are looking for something different. Passengers could board at Pontiac and ride to the Thumb, passing through picturesque North Branch, Wilmot and Deford before arriving in Cass City.

The train could stop in the lobby, passengers would leave their air conditioned rail cars and walk right to the desk. For added atmosphere, you could use cinders on the floor instead of carpeting.

Applying Detroit Mayor Coleman Young's thinking, the hotel would solve the rail transportation problem, the Thumb's unemployment problem and bring a few bucks into town.

For added excitement, you could book the next Republican National Convention. Inviting the Democrats is a waste of time. Since they decided to make love, not war, their conventions are about as exciting as two weeks in bed with the flu.

Add legalized gambling and you'd have Las Vegas on the Cass.

Someone should call Mayor Young and have his city planners work on this one, now that Renaissance Center is under way. After all, they'll need something to do.

If you lay them off, they'll iust filter back into the decaying parts of town which will disappear anyway. You see, Mayor Young thought of everything.

Life in a wheelchair isn't a handicap for Bill McCallum

By Jim Ketchum

Bill McCallum figures he's not much different from anybody else. He enjoys being independent, working in his watch repair shop and talking with visitors.

His ever-present smile and congenial attitude seldom betray the fact that the 44-yearold McCallum is paralyzed from the waist down and has been confined to a wheelchair for over 20 years.

His handicap doesn't get in his way because he refuses to let it hinder him any more than necessary.

"Life is good," the graying McCallum says as he leaned forward in his chair, adjusting his position. "I figure what a person gets out of life area native, was living on a

"I was pretty good at everything except math and they told me I could be anything- I - wanted to be except a C.P.A.," he said with a grin. The impact injured his

"I was pretty good with my spine and sentenced him to hands so I decided to take up watchmaking. Michigan Rehabilitation sent me to school on Long Island in New York for 18 months and I started working in my shop in 1960." But his troubles weren't over. Last summer, doctors were forced to remove his left leg after the hip bone began to rot. He said medical experts were afraid the entire leg was also infected.

"I hadn't felt well for a long time," McCallum, who also suffers from diabetes, said. "Finally last summer this had to be done. Now I'm feeling good again and I can take on a liftle more work."

With his health problems under control, McCallum is anxious to revitalize his watch repair business he operates in the front room of his house at 3419 Fifth St. Thanks to technical literature he receives regularly, he keeps up on changes in the business. He spends several hours a day at his work when there is enough of it.

Sometimes when he's not busy he plays a game of catch with his 11-year-old part-Scottie "Cricket".

He also enjoys using a new citizen's band radio, a gift from a group of Owendale area CB'ers. He broadcasts on channel 10 and says he really enjoys the gift.

"I never used to think I wanted one because I didn't know how to operate it," he said. "Now I'd like one in my Despite his handicap, Mc-Callum drives, using hand controls. He says the controls give him a better feel for the road than you get in a conventional auto.

"Your hand is closer to your brain, so it stands to reason you can react faster with a hand control than with your foot," he said.

WHEELCHAIR DONATION

McCallum is especially proud of a new electricallypowered wheelchair which the Owendale Lions Club recently gave him. The chair retails for $1,300 and is powered by a 12-volt auto battery and two motors.

He said he knew nothing about the gift until a couple of days before the presentation was made. McCallum was recently installed as a new member of the club and said he is grateful for the new

"It sure makes getting around a whole lot easier." he said. "But it was so expensive, I told them I'd accept it only on the condition that I'd use it until someone else in worse shape than I'm in needed it.

"I feel sort of funny taking something like this when I can't really do anything in return. But I'm joining the club and I plan to help them selling white canes and doing what I can."

Other private donations toward the chair included $200 from the Gagetown Athletic Club, $50 from the Owen-Gage Senior Citizens Club and $25 from the Popple Trail Blazers

He said the chair donation and the CB radio gift were typical of a small-town people and how they care for each other. He says if he had lived in a large city, he doubts he'd have been as fortunate.

"I remember once when I was in school in New York, a fellow fell out of his wheelchair and nobody would stop what they were doing to help him up," he said. "That happens when people get too wrapped up in themselves."

McCallum maintains a neat, comfortable home with help from a sister who lends a hand preparing meals and keeping things in their places. In his spare time, he enjoys playing chess, reading or, when the weather allows, visiting with friends at the coffee shop.

He's kept busy and he says that's part of why he maintains a positive outlook on Asked what advice he would share with anyone recently crippled, McCallum didn't hesitate.

"Don't feel sorry for your-self," he said. "I've found that if you smile, people will smile back at you. It's a hard thing but you can do it. It's all in your attitude. You have to accept it and make the most of it.

"I think because this has happened, I can accept more downfalls in life than I could before." he said.

Pot proposal viewed

> Last week, President Carter urged that criminal penalties for marijuana use be eliminated, and that it be subject only to civil penalties. Do you agree?

Mrs. Grant Glaspie of Cass City isn't certain.

"If he (Carter) proposed it, it's because he feels it's in the best interest of the country,' Mrs. Glaspie says.

"I'm sure they would have had to study it a great deal before proposing it," she

Mrs. Glaspie says she hasn't really formed an opinion on whether or not marijuana should be decriminalized, but says she has faith that the administration is headed in the right direction with its proposal. "It seems that so many parents are so afraid of their children becoming involved with drugs," she says, "but they aren't afraid of alcohol. Alcohol is as big a problem as

In the Thumb, the Bad Axe area chapter has served single parents for the past five years, according to Marge Langmaid, Cass City, president of the group.

PWP marks week

The week of March 20-26

has been designated Parents

Without Partners Week in Michigan by Gov. William G.

The local chapter currently has 20 members who meet the first Wednesday of each month at 8:00 p.m. at Bad Axe Lanes. Adult and family activities are held on a regular basis, along with coffee and conversation meetings gatherings called "amigos" when new members are introduced.

Local officers besides Mrs. Langmaid are Richard Wickins, vice-president, Caseville; Alice Nelson, secretary, Sandusky, and Wade Williston, treasurer, Port Austin.

Parents Without Partners is a non-profit organization active throughout the United States and Canada.

result of male androgen hormones. These hormones make hair follicles slow down there may be a way to make hair follicles grow again. Til then, why not the Yul Brynner

Mechanical Monster Helps Grower With Wheat Crop

Liquid Nitrogen Custom Application

Starting the growing season out right is made easy with Wickes' new Super Go-Boy liquid nitrogen fertilizer applicator. Its special 40-foot spray boom allows top dressing to be applied in a third of the time it normally takes. Dormant wheat gets the boost it needs for healthy high yields. Add these benefits and you're off to a great growing season. Custom application:

- lengthens fertility season
- allows for even coverage
- eliminates streaking
- reduces soil compacting fewer passes over field
- ends bothersome handling of materials

 keeps you on schedule and saves you time See your local Wickes Elevator manager about custom application of Big Acre liquid nitrogen fertilizer and the new Super Go-Boy (available at most locations). Our professionally trained operators can get the job done quickly and efficiently with either the Super Go-Boy or tractor pulled applicators. Your wheat crop deserves the best top dressing you can give it.

Co-op jobs lead to careers for students

By Jim Ketchum

For most of us, a job is merely something to do between graduation and retirement that helps keep the bills

But for at least two Cass City High School students, their curriculum-related jobs are as much a labor of love as

At 17, Shelly Gallagher and Tammy O'Dell say their jobs as nurses' aides at Provincial House have helped them decide on health care careers.

Both students work at the nursing home as part of the school's student co-op program and put in about seven days every two weeks. Their experience has left both pleased with the program and looking toward jobs caring for

"I guess I always wanted to be a nurse," Miss Gallagher said as she and Miss O'Dell sat down to talk about their jobs during a few free moments at Provincial House.

"I was impressed with the way the nurses had worked with some of my relatives," she said. "I also had a cousin who was a nurse. I knew some of what there is about it and I wanted to try.

Miss O'Dell said she got involved in nursing simply because she needed a job last

"I'd heard this was a good place to work from some of the kids at school, so I applied," she recalled. Both admitted their first

Miss Gallagher not only spends around four hours a day, three days a week at Provincial House, she also spends three hours, three days a week taking a health occupations class at Caro as another part of co-op.

She's especially interested in therapy and spends time in the rehabilitation department at Hills and Dales General Hospital as part of her train-

Eventually, she'd like a career either as a nurse or as a physical therapist. She doesn't plan to enter school immediately after gradu-ation, but will probably stay on until there's an opening in nursing school.

NEEDED A JOB

While Miss O'Dell didn't have her heart set on a nursing career in the beginning, her job at Provincial House has helped her make up her mind.

"I came here mainly be-cause I needed a job," she recalled. "When I get out of school, I plan to move out of state to Georgia and once I'm there I plan to apply for a job at a nursing home and eventually go for my LPN (licensed practical nurses) degree."

Her initial experience as a nurse's aide wasn't easy eith-

> "The people enjoy you just coming in to visit," Miss Gallagher said. "They remember you and they like to see you. Sometimes I stay after my shift or come in when I have a day off just to visit with them.'

> They've also learned that cooperation comes more quickly if you ask a patient to do something instead of simply telling them.

"You find you can't use force," she said. "You try to persuade them and when they don't want to cooperate, you make the best of it.'

Both have been working at Provincial House about nine months. So far, neither has faced a life-and-death situation with a patient. The closest call came when one of the patients wandered away from the building and injured himself in a fall.

Another tense moment came the first time Miss Gallagher had to help a patient who suffered a stroke. Both admit it isn't all fun

Spring is here and one of the sure signs is the annual series of township meetings slated

Saturday, April 2.

Elkland township electors will meet at 1:30 at the fire hall in Cass City. The annual budget along with the federal revenue sharing budget will be discussed, along with other topics of general interest. The annual Grant township meeting is also slated at 1:30 p.m., while Elmwood, Ellington, Novesta, Evergreen and Greenleaf township meetings are scheduled to start at 1:00 p.m. at each township's meeting hall. All meetings are open to the public.

Between 500 and 600 persons turned out Sunday to attend a special performance of the Midland Symphony Orchestra at Cass City High

The orchestra, under the direction of Don Th. Jaeger, presented seven works, including a collection of compositions by George Gershwin and a medley of Russian folk

Highlights of the program were performances of the 1812 Overture by Tschaikowsky and "Stars and Stripes Forever" by John Phillip

According to Mrs. Holly Althaver of the Cass City Arts Council, the concert was more an artistic success than it was financial.

Arts Council and the Caro Arts Society, co-sponsors of the concert, are looking at a deficit of as much as $1,500. Mrs. Althaver said Tuesday some money was still being turned in and it was hoped some of the red ink could be eliminated She said in spite of the financial setback, it's hoped similar entertainment can be brought to the Thumb.

ECMPDR slates meetings

Two meetings sponsored by the East Central Michigan Planning and Development Region to discuss two reports relating to a Water Management Program have been slated for Cass City Thursday, March 31.

A meeting of elected officials will be held from 2:00-5:00 p.m. with ECMPDR personnel to discuss the reports. A second meeting, open to the general public, will be held from 7:00-10:00 p.m. Both meetings will be held at the Elkland Township Fire

One report forecasts a 70 per cent regional increase in per capita and personal income by the year 2000 and discusses how to clean up eastern Michigan water supplies without creating a heavy economic burden.

On behalf of the Varsity of our success this season. Basketball team, I would like to extend our deep thanks and appreciation for the fine following you provided us with during this exciting basketball season.

I believe these players rose to new heights during the season due to a crowd that backed them thru wins and losses. The players mentioned during the season the great lift they felt during some of the closest games due to the enthusiastic backing from our Cass City fans. The most memorable times were certainly the Frankenmuth game and the five tournament games that followed. When we were behind in these games, our Cass City fans rose to their feet and cheered us on to another pride Mr. John Haire Editor Cass City Chronicle

Cass City, Mich.

Dear John: One of the bright spots of this past winter has been the performance of the Cass City basketball and volleyball teams, I feel that Ms. Breidinger, Mr. Nurnberger, and their teams are to be congratulated on their excellent seasons and outstanding sportsmanship. These teams have brought a great deal of pride and excitement to our community but more importantly than winning, these young people have demonstrated an outstanding attitude, both on and off the court, which has made us proud to say they represent our community: I think I speak for most of the community when I say thanks for letting us share in your achievements.

Keep up the good work!

Consortium gives nod to CETA non-profit corporation

The Thumb Area Consortium gave preliminary approval Thursday to forming a non-profit corporation to administer the spending of $2 million in Title VI CETA funds.

The proposal, which still needs final approval of the Tuscola and Sanilac County Boards of Commissioners, would set up a corporation to handle all Title VI CETA work projects in the three counties. Huron county has already given its okay.

Under a rough plan submitted by Sanilac CETA coordinator Leonard Hool to the Consortium's administrative board, the corporation would be set up with two commissioners from each county plus one at-large member from each of the three counties.

Hool's proposal would establish offices in Caro, Bad Axe and Sandusky each staffed with one field superintendent and a secretary, along with a program administrator and an accountant bookkeeper which would work in all three counties. Hool estimated about 160 workers would be hired under Hool estimated about 160 workers would be hired under the plan designed to spend the $2 million by Sept. 30. According to authorities in Washington, more Title VI funding is assured through mid-1978.

Under new CETA regulations, the funds can be spent only for labor. Material must be furnished by the employer. Consortium Director Frank Lenard said he has received Lenard said he has received approval from State labor authorities to give the non-profit corporation idea a try. If it works, it could be used in other areas, he said.

If the proposal does become reality, the Consortium would sign only one contract with the corporation to handle Title VI funds instead of multiple contracts with each employer.

Hool told the board he would be willing to serve as the corporation's administrator at an annual retainer of $15,000. Besides working as CETA coordinator in Sanilac county, Hool is also a grant researcher and consultant who works out of Port Huron.

No decision was made on whether or not to hire Hool, although it appears likely he will get the job. Final approval is expected this week from both the Tuscola and Sanilac commissions.

Once in motion, Title VI workers are likely to be involved in such projects as sidewalk construction, painting and renovation of local government buildings, park construction and underbrush

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, the Consortium approved the start-up of the Summer Program for Economically Disadvantaged Youth (SPEDY). The board authorized Lenard to contract with the Human Development Commission in Caro to begin hiring staff for the 13-week summer program designed to provide jobs for students who

The board heard a monthly fiscal report on CETA programs. Through Feb. 28, the consortium had spent $286,374 in Title I programs with $836,693 remaining to be spent. A total of 234 persons were enrolled in the program at the end of February.

In Title II, the Consortium has spent $960,542, with another $335,007 remaining. A total of 92 persons were enrolled under Title II at the end of February.

Under Title VI, the consortium has spent $193,755 so far in the current fiscal year, with another $1,105,089 remaining to be spent. The figures do not include the supplemental grant scheduled to be administered through the non-profit corporation.

A total of 159 persons were enrolled in Title VI programs at the end of February.

In all CETA programs, a total of 485 persons were enrolled at the end of last month.

'77 among best years for state's Steelhead fishing

Michigan anglers could well remember the spring of '77 as the best steelhead season ever as a predicted record number of fish pour into Great Lakes tributaries, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

Peak runs of mature, threeyear-old steelhead averaging 10 pounds and four-pound skippers will make Lower Michigan spawning runs in March and April. Best Upper Peninsula stream fishing should be in April and May.

The more than two million fish available to anglers this. spring equal previous runs, but the higher water levels expected in rivers mean record spawning runs.

Water levels of virtually all prime streams listed on the accompanying Auto Club map were extremely low last fall. This forced all but a few steelhead to winter in the Great Lakes rather than rivwinter, the spring thaw should trigger heavy runs into all spawning streams, Auto Club said.

The state's two-year-old steelhead record of 26 pounds, eight ounces set in Lake Michigan off St. Joseph could be broken this spring.

It may have been broken last year, by anglers mistaking giant steelhead for salmon. A steelhead can be identified by its all-white mouth, spotted tail and pink gill plates and side stripes.

Anglers with probable record fish should take them to the nearest State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) office, or weigh the fish using certified scales at any grocery and submit results to the DNR along with statements by two witnesses.

breakwalls either with a sinker or bobber.

Wading rivers and working spinners or flies in deep spots or across occupied spawning beds are other productive methods. Some steelheaders prefer to troll wobbling lures or spinners off river mouths and in lakes formed by rivers in West Michigan.

Steelhead are fickle fish. Fish protecting beds during spawning or resting under logs or in deep holes will often charge flies or lures from several feet away. Other times, however, the same fish will ignore every attempt to provoke a strike.

Lower Michigan waters draw the most fishing pressure while Upper Peninsula streams often are deserted during major runs occurring a month after downstate fishing has ended. Southeast Michigan anglers have a bonus in the St. Clair River's North Channel, which has become an excellent steelhead fishery. Auto Club reminds anglers to learn all regulations applying to rivers they will fish. Sections of some rivers are open for fly fishing only and other parts open when general trout season starts April

DNR officials note that Lake Michigan steelhead contain excessive amounts of polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), and anglers should eat no more than one-half pound of the fish per week. Women of childbearing age should not eat any fish containing high PCB levels.

For further information on stream limitations and PCB dangers, anglers should consult the DNR's 1977 Michigan

With a big win under their belts, Cass City headed for the court against Grand Rapids Forest Hills, but it wasn't long before the Hawks knew they were in trouble.

Cass City trailed in the first 'game 14-10 when time ran out and Forest Hills took the win. The second game was closer but again Forest Hills came out on top, this time 16-14.

They played a fast game,' Ms. Breidinger said, "We had been playing a strong offensive game and we couldn't go from offense to defense fast enough. We were catching up but not fast enough. We weren't used to playing that caliber of team.

For the match, Mel Kelley and Chris Krueger shared setting honors, while top spiker was Beth Erla, top server was Diana Smith and receiving honors were shared by Diana Smith and Miss Erla.

Overall team serving percentage was 93 per cent. Forest Hill then went on to lose to Edwardsburg in the
