

Complaints could stall treatment plant

Objections by Wesley's milk plant officials to costs connected with Cass City's proposed $3.5 million wastewater treatment plant could stall the project in its tracks, village trustees learned at council's Tuesday night meeting at the Municipal Building.

Village Supt. Lou LaPonsie told trustees the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) wants a letter of intent from Wesley's officials saying they will pay their share for treating effluent from their Main Street plant.

LaPonsie said such letters are required of "heavy" treatment plant users. Currently, Wesley's contributes about one-fifth of the current plant's total volume.

It's estimated the regulations would cost Wesley's about $10,000 per year over 30 years, according to Hubbel, Roth and Clark, village engineers.

So far, LaPonsie said, Wesley's officials haven't sent the letter, saying they don't want to commit themselves to the project yet. According to LaPonsie, the company wants its attorneys to review the regulations. It's unknown how long that will take.

Meanwhile, LaPonsie said, the village could lose out on the 80 per cent grant money it needs to construct the new disposal plant.

EPA officials have reportedly said any pressure on Wesley's to conform must come locally and not from the federal government.

Village President Lambert Althaver said the village is also feeling pressure from the state Department of Natural Resources to get Step II of the three-step disposal plant project going.

He said the DNR will renew the present permit to discharge into the Cass River on condition that a new plant be constructed as soon as possible. The new permit would run through 1982 and would become effective in July.

"We have one company standing in the way of a major project and a major amount of money," Althaver said. "I think it should be made clear that these are not our rules. This is the way the law is spelled out."

LaPonsie said EPA needs a letter of intent from Wesley's stating they plan to stay and use the treatment plant so that the facility won't be overbuilt. He said the letter acts as a cushion and protects the village from building more treatment capacity than it needs.

Trustee Dr. D.E. Rawson suggested the village send Wesley's a letter saying council must have the letter of intent by a certain date. If it didn't come, then the project would have to be planned without Wesley's.

"If they don't want to be part of the project, then they don't want to be part of the community," Rawson said.

Althaver said Wesley's wasn't being singled out for harassment. He said the company is the largest user of the sewage disposal system and that under EPA rules, any large user of the system must pay for treatment of its wastes under a "cost recovery" plan.

Rawson emphasized that the village and Wesley's should try to work out the problem but that an answer would be needed soon.

If the project is stalled and the village loses out on this year's funding, it could re-apply for funds next year—if funds are there. LaPonsie said there's no guarantee how much money would be available through EPA for treatment plant projects next year.

The village has already invested about $5,000 of its own money so far in Step I and Step II. Althaver indicated the village is ready to move on the second phase of the project as soon as Wesley's complies.

"We have to go ahead with this project," Althaver said. "We can't let an individual or company stand in the way."

Wesley's was not represented at Tuesday's meeting. Council took no formal action, preferring to work behind the scenes with the company for an agreement.

Studies 'gift horse'

Council undecided on fate of Cultural Center

Cass City Village Council was formally presented with the keys to the Cultural Center by Elkland township officials during council's regular session Tuesday night at the Municipal Building.

Council decided to let those keys lie on the table 30 days and there's a good chance they won't be picked up then. Trustees aren't anxious to take on an added expense of over $800 a year.

Elkland Township Supervisor Edwin Karr told council the township has no further use for the building and that electors had voted at the annual meeting to give the structure to the village.

"We hope you won't turn our gift horse down," Karr said.

Under the current arrangement, the township owns the building and shares the operating cost with the village on a 50-50 basis. Last year, the township's share totaled $836.

It's estimated total operating costs could run as high as $2,000 this year.

"Personally, I don't know why you'd want it," Karr quipped. "It's of no advantage for you to take it."

Village President Lambert Althaver said he isn't anxious to see Cass City lose the Cultural Center because it gives groups such as the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts a meeting place. It's also one of the oldest buildings in the village, he said.

"My hope is that the two organizations (village and township) could keep it going as it is," Trustee Dr. D.E. Rawson said.

Karr said the township has received complaints about the building pertaining to the second floor. Reportedly, the lack of an adequate fire escape makes the upper story unuseable.

Council tabled any action on the building pending a study by trustees of what it would take to upgrade the second floor.

STREET WORK

Trustees gave their blessing to four street projects for the summer. The most controversial includes curb, gutter and blacktop on Pine Street from Seeger to West and Leach Street from Pine to the south alley.

The construction will eliminate angle parking in front of Rawson Memorial Library which upset Trustee Nat Tuttle.

Tuttle said forcing library patrons to park parallel on both sides of Pine Street would inhibit use of the library and wondered if the present asphalt apron could remain.

Althaver said it has to go because Pine Street is a "major street". As such, the village receives state funds at a rate of $3,500 a mile against just $700 a mile for "local streets".

"Basically, we have no choice if we want the major street money," Althaver said. "Hopefully, there will someday be additional parking available at the west end of the library. I would look at this as a temporary situation."

Rawson complained that some Main Street merchants started parking in front of the library after meters were installed on Seeger Street. He suggested a one-hour limit be placed on parking at the site.

Other street work includes curb and gutter only on Woodland from Third to Garfield and Garfield from Woodland to Ale Street. Blacktopping would be completed the following year under the plan.

Code as part of its building ordinances. The code relates to window sizes and insulation requirements.

Council also discussed the possibility of serving an 80-acre parcel of land owned by builder Tom Herron near the north village limits. The land lies too low to be hooked into the existing sewer system without use of a lift station, Village Supt. Lou LaPonsie said.

Trustees agreed that if Herron develops the land, he would have to bear the cost of the sewer system and lift station needed to make it work.

No formal request has come from Herron for such a hook-up.

It was announced that Cass City will receive $40,318 in Federal Revenue Sharing funds for fiscal year 1978 which begins next Oct. 1.

Trustees Tuttle and Rawson were appointed to head up the annual Memorial Day parade.

Mrs. Baker, Miss Hobart receive Chamber plaudits

Mrs. Helen Baker was named Citizen of the Year in Cass City Saturday night, and Cathy Hobart, daughter of Ben Hobart of Gageton, was named Junior Citizen of the Year at the annual Spring Community Banquet of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce, held at Colony House.

Mrs. Baker, the 15th recipient of the annual award, was the second consecutive woman to receive the honor. Mrs. Evelyn MacRae, last year's winner, presented Mrs. Baker with the award before an estimated 200 persons gathered for the occasion.

A retired teacher, Mrs. Baker has been actively involved in a host of community projects. She spearheaded a drive by Cass City Zonta Club to raise $20,000 for completion of the Helen Stevens Memorial swimming pool last year and was responsible for writing a tribute to Mrs. Stevens at the pool's dedication last summer.

She is a former president of the Cass City Woman's Study Club, the local chapter of the American Red Cross and the Cass City AAUW branch and Zonta Club. She also served as an area director of Zonta International.

She is the mother of three children. She and her husband, Ed, have five grandchildren.

Talks continue

Negotiations were continuing at press time between Walbro Corp. and the United Auto Workers (UAW) in an effort to hammer out a new contract. The old pact was due to expire at midnight Wednesday, April 27.

Walbro Corp. President Lambert Althaver was mum about where the talks stood

Tuesday night, other than to say the two sides were negotiating. He would not speculate on the possibility of a strike.

The present three-year agreement was reached without a strike in 1974.

Union officials had released no statements regarding the talks at press time.

JUNIOR CITIZEN

For the third consecutive year, a member of the Ben Hobart family was named Junior Citizen of the Year. Cathy Hobart, a senior, succeeds her sisters Marie, who won the honor in 1975, and Ann, who shared the award last year with Sue Pobanz.

She has been active in a wide variety of activities in high school including debate, forensics, student council and National Honor Society.

She was a member of the National Junior Honor Society as a freshman and was a member of the Science Quiz team. She served as a student council representative in her sophomore and junior years.

She won a speaking award in debate and placed seventh in the JV division of the Southern Thumb League as a junior and also was selected to attend a "Women in Engineering" seminar at Michigan Tech.

As a senior, she participated in state debate tournament competition. She is a National Merit Scholar and was chosen a General Mills Family Leader of Tomorrow.

MARTIN TWORK, 34, Cass City, has reason to kiss the lottery ticket he's holding. He won $10,000 playing the instant game Monday afternoon. "I never hit it big until now," Twork said.

Twork's ticket worth $10,000

Martin Twork, 36, isn't as unhappy about being laid off this week as he had been for the last month and a half. In fact, the world looks pretty good to him.

Twork, who resides at 6674 Severance Road south of Cass City, hit the jackpot Monday afternoon when he won $10,000 in the Michigan Lottery's instant game.

The winning ticket was purchased at the Colonial Inn in Cass City.

"This is the first time I ever hit it big," a smiling Twork said as he ordered another glass of beer to celebrate his good fortune.

"I've been laid off from my job at Cadillac Gauge in Warren for about a month and a half," he said. "This couldn't come at a better time."

Twork said he'll probably use what's left of his winnings to pay off a pile of bills that have grown since he was laid off. He figures he'll have something around $8,000 left by the time the taxes on his winnings are paid.

He said he purchased lottery tickets in the past but the most he's ever won is either $2 or a free ticket.

"This must really be my lucky day," Twork observed after giving his winning ticket an affectionate smooch for the Chronicle camera. "I found a dime on the sidewalk when I came in here and now this."

He'll share his winnings with his wife, Glenda and his two children, Cindy and David.

Twork says he'll definitely keep buying the tickets. One big win makes it all worth it, he says.

Appeal suit stalls May 9 Owen-Gage bond sale

The Owen-Gage School District's May 9 bond sale was stalled again this week as a group of dissidents filed an appeal of an earlier suit with the Michigan Supreme Court.

According to school attorney James Schouman, the appeal was filed by Bad Axe attorney H. Dale Cubitt who is representing Delmar Miller, Bernard Neister, Barbara Burdon, Marilyn Pritch, Joyce Loeffler and Geraldine Jantz.

The original appeal of Huron County Circuit Judge Allen Keyes' December decision throwing out the group's suit, was dismissed by the Supreme Court in March after Cubitt failed to "perfect" or detail his case.

Under the law, Cubitt has 20 days to file an appeal, which was reportedly done last week.

If the court grants the petition, the arguments of both sides will be scheduled. If the appeal petition is not granted, the case should end, Schouman said.

He characterized the move as a "stall" tactic, designed to hold up construction of a $1.675 million high school building in Owendale.

Schouman said he wasn't sure if a recently passed board resolution demanding that the dissidents be sued if they filed further court action applied since the case technically is a continuation of one in process before the resolution was passed.

"I don't want to shoot from the hip on this," Schouman told the Chronicle Tuesday. "I want to know what my marching orders are before I make a move."

Under state law, the school bonds cannot be sold as long as there is any pending litigation against them. He said the appeal definitely cancels the planned May 9 sale.

Supt. Ronald Erickson said Tuesday the dissidents will be sued if the board resolution can be applied.

Erickson said when the school files its briefs in the case, it plans to insert a

"If It Fitz. . ." Could my big sister fight!

By Jim Fitzgerald

(Columnist Jim Fitzgerald is on vacation. This week's column originally appeared in the Lapeer County Press several years ago.)

I have been invited to a birthday party which reminds me that for several years I've been surprised that my middle daughter never beats up on her little brother, who is about 2 years younger.

"Chrissie," I asked her, "you are a little older and a little bigger than Eddie so how come you never beat him up?"

"Girls don't fight," she explained, "and besides, I'm afraid of him."

I questioned Chrissie further and discovered that none of her girlfriends batter their little brothers. She was, in fact, surprised that I should wonder about such a silly thing. Where did I get such stupid ideas?

It was then I realized that Jean had been a special case. All these years I thought all big sisters knocked heck out of their little brothers. I thought it was an automatic part of childhood, like going to the dentist or scraping your knee on the sidewalk. About 35 years too late, still bruised and girl-shy, I discover that my big sister should have been arrested for what she did to me.

In those days, girls didn't live in trousers. But they did wear bloomers to match their dresses, which was good enough for my big sister. Jean tucked her skirt inside her bloomers and played football and baseball better than any guy in the block, especially me, gee.

People just shrugged and said, "Well, Jean's a tomboy." Life was simpler then. Today, Jean's mother would be writing to Ann Landers and whispering to her preacher. But our mother didn't care what Jean did, as long as she did the dishes.

What Jean did mostly was manage the neighborhood kids, especially me, gee. If we had to choose up sides for a game, she'd choose up both sides and elect herself captain of the team with muscles. The other team was a bunch of skinny kids who couldn't run because their shoes didn't fit, especially me, gee.

Once in a while I'd scratch up enough courage to defy Jean. Maybe I'd call her Jeannette Marie, her real name. And once I told all the kids that Jean was lying, she didn't really make a movie with Rin-Tin-Tin when she was in California. I'd always shout such blasphemy from a block away, while running, but it was no use. She'd always catch me and kill me.

What a fist fighter! She used to swing her big fists down, as if she were pounding nails. It was the same as being caught under a rockslide. It usually took her 30 seconds to make me disappear into the ground, whimpering.

My only chance was to trip her, before she started pounding, and then grab her in my famous neck hold. When she was flat on her stomach I would put my knee in her back and clutch her by the chin with both hands. I would then pull back with all my strength, stretching her neck something splendid. She would beg for mercy, how sweet it was, and I would let her free only after she promised, cross her heart and spit to die, that she would never hit me again.

Then she would get up and she wouldn't hit me. She'd hit the ground — with me. I was her hammer. It was a horrible mistake for any kid to cross Jean, especially me, gee.

I can't remember exactly when Jean quit beating me up. It was probably after I was drafted and she didn't think it would be patriotic. Anyway, she has continued to be a winner to this day. No matter what it is — sing, swim, dance or draw — she does it better than most anyone else, especially me, gee.

She went to Marygrove College in the big city and was president of her class 4 straight years. She married a guy named Fitzgerald (no body was going to change HER name) and he loves to cook, too. She is a commercial artist, a teacher, the mother of 5 lovely children, and the warm friend of everyone she knows. And I'll bet she can still lick me.

This Wednesday a bunch of us are gathering to celebrate Jean's 43rd (egad!) birthday. There will be many wisecracks and insults, such as a smartie little brother might write. But there will be no disguising that everyone loves Jean. Especially me, gee.

Some people have been helped so much they are helpless.

Ballard of Cass City, is seen standing next to Princess Grace of Monaco at the recent christening of the new cruise ship Cunard Princess in New York. Her husband, right, is President and Chief Operating Officer of the Cunard Line. Also in the picture is the Bahnas' 9-year-old daughter, Laura, who was flower girl at the ceremony. John C. # Council to request subdivision lighting Street lights will glow in two Cass City subdivisions currently in the dark following action by Cass City Village Council at its Tuesday night meeting at the Municipal Building.

Voters okay millage

Voters in the Cass City School District gave overwhelming approval Monday to a renewal of 3.5 mills for three years for school operations. Unofficial returns showed the question carried by a 169-85 margin, with a total of 254 votes being cast.

NEW IDEAS

Individual thinking has always been the life-blood of our democratic way of life.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

Here we go again. Now that President Carter's energy reform requests are official the big boys in the energy business are zeroing in like a pride of lions surrounding a crippled antelope.

Actually, the never ending barrage from the oil cartels has never stopped or even slowed.

There's hardly a day goes by that one of the oil company giants isn't represented on the tube with the sincere guy in the work uniform telling us how hard he's working with the rest of the company to make life better for all of us.

The difference is now they have a definite target. It's to let profits soar sky high. That's the only way that the companies can afford to spend those fantastic amounts necessary for exploration.

If you buy that, considering the profits of the biggies since the oil crunch started, meet me at the corner of Woodward and Jefferson in Detroit and we'll start negotiations for the Windsor tunnel.

But let's assume that what the oil barons say is true . . . that there is more oil waiting to be found if we are willing to pay and pay and pay.

Even the oil cartels can't claim that the amount waiting to be discovered is not finite. At best if we add to our known reserves we are simply prolonging the inevitable by a few very short years.

Meanwhile our standard of living steadily worsens as inflation eats away at our good life.

I can't help but think that the vast majority of us are ready to make sacrifices. The kicker in this program is making it equal for all. It's Council agreed to request installation of lights in the Countryview and Hillcrest subdivisions after it was learned only ornamental lighting is available from Detroit Edison Co.

Trustees agreed to absorb the estimated $171 per year per light cost. Earlier, it was believed a cheaper light could be erected and if ornamental lights were desired by residents, the extra cost would be theirs.

But all that changed following word from Edison that only ornamental lights are available in subdivisions with underground wiring which is required by village ordinance.

Village President Lambert Althaver said the lights are similar to those along Main street. Ornamental lights such as those along Kennebec Drive can no longer be supplied, Edison said in a letter to village authorities.

The move breaks a precedent on Kennebec when residents had to pay the difference between regular and ornamental lights. Council also agreed to study lighting needs in the Hills and Dales No. 4 subdivision. Under village policy, when a subdivision reaches 50 per cent of total development, it becomes eligible for lighting, Althaver said.

Rabbit Tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

The smarties around the coffee table are taking bets about how long the golf woods that Gary Christner bought last week will last.

Regular readers of this trivia with long memories will recall how Christner borrowed a wood last year, hit the ball and promptly sent the club head about as far as the ball.

Many of us would be happy to break a club now and then if we hit the ball as far as he does, but don't tell him I said so.

AROUND THE FARM
Water study begins
 By Don Kebler

In my last news release I wrote about the East Central Michigan Planning and Development Region program. I remarked this organization is endeavoring to determine whether or not soil and/or surface water pollutants exist in their region. They have been most conscientiously trying to obtain local public involvement to determine what problems exist or do not exist.

Last week I saw in operation some of their equipment in the county rural areas. This equipment is collecting water discharging from field tile into a ditch. They are also collecting surface run-off water flowing in the ditch.

This is only part of the testing and sampling procedures they have been, are presently, and in the future will be using. When they finish these procedures, they will be able to identify where, when and from what source intolerable levels of water pollutants, if any, exist. The intolerable levels are defined by the Federal Environmental Protection Agency, EPA.

Once their field findings are studied, a report or tentative plan of operation will be submitted at public hearings. At these hearings, the public will be asked to review the plan for achieving acceptable clean water standards, then make recommendations to accomplish these standards in the most economical, livable and workable way.

I can't overemphasize the East Central Michigan Planning and Development Region's need for local citizen involvement so they can collect the most accurate information and recommendations. So when this group asks for your help, be prepared to solidly participate. After all, the final draft after these public hearings will decide what the local citizens will have to live and function by - be they farm or city people.

Dirk Venema succumbs

Youth killed in 2 car crash Tuesday

Dirk Hessel Venema, 18, Deford, was killed Tuesday afternoon in a two-car crash on Kirk Road at the outskirts of Vassar.

According to a report by Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies, Venema died when his southbound car failed to negotiate a 90-degree curve on Kirk Road and slammed into an oncoming vehicle driven by Leo J. Hebert, 19, Vassar. Hebert was not injured.

Dirk Hessel Venema

Venema was pronounced dead on arrival at Caro Community Hospital. The accident brings the county death toll to four for 1977.

The mishap took place at 12:15 p.m. and was still under investigation by the Sheriff's department and Vassar Police at press time.

Eleven persons were injured this past week in a series of auto accidents involving area residents and occurring in all three Thumb counties.

Carl Gibbard, 17, Ubly, was hospitalized overnight at Hills and Dales General Hospital with injuries he suffered in a single-car crash on Ubly Road, about four miles south of Ubly, Wednesday, April 20. Sanilac County Sheriff's deputies who investigated said Gibbard was southbound when he lost control of his vehicle, drove off the road and into a ditch on the west side.

He was alone at the time of the accident, 3:25 p.m. No ticket was issued.

William John Juhasz, 17, of 4975 E. Cass City Rd., was treated for injuries at Caro Community Hospital after his car ran off Hurds Corner Road, 10 miles southwest of Cass City, Monday night.

Juhasz told Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies he was northbound and failed to make a series of S-curves, lost control and slid down an embankment and landed in a deep ditch.

Deputies said his car was extensively damaged. The accident took place at 9:00 p.m.

Two drivers were injured, one seriously, in a head-on crash on M-41, five miles west of Caro, Saturday morning.

Sheriff's deputies said Larry Ezra Lyons, 20, Kingston, was eastbound when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel and crossed the center of the road.

Dennis Calvin Henry, 25, Caro, who was driving a westbound vehicle, swerved to the shoulder to avoid the crash but both autos collided head-on on the shoulder. Henry was treated for his injuries at Caro Community Hospital. Lyons, who was cited for careless driving, was shaken up.

The accident took place at 6:45 a.m.

Four persons were treated at Caro Community Hospital for injuries suffered in a two-car crash at the intersection of M-24 and M-46, Thursday afternoon.

Sheriff's deputies reported a car driven by Shirley Marie Stephens, 62, Postoria, was southbound on M-24 and apparently pulled into the path of an eastbound vehicle driven by Ruth Ann Brown, 30, of Denhoff Rd., Kingston.

Mrs. Brown and two children, Ryan and Stacey Brown, also of Kingston, were shaken up.

Ms. Stephens was cited for failure to yield the right of way. The accident took place at 2:40 p.m.

Two persons were shaken up early Saturday morning when the car in which they were riding struck a tree on Warner Road, two miles southwest of Cass City.

Sheriff's deputies said Richard Paul Selby, 18, of 4751 N. Seeger St., driver of the car, pulled from a driveway onto Warner Road, lost control and hit a tree on the west side of the road. He and his passenger, David Zawilinski, 19, of 4355 Leach St., Cass City, sought their own medical treatment. Selby was cited for careless driving. The accident took place at 1:00 a.m.

Chris Krueger, 18, Cass City, suffered cuts and bruises when the car in which she was riding ran off M-53, a half-mile north of M-142 in Huron county and came to rest on a lawn outside a private home.

Tom Brinkman, 17, Cass City, the driver, told Bad Axe State Police he was southbound when a dog ran onto the highway in front of his car. He said he swerved to miss the animal and lost control of the car and ran off the road on the east side.

Brinkman and two other passengers, Gary Schuette, 19, Akron, and Beth Erla, 18, Cass City, were uninjured. The accident took place at 1:10 a.m.

BICYCLE ACCIDENT

Karl Patrick Nitz, 7, of 6616 Main St., Cass City, escaped serious injury Wednesday, April 20, when the bicycle he was riding slid under a moving auto on Sherman Street.

Cass City Police identified the driver of the car as Rex Allen Schmeler, 35, of 4313 Sherman St.

According to the police report, Schmeler was southbound on Sherman when he saw a bicycle approaching from the alley headed east. He stopped for the bike when a second bicycle ridden by the Nitz youth apparently slid sideways and landed under the auto.

The accident took place at 4:52 p.m.

Two persons were treated at McKenzie Hospital in Sandusky for injuries they suffered in a two-car accident on M-19, about 10 miles east of Cass City, Thursday.

Sanilac County Sheriff's deputies said Ann Elizabeth Timm, 41, Sandusky, was headed south on M-19 when a car driven by Hugh Roberts, 50, Minden City, pulled from Cass City Road in front of her.

Officers said she swerved to avoid the crash but failed. She and her passenger, Joan Van Conant, 36, Sandusky, were treated for injuries. Roberts was uninjured. He was ticketed for improper lane usage. The accident took place at 12:40 a.m.

arrived, I entered our high school auditorium and seated myself at a battery of microphones. I started to speak and discovered the battery was dead.

I also discovered nobody showed up. Sensing things weren't going my way, I raised my voice, hoping at least the girls in the shower room could hear my announcement above the running water.

I was about half way through my prepared text when the principal walked in the room and told me I had three minutes to get to my next class or I'd be recorded as tardy and he forced to stay after school.

Now was my chance. I raced to the door, locked it and said neither of us would leave until he heard my press statement. Besides, he had little choice. I used his necktie to bind his hands and feet.

My announcement over, I released him and went to class. He made me stay after school, but it gave me a chance to read the statement to the faculty.

All of which proves jock straps are more important than typewriters.

All of which reminds me of what happened during my senior year at Williamston High School. For I, too, called a press conference one dank afternoon to announce my intentions to attend Michigan State University.

Admittedly, I had not been actively recruited by any school. I didn't even receive an invitation to visit the campus of the School of Hard Knocks.

But I was undaunted. I had set the Hornet Hummer, our high school newspaper, on its ear with my interpretative reporting. My big moment was the story I wrote when Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. spoke at Michigan State University.

With this piece going for me, I thought it wouldn't be long before my phone would start ringing with scouts, seeking my aid to help bolster their sagging journalism programs.

When cobwebs began collecting on the telephone, I knew something had to be done.

Taking matters into my own hands, I called a press conference to make the announcement that Michigan State would be my school. Actually there wasn't much mystery about it. They'd taken my pre-registration money. When the appointed hour

Yes to energy plan

The life style of most Americans will undergo at least some change if President Jimmy Carter's energy proposals become law. We'll travel less and pay more for our fuel if the President has his way.

Earl Whittaker of Cass City likes the idea of a federal energy plan.

"It has to start somewhere and it appears only the federal government can do it," he says. "If we don't start now, there won't be anything left for our kids."

"I think it's important to stay behind him (Carter) at least for now," he says. "We'll have to make some sacrifices but I think we have to start sooner or later."

Whittaker admits the added tax burden will hit the average American harder than those with wealth, but that there doesn't seem to be much choice.

"Those with the money apparently will pay the higher gas tax and apparently are willing to pay up to $2,500 extra for a big car," he says. "Those who have the money will still drive."

He says he's glad to see the President's statements on energy and that in the long run, they're being made for the welfare of the nation.

Whittaker is employed at Anrod and resides in Cass City. He is single.

Scholarship available

Cass City AAUW is currently taking applications for a recently-established scholarship program for qualified women.

According to Kathy Bauer, AAUW member, the scholarship is open to residents of the Cass City School District and Cass City High School students.

The scholarship will be awarded to help a student who wants to go into a four-year accredited college and university. The amount of the award is $250 and is renewable on application with others, Mrs. Bauer said.

High school students must carry a 3.3 cumulative grade point average, 3.0 average is required of applicants not currently in high school.

The money is designed to be applied toward tuition, books and fees, Mrs. Bauer said. There is no age limit.

Anyone interested in more information about the program or in obtaining an application should contact Mrs. Bauer at 872-4168, Mrs. Dottie Scollon at 872-2935 or Curtis J. Cleland Jr., counselor at Cass City High School at 872-2148.

Deadline for applications is May 13.

LWML holds meeting

Lutheran women from Cass City and other area Lutheran churches were among the over ninety persons attending the annual Spring Rally of the Thumb Zone Lutheran Women's Missionary League at St. John's Lutheran church, Port Sanilac. The Tuesday, April 19, event marked the 50th rally of the zone. A dessert lunch was served by the host society during the 6:30 p.m. registration period after which the opening devotions were led by the Rev. Paul Mell, host pastor.

The LWML is observing its 35th anniversary and all local societies are urged to gather a special offering to be presented at the international convention in Laramie, Wyo., in August. The rally offering went to World Hunger Relief.

The Rev. James Van Deilen of Cass City and counselor for the zone led the group in closing devotions. The LWML of Trinity Lutheran church, Forrestville, will host the fall rally Oct. 18.

Nancy Dickerson, prominent national correspondent, reports for Detroit Edison:

"After last winter's severe cold, a lot of homeowners are warming up to the electric heat pump. Here's why!"

Home pictured built by Guenther Building Company, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Today's heat pump is one of the most energy-efficient ways to heat your home, apartment, office or commercial building. It returns over 1½ units of heat for every unit of energy it uses.

Think what this can mean in conserving energy and helping to keep your heating and cooling costs down.

There's a unique reason why the heat pump is an outstandingly efficient heating system.

It makes good use of outdoor heat.

Yes. Even in winter there's heat in the outdoor air that can help keep you warm. The trick is to move that heat inside where you can use it. That's what the heat pump does. Only during very low temperatures is supplementary heat needed.

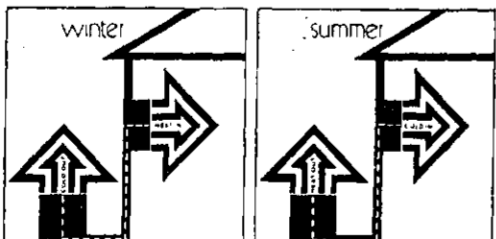

In summer, the heat pump moves heat out of your home for energy-efficient cooling. It's an all-year comfort system that also filters and dehumidifies. And it's clean because no fossil fuel is burned in your home.

The heat pump works something like your refrigerator.

A heat pump is more sophisticated, but it works in much the same way. Imagine the cold air in your refrigerator as the cold winter air outside your home. The hot air that you sometimes feel being blown into your kitchen is actually being extracted from the cold air inside the unit. This is how the heat pump warms your home. In summer, the process is reversed to cool your home: the heat in the inside air is extracted by the heat pump and moved outdoors.

Here's how the heat pump works.

See for yourself.

You can see heat pumps in the new homes displaying the Detroit Edison EEE Award. This Award is presented to builders who incorporate energy-efficient excellence standards into their homes—including proper insulation, energy-efficient appliances and lighting, as well as electric heat pump heating and cooling. Ask Detroit Edison for names and locations of builders who have EEE Award homes on display.

Conserving with comfort.

Detroit Edison wants you to know about the heat pump because it generally is the most energy-efficient way to provide homes and buildings with year-round comfort.

The heat pump can also be an important answer to conservation because the natural heat it uses helps save our non-renewable fossil fuels.

As a concerned participant in America's crusade for conservation, Detroit Edison is working hard to do its part. But it requires a working partnership between those who supply energy and those who use it. So if you're planning on buying, building or replacing your present heating system, consider a heat pump as part of your plans.

Detroit Edison has a folder, "Your all-season space conditioner, The Heat Pump." Pick one up at any Detroit Edison Customer Office and learn more about this energy-efficient way to heat and cool homes and buildings. Or write to: Customer Relations, Detroit Edison, 2000 Second, Detroit, Michigan 48226.

Conserve for all it's worth. The power is in your hands.

Rev. Love still loves Brazil despite brush with death

By Jim Ketchum

If Rev. Steve Love's father hadn't done some fast thinking 10 years ago, there's a chance his entire family might have been machine-gunned to death.

Fortunately, it didn't happen and the 23-year-old pastor of the Novesta Baptist church can look back on the incident and even smile.

"Something like that is pretty scary when you're just a kid," Pastor Love recalled, leaning back in a wooden chair behind his desk at the church located along Lamton Road on the Tuscola-Sanilac county line.

The youthful pastor was born in Brazil to parents who were missionaries. He spent the first 14 years of his life in a small town in the northeastern part of the country.

In fact, he doesn't remember anything about the United States until a visit to New York City when he was in the seventh grade.

"I still consider myself a citizen of Brazil as much as I am here," he said. "In fact, I still subscribe to a Portuguese version of Reader's Digest to keep the language fresh in my mind."

Love's father had spent much of his time working with young persons in Brazil and even though life wasn't always easy, the family enjoyed the work and the people.

DEATH LIST

But things started changing as the government became more unstable through a succession of coups. Finally, the family elected to leave.

"The communists were making a strong bid to take over the country in 1967," he recalled. "I remember my dad coming to us and talking about an escape plan he had in case the communists took over. I was pretty scared and I remember I cried when I went to bed, not knowing what would happen."

Finally, the family was forced to leave under threat of being detained by the military dictatorship.

"After we left, Dad found an extermination list with our names on it," Pastor Love said. "If we'd stayed, we could have been killed. Dad had worked with youth and if the communists had taken over, he would have been a target since they also aim for the youth."

Coming to the United States presented a whole new way of life.

"In Brazil, I grew up in an area where people lived on one-tenth of what we have here," he said. "I remember during the drought of 1958, a couple brought their children to us. The kids were starving and the parents told us to take them. They were willing to give them up in order to insure life for them."

"I remember they were so hungry that they ate oranges and bananas, peels and all."

Pastor Love said seeing an automobile in his part of Brazil was something unique. "We'd stop what we were doing just to see one go by," he recalled.

He saw New York City for the first time when he was in the seventh grade. "My mother told me she had to hang onto us because all we did was stare at all the cars," he said.

Actually, he's spent more of his life in Brazil than in the U.S. Someday, he says, he'd like to return, but not until he's completed the work he's only just begun at Novesta Baptist.

Pastor Love took over in November. At 23, he admits he lacks some experience as a pastor but he tries to make up for it with enthusiasm and a willingness to work. So far at least, he's succeeded. His congregation has risen from 38 to 50 members.

He's a graduate of Maranatha Bible College where he met his wife, Marty. They have an 18-month-old girl, Wendy.

"I don't want people to get the impression that we're only going to stay a little while and that we're going to Brazil right away," he said. "We're here and we want to stay until we feel we've completed our work. And who can say how long that will take?"

Pastor Love sees part of his job as promoting the idea of active Christianity. Too many Christians practice "cheap Christianity," he says. They pay lip service to it but don't practice it, he contends.

When the Loves came to Novesta Baptist, he said they sensed they were "at home". He says he's been well accepted and he hopes to be around a long time.

But he still holds out the hope that someday, the doors to Brazil will open again and that he can go back.

"My wife hasn't been there, but she says she'd like to go, too," he says.

When he does return, you could call it a homecoming.

REV. STEVE LOVE of the Novesta Baptist church spent the first 14 years of his life in Brazil, the son of missionaries. His family left the South American nation in 1967.

Equalization gets board nod

Tuscola County Commissioners gave their final approval to a revised equalization report during an otherwise routine session at the courthouse in Caro Tuesday.

The final figure is $370,867,872, an increase of $84,133,402 over the 1976 total. Commissioners okayed the revised figure after an error in computing Arbel township's valuation was discovered last week.

The board heard a request from Sheriff Hugh Marr that the county participate in an education program for prisoners funded through the state Office of Criminal Justice.

Marr said the county could receive a $26,000 a year grant for three years to fund the program, with the county contributing five per cent of the program's cost each year. The board requested more details at its next meeting.

In other business, Frank LaPratt, a representative of Continental Telephone Co., reported on changing the courthouse phone system to a central switchboard. He said the change would cost the county $672.

Presently each office has its own telephone number and calls cannot be transferred from one office to another. Commission Chairman Maynard McConkey said a decision is expected in about a month.

The board discussed the possibility of removing a house it owns located next to the jail on Sherman Street in Caro. McConkey said the space would be used for additional parking if the house could either be moved or torn down. No decision has been made.

Copeland all smiles as 'Bit of Fate' delivers twin foals

Leonard Copeland always had one wish over his 22 years of raising horses at his farm 6½ miles east of Cass City—he wanted twin foals from a mare.

The wish came true last Thursday when "Bit of Fate" gave birth to twin fillies. According to Copeland, there's only about one chance in 100 that both horses will live when twins are born. Last week, he got lucky.

"I've been raising horses 22 years and I've never seen it before," Copeland smiled this week as he stood by the pen and watched the two frisky animals cavorting in the pen with their mother. "It's something I always wanted to see."

Actually, if it hadn't been for Copeland himself, the second filly might not have made it.

Things started happening around 10:30 Thursday night when the first foal was born. Right away, he said, he knew this wouldn't be just another birth.

"Generally, after the foal is born, the mare will get right up," Copeland said. "But this time, she didn't and I knew right away there was another one coming."

He said the main reason the second horse seldom survives is due to an extra heavy birth sac or "blanket". In this case, the blanket was heavy but Copeland was there in time to help the animal out and safely into the world.

"I stayed with them until about 2:30 in the morning," he said. "The first 24 hours are critical. If you can get them past that, you're generally safe."

It took a dose of castoria and an enema to bring the second filly around Saturday, but since then, everything has been fine, Copeland says.

"Bit of Fate" was bred to "Tray T", owned by Harry Wilson of Cass City. The 15-year-old mare raced three years at harness tracks until a broken bone in her pelvis forced her into retirement.

Since then, she's given birth to six fillies. "She was always a good horse to handle at the track," Copeland recalled. "And she's a good mother."

He said he had no idea the mare would have twins until they arrived Thursday night.

The new arrivals haven't been officially named yet but they'll probably be called "Brassy" and "Sassy". Copeland and his wife are members of the U.S. Trotting Association and if the names haven't already been claimed by another member, they'll be registered as such.

The horses weighed 70 pounds and 40 pounds at birth. Normally, a foal will weigh in the neighborhood of 100 pounds when it's born.

Both are gaining rapidly and should be ready for the track in about two years if all goes according to plan, Copeland says.

"You can't help but be proud of them," he said, watching as each snuggled close to its mother. "It's really something."

Copeland is an avid horseman and enjoys raising, training and racing. He says it makes a big difference if you raise an animal from the time it's born and train it yourself. They respond for you in a way they won't for someone else, he says.

He recalled one horse he purchased several years ago that was lame and that no one thought would ever race, much less win. By healing the animal and training him, the animal went on to win 11 races.

Copeland hopes his expert touch stays with him as "Brassy" and "Sassy" grow up. He'll know for sure in a couple of years.

MR. AND MRS. Leonard Copeland pose proudly with their two newest additions—"Brassy" and "Sassy", twin fillies born at their farm east of Cass City last week. It's considered rare that twins can survive, Copeland says.

Provincial House lauded

April 22, 1977

Mr. Haire,
My grandmother recently passed away at the Provincial House in Cass City. She was admitted as their 8th patient in 1973 I believe. Her later years were fulfilled with her opportunity to live at the Provincial House.

Her dietary needs were carefully watched, she enjoyed the companionship of friends she found, she enjoyed the church activities and Sunday School so capably handled. Many days I went to visit her from school to watch her playing games which she so enjoyed.

During the time of her critical illness she received the best of careful attention. The nurses were so kind to our family as we spent the long hours there.

We would like our community to know that we feel the Provincial House is a strong asset to our community.

A grateful granddaughter,
Geraldine Tibbitts

Soybeans fertilized with Unipels return a higher profit/acre.

You buy fertilizer for one reason—RESULTS! And results of Midwest on-farm check plots show that soybeans respond profitably to fertilization with Ortho's Unipel® 10-20-20.

Two recent field trials showed the value of Unipels over a blend and the importance of adequate Unipel fertilization. A preplant application of Unipel 10-20-20 resulted in an extra profit per acre of $17 compared to a 6-24-24 blend—with soybeans valued at $5 a bushel. In a comparison with no fertilizer, preplant applications of 200 lbs/acre of Unipel 10-20-20 returned more than the fertilizer investment; while a 400 lbs/acre application produced a return of $40 per acre over fertilizer investment.

Unipel 10-20-20 is an ideal starter for soybeans. It provides a sound base of Nitrogen, Phosphate and Potash for growing top yields of soybeans.

An important benefit of Ortho Unipel 10-20-20 involves the interaction between the chemical combination of quick and long-lasting forms of Nitrogen and Phosphate. This interaction increases the plants' use of Phosphorus by more than 50% over separately-applied N & P. And the Potash is water-soluble for immediate action.

Results with Unipel 10-20-20 demonstrate that you get added value in soybean fertilization. We'd be glad to recommend to you a complete Unipel fertility program for your crops, including one specifically for soybeans.

Deford teachers see paddling as last resort in punishment

Despite a U.S. Supreme Court decision last week saying, in effect, that students have no constitutional rights when it comes to getting paddled, don't look for a sharp increase in spankings in at least one Cass City Public School.

Three instructors at Deford Elementary School say while there is a place for paddlings, they are reluctant to administer them.

Principal and teacher David Lovejoy, Miss Rosie Tait, third grade teacher, and Mrs. Virginia Crawford, second grade teacher, all say spankings are something which should be used only as a last resort.

The court last week rejected claims that administering spankings to an offending student can be a violation of the Eighth Amendment's ban on "cruel and unusual punishment", a ban designed to protect persons convicted of crimes.

"There is a place for it," Lovejoy says. "Discipline is an important thing to be taught, but spanking is not the best means. I see it as a last resort."

Lovejoy says he's "very reluctant" to use it, but has and would in a case where a student perhaps started a fight and injured another student.

"I prefer to stress positive means of discipline," Lovejoy says. "By that I mean praise, reward for good behavior and establishing some positive goals for the child."

There is a school policy which allows paddlings with administration approval. The idea, Lovejoy says, is to remove the child from the classroom and give both him and the teacher a chance to cool down and prevent a paddling out of sheer anger.

He says paddling is not a common practice at Deford Elementary, not only because discipline isn't a big problem but also because of the possibility of trouble with parents.

"Anytime you elect to paddle a child, the possibility of a lawsuit is in the back of your mind," he says.

Mrs. Crawford, a 14-year veteran of elementary teaching, says there's always a chance the parents would object to having their child paddled.

"I prefer to reach them with praise rather than paddling," Mrs. Crawford says.

"Sometimes you can accomplish what you want just by getting a little cross with the child."

Actually, the Supreme Court decision won't have any effect on the paddling policy in Cass City Schools, Lovejoy says. If had gone the other way, it would have invalidated the school's policy.

teacher with four years' experience, says she's paddled one child in her career. She, too, doesn't think it's a very effective tool, and sees it as a last resort.

"In one case, the parents gave me permission to paddle their child if I felt he needed it," Miss Tait says. "But it really isn't that effective."

"You might make the kids calm down for a few minutes when you paddle a child but it doesn't last," she says.

"There's no real long-range effect."

She says she prefers to talk with the child first or take away a recess. If this doesn't work, then she thinks it's time to contact the parents.

Mrs. Crawford says it's always important to try and maintain good relationships with parents and that paddling a student isn't one way of doing it.

Reaction to the court decision nationally was mixed. The American Federation of Teachers called it "common sense" but the American Psychological Association disagreed and said it hoped the court would either outlaw corporal punishment or afford pupils some rights.

DEFORD ELEMENTARY teachers Miss Rosie Tait (left) and Mrs. Virginia Crawford, say they don't like the idea of paddling students and consider corporal punishment a last resort.

Police probe area larcenies, vandalism

Police activity declined sharply this week as officers investigated a series of minor thefts and reports of vandalism.

Robert MacKay of M&M Block Co., Cass City, told Caro State. Police vandals damaged a truck parked at the company's Kelly Road site, Thursday.

MacKay told officers someone threw a cement block at the truck, striking it just above the top of the passenger door and smashing a window. Police said the culprits may have been attempting to steal gasoline from the truck and were unsuccessful. No suspects have been arrested.

State Police also investigated damage when a rock was thrown through the windshield of a parked car in Kingston, Saturday. Michael W. King, Kingston, who operates a nearby gas station, said he discovered the damage when he went to move the vehicle Saturday morning. No suspects have been arrested.

Robert Sanders, owner of B&J's Party Store, Kingston, told Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies someone threw a beer bottle from a moving vehicle, damaging an advertising sign in front of his store Wednesday, April 20.

No estimate of damage was available.

Sheriff's deputies also recovered a stolen 1971 auto taken from Macomb county Thursday. The auto was found Saturday parked along Kingston Road just south of Teen Ranch.

An area resident told officers the car, valued at $500 had been parked along the road two or three days.

Alexander E. Robles, 27, of 6394 River Rd., Cass City, was treated for injuries at Hills and Dales General Hospital after a fight broke out at the Colonial Inn bar around 2:30 a.m. Saturday. Cass City Police reported about 15 persons were involved. No charges were filed.

Larry Hollis of 6378 Argyle Rd., Cass City, told police someone stole a glass-packed muffler from his car as it sat parked in the high school lot Wednesday, April 20. The muffler was valued at $15.

NEW OFFICERS of Hills and Dales Hospital Auxiliary gathered at the group's annual tea held Monday at the hospital. ## Consortium poised for Title VI funds

A discussion of Title VI CETA funding and review of the new open meetings law highlighted an otherwise routine session of the Thumb Area Consortium Thursday in Cass City.

CETA coordinator Leonard Hool told board members 30 projects are in the hopper in Sanilac county, while about 35 are being planned in Tuscola. Huron county villages and townships are still submitting proposals, he said.

The consortium is gearing up in preparation for spending over $2 million in additional Title VI monies which are due sometime around mid-May, although there are still no ironclad assurances any money will be coming from Washington.

The CETA funds are tied in with President Jimmy Carter's public works bill plodding its way through Congress.

There's even a chance the whole project may be scrapped, Director Frank Lenard said.

The consortium recently established a Tri-County Public Service Agency, a non-profit corporation whose sole purpose will be to administer the Title VI monies when and if they come.

Hool said wages for administrators in the agency haven't been set yet and won't until some money begins flowing in.

The money is earmarked for service projects in which the consortium will provide labor to local units of government who supply the materials and for projects which can be completed within 12 months.

Lenard urged local units which have not applied to do so if they have a project that qualifies under the program.

In other business, the board learned that application has been filed to make the consortium a prime sponsor. The change in classification will allow the consortium to receive CETA funds directly from the federal government without going through the state.

Presently, state officials take five per cent of the consortium's Title I monies and seven per cent each of Title II and VI for administration.

Lenard said there's an additional 10 per cent incentive available if the change is approved. An answer is expected from federal officials in May.

SPEDY

The board gave the go-ahead to start up the Summer

Program for Economically Disadvantaged Youth (SPEDY). A total of $417,000 is expected to be spent during the 12-week program which gives persons between 16 and 21 and who meet income requirements, a summer job.

Lenard said this year, about 500 youths are expected to be employed. It's likely the program will be run through the Human Development Commission in Caro.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, the board approved a resolution establishing a regular meeting time and date in accordance with Michigan's Open Meetings Act.

The board will meet the third Thursday of each month at 9:30 a.m. at the Hahn Real Estate Building in Cass City. In addition, members passed a resolution allowing a half-hour for comments from the public on the agenda following approval of minutes.

The fiscal report ending March 31 was reviewed. It showed total Title I expenditures of $383,863.66, with another $739,204.49 still to be spent. A total of 253 persons were enrolled in Title I programs at the end of March.

Under Title II, a total of $1,007,955.57 has been spent so far this year with another $287,594 remaining. Sixty-four persons were enrolled in Title II programs at the end of March.

Under Title VI, a total of $305,324 has been spent through March 31, with another $993,521 remaining. A total of 194 persons are currently involved in the program.

Nursery slates activities

Cass City Preschool Nursery children are spending much of this week visiting the fire station, a farm, a flower shop and bakery as part of a series of field trips.

Twenty-five four-year-olds and 18 three-year-olds will be roller skating in Caro, and the four-year-old group will also visit the Roger Bouck farm. They will also visit a kindergarten class and ride a school bus. Most of the children participated in kindergarten round-up last week.

The three-year-olds toured the fire station Tuesday and later learned about terrariums at a local flower shop.

The fellow with a sense of humor finds it a never failing help in times of adversity.

Ma Bell's phone rates keep soaring

Some three million Michigan Bell customers will pay a few dimes more each month for basic service, but face another certain rate hike this fall under a recent decision by the state Public Service Commission.

The PSC, on a 2-1 vote, gave Bell authority to collect $37 million more annually from customers. That's on top of a $22 million more annual rate hike the company got in November while the PSC was pondering its final decision on Bell's total $178.2 million request.

Although the total $59 million Bell won from the PSC is only about a third of what it asked, the PSC left open a door that will mean another certain boost in bills this fall.

It told the company that when it renegotiates a wage contract with some 20,000 employees, it can come back and charge customers almost automatically for the higher expense.

Customers with one-party basic service will pay 35-47 cents more next month than they did this month. But come fall, that increase could be duplicated again.

In the past 11 months, Bell has been given permission to raise rates to collect in excess of $100 million more each year.

DELINQUENT YOUTH ERR QUICKLY

These are the statistics: More than half of delinquent male youths released from state institutions get in trouble again with the law within a year.

This is a partial solution, says Dale Shears, Coordinator of the office that evaluates the state's youth institutions: JOBS.

"If you're not an academic kid the work world is the only thing, and if that's not there, then there's nothing there," says Shears. "When you're a poor kid from a poor family, and you don't have job skills, the temptation to turn to illegal means is strong."

He's suggesting legislation to help those young people into the job world.

His numbers show that 30 per cent of male youths are arrested again within just 30 months after their release from state institutions, and 52 per cent are arrested after a year - most for felonies.

PLAWECKI IS POSTAGE PRINCE

A state senator pushing for limits on lawmakers' mailing privileges was the top spender on postage in the Michigan legislature last year.

Records show that Sen. David Plawecki, D-Deerborn Heights, spent $29,334 on newsletters and other mailings - three times the average spent by his Senate colleagues.

Plawecki is sponsoring a bill in the Senate to limit the amount of mail lawmakers can send out in the three weeks before an election.

He doesn't think his own record is excessive, saying those who spend little on postage must not be answering their mail.

The Senate's lowest spender was Harry DeMaso, R-Battle Creek, who rang up a meager $574.71 in 1976.

House members cannot exceed their self-imposed limit of $10,000 a year.

BRIEFS:

Tornados that ravaged the Michigan communities of Augusta, Comstock, Olivet and surrounding areas left an estimated $4.5 million in damages, mainly to homes and crops. Gov. William Milliken has sought federal financial aid.

A bill that allows police wiretaps in major heroin and cocaine investigations has won House approval. It still needs the Senate's okay.

Patient shortage forces hospital bed closings

A slumping area birth rate is reflected in a proposal by a hospital in Tuscola county to reduce the number of beds in its maternity department. The state has been asked to approve the revision in the facility's bed complement. The administration of Caro Community Hospital, 401 North Hooper St., in Caro, is proposing to close down two beds, lowering the hospital's total bed capacity to 48 beds. They cited a reduction in demand for maternity beds as the reason for the requested change.

Because state and federal regulations require hospitals to have prior approval before making changes that relate to services, hospital officials have applied to the state for a certificate of need. The application is on file with the Division of Health Facility

Planning and Construction of the State Health Department. The administration says they will make the change as soon as approval is forthcoming.

counterclaim asking for "appropriate damages" if the ruling goes in the school district's favor. He said this is the first time the district has filed such a counterclaim.

The action comes on the heels of a special board meeting Monday night in Gageton when trustees voted to hire Construction Coordinators Inc., East Detroit, to supervise construction of the high school.

Approval came on a 6-1 vote with Board President Ronald Good casting the lone no vote. He said he favored hiring Elzinga and Volkens, Construction Managers, of Holland.

Trustees decided to use the construction management method instead of hiring one general contractor because they believe their building will go up faster under the new system.

By going with a construction management firm, the board in effect is its own general contractor. The firm will seek out bidders for each phase of the work and as soon as a contract is signed, work can begin.

While specific figures weren't available, it's estimated the firm's fee will run in the neighborhood of nine or 10 per cent of the entire job, which includes demolition.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business at Monday night's meeting, the board denied a request by the senior class that Mr. and Mrs. Arnie Besonen be approved as chaperones on the senior trip.

The board acted because the trip is scheduled during the last week of classes and Besonen would miss a track meet plus classroom time. Board policy prohibits teachers from taking classroom time to chaperone such trips.

Trustees urged the class to submit another name at the next regular meeting.

The board also named Roger Ziehm as its student of the month for April.

Vassar comes from behind twice

Like Tigers, Hawks find ways to lose games

Like the Detroit Tigers, the Cass City Red Hawks find new ways to lose baseball games every time they take the field. They did it twice Tuesday against the Vassar Vulcans, losing the opener 8-6 and the nightcap 4-3.

In both games Cass City blew leads to lose. Errors at critical times were instrumental in the losses.

It was the errors and the play of Vulcan hurler John Solgat and of power hitting southpaw Tyson. Cass City jumped off to a four-run lead in the first inning of the first game. Vassar came back with a run in the bottom of the first. Cass City scored in the second and things looked rosy.

But the winners staged a four-run rally in the third to knot the contest. Key hit was a bases-loaded double by Tyson that scored three.

Both teams scored in the fourth and Solgat took over the mound chores for Vassar. He shut the door on Cass City for the final two innings and Vassar's two-run splurge in the fifth netted the victory. Jeff Hartel went the distance and took the loss.

The Vulcans stuck with a good thing in the nightcap and Solgat went the distance to score his second victory of the day. Rick Richards was the loser.

Cass City used a couple of walks, a base hit and Vassar's lone error to score three in the third to take the lead. Vassar bounced back with three in the fifth to take the lead. Solgat got stronger as the game progressed, hurling shutout ball for the final three innings and striking out the side in the bottom of the sixth.

The line scores - first game.

ONE OF the Hawks' wins against Sandusky came in the 440-yard relay. Steve Bean, the anchor man, hits the tape well ahead of the competition.

Softball team keeps rolling

The Cass City Red Hawks drubbed hapless Vassar in a double header Tuesday at Vassar, wiping out the Vulcans 12-4 and 35-2.

It was no contest in either game as Hawk pitching held Vassar to just five hits in the first game. Hurler Mary Fleming fanned six Vulcans and issued four walks.

Ellie Harper, who walked three and struck out one, took the loss.

Sarah Wilson and Cheri Martin each collected two hits for Cass City, with the remaining eight Hawk hits scattered throughout the line-up. The second game was a laugh as the Hawks scored seven times in the first inning and showered 18 runs across home plate in the second frame. They added another four runs in the third and six more in the fourth inning. The game was called after five innings due to the 10-run league mercy rule.

Elaine Stoutenburg, who collected three hits in the Hawk attack, was the winning pitcher, going the distance. She walked one and struck out five, while allowing just three hits.

The loss went to Esther Regalado, one of three Vulcan hurlers.

Hitters for Cass City included Liz Vargo and Debbie McFarland who each collected five safeties, Sarah Wilson and Debbie Zawilinski with three hits each and Diana Smith and Nancy Tonti with two hits each.

The wins bring the Hawks' record to 6-0 in the league and 7-0 overall, good enough for first place in the league. Marlette and Franknmuth are tied for second.

STEVE BALLARD has been furnishing key hits for the Hawks this season. He collected another Tuesday at Vassar.

Mester completes course

Army Private James A. Mester, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Mester, 5348 Shabbona Road, Deford, recently completed, with honors, a wheeled tractor operator course at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

He was trained to smooth surfaces for roads, airfields and parking lots. Students also learned to slope banks and prepare drainage ditches for erosion control.

The private entered the Army in January of this year.

KIM WITHERSPOON was the top jumper in a meet against Mayville that Cass City won 94 1/2 to 40 1/2 last Wednesday. The Hawk girls continued to power to victory after victory with a win over Sandusky Monday.
