Ground breaking July 23

Owen-Gage sells high school bonds

Conscruction of the new Owendale-Gagetown High School should get underway at the end of this month, following sale of $1,675 million in construction bonds by the Owen-Gage School Board Wednesday, June 29.

Ground breaking ceremonies have been scheduled for July 23. , The board at its special meeting in Owendale also approved a preliminary 1977-78 school budget to be submitted to the state Department of Education with hopes of getting its categorical state aid restored.

Four bids were received for purchase of the bonds, with the board awarding the bid to the firm charging the lowest interest rate.

high school in Owendale and building of foundations are scheduled to be opened at the July 11 board meeting in Gagetown.

Under the construction management system to be used, while that work is being done, architects will be doing the final planning for the above-ground portion of the The school district pays the building, with bids to be taken for construction later. Erickson said the completed structure should be ready for use by the start of school in September, 1978. Owen-Gage voters ap-proved building of the new high school on Dec. 20, 1975, by a 520-483 vote margin.

At that time, construction was scheduled to be completed by January, 1977. Lawsuits challenging the sale of the construction bonds delayed that action until last week. The issue went all the way to the Michigan Supreme Court, with it being decided in the school board's favor. Erickson admitted that because of inflation since the bonding issue was approved, building plans may have to be scaled down a bit.

At least partially offsetting inflation since then, however, are two factors. Originally, $80,000 was going to have to be set aside out of the bonding proposal for the first interest payment because the first tax collections to pay off the bonds wouldn't be until December, 1976.

Due to the delay, Erickson explained, the first tax collection was made before the bonds were sold, so the $80,000 can now be used for construction.

He also said some money will be saved due to a change in construction plans. Originally, phase I called for construction of a new gym and classroom on one end of the present high school and remodeling of the present gym on the other end into a cafeteria.

The second phase called for demolition of the central portion, built in 1913, and construction of six classrooms in its place. The portion of the high school built in 1948, which includes the gym, will be remodeled. The only changes in the 1968 addition will be to comply with updated construction codes, such as provisions for the handicapped.

Now phase I calls for demolition of the 1913 building and construction of foundations, with the rest of the building to be phase II, a process that will speed up construction, according to the superintendent.

Because of the demolition will need to do some relocating of students this fall. Erickson said the district is likely to rent space in St. Agatha's School in Gagetown, year. which it did in the past up to a year ago.

BUDGET

In an effort to again receive categorical state aid, the board-approved-a-preliminary 1977-78 school budget based on operational millage of 17.25 mills, the amount left after voters defeated renewal of 6.25 mills June 13. The budget projects revetures of $479,078. Because of the district's budget deficit, the state ed-nues of $591,078 and expendi-of the old school, the district ucation department cut off the final categorical state aid payment of $6,944 for 1976-77 and the district could lose $40,000 this coming school

> Categorical state aid is for such purposes as driver's education and busing of students. Because of its high state equalized valuation per pupil. Owen-Gage doesn't receive any general state aid.

Other than for satisfying the state, Erickson termed the preliminary budget as "meaningless". The district's voters will again go to the polls July 30 to vote on the millage renewal and the district has yet to negotiate a new contract with its teachers. The contract with the Owen-Gage Education Asso- ciation expires Aug. 30.

Road commission workers voting on new contract

Tuscola County Road Commission employees, including those laid off June 24, were scheduled to vote Wednesday, July 6, on a new contract with the county road agency Depending on the employees' vote, the three road commissioners will vote Thursday on whether to accept the new agreement.

The old pact with the Tuscola County Road Commission Employees Association expired at the end of 1976. The union represents the road agency's mechanics, equipment operators and laborers. Of its 78 members, 30 -- all laborers and equipment oper-

Twenty-four of the 30 were being paid with federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds, though for all but a few, the $10,000 maximum paid by CETA was supplemented by the road commission.

The CETA program is coordinated by the Thumb Area Consortium, whose director, Frank Lenard, said that his agency is holding the positions for the road commission for 60 days. On the assumption that the commission won't be calling back any of its CETA employees, however, the consortium is soliciting proposals instead of the road commission.

The road agency said that the decision of several townships to hire private contractors to do some road work was one reason it didn't have enough work for its own employees, thus had to lay some of them off.

Miklovic explained that the commission is ultimately responsible for maintaining roads in the county, therefore, it presumably could say "no" to a township wanting to hire a private contractor. But, for example, Akron township found it could save $12,000 by hiring a private contractor to haul stone from the Bay Port limestone quarry and spread it on 3-4 miles of township roads.

The savings, he explained, is due to the contractor having trucks that can haul about three times as much stone in one load as can road commission trucks.

"We really can't fight something like that." he commented, in explaining why the road commission has given the okay to townships hiring private contractors.

STANDING TALL -- Mr. and Mrs. Albert Palazzola and their son, Nick, have reason to be proud of their corn, which was several "knees high" by the Fourth of July. In his approximately 20 years of farming, Palazzola said it was the highest he could ever remember his corn being by July 4th. He planted half of his 40 acres of corn April 29, and all is at least this high. The rest was planted May 18 and is about knee-high. Palazzola said the roots and plants look healthy and there is adequate subsurface moisture in the clay soil. The corn is used for feeding hogs. Currently, 40 are being fed. The Palazzolas live at 4815 Germania Road, Snover.

dairyman, Kenneth R. Voel- serving as secretary of its ker, 43, of Owendale, was executive committee, as well killed Thursday, June 30, in an auto accident in Ohio.

Burial took place Sunday, following funeral services in the Kilmanagh United Methodist church, the Rev. Harold Blakely officiating.

Also killed in the crash was James A. Frey, 42, of Brown City, the driver of the vehicle.

Both men were board members of the Michigan Animal Breeders Cooperative (MABC). They were returning from an Animal Breeders and Select Sires show and sale in Columbus, Ohio, when the accident occurred.

According to the Ohio Highway Patrol, their vehicle was northbound on I-280, just = south of Toledo. A southbound auto driven by Joyce D. McCarson, 53, of Amarillo, Texas, jumped the concrete divider and struck the Frey vehicle head-on.

Mrs. McCarson and her husband, Max, 54, were treated at St. Charles Hospital in Oregon, Ohio.

Voelker was born March 3, 1934, in Owendale, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Voelker. He married Mary Dinsmore Jan. 7, 1960, in Bay City.

He was a Kellogg Study Program participant, an agri-/cultural study program; a former member of the Owendale-Gagetown Board of Education, and a state board member of the Dairy Herd ators -- were laid off for an indefinite period June 24, the road commission citing lack of money and lack of work as the reasons.

The union has asked its attorney to check into the legality of layoffs. Tentative agreement was reached on the new pact after the layoffs were made. The union members previously rejected two other proposals. The proposed agreement. which will not be retroactive to when the old contract expired, calls for a 40 cents per hour across the board increase for the rest of this year for all but a few employees in some classifications, 35 cents in 1978 and 40 cents in 1979. The union had sought a pact only through 1978, according to its president, William Stewart, who is one of those laid off. The lowest pay grades for union employes had been $4.15 and $4.35 per hour, but all the employes in those classifications have been laid The lowest paid worker now, according to the road commission clerk, James Miklovic, receives $4.87 per hour

The highest paid to be getting the 40-cent increase, if the new contract is approved, will be mechanics, who now get $5.17 per hour. A diesel mechanic gets

$5.22, but will only get about a 38-cent per hour increase. The other major change is in call-back procedure. Under the old agreement, layoffs were on the basis on seniority, however, the road commission could call back workers in any order it wanted. Under the proposed agreement, call-backs will be on the basis of job classification and ability to do the job.

For instance, Miklovic explained, if the commission needs to call back a road grader operator, but a laborer has more seniority, the laborer will get the job if he knows how to drive a road grader. If he doesn't, then a road grader operator gets the job.

Of those laid off, some had been working for the road commission since September, 1971. Stewart said that although some of his fellow unemploved workers have started looking for new jobs, most are still waiting yet in the hope of getting their old jobs back.

expressed strong He doubts, however, that road commission workers getting new CETA jobs will make as much as they did before in terms of the pay and fringe benefits.

As mentioned, the union has asked its attorney, John C. Learning of Bay City, to look into the layoffs.

Learning said he is looking into various questions as to whether there might be grounds for legal action.

Both he and union president Stewart questioned whether the road commission can allow townships to hire contractors to do certain work

Miss Sandra Jean Wells and Joseph Dwight Sherman were united in marriage Saturday evening, June 11, at 7:00 p.m. at the First Baptist church in Cass City. The Rev. Lloyd Streeter, pastor, performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Wells of Cass City and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marr Sherman of Fostoria.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal gown of polyester sheer organza detailed with Alencon lace. Her gown was styled with a high lace edged collar, lace trimmed bishop sleeves and lace edged ruffle hemline that fell to a full ruffle chapel length train. She wore a matching lacetrimmed fingertip veil held by a Juliet crown and carried a cascade bouquet of flowers with white daisy mums and mixed colors of miniature carnations to match the bridesmaids' dresses.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Diana Culpepper, friend of the bride, of Marlette. Bridesmaids were Miss Sharon Wells and Miss Sheryl Wells, sisters of the bride, and Miss Dorothy Sherman, sister of the groom They wore separate colors of blue, maize, apricot and nile green. Their dresses were soft knit with sleeveless neck, Empire interlock waists and a pointed capelet and high neck accented by a bow. They carried flowers colored to match their dresses and matching daisies

There was a day when she always wanted to wear frilly dresses. She wore white gloves and patted her mouth with a lace hankie after sipping root beer at the A&W. She sat primly in the back seat of my old Plymouth and never raised her voice when telling her little brother to bug off.

Her name was Chrissie and she was six years old.

Today she is 21 and everyone calls her Ferd. She wears a plastic football helmet and rides around on the back of a Douglas Laurie and Terry Hoag of Cass City were 'among 220 Michigan teenagers attending the 14th an-nual Young People's Seminar, June 20-24, sponsored by the Michigan Farm Bureau and its county organizations.

The seminar at Albion College emphasized the free enterprise system, the American political scene and democracy.

Also attending from Tus-cola county were Jan Black of Akron, Robert Schluckbier of Vassar and Cathy Deering of Unionville.

But a motorcycle! That's my beef. No sane person should ride a motorcycle. It is not pleasant to admit your child is an idiot, but there you are. The highways are jammed with idiots, usually traveling in packs. They roar through downtown Detroit at 2 o'clock noise reaches our apartment on the 26th floor and knocks he was kindly exercising my elbow. The next morning, when I realized what I'd promised, I jumped out of bed and left town for three weeks.

"You can get the same feeling by sticking your nose too close to an electric fan," I said. "Motorcycling is for young men with nothing to live for. You're old enough to smell the joys of retirement but you could blow the whole thing on that bike. It will be the first time I've been a pallbearer for a man dressed in a jacket with 52 zippers.

"The trouble with you is you have no sense of adventure," my friend snorted.

He is right. My idea of adventure is to sit with my wife and pretend to read the newspaper while I am actually watching Farrah Fawcett on TV. Happily, I can enjoy this type of risk despite the certain knowledge that Farrah would pick a motorcyclist over me every time. There is something to be said for being over the hill, and I just said it. There's a little boy inside me, too. But I only let him out to shoot pool. And if he ever suggests that the Honda shop will cash my Social Security check, I will flake him to death with Kellogg's All-Bran.

As for Ferd, she is still my daughter. She and her family will always be invited to my home for Christmas dinner. Just so long as they park their bikes out of my hearing and walk the last few blocks, laden with gifts.

CASS CITY CHRONICLE-THURSDAY, JULY 7, 1977

SEVERE WINDS blew this tree down at the John Haire home on S. Seeger Street Friday afternoon. It was one of several that succumbed to high winds last week end. Another tree was blown down on Seventh Street. Winds were recorded Friday at the Rolling Hills Airport as high as 45 miles per hour. The Tuscola County Sheriff's Department reported wires down in Cass City and Gagetown from falling trees or branches. No building damage was reported.

Security is tight, says Tom Herron, after returning from a flying (literally and figuratively) trip to Washington, D.C. His small plane could get no closer than 22 miles from the capitol, Herron said, while talking about his week-end trip. That wasn't so bad for the family flying with him as the trip home. After a day spent dodging thunder storms Monday he finally landed in a small town in Pennsylvania where the group was forced to spend the night.

It may be hard to get them (the family) to go again, understated Herron as he bounced out the Chronicle door and back to work.

Your Neighbor says Air bags should ' be optional

U.S. Transportation Secretary Brock Adams last week ordered that after Aug. 31, 1983, all new cars must be equipped with air bags or other automatic safety devices to protect occupants in a crash.

Auto makers claim air bags could add $300 to the price of a new car. Government studies claim the cost could be less than $100.

Congress now has until Aug. 30 to decide if it wants to overturn Adams' order; otherwise, it will stay in effect.

Everett Field of 7729 Deckerville Rd., Deford, feels that installation of such devices should be up to the individual. Although he opposes the mandatory installation of the devices, he feels a preferable alternative is requiring all auto occupants to wear their seat belts. "We all know they (seat belts) have saved lives."

He admits his position may be somewhat of a contradiction, in that he opposes installation of the air bags or other cooperative effort by several agencies, including health departments, planning and zoning boards and public works departments. Stormwater runoff, the report notes, is usually considered as only a drainage and flooding problem, not as a pollution problem. Once planning has been implemented to reflect water quality goals, it says substantial changes may not be needed in ways of handling stormwater runoff.

The report also notes the current and potential role to be played by various local, state and federal agencies in a management system needed to comply with federal water quality standards for the region. The agencies include the Environmental Protection Agency, U.S. Department of Agriculture and its Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and Soil Conservation Service; Michigan Department of Natural Resources, and district and county health departments. The reason for the regional planning to meet water quality goals, beyond complying with federal requirements, Findlay explained, is that the pollution problems span more than one county.

Many rivers span more than one county. Saginaw county, for instance, can't be expected to control all sources of pollution in the Tittabawassee River, if the source of some of the pollution is in Gladwin or Midland counties.

Autos collide on area road

Phyllis A. Crowe, 16, of 3700 Hadley Road, Decker, sought her own treatment for possible injuries following an accident Saturday afternoon.

Sheriff's deputies reported that Miss Crowe was eastbound on Kelley Road, west of Lampton Road, when the westbound auto of Joe P. Sholts, 36, of Pontiac, crossed the centerline on a curve and struck her car.

Sholts was ticketed by deputies for being intoxicated upon a public highway.

Two vehicles were involved in a collision Thursday, June 30, at Garfield and Vulcan of 4205 West St., eastbound on Garfield, turned too wide while turning right onto Vulcan and struck the northbound auto of Mary L. Seely, 55, of 6291 Virginia Street.

Tuesday, June 28, Cass City police reported that Margaret Jackson, 68, of Bay City-Forestville Road, Cass City, backed into a parked car in the parking lot off Pine Street. Owner of the parked car was Roger D. McPhail of 4805 Hoppe Road, Cass City, Saturday, July 2, sheriff's deputies reported that Victoria E. Laeder, 16, of Caro, training, in addition to my ninth grade journalism class, consists of two college courses. I therefore can't vouch for what is taught in college schools of journalism but after five years in the newspaper business, I would guess some of the things I've learned don't get taught to would-be reporters. I call these Eliasohn's Golden Rules of Journalism: 1) When photographing a mule-pulling contest, don't use a flash unless the photo is being taken from the rear. The flash will make the mules stop dead in their tracks. which makes the mules' owner want to stop the photographer dead in his tracks.

2) Always carry a pair of rubbers or rubber boots in your car. A reporter never knows when he might have to do a farm story, and on a farm a reporter never knows what he or she might step in or on. Watching one's step is not a suitable alternative; sometimes there is no suitable place to step to. 3) Owning a pickup truck or four-wheel-drive vehicle isn't mandatory but it helps. Otherwise, on rutted or snowcovered roads, it is easy to become afraid "I'm going to tear out my muffler" or "I'm going to get stuck." I've avoided tearing off my muf-fler so far but I did get stuck in a snow drift once -- when it was 12 degrees BELOW zero. On the other hand, if you have a pickup or four-wheeldrive vehicle, some day when it is 12 degrees below zero and the snow is coming down at a record pace, your editor is liable to say, "Hey, you don't have to worry about getting stuck. Go out and get us some pictures.

4) Own a parka with fur-lined hood. That's for when your car gets stuck in a snowdrift and it's 12 degrees below zero. (Long underwear is also helpful.)

5) If assigned to doing police and fire news, it helps to have a warped sense of humor. Being crazy is also helpful. If you're already of a meeting that you have to cover. The meeting you want to get over in a hurry so you can get out of there will last seemingly forever. And some meetings that you figure will last forever won't. (Always a pleasant surprise.)

7) If you're single and male, the only single females you will meet are ones bringing in their engagement announcements to the newspaper. I knew a single female reporter who had the opposite problem -- all the men she met were married. 8) Realize that some people have no idea of how news gets in the paper. Sooner or later, you will write an article about something concerning government X and at the next meeting of government X someone will ask you, "Did you read this in the paper?" 9) You can spend several hours interviewing and then writing about a person and they'll think nothing of it. But when the local television station shows up to do a 30-second news item, the person will phone his friends, "Hey, I'm going to be on television.

Auto driving

costs increase

The Michigan motorist who buys a 1977 car is getting significantly improved fuel economy but that new car is costing him 10.3 per cent more to own and operate than a new model did two years ago, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"It now costs state motorists 20.2 cents a mile to operate their cars compared to 18.3 cents per mile in 1975," stated Auto Club Touring Manager Joseph Ratke.

"For the motorist who drives 10,000 miles annually, his operating costs in 1977 will jump to $2,019, a rise of nearly $200 in two years," he added.

Entry forms now ready for State Fair

Entry forms for the 1977 Michigan State Fair are now ready.

Persons wanting to enter an exhibit can obtain a premium list and entry forms by writing: Michigan State Fair, State Fairgrounds, Detroit 48203.

Specify which of the six premium books are needed. They are horse shows, livepoultry, rabbits, stock. pigeons and cavies; agriculculture, horticulture and floriculture, and community arts and fine arts.

Persons who have had exhibits during the past five years will receive entry forms by mail without requesting them.

The deadline for horse show entries is July 25; for all other categories, Aug. 1. The state fair will run from Aug. 26 through Sept. 5

Labor Day). Fair organizers are hoping to surpass last year's fair, which set records for entries, gate revenue and profits. The Michigan State Fair, founded in 1849, is the oldest state fair in the nation.

The schedule for open class events is as follows:

Aug. 26 -- Quarter horse and palomino performance class championships. (The regular horse show program runs throughout the fair).

Aug. 27 -- Calf roping, girls' barrel racing, cutting horse contests, novice horseshoeing and horseshoe and master horseshoe forging contest. Aug. 29 -- Pony pulling and performance class pinto championships. Aug. 30 -- Half-Arabian performance class championships.

Aug. 31 -- Arabian perform-ance class championships. Sept. 1 -- Morgan performance class championships. Sept. 2 -- Husband calling and hog calling contests. Sept. 3 -- Pony and saddleperformance class bred championships and best six head of beef cattle. Sept. 5 -- Appaloosa performance class championships, six-horse draft hitch and horse pulling contest.

available in Cass City. Ball and jacks go for 39 to 59 cents. Jump ropes can be bought as cheap as 29 cents. A bag of marbles costs 49 cents or 59 cents, depending on the size of the marbles. A bubble pipe costs a quarter; soap, 19 or 29 cents., Yo-yos cost 79 cents

None of them, however, according to merchants, is a big seller.

Probably the slowest seller is marbles, "They (kids) don't know what marbles are any more," said Ralph Retherford, ex-marble player and part-owner of Fort's Confec-the past she has played hopscotch and blown soap bubbles, but figures she has outgrown those activities. Angela Herron, 6, Donny's sister, has never played hopscotch and doesn't have a jump rope, but does play ball and jacks.

Lana Harris, 7, is a rope jumper and said lots of girls like to jump rope. She also plays basketball and occasionally, ball and jacks, hopscotch and blowing bubbles. She also likes to ride her bike.

comeback -- for adults -- is jump rope.

The ones being sold in Cass City are labeled exercise jump ropes and cost $1.99 or $2.99

The nylon ropes are threaded through sections of plastic tubing, sort of like beads.

The manufacturer claims that jumping rope for 10 minutes gives as much exercise as a half-hour of jogging. As far as kids go, though, the general consensus at each of the stores contacted was that the big sellers are frisbees and skateboards.

She was making her project during the summer arts and crafts program sponsored by the village in the Cass City Recreational Park. The classes will run weekdays through the end of August from 9 a.m.-noon and 1-4 p.m. Youngsters are free to come any day they want. As for the sticks, Teresa didn't have to eat a lot of popsicles. The sticks are purchased minus the popsicles and are officially called "stirring sticks."

Seated, from left, are Linda Kritzman, Cass City, and Ethel Young, Tuscola. The four received scholarships to attend the event, which included classes on various topics, exhibits, demonstrations, films, tours and other special events. Among those attending from Sanilac county were Audrey Leslie, Decker; Judy Doerr, Ubly, and Barb Doerr, Argyle.

The training sessions will take place July 11, 13, 15 and 18 from 1-5 p.m. Persons interested can call the commission in Caro at 673-4175. The aim of the program is for the commission to develop a group of persons trained and interested in working with senior citizens.

According to Martha Kirkpatrick, commission site manager in Caro, the course will be beneficial to adults having to care for elderly parents and for persons wanting to earn money by caring for senior citizens in need of special care.

the commission will serve as a clearing house between senior citizens needing help and those willing to provide the needed care.

If the project is a success, she said, added classes may be held in the future.

The 16 hours of training will cover nutrition needs of the elderly; how to take and record blood pressure; detecting changes that occur with aging, such as with hearing, vision and circulation; how to move and position a person confined to bed; giving baths and other personal services making a bed with a person in it; getting a person out of bed, and helping the elderly to walk.

George Jackson, 66, of Ubly died at his home Saturday, July 2.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at Zinger's Funeral Home, Ubly, Rev. Dennis Glander, pastor of the Bad Axe Lutheran church, officiated.

Born July 19, 1910, he was the son of the late Mr, and Mrs. Will Jackson.

He married Elsie Peter Dec. 30, 1933.

Mr. Jackson farmed and was a grain elevator employee at Greenleaf and Ubly. Bay, Arenac counties to host farm tour

Eight farms in Bay and Arenac counties will be "on display" during the 29th annual Michigan State Farm Management Tour, July 27, sponsored by the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service.

Extension specialists will be at each of the farm stops to talk about the farm operation. Featured speaker at the noon program at the Standish fairgrounds will be U.S. Rep. Bob Traxler, D-Bay City, whose topic will be the Washington farm outlook.

The eight farm stops will be:

1) Hugo and Mike Schwab, Standish. The 122-head milking operation has an annual rolling herd average of 15,577 pounds of milk and 602 pounds of butterfat.

2) Lester Hugo, Linwood. There are 125 acres of irrigated potatoes, 100 acres of irrigated sugar beets and 225 acres of corn. 3) Wayne and Maxine Carruthers, Standish, in partnership with their sons Kim and Scott. They grow 550 acres of corn, 125 of sugar beets, 100 of alfalfa, 120 of white beans, 40 of cranberry beans and 40 of oats.

A consumer program will take place here at 10:30 a.m. A consumer test panel will provide an opportunity for consumers to participate in evaluating some farm products and to express opinions on product varieties, packages and processing.

4) Fred and Elaine Dore, Kawkawlin. The farm grows 1,250 acres of corn a year, averaging 110-140 bushels per acre. At 2:30 p.m., visitors can

5) Alvin and Clinton Selle, Turner. A partnership on 901 acres, they grow sugar beets, certified navy beans, light red beans, cucumbers, certified oats and rye.

6) Ed and Catherine Osier. Standish. A swine farrow-tofinish operation it markets 750-1.000 hogs annually.

> 7) Tom Schindler, Kawkawlin, grows 470 acres of corn, navy beans, and sugar beets, with major emphasis on planting and harvesting efficiency using heavy equipment to reduce labor costs.

8) Erwin Wieland, whose small dairy herd -- usually 30 cows -- is one of the top quality herds in the state. At the state Holstein sale in April, 1975, one of his cows sold for $3,500 and a day-old calf brought $750.

> With the advent of the energy crisis and the demand for improved grain quality. grain elevator managers and dryer manufacturers are constantly seeking to improve the energy efficiency of their dryers. One such improvement is the development of the recirculating dryer. By recycling part or all of the previously exhausted air an increased thermal efficiency is achieved.

In the fall of 1976 Thumb Cooperative Terminal conducted a series of tests on a 4500 bushel recirculating crossflow dryer in cooperation with Michigan State University. The purpose of the investigation was to determine the operating characteristics and the thermal effic-

Winter is commonly the time for colds and flu and sneezes. But there are some diseases and accidents that do their worst in hot weather. Some of these are obvious. Sun strokes and heat strokes are more likely to occur in July and August than in January. Too much exposure and too much exercise in the hot sun may produce sun stroke. Prolonged excessive heat, either in or out of doors, can cause heat stroke. In either case it is important to keep the victim cool and call a physician at once.

Sunburn has hospitalized many a vacationer. Everyone should know, says the American Medical Association, that gradual exposure to the sun, beginning with a few toxoid. Local herd evaluation The registered Holstein herd of Bruce MacRae of Cass City was classified for body conformation June 15. The scoring was done by an official classifier of Holstein-Friesian Association of America, Brattleboro, Vermont. Dairymen enrolled in this herd improvement program receive a numerical score for each animal evaluated. The True-Type Holstein represents theoretical perfection and has a value of 100 points on the classification scorecard. Each animal is scored, receiving a rating of excellent (90 points or more), very good (85-89), good plus (80-84), good (75-79), fair (65-74), or poor (64 points or below). Including animals previously scored, the MacRae herd has three very goods and eight good pluses.

To provide a more complete image of each animal, the classifier also uses comparative terms to describe twelve major parts of the animal's physical characteristics. This "word picture" serves as a guide for planning a breeding program to improve the herd. The information from the classification of the herd will be summarized by the Holstein Association on its high speed computer. Returned to the breeder, these reports provide useful information for selection in the herd. The data is also published and available as reference for the herd improvement programs of Holstein dairymen every-

State okays area rail negotiations

The State Highway Commission has directed the Department of State Highways and Transportation to negotiate with Tuscola and Saginaw Bay Railway, Inc., to operate rail lines in the Vassar area. The lines, totaling 43.5 miles, would be between Vassar and Munger, Vassar and Millington and Vassar and Colling.

They currently are oper-ated by the Consolidated Railroad Corp. (Conrail) with an annual subsidy of $203,107. The Tuscola and Saginaw Bay claims it can provide service over the lines for approximately $18,000 less.

The railroad was chosen for potential operation of the line following public hearings in April. If negotiations with the highway department are successful, it will take over operation of freight lines from Conrail Oct. 1.

THE EASY AND ECONOMICAL WAY to add charm and living convenience to your home.

Install new ceiling

The modern approach to a totally beautiful room enhanced by color, wallcovering, floor treatment and furnishings, is conversion of its usually drab ceiling to a harmonizing decorative feature. For years there have been end less patterns of light-dif fusing or acoustical panels to "face-lift" a kitchen, bath or family room. Now there are installa tion grid kits available at home centers that make suspended ceilings an easy home improvement. You can cover an old ceiling with minimal loss of space, or lower the new one as far as you wish. It's a 1-2-3-4 operation - simply install wall angles all the way around at the new ceiling height, hang the main and cross tee supports using the prepunch ed slots, insert standard 2' by 2' or 2' by 4' panels into the grid system, and stand back to admire

Tips for saving energy (and money)

If you want to save energy -- and money -- in your home, concentrate first on the biggest area of home energy use: space heating. That's where the biggest energy savings are waiting

Your next target might well be the kitchen.

"Because the kitchen is the center of food storage and preparation and a major water user, it's a good place to save energy," says Anita Dean, Extension foods and nutrition specialist at Michigan State University.

Consider the energy use of appliances, she suggests. Keep the number of appliances to a minimum and buy multi-use items rather than single-use gadgets whenever possible. Avoid buying appliances with a larger capacity than you ordinarily need. And keep appliances in good repair so they can operate at peak efficiency.

Defrost freezers and refrigerator freezer compartments regularly so the ance. frost never gets more than 4 inch thick. A layer of frost insulates the cooling coils and makes the refrigerator run more. Also keep the freezer filled to capacity as much as possible. It takes less energy to keep a full freezer cold than it takes to maintain low temperatures in a half-full or nearly empty one. Bread when space is needed for other foods.

This approach is often quicker. easier, and less expensive than actually insulating the joists beneath the floors of your home, according to the energy experts at the CertainTeed Home Institute, Valley Forge, Pa.

However, the crawlspace should be an unvented one, or you should close off and insulate any existing vents in the winter.

Measure first

Before you begin, measure the distance between the floor joists (usually 15 the polyethylene vapor inches or 23 inches) so barrier underneath the that you can purchase 6 insulation on the earth inch-thick batts or rolls of unfaced fiber glass insulation to fit between them.

You'll also need a hammer and nails, heavy duty linoleum shears, a linoleum knife or serrated bread knife (to cut the insulation): temporary lighting with waterproof wiring and connections, a portable fan for ventilation, a tape measure, and duct tape (2 inches wide).

You'll need 12" x 112" strips of wood to use in securing the insulation to the insulation in place the sill along the walls. (You'll need enough nailing strips to extend the entire length of each of the walls to be insulated.)

Where joists are perpendicular to the side wall begin by cutting short pieces of insulation to fit snugly against the header. Then install longer strips of insulation, nailing it to the sill using the strips of wood.

You can also solve the problem by nailing the insulation directly to the header using the wood strips. This procedure works particularly well when joists run parallel to the wall you're insulating.

Once you've insulated all the wall areas, install barrier underneath the floor, extending up the walls about two inches. Tape it to the walls, overlapping the edges of the sheeting 6 inches, using the duct tape. (You lay the vapor barrier last to prevent ripping it to shreds while you're installing the insulation.)

As a final step, place 2 x 4 lumber, or rocks, on top of the insulation batts along the wall to help keep snugly against the wall. Note: Insulating the INSULATING CRAWLSPACE WALLS is relatively easy to do, according to the CertainTeed Home Institute, Valley Forge, Pa. On walls perpendicular to joists (Diagram #1), insert a piece of fiber glass insulation between the sub-floor and the sill, then attach a longer batt of insulation directly to the sill. Or, attach the long insulation as shown in Diagram #2. In both cases, make sure that the insulation extends at least two feet into the crawlspace. Install a 6-mil thick polyethylene vapor barrier under the insulation over the entire floor area and two inches up the wall, securing it with moisture-proof duct tape.

Attractive new ceiling will put final touch to remodeled room

Installing a crisp new ceiling is often the best way to put the final touch on remodeling projects in the home. It not only helps brighten and modernize a room, but pulls together all other decorating efforts. And it's the type of job most do-it-yourselfers can handle.

Name your type

What type of ceilings are available? Today's most popular types are made from fiber glass, wood fiber or mineral wool fiber. According to Johns-Manville, which manufactures all three, each offers different advantages in price, style and installation.

Ceilings made from fiber glass and mineral wool fiber come in 2-ft. by 4-ft. panels, which are laid into a grid system suspended from the existing ceiling. Such "drop" ceilings can be installed three inches or more from the old ceiling to hide ugly pipes, range of styles. They vary duct, wiring or cracked plaster. Moreover, lay-in panels can be removed from their aluminum grid system for easy cleaning or access to wiring and pipes. Wood fiber ceilings are somewhat different from lay-in panel types, but are just as attractive and easy to install.

They consist of 12-in. by 12-in. tiles that are stapled directly to the existing ceiling or to wood furring strips.

Materials vary

As for the materials from which each ceiling is constructed:

• Fiber glass panels are highly fire-resistant, sound-absorbing, and their durable vinyl surface is washable. A variety of patterns and textures are available.

• Wood fiber ceilings are offered in a broad in both acoustical quality and washability

• Mineral wool fiber ceilings carry the top Class A fire-rating, and are sound-absorbing. They are available in deep-fissured patterns.

Buy for your needs

Although there is some price overlap between fiber glass, mineral wool fiber and wood fiber, the latter is generally the least expensive.

According to Johns-Manville, most building materials dealers carry a wide variety of ceilings, and can usually advise which type best suits particular remodeling or decorating projects.

For additional information about fiber glass, wood fiber or mineral wool fiber ceilings write Johns-Manville, Box 5705RP, Ken-Caryl Ranch, Denver, Colo. 80217

FOR NEW CEILINGS, Johns-Manville says tiles are normally 12 inches square and applied to furring strips over existing ceiling (left). Lay-in panels are 2-ft, by 4-ft, and dron into a suspended grid system of metal supports (right).

Revive A Tradition . . .

Build a Grandfather!

The time was when a house was really not a home if its foyer didn't boast a stately grandfather clock with melodious chimes to sound the quarter-hours and a gong to toll the hours.

With tradition being revived, in home workshops everywhere do-it-yourself craftsmen are assembling a grandfather from a kit with a few easy by-thenumbers instructions. It's a fit, fasten, glue and finish project that produces a heritage timepiece of heirloom quality and performance, without professional experience or other than common hand tools. Two kits are available. One is for a clock over 77" tall, featuring the authentic Moon Phase dial created generations ago to help farmers in their crop planting, growing and harvesting seasons. It has an 8-day movement that lets you choose the dramatic chimes of Westminster, Whittington or Winchester simply by moving a lever. Vinyl siding answers upkeep problem

Homeowners looking for ways to reduce maintenance headaches around the house have found vinyl siding one good solution to the problem. "Solid vinyl siding is

Home construction up, major projects down in 1976-77

The building business locally was good a year ago, according to some observers, and is better

In terms of comparing one year with another, however, the past 12 months have slipped dollarwise compared to the previous period.

Total construction for the period June 1, 1976-May 31, 1977 within the Cass City village limits, as compiled from village building permits, totaled $572.811.

That compares to $911. 412 for the same period in 1975-76. A large part of that was due to two big projects, however. The municipal swimming pool cost $218,-000 and two new grain bins at Wickes Agriculture cost $174.000.

The biggest project during June, 1976-May, 1977 was also at Wickes.

In a project that started in April, the firm is having its old three-stage grain dryer replaced with a larger single-stage unit. The project is costing $100,000.

The old dryer, according to Wickes manager Bob Wischmeyer, had a drying capacity of about 1,000 bushels per hour. Capacity of the new unit is 3,500 bushels.

The new dryer, which like the old one will burn natural gas, will be ready for use by the end of the month at the latest. Elevator Services of Ohio is doing the installation work. The dryer will mainly be used for corn, but also for drying wheat and navy beans if necessary.

The biggest project currently underway, just outside the village limits, is construction of Plaza West, a four-unit shopping mall at the corner of M-81 and Doerr Road.

Developer of the $150,000 project is Hamilton Co. Realty of Sebewaing, which will have an office in one of the four units. The only other announced tenant so far is a sporting goods store. The mall will have parking available for 27 cars.

The builder is Herron Builders, Inc., of Cass City. Construction may be completed by Aug. 1.

Most new construction, of course, consists of homes. In Cass City from June 1976 through May of this year, nine homes were constructed, at an average cost of $37,177.

CHRONICLE WANT ADS

SELLS HOMES AND BUILDING MATERIALS, TOO

Six of the homes went up on Brenda St. in the Hillcrest Subdivision, which is a project of Herron Build-

Although no two homes are alike, thus making comparisons difficult, the consensus of those contacted by the Chronicle was that the cost of building a home today is about 10 per cent more than it was a year ago.

The least expensive home built during the past year in the village cost $30,000; the most expensive, $42,000. The median figure was $38,000, quite a bit below the national figure of $51.100. In 1970, incidentally, the national median figure (as many homes costing more as there were costing less) was $23,400.

In contrast to many areas, where the bulk of new home construction is "out in the country," that may not be true here.

Art Randall of the Cass City State Bank feels that most new home construction is within the Cass City village limits. Although lots cost more, being able to hook up to village water and sewer lines may make a new home less costly overall than building out in the country, where the owner has to pay for installation of a septic system and drilling a well.

As for who builds a new home, opinions differ. Randall mentioned families "moving up" from one home to another, but he also mentioned older couples who no longer have children at home, thus deciding to have a smaller new home built.

Robert H. Keating, vicepresident and chief loan officer for Pinney State Bank, mentioned those moving to a "better" home and also persons moving to Cass City from elsewhere.

Most homeowners, of course, are content to stay where they are, which creates a big demand for home improvements.

A look at the building permits taken out during the past year in the village showed projects ranging from garages to additions to installation of siding and building fences. For those with ever expanding amounts of junk, storage sheds were a big item. In addition to the village swimming pool, there was one private pool constructed, at a cost of $4,000. And in June of this year, a permit was taken out for a pool costing $7,300.

Siding installation is one the reasons for the high of the most popular home improvements, accordin to Elwyn Helwig of Croft-Clara Lumber Co. The reason is twofold:

One is the high cost of getting a house painted and the other -- probably one of cost - is the difficulty of getting a good painter. The popularity of one. home improvement, that of installing insulation, is hard to measure because building permits aren't required

However, Helwig reports that more and more persons are having insulation installed or doing it themselves in an attempt to cut down on the use of evermore expensive heating fuel.
