

Smaller post offices in area face an uncertain future

48735, 48754, 48729, 48426, 48742, 48410.

Gagetown, Owendale, Deford, Decker, Snover, Argyle. The zip codes and the names that go with them may always be around but the post offices that go with them may not.

Once again the future of small post offices in the area -- and all across the nation -- is in doubt.

The issue has been dormant since July 1 of last year, when the Postal Service declared a moratorium on post office closings because of protests from postmasters and members of Congress from rural districts.

The Postal Service recently announced its intentions of resuming the gradual closing of rural post offices that it considers uneconomical.

But Owendale Postmaster Jeanette McDonald argues, "We're supplying a service to people. We're not here to make money."

Gagetown Postmaster Mary Margaret Downing questions how much money will be saved by closing post offices such as hers.

Like most of the smaller units in the area, Gagetown has one rural route. It serves 257 boxholders. Townspeople have to come in to get their mail. There are 130 boxes rented.

She and the rural carrier are the only full-time employees. There are two part-time clerks. The office is allotted only two hours of part-time help a day.

Close the office down, she feels, and another rural carrier would have to be added, who makes about as much money as she does. The only savings would come from not paying building rent and utilities.

"I think we'll survive -- at least for a while," she said. Mrs. McDonald also feels closing won't happen in the near future, but "in five years it might change."

According to Roy Grobe, Saginaw postmaster and manager of the Saginaw sectional mail center which serves the Thumb area west of M-53, the Postal Service guidelines for closings are to be published some time this fall.

By law, the Postal Service does not need permission from Congress to close post offices, however, since the latter writes the laws, it could intervene.

Without the guidelines, it isn't possible to say for sure which post offices will get the guillotine first.

Grobe said it is reasonable to assume closings will start with fourth class post offices and then move on to the smaller third class.

Various factors will be considered, including closeness to other post offices as well as the number of customers.

The only fourth class post office in the area is at Argyle. Postmaster Virginia Greenlee is optimistic hers won't immediately get the ax once closings start.

Post office classifications are primarily based on revenue. Due to an increase in stamp and money order sales, Argyle becomes a third class post office Oct. 8.

Mrs. Greenlee is the only full-time worker. There is one part-time clerk. Argyle has 73 boxholders. There is no rural route operating out of there.

Cass City is a first class post office; Kingston is second class. The others in the area are all third class.

Except for Snover, which has two rural routes, they all have one rural route. The routes have from about 250 stops to 700.

Townspeople have to come in to get their mail.

In addition to the service provided, another argument against closing as expressed by Postmaster McDonald, is, "You're taking away individuality."

The Postal Service hopes to counter that with its new proposal. Even if a post office is closed, small town dwellers will still be able to receive mail addressed to their community (presumably with the same zip code), even though it will be delivered from another town.

"If we do close a post office, we will do everything we can to maintain community identity," U.S. Deputy Postmaster General William F. Bolger said recently.

That will be a change from past practice. The Wilmot post office was closed several years ago when the postmaster retired and the Postal Service decided that with the Deford and Kingston offices close by, there was no need to

Rain causes heavy loss

Agriculture officials and farmers are still estimating the damage which resulted from a severe rain storm in the south end of Tuscola county Sunday night and Monday morning.

Four inches of rain were reported to have fallen in about 20 hours, according to Virgil Bouck, county executive director for the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

Bouck said the rain fell from Saginaw through Vassar, Mayville, and Marlette in a path about 3-4 miles wide. The worst damage was apparently in the area of M-24 and M-46.

Hardest hit were bean and potato crops. The water was so deep in some fields, he said, that beans were completely under water.

He estimated it will take a week to 10 days for some fields to dry out.

Although there was some bean damage, the exact amount won't be known until the fields dry out enough to see what's left, Bouck said.

The potato loss could be even greater, he indicated, as they could rot in the ground unless harvested rapidly.

The flooded fields will also cause problems for farmers wanting to harvest their corn for silage.

Bouck was on the scene about 9:30 a.m., taking photographs for use in applying later for disaster aid for the affected farmers.

A non-agricultural casualty of the rain was the Vassar High School gymnasium floor, which was flooded.

Walbro declares dividend

At a regular meeting in Flint Aug. 29 the board of directors of Walbro Corporation declared a third quarter cash dividend of 10 cents a share on Walbro common stock.

This dividend is payable Oct. 28 to shareholders of record, Sept. 30.

ACCIDENT SCENE -- Little's Funeral Home ambulance attendants remove William Henry Roots from the car involved in the 5:15 p.m. accident. The driver, Albert H. Schilke, was removed previously. The car driven by Vera E. Bouck can be seen in the background along M-53, and in closeup at left.

6 injured in 2-car area crash

Six persons were injured in an accident at 5:15 p.m. Tuesday at M-81 and M-53.

Reported in fair to serious condition Wednesday morning at Hills and Dales General Hospital was the driver of one vehicle, Albert H. Schilke, 73, and his passenger, William Henry Roots, 78. Both men are from Harbor Beach.

Driver of the other car was Vera Ellen Bouck, 28, of 5719 Bay City-Forestville Road, Cass City. Passengers were her children, Patricia, 5, Ronald, 3, and Nathan, 1.

Mrs. Bouck, Ronald, and Nathan, were all treated at Hills and Dales and released. Patricia was reported in fair condition there Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Bouck's husband, Roger, was called after the accident and he took them to the hospital. The two Harbor Beach men were taken by ambulance.

A witness to the accident, Rosemary Abraham of Ubyly, said Schilke was eastbound on M-81 and failed to stop at the blinker light on M-53.

His car was then struck broadside by the Bouck car, which was northbound on M-53.

Miss Abraham was eastbound on M-81, immediately behind the Schilke car when the accident occurred.

The Sanilac County Sheriff's Department, which investigated the accident, said charges are pending against Schilke.

After the impact, the Schilke auto continued across the intersection and spun around once or twice, according to Miss Abraham, before going off the north side of Cass City Road.

The Bouck auto came to a rest on M-53, a short distance north of the intersection, with the front end of the car still on the highway.

A Huron county sheriff's deputy and several persons from the nearby Bartnik Service Station assisted in directing traffic past the crash scene.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Merrill D. Burnette, 35, of 4292 Crane Road, was treated and released at Hills and Dales Hospital Sept. 14 after a rock fell from a gravel truck, went through his windshield, and struck him in the face.

Sheriff's deputies said Burnette was westbound on M-46, east of Chambers Road in Indianfields township, and passing a large gravel truck when the stone fell from the truck. The incident occurred at 6:50 a.m.

The gravel truck was not identified.

Ronald D. Langmaid, 16, Rt. 1 Van Dyke Road, was cited by Cass City police after an accident Saturday for exceeding the posted speed limit of 15 miles per hour.

Police said he was eastbound on Huron Street, just west of West Street. Langmaid told police he was executing a curve when his wheels caught the edge of the roadway. In trying to get back on the road, he lost control. His car went sideways and struck a tree. The street is uncurbed. The accident took place at 11:50 p.m.

Hunters see problems with state's 'winter permission' trespass law

Michigan hunters have something new to contend with this fall -- and it doesn't run or fly.

It is a new state law that requires hunters to obtain written permission from the property owner in order to hunt on private property.

The law also applies to fishermen and motorized vehicle owners.

It actually went into effect April 1 but didn't draw much attention until the advent of hunting season.

At best, the law draws mixed reactions from hunters. It will be of benefit to property owners wishing to get trespassers off their property.

According to Rex Schmelzer, area supervisor for the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR), it will also make enforcement efforts easier against deer shiners.

Even if conservation officers are not able to catch someone in the act of illegal deer hunting, assuming the persons are found on private property, they can be ticketed for violation of the trespass law.

The old trespass law, according to Conservation Officer Juris Didrichsons, was almost impossible to enforce.

The reason was that it took a warrant issued by a prosecutor in order to arrest someone for trespassing. That meant the property owner had to first sign a complaint against the trespasser in order for the warrant to be issued.

Many times, Didrichsons said, if a property owner asked people on his property to leave, they would ignore him, knowing there was little he could do legally.

If the property owner summoned a law enforcement officer to his property -- assuming the trespassers were still there when he arrived -- all he could do was ask them to leave. No arrests could be made.

Under the new law, the officer can issue a ticket for trespassing just like issuing one for hunting or fishing without a license or for speeding.

Violation is a misdemeanor, punishable by a maximum of 90 days in jail and a $100 fine.

Of the one violation he is familiar with in Tuscola county so far, Didrichsons said, the person was fined $50.

The new law doesn't mean conservation and other law enforcement officers will be cruising back roads looking for trespassers.

The general policy of the DNR, Didrichsons explained, is that the law will be enforced on a complaint basis, that is, conservation officers won't be dispatched unless someone calls to complain about trespassers on their property.

If officers on patrol encounter persons such as hunters on private property, they will be asked for their written permission slips. If they don't have them, the conservation officer said, they will be advised to go get them. DNR officers carry plat books in their cars and can tell the persons who the owner is.

Schmelzer stressed, though, "the officer in the field has the discretion in the field whether to issue a warning or a citation."

The sheriff or undersheriff of Tuscola, Huron, and Sanilac counties all indicated they will follow an enforcement policy similar to that of the DNR.

Most trespassing complaints, even when phoned in to a sheriff's department, are referred to the DNR.

If a person cited pleads innocent, Didrichsons explained, it will take the testimony of the property owner that he didn't give permission for the person to be on his property for conviction.

If the owner lives a long way away from the property, said Huron County Under-sheriff Robert Kenny, a lot of them "wouldn't come to testify. They'd just say, 'Keep them off my property.'"

Didrichsons advised that if a hunter wants to hunt on private land which has an absentee owner, he should write to him prior to the start of hunting season and ask for written permission.

The problem of absentee owners and the new law draws the ire of hunters such as Robert MacKay of Cass City, who said, "I know 90 per cent of the people who owned the land I hunted on and never had any problems."

But more and more land being bought by absentee owners, he continued, will make it difficult for hunters to comply with the new law.

MacKay, who likes to hunt rabbits in winter, gave an example of another problem with the law. Even if he has written permission to be on a particular piece of property, there's no guarantee the rabbit will stay on the property and "the dog will run wherever the rabbit runs." He indicated so will the hunter.

"If It Fitz..."

Whoisit can't fool Fitz

By Jim Fitzgerald

In his TV interview with Barbara Walters, G. Gordon Liddy said the novel he is writing "is not a roman a clef."

"What does that mean?" my wife asked.

"It means Liddy is not writing about an Italian with a speech impediment," I said. I will say anything for a laugh.

Pat didn't laugh. She wanted a serious explanation of a roman a clef, so I gave it to her. This was a big mistake.

"Roman a clef" is a French phrase used to describe a novel which disguises fact as fiction. The names are changed to protect the writer from being sued.

All novels are roman a clefs. When Margaret Mitchell wrote "Gone with the Wind," she named the hero Rhett Butler but she was really writing about Clark Gable. She didn't use his real name for fear Gable would sue her for revealing that he lost his wife to a big sis like Leslie Howard.

Everyone knows a mystery story is a whodunit. A roman a clef is a whodunit.

French intellectuals call roman a clefs "who is it," inserting the un-American space between the words to make room for their accents. French intellectuals use the American phrase for the same reason American intellectuals use the French phrase — it helps them all to identify each other as intellectuals.

After I explained all this to Pat, I suggested she watch "Washington Behind Closed Doors" on ABC-TV last week. I had read John Ehrlichman's book upon which the TV show was based, so I knew the six-night movie would be a fine example of a roman a clef.

It was, it was, it was. Pat drove me huggy asking whoisit? whoisit? whoisit? I always gave the correct answers, but sometimes she didn't understand me.

In the TV show there was a dying president named Esker who chased women and talked like he was a philosophy editor for Farmer's Almanac.

"What's his real name?" Pat asked.

"Andy Griffith," I said.

"How could a man like that be elected president?" she asked.

"He ran on his record. He was a very good sheriff of Mayberry," I said. "Also he got a lot of the youth vote because his son is a good friend of the Fonz."

Another "Closed Doors" character had a name no one could pronounce. He kept giving thousands of dollars to President Monckton who was really Jason Robards who used to run the Washington newspaper where Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman work.

"I know the guy with the funny name for sure," I said. "That is Robert Aerosol who got rich by inventing the Abplanalp can. The spray from these cans would have destroyed the ozone layer which protects us all from getting sunburned to death. Our lives were saved by that chubby guy who lives inside medicine cabinets and swipes Right Guard from Mona's husband."

The whoisit hardest for me to identify was the menacing schemer who did break-ins for Jason Robards. My wife thought it was Howard Hunt but that name didn't sound right to me. It took me five nights to come up with the right name.

"That's Skip Homeier," I finally exclaimed. "and I'm not surprised at the way he turned out. He used to be a young Nazi."

Pat remembered. "I wonder what he has been doing since the downfall of Hitler?" she asked.

"I know that too," I said triumphantly. "He has been polluting the environment by making love to older women just so they will drink Geritol out of non-returnable bottles. Once my memory gets into gear, there is no whoisit too tough for me to solve."

By the sixth episode, after five nights of watching how I did it, Pat felt ready to solve her own roman a clef.

"I know who Jason Robards' adviser for foreign affairs really is," she said. "The phony accent doesn't fool me. He is really Rhoda Morgenstern's father."

I was afraid to tell her she was wrong. The accent wasn't phony. The adviser for foreign affairs was really an Italian with a speech impediment.

Onward and upward.

Two quick change artists rip off M-53 gas station

Two "quick change" operators got away with about $110 from the In-N-Out service station on M-53 Saturday — at least temporarily.

The men also obtained money from a service station in Caro and reportedly two others in the Thumb area that day.

The quick change operation, Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson explained, usually starts with the purchase of a small item, for which the cashier is given a large denomination bill. The operators direct a steady stream of conversation at the cashier and in the confusion, end up receiving more in change than they paid for the object.

The local involvement began shortly after 4 p.m. when Cass City Patrolman Chris Taylor received a warning on the radio from the sheriff's department to be on the look-out for two men who had just been involved in a quick change operation at a Caro gas station.

The officer drove around to warn local service stations and was told at one that the two men had been there about five minutes earlier asking for directions.

Taylor then drove toward M-53 and spotted the pair at the In-N-Out station, just south of M-81. The officer stopped nearby and observed the men complete a transaction with the attendant.

The pair then drove back to Cass City. Taylor stopped their car at M-81 and Koeplgen Road.

He obtained their identifications, but at that point, there was no positive evidence that the men had broken any laws, so had to let them go.

The attendant at the In-N-Out station, Richard J. Hanby, later determined about $110 was lost in the "transaction". Chief Wilson said Tuesday. The station is in Samsac county.

He added that the arrest of the two men was dependent on Caro police and the Samsac County Sheriff's Department obtaining warrants from the prosecutors in their respective counties, charging the men in connection with the incidents.

OTHER CASES

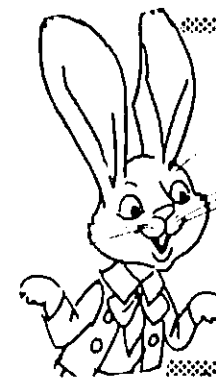

William Zimmerman of the Cass City Post Office reported to village police Saturday morning that someone during the night had broken the left rear window of a mail delivery vehicle parked at the post office. Damage was estimated at $50.

Sandusky state police Sunday arrested John L. Noyes of 5645 Kingston Road, Kingston, on a warrant charging him with failure to appear in Tuscola County District Court on a possession of open intoxicants in a motor vehicle charge.

He was turned over to Cass City police, who made the original arrest, who took him to the county jail. Noyes later that day posted $45 bond, pending arraignment in district court.

Margaret Demo of 4325 Sherman Street reported to Cass City police Friday morning that someone took the statue of the Virgin Mary from her bird bath the previous night. The statue, 2-3 feet tall, was valued at $35.

Some take desperate chances because they've nothing to lose.

Rabbit Tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Dick Erla is definitely not a man of few words. So he's got a few thousand well chosen phrases to tell you what life is like in Poland. (He just returned from a 2,500 mile tour of the country).

Boiled down, what he's been telling everyone is that none of us here really realizes just how good we have it.

Besides learning how good we have it, Dick also learned something else: how to sing happy birthday in Polish.

The sentiment is beautiful, says Dick, as he translated for the Cass City Rotary Tuesday. The Rotarians, gentlemen all, didn't say a word about the singing.

This picture is in the paper but I promise that this time I'm not going to tell you that Dick Szarapski is the best fisherman I know.

Shoppers should have a field day next week end in Cass City. That's because the town-wide fall sale sponsored by the Retail Division, Chamber of Commerce, will be held. Thursday evening, stores will be open for a Moonlight Madness Sale.

Fall values will be offered during regular hours Friday and Saturday. In addition the new Plaza West will be holding its grand opening.

That good old time neighborliness is waning. The other day Editor Mike Eliasohn spotted a package falling off a United Parcel truck.

He picked it up and found it was addressed to Cass City High School. Since you can't phone UPS locally, he called the school. The package was here for several days and nothing happened. Finally I took it down to the local UPS branch.

The man in charge was slightly incredulous, if not downright suspicious, when I made my mission known. Almost as if he thought that I got the package by hanky panky.

A couple of decades ago returning a lost parcel was commonplace around here. Most folks would have expected a lost package to be returned to its rightful owner.

That we don't now is just one more indication that we've lost something as we continue to grow.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

In Russia there could never have been a Bert Lance investigation. No way.

One of these two alternatives would have been all that was open. Either he would never have been appointed or the details of his pre-public service would never have come to light.

You sort of forget all this in this day of détente, if you ever thought about it at all.

All this was triggered by a printing trade magazine that I was reading instead of working. Reading trade journals is loafing with a semi-clear conscience.

You can rationalize that you're working when really you're putting off chores that you really don't feel like tackling. (Like writing this column).

But I digress. The topic here is why Russia couldn't have a Lance.

The article I was reading instead of working concerned the printing business in Russia.

We all know that censorship exists in Russia. Intellectually we know it.

That's not the same as knowing it in a way that touches all of us.

Let's get it down to the nitty-gritty. Let's assume you've decided to go into a sideline business. Collecting antiques, selling pottery, fixing tires, whatever.

Anyway you decide that a business card would be money well spent. A few bucks risked for hopefully a few bucks gained.

To decide is to act and before you know it you are passing out your cards. No big deal.

That's because we don't know a good thing when it stares us in the face. Repeat the scene in Russia. Assume it's one of the businesses that's not state operated.

Before that printer can set a line of type the copy has to be approved by the Bureau of Censorship.

After the job is completed the bureau must okay it again.

That hit home with me. If that doesn't register much with you, how about this? Even large universities do not have duplicating or copying machines and all business typewriters are registered with the government.

Like most of you, I have deplored the criminals that run free when it appears that common sense deems that they should be put away. I cringe when I read of the violence inflicted every day on unsafe city streets and I wonder what the country is coming to when crooks are found at the highest level of government.

But if the protection of our individual rights comes at that cost, then I say we have no choice but to live with it.

Our freedom of speech and individual liberties are not, heaven knows, without problems but it's better than a Bureau of Censorship.

That's the way I feel and I can print it on a business card if I want.

And so can you.

Energy seminar

in Cass City

By William Bortel

Slow down; bundle up; dial down; seal up; wash in cold, not hot water; go in groups, not singly, and turn out the lights when you leave the room!

That sounds like somebody's mother, and indeed it is Mother Nature telling us, in short, to conserve energy because never again will supplies be so abundant, so cheap for so many.

Too many people take this as a threat instead of advice to prevent needless waste; and they confuse conservation with curtailment, all of which tends to translate into an enemy of modern society.

So the majority of us find ourselves in one of two camps — those who think this whole thing is a lie and those who think doomsday is just around the corner. Both are wrong.

To clarify the energy perspective and show how to adjust to future lifestyles, the Cooperative Extension Service, in cooperation with local utility companies, will hold a special energy seminar for area residents Nov. 3 at 7 p.m. in the Cass City High School cafeteria.

We don't intend that this session will provide all the answers area residents may be seeking in terms of future energy supplies, but it will lay the ground work for understanding where we stand in energy availability and give guidelines for sensible conservation.

The confusion between curtailment and conservation. Curtailment means a cold house, conservation means a well-insulated house with an efficient heating system. Energy conservation does not require curtailing vital services; it merely means cutting down on energy waste.

More than one-half of the present U.S. energy use is wasted. The U.S. Office of Energy Preparedness says Americans could save 30 to 50 per cent of the energy they use without a loss in quality of life.

World energy consumption increased 600 per cent from 1900 to 1965 and is projected to increase another 450 per cent between 1965 and 2000.

World oil consumption is now so enormous that during this decade (between 1970 and 1980) the nations of the world are projected to consume as much oil as was used in the hundred years between 1870 and 1970.

Coal has been mined for 800 years, but more than half of it has been extracted in the past 37 years. Petroleum has been pumped out of the ground for 100 years, but half of it has been consumed during the past 18 years.

There are three human attitudes that can destroy us: The blind technological optimism of those who believe some scientific innovation or unknown factor will always save us; the gloom-and-doom pessimism of those who have given up all hope, and the greed, apathy and refusal to face reality of those who have given up concern and involvement through easy fatalism or a naive view of reality.

Zonta plans anniversary luncheon

The Zonta Club held its monthly dinner meeting at Wildwood Farms Tuesday evening, Sept. 13.

Plans were formulated for the Zonta 20th anniversary luncheon to be held at Wildwood Farms Oct. 15. The Bay City club is the mother club of Cass City Zonta.

Audrea Frances of Saginaw, past international president, will be the guest speaker, along with Zillah Meeker of Grand Rapids, governor of District 15.

Shirley Buschlen, Loretta Hacker, Edith Little, Helen Baker, Carolyn Benscoter and Esther McCullough will attend the district conference in Kalamazoo Sept. 30-Oct. 2.

4-H to have display at Farm Expo

The 4-H youth program in Tuscola county will have a special display at this year's Farm Expo Oct. 4-5.

Several live 4-H demonstrations and project displays will be featured in the youth display tent. They will include displays on photography, leather craft, clothing, gun safety, dogs, and rabbits.

These exhibits will be of interest to both youth and adults to learn more about the opportunities available in 4-H for youth 8 to 18 years old.

A special agriculture career display will feature the many agriculture and agriculture-related careers available to young people today. The display is sponsored by the College of Agriculture, Michigan State University.

Youth and parents are invited to stop by and visit with the representatives from Michigan State University and 4-H adult and teen leaders.

Bernard Jardot, Tuscola County Extension 4-H youth agent, 4-H Program Assistant Barbara Ayre, and several 4-H leaders will be coordinating the exhibit.

Missing
Miss America

By Mike Eliasohn

I wasn't home the night the Miss America pageant was on television, but if I had been home, I would not have watched.

The reason I don't watch each year is because I know what I am missing. In my younger days, when I was still at home with my parents and sister, watching the Miss America pageant was an annual tradition.

"I think Miss Arizona will win."

"No, I'll go with Miss Georgia."

I am certainly not opposed to looking at women, at least those worth looking at, but when made into a contest, there are certain things I don't care for.

First is because they are basically meat parades — feminine versions of hog showing at a county fair — the organizers have to have a rationale for their contests' existence.

For Miss America, it's a scholarship contest.

The purpose of the Miss Universe contest is (or was) to "create good will and understanding through the international appreciation of beauty."

For admittedly logical reasons, Miss America officials want the winner to be the all-American type: cheerleader in high school, wanting some type of career "helping people" after graduation from college, then marriage and children.

Some are TOO American, though.

When I was fighting the war on paperwork in Vietnam in 1969-70, my fellow peons and I found it very amusing when Miss America said, "The war in Vietnam must be right otherwise our government wouldn't be involved."

I wonder if she said the same thing a few years later when Nixon's henchmen broke into the Democratic national headquarters?

Then there is the talent — or lack of it.

The sole rationale for the talent judging is to help prove the girls aren't being judged just for their looks.

Some of the acts I saw on television when I did watch were pretty bad. Mind you, these were the top 10 of the 50 finalists so imagine what the acts of the other 40 and of the girls who weren't even selected to represent their states were like.

I always pictured the scenario back in the girls' home towns as something like this:

"Why, Betty Sue, you're such a pretty girl. Why don't you enter the Miss Yazoo City contest?" (Apologies to Mississippi.)

"And lak to but I don haave no talent."

"That's no problem, Betty Sue. You could do a dramatic reading."

"I suppose I could. Do you suppose I could read sumthin by Will-yum Shakespeare?"

Maybe Chuck Barris got the idea for the "Gong Show" by watching the Miss America pageant.

Cass City police reported a collision Friday at 7:25 p.m. They said Albert Palazzola Jr., 18, of 4815 Germania Road, Snover, was westbound on Main Street and struck the rear of a car which had stopped to turn left onto Leach Street. Driver of the other car was Dianna L. Smith, 17, of 6940 Deckerville Road, Decker.

James Hagood of 5163 Lakeside Drive, told Cass City police shortly after midnight Friday that he returned to his car in the Charmont parking lot to find it had been damaged in the left rear.

Few farmers signing to lease land for hunting

Farmers in southern Lower Michigan are encouraged to sign up by Oct. 1 for the state's new Public Access Program which offers them money in exchange for use of their lands for hunting, says the Department of Natural Resources.

Most hunters in southern Michigan (Zone 3) this year (below a line extending from Muskegon to Bay City) are now required to purchase a $1 Public Access Stamp. The monies collected will be used by the DNR to lease farmland for the use of all hunters. Zone 3 includes Tuscola, Huron, and Sanilac counties.

Exempted from paying the fee are persons hunting with senior citizen's licenses; residents, their children, and employees when hunting small game on their own enclosed farm land where they live, and servicemen on leave from military service of the United States.

"We're getting plenty of enthusiastic letters from Michigan hunters about the program — up to 45 a day," says DNR wildlife planner Arlow Boyce. "We are concerned, though, that many landowners don't know about the program. The number of applications to make land available for hunting has been disappointingly low."

Both the Michigan Farm Bureau and Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC) sponsored the Public Access Law, Boyce said. Considering an expected 450,000 licensed hunters in Michigan this year, the new program could provide thousands of privately-owned acres for hunting.

Land-leasing applications are available at all DNR field offices and at county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) offices.

The state will pay anywhere from 50 cents to $2.50 per acre to the landowners, depending on the type of land available — woodlots, marshlands, brush land, idle fields not cropped, grain lands left for wildlife, etc. Not all land offered will be leased.

Leasing contracts will cover three years, and the new law ensures continuation of the program for the next six years. Lists of the leased hunting land will be available at DNR district and ASCS offices after Oct. 1.

The Department of Natural Resources will provide signs for the leased property indicating that, "Hunting is Permitted Under the Public Access Program. You must get permission at the farm headquarters."

Another sign at the farm house will identify it as the location where the hunter must get his permit to hunt on the property. Rules require the farmer to limit the number of hunters on the land to about one person per 10 acres.

According to DNR Area Supervisor Rex Schmeler of Cass City, the farmer will give the hunter either a tag or card to carry while hunting on the property, probably to be returned once done hunting. The exact procedure hasn't been established.

The state's new trespass law requires hunters to obtain written permission while hunting on private property. The tag or card will suffice on the Public Access lands, however, with no written permission required.

Schmeler, who supervises conservation officers in Tuscola and Huron counties, doesn't know yet how many farmers have signed up locally for the Public Access program. He speculated response has been low, partially because the large amount of state-owned land in the two counties lessens the need for private hunting land and also because of lack of publicity about the program.

Wilmot is still on the map, but it isn't possible to address any mail to there.

Closings won't mean postmasters will be out of a job, according to Saginaw Postmaster Grobe. They will be assigned to another post office within commuting distance. Rural route drivers, of course, will still be needed.

Rural route drivers sell stamps and money orders so closings won't mean rural customers will have to drive long distances for those items. The Postal Service may also contract with citizens to sell stamps and provide other services in their home or store in communities where the post office is closed.

Grobe also said local residents will be questioned as to their preferences before a local post office is closed but they won't have the final say in deciding whether the shutdown occurs. That will still be up to the Postal Service.

The general attitude of the postmasters contacted by the Chronicle is optimism that their offices won't be closed — at least in the near future.

Owendale's McDonald, for one, won't close her doors without a fight. A letter of hers was recently printed in the Detroit News, in which she wrote, "To close smaller post offices would be discriminating against rural people."

New hunting

His partner at Bill's Barber Shop, Duane Peters, disagreed. "I'll bet in many places, you won't find the property owner. If you can't find them and you still want to hunt there, what do you do?"

A general consensus among hunters and law enforcement officers contacted by the Chronicle is that the majority of problems are caused by out-of-town hunters. Local ones likely know the land owner and have more respect for his property.

One fear that has been raised by those opposed to the new law is that land owners will be reluctant to give written permission because they fear they will be liable for injuries.

However, state law provides, "A landowner is not liable for injuries to fishermen, hunters, trappers, campers, snowmobilers, motorcyclists or other recreational users who use his lands if a fee is not charged and if the injuries were not caused by the gross negligence or willful misconduct by the land owner."

To make compliance with the trespass law easier, the DNR has prepared a Sportsman Land Use Pass, to be signed by the landowner, allowing use of the property.

Places the passes are available include extension offices in Caro and Sandusky, the Soil Conservation Service office in Sandusky, and the drivers' license bureau at the sheriff's department in Bad Axe.

A written statement can be used in place of the pass. In addition to the signature of the land owner giving permission, it should state the intended use — hunting, fishing, snowmobiling, etc., the dates the land can be used, a brief description of the property, the license or registration number of the user, and the user's signature.

It is advised that the property owner write down the user's name, address, vehicle license number, and the date.

Democratic rally set

Fairgrove VFW Post No. 7486 will be the site of the annual Democratic fall rally, according to Kathleen Asher, Tuscola county Democratic Chairman. The rally will start at 6 p.m., Oct. 1.

Ralph Rasch, county vice-chairman, is heading the committee in charge of the event.

"I view this rally as a first step forward in our attempt to lure top notch candidates into the Democratic fold for the 1978 election campaign," Mrs. Asher said. "In order to develop a true two-party structure in Tuscola county, we must have Democratic candidates to fill all of the open slots at the township and county level."

The Fairgrove VFW hall is located 2 miles north and a half mile east of Fairgrove.

Most folks pay too much for the things they get for nothing.

AGENT'S CORNER Arthritis topic for local study groups

Margaret Ann Ross - Extension Home Economist

According to the Health Insurance Institute, arthritis causes more prolonged misery than any other disorder and affects one in every ten. That's why extension homemakers will be studying this disease as one of six classes they will teach during the year in their local study groups. Other classes deal with food co-ops, conservation, taxation, television, and heart disease.

The classes are arranged through the MSU Cooperative Extension Service Family Living Program. Study group members (two per class) will be taking the classes at Cass City High School Tuesday, Sept. 27 from 7 to 10 p.m.

Persons interested in joining study groups may contact Mrs. Joe Young, Reese, for Tuscola county; Mrs. John Richter, Marlette, for Sanilac county; or Mrs. Stanley Gettel, Sebawaing, for Huron county.

Or, contact Aliene Mills or Ann Ross, extension home economists of the County Cooperative Extension Service in Caro, Sandusky or Bad Axe.

A discussion about good nutrition for the unborn, newly born and preschoolers will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 3, in the third floor meeting room, County Building, Bad Axe.

The meeting is free and open to all. It is sponsored by the County Cooperative Extension Service Family Living program and the local LeLeche League groups.

A cartoon will show what a fetus thinks of the treatment its mother is giving it in the way of nutrition she provides. The cartoon takes the audience through the normal day of a young mother commenting on how she lives and the way this affects the fetus.

The importance of good nutrition will be further discussed by LeLeche League members Carol Hart and Janice Holz. They will talk about the advantages of nursing your baby, how to get started in planning for nursing your baby, problems in nursing, and how to overcome them.

Home Economist Ann Ross will focus on general nutrition information during pregnancy and lactation for the mother.

She will also discuss the importance of adequate nutrition for the infant which is

Raven on 4-H board

Weston Raven of Caro was elected to an additional three-year term to the Michigan 4-H Foundation Board of Trustees during the annual meeting at Michigan State University, Sept. 10.

"The Michigan 4-H Foundation," according to Don Jost, foundation director, "is a non-profit, educational corporation that assists in the financing of special projects and programs for the more than 275,000 4-H members and leaders throughout Michigan."

As a member of the foundation's board of trustees, Raven will assist in the administration of the foundation, as well as in obtaining private support for Michigan 4-H's educational programs.

Corn, dry bean crops increasing

The Michigan Crop Reporting Service is forecasting a 164 million bushel corn crop for grain this year in the state, 16 per cent above last year.

The national forecast is for 6.23 billion bushels, fractionally above the 1976 crop. The dry bean outlook in Michigan is 5.92 million hundredweight (cwt), 21 per cent larger than the small 1976 crop. The national outlook is for 19.05 million cwt, substantially above the 17.22 million harvested last year.

Michigan sugarbeet growers should harvest 1.634 million tons, 6 per cent more than recorded in 1976. The national forecast is for 24,353 tons, a decrease from the 29,366 tons harvested last year.

The soybean harvest should be a record, both in the state and nationally, due to higher yields and a vast increase in acreage. In Michigan, an 18 million bushel crop is forecast, 55 per cent larger than the 1976 crop. The national forecast is for 1.64 billion bushels, a 30 per cent increase.

The oat forecast is for 19.08 million bushels in Michigan, a 3 per cent decrease. The national prediction is the opposite, 758.67 million bushels this year, as compared to 562.45 million last year.

Your Neighbor says

Wage should be same for all

By a one-vote margin last Thursday, the U.S. House of Representatives defeated an amendment to minimum wage legislation that would have allowed a lower minimum wage for teenagers.

The defeated amendment would have set the minimum wage for teenagers at 85 per cent of that for adults for the first six months of employment.

Provided the Senate goes along, the current $2.30 an hour minimum wage will go to $2.65 an hour for everyone Jan. 1, 1978 and to $3.05 by 1980.

Daryl Poslusny, 15, agrees with the House action on the amendment, feeling it wouldn't be fair for teenagers to be paid less than adults if doing the same job. "I think teenagers should get paid the same," he said.

Supporters of the amendment argued that setting a lower minimum wage for teenagers would encourage employers to hire more teenagers.

Poslusny doubts it would have made that much difference. He does see some merit in the argument that raising the minimum wage for everyone will create an incentive for employers to automate more to cut costs, thus ultimately resulting in fewer jobs.

Daryl is a 10th grader at Cass City High School and presently is looking for a part-time job. He lives with his mother, Mrs. Pat Poslusny, at 6280 Deckerville Road, Deford.

Catholic agency adds caseworker

Elroy Miller has been hired as a full-time caseworker for Catholic Family Service (CFS) of the Thumb area.

Miller graduated from Eastern Mennonite College, Harrisonburg, Va., in 1975. He completed his masters degree in social work this year at the University of Southern Mississippi, Hattiesburg, Miss.

His field experience consisted of individual and family counseling and parent education and as co-leader of a parent therapy group.

From 1968 to 1970, he was a community development worker in Costa Rica.

Miller's duties at CFS will consist primarily of family counseling with an emphasis on husband-wife and parent-child relationships. CFS is located at 592 N. Crescent, Bad Axe.

FOR A YEAR
MAKES A PERFECT GIFT.

Nancy Dickerson, prominent national correspondent, reports for Detroit Edison:

"Before another cold winter, learn about the heat pump.
It's one of the most energy-efficient ways to heat your home."

Today's heat pump is one of the most energy-efficient ways to heat your home, apartment, office or commercial building. It returns over 1 1/2 units of heat for every unit of energy it uses.

Think what this can mean in conserving energy and helping to keep your heating and cooling costs down.

There's a unique reason why the heat pump is an outstandingly efficient heating system.

It makes good use of outdoor heat.

Yes. Even in winter there's heat in the outdoor air that can help keep you warm. The trick is to move that heat inside where you can use it. That's what the heat pump does. Only during very low temperatures is supplementary heat needed.

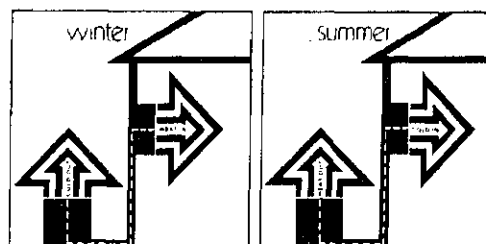

In summer, the heat pump moves heat out of your home for energy-efficient cooling. It's an all-year comfort system that also filters and dehumidifies. And it's clean because no fossil fuel is burned in your home.

The heat pump works something like your refrigerator.

A heat pump is more sophisticated, but it works in much the same way. Imagine the cold air in your refrigerator as the cold winter air outside your home. The hot air that you sometimes feel being blown into your kitchen is actually being extracted from the cold air inside the unit. This is how the heat pump warms your home. In summer, the process is reversed to cool your home: the heat in the inside air is extracted by the heat pump and moved outdoors.

Here's how the heat pump works.

See for yourself.

You can see heat pumps in the new homes displaying the Detroit Edison EEE Award. This Award is presented to builders who incorporate energy-efficient excellence standards into their homes—including proper insulation, energy-efficient appliances and lighting, as well as electric heat pump heating and cooling. Ask Detroit Edison for names and locations of builders who have EEE Award homes on display.

Conserving with comfort.

Detroit Edison wants you to know about the heat pump because it generally is the most energy-efficient way to provide homes and buildings with year-round comfort.

The heat pump can also be an important answer to conservation because the natural heat it uses helps save our non-renewable fossil fuels.

As a concerned participant in America's crusade for conservation, Detroit Edison is working hard to do its part. But it requires a working partnership between those who supply energy and those who use it. So if you're planning on buying, building or replacing your present heating system, consider a heat pump as part of your plans.

Detroit Edison has a folder, "Your all-season space conditioner, The Heat Pump." Pick one up at any Detroit Edison Customer Office and learn more about this energy-efficient way to heat and cool homes and buildings. Or write to: Customer Relations, Detroit Edison, 2000 Second, Detroit, Michigan 48226.

Conserve for all it's worth.
The power is in your hands.

Scott and Craig Guernsey received the God and Country award after working for the award a year. Comparatively few of these awards are earned by Boy Scouts as the award is one of the harder ones to acquire. The award is earned by working in the church of your faith. The Guernseys are members of the Church of Christ, Scientist, Caro.

Three Cass City men narrowly averted tragedy while on a holiday fishing trip for coho salmon at Manistee. Harry Little, Lyle Richardson and Dick Szarapski were fishing when their boat was swamped. There were many other boaters on the lake but the threesome weren't noticed until their boat had completely sunk. They were rescued by neighboring fishermen.

The only coho salmon caught by five fishermen in two days at Manistee was a beauty that hit the lure of Gerald Prieskorn. The big fish weighed just under 16½ pounds and was slightly over 30 inches long. Fishing were B.A. Calka, John Haire, Prieskorn, Alden Asher, and Wayne "Buck" Rabideau. The Cass City Junior Women's Club donated a scholarship of $100 to Kathy Herhalt who attends Eastern Michigan University.

The two were survivors of the eliminations that saw 12 persons enter a few weeks ago. In the semi-finals, Ross defeated Howard Wooley and Ackerman defeated Dick Wallace.

Anson Karr, Cass City, was elected to the office of vice-chairman for the Sanilac County PMA. He was elected at the county convention unanimously.

Federal program calls for 20% less wheat acreage

Wheat growers should plan on planting 20 per cent less of the crop this fall than they did a year ago.

With all the details yet to be announced, that's the best current advice that Virgil Bouck can offer. Bouck is the Agricultural Conservation Stabilization and Conservation executive director for Tuscola county.

The 20 per cent set-aside program for wheat was recently announced by the Carter administration in Washington. All the details are contained in the 1977 farm bill, which as of early this week was still awaiting final approval by Congress and signature by the President. The final approval and signature are expected this week or next.

Participation will be voluntary, however, producers planting wheat for grain must comply with the set-aside and crop base requirements to be eligible for loans, purchases, and payments on any crop included in the crop base. This includes compliance with any set-aside requirements for feed grains which may be added later.

The crop base will be determined from the total number of acres planted to all crops in 1977.

Farmers will not be paid for setting aside acreage.

A grower will have two options once he decides to participate:

-He can plant as much wheat as he wishes and then set aside acreage equal to 20 per cent of his planted wheat acreage.

-Or, he can plant 20 per cent less acreage this fall than he planted a year earlier, plus a set-aside of 20 per cent.

Bouck gave an example of a farmer who normally grows 100 acres of wheat and 100 of corn.

A reduction of 20 per cent in wheat acreage means he can plant 80 acres this fall. Twenty per cent of 80 acres is 16 acres. Thus, the farmer can plant 80 acres of wheat, 104 of something else, presumably corn in this instance, and have a set-aside of 16 acres. The total of 200 acres is his crop base.

If all that sounds confusing, that's why Bouck advises farmers about to plant their wheat to plant 80 per cent of last fall's acreage, if they want to participate in the program, then work out the set-aside out of acreage to be planted in the spring, once all the details of the set-aside program are known.

There is a disadvantage to choosing the first option. If the total wheat planted for harvest in 1978 exceeds the national program average, the farmer choosing the first option might not qualify for the guaranteed price on all his production. In no case will he receive the guarantee on less than 80 per cent of his production.

By exercising the second option, he qualifies for the guaranteed price on all of his wheat production.

Under both options, the grower will be limited in the acreage of other crops he can produce within the total farm crop base, which has yet to be established for each farm. The crop base will be determined from the total number of acres planted to all crops in 1977.

For 1978, the wheat target will be $3.05 a bushel if production is cut back to 1.8 billion bushels, and $3 if production exceeds 1.8 billion.

Designated set-aside acreage must be put into a soil conserving use. Haying, grazing, or harvesting will not be permitted.

Bouck said his office will send out a newsletter to farmers explaining all the details of the set-aside program, once they are received from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Wheat acreage declines

Acreage devoted to soybeans and wheat in Tuscola county declined in 1976, as compared to 1975, according to recently released statistics from the Michigan Crop Reporting Service.

Harvested wheat acreage in Tuscola in 1975 totaled 47,000 acres, at an average yield of 44 bushels per acre. In 1976, 44,000 acres were harvested, with a yield of 49.2 bushels per acre.

Wheat acreage in Huron and Sanilac counties increased from 1975 to 1976, from 56,100 harvested acres up to 58,500 in Huron and 53,000 up to 56,000 in Sanilac.

The average yield in Huron county was 46.7 bushels per acre in 1975; 49.2 in 1976. In Sanilac, the yield went up from 43.3 to 45.8.

Of the top 10 counties for wheat in the state, Huron ranked second with 5.9 per cent of the total in 1976; Sanilac, third with 5.7 per cent, and Tuscola fifth with 4.4 per cent.

Harvested soybean acreage in all three counties declined from 1975 to 1976.

In Huron, it was 3,780 in 1975; 3,290 in 1976; in Sanilac, 6,500 and 5,400, and Tuscola, 4,970 and 3,910.

Average yields in 1975 were 19.9 bushels per acre in Huron, 21.7 in Sanilac, and 26.0 in Tuscola. Respective yields in 1976 were 18.0, 18.0, and 21.0.

The Crop Reporting Service only gave 1976 figures for corn.

In Huron county, 82,730 acres were harvested for grain, at an average yield of 77.6 bushels per acre. A total of 24,660 acres were harvested for silage, at an average yield of 14.2 tons per acre.

In Sanilac, 66,000 acres were harvested for grain, with an average yield of 77.6. For silage, 27,460 acres were harvested at an average yield of 12.1 tons.

In Tuscola county, 83,000 acres were harvested for grain, with an average yield of 70.7 bushels. On the 4,500 acres harvested for grain, the average yield was 13.8 tons.

Of the top 10 counties in Michigan in corn for grain, Tuscola ranks third, with 4 per cent of the total; Huron, fourth, with slightly under 4 per cent, and Sanilac is ninth with 3.2 per cent of the total.

Letters to the Editor

Owners not at fault

To the editor:

In regards to the articles in the papers about the Owendale race track rioting and blaming the new owners, I would just like to say this.

The new owners are being blamed for a lot of things that aren't their fault. They acted in good faith and what did they get for it? It sure wasn't respect.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Duncan went out of their way to improve the pit so the drivers and pit crews could have hot coffee and sandwiches without having to cross the track while a race was being run. But I would say that it was a waste of time and trouble as no one seemed to want it or cared or they would have seen that it wasn't damaged.

As to the statement they have had no trouble all season. Well, it's just a little hard to believe as all race tracks have some form of trouble. It might not be as big as this but I am sure not everybody is happy all the time.

The only thing I can see is that there are some hard feelings over being asked to run on Friday nights. But they should stop and think. Mr. and Mrs. Dave Duncan already have a track operating and you can't be in two places at one time.

And I can only say that as a driver at Thunder Road for the past two years, if things were turned around I hope that things would be different. By this I mean that the drivers and their wives as well as the spectators would show respect for the sport and track and the new owners as well as themselves. As racing is not who owns or runs the track but is a great sport we all enjoy, we should all do our best to keep it that way.

Myrna Grace

'Riot' childish

To the editor:

I would like for you to print yet another side of what seems to be "Owendale-Thunder Road Conflict."

I am a driver's wife and I think the so-called riot at the Owendale Speedway was a bit childish and uncalled for.

I think that the few poor sportsmen involved in destroying someone else's property are getting more publicity than they deserve.

They should take the blame off of the owners and place it where it belongs, on the crybabies that want things their way.

Wrong people get credit for house

Mr. Haire,

In reading your Rabbit Tracks in Sept. 15 issue, I was surprised to see that a Mr. Steinhauer claimed that his Grandfather and Father built the stone home on Doerr Rd. and 81.

I am 64 years old and will have to admit that I can't go back in memory of Cass City further than 1918. The property and home in question was always known as the Corkin home. The original house was wood framed and only half the width and Mr. J.C. Corkins rebuilt the home enlarging it to the size that it was when it was torn down.

The Steinhauers may have done the stone work for Mr. Corkins.

As for living in the house, he speaks of a lime stone house he lived in. He then could not have lived in that house as it was built of hard stones (no lime stones) as the ones that bought it and thought that they could move it will tell you. As I was told, all the oak in that house was cut and sawed, planed and shaped in the Cass City area.

Sincerely yours,
Ray Fleenor

P.S. You might ask M.B. Auten about the house; he is older than I.

Editor's comments ignorant

To the Editor:

How can anyone be so ignorant as to write an article about Jerry Lewis and the Muscular Dystrophy Telethon when one admits one:

- 1) "missed the newspaper accounts;"
- 2) half-listened to radio reports that one's not sure one recalls correctly;
- 3) doesn't know what donations the total amount includes; and
- 4) didn't watch any of the telethon.

If one had watched the telethon, the majority of the questions would have been answered.

The statement that "there are many other worthwhile charities that also depend on donations" was completely accurate.

Please do them a favor and leave them out of future columns.

Sincerely,
Janet Harrison

Exchange student back in Sweden

Hi Cass City Chronicle-readers!

Maybe somebody remembers me, the Swedish exchange student, who went to Cass City High School during 1976-77.

I just want to say that I am finally home in Sweden. I came home Aug. 16 after spending a month, with my relatives, in New Jersey.

Then I flew to Luxembourg after stopping in Iceland.

Kiafla airport in Iceland and the surroundings looked like a desert for me after spending my last day in the U.S. in New York City. (New York City has about 8 million people and that is the same as in all of Sweden).

After landing in Luxembourg, I had a 14 hour train ride home.

Came home and saw my family again. We had a lot to talk about, of course.

One of the first things I asked about was my school. I didn't make it back in time to enroll. I was very disappointed. I didn't because in my application, I didn't send in all the papers I have so I could get highest credits.

There is a new program for fall, 1977, for people studying at universities. For example, you can have the highest grade point average and still not get the school you want. The highest grade average is 5.0 but now it is possible to raise it to 7.5. If you leave school with A's in every subject and then work five years, you get 7.5. That is 5.0 after school and then 0.5 points credit for every year you work. You can get at the most 7.5.

It is a new system that started this fall. There is a lot more competition now. When everybody that made the schools started there were so many that the school didn't have room for everybody to live. They were then planning on putting them in trailers.

Well, I am going to apply at Christmas and then get all my credits in. I am faithful I have a chance for second semester. Right now I'm working.

Yesterday, my brother and I traveled to Gathenborg by train and then went to the harbor to pick up the Pontiac Firebird. That was an adventure because first the train was late 1 1/2 hours. Then before we could pick up the car we had to insure it. When we finally were done with that we ran through half the city and went to the harbor—the wrong one. Typical! Took the bus to the right harbor and then I found out I didn't have my passport with me. I had to give proof that I was in the U.S. more than a year so I don't have to pay taxes on the car.

Well, everybody was nice and now I'm going through customs with it in Helsingborg next week. The car is at home, and in good condition.

And now my last words. I want to say that the future looks nice for me so I probably will visit my host family, the Richard Ziehms, and all my friends in Cass City, sometime. Maybe I'll come back in a couple of years.

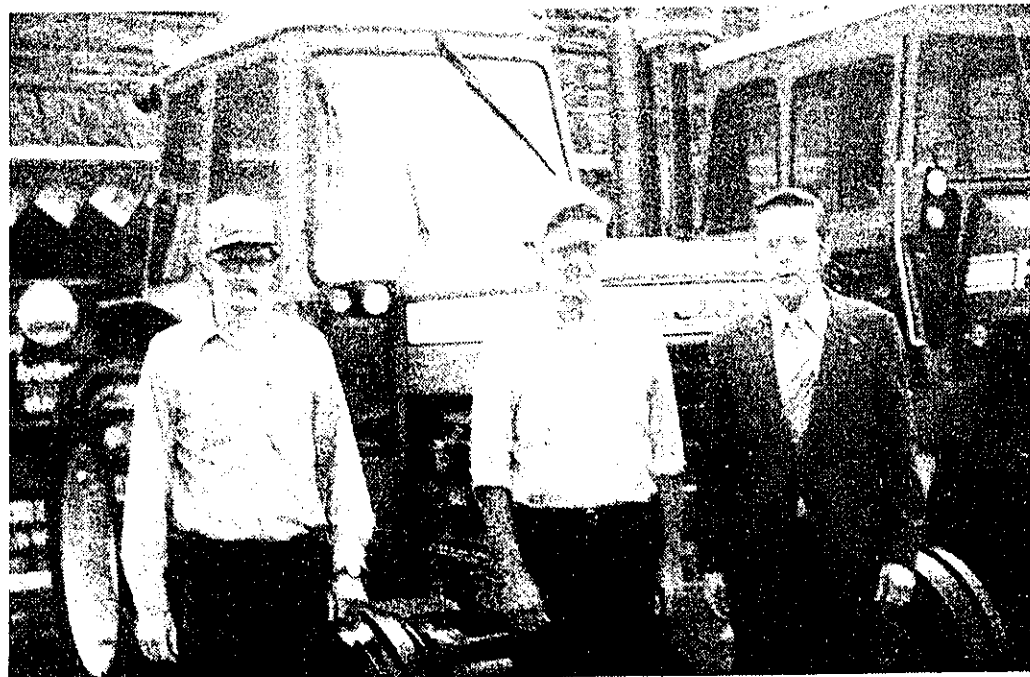

I also want to thank everybody for being so nice to me. I had a great year in Michigan and I'm never going to forget it. Thanks again!

Edison sets new farm rate

Detroit Edison is offering farm operations in its service area a reduction in total monthly electric billings under provisions approved by the Michigan Public Service Commission.

This applies to domestic service rate farm customers whose present electrical use exceeds an average of 1,500 kilowatts per hour (kwh) per month.

According to the provision, "customers taking service under this rate schedule, who, in addition to normal household requirements use energy purchased for various farm operations, may elect to take service under this Farm Service Provision."

Edison customers who qualify will be charged 4.15 cents per kwh plus fuel and purchased power adjustments for all energy bought. Farmers applying for the provision must also certify in writing that they are full-time operators of the farm.

Current domestic service rates are as follows:

- $2.50 per month service charge.
- 3.85 cents per kwh for the first 500 kwh.
- 4.15 cents per kwh for the next 500 kwh.
- 4.45 cents for the excess of over 1,000 kwh.

The Farm Service Provision is as follows:

- $2.50 per month service charge.
- 4.15 cents per kwh for all kwh used.

Both of these rates are plus fuel and purchased power adjustments.

Farmers who think they qualify for the new rate, now in effect, should contact the nearest Detroit Edison office for details.

of Garry S. Hoffman as general manager of Arjay Manufacturing Company, Walbro's plastics injection molding subsidiary, Bad Axe. Althaver said that Hoffman replaces Walker Matlack who had been vice-president-general manager of Arjay for the last 15 years. Matlack has been made vice-president-general manager of Walbro de Mexico, S.A. de C.V. -- the company's new offshore subsidiary in Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, set up recently to expand Walbro service capabilities and bring it close to its carburetor customers in the West and South.

With years of experience in plastics injection molding, Hoffman comes to Arjay from the Hamilton Plastics Division, Mason, Ohio, of Buckeye International, Inc., Columbus, Ohio.

In his last assignment with Hamilton Plastics, he was manufacturing manager. Prior to joining Hamilton Plastics, Hoffman had been vice-president-general manager of Automotive Industries, Inc., Owendale, Mich.

Observing that Hoffman is in the right place at the right time to move ahead with Walbro, Althaver said that Arjay--until now a custom processor of injection molded plastics products for the automotive, appliance, and other industries--is about to take on the additional job of molding and assembling a line of new Walbro plastics proprietary products.

Judge Baguley sentences 3 to jail terms Monday

Ronald Shegos was sentenced Monday by Circuit Judge Norman A. Baguley to serve 3-5 years in the State Prison of Southern Michigan for carrying a concealed weapon. He was credited with days already served in the county jail.

Shegos, 30, of Clio, was found guilty of the charge July 14 by a circuit court jury. He was convicted in connection with carrying a revolver in a car in Vassar township Aug. 9, 1976.

Judge Baguley denied a motion by the defendant for a new trial. A motion for bond pending appeal was granted, with the judge setting bond at $25,000.

Joseph A. Hensley, 27, of Flint, was sentenced to serve one year in the county jail for unlawfully driving away an automobile. He was credited with 180 days already served. He was found guilty of the charge Aug. 2 by a circuit court jury. The charge was in connection with the driving away of an automobile belonging to Walter Feiske in Gifford township May 30, 1976.

Sentencing of Frank W. Mitchell for violation of probation was delayed one year. Mitchell, 42, of 7204 N. Lake Road, Millington, was placed on three years' probation by Judge Baguley Oct. 18, 1976, after having pleaded guilty March 8 of that year to a charge of attempted criminal sexual conduct (2nd degree). The charge was in connection with an incident Nov. 16, 1975, in Watertown township.

Betsy L. Hogge, 18, of Highland Park, was sentenced to serve 14 months to two years in the state correctional institution for women near Ypsilanti for attempted larceny in a building. She was credited with 11 days served in the county jail.

New budgets approved for Thumb CETA programs

New budgets for various Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) programs were approved last Thursday by the Thumb Area Consortium administrative board.

The budgets are for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1. The consortium administers the federally-funded CETA programs in Tuscola, Huron, and Sanilac counties.

The CETA Title I program covers classroom, on-the-job, and work experience programs. The 1977-78 budget calls for $49,783 in administrative costs, not including the work experience program.

For Title I on-the-job training, $130,000 will be spent paying persons enrolled in the program, plus $20,000 for related costs, including the salary of a job developer and one-fourth of the pay for a job counselor.

The Title I classroom training budget totals $418,000, which includes $300,000 to pay participants the minimum wage while attending classes. Training costs, all but about $10,000 for tuition, total $88,000. Other costs total $30,000, of which almost $25,000 is for salary and fringe benefits for two counselors.

The board approved a contract with the Human Development Commission (HDC) in Caro to administer the Title I work experience program. The work experience budget totals $450,000, of which $331,843 is in wages to participants, plus $28,547 in fringe benefits. The administrative budget totals $40,500. Salaries for three field counselors and partial salary for a field operations coordinator, plus related expenses, such as staff travel, total $51,110.

The HDC contract calls for a total of 350 enrollments during 1977-78, of which 150 would still be in the program as of Sept. 30, 1978. Of the other 200, it is estimated 95 will obtain jobs after completing the program, 50 will go on to the Title II or VI programs, take schooling or enter the military service, and 55 will quit or be released from the program.

Consortium Executive Director Frank E. Lenard said the administrative costs for the various Title I programs are about 9.5 per cent of the total budgets. Fifteen per cent is allowable.

Administration budgets were approved for the Title II

She pleaded guilty to the charge July 25, in connection with the taking of a clock-radio from a home at 5268 N. Colling Road, Columbia township, July 4.

Larry R. Procknow, 29, of Flint, pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny in a building. The plea was accepted and bond was continued, with sentencing set for Oct. 17.

The charge was in connection with the taking of five blouses from the Tog Shoppe in Vassar Dec. 18, 1976.

Sept. 13 during his jury trial, Charles J. Taylor, 18, of 1641 Boy Scout Road, Caro, pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering.

His plea was accepted by Judge Baguley, who set sentencing for Oct. 17. Bond was continued.

The charge was in connection with a break-in at the Ku Ku Kow restaurant in Caro Nov. 6, 1976.

program, $11,315, and Title VI, $42,995. The program budgets for the two programs were approved in August.

Title II covers interim employment for government agencies with the aim of leading to permanent jobs; Title VI, emergency employment on temporary projects. The monthly report showed that as of Aug. 31, 295 persons were participating in the Title I programs in the three counties; 82 in Title II, and 449 in Title VI.

Lenard also reported that the Youth Employment Act recently passed by Congress will mean about $450,000 annually for the three Thumb counties. That will be in addition to the $425,000 received annually for the Summer Program for Economically Disadvantaged Youth.

The new youth employment program will be year-round and other than being for youth 16-19, will be somewhat similar to other CETA programs, with various forms of job training and work on special projects.

He said he will be meeting with intermediate school district officials in the three counties to set up "see what we can put together in the way of a program."

Walbro names executives to run new subsidiary in Mexico

Walbro Corp. President Lambert E. Althaver has announced the formation and operational start-up of a new and wholly owned company subsidiary, Walbro de Mexico, S. A. de C. V.

The new subsidiary is incorporated and located in Nogales (population: 120,000), Sonora, Mexico -- about four miles south of the U.S. border and about 60 miles south of Tucson, Ariz.

"As a company," Althaver said, "we are deeply committed to customer service, in this country and abroad."

"That's what first prompted us to establish our Japanese subsidiary, Walbro Far East, in 1972, and our European subsidiary, Walbro GmbH, one year later.

"That is also what led us to organize Walbro de Mexico, our third offshore subsidiary; it puts us, modern transportation being what it is, practically on the doorsteps of a number of highly valued customers in the South and West; and enables us to give them "on their doorstep" service.

Walbro de Mexico moved into its Nogales plant-office building in early September. The building is a modern, 42,000 sq. ft., concrete and steel structure, about four years old, with an efficient plant layout, specifically designed for the high volume production of carburetors.

Howard A. Bacon, Walbro executive vice-president, who is directing and supervising the Walbro de Mexico start-up, said that the Nogales plant is scheduled to complete its first carburetor assemblies in late September.

The plant and office building is located in Parque Industrial de Nogales, S. A. de C. V. -- a 116-acre, campus type industrial center, designed by Arthur D. Little, Inc. There are 23 buildings in the park, owned or leased by branches or divisions of well-known U.S. companies.

Robert H. Walpole, senior vice-president of the Walbro Carburetor Group, has assigned a team of experienced carburetor men from the company's Michigan plants to manage and supervise Nogales operations.

Walker Matlack, a manager at Walbro since 1962 when he was in charge of carburetor production, is vice-president-general manager of Walbro de Mexico.

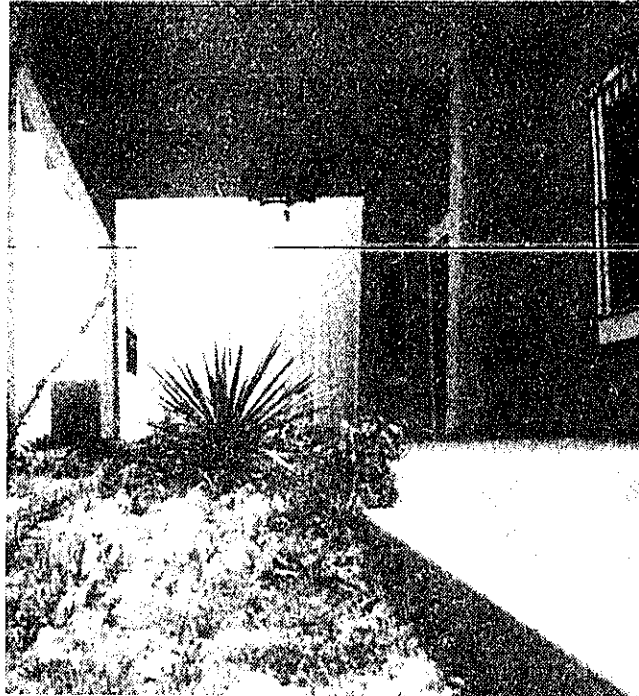

EVERETT PALMER

Everett Vern Palmer, from the company's Caro plant is responsible for industrial engineering activities.

JAMES PEYERCK

James Peyerck, assembly department supervisor at Walbro's Cass City carburetor plant, heads production in Nogales. Under the direction of Walpole, the Walbro de Mexico staff will work closely and continuously. Althaver pointed out, with the top carburetor executives in Walbro's headquarters in Cass City.

Young adults receive payments

More than 382,000 adults who were disabled in childhood are getting Social Security payments, according to William T. Clynes, social security district manager in Saginaw.

Monthly benefits are paid to disabled adult sons and daughters of workers getting Social Security retirement or disability payments and of deceased workers who worked long enough under Social Security.

"The benefits are paid to people whose disability began before age 22," Clynes said. "Usually they haven't been able to work long enough under social security to get benefits on their own work record."

Under the Social Security law, people are considered medically disabled when they have a severe physical or mental impairment and are not expected to be able to do any substantial work for a year or more. Disabled people under 65 get Medicare coverage after they've been entitled to Social Security disability benefits for 24 consecutive months.

Disabled people may be eligible for supplemental security income (SSI) payments if they have little or no income and limited resources. About 2.1 million blind and disabled people get over $238 million a month in federal SSI payments. The program, run by the Social Security Administration, also makes monthly payments to people in financial need who are 65 or over.

"People can get information about childhood disability benefits and SSI by calling or writing any Social Security office," Clynes said.

The Saginaw social security office is in the Federal Building in downtown Saginaw. The phone number is 771-1010.

Surprising Sandusky to test Cass City

TONY DOERR SLASHED THROUGH for short yardage on this play to keep a drive alive. Cass City went on to defeat Frankenmuth with a last half rally, 27-18.

Owen-Gage opens title defense with easy win

With one league victory under its belt, the Bulldogs play their first home game of the season Friday night, playing host to Carsonville-Port Sanilac.

Owen-Gage had an easy time of it Saturday afternoon, downing Port Austin 47-6 in its first North Central D League game of the season.

All-conference quarterback Roger Ziehm accounted for most of the Bulldog scoring, starting in the first quarter on a 2-yard run. A kick attempt for the extra point failed.

In the second quarter, Ziehm scored on a 3-yard run, with Tom Howard kicking the extra point.

The Bulldogs really got hot in the third quarter, with Ziehm connecting on a 52-yard pass to Dick Glidden. Howard kicked the point after touchdown.

It was the same combination for a second time, with the quarterback connecting on a 16-yarder. Howard again made the conversion.

The final score in the quarter was made by Howard on a 1-yard run. He then kicked the PAT.

Some other Bulldogs got in on the action in the final quarter. Jim Hendershot connected on an 11-yard pass to Mark Sontag for another TD. Bill Parker kicked the extra point.

Owen-Gage's final score came on a 61-yard run by Sean Barr.

A field goal attempt in the fourth quarter was blocked.

Port Austin's only touchdown came in the fourth quarter, on a 65-yard pass from Brian Korn to Randy DeBlois. The extra point attempt was unsuccessful.

Owen-Gage rushed for 291 yards on 43 carries and gained 161 yards in the air, for a total of 452 yards.

Ziehm was responsible for 210 of those yards. He completed eight of nine passes for 150 yards. Hendershot's only pass completion was the 11-yarder to Sontag.

Top rushers for the Bulldog rushers were Tom Howard, 63 yards in 13 carries; Sean Barr, 62 in two carries; Roger Ziehm, 60 yards in nine attempts, and Brad Erickson, 57 yards in eight carries.

On the receiving end, Dave Fritz had four catches good for 50 yards. Jim Glidden caught three for 88 yards.

Owen-Gage had 11 first downs, no fumbles, and was penalized 10 times for 110 yards.

Port Austin rushed for 28 yards on 22 carries, was seven for 15 in the air, with one interception, for a total offensive gain of 133 yards.

The Pirates lost two fumbles and were penalized 40 yards.

WINNERS OF the Cass City Golf League display trophies and golf bags won for their efforts during the season. Awards were presented Sunday at season ending tournament. From left, Mike Murphy, division A champion, and Bill Coston, division B champ.

Cass City passed its first hurdle in the obstacle race leading toward a possible Thumb B Conference title and will be trying to get past another major roadblock this Friday at Sandusky.

The Redskins will be entertaining the Hawks and will be coming off a satisfying upset victory over Bad Axe last week. Cass City whipped Frankenmuth 27-18 last Friday so both teams will meet undefeated in the conference.

In its win over favored Bad Axe, Sandusky showed a potent ground game but not much in the way of an aerial attack.

Hawk gridders might be excused for believing they were looking into a mirror when the Redskin attack unfolds. That's because Coach Don Tonelli's charges use the same veer offense that Coach Roland Pakonen favors.

Doug Humphrey is the quarterback and is experienced in running the option. The tailback is fleet Ron Paape, who gives the Redskins an outside threat.

While Frankenmuth had plenty of trouble stopping Cass City's passing attack last week, the visitors did stop Cass City's option offense stone cold.

Most of Cass City's 149 yards rushing came on plays through the middle of the line.

Actually there were two games played against the Eagles. Frankenmuth won the "first" game in the first half and Cass City came charging back to win the second game in the second half.

After a scoreless first quarter, Frankenmuth broke the ice with a sustained drive. Passes by Mark Janson and valuable running yardage around their own right end moved the visitors to the Hawk 8. Jim Webb took a pitch and dashed around end for the score.

Cass City got that one back midway through the second period. Mixing passes with running plays the Hawks moved to the four, from where Jeff Hartel ran off tackle on a quarterback keep to score.

Frankenmuth capitalized on a big break to score its second touchdown. The Hawk defense had forced the Eagles to punt. It appeared as if a Hawk defender got a hand on the ball.

Clarke Haire took the punt and ran it to the Frankenmuth 10 for an apparent first and goal. But Cass City was called for roughing the kicker and the Eagles had the ball on the Cass City 40.

They moved to score from that point. Big play came on fourth down with 25 yards to go for a first down and a touchdown. Janson hit Scott Hertzner in the left corner of the end zone for the score.

In the second half the breaks went the other way. The Hawks tuned up in the third quarter with a drive down field ending in a toss to Rick Hollis from the five that tied the score.

Early in the fourth quarter the first of two calls helping Hawk drives was recorded. With second and long, long yardage to go, Haire broke through for 14 yards and when the Redskins were called for grabbing the face mask, Cass City had third and a foot inside the Eagle 15.

From there Cass City moved in for the go-ahead marker. Hartel hit Hollis from eight yards out. A pass into the corner of the end zone for the extra two points put the game out of reach for the Eagles.

Hartel hit Hollis for the important points after touchdown.

After that, it was mop up time. The next touchdown drive was aided by a roughing the passer penalty that allowed the Hawks to keep the ball after the Eagle defense had apparently stopped a Hawk drive.

Moments later Hartel hit Scott Richards in front of the Redskin safety and he eluded the defender to go all the way in a play that covered 65 yards.

The pass combination of Janson to Hertzner clicked for another touchdown in the waning minutes, but all that did was make the score closer.

PLANS CHANGES

Pakonen said that two new Hawks will be in the defensive starting line-up Friday. Paul Battel has moved in at tackle and Steve Ballard gets the nod at right cornerback.

Hartel hit 11 of 19 passes for 3 touchdowns. Clarke Haire rushed for 94 yards in 15 attempts. Walt Laming led the defense with 9 solo tackles and 7 assists.

Wally Laming — Red Hawk of week

Coach Roland Pakonen has selected Wally Laming as the Red Hawk of the week for his efforts in the game against Frankenmuth Friday.

Laming led the team with nine solo tackles and seven assists from his linebacker position. On offense he made 14 yards in four carries and blocked well.

FRANKENMUTH'S superior height was evident on this rebound. Kelly Winter has good position but the taller Frankenmuth rebounder goes up to take the ball.

Eagles roll over Hawk girls, 68-38

Frankenmuth High School showed Cass City Red Hawk fans why they have been defending Thumb B Basketball champs for the past three years Monday by soundly whipping the Hawk girls, 68-38.

The game was little more than a workout for Muth's veteran squad... a light drill on their way to another Conference title.

Frankenmuth used their regulars for less than a half in turning back Cass City.

Coach Lloyd Schinnerer's charges did all they could to try and stem the charge. But Cass City has no one to compare with Ruth List, the Eagles' flashy guard and no height to compare with Muth's forward wall.

The visitors used their regulars the first quarter and most of the third quarter. After that the reserves took over.

At the half the score was 36-21 in favor of the visitors.

Cass City's Kim Witherspoon played well for Cass City from a guard position and the Hawks showed several quick guards that could become factors in the years ahead.

The Junior Varsity loss to the Eagles was probably harder for the fans to take than the varsity defeat. That's because the Hawks led the Eagles by as much as 12 points in the final quarter before losing, 44-42.

Coach Terri Krueger cleared her bench with the lead and when she shifted back to the regulars with a three-point lead it proved too little, too late to stem the winners' rally.

Ladies end golf season

The Ladies League of Rolling Hills Golf Course ended a very successful season Wednesday, Sept. 14, with a banquet at Charmont.

After enjoying a cocktail hour and dinner the awards for the season were presented. Flight winners were:

1st flight: 1) Harriet Richards, 2) Mary Hutchinson, 3) Betty Carmer, Nan Bauer and Toby Weaver.

2nd flight: 1) Linda Herron, 2) Dolly Taylor, 3) Sandy Scott.

3rd flight: 1) Linda Marshall, 2) Jan Christner, 3) Ann Anderson.

4th flight: 1) Doris Jones, 2) Ruth Grassmann, 3) Carol Ware.

Tournament winners were: 1st flight - Esther Reagh, first; Betty Carmer, runner up.

2nd flight - Dolly Taylor, first; Linda Marshall, runner up.

3rd flight - Linda Helwig, first; Ann Henderson, runner up.

4th flight - Ruth Grassmann, first; Rufine Nielsen, runner up.

One of the most coveted awards, most improved golfer, went to Linda Marshall who took 9 strokes from her handicap and moved from 3rd flight to 2nd for the tournament. Nell Maharg and Linda Herron won honorable mention.

Winners of the ringer awards were Mary LaPeer, Mary Rabideau, Linda Marshall, Doris Jones and Carol Ware.

Dolly Taylor, chairman of the nominating committee presented the slate of officers for 1978. The slate was accepted and the new officers for 1978 are:

Esther Reagh, chairman; Linda Marshall, vice-chairman; Norma Wallace, secretary; Gene Palmer, treasurer.

Flight winners plus past chairman make up the board.

Liberal salmon rules in effect on Cass

Fishermen are reminded that the Natural Resources Commission has designated liberalized salmon fishing areas on 15 Michigan streams from Sept. 1 - Dec. 31.

Included is the Cass River from the Caro Dam to its mouth.

At these locations, fishing is limited to the use of artificial or natural baits with unweighted double or treble-pointed hooks not to exceed 1/4 inch from point to shank, or with unweighted single-pointed hooks not to exceed a half inch from point to shank.

Foul-hooked coho, chinook and other Pacific salmon may be retained as part of the five creel limit.

Adjust to your surroundings —learn to take life as it comes.

THERE'S WELL OVER 30 pounds of trout displayed here. The fish were caught in about 2 hours wading off shore at Port Austin. The fish bit despite a thunderstorm last Friday morning. The catch included 4 browns, a splake and a lake trout. From left, Dick Szarapski and Joe Viney, both of Cass City.

High school completion course

Registration to end Sept. 30

Registration for the Caro and Unionville-Sebewaing high school completion programs is in its final stages.

Any adult who is still interested in earning their high school diploma is encouraged to register as soon as possible. Final day for registration is Sept. 30.

In order to permit a greater number of adults to attend classes, Caro and USA offer child care services. While parents attend classes, a certified elementary teacher will be on hand to supervise and provide educational and fun activities. There is also a "ride board" in operation to aid persons needing transportation to classes.

Caro area residents should call 673-3166, ext. 241 and people living in the USA area should call 674-8718. Registration hours are from 8:30 a.m.-10 p.m., Monday through Thursday, and 8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m., Fridays in Caro and 6-9:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday, in Unionville. No high school completion courses are offered in Cass City.

A wide range of classes have been scheduled at both locations. Classes have been held for several weeks now but students should have little trouble catching up. "The teachers expect some late arrivals through the end of September and plan accordingly," says Dorland Kuntz who is the counselor for both programs.

Classes have a relaxed atmosphere and each is specifically tailored to the needs and interests of an adult student. In order to make classes more relevant, there will be a number of field trips and guest speakers for all classes. In addition, a basic math and adult reading class are available to those who need to improve on these very necessary skills.

Students will still be able to enroll free through Sept. 30. Those entering after that date must pay a $20 fee for each class per semester.

Breathing

The Saginaw Valley Region of the Michigan Lung Association's Breathing Club for adults suffering from emphysema, bronchitis and asthma will meet Thursday, Sept. 29, 7:30-9 p.m., at St. Mary's Hospital, Room W-140, Saginaw.

Debbie Broecker finds farm courses different in Colombia's private schools

Debbie Broecker probably knows more about coffee than she cares to. After all, she has seen it from a crop growing on a tree transformed into something to drink.

Her first-hand experience with coffee was in Colombia, a country she found is difficult to get into, but even harder to get out of.

The 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Broecker of Hadley Road, Decker, was in the South American country from Feb. 15 until August.

She was a participant in the Future Farmers of America international exchange program.

It was her second overseas journey in the FFA program. About one week after graduating from Cass City High School in June, 1976, she left for Germany where she spent eight months living on dairy farms.

She had wanted to go to Colombia since meeting some Future Farmers of America members who were visiting the United States a few years ago.

Apparently because of age, FFA officials wouldn't let her go there the first time she applied. The second time she applied, last December, she received permission.

Her first problem was in getting into Colombia — she had to wait three days in Washington, D.C., before she could get a visa.

Her stay in Colombia was at a school outside of the town of Restrepo, which was run by the National Coffee Growers of Colombia.

The school, and many others like it, which charge tuition, provide academic and agricultural training for children of farmers.

The school had grades 7-10, but the age range of students was 10-22. It might be several years from the time a student would finish the sixth grade until he could go on to the seventh, Miss Broecker explained.

Students can attend a government school up to the 10th grade, if they choose.

Those attending the coffee growers school lived within 15 miles and either walked or caught a bus each day.

From 7:30 a.m. - noon, Monday through Saturday, the students studied various academic subjects. From 2-5 p.m., Monday through Friday, they worked on agricultural projects.

The students pick one project per year — growing coffee trees, tomatoes or raising beef cattle, rabbits, or bees.

The produce or animals were sold by the school, which then paid the students. In addition to individual projects, all students had to study coffee growing.

Miss Broecker attended Spanish and some other classes, taught an English class, and helped in home economics and with agricultural projects.

Of the approximately 200 students, only about 30 were girls. Home economics was the only course they took that the boys didn't.

English was a popular subject, the rural Decker resident said. "Every kid that talked to me wants to come to the United States some day."

The teen-ager lived the first two months at the school, then moved in with a family she met which had four children going there. In addition to the four, the family had two other children, a foster child, and one daughter-in-law at home.

By rural Colombian standards, with their 20 acres of coffee trees, the family was relatively well off.

Their five-bedroom mud home had wood floors, running water, electricity, and a television set.

The family did not own a car. There are bicycles, horses and buses in rural Colombia, but the main form of transportation is walking.

"I did a lot of walking, believe me," Debbie said.

The more typical Colombian farmer where she lived had only 3-4 acres of coffee trees, enough to provide them with the essentials for living but "not a good living."

Many of the rural mud homes had dirt floors and no electricity.

The typical Colombian breakfast consisted of rice and a processed drink mix that looked like brown sugar mixed with water.

Lunch and dinner consisted of fried bananas, rice, beans, and coffee.

In the highlands where she lived, the main crops are coffee, tomatoes, and sugar cane. In the valleys are grown tobacco, cotton, soybeans, navy and kidney beans, corn, barley and oats.

With a year-round warm climate because Colombia is close to the Equator, farming takes place throughout the year.

One disappointment for her was she didn't get to travel very much while there. She and the director of the school didn't get along and he wouldn't give her permission to travel.

The director also neglected to tell her that after being in the country a month, she needed to register with the government so she could later get an exit visa.

"If I could have spoken Spanish, I think I would have been okay," she said. Unfortunately, she couldn't at first.

It took her about a month before she could communicate and by the time she left, she was fluent in the language.

She planned to leave in June but couldn't because of the problem with her exit papers, so went to Cali, the state capital.

She spent a week there in an effort to get the matter straightened out. The school director didn't like her being gone a week and didn't want to be bothered any more, so about a month before she left Colombia, she switched to another Coffee Growers school, in Sevilla, about four hours drive away from Restrepo.

The director at the new school was very helpful. "I could still be there if it wasn't for him," Miss Broecker said.

With his help, she finally received her exit papers July 28 and returned home a few days later.

Other than that unpleasant experience, she said the only thing she didn't like was "they didn't have hot water, but you can't ask for everything."

What she especially liked were the people. "The people were so nice and so friendly. They tried to help you out every way they could."

As for the future, Debbie plans to keep working the evening shift at Walbro, saving her money so she can some day go to Michigan State University to study agriculture.

And as evidenced by her muddy boots the day she was interviewed, she also plans to keep working with her parents, three brothers, and one sister on the family beef, hog, and cash crop farm.

Senior citizen classes being offered

Caro Community Services are offering a new program especially for senior citizens. The program is free of charge and is open to all senior citizens, not just those living in Caro.

"We are sure this program will appeal to senior citizens," said Erlind Nordstrom, assistant community services director. "We have done an interest survey at both the Senior Commons and the Historical Center. The classes we are offering were based on this survey. We received a lot of support from the people at both places."

Courses include dance, arts and crafts, and plant care. They will be held afternoons and evenings at the Senior Commons and the Historical Center. Registration is this Wednesday through Friday. Classes will begin the week of Monday, Sept. 26.

For more information about class offerings and registration times, please call the Community Services Office at 673-3166, extension 241.

Farm tax guide ready

A free 64-page booklet dealing with the many tax situations faced by farmers is available from most Internal Revenue Service offices or by calling the IRS.

"Farmer's Tax Guide," IRS Publication 225, covers numerous tax facets of agriculture, including crop destruction, sod sales, drought sales, poultry purchases and the Federal Highway Use Tax, according to the IRS.

Also included in the publication are instructions for use by farmers in completing Form 1040 and related schedules, a listing of the important tax dates which affect farmers during the course of the year, and several useful tips on how a good record keeping system can help a farmer insure that he or she takes advantage of all legal deductions.

Seek resource solutions

The 1978 Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) probably will place emphasis on enduring solutions to existing conservation or environmental problems which cause a reduction in the productive capacity of the nation's land and water resources, according to Vernon L. Kretzschmer, chairman of the Michigan Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

This year, there will be two meetings scheduled at the county level in conjunction with the development of the 1978 ACP.

The first meeting will be to identify and place priorities on the major soil and water conservation problems for the county. Local U.S. Department of Agriculture officials and groups interested in agricultural conservation will be invited to attend these county development meetings, according to Kretzschmer.

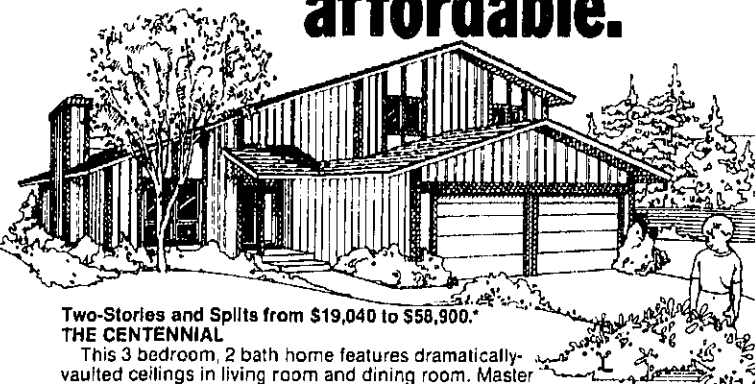

Following this meeting, there will be a regular ACP development meeting at which time the county development group will select the ACP practices which will be used to provide cost-share assistance in dealing with the soil and water conservation problems on farm land, identified at the earlier meeting.

Kretzschmer said farmers will be advised at a later date regarding the practices and provisions that will be available under the 1978 ACP for their county.

Information on the amount of funding available for cost-sharing with farmers for soil and water conservation practices under the 1978 ACP will be released later.
