

MILITARY SALUTE -- A six-gun salute, with the rifle fired three times, was part of the Memorial Day service held in Elkland cemetery following the parade. Jack Esau was master of ceremonies, Rev. Timothy Teall of the First Baptist church gave the address, and Mrs. William Anker, a Gold Star Mother, laid a wreath while Annie Klinkman gave a prayer.

Snover youth rescued from near drowning

Dan Morden is lucky to be alive and if it wasn't for some quick action by a couple of young men Sunday, he wouldn't be.

Morden, 19, of 1690 Bulgreen Road, Snover, was revived by two rescuers after almost drowning in Foster's gravel pit on Argyle Road, two miles west of Argyle. The incident took place about 4 p.m.

After being revived, he was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital, where he was reported in fair condition Wednesday morning.

According to the Sanilac County Sheriff's Department, several persons were swimming in the gravel pit when someone noticed Morden was missing.

He was discovered at the bottom. Four persons dove in to pull him to shore: Brian Carper, 16, and Keith Delong, 21, both of Mushroom Road, Snover; Gilbert Ramirez, 18, of Shabbona, and Andy Limberger, 16, of Sebawing.

Carper and DeLong then administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Morden was breathing by the time deputies arrived. He was then taken to the hospital.

INSURANCE

Two bids were received for the complete insurance package for the village, for vehicles, workers' compensation, special and multi-peril, umbrella liability, and two minor insurance items.

Harris-Hampshire Agency submitted a bid of $21,154 and Lawrence Insurance Agency submitted a bid of $28,506. Bid specifications required the bidders to have an office in Cass City. The amounts bid are annual premiums for a three-year period. The two bids were not comparable in all respects, but on those items which were directly comparable, Harris-Hampshire had the lower figures.

The council then voted by voice vote to accept the firm's bid, with Councilman Dick Hampshire abstaining. The approved motion also directs the finance committee to look into adding some additional coverage to cover some excluded items in the new policy plus increasing the amount of some coverage.

Although not directly comparable as some coverage was increased, the insurance package cost the village $15,250 last year.

Seed and Huron Streets are both being opened to through traffic as part of the street rebuilding program now underway financed with federal public works funds.

Craig protested that residents along the street didn't want it opened. "Why open it up at all? There's no pressing need to open it," he proclaimed.

He argued that the additional revenue the village will receive from the state for local road maintenance if it is opened will be more than offset by additional maintenance costs because of increased traffic.

Avery commented, "It's nice and quiet as it is. I'm wondering whether it will be a hot rod race track when they get done with it."

Council members responded in various ways: Opening the street will make it easier for snow plows and other street maintenance vehicles, which no longer will have to be turned around on the narrow street; to be eligible for state local street funds, the street has to be opened; when it was built, there wasn't an Ale Street extension through the park; and it would be precedent setting if it were kept closed.

Finally, village President Lambert Althaver pointed out that opening of the two streets was included in the plans for the street rebuilding program approved by the council last year.

With no council members siding with the Seed Street residents, that ended the discussion.

Council in busy session

Residents futile protest opening of Seed Street

The Cass City Village Council Tuesday night stuck by its previous decision to open Seed Street through to Ale Street, despite a request from some residents that it remain a dead-end street.

Other action at the meeting included awarding of bids for insurance and installation of curb and gutter on Church and Nestles Streets.

Seed Street residents Thomas Craig and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Avery were present to protest the opening of their street, which presently dead ends at Ale Street as it runs through the park.

OTHER BUSINESS

The offer of the Cass City State Bank to sell its parking lot behind its soon to be vacated building was rejected, however, the bank was asked to consider renting the lot to the village.

Dale Mills expressed interest in buying the old village landfill property, last used several years ago, located off Elmwood Road where the north and east branches of the Cass River begin. It is about three acres in size.

Council members decided they didn't want to sell as the property might tie in to the close-by nine acres the village owns if the land is ever converted into a river-front park.

Mills pointed out the old landfill is badly in need of covering over as much of the trash dumped there is exposed.

STREET WORK

The bid of Lasky Construction of Bad Axe of $7,770 was accepted for installation of curb and gutter on Church Street between Weaver and Nestles Streets and along Nestles between Church and Main Street.

It was the only bid submitted. Included is installation of two catch basins and rebuilding of another.

the cost could be two mills higher again next year.

A word of caution. Don't assume that because of the cost that taxes will increase. Given normal adjustments in the state aid formula, Supt. Don Crouse says that he feels that the district can get by on the present 20 mills for operating.

That doesn't include the special .9 mill that will be voted on this month for a special enrichment program.

The 20 mills for operation is among the lowest in the Thumb and in the State.

Cost will increase again in the third year, but it is hard to pinpoint how much. The agreement calls for a cost of living raise of from 6 to 8 percent.

Since the agreement was signed near the end of the fiscal year the cost of salary for this year can be pinpointed.

In 1976-77 total teacher salaries were $1,029,893. With the new pact they total $1,112,188 for 1977-78. Included in the above costs are payments under the Federal Title I program of $25,143 in 1976-77 and $43,214 for the current school year.

It's impossible to more than estimate the increase cost of the pact for the next two school years because of increment pay for years of service to the school and the increased cost of fringes.

But a very minimum figure would be a jump of $90,000 for 1978-79 and $95,000 for the final year of the agreement.

Based on the complicated State Aid formula a mill of local taxes nets the district about $50,000 in extra revenue.

Under the new schedules the salary schedule minimums and maximums for 1978-79 are:

With a BA degree, $10,112 to $16,300 after 12 years. With a MA degree, $10,647 to $17,567 after 10 years. Also increased about the same percentages as the regular salaries was pay for extra-curricular activities. Salaries range from $1,190 for basketball and football head coaches to $35 for handling the national honor society.

Colleen Stafford mingles with stars

Colleen Stafford will be playing a geisha girl, a singer, and a geisha.

Real life, she is a mother and a singer. As for the opera, there's a first time in everything.

Usually, it all will be for the first time. In early June, 3-year-old Cass Cityan will be playing a geisha, a singer, and a geisha in three operas in Midland, the first time she has ever performed in an opera. She also will sing in a fourth, consisting of songs from different operas.

Three operas are being staged as part of what is called an annual arts festival in Midland. Entitled "Midland," the first event will run from June 3-18.

Stafford is director of choir at the First Presbyterian Church, a position she has held for 2 1/2 years. In 1976, she was director of the Cass City Bicentennial Choir.

A NATIVE OF Warren, Ohio, Mrs. Stafford studied voice at the University of Michigan for two years, starting in 1963. Then, "I sort of got socially conscious. It seemed I had many more important things to do."

She transferred to Wayne State University in Detroit, which she attended part time while first being employed as a welfare caseworker. She later ran a day care center.

She married David Stafford in 1968. They came here in 1970, where he is area representative for the Michigan Education Association. They have three children, Jessica, 6, Jeremy, 5, and Jonathan, 3.

Mrs. Stafford resumed her college studies last fall at Saginaw Valley State College, attending three days a week. She expects to receive her degree in voice in December.

Since fall, 1976, she also has been studying with Midland voice teacher Charlene Peterson.

It was Ms. Peterson who suggested her student audition for the Midland operas.

She went to two auditions in Detroit, didn't expect to be selected, but she was. Rehearsals started May 15.

SINCE THEN SHE HAS been maintaining a killing pace. Rehearsals run six days a week--the day off varies from week to week--from 10 a.m. - 1 p.m., 2:30 - 5:30, and 7-10. It means leaving each morning at 8:30 and returning each night close to midnight. Motel accommodations are available for her in Midland but so far she has chosen to drive home each day.

She's being paid $100 a week, which doesn't even cover the costs of her babysitter and for gas.

Rehearsals have included classes in dance movement, stage movement, oriental movement (for the opera "Madame Butterfly"), costume, make-up, choreography, and voice lessons.

In between the rehearsals are private coaching.

"It's just fantastic," Mrs. Stafford said of her experience so far. "The schedule will kill you but it's worth it."

As mentioned, this is the first time Mrs. Stafford has ever performed in an opera, although some of voice training in the past has included opera.

Probably more difficult for the mezzo is the dancing, which is also a new experience. "Dancing is very hard for me."

The Cass Cityan is not performing with a bunch of amateurs. The stars include performers from the New York Metropolitan and New York City operas, plus as the lead in Madame Butterfly, the leading soprano of the Korean opera.

Other performers are from Florida and California, plus some full-time students from the University of Michigan. A fellow member of the chorus finished second in the New York Metropolitan Opera auditions and after the Midland program, is going to Italy to study opera.

As the only housewife-singer there, Mrs. Stafford finds some of her fellow performers, who have no permanent address and move from town to town to perform in different operas, are envious of her life style.

Rabbit Tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Last week Elmer Francis and his crew reroofed the Trinity United Methodist church on Houghton Street. The route to work walks me right by the building. I didn't see the boss on that steeply sloped roof but two of his workers were casually walking along it like it was a Sunday stroll through the park. I shivered just looking at them.

The beau of my eldest was a visitor for the holiday. His job is chief negotiator for the administration of a school district outside of Detroit. While here a friend came to visit him. They went sailing together on Saginaw Bay. He's a negotiator, too. Only he works for the union. That's really friendly competition.

I can't prove it department but I just know it's so. Quick now, what name that appears often in the news is spelled the most?

It's not the long names or the unusual names. If you write about Raymond Schweikart, for instance, you'll see the name almost automatically if you don't know. But a name like Stoutenberg slips in almost without thought. The kicker is that Stoutenberg is right, but so is Stutenberg... it depends on the family. Those are the names that make you reach for roll-on, the spray or the stick on warm summer days. Chances are you are right only half the time.

On these days of inflation there are few things you can buy for last year's prices.

One of them is the cost of swimming lessons and pool use. The program details are announced elsewhere in this issue. The pool opened Saturday and business was brisk, spurred by the hot weather.

The political pot is boiling. With the June 6 deadline drawing near, unofficially there are three persons who have announced that they will seek the county commissioner's job vacated by Maynard McConkey. Two are Republicans: Royce Russell and Cliff Ryan. The third is a Democrat, Dick Eria.

New judges ok'd for Thumb counties

Tuscola county gained but lost last Thursday when the state legislature approved legislation adding 18 new circuit judges and five new district judges in the state. Governor Milliken signed the bill into law late Thursday night. Candidates now have until June 6 to file for the August primary. New judges will take office Jan. 1.

The new law adds a third circuit judge to the 40th circuit, which consists of Tuscola and Lapeer counties.

That was contrary to the wishes of the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners, which wanted Tuscola to be made into a separate circuit with its own judge. Lapeer county, where the present two circuit judges live, would retain them.

In contrast, the Huron County Board of Commissioners, which wanted to be split off from Sanilac county and have its own circuit judge, got its wishes. The two counties presently share a judge, who lives in Sanilac county.

State Rep. Loren Armbruster's efforts to make a separate circuit court district out of Tuscola county were up and down, but he ultimately lost.

As the bill came from the Senate, thanks to an amendment submitted by Sen. Alvin DeGrow, R-Pigeon, Tuscola was to get its own judge. Another DeGrow amendment that was approved divided Huron and Sanilac into separate circuits, each with its own judge.

In the House Judiciary Committee, Armbruster was successful in retaining the separate circuits for Lapeer and Tuscola, however, the committee voted to recombine Huron and Sanilac into a single circuit with two judges.

The bill then went to the House floor, where Rep. Quincy Hoffman, R-Applegate, introduced an amendment to make Huron and Sanilac into separate circuits. His amendment was approved, 81-16.

But Armbruster's efforts to make Tuscola into a separate circuit weren't successful.

Democratic Rep. Larry E. Burkhalter, whose district includes most of Lapeer county, introduced an amendment to repeal the Judiciary Committee's action, that is, to recombine the two counties into one circuit, with a third judge added.

He had the backing of House Speaker Bobby Crim of Davison, who persuaded some Democrats backing Armbruster to change their minds. The result was Burkhalter's amendment was approved on an almost straight party line vote, 55-39, with 55 the minimum needed for passage.

Because there were some differences between the Senate and House passed versions of the bill, the Tuscola-Lapeer controversy being one of them, the bill went to a conference committee composed of three House and three Senate members.

The compromise bill they reported back maintained the separate circuits for Huron and Sanilac, each with its own judge, and a combined Tuscola-Lapeer circuit with three judges.

It was approved 23-2 in the Senate. In the House, Armbruster led Republicans in an effort to reject the compromise. They lost, with the bill being approved 64-24.

The next step is up to the candidates. Tuscola County Probate Judge W. Wallace Kent Jr. has announced he will run for the new judgeship in the 40th circuit. Lapeer County District Judge John Spire, who announced several months ago his intentions to run, presumably will do so.

In Huron County, Bad Axe attorney M. Richard Knoblock and county Prosecutor Peter B. Capling are both running.

The added judges also present a financial problem for the county boards of commissioners involved. The state pays the major portion of the circuit judges' salaries, but counties must pay the remainder plus all other expenses, such as for a clerk, reporter, and bailiff, plus office space and for Tuscola, the possible need for an additional courtroom.

An estimate made last fall was that a third judge will mean $50,000 in additional expenses annually for Tuscola county, not including the cost of additional office space.

"If It Fitz..." Celebrity sack race

By Jim Fitzgerald

I was invited to celebrate Memorial Day by playing "celebrity games" on live TV.

The invitation came from Helen Love, the producer of "Kelly & Company" on Detroit Channel 7. She asked: "Wouldn't it be fun to compete with other local celebrities in playing old favorites like tug-of-war, sack races and other outdoor games?" No, it wouldn't be fun. Not for me. Sorry.

I guess it is an ego trip to be called a celebrity. But there is no denying that my claim to such a distinction is shaky at best. This was illustrated by the letter sent to me by producer Love. It was addressed to "Jim Fitzpatrick".

Perhaps the invitation wasn't intended for me at all. I would rather stay home than win a sack race under false pretenses. It would be embarrassing to accept a trophy with someone else's name engraved on it.

Even though I've never heard of him, it's entirely possible there's a celebrity in Detroit named Jim Fitzpatrick. Once you get beyond Mark "The Bird" Fidrych and TV anchor men who've been arrested for drunk driving, Detroit's celebrities are thin on fame. When local celebrities gather together to preen, it is not unusual for them to have never heard of each other.

Just the other day I sat at a table full of celebrities during a civic event in downtown Detroit. The celebrities were there to autograph a Celebrity Cookbook containing their favorite recipes. My contribution was the culinary secret to keeping all three slices of toast warm when preparing a triple-decker peanut butter and jam sandwich on a two-slot toaster.

The celebrity sitting on my left looked at me, and I looked at him. "I'll tell you which celebrity I am if you will tell me which celebrity you are," I said.

He said he was Herbert McFadden Jr., a Detroit city councilman. He also said his name was misspelled in the cookbook. I told him that wasn't as embarrassing as running in a celebrity race in someone else's sack.

And then I was asked to be celebrity auctioneer at a charity function for crippled children. I've never auctioned anything in my life, and I've never overcome my aversion to public speaking. But I've also never learned how to refuse to help crippled kids. I'm afraid if I say I'm too busy, Jerry Lewis will appear in a heavenly cloud and sincere me to death.

So I went to the auction, arriving early to learn how other celebrities coaxed for bids. Bob Allison was at the podium. He stars on the "Bowling for Dollars" TV show and is a genuine celebrity. He was being charming and an attractive woman in the front row was bidding eagerly for his wares.

"I hope that woman is as eager when I'm auctioning," I said to the man at the door.

"She is Allison's wife," the man explained.

Where was my wife when I needed her? Waiting safely in a nearby saloon where no one could relate her to the boob auctioneer. Oh well...

Memorial Day is for honoring the memory of people killed in wars. Their survivors should take flowers to cemeteries, not run in sack races. You would probably be impressed if I said patriotism is the reason you won't see me playing games with John Kelly and Marilyn Turner on Channel 7 this morning.

But that isn't the whole truth. There is also my disrespectful family. If I competed in a TV sack race, my wife and kids and grandkids and sisters would tune in, and they would bounce on the floor laughing.

They razz me enough whenever it is hinted that my name might be recognized beyond the limits of my backyard. They know me too well, and they know celebrities don't burp and wear holes in their underwear. It would be too much for them to see me fall out of a celebrity sack with Jim Fitzpatrick's name on it. And besides, there is the other part of the whole truth. On Memorial Day, at least, it would seem proper to forget the celebrities and to remember the millions of obscure young men who died in wars started by a few old men - who were celebrities.

Today's the only one of its kind - live it constructively.

Nothing would satisfy those who are habitually discontented.

MEASLES SHOTS - Sue Hendrick didn't care to look when she got her measles shot last Wednesday afternoon from nurse Mildred Feigner. She was only one of 56 Cass Cityans to get shots at the high school, versus an average of 170 at each clinic given by the Thumb District Health Department at each of the county's high schools.

The Haire Net

I'm out of step with most of us.

I just can't get excited about special days. Bluntly, they don't make much sense to me.

Memorial Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day, President's Day, Thanksgiving all fall in the same boat.

An excuse for a vacation. There's nothing wrong with an extra day off. I'm not knocking that, believe me. The gripe is the excuse. Memorial Day was created as a day for remembering our war heroes and our personal heroes, our loved ones.

What's wrong with that? Nothing, except why do we need a special day to do it.

It's always been the contention here that if you have to have a special day set aside to remember you really don't care that much anyway.

The real remembering doesn't take a parade down Main Street. The real tribute isn't listening to a speech in a park. The real emotion isn't worn on your shirt sleeve like a badge.

It's deep down inside and wrenching at your gut every so often. It's remembering the good times, the bad times, the associations that dim but are still there, recalled at the oddest moments and by the most trivial of triggers.

It may be that there are some of you out there who question the real worth of several of our national holidays. But Thanksgiving? I hear you ask.

Sure. Thanksgiving. If you buy the reasoning about Memorial Day you should buy it about Thanksgiving.

Sitting at a dining room table carving up a turkey isn't real thanks. Again, real emotion.

A better way would be to vote at the next election. Give a helping hand to cleaning up our environment. Teach a child a little of our heritage.

It's always been the firm belief here that there is real worth in a gift brought home simply because you know it's wanted.

A gift like that shows that you did it because you wanted to and because you care.

Not because it was a special day and you remember because of the day, not because of the person.

I guess all of this is unusual. I'm sure that at the very least the judgement that produced it is suspect.

If so, remember that I warned you at the beginning that this would be out of step with most of you.

I am, and I'm glad.

AROUND THE FARM Experimental farm plots

By Don Kebler

If you happen to notice a 15-foot strip a half-mile long between corn and barley, on the southwest corner of Ringle and Fairgrove Roads - the crop is buckwheat.

Why this buckwheat? This is part of a crop rotation study to improve soil structure and increase crop yields in a four-year period.

William Kirk is our co-operator on this research and he will be plowing the buckwheat at pre- or early blossom time as a green manure crop. In August the strip will be planted to rye to be plowed-down for additional green manure the spring of 1979.

The second 15-foot strip is barley seeded to alfalfa, the alfalfa to be grown for two years before being plowed under. The third strip will be corn for three years followed by navy beans the fourth year. The alfalfa variety is Weevichek supplied by Farm Bureau Services.

With the mounting interest in soybean production we have a twenty variety soybean plot on the southeast corner of Dutcher and Colling Roads.

Charles F. Witkovsky is assisting and cooperating with these plots which were planted May 24. Later in the season we plan to have a tour of the plots. Providers of seed are Great Lakes Hybrids, Jacques, Northrup King, Stanton Seed and Supply, Farm Bureau Services and Osgrow companies.

A third research project is designed to determine if wheel-track tillage will reduce soil compaction and give higher navy bean yields. All tillage operations - fitting, spraying, herbicide incorporation planting and cultivating will be done in the first tractor wheel tracks made at fitting time. This first of four years' research is with the cooperation of the Russell Farms with the field across the road from Leonard Russell's home on Darbee Road.

I'm noticing more and more faded-out, slow-moving-vehicle emblems on farm machinery and even farm machinery with no emblems on them. Emblems in this condition are not effective and should be replaced. I know they cost money. However, the cost is slight to what it would be to a loss of lives, let alone the machine and automobile when a collision occurs.

Rehearsal time for resolutions is over, now comes the real test.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters

It's been a long two years of waiting for this 13-year-old boy from Gagetown. He would like a Big Brother who enjoys outdoor sports, and woodworking. He's a very nice and intelligent young man, who would work well with most any man.

Being shy isn't fun, and this 13-year-old girl from Millington needs a special friend to help her overcome it. She's a very sweet girl, and likes horses and art.

This little eight-year-old is eager for the companionship of a man, as he seldom sees his father. He likes all sports, fishing, hunting, and all the other outside activities. If you live in the Vassar area, why not give him a try?

The friendship of a man is needed for this shy 11-year-old. He's always been around women, and has missed many of the fun boy activities. He's from Millington and enjoys hunting, baseball, and music.

If you're partial to older boys, how about this 14-year-old to share your interests? This sharp guy from Fairview enjoys all outdoor activities, sports, and fishing.

Midland opera selects Stafford

Stafford, who plays a member of the geisha chorus. The opera is the story of a geisha who marries a U.S. Navy lieutenant. She has his child, he leaves her, then later returns with his new American wife to take the baby home with him. The geisha commits suicide. The third opera is the first by Charles Strouse, who has written the musicals "Bye, Bye Birdie," "Applause," and "Annie." Performances will be at 2 p.m. June 11 for its world premiere and 11 a.m. June 17.

It's sort of an opera within an opera, with a group of singers in a rehearsal hall rehearsing an opera. Mrs. Stafford is one of the singers. The main performer wonders, "What is there to sing about?" After exploring the meaning of life, the singers conclude "you sing because you're living."

Scenes from various operas will be performed at 8:15 p.m. June 13 and 2 p.m. June 18. The scene Mrs. Stafford will perform is sung in French. The three complete operas are being performed in English.

With most of her training in sacred music, she hopes some day to be full-time choir director of a large church. "I'm getting so much out of it I think I can apply (to choir work)," she said of her current opera experience.

In addition to the educational benefits, Mrs. Stafford has discovered one other advantage to her short-lived opera career. Between the dancing and not enough time to always eat a regular meal, her waistline has declined two inches.

Ticket information about the operas and other Matrix Midland programs can be obtained by calling toll-free (800) 292-4257.

Two fire runs aren't fires

Elkland township firemen made two runs last week, but neither instance proved to be a fire.

At 5:35 p.m. Friday, they were dispatched to Croft-Clara Lumber on Main Street. Fire Chief Jack Hartwick later reported the high temperature that day apparently set off a heat sensor, which in turn triggered the siren at the fire hall.

At 11:25 a.m. Saturday, firemen were dispatched to the Elsie Anthes home on S. Seeger Street. Hartwick said she was cooking some prunes on the stove and they overheated, setting off a smoke detector in the house. She then called the fire department.

Trap shooting teams needed

Gateway Trap Shooters will hold a meeting Tuesday, June 6, at 6:30 p.m. at the grounds 2½ miles west of Unionville. Purpose of the meeting will be to organize teams for a summer Wednesday twilight trap league.

All shooters are invited to register as three-man teams or individually to be placed on a team. Register early by contacting R. McCollum, Unionville or W.W. Partlo, Akron.

MICHIGAN WEEK PROGRAM -- Fourth grade students at Campbell Elementary School last Wednesday afternoon put on a program for parents explaining, sometimes in song, the virtues of their state. Last week was Michigan Week.

Tell mental hospital needs

In the wake of reports of patient abuse in the state's mental institutions, a special governor's task force has reported more and better trained staff and smaller institutions are needed to minimize abuse and neglect.

Wilbur Cohen, chairman of the task force, said the panel substantiated the occurrence of both abuse and neglect at state institutions and concluded the abuse will continue as long as such large facilities are maintained in the state.

"A big institution breeds frustration, breeds lashing out by patients, breeds reactions by staff. No matter how much money we pour into the system, we should not build and maintain such large institutions," he said.

The report, of no less than 25 recommendations, endorsed the Department of Mental Health's policy for smaller institutions and for more community-based services.

Cohen said abuse at the Plymouth Institution for the Mentally Retarded resulted both because of the system and because of individual transgressions. He acknowledged abuse at Plymouth was "covered up," but not in an organized fashion but by individuals not complying with regulations.

The task force said its investigation found serious deficiencies in disciplinary actions, medical care, programs, procedures and institutional neglect.

The panel added the recommendations of a separate special panel within the Department of Mental Health would cost an estimated $85 million per year with about $10 million being required for start-up costs, and another $2.5 million to carry out a federal order for more staff.

Governor William G. Milliken said he could not offer a commitment of a level of additional funding, but said priorities may have to be reset both within the department and throughout state government to free up the needed funds.

Ray Schweikart, owner of Cass City Lanes on Weaver Street, told the council he would like additional zoning for his property of light industrial so that his building can be sold in the future for continued use as a bowling alley or for conversion into a small shop. It presently is zoned for general business.

He was advised to put his request in writing to the village planning commission.

the sentencing bill to a final vote, declaring, "half a loaf is better than no loaf at all."

Recommendations of the task force also included the establishment of separate, well-defined criteria of abuse and neglect and the training program for direct care staff.

Employees of the institutions were further encouraged to cooperate with investigations of abuse and neglect. Also, the panel urged greater involvement of parents of patients, through citizens advisory committee, parents associations, meetings, workshops and classroom observation and work.

DRUG BILLS GO TO GOVERNOR

Taking direct aim on the drug pusher, legislation has been sent to the governor's desk for signature.

The legislation makes life imprisonment mandatory for anyone convicted of manufacturing, delivering or possession of more than 23 ounces of heroin. Persons convicted of possession, manufacture or delivery of 8 to 23 ounces would get mandatory sentences of 20 to 30 years imprisonment and sentences of 10 to 20 years, or probation for life, for from 1½ to 8 ounces.

Part of the total drug package remains in the Senate Judiciary Committee where there are objections to giving wiretap authority for drug-related investigations. Sponsor Rep. Paul Rosenbaum (D-Battle Creek) said the wiretap provision was needed by law enforcement agencies to make the entire package effective.

Last February, Rosenbaum insisted the package was worthless without the wiretap provisions.

When all efforts failed to dislodge the wiretap bill, Rosenbaum, who is running for the U.S. Senate on his anti-crime stance, brought

HEALTH TIPS

Warts can be a nuisance

By Frank Chappell,
American Medical Association

A wart is a virus infection of the outer layer of the skin.

Ordinary warts aren't harmful. Often they will eventually go away, even without treatment. They will not become cancerous. Children get warts more often than adults. Some persons seem to be immune and never get them. Warts are contagious and can be transmitted from one person to another. Scratching warts can cause them to spread.

Unless the wart is so located that it is constantly irritated, such as in the beard or scalp, or is unsightly, it often is just as well to leave it alone. If your wart bothers you, for either physical or cosmetic reasons, ask your doctor to remove it.

Warts can occur on any part of the skin, but most often appear on the hands and fingers and on the soles of the feet. Plantar warts, those on the soles, cause the most trouble, the American Medical Association points out.

Plantar warts can be pinhead size, or an inch or two in diameter. If they occur on the pressure points of the foot, they can be exceedingly painful. They push inward with each step. Plantar warts usually are so uncomfortable, sometimes disabling, that treatment is required.

Plantar warts can be very stubborn, and your doctor

may need to try several different treatments. Common treatments are electro-surgery, which destroys the wart with an electric current, and freezing with dry ice or liquid nitrogen. Another common treatment is to burn out the wart with an acid. Sometimes radio-therapy is used. Sometimes it is necessary to try a combination of several treatments.

About half of all warts

disappear spontaneously.

We don't know why, but through the years many physicians have reported successes with some form of suggestion therapy. Some people believe that warts can be "charmed" away. If the patient has faith in a certain treatment for warts

— no matter how ridiculous or unscientific — sometimes the treatment will work.

Research still is going on on warts. They are often a nuisance and a definite cure

would be most welcome.

Your Neighbor says

Summer is my favorite season

Hot weather arrived last week. That was okay for Lona Auvil. "After that cold weather, summer is nice for a change," she said.

She doesn't mind the hot weather. "I like it a lot. It's better than putting on a lot of clothes in the winter."

Summer is her favorite time of year because "there is a lot more things to do in summer." Among her favorite summer activities are swimming and riding horses and motorcycles.

Although Mrs. Auvil doesn't like to sit out in the sun to get a tan, "I like to work out in the sun," such as when she was helping her grandmother plant flowers last week.

She and her husband live in an apartment Leach Street.

Chairman Kennedy says

Service to be maintained in split health districts

Split of the Thumb District health Department into separate departments for Tuscola and Lapeer Counties probably won't have an effect on present services.

"I think we will be able to keep our services at the present level," according to Kenneth Kennedy of Millington, Tuscola county commissioner and chairman of the present two-county health board.

The cost to Tuscola county of maintaining its own health department will likely increase, but not necessarily due to the split.

County commissioners in the two counties voted last week to each set up their own departments.

The idea goes back to May, 1976 when the health board voted to do so, effective Jan. 1, 1977.

The action was suspended when the department's health officer, who would have had to oversee the dividing of the department, resigned, effective Jan. 1, 1977.

The department's medical director and director of nurses also later resigned to accept other positions.

Due to the administrative turmoil, the split was delayed but the motion to do so was never rescinded.

With all the administrative positions now filled, the health board resumed progress on the plan about 1 1/2 months ago. That led to the county boards voting last week to create their own departments.

THE CHANGE TAKES effect July 1, to be followed by a three-month transition period.

The next step will be for the two county boards to each appoint their own health boards to set policy for the new departments. Each board will have five members, composed of one doctor, probably three county commissioners, and one other member.

The reason for dividing the department, according to Kennedy, is primarily because of employee problems due to wages. The wage scale for Lapeer county employees differs from that in Tuscola, thus there has been intensive pressure by health department employees in Lapeer for pay increases.

One result was a steady turnover in personnel there who left for higher paying jobs with health departments in the close-by more urbanized counties. "It's been nothing but a training ground," Kennedy said.

Another problem is that Lapeer county is part of the regional health planning agency for it and Genesee and Shiawassee counties while Tuscola belongs to the 14-county East Central Michigan Health Systems Agency.

Another coordination problem involves employees paid with federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds. The CETA funds are administered in Lapeer county by a Lapeer-Genesee-Shiawassee agency while in Tuscola, they are administered by the Thumb Area Consortium (Tuscola, Huron, and Sanilac counties).

Another advantage in separate departments, according to department Health Officer John Niederhauser, is in passage of health ordinances by the boards of commissioners in each county.

With separate departments, ordinances, such as for septic systems, can be drawn to more closely cover particular problems in one county. Now such ordinances must be broad enough to cover both counties. The new health boards will have to decide whether any present ordinances need changing.

CREATING SEPARATE county health departments won't mean a complete split. They will be "associated," meaning they will probably continue to share the present health officer, medical director, director of nurses, and environmental health director.

Kennedy expects the Michigan Department of Public Health won't give its okay to the creation of the separate departments without the four administrators serving both counties.

In addition, Niederhauser said the two counties might share the services of the office manager, substance abuse program coordinator, health educator, and bookkeeping and accounting department.

Tuscola county this year is contributing $135,000 of the health department's almost $1 million budget. Kennedy projects the amount will increase in 1979, despite the state as part of the new public health code probably increasing its contributions to health departments from the present 35 cents per capita to 65 cents.

The reason for the increase is that a Kellogg Foundation program ends July 1. The program paid half the wages of the medical director (total of $45,000 per year) and $9,000 of the health officer's salary (a total of $18,000 when the program started), in turn for which, the medical director served part-time on the faculty of the Michigan State University medical school. The state health department contributed an additional $7,000 to the program annually, which also ends July 1.

Need voiced center volunteers

Volunteers are being sought to help with the planning of the new county vocational education center, construction of which was approved by voters April 25.

There will be committees formed for each of the 24 skills to be taught at the center, to be constructed on the outskirts of Caro.

For instance, those on the auto mechanics committee will be asked to decide such things as what equipment is needed, space needs, and what specific types of training will be needed in the future.

Volunteers must be working or otherwise acquainted with the skill area, for instance, secretaries to serve on the stenographic committee. There will be 5-7 people on each committee.

Volunteers are needed for the following program committees: Agricultural production; agricultural mechanics; horticulture, landscaping, and greenhouse operation; general merchandising; nursing aide; health occupations; child care and guidance; food management; bookkeeping and accounting; data processing; stenographic; heating and air conditioning; body and fender repair; auto mechanics; commercial art; building trades; building maintenance; drafting; electrical occupations; electronics; graphic arts; machine shop; welding and cutting, and cosmetology.

Persons interested should contact Wayne Dillon, counselor and vocational director at Cass City High School, 872-2148, or Wayne Pratt, Tuscola Intermediate School District vocational education director, 673-2144 in Caro.

WHOOOPS -- Cass City Future Farmers of America members are, for the first time planting crops as a club project -- 32 acres of corn on school-owned property. Field preparation had to come to a temporary halt last Wednesday afternoon when a tractor on the way to pick up a rock got stuck and had to be towed out. The students, using borrowed equipment, are experimenting with both mold board and chisel plowing and with different varieties of seeds.

Labor law changes affect agriculture

Recent changes in state and federal labor laws affect most of Michigan's agricultural employers. A Michigan State University farm labor specialist suggests that the beginning of the new growing season is a good time to brush up on current laws.

Allen E. Shapley says the federal Social Security law is likely to affect almost all agricultural producers who hire labor. Employers who pay an employee $150 or more cash wages in the year or who hire an employee for 20 or more days during the year must withhold 6.05 percent of the employee's wages and pay an equal amount from their own income as Social Security tax. The only relevant change in this law from 1977 is the percentage withheld. Last year it was 5.85 percent.

Employers who regularly hire three or more employees at one time, or who have employed the same person for 35 hours or more per week for at least 13 weeks in the previous 52 weeks, must provide worker's compensation insurance for all employees who come under the act. The major change in this law since 1977 is in the employer rates, which have increased 26.9 percent. Employers with questions about this law should contact the Bureau of Worker's Compensation of the Michigan Department of Labor.

Since Jan. 1, 1978, employers who have 10 or more workers in each of 20 weeks, or who pay a $20,000 or larger cash payroll in a calendar quarter, have been required by Michigan law to provide unemployment insurance coverage for their employees.

Individuals performing certain services are excluded from coverage and cannot collect benefits, Shapley points out. These include students under age 18 who are working after school hours or during school vacations, registered crew leaders and members of their crews. Partners in a farm business and members of the employer's immediate family are also excluded.

For the first two years, an employer pays 3.4 percent of the first $6,000 in annual wages for each employee, or a maximum of $204 per employee. After the first two years of participation, the amount of tax an employer pays depends in part on the benefit claims made against his account.

Whether an agricultural employer must pay minimum wage to his workers depends primarily on the number of employees he has, Shapley says. "The federal minimum wage law applies to any farmer who hires 500 man-days of work done on his farm during any quarter of the preceding year," the specialist explains. "Five hundred man-days is about equal to seven full-time employees or 10 workers for 50 days."

The federal minimum wage for 1978 is $2.65, a 45-cent increase from the 1977 rate. Jan. 1, 1979, the minimum increases to $2.90. Farmers can hire full-time students at 85 percent of the minimum wage, but they must go through a lengthy and complicated application process to receive an exemption to do so.

Children under age 16 who work with their parents in harvesting crops and have traditionally been paid on a piece rate basis must be paid the same piece rate as the adults with whom they are working but need not be guaranteed the minimum wage.

Many farms too small to come under the federal wage law are covered by the state minimum wage law. Farmers who employ four or more employees between ages 18 and 65 at any time during the calendar year must comply with this law and pay employees at least $2.65 per hour, up from $2.20 last year. Jan. 1, 1979, this minimum will also be increased to $2.90.

Employees paid on a piece rate basis must be paid at least the established rates for those harvest operations for which rates have been set. The piece rates for 1978 will be 15.2 percent higher than the rates for 1977, Shapley notes.

"The state law applies only to adult employees," Shapley points out. "Employers not bound by the federal minimum wage law are permitted by the state law to pay lower wages to minors. The rationale behind this is that young people would find it very difficult to get any jobs at all if employers had to pay them the same wages as adults."

In the past, all farm work has been exempt from a state law requiring minors to have work permits. This may be changed by legislation which will take effect June 1, Shapley advises agricultural employers who are confused about youth employment to contact Wage and Hour Division, Michigan Department of Labor.

Economy has room for growth

The state's economy has a strong, resilient base and has substantial potential for renewed growth, according to a recent Department of Commerce report. But the report concluded that several initiatives are needed by government, labor and business to take advantage of the potential.

The federally-funded study identifies Michigan's strengths as having personal per capita income at a level 10 per cent higher than the national average, and being situated in the center of a 1,000-mile circle that contains 50 per cent of the total U.S. personal income generated each year.

The report also notes the state has a well-developed industrial base, a comparatively favorable energy picture and a highly trained work force.

Suggestions made by the one-year study include a new business advancement corporation to encourage participation of the sector in statewide economic development; state and local government support for urban land banks in economically depressed areas that have a shortage of industrial land suitable for development; and a new business information center in southeastern Michigan to small businesses with managerial training and technical and capital acquisition assistance.

In Cass City restaurants

Non-smokers not complaining

Either non-smokers in Cass City don't care if they sit next to smokers when they eat in restaurants or are too polite to complain.

It was April 1, 1977 that a new state law went into effect requiring all restaurants with a seating capacity of 50 or more to set aside non-smoking area.

According to the Michigan Lung Association, complaints about violations of the law, at least in spirit if not the letter of the law, have been numerous.

The four most common complaints, according to the association, are:

1) "The nonsmoking area is poorly located -- it's one booth completely surrounded by smokers."

2) "The nonsmoking area is not large enough."

3) "There is no predetermined nonsmoking area. Wherever you sit is called the nonsmoking area, if that's what you've requested. Then a sign is rushed in and plopped on your table designating it a nonsmoking area."

4) "Smokers puff defiantly in the nonsmoking section at my favorite hamburger joint -- the management never corrects them."

But if there have been any such complaints in Cass City, the complainers have been keeping the complaints to themselves.

CASS CITY PROBABLY has more restaurants than other towns its size. Starting at the Charmon on the west end and ending with Sherman's Restaurant on the east, there are nine restaurants in town.

However, there only is one restaurant that must comply with the law, the Charmon, which has about 100 seats in the main dining area.

One local restaurant has fewer than 50 seats in the main dining area but the banquet room in the rear puts it over the 50-seat mark, so may or may not have to comply with the law.

The Charmon has six tables next to each other designated as the non-smoking area, according to Jean Comment, wife of owner Clare Comment, but no one asks any more to sit there.

"When it (the law) got started," she said, "I would ask (customers) smoking or non-smoking, but there's so few who requested it, I got away from asking."

She didn't recall that anyone in the last several months has asked to sit in the non-smoking area.

She noted that many times when a mixed group comes to eat together, some smoke and some don't. Obviously, they are then going to sit together.

UNTIL RECENTLY, THE Colonial Inn had more than 50 seats, but now has less than that, as except for Friday nights, it is now open only for breakfast and lunch.

The restaurant still has its one table designated for non-smokers, but Evelyn Stilson said, "I've never had anyone ask yet (to use it)."

She also never has had complaints from non-smokers about persons smoking. "There's always a first time but we've never had any," she commented.

Pizza Villa only has room for 48 seats, but if anyone ever asks to sit in a non-smoking area, owner Maxine Loren is prepared. She will sit them on the east side of a low partition, where there is less air circulation. The area on the west side of the partition has better air circulation because of the doors and because the air conditioner is on that side.

She never has had any complaints from non-smokers about cigarette smoke. "I don't know if they think it's a losing battle or what," she said.

At Sherman's Restaurant, Erika Sherman recalled only one customer complaint about smoking -- from an asthma victim and the complaint was made before the law went into effect.

OTHER RESTAURANTS surveyed reported the same, no one has ever complained about smoking and customers come in and sit down without regard to who is smoking at what tables and who isn't.

There may be some customers who suffer in silence, though, at least in regards to cigar smoke.

At Sommer's Restaurant and Bakery, waitress Valerie Dodson said about once every three months someone will ask if there is a non-smoking area. No one has left when told there wasn't, as it isn't required to have one.

As for the customers not liking cigar smoke coming from another table, she said, "You can see it on their faces but they don't say anything."

AAUW hears guest painter

Members and guests of the Cass City branch of the American Association of University Women enjoyed an evening with an artist for the final meeting of the season, May 23, in the high school library.

The guest artist was Martha Hudson of Manistee, who demonstrated oil painting. Mrs. Hudson has been painting since 1964, and emphasized that there is nothing magic about painting -- it is a learned art. She was first a student and then a teacher.

The still life that Mrs. Hudson completed was raffled off. Mary Brown was the winner.

Mrs. Hudson is Linda Albee's mother.

During the business meeting preceding the program, three new officers were elected. Doris Rawson, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the following names: Ruth Ann Briggs, for first vice-president, Barbara Stickle for second vice-president, and Helen Baker for treasurer. The nominees were unanimously elected.

President Doty Scollon gave words of welcome to the new officers, and thanks and appreciation to the retiring officers: Linda Albee, first vice-president; Mary Brown, second vice-president, and Ann Craig, treasurer.

Marie Miller, chairman of the Reading Is Fundamental (RIF) program, announced that the final distribution of books will be May 25. Because of a $75 gift from the Community Chest, the program will have $350 for next year, and will be expanded accordingly.

Mrs. Scollon briefly reviewed the many activities of the club, the most recent being the awards presented to the outstanding senior girl athlete and the scholarship award, which this year went to Karen Wagg. She was an honored guest at the meeting.

Other guests were Esther Kirm, charter member and a past president, from Chelsea, Gladys Albee, Annette Pinney and Irene Dillman, all from Cass City. Hostesses for the evening were Ann Craig, Evelyn MacRae, Malvina Profit and Kathy Bauer.

Members were reminded of the used book sale to be held during the sidewalk sales in July.

New books at the library

THE HOLCROFT COVENANT, by Robert Ludlum (fiction). A dead German general's letter to his son reveals the existence of a hoard of millions that he and two other generals had diverted from the Nazi government with a view to making future amends to victims of the Holocaust. All that appears necessary is for the son to find the heirs of the other two generals and obtain their signatures.

TIME IN ITS FLIGHT, by Susan Schaeffer (fiction). The story of an American family living in Vermont, spanning the late 1870s to the present and focusing on the life-long love of a country doctor for his beautiful, unpredictable wife.

THE SINKIANG EXECUTIVE, by Adam Hall (fiction). When British secret agent Quiller even a score by killing a Russian agent on the subway, his superiors are disturbed by this not-in-the-line-of-duty killing. He is given one last chance to redeem himself - a very dangerous mission into Russia, a mission which he suspects may be the Bureau's way of getting rid of an embarrassment.

Action brisk in SanCass league

Cass City teams have found the going tough in the opening rounds of the SanCass fastpitch league as the Charmont and Hillaker Auctioneers both lost two games played.

Thursday, May 25, Bay Port Merchants edged Charmont in a tight game, 2-1. Clayton Hoffman edged Al Romig for the victory.

R. Gunden and D. Garcho, with two singles, led the winners while Tom Smentek, John Hacker and Paul Bliss paced Charmont.

In the late game Tuesday, May 23, Yale Rubber exploded in the third inning for seven runs to roll over Hillaker's, 12-2, in a game called after five innings.

Denny Rich, with a double and triple, led the Yale attack. Also getting two hits were Rich Mater and Larry Mitchell.

Larry Summers took advantage of sloppy fielding to turn his line drive into a circuit clout for the Auctioneers. Clarke Haire and Jim Hillaker picked up the only other two hits off winner Joe Haupt. Brian Helwig took the loss.

In the opening game Tuesday, Bay Port topped Sandusky Merchants, 4-3.

Lee Swartzendruber pitched the win. The winners picked up four hits by four different players while the losers were led by McLeod with a single and triple.

Osentoski Auctioneering split its first two games in the SanCass League, posting a 14-4 decision over Wolverine Bank, Marlette, Thursday after dropping a 5-4 decision to Sanilac Wednesday.

Osentoski rallied to take a 4-3 lead over Sanilac with a three-run outburst in the sixth inning only to have Sanilac bounce back to score a pair in the bottom half of the inning.

Wildness cost Ed Stoutenburg a chance for the victory. After Osentoski took the lead, Sanilac scored its runs on four walks and two errors.

Ron Ouvry hit a circuit clout in the second and Stoutenburg laced one over the left field fence in the sixth.

Against Marlette Osentoski won with a big six-run outburst in the third inning. The Auctioneers kept adding to the total and the game

Walleyes return to Saginaw Bay

Walleye have returned to Saginaw Bay for the first time in at least 30 years, according to Sebawaing fisherman Al Ricker.

He attributes the comeback to decreased pollution and barring of commercial fishermen from catching the fish.

The walleye are being caught off Sand Point in 15-20 feet of water using a crawler harness and crawler. The biggest caught so far weighed 7½ pounds.

Using a crawler for bait one night last week, Ricker caught three walleyes, two lake trout, two whitefish, a 14-pound catfish, and a big perch, all within 1½ hours.

Ricker, who works at Armca, Inc., in Cass City, had a pretty good fishing year in 1977.

He not only earned the Mepps Master Angler Award, the largest perch caught in Michigan in 1977 was caught from his boat. It wasn't Ricker who caught the fish, however, it was his brother, Gary, also from Sebawaing.

Gary Ricker recently received a certificate, now mounted along with the fish, from the state Department of Natural Resources for having caught the biggest perch in Michigan last year registered with the agency. The three-pound, one-ounce fish was 15½ inches long with a 17-inch girth. It was caught April 17, 1977 off Caseville in 18 feet of water using minnows for bait.

The award Al Ricker recently received was from the Wisconsin manufacturer of fishing lures. By using Mepps spinners to catch fish which met certain size requirements, he recently received the firm's Master Angler Award, a series of certificates (one per fish) for framing and patches to be worn.

A minimum of four qualifying fish are needed to earn the master award. Ricker caught five, all in 1977.

He caught an eight-pound, eight-ounce lake trout (eight-pound minimum needed); 16-pound, two-ounce brown trout (two-lb.); 16-lb. coho (eight-lb.); 29-lb. king salmon (15-lb.); and four-lb., eight-oz. large-mouth bass (three-lb.) to earn the award.

All were caught in Saginaw Bay except for the king salmon, which was caught in Lake Michigan.
