Shortage of apartments problem in Cass City

ie village council at its 25 meeting will hold a ic hearing on a re- ted rezoning for prop- to be the site of one tment building.

ere is only one apart- building in Cass City -- the Hillside Colonial rtments, others being in es or above stores.

illside manager Richard th said there has been a ting list for about a year, i six or seven names on list.

f the same apartments re built today, Smith ight the rent would have be at least $20-25 a month her.

HS BROTHER, DONALD nth of Smith Builders in ro, has examined some cs in Cass City to build ne additional apart- nts, Smith said, caution- , "It's just in the think- ings. It's in the back of mind."

Hillside apartments and manage them for a Muske- gon real estate firm that owns them.

The other person inter- ested in constructing apart- ments here is local builder Tom Herron.

He doesn't have anything on paper, but said he is thinking of one building, "something a little nicer" than apartments available now." He doesn't know whether he will construct the building and then man- age the apartments himself or sell it to someone else.

The builder initially wanted to rezone two par- cels he bought from Provin- cial House for apartments. They presently are zoned for special uses; Herron re- quested they be rezoned multiple dwelling.

At a village Planning Commission meeting in June, however, mostly Hos- pital Drive residents ob- jected to the rezoning of the parcel along the street near the nursing care facility. They argued that in keep- ing with the character of the neighborhood, it should be rezoned for single-family homes.

The Planning Commission as a compromise is recom- mending to the village coun- cil that it rezone the parcel in question to single-family; the other to multiple dwell- ing. The proposed apart- ment site is in Herron's Northwood Estates, roughly behind (north of) Provincial House. The July 25 hearing on the two proposed rezon- ings starts at 7 p.m.

THE START OF A NEW school year always means new teachers moving here looking for places to live. The superintendent's office serves as middleman when necessary in helping teach- ers find apartments.

Secretary Enid Craig said finding apartments is a problem, although she didn't know of any instances of school starting with a teach- er still shelterless. "They've always found a place."

Friday, a teacher called looking for a place and Mrs. Craig was able to give her the name of someone with two apartments available.

Often, she said, a teacher moving in is able to take over an apartment occupied by a teacher who left.

Clarence "Bud" Schnee- berger and his brother Russ own several apartments and houses they rent in Cass City. "There definitely is a shortage of all types of housing," he said.

Indicative of that is that when they advertise an apartment for rent, the usual result is a "whole bunch of calls." They don't have to advertise more than once.

The big shortage, Schnee- berger said, based on the calls he receives, is apart- ments in the $100-120 a month range, needed by persons on welfare.

ALTHOUGH THERE IS A shortage of apartments in that category in Cass City, according to Shelley Miller, basic family services work- er for the Tuscola County Department of Social Ser- vices, the situation is not any worse than in other com- munities.

Families with six or fewer members receiving Aid to Dependent Children receive $120 a month for housing; families larger than that can receive up to $220.

Most families are in the $120 bracket. If they can't find a place to live for that amount, they have to spend some of the ADC money that would otherwise be al- located for personal needs, heat, or utilities.

Although some landlords may refuse to rent to fam- ilies receiving welfare -- which may be illegal -- she said the bigger problem is simply that there are few apartments that rent for $120 or less a month.

Ultimately, everyone ap- parently finds a place, but it may not be what they want or the family may have to move from the community in order to find an apart- ment.

Superintendent arraigned

Sutherland faces criminal charges

Caro School Supt. James C. Sutherland was arraigned Tuesday on nine criminal charges brought against him by the state attorney general.

Each of the nine charges of obtaining money under false pretenses carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison or a $5,000 fine.

Sutherland voluntarily turned himself in to the state police post in Caro Tuesday after the charges were issued. He was taken before District Judge Richard F. Kern, who scheduled a preliminary conference July 26 and preliminary examina- tion Aug. 11. The superin- tendent was then released on personal recognizance bond.

Sutherland, 51, has been superintendent for 20 years. He has been on leave since March. The school board has begun action to fire him.

In addition to the possi- bility of further charges being brought against him, the attorney general's office said it is contemplating bringing charges against persons who bought items from him knowing that he may have obtained them irregularly.

The nine charges filed by the attorney general accuse Sutherland of defrauding the district of more than $8,000 since 1972. The charges in- volve:

--Ordering window shades valued at $1,200 in June, 1976 and 1977 which were never delivered, then depositing the money in his own bank account.

--Ordering $1,300 of mats and shades in November, 1977 which were never deliv- ered, then depositing the money.

--Installation of 78 square yards of carpet in his home at district expense in Aug- ust, 1977.

--Sale of basketball equip- ment worth $175 to a staff member, then pocketing the money.

--Purchase of office equip- ment worth $2,200 in July, 1972, then pocketing the funds.

--Four instances between July, 1974 and August 1975 of buying typewriters and other equipment with school funds, worth more than $2,000, and then selling them.

The investigation by the state attorney general's of- fice, which began in early April, has examined about $200,000 in questionable ex- penses by the district during the time Sutherland has been superintendent.

Millington man county's 15th traffic victim

A Millington man, Rich- ard R. Steepe, 38, became Tuscola county's 15th traffic fatality of the year Friday when he was killed in an accident south of Vassar.

In the 7:10 a.m. accident, deputies reported, Theresa M. Bognar, 42, of Millington, eastbound on Arbela Road, failed to yield at the yield sign at Vassar Road.

Her car struck the right rear of the pickup driven by Steepe, which was south- bound. The truck went out of control and rolled over six or seven times, throwing out both occupants.

The truck landed upside down. Steepe's body was found lying 15 feet in front of the truck. His son, Kendall, 15, was found under the bed of the overturned truck. He was reported in fair condi- tion Tuesday afternoon at St. Joseph Hospital in Flint.

Deputies reported that brush along the road may have obscured the vision of the two drivers. As of Tues- day, investigation of the accident was continuing.

In contrast to the 15 fa- talities so far this year, only 14 were killed in county acci- dents in all of last year.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Sandra Moore, 38, of 3176 Vatter Road, Shover, was treated and released from Deckerville Community Hospital after a 5:15 p.m. accident Sunday.

Huron county deputies re- ported she was a passenger in a car driven by her son, David C. Novinski, 15, of the same address, who was east- bound on Sebawaing Road. Their car collided with a car southbound on Notter Road at the east village limit of Owendale. Novinski was driving the car on a driver's education permit.

Driver of the other car was Scott D. Miller, 17, of Hughes Road, Owendale. Of- ficers said Miller failed to stop for the stop sign at the intersection. He and two passengers, Steven S. Meek- er and Donald A. Doerr II, both 17 of Cass City, were unhurt.

Denise E. Zmierski, 17, of Greenland Road, was cited by Cass City police for failure to stop in an assured clear distance after an acci- dent at 9:25 p.m. last Thurs- day.

Police said she was back- ing up in the drive in front of the village hall and backed into a parked car owned by Peter Riestra of Cass City, forcing it into a car parked alongside, owned by Gary

Community education not just classes, new director says

Community education isn't just high school com- pletion and personal en- richment classes. It's lots of things but mainly, it's what the community wants, ac- cording to Kathleen O'Donnell.

Mrs. O'Donnell is the new- ly hired community school director for the Cass City Schools. She started July 10 and her task is a big one, for she is starting the program from scratch.

The first day on the job, she had to organize a com- munity education advisory council in time for the school board to approve the ap- pointments that night.

She got some suggested names from school officials and started calling on the telephone. The people she talked to gave her more names and by the time of the board meeting, she had a 14-member committee.

Also at the meeting, Mrs. O'Donnell was officially ap- pointed to the job.

One of her jobs the first week was to prepare the grant application to the state so that she can get paid. Ap- proval of the grant means the state will pay $10,000 of her $17,000 a year salary; the school district will pay the rest.

Mrs. O'Donnell, 35, is a transplanted Californian, moving to Michigan in 1971 when her husband, James, got a management job at the Saginaw Steering Gear Plant. They have three chil- dren, Lance, 8, Shane, 5, and Brooke, 4.

The O'Donnells moved from an apartment in Berke- ley, Calif., to a 115-acre farm near Mayville. Farm- ing remains a hobby, with the main crop being hay. Until recently, they were raising beef steers, but now the only animals on the farm are horses, dogs and cats.

A 1965 graduate of San Diego State University in education, Mrs. O'Donnell held various teaching jobs in California before moving.

Here, she taught fourth and fifth grade at Marlette for four years, as well as heading a special resource program for children with reading and math problems, developing programs, and overseeing student teachers.

She took a leave of ab- sence to attend the Univer- sity of Michigan, where she received her master's de- gree in education and com- munity development in August, 1976.

She served for awhile as an administrative intern in the Marlette community edu- cation program, but for about the past year and a half, has been looking for a job in community educa- tion. During the interval, she joked, "I've been primarily playing the role of a May- ville cowgirl."

"I was delighted when Cass City called me in (for the job interview)," she said, "and even more de- lighted when Mr. (Supt. Donald) Crouse called and said, 'You're the one.'"

IN TERMS OF SPECIFIC programs, her first task will be to get a high school completion program started, which in order to meet funding requirements, has to be underway in August.

The district will receive reimbursement from the state for adult high school completion students the same way it is reimbursed for regular daytime stu- dents. The only direct cost to the district, according to the community school director, will be for textbooks.

Enrichment and some other programs should pay for themselves through the fees charged to students.

She emphasizes that com- munity education doesn't just mean high school com- pletion and adult enrich- ment classes, such as ceramics or auto repair, and that's where the community education advisory council has a large role to play.

MRS. O'DONNELL DE- scribes community educa- tion as "a process of finding out and identifying concerns and resources in the com- munity." The aim, she said, is to develop programs that meet the needs of people, not to develop them in a vacuum and then hope people will respond.

The council, which repre- sents a cross section of in- terests -- business, agriculture, industry, etc. -- will provide some of the suggestions for what the needs are in the community.

A survey will be conducted to determine community in- terests. It might be con- ducted by a high school class, which would also make it a learning exper- ience.

Various community groups will also provide a source for suggesting needed programs.

The council will aid in the task of finding persons with skills and knowledge they can teach to others, ranging from woodcarvers to retired farmers who can teach gardening.

Continually assessing the needs of the community will be another task for the council.

BECAUSE OF THE need to first determine what the needs are, without rushing into anything, Mrs. O'Donnell doesn't figure any programs will be ready by the start of school this fall, other than the high school completion program which will already be underway.

She expects some pro- grams, maybe some enrich- ment courses, to get under- way during the first semes- ter.

She divides community education into eight possible categories of involvement, including pre-school, youth enrichment (grades K-12, before, during and after school), adult enrichment, adult education basic and high school completion, and continuing education, such as for business and profes- sional persons, seminars, and college classes.

Other possible categories of involvement are recre- ation, community services and resources, and com- munity development.

Burgers bring out firemen

Where there's smoke, there's charcoal broiled hamburgers.

Dennis Bartle and his wife live in the apartment over Sommers' Bakery on Main Street. About 10:15 Monday night, he lit up the charcoal grill on their back porch. Someone saw flames and called the fire department.

After a stop at a house on the corner of Oak and Pine Streets, where there wasn't a fire, firemen located the source. Fireman Dave Mc- Naughton, wearing firefight- ing gear and oxygen tank, climbed the stairs to the porch. There was Bartle cooking two hamburgers on the grill.

"If It Fitz..." Life as a boulevardier

By Jim Fitzgerald

There are a couple of things you should know about boulevardiers . . . An engraved invitation, rsvp requested, has summoned me to meet "the glamorous, exciting personality, Zsa Zsa Gabor." She will be served up, along with cocktails and hors d'oeuvres, at a reception in the Kent Room of the Detroit Plaza Hotel.

At first glance, this appears to be the type of hoity-toity event that would command the presence of a boulevardier of my stripe. But wait.

The invitation further notes that Miss Gabor will be in town "as the goodwill ambassador for the Montgomery Ward Automobile Club and will be making personal appearances at various Ward stores."

With all her diamonds and furs and millionaire husbands, Zsa Zsa Gabor is a peddler for Monkey Ward? This is the same as Leon Spinks selling lingerie for Saks Fifth Avenue.

During one summer of my youth, I clerked in a Monkey Ward store. It sold bib overalls and rakes and stuff like that. An important part of my job was spreading sawdust on the wood floor and then sweeping it up.

If anyone looking like Zsa Zsa Gabor had ever walked into that store, she would have been seeking emergency relief for an attack of the vapors. In those days, grand ladies with frilly décolletages didn't shop in hardware stores, but they couldn't help where they fainted.

I realize things are different today, but not that different. Monkey Ward now sells merchandise designed to attract female customers, and most of it is sold by female clerks. But Zsa Zsa Gabor? It's a juxtaposition I'm not prepared to accept.

LaVerne and Shirley could broom sawdust around the Kent Room of the Plaza Hotel, but not Zsa Zsa. Sorry, but whatever she's peddling for Monkey Ward, I can't buy it.

But I may go to her party anyway. I'd like to tell Zsa Zsa that, due to her scintillating appearances on various talk shows, her photographs holds a place of honor in my home. It's pasted around the bottom of my TV throw-up pot, on the inside.

Such a compliment, coming from a boulevardier of my stripe, would probably give Zsa Zsa an attack of the vapors.

Because I grew up on dirt streets with no curbs, some people might question my right to call myself a boulevardier. A haughty fie on them.

A boulevardier is a person who frequents the most fashionable places. That's me. Just the other day I was frequenting the first outdoor concert at the Renaissance Center. Bobby Goldsboro and Ursula Walker were singing and all the boulevardiers were there.

Of course, a true boulevardier, when he gets to a fashionable place, should do more than merely frequent. He should conduct himself so as to command the respect, even awe, of all those around him, especially waiters. And he should dress in the latest style.

To the Renaissance concert I wore a checked sport jacket of several colors, all startling. I was pleased to be seated at the same table as an eminent theatre critic. It didn't bug me that his jacket matched mine exactly. He is a monumental boulevardier, and I was flattered. Until.

I told him I'd bought my jacket just the day before. He said he'd had his for 10 years. I felt nouveau dressed.

But the waiter didn't know my clothes were new. I was determined to make him realize I was a boulevardier. My plan was to pay him casually. A boulevardier never counts his change.

Cash isn't used at the Renaissance concerts. A customer buys tickets on the way in and then trades the tickets for booze and food. I had a pocketful of tickets.

When I owed one ticket, I reached casually into my jacket pocket, nonchalantly grabbed two tickets and slipped them smoothly to the waiter.

"The extra ticket is for you," I murmured.

"Thank you, sir," the waiter said. "But you might want to keep this one ticket. It gives the number of the inspector who inspected your new jacket."

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Karr

Evelyn M. Roth and Timothy R. Karr were united in marriage March 25 at the First United Presbyterian church of Alma. Rev. Dwight Hillstrom performed the ceremony.

The bride escorted by her uncle, John Roth of Alvordton, Ohio, wore a white gown of sheer organza, detailed with Venice lace at the neck, bodice and hemline. Her full bishop sleeves accented the gown with its lace trim. The A line skirt gave a "total look" to the gown. Her headpiece was tiers of sheer imported illusion trimmed with matching lace.

Matron of honor was Mary Newville of Alma, sister of the bride. Bridesmaid was Robin Stine of St. Louis, friend of the bridal couple.

Serving as best man was David Milligan of Cass City, groomsmen, and Bruce King of Gagetown. Both are friends of the groom.

Roger Karr of Midland and Myron Karr of Pontiac, brothers of the groom, were ushers. Robert Newville, nephew of the bride, and Scott Karr, nephew of the groom, lit the candles for the service.

A reception followed immediately after the ceremony in the church fellowship hall.

Honored guests at the ceremony were Margaret and Alberta Hoffman of Morenci, great-aunts of the bride, and Mrs. Henry McLeilan of Uby, friend of the groom.

The couple spent their honeymoon in Traverse City.

The bride is a graduate of Ferris State College and is employed as a registered nurse at Gratiot Community Hospital in Alma. The groom is a graduate of Central Michigan University and is employed as a teacher in the Alma Public Schools. The couple is residing at 804 Pine Street, Alma.

Rabbit Tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

We've been telling you for years how Chronicle liners find you buyers. And proving it, too. But I'll confess that we thought there were limits and an item offered last week was it.

How wrong we were. The ad said, "For Sale - outside toilet, phone . . ."

That ad came out Wednesday and the toilet sold Wednesday night. What's more, five other phone calls were received Thursday.

I was going to dig into this a little deeper but on reflection changed my mind.

Small world department. The new owner of Thumb Parts & Machine Co. is Brian McMahon of Pinconning. Relatives of his have been in business in Pinconning for many, many years. Fifty years ago my father and mother sold them advertising when they ran the Pinconning Journal.

The problem that Elwyn Helwig had in the recent Harold Isard open was that he didn't have the right players.

Helwig was an also ran in that tourney. A little later he played in a best ball mixed tourney with his wife and finished three under par . . . better than he did with two men helping him in the Isard competition.

It had to happen department. Spotted Dr. Jack Clara attempting to enter the Cass City State Bank building at the corner of Main and Oak.

John Bayley is in town for his annual summer visit. The Cass City native makes his home in Arizona where he moved for health reasons.

He feels fine now and says that you get used to the hot weather.

Bayley said there were 18 days straight this summer where the temperature reached 110 degrees or more.

Come on, John. Nobody can get used to that. And none of that garbage about dry heat, please.

Accelerated change is evident on the business beat these days.

Within the last couple of weeks consider these changes: Cass City Cycle Sales is gone. Boron, gone. Bay, gone.

New in business now or about to be are: Ron's Automotive, McMahon Auto Supply, Sunny Side of the Street. In addition Gambles is changing ownership and the Cass City State Bank has moved into new quarters.

Don Lorentzen has identified the unidentified persons in the photo in last week's Chronicle of the Ward's Independents basketball team of 1921-22.

The Haire Net

No Department of Natural Resources regulation has caused as much controversy in the area as the "any deer" shooting regulation now in force.

Hunters are nearly 100 per cent against shooting does and fawns to thin the herd.

That may change, judging by what's happening elsewhere.

In Gladwin county, the deer explosion has reached the stage where farmers are losing plenty of money. One farmer there says the problem started about five years ago and grew each year.

In 1977 he estimated his loss at about $8,000.

When this controversy raged a couple of years back, most farmers sided with the hunters. They didn't want the does killed.

That's the way it was in Gladwin county. A sportsman who "loves to hunt and loves to see deer" last year used special permits to kill 35 does out of season. He estimated, a newspaper article said, that 165 legal deer were killed on his farm in addition to many that were poached. The problem persists.

Poaching will probably increase this year because law requires the farmer to dress out the deer before turning it over to the DNR for distribution.

Now some afflicted farmers in Gladwin county will allow hunters on their land if they agree to shoot only does and leave the bucks alone. That's a 180 degree shift in thinking. Now they want the does killed to limit the herd size.

That switch hasn't occurred in Tuscola county . . . not yet.

But make no mistake, the deer population is exploding and the day may be nearer than we think when the problems at Gladwin become the problems of the Thumb.

Department of Natural Resources representatives at Caro say that they have had only one complaint of crop damage this year.

That's insignificant unless you happen to be the farmer making the complaint. But it may be just a start.

As the herd expands, the problems grow. It's likely never to be big enough for doe hunting for the hunter without any financial stake in the yield of the land.

When it costs money, it's too big for the landowner.

What's the answer? Maybe a payment from the hunters to care for crop damage. Either that or regular thinning of the herd.

It really has to be one or the other. The crop has to come before the deer.

As a person without an axe to grind I'd love to see a way to make it worthwhile for the landowner to preserve the herd and keep it growing.

I've never had a desire to go out and shoot a deer but no one enjoys driving around the county and seeing them more than I.

There are a lot of folks just like me.

It may be that all of us, together with the farmer and the hunter, will be forced to accept a compromise solution.

If that's hard to take, just remember that half a loaf is better than none.

Self-satisfied guys never see themselves as others do.

Good thoughts and kind deeds do survive in this world.

SPIRIT MAKES A MAN, by Dr. Joseph Panzarella with Glenn Kittler (non-fiction). Joseph Panzarella, M.D., a specialist in rehabilitation medicine, directs a 100-bed unit devoted to that specialty, teaches medicine at NYU, and helps guide a nationwide rehabilitation service, all from a wheelchair. He is a quadriplegic—unable to use his arms and legs. He cannot hold a pencil, open a file, or answer a telephone, and yet he is more active than most doctors who enjoy the use of all their limbs.

VANISHING WINGS, a tale of three birds of prey, by Griffing Bancroft. The interlocking stories of three birds—a young osprey, an American eagle, and a peregrine falcon—and the effects which pesticides have on their lives. Integrating facts about the nature and habits of each species the author skillfully shows the cumulative results of poison through the food chain. Through his scientifically accurate though fictionalized account, which also dramatizes the feelings of a nature loving farmer and his family when they find birds, mice, and rabbits in convulsions after their cornfield has been sprayed with poison, Bancroft warns that the use of insecticides is a worldwide problem whose solution may come too late to save some species.

THE NATURAL HISTORY OF THE LAND OF THE BIBLE, by Azaria Alon (non-fiction). Describes the flora and fauna of Israel and adjacent areas. The Bible forms the background to the text which discusses the changes modern agriculture has brought, turning some wild areas into orchards and vineyards. Included are Biblical quotations and references to the plants and animals which can still be seen today.

PEDALING AROUND

Things that bother me

By Mike Eliasohn

Maybe I'm suffering from the summer doldrums or maybe I'm frustrated year-round. Anyway, as a way of venting my frustrations, here are some things that bug the &+?! out of me that I am powerless to do anything about:

Persons -- notice I didn't say drivers -- who use two parking places when they park. The only suitable punishment is sticking a stick of dynamite up their car's exhaust pipe.

On four-lane divided highways, "drivers" who move over into the passing lane and then stay next to the car in the righthand lane, thus making it impossible for anyone behind to pass.

Political ego trips, for lack of better term. Recent examples were the county boards of commissioners in Tuscola and Huron counties wanting to have their own circuit judges, instead of having to share three or two judges respectively with another county.

Tuscola lost, but Huron won. After the new judge in Huron takes office in January, if he gets sick, or is on vacation, the court system will shut down; if he has to disqualify himself from a case, Huron will have to pay for a visiting judge. If Huron commissioners had been willing to share two judges with Sanilac county, instead of having one of their own, they would not have that problem (and now Sanilac will have the same problem).

The reporter for an area radio station who uses the phrase, "Elsewhere at the meeting." "Elsewhere" refers to location.

The phrase "was graduated", for instance, "He was graduated from Michigan State University." "He graduated..." at least to my ears, sounds a lot better.

Overcoverage of a non-significant event, an example being the recent "foot in mouth" statement by the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Andrew Young, about there being political prisoners in the United States.

The scenario is this: Young says something foolish, the news media reports what he said, other political leaders read what he said and criticize Young, the media reports what the other political leaders said, Young responds to the criticism, the media reports what Young said in response to what the others said. If the news media would ignore his remarks entirely, the public would be spared having to repeatedly read or hear about them.

While I'm on the topic, I'm always amazed when I watch a Presidential press conference and see 200 reporters there. How many different versions can there be of what President Carter (or other presidents) said? All the newspapers with correspondents in Washington should let the wire service reporters cover the press conference and then have their correspondents find something else to write about. I'm sure there are lots of good stories in Washington that never get reported because the press is too worried about what the President is saying.

Relevant to none of the above, I was recently appointed by the Cass City School Board to the new community education advisory council. I hope it's not a cop-out because I don't want to spend the time, but I turned down the appointment. I think the community school program is a fine idea and one that's needed in the district -- in fact, I was surprised when I moved here and discovered there wasn't such a program -- but I don't think I should be involved in something that I am also reporting about.

Elmwood - Gagetown

Sunday to mark building completion

Dedication and open house for the new Elmwood township-Gagetown village municipal building and fire station will be Sunday, starting at 2 p.m.

Construction of the $173,000 building began last November. It was financed with $150,000 in federal public works funds, with the remainder of the cost divided equally between the village and township. Contractor was Booms Construction, Inc. of Bad Axe.

The building contains a township office, village of-

Columbia, Brookfield work may start soon

Cleaning of the Columbia and Brookfield Drains may begin yet this fall if the inter-county drain board gives the expected go-ahead following a public hearing Tuesday, July 25.

The hearing starts at 10:30 a.m. in the new Elmwood township-Gagetown village hall.

Affected are the Brookfield and Brookfield Extension Drain, which flow into the Columbia Drain, plus the Columbia Extension and Branch No. 1 of the Columbia Extension Drain.

The Brookfield Drain and extension has a drainage district totaling 11,124 acres, of which 8,553 are in Tuscola county, the rest in Huron. The drainage district for the Columbia Drain and its extensions covers 13,045 acres in Huron county and 10,171 in Tuscola.

That means the owners of those acres will have to help pay for the drain improvements.

The estimated total project cost for Columbia is $244,500; for Brookfield, $109,600.

At this point, according to Tuscola County Drain Commissioner Edward Goodchild, it is impossible to say how much property owners will have to pay, individually or as a whole.

That won't be known until after bids are let for the work to be done. Before then, the inter-county drain board has to decide what percentage of the cost will be borne in each county.

Then it's up to the drain commissioner in each county to divide the cost between the county government, townships involved, and the individual property owners.

The townships involved are Elmwood and Elklund in Tuscola county for both drains and in Huron county, Brookfield township for the Brookfield Drain and Brookfield, Sebawaing and Grant townships for the Columbia Drain.

Property owners won't know their assessments for the project until the day of review, which must be held from 5-30 days after bids for the project are let. They then have an opportunity to appeal if they feel their assessment is too high.

Goodchild will serve on the inter-county drain board along with Robert M. Tufts, Huron county deputy drain commissioner, and Stanley R. Quackenbush, deputy director of the state Department of Agriculture in charge of inter-county drains. In Huron county, the functions of a drain commissioner are contained within the Road Commission; Tufts is the Road Commission engineer.

The inter-county board serves the same function as a board of determination which a drain commissioner appoints when a proposed drain project is entirely in one county.

The petition requesting work be done on the Columbia Drain was presented in May 1975. On the Brookfield Drain, petitions were presented in October, 1975 and January, 1976.

The reason for the delay, according to Goodchild, was the preparation of an environmental impact statement for the projects, required for inter-county drains, which had to be done by the state, and the backlog of work in Quackenbush's office.

Proposed for both drains is cleaning, deepening, widening, extending, relocating, and straightening.

Goodchild said as far as he knows, neither project is controversial.

The only complaints he has received have been from township supervisors wanting to know the reason for the delay.

If all goes smoothly, according to the drain commissioner, work could begin this fall.

He didn't have the records in front of him so that he could check for sure, but thought it was probably 15-20 years since the drains were last cleaned.

Set dedication for Petroglyphs park

Dedication ceremonies for the recently completed protective shelter over the Sanilac Petroglyphs prehistoric site in Sanilac county will be held at the site at 1 p.m. Saturday, July 22.

The petroglyphs are located in Sanilac Petroglyphs State Park in Greenleaf township.

They are accessible from the parking lot on Germania Road, a half-mile south of Bay City-Forestville Road.

The petroglyphs or series of Indian rock carvings were discovered following the fires that swept through Michigan's thumb area in the 1880s. In the early 20th Century, the rock carvings became known to archeologists and in the 1960s the rock bearing the carvings and the surrounding land was purchased by the Michigan Archeological Society, which donated it to the State of Michigan for development as a state park.

Since they are cut into soft sandstone, the petroglyphs require protection. Dedication of the protective shelter will be attended by state and local dignitaries and interested archeologists. The public is invited.

Your Neighbor says U.S. not headed for recession

Despite a drop in unemployment, the U.S. economy faces continuing trouble, but will not go into a recession, the director of the Congressional Budget Office recently predicted.

Some other leading economists aren't that optimistic. They feel there is a good chance there will be a recession.

Bill Scott, an engineer in the carburetor division at Walbro Corp., isn't as gloomy as any of the economists. "I think we're not going into a recession," he said.

"If there is going to be one," he predicted, "it won't be until after the next (Presidential) election year. It won't be good for President Carter to have a recession in his first term."

The President doesn't have complete control over the economy, Scott feels, "but he can discourage one for a period of time."

The engineer does feel there is some validity to the theory of some economists that one reason the economy is in good shape at present is because people are buying products now to beat sure-to-come price increases because of inflation.

The auto business is good and Scott feels one reason may be because people are buying smaller, more economical cars, rather than continuing to drive their large ones, because of the ever increasing price of gasoline. He pointed to his six-cylinder pickup truck with overdrive transmission as an example.

Scott and his wife, Sandra, live on Sherman Street with two of their three children still at home.

Saginaw Bay not in fish ban

Based on information received today from the Department of Natural Resources concerning the possible chemical contamination of fish from the Tittabawassee River watershed, the Michigan Department of Public Health has issued an advisory concerning the eating of fish caught in the waters of the Tittabawassee, Chippewa, and Saginaw Rivers.

The advisory says that fish caught in these waters should not be eaten.

Officials add that there is no immediate danger of acute illness from eating the contaminated fish, but long term effects are an unknown factor at this time. The chemical found in the fish -

TCDD (2,3,7,8 tetrachlorodibenzo-p-dioxin) - is considered to be a dangerous chemical. Therefore, according to the health department, no level of dioxin is presently considered safe for human consumption.

However, until more sampling and analysis of fish in Saginaw Bay is completed in the near future, the fish from Saginaw Bay have not been included in the present advisory. The department reemphasized its previous advisory on Great Lakes fish, including Saginaw Bay, which warns that persons should eat no more than a half-pound per week of sport fish and that pregnant women should eat none at all.

As soon as more information is available on fish from Saginaw Bay, the department will review its position and issue a further advisory if required.

Statewide cleanup planned for spring

The largest statewide cleanup in the history of Michigan will be carried out next spring under the direction of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC).

The massive project to remove litter along roadsides, in parks and recreation areas and in municipalities will be designed to give Michigan a sprucing up in the first spring following implementation of the "bottle bill."

MUCC led the drive in 1976 that resulted in overwhelming voter approval of a measure to ban throwaway beer and soft drink containers. The bill, which requires deposits on bottles and cans, will take effect next Dec. 3. It is aimed at reducing litter, conserving energy and minerals used in the manufacture of bottles and cans and alleviating the solid waste disposal problem.

"The Michigan Deposit Law gives us a great opportunity to rid our state's roadsides, parks and neighborhoods of throwaway beer and pop containers once and for all," said Thomas L. Washington, MUCC executive director. "This is also an excellent chance to set a new cleanliness standard for Michigan. It is anticipated that we will see a reduction in all types of litter, as was the experience in Oregon and Vermont after those states implemented deposit legislation."

MUCC, which will coordinate the cleanup effort that is scheduled for next April and May, will assign a full-time staff person to oversee the statewide project.

The Michigan Jaycees, Michigan Farm Bureau, County Road Association of Michigan, Department of Natural Resources, Michigan Environmental Education Association and Boy Scouts are among the groups that have endorsed the cleanup project.

The Michigan National Guard has pledged to provide trucks and manpower for the cleanup.

Cooperation also is expected from civic groups, farm groups, local road and parks departments, teachers and school children.

Contributions to finance the cost of trash bags, promotional materials and other expenses are being solicited from the Michigan business community. Such contributions already have been received from Booth Newspapers, Dow Chemical Co. and the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co.

MUCC asked groups throughout the state to begin considering how their organizations can most effectively participate in the cleanup. A coordinator's kit will be distributed by MUCC to local groups to help them organize the cleanup in their respective areas.

Additional information on the project may be obtained by writing to: Statewide Cleanup, care of MUCC, Box 30235, Lansing, MI. 48909.

"The goal of this ambitious project is not simply a 'cleaner' state but also a public awakening of our responsibility to the environment," Washington said.

Old site unusable

Cumber Bar may rise, but in Cumber 'suburbs'

The Cumber Bar may yet rise from the ashes — but if it does, it won't be in Cumber. The popular tavern at Cumber and Wheeler Roads in Austin township, Sanilac county, burned to the ground in the early morning hours of Dec. 31. Cause of the fire was never determined; other than that it wasn't arson. The loss was estimated at $90,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Titus of Marlette still held title to the property, but had sold it about a month earlier to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Warner of Sterling Heights.

The Warners announced plans to rebuild the bar and hoped to have a steel building replacement open by spring. It didn't happen.

The problem was inability to get a septic permit for the site. According to Grant Carman, sanitarian for the Sanilac County Health Department, the site of the old bar is heavy clay soil, which lacks the permeability needed for a septic tank tile field.

When the bar was in operation, Carman said, the septic tile emptied underneath a nearby ditch. That wasn't known, however, until the bar burned down, then "it was obvious where the plumbing went."

Use of a holding tank or chemical toilet, according to Carman, are impractical alternatives due to the number of persons who would be using such facilities.

Because of their inability to get a septic permit, the Warners backed out of their deal to buy the bar.

Someone else expressed interest, according to Titus, with the idea of buying additional property for use as a tile field. Health regulations don't permit parking over a septic field and the half-acre site the bar was on isn't big enough for a building, parking area, and septic field. That idea fell through, however, because all the land around the bar is also heavy clay.

Someone else then expressed interest, but was also unsuccessful in purchasing additional land.

The only way to use the site, according to Titus, would be to construct a large pit on additional land and fill it with gravel to use as a tile field, but that would be too costly.

The site can be used for a home, he said, because the artificial tile field would not have to be as big.

There still is interest in the Cumber Bar, however, as a third party is now involved. The persons, whom Titus didn't want to name, are looking at two possible new sites for the bar within 1 1/4 miles of the old location on soil suitable for a septic system. Both sites are in Austin township.

If the deal goes through and the persons buy the property, they will buy from Titus the name Cumber Bar, business records and some items from the bar that Titus had at his home at the time of the fire.

If that happens, he is hopeful construction can start yet this summer. Plans call for a steel building.

Another indicator of interest in the bar is that the Cumber Bar softball team of old is still using the name, playing this summer in the Thumb Slo-Pitch South League and the Ugly Softball League.

The team is now self-supporting and over Memorial Day week end conducted its second annual softball tournament at Cumber.

Advertise it in the Chronicle.

Walbro sales up, but earnings down

Walbro Corporation reported that net sales for the three months ended June 30, 1978, were $8,659,948, compared with $7,124,576 in the like period in 1977.

Net earnings for the quarter were $379,030, compared with $407,357 in last year's second quarter.

Per share earnings for the period were $.49 on 775,570 shares outstanding, compared with $.53 per share on 766,820 shares outstanding at June 30, 1977.

Management attributes the decrease in second quarter earnings to five factors: (1) increasing cost of labor and materials; (2) a competition induced "freeze" on selling prices of small engine carburetors, Walbro's largest product line; (3) severe foreign currency fluctuations; (4) non-recurring costs in the Company's worldwide expansion program; (5) anticipated sales of the Walbro Water Purifier have not yet materialized.

Some inventory adjustments at the customer level may cause Walbro to somewhat reduce its sales projection for the third quarter, but it is expected that 1978 will be a strong year, overall.

For the six months ended June 30, 1978, net sales were $17,082,534, compared with $13,879,941 in the same period in 1977. Net earnings for the January through June period, 1978, were level with the like period a year: $838,554 in 1978; $835,841 in 1977.

Spring clean-up in summer

"I'll put it off today and do it tomorrow" are words we hear each year as spring kitchen clean-up and organization time comes along.

Plan first

The key to effortless clean-up is to plan first, then attack. Think about what utensils and appliances you use, then follow the old rules: store where first used, store where easily seen and reached, and store safely.

Basic work centers include the sink area, the cooking and serving area, and the food mixing area. Make a list of equipment you own that belongs in each center.

Think in centers

Mixing bowls, spatulas and other food preparation items belong near the food mixing center; coffee pots and dishwashing supplies should be near the sink center; and pastas, spices and pot holders are handy near the cooking and serving center.

Once you have the planning stage accomplished it's easy to begin. Eliminate accumulated clutter first. This includes bent and rusted pots, cracked or chipped china and glasses and odd-sized jars. Retire never used items and give away the better things you no longer use.

Certain equipment is used only once or twice a year. Wrap, label, and then store these items in the basement or attic.

You may want to number each item and make a list to keep in your desk area. Then when the need arises for a stored piece of equipment, you'll know at a glance where it is located.

Allocate less handy kitchen space to infrequently used items that you do wish to have on hand. Far better to have the waffle maker on the top shelf than spices you may be reaching for every day.

All-day ease

Remember, too, that such helps as turntables, slide-out drawers, stacking shelves and plate racks will make life easier day in and day out. Colorful shelf liners also will help inspire you to keep those cabinets and drawers looking neat and clean.

Put it back!

Once you've created extra space, keep things neat and orderly by returning used equipment promptly from where it was taken. This saves time and effort for you in the long and short run. With these tips in mind, have a pleasant spring cleaning!

A letter requesting that the alley between Sherman and Ale Street in Seed's Park addition be abandoned as received from the Pinney State Bank, James and Jean Bauer, Frederick and Lottie Pinney, and Rockwell Bros. Inc. A motion was made by Trustee Helwig and supported by Trustee Hampshire to hold a Public hearing on the matter at the regular August 29, 1978 meeting at 7:00 p.m. Motion carried, 4 yeas, 0 nays.

The June 15, 1978 minutes of the Planning Commission were read concerning the request of Ray Schweikart to rezone the bowling alley located at 4533 Weaver Street, from General Business to Light Industrial. After discussion it was recommended by the Planning Commission that the Village refuse this request stating that it would limit the sale even more by rezoning. Council agreed to accept the recommendation of the Planning Commission with consideration to be given to this matter again if there is a small industry interested in purchasing the building.

David Bush of Seeger Street was present to request that he be able to install two signs on each end of Huron between Oak and Seeger reading "caution deaf child" for protection of his six year old deaf child. After discussion a motion was made by Trustee Tuttle and supported by Trustee Stahlbaum that the question of the "caution deaf child" sign be referred to the street committee to review liability with legal counsel and then to install signs if approved. Motion carried, 4 yeas, 0 nays.

The minutes of the regular May meeting were read with correction made to the 1978-1981 insurance package of $21,154.13 for the first year instead of $21,154.13 for the three years as read.

The financial statement for May was reviewed.

Request for annexation was received from Mr. and Mrs. Enick Rutkowski on their property on South Seeger Street, Ale's addition to the Village of Cass City. After discussion a motion was made by Trustee Tuttle and supported by Trustee Helwig that the request for annexation from Enick Rutkowski and wife be accepted and proper request to the County Commissioners be forwarded. Motion carried, 4 yeas, 0 nays.

Acknowledged was Gene Wilson for receiving an Associates of Arts degree from Delta College.

Acknowledged were Russell Bradley and Arthur Fisher for having been granted certification as water treatment plant operators in the D-4 classification.

The Superintendent's report was reviewed.

A motion was made by Trustee Stahlbaum and supported by Trustee Helwig that the bills as examined be approved for payment. Motion carried, 4 yeas, 0 nays.

There being no further business a motion was made by Trustee Stahlbaum and supported by Trustee Tuttle that the meeting be adjourned. Motion carried, 4 yeas, 0 nays.

Police protection back in Owendale

Police protection on a 40-hour a week basis resumed in Owendale Monday with the assigning of Huron county sheriff's deputies there.

The officers, off-duty from their regular duties, are being paid $5 per hour by the village and using the village patrol car. They will wear their regular deputy uniforms.

Owendale lost the services of their own officer when federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds being used to pay him ran out June 30. The Owendale officer actually didn't lose his job as he had left a short time earlier for a higher paying police job elsewhere. The cutback only meant there weren't federal funds to hire a replacement.

Owendale wasn't the only community affected by the loss of funds. Sixteen governmental units in Huron county lost a total of 24 CETA-funded employees when the money ran out.

The Owendale council at a meeting last week agreed to the arrangement with the sheriff's department to provide police protection at village expense.

According to Sheriff Richard V. Stokan, the arrangement is temporary until it is known whether Owendale can hire another officer with CETA funds when the federal fiscal year starts Oct. 1. If the funds aren't available, the temporary arrangement to use deputies could be permanent.

Owendale also lost a maintenance worker through the CETA fund cutback, but at the council meeting last week, according to Village President Donald Dorsch, it was decided not to hire a replacement with village funds.

Texas man sentenced for role in fatal accident

A Texas man, charged in connection with the May 29 death of a Flint motorcyclist in an accident near Vassar, was sentenced Monday to 10 days in the county jail for reckless driving.

Sentenced was Larry D. Thurston, 28, of Orange, Texas. District Judge Richard F. Kern delayed serving of the sentence from month to month. The defendant was fined $47 and assessed $53 court costs.

Thurston was originally charged with negligent homicide, but June 30 pleaded guilty to the reduced charge of reckless driving. Judge Kern delayed acceptance of the plea until the sentencing date.

Killed in the accident was Philip D. Cutler, 35, who was southbound on Bray Road on a motorcycle and ran into the right side of the pickup driven by Thurston, who was headed west on Ormes Road.

Deputies reported at the time that Thurston failed to yield the right of way at the signed intersection.

Never watch sausage or laws being made

People should never watch two things being made -- sausage and laws.

The second was proven again this year during the last session of the Legislature before summer recess when the final 19-hour marathon session resulted in finalizing the budget of more than $7 billion, of which $4.2 billion will come from the general fund.

After a certain period during a Friday-Saturday session, legislators would have voted for anything, and often did, just to leave Lansing for a two-month summer recess and begin full-time campaigning for the August primary election.

Members of the Senate were actually locked in the chamber and the State Police were dispatched to return absent members. The House meanwhile appealed to members to stay for the final votes but had only 86 out of 109 members present for the final vote.

Absolutely no time is given to the membership to review the budget before they are asked to cast a final vote to set the budget for the upcoming 1978-79 fiscal year.

For example, the Legislature, without as much as a hint of discussion, approved the massive $2.4 billion social services budget and the $1.9 billion appropriation for the state's public school districts.

There was, at one time, a possibility of the Legislature spending more time considering the budget due to the 18-hour notice requirement under the state's open meetings act.

However, prior to the final push to finalize the budget, the Legislature passed separate legislation exempting its own conference committees from that notification requirement and set a six-hour requirement for first meetings and only a one-hour requirement for further meetings.

As usual, besides approving the budget for the upcoming fiscal year, the Legislature used the final days of the session to bring numerous subjects before the body where they were approved with little or no debate.

Final legislative action was taken on no fewer than 57 bills during the last week with many subject areas receiving only minor debate while some items received no debate at all.

The House had in its possession legislation banning double-bottom tankers on state highways for more than nine months and spent more than two weeks hotly debating the question. However, the Senate rammed the bills through with only token debate within a single day.

The Senate also spent only a few minutes on a proposed constitutional amendment that will appear on the November ballot to allow the voters to decide whether to deny bail bonds in certain felony cases.

The House again spent much time debating the proposal that could deny bail, at the court's discretion, for a person accused of first degree sexual conduct, armed robbery or kidnapping with intent to extort unless the court had clear evidence the defendant would not flee the state, for a person accused of committing a violent crime while on bail, and for a person accused of a felony and has at least two prior convictions for violent crimes in the past 15 years.

Two key items of the $168 million state transportation package were sidetracked during the waning hours of the session when they were sent to the Senate Appropriations Committee for further study.

The measures provide for an allocation of non-road transportation, certain sales tax revenues from vehicles and vehicle-related items and a proposed constitutional amendment which would guarantee highways would get no less than 90 percent of gas, diesel fuel and weight tax revenues.

Typically, supporters did not view the move as a total setback however, but the Legislature will have only three days to approve the constitutional amendment when they return in the fall in order to get the question on the November ballot.

The Capitol building is still smoldering from the last flurry of activity during the last days of the session. No one yet has been able to completely analyze what or what has not been accomplished.

Certainly, the membership will spend the first few days of the fall session making corrections to bills approved since the final push always produces improper laws.

One thing, however, taxpayers can enjoy a two-month reprieve knowing the Legislature will not be working during the period.

Family one of area pioneers

Karr descendants trace family tree at reunion

The bicentennial edition of the Cass City Chronicle and a flat tire were both contributors to the first-ever reunion of the Karr family

July 4 at the Colony House. The Karr family is one of the oldest families in the Cass City area. At one time, every farm for five miles east of Gagetown was owned by a Karr. Impetus for the reunion came from the Chronicle's special bicentennial supplement in July, 1976. On the cover was a photo, taken in 1918, of the original farm site of George and Matilda Kitchin, a half-mile north and a half-mile east of Elkland cemetery.

The Kitchins came there in 1867, a year after Matilda's father, Julius Karr, and family settled in the area, along with his brother, Frary Karr.

Mrs. James A. Milligan of Cass City sent a copy of the supplement to her sister, Lucile Knight of the Flint area, to give to their cousin, Paul Karr, a Flint attorney and great-grandson of Julius Karr.

Lucile delivered the issue and suggested the family should have a reunion, which finally took place almost two years later.

Karr contacted his first cousin, Dr. Norman Karr of California, another great-grandson of Julius. Norman Karr has traced the family heritage back to the great-great-grandfather of most of those represented at the reunion, Moses Karr, who lived from 1790-1850.

REUNION INVITATIONS were sent to all known descendants of Moses Karr. He had 12 sons and daughters, but just three of those lines composed the 78 persons at the reunion -- the Julius, Frary and Jerome Karr lines. Others could not be traced, did not come, or the line of heritage had died out.

Paul Karr Sr. was toastmaster at the reunion, calling on representatives of each line to present memories handed down to them about the Karrs.

Jason Kitchin, of the Julius Karr line, a lifetime resident of the Cass City area, urged all the young people present interested in their forebears to ask questions of their elders. He has written a history of the times and family during his era.

Irl Messner, representing the Jerome Karr line, flew in from California and talked about his memories of Cass City as a young lad.

Preston Karr, of the Jerome Karr line spoke briefly, as did Ed Karr of the Frary Karr line.

Ed Karr, former Elkland township supervisor, still lives in the home owned by his father, Claude Karr. He brought with him a grain cutting cradle made in the cradle factory of Palmer Karr on his farm on Bay City-Forestville Road, a mile east of Cemetery Road. The property is now farmed by a great-great-grandson of Frary Karr, David J. Milligan.

Paul Karr's uncle, Harrison Karr, 89, was the oldest member present. He came from California for the reunion with his wife and son, Dr. Norman Karr, who also brought his wife. Harrison Karr was a Methodist minister following the footsteps of his father, the late Rev. Norman Karr, later taught at several universities, and ended his career in the public relations department at the University of California. He has written several books.

HIGHLIGHT OF THE program was the talk by Dr. Norman Karr on his tracing of the Karr family tree throughout the United States and Canada via telephone calls, letters, personal visits with family and friends over a number of years. He also visited libraries, consulted city directories and census reports, and hired professional genealogists.

While traveling through Canada a few days before the reunion, hoping to come up with the missing link on Moses Karr and his forebears, his motor home had a flat tire in front of a country home.

The owner invited him to pull into his driveway to change the tire. The man's name was Carr and he showed Norman Karr a book giving data on early residents of the area, among which was the name of Palmer Carr. Some members of the Moses Karr line changed their last name to Carr or Kerr.

The Palmer Carr listed in the book owned a cradle and scythe factory in Canada, as did the Palmer Karr who lived on the Bay City-Forestville farm now farmed by David Milligan. As Palmer Karr came from Canada, the family believes it may have been the same person.

Norman Karr's research hasn't uncovered when and from where Moses Karr left the British Isles and landed in New York State. Vernita Knight of Cass City was appointed at the reunion as secretary for the next five years. Family members who uncover any information about Moses Karr are asked to send it to her.

Miss Knight arranged details for the reunion.

Others aiding in providing information for the family tree were Alton and Ma, Mark; Edwin, Preston; an Irvin Karr; Jason Kitchin; Harold McGrath, Bill Pfeiffer; John Zinnecker, Iris M. Eachern, and Asel Karr.

The James A. Milligan entertained Paul Karr, S and his wife, Yvonne, at their home on Bay City-Forestville Road, a farm Mr. Milligan inherited from his parents, Robert and Grace (Karr) Knight.

Elisabeth Althaus-Koepfgen Road, Mrs. Milligan's sister, entertained Mrs. Harrison Karr and Dr. and Mrs. Norman Karr. After the reunion, the four toured Michigan.

The family may hold another reunion in five years. (Rewritten from article prepared by Lucile Knight.)

FAMILY CRADLE - William Kitchin of Van Dyke Road cuts some rye with a cradle made by Palmer Karr. John Zinnecker bought it from Jake Joos, 97, who was five years old when his father bought it new from Karr for $5. Kitchin and Zinnecker are both Karr family members. Kitchin, 76, who used a cradle as a boy, said they went out of common usage around 1900.

BEHIND THE HORSES - Stanley Karr (right) and his hired hand, Harve Klinkman, and their horses were plowing when this photo was taken. Karr, who died in 1920, was the son of John Karr and the grandson of Frary Karr. David J. Milligan, a descendant, now farms the property, at Bay City-Forestville and Koepfgen Roads.

Cass City police reported Monday afternoon that Sara Brown, 16, of 4451 N. Jacob Road, eastbound on Main Street, collided with a westbound car as she was turning north onto Seeger Street.

When everybody used fans, nobody cared about EER.

Years ago, when summers got hot enough to fry an egg on the sidewalk, you could switch on the fan and hope for a change in the weather. The last thing you cared about was energy efficiency rating, or EER.

Today, air conditioners keep people comfortable during the summer heat. And it's important to know that some units use less electricity than others to do the same job.

So, if you're buying a new portable air conditioner to cool one room, or central air conditioning to cool the whole house—look for a model with a high energy efficiency rating—or EER number. You'll save energy and money if you buy a model with an EER of 8 or more.

Air conditioners, like refrigerators and other major appliances, are big energy users. And the more efficient they are, the less they cost to operate.

So it's important to use all your major appliances properly and keep them in good operating condition.

Offer tips for better dog care

Being left alone in a car may be your dog's pet peeve—and with good reason! The sun beating down on metal and glass can make a furnace of the car, and a dog can actually suffocate from it.

When you must leave your pet in a parked car, be sure to park in a place that will stay shady. Leave windows on both sides of the car at least partially opened. If you'll be away for any length of time, be sure to leave a pan of water on the floor.

Skin irritations and diseases are often a gnawing nuisance to dogs as well as men. At some time or another, your dog may get moist skin eczema, hot spot sores or excessive itching resulting in scratching. His skin should be treated as gently and carefully as your own.

Detroit man drowns in Shay Lake Saturday

A 28-year-old Detroit man, William F. Fish, drowned early Saturday in Shay Lake.

Fish, his father, and some others were staying at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson Buchanan at 108 Fish Point Drive, Silverwood.

Fish had been up all night, state police from the Caro post were told, then went swimming alone.

Mrs. Buchanan said she was awakened at 5:30 a.m. by Fish's shouts. She ran to the lake where she saw him floundering and then go under.

Her husband, the victim's father, Frank Fish of Detroit, and uncle, Donald Washington of Oak Park, then borrowed a boat and started searching. Fish's body was found about 6:15 in about eight feet of water.

Anderson and Washington attempted mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, but to no avail. Also aiding in the rescue efforts was Donald Martin of Detroit.

The victim was pronounced dead on arrival at Caro Community Hospital. An autopsy was later performed at St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw.

Fish was the second person to drown in Tuscola county this year. The first, Patrick Sholes, 16, of Davison, drowned May 19 in a gravel pit near Vassar.

Chain saw accident

Lynn Albee in narrow escape

Lynn Albee of 4859 N. Seeger Street was released from Huron Memorial Hospital Tuesday where he was taken after accidentally cutting himself in the neck with a chainsaw Sunday afternoon.

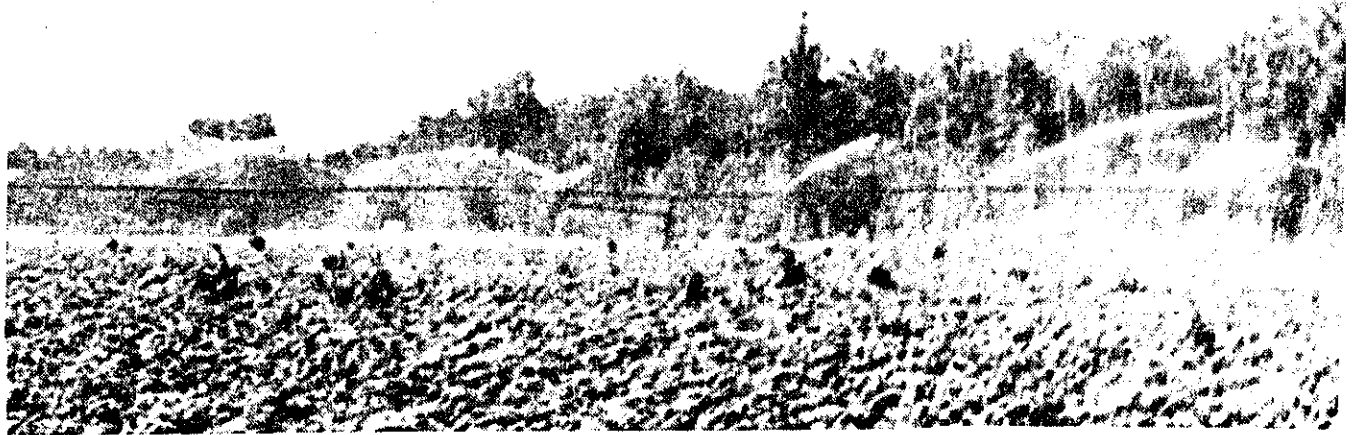

Albee said he was using the saw near Uby and was having problems with the oiler. He held the saw up to see if the chain was getting oil. The moving chain hit a tree, kicked back, and caught him in the neck. Albee was with Bob Stickle and Roland Pakonen at the time. He said someone who lived across the road, whose name he didn't know, drove him to the hospital in Bad Axe, where several stitches were taken.

"I was very fortunate," Albee said at home Tuesday. He was planning to stay there a couple days for further recuperation before returning to work at Albee Hardware.

Walthers build big on potato chips

Multi-million dollar business now thriving in new Tuscola county locations

A new multi-million dollar business has moved into eastern Tuscola county and the chances are good that you never even heard about it.

And if you did know about the Walther Brothers from the Clio area the chances are equally good that you didn't know just how big Leonard Walther and Sons, Inc., really is.

The Walthers are potato farmers. Looking at them you'd probably guess that they were in the farming business. You'd guess that they were farmers, working farmers, by their clothes. By their dust covered shoes. By the weather tanned faces. By their low key approach to the mammoth enterprise they ramrod. They act and react like successful farmers everywhere.

And like successful farmers everywhere they are hard working, hard headed big businessmen.

You have to be big to farm over 2,000 acres every year. This is the firm's first year in Tuscola county. They have around 800 acres planted into potatoes.

The Walthers plant only two crops, potatoes and corn. They are potato farmers first and use the corn for crop rotation every four or five years.

About 475 of the area acres are in the former "Gagetown swamp", about five miles northwest of Cass City. 300 plus acres more are planted on Little Road, southwest of Cass City. All of the land is becoming productive for the first time.

The land is owned by Alvin Ortnier. It's turned into farm land by clearing, tiling and irrigation.

Irrigation is the key to productive potato farming. It's not all installed yet and the Walthers are working long hours to get it going.

The land, the irrigation equipment and the equipment used to install it belong to Ortnier.

The Walthers are helping with the work because water is needed now to insure a crop.

Besides, the brothers will have plenty of years left to be repaid for their work this season.

The company has leased the land for 20 years.

When you talk to Bob or Tom Walther both are self depreciating. Like 2,000 acres of farming isn't all that unusual.

BIG EQUIPMENT

Take tractors, for instance. Gosh, we've got maybe five or six, says Bob sheepishly. Not so reticent is his young son, perhaps 11 years old.

Dad, he pipes up, we've got 10 tractors, and starts counting on his fingers. . . there's the Steiger, the John Deere, the 4-wheel . . . he tucked them off one by one.

Dad allowed that was right. He should be forgiven for forgetting about a couple or so. After all there's plenty of other equipment.

There are two potato harvesters, a couple of semi-trucks, a combine, an airplane and spraying equipment to go with it.

The plane serves a dual purpose. Both Bob and Tom are pilots. They fly to and from their farm in Clio (there's about 1,000 acres there, most of which they own) and use it to spray the crop.

We average a spraying about every nine days, Bob says, and it costs about $5 or $6 an acre to do it using our own equipment.

The plane is also used to fly to the Upper Peninsula where the company grows seed potatoes.

The potatoes grown there are planted in the 2,000 acres in Cass City-Clio and what's left is sold. A deal has already been made with a Florida businessman.

GUARANTEED MARKET

Bob made that deal long before the crop was in. The Walthers have to be the envy of all area farmers who are seeking some sort of guaranteed market for their produce. They've got one.

They produce a special potato for a special market. They know who will buy 75 percent or more of their production before the seed is planted.

Potatoes are sold on a contract to Paramount and Made Rite Potato chip companies. The price is already determined.

The brothers don't say how much the contract calls for but point out that it is near the usual market price.

There's another advantage to selling to the chip companies. There's no need for bagging. The potatoes are graded right after they come out of the harvester and shipped direct to the factories.

Most of them. When the yield is too much for the plants to process the potatoes go to a huge warehouse at Clio that holds up to 75,000 hundredweight (that's about 125,000 bushels).

PLENTY OF WORK

All that modern equipment cuts costs but it doesn't make it the life of Riley for the owners.

There's work, plenty of it. All the time.

Right now with the irrigation system just getting underway constant checking is needed.

The brothers take turns sleeping in a trailer hauled to the site. The inspection schedule that Tom followed one night called for him to make a check at 10 p.m.; another at midnight, and another at 6 a.m. the next morning. That's when nothing went wrong. Presumably a malfunction could very well mean a night's sleep lost.

COMES NATURALLY

Working for the brothers comes naturally. The company was formed by their dad, now semi-retired. The brothers are hoping to reduce their schedule a little. Plans call for a week off in the summer as well as the usual week's vacation in the winter. But not this year with the new fields to care for.

It will be after the harvest. That starts in a couple of weeks. The fields are sprayed to kill the crop and stop growth.

From the first of August to about the middle of October is devoted to completing the harvest. The brothers hire two full time men and add migrant labor to help with the field grading.

When all the work is done this fall the Walthers confidently look to a good crop. Given a normal summer, they say, the irrigated fields should average some 500 bushels to the acre.

That means a million-bushel crop and a multi-million dollar business.

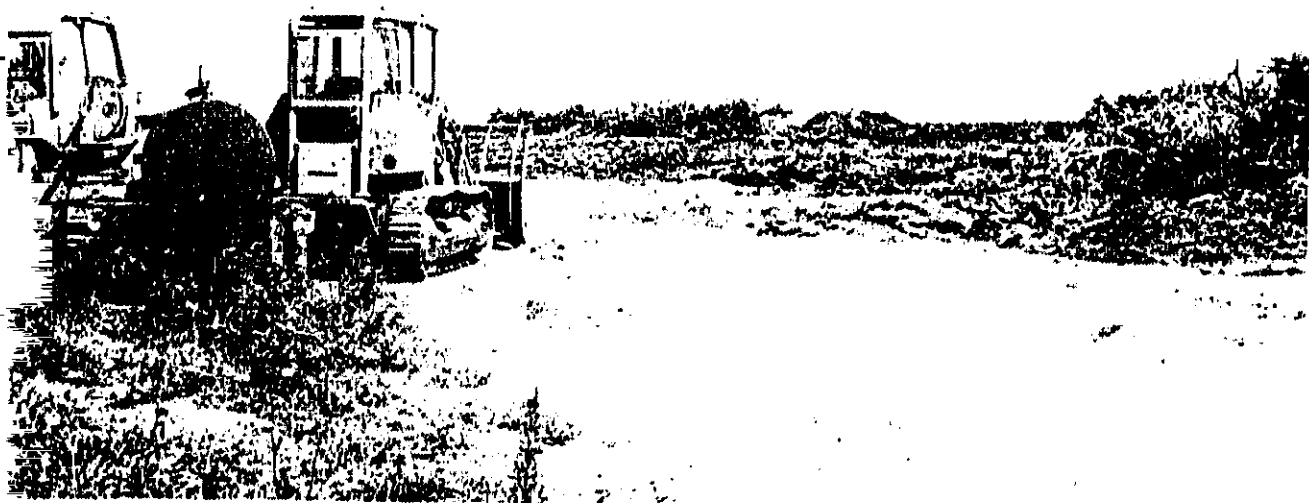

And that's a lot of potato chips.

THE PIPE IS laid at the bottom of this trench and soon it will be bringing much needed water to this section of a huge potato crop.

WORKING WITH AN engine that pumps the water to about 500 acres of thirsty potato fields are Leonard and Bob Walther, two of the 4 brothers connected with Leonard Walthers and Sons, Inc.

RIGHT NOW this is nothing but waste land in the "Gagetown swamp" land. Next year it will be cleared, drained and irrigated for bumper potato crops.

Okay changes in new high school building

The Owendale-Gagetown Board of Education Monday night approved two changes in construction at the high school.

It approved installation of carpeting in the music room for $2,644. The vinyl flooring scheduled to be installed was to cost $1,162, so the carpeting will cost $1,482 more.

It also approved installation of terrazzo flooring in the hallway of the 1948 addition at a cost of $6,024 in place of the present tile to match the hallway flooring in the 1968 building on the east end and the new addition going up on the west end.

Board members toured the addition, walls of which are partly up.

Approved was a 1978-79 contract for Ron Susalla for $10,250 as a janitor and bus mechanic. He was being paid with federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds, which expired June 30. His salary was the amount he was scheduled to be paid with the CETA funds had the program continued.

Community Bank of Bad Axe and Citizens Commercial Savings and Loan of Flint were approved as depositories for school funds. It was announced that a hearing on a motion attorneys for property owners in the Elenbaum, Voer, and Belk parcels dissolve the stay prohibiting their transfer to other districts will be heard Friday in Ingham County Circuit Court.

A scheduled hearing Monday in Tuscola County Circuit Court in the suit brought by Owen-Gage against Elwood township concerning property taxes from the Goslin parcel was postponed.

Suplt. Ronald Erickson discussed with the board the status of negotiations with teachers and possible means of breaking the current deadlock.

Farmers have big role in water clean-up plan

Farmers will have a big role to play in clean-up efforts as part of the regional water quality improvement plan. However, the main concern expressed by agricultural interests at public hearings Tuesday in Cass City was the composition of the review board that will oversee compliance with the plan.

The Cass City High School school room was the site of noon and evening hearings on the 14-county plan issued by the East Central Michigan Planning and Development Region (ECMPDR). Other hearings being held this week in Branch and Midland.

We don't think there will be any sweeping changes in agricultural community (use of the plan)," commented Dale Raven, ECMPDR water quality planner, after the hearing.

Most of the recommendations contained in the plan, he explained, represent good farm conservation practices which agricultural agencies have recommended in the past.

The major concern expressed at the afternoon hearing, he said, concerned who will serve on the sub-regional plan integrity review board, which will oversee implementation of the plan. Expressing concern were Tuscola County Extension Director Bill Bortel; Virgil Bouck, Tuscola County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service executive director, and Caro area farmer Paul Findlay.

The board for this area will cover Tuscola, Huron, and Sanilac counties.

Their concern was whether agricultural interests will be adequately represented on the board. A question asked was whether private individuals can be appointed.

Raven said the intent is to have representatives of government agencies serve on the review board, such as Soil Conservation District, Health Department, etc., as it would make future replacements easier, as opposed to naming specific individuals. For instance, whoever is the county extension director might serve. There is no reason why an individual couldn't serve, however, according to the planner.

NON-FARM CONCERNS

Most of the questions and concerns at the Tuesday evening session involved non-farm topics.

A resident of a lakeshore subdivision in Huron county wanted to know what could be done to protect its water supply and the developer of a large subdivision at Caseville was upset over the large number of government agencies (14) he has had to deal with in his 8½ years of trying to get approval to start selling lots.

Marlette Township Supervisor Leland Fischer wanted to know why the plan called for closing township dumps. He was told regulation of dumps and sanitary landfills is done by the DNR under a state law now several years old.

A woman from Cass City was concerned about the possible disposal of solid waste from Detroit in the Thumb area. The plan doesn't recommend dumping of solid waste or sewage sludge, she was told.

The Caseville village president wanted to know "how much bite does the plan have," as opposed to merely making recommendations.

The ECMPDR is only a planning agency, its water quality division chief planner, Jim Sygo, explained. The agency will make a review each year on whether the plan is being implemented, but it has no regulatory authority.

Regulation will come from such agencies as the state Department of Natural Resources and Federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

FARM POLLUTION

Fischer from Marlette township did ask how the plan proposes controlling farm sedimentation.

Raven explained the concerns are washing of soil sediment and nutrients, such as from fertilizers and animal wastes, into waterways.

The plan proposes increased educational efforts by such agencies as the Cooperative Extension Service and Soil Conservation Service to encourage farmers to use conservation practices.

Coordinated incentive programs should be implemented between such agencies as the SCS, extension service, and Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. An example, according to Raven, would be use of set-aside funds to encourage farmers to set aside a three-foot strip along ditch banks, instead of planting crops all the way to the edge of the banks and setting aside a square chunk of acreage elsewhere to comply with set-aside requirements.

The plan also recommends removal of the exemption for tillage operations from provisions of the state Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Control Act. However, farmers who became cooperators with their county Soil Conservation District would not have to get a permit for tillage operations to be in compliance with the law.

Cass City dairy farmer Don Loomis, a member of the Tuscola County Soil Conservation District board of directors, presented a statement in behalf of the district.

Included in the statement was a request for a three-year trial period to see if it is necessary to repeal the tillage operation exemption from the state law in order to control sedimentation from farms.

In addition to farm pollution, the plan also deals with controlling pollution from such sources as industry, municipal sewage treatment plants, septic tanks, runoff in urban areas and from storm sewers, sanitary landfills, construction, dredging rivers and harbors, and waterway modifications, such as channelization and impoundments.

The afternoon hearing in Cass City attracted 17 persons and the evening session, 20, most of whom did not comment publicly on the plan.

The ECMPDR board is expected to approve the plan at its Aug. 4 meeting, after which it must be approved by the governor and EPA. If all goes as planned, Raven said, final approval could come by the end of the year with implementation of the plan starting a year later.

Energy use climbs

We are burning up our oil and natural gas resources as if there's no tomorrow. But tomorrow's needs for energy will be even greater than today's.

This year the U.S. is expected to consume almost 20 million barrels of oil a day. According to The World Almanac only 10 million barrels of oil a day are produced domestically. Frightening, isn't it? By 1985 it is estimated that consumption will increase up to 25.6 barrels a day, with domestic production rising to only around 11 million barrels daily.

This harsh reality of domestic supplies lagging far behind our pace of consumption, combined with the leveling off of our rate of discovering new oil and gas fields, makes us depend more on other forms of energy from the earth: coal, uranium, water and geothermal (heat from the earth itself) energy. However, like oil and gas, these forms too are not limitless. Only if every single one of us curbs his or her seemingly unquenchable thirst for energy and takes simple steps to conserve it at home, at work and on the road can we continue to enjoy our way of life. A way of life made possible by once abundant energy supplies. We must also support efforts to discover new resources.

Sincerity is another something too rarely found today.

County board nixes magistrate nominee

By a 5-2 vote Tuesday, the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners rejected District Judge Richard F. Kern's nominee for magistrate.

The judge had recommended that Aileen Teeple of Mayville be given the position.

Board Chairman Maynard McConkey of Cass City, one of those who voted against the appointment, said the board didn't feel she was qualified.

After the vote, the judge told the board he will re-advertise for applicants for the position. He also said he will attempt to get some visiting judges to help him temporarily until a magistrate is hired.

County Drain Commissioner Ed Goodchild and Darwin McLeod, engineer on the Moore Drain project, appeared before the board to ask it to reconsider its decision of July 11 not to back sale of bonds to finance the project.

Without the county's full faith and credit behind the bonds, the expected interest rate will be 8 percent; with it, 6 1/2 percent.

The Vassar City Council has voted to go ahead with the approximately $2 million project.

Commissioners were asked to reconsider prior to the sale of bonds in about 30 days.

Aside from being asked to back the bonds, the county's direct share for the project, if it goes through, will be $370,952, payable over 20 years.

The board approved participation by the county in the county-wide soil survey being conducted by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service. Cost to the county will be no more than $5,000 per year for five years.

Townships are being asked to contribute $250 per year. Total cost to the county and townships for the five years is expected to be $46,000. The SCS pays most of the cost.

Some of the county's contribution will be "in-kind," this is, in providing equipment as opposed to money. For instance, the county may provide two cars for use by those gathering the soil samples.

Nora Cole guilty in shooting

A Circuit Court jury Friday found Nora May Cole guilty of assault with intent to commit great bodily harm less than murder in the June 18, 1977 shooting of her ex-son-in-law.

The shooting of Basim Ahmad Hmeidan with a .22 caliber rifle took place outside her home on Mertz Road (M-24), south of Caro. Hmeidan was hospitalized but later recovered.

He had come to the house to see his son, who was living there along with his ex-wife and Mrs. Cole.

Mrs. Cole was defended by Caro attorney Gary Crews, who argued during the four-day trial that his client didn't intend to murder or even harm Hmeidan, but acted in self-defense, fearing he was going to kill or harm her and her grandchildren.

Assistant Prosecutor Kathleen Boyle argued that Mrs. Cole did intend to harm Hmeidan, that there was no justification for use of deadly force and that at the time of the assault, she was not in danger.

The trial started Tuesday, July 11, and continued through Friday.

Following the verdict, Circuit Judge Norman A. Baguley scheduled sentencing for Aug. 7. Bond was continued.

Conservation hearing in Caro

Citizens of Tuscola county will have a chance to present their concerns on the future uses of natural resources in the county by responding to a public opinion survey conducted by the Tuscola County Soil Conservation District and the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

The Resource Conservation Act, passed by Congress in November 1977, calls for an inventory of soil, water and related resources such as forestry, fish and wildlife from each county in the nation. The inventory will be completed by the local soil conservation district with input from all interested groups and individuals. The appraisal of present resources and concerns expressed by the public will be the basis for programs to guide the operations of resource conservation in the years ahead in the county.

John Findlay, Reese cash crop farmer and chairman of the Tuscola County Soil Conservation District, is urging all concerned citizens to take part in the appraisal. "We must have orderly and effective uses of the soil and water resources," Findlay said. "We need to know the quality and quantity of resources of the county, what are their capabilities and limitations, what are the changes and trend in future resource uses, who will benefit and who will pay the cost? These questions will be answered by the resources conservation appraisal."

Jerry Lemunyon, district conservationist for the county, added, "This grass root public participation will give everyone in the county a chance to have a direct input into our county's soil, water and other conservation programs. We are starting to see the time when there isn't enough of everything to go around. We'll have to start making decisions on who will get to use our soil, water, forest, wildlife and other resources and make sure that we, the users, conserve and protect what we have in Tuscola county within our power to manage."

Persons wishing to participate in the Resources Conservation Act can do so by expressing their concerns and comments about the future uses of our county's natural resources to the Soil Conservation District office, 852 S. Hooper Street in Caro, or by phoning the office at 673-8174.

A public meeting to voice concerns will be held Tuesday, July 25, at 8 p.m. at the Sohigro Building on Montague Street in Caro.

Architect can help save money

Many a homeowner is reluctant to call on an architect for remodeling because an architect is believed to be unnecessary.

This is not always true and may turn out to be a penny-wise, pound-foolish omission, according to the National Home Improvement Council.

The homeowner who wishes his home to be truly well-designed would do well to consider using an architect for his remodeling project.

An architect can make a major contribution to remodeling—and sometimes even repay his fee in terms of construction savings—when the homeowner needs a new addition, or makes a basic change in the house plan or structure.

Buying the proper lawn mower

Which is the right mower for you? A walk-behind unit or a rider?

That choice will depend largely on the size of your lawn. Walk mowers are fine for any lawn up to a half-acre. Larger than that, and you should consider buying a rider, especially if health or age makes strenuous exercise unwise. In that case, a rider is a real necessity.

Once you've decided on a rider, there's still another question to be confronted: a rear-engine rider or a front-engine rider? Those two terms are truly descriptive. In the first, the operator has an unobstructed view because the engine is behind. But aside from the mowing deck and some collection or bagging device for grass clippings, there usually are no other attachments. The rear-engine rider is first and foremost a mowing machine.

The front-engine rider has that husky, tractor look and many of them have extraordinary versatility, thanks to a series of attachments that may range from a snowthrower or snow-plow to a utility cart. If the front-engine rider is your choice, and more and more Americans are opting for the front-engine rider over the rear-engine model by a vote of 2 to 1, remember it will take increased power to operate some of those attachments.

Other things to look for when you are out rider shopping? Quality of cut is a prime consideration, so check to make sure the mowing deck floats, adjusting to ground contours. This provides double protection against scalping and assures smooth, even cuts. Stability is important: wide-track pneumatic tires and cradled-in-the-chassis engine mounting combine to give excellent stability. A good idea is to check out the manufacturer's reputation for superior engineering. Safety should always play a part in the purchasing decision.

Baptist and Lamotte nearing church titles

It's a near certainty now that the Baptists will win the National Division and Lamotte will cop the American division of the Cass City Church League.

The races that remain are for one of the four play-off spots in each division where all but the Catholics in the 12-team league, have a chance to make it.

Shabbona, in a tough fight with the Lutherans for second place in the National Division, won an important decision over the Colwood Cubs July 11. The score was 12-9 as Roy Sefton outthrew Dave Smith.

Tim and Randy Severance and Durrell Caister cracked three hits each for the winners while Dwayne Smith, with four hits, and Jim Dorland and Dave Smith with two hits each, paced the Cubs.

Sefton celebrated his first start as a pitcher with the victory.

Deford Blue retained an outside chance to win the American division with a 13-10 win over Cass City Missionary. Alvin McKee bested Jim Tuckey who relieved Martin.

Greg Reynolds with five hits and Clare Trischler with three hits paced the winners. Rapping two hits each for Missionary were: Doug Taylor, Jim Brown, Paul Harmer, Mike Klinkman.

Friday, Church of Christ kept its hopes alive for reaching the play-offs by whipping the Methodists, 17-5.

Gary Warju pitched the win over Doug O'Dell, Warju, Dean Little and Keith Little rapped two hits for the winners. The Methodists were led by Louie Salas and Rusty Hoag, with two hits.

In another Friday game, the Baptists continued to roll with an 8-4 decision over the American division leaders.

The winners backed Jack

Hillaker with a 14-hit attack to register the win over Lee Hirsch.

Leroy Moshier rapped two hits for Lamotte while Jim Hillaker had four hits and Ron Ouvry two hits, including a homer for the Baptists. Others with two hits were Elwyn Helwig and Pastor Teall.

Monday night Elwyn Helwig took the mound for the Baptists and proceeded to mow down the Deford Red team, 17-0. Helwig tossed a one-hitter and struck out 17. Jim Hillaker, Brian Helwig, Mark Guinther and Randy Ferris had two hits for the winners. The lone Red hit was by Lewis Tibbits.

Lamotte got back on the right track with an 11-5 decision over Colwood Lions as Jim Keller bested Jerry Toner.

Jim Keller rapped two hits for the winners while Toner and G. Smith had two hits each for the losers.

In the early games Monday, Deford Blue edged Shabbona, 5-4, and Lutherans topped Colwood Cubs, 2-0.

McKee topped Les Severance on the mound for the win for the Blues. Pacing the winners were Tom Dorland, Bernie Babich and Greg Reynolds with two hits each. Terry Hendrick rapped two hits, including a triple, for Shabbona. Kim Copeland also chipped in with a three-bagger.

Ken Martin Jr. pitched a strong game to lead the Lutherans to the win over Colwood and Dave Smith. Martin whiffed six on his way to the shutout.

Ron Nurnberger, Al Witherspoon, Dale Iseler and Bob Hennessey cracked hits for the winners while Dave Smith led all sticklers with two safeties for the losers.

Giants nip Tigers for play-off championship

The co-champions of the Cass City Little League battled to the wire Monday night before the Giants won the play-offs with a 4-3 decision over the Tigers.

Like the battles during the regular season the game was as close as it could possibly be.

The winners started with a three-run rally in the first inning. The Tigers bounded back with a run in the second and two more in the third.

That's the way the score stayed until the final inning when the Giants shoved across the winning run on a passed ball.

In other play-off games, the Tigers topped the Cubs in the first round and then stopped the Orioles. The Orioles bested the Pirates in the first round.

The Giants needed only a win over the Yanks to get to the finals.

Playing for the losing Tigers were: Mike Ware, Mark Rutkowski, Eric LaJoie, Jim Crawley, Joe Harmer, Eddie Robinson, Duane Wright, Tom Lefler, Randy Nicholas, Charles Creason.

Others were Pat Withey, David Miller, Duane Richmond. Coaches were Phil Robinson, Dave Ware and Jim Lefler.

Osentoski splits pair

When teams of local players compete it's always an event with more than the usual amount of interest. It happened Wednesday, July 12, as Osentoski faced Charmont in the SanCass League.

Osentoski won, 11-8, as Gary Mellendorf got the nod over Jim Turner.

Osentoski looked as if they were going to walk all over Charmont in the early going as they took a 7-0 lead after two innings. But Charmont gap to 8-6 after five innings.

A three-run spurge in the sixth then salted the game away for the Auctioneers.

Ed Lowe with a single, double and a triple and Ron Ouvry with two triples among his three hits were big stickers for Osentoski.

Ed Stoutenburg also cracked three hits. Chuck Bliss, Dave Wilson and Roy Sefton with three hits each were the powers at the plate for the losers.

Thursday, July 13, Osentoski fell before the slants of Lee Swartendruher of Bay Port Merchants, 4-2.

Swartendruher limited Osentoski to one hit by Marty Zawilinski.

The winners touched Ed Stoutenburg for only five hits but that was enough for the victory.

Charmont wins Flint tourney

Cass City Charmont won five straight games in a week-end fastpitch tourney at Flint July 14-16, to win the class C-D invitational.

The softballers opened with a 4-2 decision over Ace Hardware of Ann Arbor. Matt Dijak of Reese with two hits showed the way.

Mary Williams of Flint fell next, 6-1. Mike Murphy rapped three hits in as many tries, including an inside the park home run.

Lawson Products of Watertown bowed, 7-2. Jerry Toner, Don Galbraith and Dale Auslander each rapped three hits.

The final two games were against Markee Electric of Flint.

Rob Alexander paced the robust Charmont attack with three hits, including a pair of triples, in the 7-2 decision in the first game.

In the championship game it was no contest. Cass City rolled to a 15-5 decision in five innings as the winners rapped 20 hits.

Craig Helwig, who won all five games for Charmont, was voted the most valuable pitcher. He walked only two men in 35 innings.

Don Galbraith led Cass City with 12 runs batted in and 10 hits in 17 times at the plate.

School cagers win tourney

The Cass City High School summer basketball tournament trail ended on a pleasant note for next year's varsity cagers as they won at St. Charles Saturday.

The boys will play in the summer games in Cass City as their last activity until the season starts in November.

The team played two games to win the championship. A scheduled contest against Carrollton was forfeited when the Saginaw area school didn't appear.

The Hawks then went on to win their next games, defeating St. Charles in the finals.

By Frank Chappell,
American Medical Association

Does your throat hurt? If so, you may console yourself with the knowledge that you have plenty of company.

Sore throat is one of the more common physical discomforts that plague most of us from time to time.

The American Medical Association points out that sore throat is nature's warning system that something in your body is out of order.

Often a sore throat accompanies a common cold, and the soreness passes in a few days. Sore throat also can be the symptom of any of a wide range of diseases, from diphtheria to leukemia, that require your physician's skill, not your guessing, to diagnose.

Sometimes tonsils and adenoids are involved in causing a sore throat, and when these organs repeatedly cause trouble they frequently are removed. Sometimes the removal helps prevent sore throat, sometimes it doesn't.

Allergies can cause sore throats. Cold, dry air can trigger it. So can extreme thirst, excessive smoking or mouth breathing. Anything that dries out the throat and cuts off secretions that normally wash dust away.

Virus infections of many types also are a cause of sore throat, and everyone who has had influenza knows that this particular virus disease often causes the throat to hurt.

"Strep throat" is a serious infection that occasionally leads to rheumatic fever and possible heart damage. It can be knocked out with penicillin, if diagnosed in time.

The crucial diagnostic test in sore throats is the swab test, through which germs causing the trouble can be identified.

There is little or nothing you can do to cure a sore throat at home. There are medications which bring temporary easing of the discomfort, but the cure must be launched by your physician.

Eastern Star chapter plans activities

Decker Chapter No. 438, Order of the Eastern Star, held its regular meeting July 11. Worthy Matron Iva Rockwell welcomed members and read a patriotic poem. The group participated in a proficiency renewal, conducted by Worthy Patron Basil Morse.

The worthy matron announced the following activities:

Saturday, July 29, from 9 a.m.-5 p.m., rummage sale at temple. (Members please bring articles priced Friday night, July 28.)

Aug. 8, regular meeting, dedication of door knockers.

Sept. 5, regular meeting, initiation with guests. Members are urged to attend.

Lunch was served by Barbara Rockwell and Bonnie Laming.

Corn yield survey set

A national corn objective yield survey using 3,200 samples is being conducted this summer and fall in 18 major corn producing states. In Michigan, the Michigan Crop Reporting Service is in charge of the survey with 120 corn samples to be visited.

Trained enumerators with the farm operator's permission, will make on the spot plant and ear counts to estimate yield per acre, using four 15-foot row sections selected at random. In addition, ears are measured to determine corn development.

These visits, starting in late July, will be made monthly until harvest. After harvest, re-visits to 30 fields will be made to determine the amount of grain missed by the harvester.

All field observations and data provided by the producer serves as a base for monthly corn production estimates published by the Michigan Crop Reporting Service.

People should welcome our daylight saving time, it's about all they can today.

Up cost of basic S.S. insurance

Starting in July, the basic premium for the medical insurance part of Medicare will increase to $8.20 a month, up from the $7.70 it has been since July, 1977, according to Elaine Blake, Social Security field representative in Saginaw.

People who pay the premium directly will notice the increase in their bills. People who have the premium deducted from their Social Security check probably will not notice the increase because of the much larger increase in their Social Security check as a result of the cost-of-living increase that goes into fact with July checks.

Some people pay a higher amount than the basic premium. This is because there was a period of 12 months or more that they were eligible for medical insurance but were not enrolled for this protection.

The increase in the basic premium amounts to 10 percent for each such 12-month period. Even with the slight increase, Ms. Blake said, the people covered pay only out 30 percent of the cost while the federal government pays the remaining 70 percent from general revenue.

The basic premium will remain $8.20 a month through June, 1979.

Those interested can get more information about Medicare and Social Security retirement, survivor, and disability benefits at the new Social Security office in the Federal building downtown Saginaw. The phone number is 771-0000.

Novesta rejects

road bids

The Novesta Township Board at a recent special meeting rejected the two bids received by the Tuscola County Road Commission for ditching, grading and graveling of Severance Road between Englehart and Crawford Roads.

The lower of two bids on the one mile stretch had been $25,750.

Instead, the board requested the road commission to obtain bids for ditching and grading two miles of Severance between Englehart and Lamton Roads. Along with obtaining bids, the road agency will have to hold a public hearing.

Township Supervisor Bill O'Dell said it is anticipated the bid for that work will be less than that for the one mile stretch, which included graveling.

Work on the two miles probably will be done this year, with graveling done next year.

Has Announced His

CANDIDACY FOR COMMISSIONER DISTRICT 2 REPUBLICAN TICKET

This area consists of Elmwood, Elkland, Ellington and a portion of Kingston townships.

Cliff was raised on a farm near Cass City and graduated from Cass City High School.

During World War II he served as a 1st. Lt. in the U.S. Marines as a Navy flight instructor.

Returning to Cass City after the war he purchased the John Deere Equipment Agency which he ran for 18 years. After having sold this he and his wife, Mary, opened "Ryan's Men's Wear" in Cass City and ran that for 10 years.

Since this time Cliff has been associated with "Rabideau Farm Supply" and "Auten Motor Sales."

He also served on the Village Council for eight years.

Cliff feels his past successful business experience and knowledge of the townships and county, along with being able to devote full time to the office of Commissioner qualifies him as a candidate.

Your Support In The Primary Election
Aug. 8, 1978, Will Be Greatly Appreciated.
