In Goslin case

Owen-Gage fights on, seeks court rehearing

By Mike Eliasohn

"We're still fighting," said Supt. Ronald Erickson. His comment came after the Owendale-Gagetown School Board Monday night authorized its attorney, James F. Schouman, to petition the state Court of Appeals for a rehearing of its decision in the Goslin parcel case.

Other legal action "as circumstances warrant" was also authorized. The board's unanimous voice vote came after it siddled with Schouman and Erickson in executive session for one hour.

The appeals court ruled Oct. 1 that the Goslin parcel, which now has a state equalized valuation of $4.2 million, was part of the Cass City School District.

The justices disagreed with Owen-Gage's contention that once more than 10 percent of the district's original valuation was transferred away, a public vote was required on all subsequent transfers.

It thus upheld the state board of education's 1976 transfer of the property to Cass City.

Prior to the executive session, Schouman outlined the board's three options: Do nothing, petition the state Supreme Court for a reversal of the appeals court decision, or petition the latter court for a rehearing.

After the meeting, he declined to explain what will be the basis for the rehearing request, as he didn't want to reveal his legal strategy.

The motion must be filed by Oct. 21, the date by which the appeals court decision would otherwise take effect.

In its opinion, the appeals court said the state law on property transfers regarding the 10 percent rule is "unambiguous."

It further said the state Supreme Court had already addressed the 10 percent issue in an earlier appeal by Owen-Gage. The high court in December, 1977 cited the state law that a public vote is required only when "the latest available taxable valuation of the area to be detached is more than 10 percent of the latest available taxable valuation of the entire school district from which it is to be detached."

The Supreme Court then said, "The record discloses that the latest available tax valuation of the area to be detached in this case (the Goslin parcel) is less than 10 percent of the Owendale-Gagetown School District as constituted at the time of the state Board of Education decision" (transferring it to Cass City).

Even if the Owen-Gage board chose to not contest the appeals court decision, Schouman said, there is still the question of where the Goslin taxes should go.

His position is that under the appeals court ruling, the Goslin property doesn't become part of Cass City (if Owen-Gage wasn't contesting it) until Oct. 21, thus all taxes from there from past years go to Owen-Gage.

And since Sept. 1 is the deadline for certifying which property goes where for tax purposes, taxes to be paid starting this December for 1979 also go to Owen-Gage.

In response to a question, the Dearborn attorney also said that all Goslin property owners, even if part of Cass City, must still pay the tax levy for the Owen-Gage High School addition, in accordance with state law.

State law says that all property in a district at the time of the original levy must pay for the bonding issue, even if the property is later transferred elsewhere. According to Schouman, the law takes precedent over any agreements that might have been made when dissident property owners challenged the bond issue for the high school addition.

He thus predicted that issue will also wind up in court.

The attorney for the Goslin property owners, Robert Kleeb of Howell, contacted by the Chronicle Tuesday, agreed with Schouman on only one point.

That is, it is not clear at what point in the legal proceedings the Goslin parcel became part of the Cass City district, and therefore, the courts will have to decide where the taxes paid during the years of litigation should go.

"Our position, of course, is that Goslin and the group became members of the (Cass City) school district at the time of the original state board action (in May, 1976)," he commented.

"It's probably the only time I've agreed with Schouman. There is an argument to be made for both sides."

Various arguments from both sides in two Owen-Gage suits filed last December in an effort to get the 1978

County Board of Commissioners, the 1978 state equalized valuation of the Goslin transfer will ultimately be assigned to the Owendale-Gagetown Area School District.

In light of that, the auditors included in revenue, $82,269 from Goslin taxpayers. The district hasn't actually received that money yet. (Goslin revenue from 1977-78 is listed at $66,142.)

Tuesday, Tuscola County Treasurer Elgene Keller told the Chronicle operating school taxes from Goslin were paid to the Cass City district; the 1.0 mill 1967 debt levy was paid to Owen-

Gage. The 1976 debt levy of 4.3 mills for the Owen-Gage High School addition wasn't collected as her understanding is, the Goslin taxpayers weren't liable. (See sidebar story.)

The remaining property tax revenue was listed at $706,558 ($597,428 in 1977-78). Other major revenue sources are categorical state aid $43,082 ($49,719 last year) and federal aid, $74,812 ($58,916).

On the expense side of the ledger, legal bills showed a big jump from the previous year, up from $52,361 to $78,597.

Other big increases came in heating fuel, from $16,290

Federal cracks could obsolete school building

A Federal directive explained Monday night to the Cass City School Board could result in obsoleting the district's 50-year-old Intermediate School building.

The directive requires that school buildings be barrier-free for handicapped students or face the cut-off of all Federal funds. Since the Intermediate building is three stories, that means one of the requirements for compliance would be to install an elevator.

What that would cost is unknown but guesses Monday started at $100,000.

Making the building barrier-free will probably be undertaken only as a last resort.

Supt. Don Crouse said that before any action of this type were taken an exhaustive attempt would be made to provide alternative programs for the handicapped, that meet Federal regulations.

In any event it promises to be a while before the district will be forced to a decision.

The first step was taken Monday. A committee was authorized to study the facilities to determine accessibility for handicapped students. It will include 14 members. To be named will be teachers and principals from each school as well as parents of handicapped students and handicapped students themselves.

The new regulations are part of a comparatively recently adopted law designed to aid the handicapped.

Although there is a major problem in the Intermediate School, changes are expected to have to be made in all the buildings. Crouse told the board that he did not anticipate trouble meeting Federal regulations in the other district buildings.

JUNK POLICY

The school board junked a policy that it had established when it authorized an expenditure that was not placed on the agenda.

Previously members had voted not to consider items of this type unless they were on the formal agenda.

What members voted unanimously to do was spend $1,000 over the course of the school year to help sponsor special programs for students.

Trustee Dr. Ed Scollon had suggested $1.00 per student which would have totaled $2,000. That was cut in half after Crouse reminded the board that the school will operate in the red in the 1979-80 school year.

Placing the amount in the new school budget was suggested by President Geraldine Prieskorn after a presentation by Mrs. Holly Althaver asking for $200 to help pay for an artist in residence as one of the facets of a Bach Festival in the village. The $200 was quickly okayed.

SEEK ARBITRATION

The Tri-county Bargaining Association which represents Cass City teachers asked for binding arbitration over a wage dispute centered around language in the master contract.

At stake is $2,000 to be divided among the teachers on the staff.

OKAY EXPENDITURES

The board also okayed two special expenditures. One was for a building and equipment appraisal at a cost roughly estimated at $5,000.

The appraisal is necessary, Crouse said, so that the co-insurance carried by the school would be accurate in case of a loss. The last time an appraisal was made was about 5 years ago and the cost then was $1,700.

The second authorization was for $2,000 for an automatic fire control system and a hood for the French frier. These changes are also mandated by insurance requirements.

OTHER BUSINESS

The board voted not to lease school land for oil drilling. An offer had been received from Tommy Holmontaller of $5.00 per acre plus $1.00 per acre per year for up to 10 years.

A committee was formed to open and award bids for the sale of 3 used school buses.

The district will join with other districts in Tuscola Intermediate District to receive funds as part of a staff development and career education consortium. By joining, Crouse explained, there will be more money available than there would be to the school singly.

Free prizes, top values featured in Oktoberfest

A new promotion for Cass City area shoppers is announced this week by the Cass City Retail Committee. It features hundreds of free prizes at participating stores and a giant free prize drawing at the conclusion of the three-week event.

This is the way it works. In today's paper on the first page of the second section is an advertisement with a number on it. Each paper has a different number. Papers are numbered from 1,000 to 9,500.

All the shopper has to do is take the ad with the number and compare it with numbers posted in participating Cass City stores. Match the numbers and win the prize or prizes offered in the various stores.

A word of caution. Hang on to your numbered copy for the full 3 weeks of the Oktoberfest. For at the end of the event there will be a giant Oktoberfest drawing for one of five prizes. That drawing is scheduled at noon in front of the Cass Theatre

Saturday, Oct. 27.

If the number drawn matches the number on your ad you win. Offered is the choice of a television, lounge, shotgun, table saw and router or a $300 shopping spree at one of the participating stores.

Naturally you must be present to win. In addition to the free prizes most stores are offering special sales and discounts that promise to stretch inflation weary budgets, spokesmen for the Retail Committee said.

Hutchinsons celebrate 70 years of marriage

Frank and Jennie Hutchinson remember it was a beautiful fall day when they were married.

They were married in the home of the then Jennie

Leek's parents. Most couples were married back then in a private home, Mrs. Hutchinson explained, when asked why they weren't married in a church. "You know," she added, "you're going way back - 70 years." Saturday marked the 70th wedding anniversary for the Hutchinsons, who since 1927 have been living in their farm home on Cemetery Road, just north of Cass City High School.

The family celebration was held Sunday at the close-by home of their son and daughter-in-law, Grant and Mary Hutchinson. Also present were their grandsons and their wives and children: Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hutchinson and children, Jeff, Mike and Lynne; of Freeland and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hutchinson and Sarah of Camp Hill, Penn.

And in a reminder of their wedding day, they rode Sunday morning via horse and buggy to Trinity United Methodist church, courtesy of Jack Esau, keeper of the turn-of-the-century open carriage that was donated to the Historical Society, and Jim Milligan, owner and driver of the team.

THE HUTCHINSONS met at the old and no-longer standing Cass City High School.

They remember their first date.

Frank, now 92, played alto horn in the village band, which went on the annual businessmen's excursion via train to Caseville. He asked Jennie to go along.

Mrs. Hutchinson, now 91, graduated from CCHS in 1908. She was 20 then. After finishing the eighth grade at Leek School at Mushroom and Crawford Roads in Kingston township, her parents made her stay home three years before they thought she was old enough to board with a family in town and attend high school.

After graduating, she taught a semester in Caro and one semester in Vanderbilt (north of Gaylord), where she had some friends, but decided she didn't care for teaching.

Her husband-to-be had graduated from eighth grade at McConnell School at what is now the M-53-M-81 intersection, but was living in town when he attended high school.

He dropped out after the 11th grade when his parents took him to Oklahoma for a year to cure him of his asthma.

O-G budget balances precariously

Despite legal expenses of $78,597, the Owendale-Gagetown School District came out ahead financially in 1978-79 and paid off a considerable portion of its remaining debt.

The budget approved by the school board Monday night projects paying off the remaining debt of $49,015 by June 30, 1980.

The audit of Laine, Appold & Co., certified public accountants, of Bay City, which was approved by the board, showed general fund revenues for the fiscal year ending June 30 of $934,629 and expenses of $902,992, for a balance of $31,637.

The district started the fiscal year July 1, 1978 with a debt of $80,652. With the surplus applied to that, Owen-Gage was able to reduce the debt to $49,015 by the end of the year.

The audit does include one "if" - taxes from the Goslin parcel, which the Michigan Court of Appeals said last week is part of the Cass City district (as of Oct. 21).

The auditors included revenue from the Goslin parcel from last year, noting, "It is the opinion of the legal counsel of the district (James F. Schouman) that, regardless of whatever ruling the Court of Appeals renders and notwithstanding the action of the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners, the 1978 state equalized valuation of the Goslin transfer will ultimately be assigned to the Owendale-Gagetown Area School District."

In light of that, the auditors included in revenue, $82,269 from Goslin taxpayers. The district hasn't actually received that money yet. (Goslin revenue from 1977-78 is listed at $66,142.)

Tuesday, Tuscola County Treasurer Elgene Keller told the Chronicle operating school taxes from Goslin were paid to the Cass City district; the 1.0 mill 1967 debt levy was paid to Owen-

Gage. The 1976 debt levy of 4.3 mills for the Owen-Gage High School addition wasn't collected as her understanding is, the Goslin taxpayers weren't liable. (See sidebar story.)

The remaining property tax revenue was listed at $706,558 ($597,428 in 1977-78). Other major revenue sources are categorical state aid $43,082 ($49,719 last year) and federal aid, $74,812 ($58,916).

On the expense side of the ledger, legal bills showed a big jump from the previous year, up from $52,361 to $78,597.

Other big increases came in heating fuel, from $16,290

to $24,951, and electricity, from $13,055 to $25,158. (Opening of the new high school addition during the past year was a contributing factor.)

Although the total of elementary teacher salaries stayed about the same, approximately $143,000 each year, secondary teacher salaries increased from $166,463 to $175,229. Custodian salaries jumped from $37,159 to $51,049.

1979-80 BUDGET

The new budget approved by the board for the present school year projects total general fund expenditures at $864,527, a decrease from the $902,992 spent last year.

Not including revenue from the Goslin or Elenbaum parcels, total revenue is figured at $913,542 for a surplus of $49,015, enough to pay the district's remaining debt.

Including Elenbaum, the district would have a surplus of $144,363 before paying off the debt. Including Elenbaum and Goslin, the surplus would be $235,828.

The budget, prepared by Supt. Ronald Erickson, further notes that if all property transfers from the district since 1975-76 were still in

Rabbit Tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Because I am on the alumni lists of Michigan State I receive some far out literature. The latest is a gift catalog touting all types of Michigan State sweat suits, jackets, sweat shirts, rings, cups and saucers, assorted plates, travel bags and warm baby booties.

Tops in gacherie is a toilet seat with a great big Michigan State "S" on it.

One of the Chronicle's long-time subscribers is Mrs. Dwight Goodrich of Johnstown, Ohio. She renewed her subscription recently and informed us she was a reader when Herb Lenzner was publisher.

It's been 28 years ago now that I took over from Herb and it's been my aim to leave behind as solid and respected a newspaper as he did when he turned it over to me.

Regretfully the California Angels didn't win the American League play-offs.

I was pulling for them. I think anyone who was a big enough fan to send me all those copies of papers reporting the team's progress as I figure John A. Popp did should be rewarded.

I suppose, John, you were originally from Michigan. If so you should be used to losing. If not, let me clue you in to the attitude we've all been forced to adopt: Wait till next year.

Did you catch James Earl Jones Monday night on channel 19, public television?

He portrayed the life of Paul Robeson, the noted black athlete, singer, lawyer and political activist in the 1930s and 40s.

With the aid of just an accompanist on the piano he carried a full hour's show and made it very entertaining as well as informative.

At times like this you have to be grateful for what the boob tube can bring into your living room.

Safety sticker distribution set

Cass City Jaycees will be distributing "Operation Red Ball" stickers Thursday evening, Oct. 18, as an aid to firemen and persons who might have difficulty escaping in case of a fire.

The orange stickers, with symbols on them for a baby carriage, rocker and wheelchair, are placed on the front door or window of homes where small children, the elderly and handicapped live. A second sticker is placed in the window of the bedrooms where those persons sleep.

The stickers thus alert firemen in case of a fire that there might be a person inside who needs special help to escape and, if at night, their location.

The Jaycees will be contacting all houses in Cass City on the 18th, with the stickers being given out free.

Persons living outside of town who would like to get the stickers can pick them up after the 18th at the Cass City Municipal Building.

At least the guy who loses all his money manages to lose all his enemies at the same time.

STILL TURNING? -- Remains of an old wagon and a windmill create this rustic effect along S. Kingston Road, south of Kingston.

Owendale woman hurt in accident

Lorna E. Papkey, 40, of Owendale, was released from Hills and Dales General Hospital Saturday, where she was taken after an accident at 5:20 p.m. Friday.

Huron county deputies reported she was eastbound on Canboro Road, near Gettel Road in Sebawaing township, when the right front wheel slipped off the edge of the recently paved surface, causing her to lose control.

The auto traveled for 60 feet before going completely off the road, passed through a ditch and came to a halt in a field about 160 feet from the road.

According to officers, because of the recent paving, there is a considerable drop from the pavement to the shoulder.

William C. Carr, 32, of 5460 Notter Road, Gageton, sought his own treatment after an accident at 3:15 a.m. Sunday.

Tuscola deputies said he was northbound on Cedar Run Road and failed to make the curve where the road bends at Hoppe Road. The car went off the east side, struck a tree, continued on 305 feet, struck another tree, traveled 124 feet more and finally rolled over two times.

Carr was ticketed by officers on a charge of careless driving.

At 6:35 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 3, according to Caro state police, Jean Kubiak, 16, of 5489 Notter Road, Gageton, was eastbound on Phelps Lake Road and collided with a car northbound on Cat Lake Road. Driver of the other vehicle was Frank W. Butterfield, 57, of Lapeer.

Troopers reported there are no warning signs at the intersection, plus some bushes at the southwest corner obscured vision for both drivers.

At 6:50 a.m. Saturday, Caro state police said, George A. Plummer, 56, of 4528 W. Sanilac Road, Snover, was westbound on M-46, west of Wireline Road, when his car struck a deer.

Less than 15 minutes later, Michael D. Bragg, 20, of 4845 S. Phillips Road, Kingston, was westbound on M-46, west of Cat Lake Road, when his vehicle struck a deer. Sheriff's deputies investigated.

"If It Fitz..." Practicing retirement

By Jim Fitzgerald

When I return from a vacation, I'm full of zest and enthusiasm. A prolonged rest always sharpens my appetite for living and makes me eager to take another vacation.

I get the same thing from every vacation - a renewed eagerness to retire permanently, absolutely and forever and ever after.

I am continually reading nonsense about people who are forced to retire at age 60 or 65 and they kick up an awful fuss about it. They have an adequate income and there's no reason they should keep going to work every day but, gee, they simply can't stand doing nothing.

They shouldn't stand it. They should sit it. Or recline it. Or, at worst, lope it. (Loping is not the same as jogging. Lopers glide; joggers jiggle. Lopers lope to avoid running, joggers jog to avoid comfort.)

Retirees should catch a fish, hit a golf ball, read a book, take a trip, nap after lunch and, when in doubt, simply sit down.

Our go-go culture has given too many of us a guilty conscience about pure, blessed leisure. If a guy made a buck yesterday, he is uneasy if he can't make another buck today. Everyone says money isn't everything, but no one believes it. Everyone says you can't take it with you, but I know a retired auto executive who probably will advertise his consultant business on his gravestone.

It's a shame. If lousy inflation makes it impossible for a man to live decently on his retirement income, who can blame him for being a 75-year-old paperboy? These men have my sympathy and understanding. But I can't understand the elderly fat cats who won't stop lapping up the milk long enough to see what's beyond the saucer. The trouble with these birds is they never practiced retirement in their younger days. When they vacationed, they went too far too fast and always mixed in some business so the trip would be deductible. They never loped.

They never learned the gentle art of relaxing and so, when retirement came, they didn't know how to handle it. It won't happen to this Old Dad. I've been practicing retirement ever since I first heard about it, which was before I went to work.

To me, a vacation is an annual preview of a Utopia to come when my time will be my own, and no deadline will sweat my brow or squeeze my nerves. A retired man should do what he wants and so should a man on vacation - within the limits set by the law and his wife.

During a recent vacation I read eight novels because I'd rather read than, for instance, take a boat ride. I get giddy when I think of all the time a retiree has to spin through racks of paperback books.

Lately I've spent a reasonable amount of vacation time spoiling my grandchildren, the same way I used to spoil their mother by allowing her to eat spaghetti for breakfast at every Howard Johnson's on the route to Florida. So I'll be in shape to spoil my great-grandchildren who could easily arrive before I cash my first Social Security check. God help us all.

While vacationing, I like to visit the poolrooms and taverns of my youth, because that's where my old friends are. If I enjoy talking about old times today, the pleasure should be doubled when I'm 75, which means my wife will be twice as bored.

I play golf and tennis on vacation, but not much. When it comes to exercise, I choose the moderation today that my doctor may order tomorrow. I stay up late but sleep until noon, and nap frequently, while practicing for retirement.

Of course, it could be I won't live long enough to retire. A lot of people don't. But that makes the practicing all the more important, doesn't it? It is better to have loped in vain than to have never loped at all.

Busy men say they want to die with their boots on. But what's wrong with dying in bed? When my time comes, I hope they just pull the blanket up over my red nose and say:

"Well, old Jim finally reached his goal. Now he'll never have to get up."

History seems to repeat itself - gossip doesn't have to.

The Haire Net

All of us have our blind side, our pet prejudices. There are teachers that get along better with boys than girls, teachers that relate better to girls than boys.

There are cat lovers, dog lovers and those that can't abide either. If you look close enough everyone possesses a prejudice of one form or another.

That's not bad of course, only human.

This preamble brings us to Robert F. Lund. Lund is an achiever. He worked up through the ranks to become the boss of the Chevrolet division of General Motors.

It goes without saying that to do this you've got a lot on the ball... you're one of the stars of the business world.

Despite his lofty stature Lund has risen to the top carrying his prejudice with him. Lund goes overboard for athletes in general and football players in particular.

He says that football players have learned to work. They have discipline, a willingness to sacrifice, an eagerness to achieve and win and a loyalty.

That sounds reasonable but it's doubtful if it stands up when you look at it closely.

Otherwise the star athletes would be the honchos of the business world wherever you look.

It's more reasonable to assume that there will be outstanding individuals on football teams and debate squads... and culls as well.

If I were going to hire an athlete I'd be prejudiced in favor of the mile runner who finished 250 yards back of the next to last man. Or the basketball bench warmer who puts up with the practice drudgery to play only in the dying seconds of a game hopelessly won or lost.

That takes real sacrifice, real determination.

To assume that a football player will be a better bet to succeed just because he happens to possess an innate ability to perform certain physical skills is illogical.

It may be that many of the college athletes are less apt to succeed than their school brethren.

There are plenty of theory of basketball courses and football 101 classes loaded with star athletes at many colleges.

Give me the student that works like blazes to get a B, supports himself and is in love with whatever line of work he is studying for every time.

In the long run they'll outperform the athlete much of the time.

That's my theory and my prejudice.

PEDALING AROUND

Looking good

By Mike Eliasohn

I confess. I have a mad crush on Stephanie Shelton, I used to drool whenever Connie Chung was on CBS News and Robin Wright to me is the epitome of tough-minded sophistication (whatever that means).

What do they all have in common? They are all television newswomen, of if you prefer, news persons.

Also, all work or worked for CBS News, but I'm sure that is merely coincidence. I no doubt would like Jane Pauley if I watched the Today program on NBC, but at 7 a.m., my eyes cannot focus on anything smaller than a bowl of cereal, so at that hour, I listen to radio instead.

I must also admit that for a woman close to 50, I think Barbara Walters of ABC looks terrific. Of course, for the $1 million a year she is getting, she can afford to look terrific.

All this comes to mind because "Parade," the Sunday newspaper magazine, recently ran an article entitled, "TV Women Cover News, Make It, Too." The subtitle was, "They invade a male domain as reporters, win praise of viewers and colleagues."

Included with the article were photographs of seven newswomen from local stations across the country.

What struck me, I suppose in more ways than one, is that none of them were dogs. The only one who was less than very attractive only qualified because she had a weird hairdo.

The article reinforces my opinion of television news, which is shared, I dare say, by most newspaper people, that the primary requirements for television news people is that they be good looking.

Being good reporters and being able to speak clearly helps, but it's not the primary requirement.

There is one exception. Channel 5 in Saginaw isn't any better at presenting the news than any other run-of-the-mill station, but they do have some reporters who are, at best, ordinary looking.

But at most stations, and even on the networks, it looks like a double-knit beauty show.

Being male and I think normal, I, of course, pay special attention to the women reporters.

But it strikes me that with few exceptions, most of the men on television could also serve as models in cigarette ads (Zip Rzepa, late of Channel 5, excepted).

Most of the exceptions, it seems like, are on the networks, but they are primarily male.

I suspect there are few unattractive females on television because it is men who do the hiring.

It is also men who make the assignments. How else to explain Channel 5's sending its one shapely female reporter to the beach this past summer, clad (barely) in her bikini, to do a story on wind surfing, done with a sail mounted on a surfboard.

Her reporting was enough to let the wind out of a lot of men's sails.

Counseling firm payment okayed

With apparent reluctance, the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners Tuesday approved payment of a $925 bill to Planning for Living Corp. for counseling services for juveniles sent there by county Probate Judge Wallace Kent.

Sole dissenter was Commissioner Ken Kennedy of Millington.

The county board didn't know Kent was sending juveniles to the Bay City clinic instead of to the county Community Mental Health Services agency until it started getting bills from there.

The board met Sept. 25 with Kent and mental health Director Dennis Johnson in an attempt to iron out the dispute.

The judge claimed he got better service from the private clinic. Johnson said his agency has a waiting list of would-be clients and therefore must take those first with the greatest need, which usually aren't the juveniles from Probate Court.

Before voting to pay the bill, county Prosecutor Artis Noel advised the commissioners it would be difficult for the county to get out of paying the bills. A total of about $4,000 is involved.

It was reported that since the Sept. 25 meeting, Kent has met with the mental health agency staff and they are looking into having it contract with Planning for Living to provide counseling services for juveniles appearing in Probate Court. The state would then pick up a major share of the cost, as it does for all mental health programs.

SHOWING OFF the front mounted pump of the Elmwood Township-Gagetown Fire Department's new pumper truck to township treasurer Betty Russell are, from left, firemen Fred Sullivan, Chuck Wright, the chief, and Bob Dunn. The $33,000 cost is being split 50-50 between the township and village, which are paying for it over five years. The truck's tank holds 750 gallons of water, which the pump can pump out in one minute. The department's 1968 pumper now becomes its No. 2 unit. Its 1946 pumper will be kept for parades.

Open house to fete Alta Kenney on 90th birthday

Mrs. Alta Kenney, who for many years was a resident of Kingston during the village's formative years, will observe her 90th birthday in Otisville Sunday.

Mrs. Kenney was born Oct. 13, 1889, in Otisville.

In 1915, she moved to Kingston from Flushing with her husband John and together, the couple operated a Chevrolet dealership in Kingston and the Kingston Creamery Co. for 27 years.

Mrs. Kenney can recall how she and her husband would take several drivers and go to Flint. Since cars were not trucked into the local dealerships, the salesmen were all required to make the trip and drive back the new cars.

Mrs. Kenney can also remember driving the first school bus owned by the Kingston School District back from the factory in the late 1930s.

Mrs. Alta Kenney

During the time they lived in Kingston, the couple resided in town, making their home behind the former Kingston State Bank building. Kenney built the two houses which still stand back of the bank. They resided in the larger one until 1942 when they moved to Otisville.

Mrs. Kenney recalled, "I had several teachers who roomed and boarded with me for many years and also Mr. Berman, who owned the local department store."

Her husband died in 1974.

She plans to celebrate her birthday by having an open house, which will be given by her two daughters, Mrs. Pauline Lynch of Otisville, Mrs. Fred (Twila) Bardwell of Caro, and her grandchildren. She has six grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Kenney, who lives alone and does her own cooking, said that anyone can live to be 90 if they stay active. "I'm always on the go and I've always been around young people."

The open house will be held from 2-5 in her home at 232 Grove Street in Otisville, which is south of Millington on M-15.

Mrs. Kenney requests no gifts.

THE WAY IT WORKS

Friendship is a good deal like credit — the less you use it the better it is.

$79 shotgun reported stolen

Lila Naffien of 4829 N. Cedar Run Road, Cass City, reported to the sheriff's department Oct. 2 that a 12-gauge shotgun, valued at $79, was stolen from her home some time since Sept. 26.

Mark Zmierski of 6190 Ritter Road told Cass City police Friday that while his car was parked in the Cass City High School lot the previous day, someone stole the plastic covers that fitted over the centers of two of his wheels. They were valued at $5 each.

Village police at 2:25 a.m. Sunday arrested Doris J. Warack of 5651 Walsh Road, Gagetown, on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor. Her car was stopped on Church Street near Brooker.

She was taken to the county jail and later released on bond pending appearance in district court.

Crawford Road culvert gets okay

The Elkland Township Board Monday night gave approval to the Tuscola County Road Commission to install a new and longer culvert across Crawford Road south of M-81.

The road was widened last year, but the old culvert was retained, with the result the road narrows at that point. The new culvert, which should be installed yet this year, will eliminate the narrow spot.

Cost will be $8,000, of which the Road Commission will pay 75 percent, with the township picking up the remainder.

The board gave its okay for granting of state Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act agreements with Howard and Janet Muntz for a total of 250 acres in Sections 22, 5, 9 and 8, and with William and Rosa Krohn for 120 acres in Section 14.

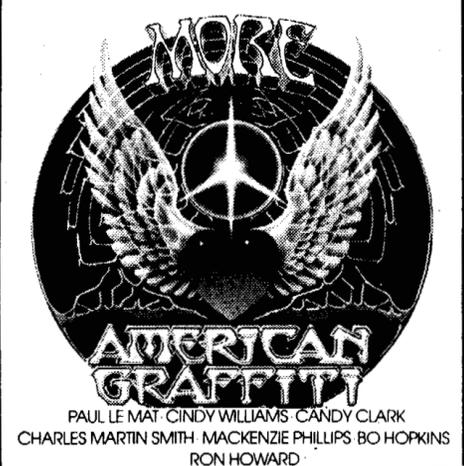

Supervisor Jack Gallagher reported the area ambulance service is proceeding well and came out ahead financially in September.

Basic values have never changed for one Cass City area pioneer family. Mr. and Mrs. William Kitchin started their farmstead in 1926 with 80 acres his father gave him. Clean living, rising early each morning, and lots of hard work entitles him to an easy retirement, but he is still milking 10 cows and would get more but it would spoil their Social Security classification.

Senior Jane Laurie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Laurie of Gageton, was crowned homecoming queen at the Owen-Gage-Mayville football game Friday night.

A new men's club will be formed in Cass City, according to Tom Woody. The club is for all adult men who feel the need for a little exercise. Volleyball, basketball, table tennis and weight lifting will be offered. The only cost to members will be in figuring a way to pay the cost of using the gym, which is $10 per night.

The North Branch of the Cass River shows lack of rain in the area along Reed Road. Aurey Frederick, who lives near the river, says that never has it been as dry

4-H ACTIVITIES

National 4-H Week

By Bernard Jardot

National 4-H Week, Oct. 7-13, is the focal point of the annual 4-H calendar.

It is the time we recognize volunteer leaders, parents, local clubs and businesses for their contributions throughout the year to the development of youth and to the betterment of the community.

4-H is unique in several ways. The largest youth-serving program in the United States, it involves more than 5.2 million young people in projects and activities that are relevant to everyday living.

It operates via a special partnership of the public, private and voluntary sectors. It serves a broad clientele - boys and girls 8-19 in all geographic areas.

The National 4-H Week theme, "Expanding Horizons," calls on 4-H members everywhere to become productive, self-directed and contributing members of society. In our rapidly changing world, it is increasingly important that young people learn life skills, prepare for meaningful careers, and assume citizenship and leadership responsibilities.

We take this opportunity to salute all those who make it possible for youth to expand their horizons through the 4-H youth program.

Feelings mixed about Pope's visit

Joe Pentowski has mixed feelings about Pope John Paul II's visit to the United States, which concluded Sunday.

"I think it was good for the church and the country," he explained.

On the other hand, he doesn't agree with everything the pope said.

Pentowski was Catholic but no longer attends church. "I started to lose faith when the church started to change," he explained.

"I think the mass is just as well said in Latin," he cited as one example.

But Pentowski also feels the church needs to change in some areas.

For instance, he feels the majority of women, including Catholic women, don't agree with the pope's rigid opposition to birth control and abortion, and neither does he.

The pope's message on his trip, in his opinion was,

"Being Catholic, you should obey the rules, but I think the majority of women aren't going to follow that line."

Pentowski and his wife Wanda live in East Detroit, where he is self-employed in the home repair business. They spend week ends on a farm they own on River Road, Cass City. One of their three children still lives at home.

Search on for nuclear test participants

The Department of Defense has been attempting to identify former military and civilian defense personnel who participated in the atmospheric nuclear tests conducted from 1945 to 1962.

Persons who participated in the tests, held largely in Nevada and at Bikini and Eniwetok atolls in the Pacific, are urged to contact the Defense Nuclear Agency if they have not done so already.

The agency is attempting to reconstruct a complete history of the atmospheric nuclear test program, including names of participants and any radiation doses they received.

One of the purposes is to enable the National Academy of Sciences and other scientific organizations to determine if there are health hazards resulting from participation in the tests.

Based upon research to date, it is believed that radiation exposures were low. While medical science has no proof that exposure to radiation levels as low as these is hazardous to health, it is generally assumed by scientists that even low levels of exposure carry some slight risk.

Participants are urged to call toll-free 800-336-3068 or write to Defense Nuclear Agency, Washington, D.C. 20305.

Those concerned that their possible exposure may have adversely affected their health, are urged to consult their doctor or, if a former serviceman, to contact the nearest Veterans Administration Hospital, where they may obtain a physical examination at government expense.

Meredith Auten remembers

A.D. McIntyre had a big ranch near Alpena where they went hunting.

Herman Doerr met George McIntyre at Alpena. He inquired, "Are you getting any deer?" George responded, "Oh, yes, four more than we have licenses for."

Herman asked if they could fill his license. George said, "Sure. Come on over." They had three deer hanging up and gave Herman his choice. He selected a fine looking animal which he took home.

When he got up to Reed's slaughter house, it was discovered that the horns were merely driven into the head of a doe and they pulled out rather easily. However, they processed the deer.

George Jeffrey, a former sheriff, had called to investigate. Both Herman and Reed of the slaughter house had some sleepless nights. It was some time before Herman was told that George Jeffrey was in on the deal.

Gavel Club elects new officers

New Cass City Gavel Club officers elected for the coming year are Roland Pakonen, president, Anton Peters, vice-president; Dick Wallace, treasurer, and Paul Clabuesch, secretary.

The club held its alumni dinner Oct. 2 for charter members and previous members. A standing invitation was given to them to drop in any time at a dinner meeting. They are also invited to attend the annual homecoming picnic at the village park Friday.

Twenty-eight persons attended the alumni dinner, held at Veronica's Restaurant.

The club has been busy arranging improvements in the park. A new blacktop runway for the high jump is being installed at a cost of more than $2,000. The project should be completed shortly.

The Gavel Club is in its 37th year.

T. Scollon national merit semi-finalist

Teresa Scollon, a senior at Interlochen Arts Academy, has been named a semi-finalist in the 1980 National Merit Scholarship competition.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Scollon, 4849 Seeger Street.

She now has the opportunity to advance to finalist standing and compete in the spring for one of 4,300 Merit Scholarships.

To be considered, semi-finalists must have full endorsement by their secondary school principal, have school records that confirm high academic standing and equally high test scores on a second examination.

Semi-finalists, the highest-scoring students among one million nationally taking the Merit program's qualifying examination, represent the top one-half of 1 percent of the state's high school seniors.

Interlochen Arts Academy is part of the Interlochen Center for the Arts, which includes the renowned National Music Camp, located southwest of Traverse City.

When in school in 1908, we had a science teacher by the name of Thomas.

We were studying oscillation (vibrations). He wanted to know the difference between oscillation and osculation (kissing). No one knew so he asked us to look it up. On the way to class, I asked Leon if he had looked it up. He said, "No, did you?"

I told him I had and it meant pulling teeth.

Thomas asked Leon if he had looked it up and Leon said, no, but he was told what it meant. When asked what it meant, he said "pulling teeth."

Al Knapp was on the village council and voted among others to cut off the water while they repaired a line.

He went home and found the pipes were frozen and proceeded to thaw them out. Kettles of hot water and hot cloths had no effect so he journeyed down to Coote's Hardware where he obtained a blow torch, but was informed all water had been cut off.

Every spring, the area around the Presbyterian church was immersed in several feet of water.

5 Kingston seniors state semi-finalists

Five Kingston High School seniors have been named semi-finalists in the State of Michigan Scholarship Program. They are Elizabeth Britton, Laura Cherniawski, Sally Engler, Gary Peter and Shelly Stoll.

They qualified based on their score from the American College Testing examination they took during junior year.

Whether they receive a financial scholarship, counselor James Priestap explained, now depends on how their scores compare with other high school seniors statewide and how much money the state makes available for the program. That won't be known until the second semester. Financial need is not a criteria. Amount of the scholarships is usually about $1,000, he said.

This is the second year Kingston High School has had five semi-finalists according to Priestap, which he feels is reflective of the upgrading of the school program. Prior to then, one or two at the most qualified.

Downing on honors list

Gregory J. Downing of Gagetown has been named to the academic honors list at Ferris State College, Big Rapids, for the summer quarter.

To be named, students needed to earn at least a 3.25 grade point average (B+) and carry at least 14 credit hours of classes.

After all, the poorest man in the world is the one who has never done a kindness.

Stealing on order

Arrests total six in huge theft ring

A Mt. Morris man is the latest to be arrested in the massive "steal on order" theft ring that already has seen the arrest of five Tuscola county men.

Meanwhile, some of the buyers of the stolen merchandise are turning it in to Tuscola county authorities in hopes of avoiding prosecution for possession of the goods.

Sheriff's Department Detective Ron Phillips said probably 3-4 pickup loads have been brought in within the last week or so. Included are such varied items as washers, dryers, wood stoves, chairs, sports equipment and tools.

That is in addition to the approximately $25,000 in stolen merchandise recovered previously. Other items recovered include television sets, motorcycles and riding lawn mowers.

The merchandise was stolen over a two-year period in approximately 200 burglaries in nine northern Michigan counties, then brought to Tuscola county for disposition.

The thieves had a "warehouse" near Vassar, according to Phillips. Customers buying the cut-rate merchandise could either look at it there and buy it or order what they wanted, which the thieves would then go and steal.

Three men have been charged so far in Tuscola county.

Paul Luketich, 56, of Mt. Morris, is charged with conspiracy to receive and conceal stolen property over $100 and receiving and concealing stolen property over $100.

Kenneth Robinson, 32, of 6332 First Street, Mayville, is charged with two counts of conspiracy to receive and conceal over $100, two counts of receiving and concealing over $100, and in a non-related case, one count of receiving and concealing over $100.

Terry Burrows, 29, of 1114 E. Caro Road, Caro, is charged with two counts of conspiracy to receive and conceal over $100, two counts of receiving and concealing over $100 and conspiracy to commit a misdemeanor (conspiracy to receive and conceal stolen property under $100).

All three face preliminary examination Oct. 19 before District Judge Richard F. Kern and are presently free on bond.

Three other Tuscola county men, William F. Payea, 35, Arthur Rose, 30, and Michael Stacy, 20, from the Caro-Vassar area, are facing various breaking and entering charges in Crawford county (Grayling).

Investigation by authorities here and in the northern counties is continuing and it is possible there could be other arrests.

In addition to Crawford, other break-ins as part of the operation are thought to have taken place in Oscoda, Alcona, Kalkaska, Wexford, Otsego, Montmorency, Mecosta and Ogemaw counties.

Those persons who knowingly purchased the stolen goods were also breaking the law. Tuscola County Prosecutor Artis Noel said he is leaving it up to the sheriff's department investigators to recommend whether those purchasers who are found should be prosecuted.

They would be charged with receiving and concealing stolen property, but proving a case against them will be difficult, he explained.

The job would be much easier, according to the prosecutor, if a law pushed through the legislature by Sen. Alvin DeGrow, R-Pigeon, which makes mere possession of stolen goods a crime were in effect.

The law doesn't go into effect, however, until some time in 1980.

Coming Auctions

Owen-Gage okays budget

Owen-Gage, it would have a surplus as of June 30, 1978, of approximately $500,000, not including interest.

Major anticipated decreases in spending include legal fees, down from $78,597 spent in 1978-79 to $22,306; custodian salaries, from $51,049 to $43,859; heating fuel and electricity, $20,000 each, down from $24,951 and $25,158 respectively, and vehicle repairs, from $14,902 to $10,000.

Among increases are elementary teacher salaries, $155,000 ($143,828 in 1978-79); secondary teacher salaries, $188,000 ($175,229); superintendent's salary, $29,500 ($26,000), and principals' salaries (total for high school and elementary), $40,250 ($38,250).

PAYLESS PAYDAYS?

Payless paydays may loom in January, Erickson predicted, because of a new requirement concerning tax anticipation notes.

The district is borrowing $350,000 to pay operating expenses, to be paid back from property tax revenues, which start coming in in December. The change is that the district will now have to put the first $350,000 it receives in taxes aside to repay the notes before it can start using tax money for its normal expenditures.

The payless paydays, he said, will be avoided if tax revenue comes faster than expected and/or if the district gets state aid still owed from last year and for this year. (The state Department of Education cut off state aid to Owen-Gage earlier this year, claiming the district did not have a balanced budget.)

OTHER BUSINESS

In compliance with federal guidelines, the board approved setting thermostats in the school buildings at 65 degrees in the day, 55 degrees at night, and eliminating "all unnecessary" bus trips.

For one month or until the next board meeting, the board approved hiring a school nurse to work 20 hours per week at $5.50 per hour.

The board will presumably hire her for the rest of the school year at its next meeting, after all details of her employment are worked out.

The woman to be hired, a registered nurse who lives in the district, wasn't named. Federal Title I funds will pay 40 percent of her salary.

August milk output stays the same

Michigan dairy farmers produced 406,000,000 pounds of milk in August, virtually the same as a year ago, but only 99 percent of 1977, according to the Michigan Crop Reporting Service.

Compared with August, 1978, cow numbers are down by 8,000 to 396,000 head and off 6,000 from 1977.

Increased production per cow offset most of the decline in cow numbers as Michigan cows gave an average of 1,025 pounds of milk for the month. This is 15 pounds higher than a dry August of a year ago and 5 pounds more than 1977.

Nationally, August milk production of 10.4 billion pounds was up 2 percent from the previous year.

Production per cow averaged 968 pounds, 2 percent above both August, 1978 and 1977.

Milk cows averaged 10.7 million head, 1 percent lower than last year and 2 percent below August 1977.

HEALTH TIPS

Influenza shots not for everyone

By Frank Chappell,
American Medical Association

Annual influenza vaccination generally is advised for anyone with chronic heart, lung, or kidney disease and diabetes, other chronic illness and for people over 65.

Flu shots generally are not recommended for healthy children or adults under 65 and most definitely should not be given to anyone allergic to eggs. The vaccine is grown in eggs.

Recommendations for dosage and booster doses may vary from year to year, the American Medical Association points out. The time to start flu immunization is well in advance of the winter season of cold weather.

Routine smallpox vaccination no longer is recommended in the United States, and the World Health Organization has reported recently that smallpox has now been eliminated from the entire world. Vaccination is no longer required for travelers entering the U.S. from foreign nations.

In a well organized community with water purification, pasteurization of milk and safeguarding of food, vaccination against typhoid fever is unnecessary. Rarely, it might be advisable for foreign travel into areas where typhoid is common. Other vaccination may be recommended or required for travelers entering areas where specific diseases such as yellow fever, plague, cholera and typhus are prevalent. Your local health department will have current information. Although vaccine is given infrequently for tuberculosis, many physicians test for it around 12 months of age. The "TB" test is a skin test in which the site of the test is observed at 24 to 72 hours to determine if a reaction has occurred. Appropriate medical attention for the disease can be given when it is detected by skin test or X-ray film in early childhood.

'College' Day here Saturday

The "foreign exchange youth program" is coordinated by Wyman Rich, Thumb area coordinator for the Youth for Understanding Program.

Community booster

Hobart expands shoe store in new location

Editor's note: this is one of a series sponsored by the Cass City Chamber of Commerce about community boosters who are members of the organization.

When Marv Hobart moved to Cass City a year and a half ago to start Hobart's Family Shoes he fulfilled two ambitions. The first was to move back to the area and the other was to operate his own business.

Hobart was born and raised on a farm in the Caro-Cass City area and graduated from Caro High School.

After a hitch in service he worked at a variety of jobs including the management of a branch bank in the Grand Rapids area and posts with Family Credit Corporation of Saginaw.

He served as account supervisor for General Telephone for 7 years.

Hobart says that his shoe business has grown due to the support of Cass City and surrounding area persons. It started in the Plaza West subdivision and is now housed in larger quarters on West Main Street.

Hobart is married and his wife, Marilyn, works as medical secretary at Caro Regional Center.

The couple has three children: Peggy is a teacher in Marquette, Becky is a senior at Cass City High School and a son, Mark, is in the sixth grade at Cass City.

Hobart sings in the choir at Salem United Methodist church. He is a member of the Cass City Retail Committee.

BB-BS to move

Tuscola County Big Brothers-Big Sisters are scheduled to be moved into their new quarters Monday.

The office and the Second Chance store will be at 129

E. Burnside, Caro, behind the Gamble's store near the village parking lot.

Its present office, about a block away, is on State Street.

Hutchinsons' 70 years

WHEN HE RETURNED, the romance continued and finally resulted in the proposal.

The Hutchinsons courted for about three years before they were married. Favorite courting activities in those days included buggy rides, the movies (admission was 10 cents) and attending the fairs.

The Hutchinsons were married at noon on a Wednesday, which was the day for getting married back then, like Saturday is today. They were married by Rev. Arthur Breedon, the Methodist minister from Deford, at a ceremony attended only by family and a few neighbors. Big weddings were very rare back then.

Mrs. Hutchinson, incidentally, still has her wedding dress.

After the ceremony, the newlyweds got on the train at Kingston, transferred at Clifford and again at Bay City, where they got on the train to Vanderbilt, where they spent their honeymoon.

THEIR FIRST YEAR-and-a-half of married life was spent on her parents' farm, with Frank working for her parents.

They then bought a farm in Greenleaf township, where they lived six years.

They then moved to Cass City, where Hutchinson worked at the then Hires Milk Co. condensary plant.

The couple moved back to her parents' farm for a while, then back to town, and in 1927, he traded the house they owned in town for the 80-acre farm, house and barn at the corner of Cemetery and Milligan Roads.

Eighty acres was about all a man could farm in those days as, Hutchinson explained, "You couldn't plow more than two acres a day with a team of horses."

Mrs. Hutchinson occasionally worked at stores in town, but otherwise spent her time taking care of the house and helping on the farm.

There was lots to do on the farm, she pointed out, and during threshing season, 18-20 men to cook meals for. "It was a blessing when they got the combines."

HER HUSBAND bought his first tractor around 1949. The first combine, tractor-pulled, came after that.

Son Grant, born in 1920, farmed with his father and eventually bought 160 acres on the north side of Milligan Road.

Frank Hutchinson farmed until his son converted the original 80 acres into Rolling Hills Golf Course, which opened Memorial Day week end 1969. (Rolling Hills Airport was built in 1972 on part of the 160 acres.)

For about eight years after that, Hutchinson drove the mower on the golf course for his son.

ALTHOUGH HE FINALLY gave that up, at age 92, he still drives a car.

Jennie Hutchinson hasn't driven in years. "The Model T was my style," she joked, then added as an afterthought, "I do the backseat driving."

Both still read the newspaper and both still have their teeth. "We can still bite," Mrs. Hutchinson said, at which her husband broke into laughter.

Both have keen senses of humor and laugh whenever the other makes a humorous remark.

"You can generally see something every day that makes you laugh or you can see something that makes you sad," Mrs. Hutchinson philosophized. "You try to get out of life something every day. You generally get what you're looking for."

Zero tillage slow to gain favor among upper Thumb farmers

Saves fuel, saves time and saves soil.

Planting crops without any prior plowing or other tillage operations, called no-till or zero-tillage, has those advantages. But for a variety of reasons in this area, it isn't catching on like wildfire.

In Tuscola county, out of 105-110,000 acres of corn, maybe 500 acres were planted no-till this year -- plus one field of no-till soybeans, according to Jerry Lemunyon, district conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

His counterpart in Huron county, Robert Law, estimates there were about 2,000 acres planted no-till, all corn except for a small amount of sunflowers. Corn acreage in Huron county totals more than 100,000 acres.

Among those trying no-till this year in Huron county are Alex Kovach and sons Jeff and Alex Jr., who farm with Bill Retford, all of Notter Road, Owendale.

Among their corn acreage is 66 acres on ground rented from the state of Michigan along Gageton Road, south of Sebewaing Road.

The state gets one-third of the crop planted as its rent.

That crop is left standing for game to feed on.

THE STATE PROHIBITS the land from being fall-plowed. Wet weather the past two seasons has kept the Kovachs and Retford from getting into the field until late, so this year, they decided to try no-till.

One of the advantages of no-till is that by not disturbing the residue left after fall harvesting, it provides a firmer footing for planting equipment if the ground is wet.

Time is saved since there is no need for ground preparation prior to planting.

The Kovachs and Retford lost the time advantage, however.

No-till requires a special planter with heavy coulters on it which cut deep furrows several inches into the soil, in which the seed is dropped.

SINCE THEY DIDN'T have the equipment, they hired brothers John and Bob Horny of Sebewaing to do all the work.

Because they do a lot of such custom work, the Hornys couldn't get to the Kovach-Retford field when the latter wanted. It was planted in late May, a week to 10 days after the Ko-vachs and Retford planted 18 acres of corn on the state-owned ground using conventional tillage methods. Ideally, all would have been planted at the same time.

Forty-four acres were planted no-till with no prior preparation, on ground used last year mainly for corn, but also for some sorghum.

Right after the Hornys did the planting, another trip down the rows was made to spray on herbicide. Later, a trip was made to add nitrogen. The next step will be harvesting, late this month or in early November.

The no-till eliminated at least two trips over the field. There would have been plowing, preferably in the fall, plus at least one tillage operation in the spring prior to planting.

SINCE THEY HAVEN'T harvested the no-till yet, the Kovachs and Retford can't say for sure yet how the results will be and whether they will try it again.

"It isn't like the others," Alex Kovach Sr. said of the no-till corn. But after inspecting the field recently, which he hadn't done in a couple of weeks, he admitted the crop looked pretty good.

Around the edges of the field, the weeds are about as thick as the corn -- and weed control is a problem with zero-tillage.

The Kovachs and Retford speculated the Hornys turned off their sprayer too early at the end of the rows, as farther in, the rows appeared quite clean.

Another problem with no-till is that with the fields still covered with residue when planting, it's sometimes hard for the tractor driver to follow the line made by the marker. There are some places, where the Hornys appeared to have "missed their mark."

WHETHER OR NOT THE Kovachs and Retford try no-till again, it isn't likely the amount of no-till will increase much in Huron county, according to District Conservationist Law.

No-till is best suited for steeper slopes and sandier soils, neither of which is that common in his county.

"Our soils are somewhat poorly drained," he added, "so they would be slow to dry out in the spring without some tillage in the fall."

In Tuscola county, district Conservationist Lemunyon sees potential for increased use of no-till, especially on the rolling hills in the Cass City-Gageton area.

As indicated, zero-tillage doesn't work everywhere. The no-till field of the Kovachs and Retford, incidentally, is sandy in spots and clay loam in others.

THE SOIL CONSERVATION Service, of course, is interested in no-till because leaving the residue after harvesting helps protect the soil from wind and water erosion.

For places where no-till isn't suitable, and for farmers not willing to take the big step of no soil preparation, it has an alternative called conservation tillage.

Making it even more at-

Area pair

plead

guilty

Michael A. Truemner, 18, of 7791 E. Bay City-Forestville Road, Cass City, pleaded guilty in Tuscola County District Court Tuesday to a charge of impaired driving.

Judge Richard F. Kern accepted his plea and fined him $100, plus $150 court costs and placed him on probation.

Truemner was arrested on the charge Sept. 15 in Cass City.

Also Tuesday, Andrew M. Ozorowicz, 22, of Harmon Lake Road, Kingston, pleaded guilty to reckless driving.

His plea was accepted and he was fined $63 and assessed $37 court costs. He was arrested on the charge Sept. 22 in Caro.

Bach Festival

Organizers of the Village Bach Festival, Nov. 23-25, in Cass City have increased some ticket prices for the event.

The reason, according to Holly Althaver, was the amount of the state grant received that will pay part of the cost of the event was less than requested. The original ticket prices therefore would not have been enough to cover the remaining cost, outside of what will be received in donations.

Seats for each individual concert at the First Presbyterian church will remain at $5, but the single ticket for all three concerts, originally $12, has been boosted to $15. Patron tickets, good for all three, were boosted from $20 to $25.

Tickets officially go on sale Oct. 15, but a couple of ticket orders have already trickled in. Gloria Ouvry at Ouvry Chevrolet-Olds can be contacted starting then for ticket information and orders.

FAST PACE

Being up to date these days means people have to live about ten years ahead of the times.

tractive for farmers within the East Saginaw Bay Water Quality Project area is that the federal government is paying 80 percent of the cost for the use of conservation tillage, which works out to $7.20 per acre. The project area consists of all or part of Elmwood, Columbia, Akron, Wisner, Almer, Fairgrove and Denmark townships in Tuscola county; Brookfield, Sebewaing, Fair Haven and McKinley townships in Huron county.

In Tuscola county, which has about two-thirds of the acreage in the program, 17,000 acres in corn and soybeans and 4,000 of small grains (wheat, oats and barley) have been enrolled. In Huron county, the total is about 3,100 acres.

The program allows farmers to make one tillage operation in the fall provided the method used leaves adequate residue on top of the soil.

Come spring, the fields can be cultivated or disked, with herbicide incorporated in that operation or the spraying done separately. Cultivating is permitted after planting.

NOT BAD - Is the reaction of (from left), Bill Retford, Jeff Kovach and Alex Kovach as they examine the ear of corn grown under the no-till method. They jointly have 44 acres planted as an experiment without any prior plowing.

JUST RESIDUE - Dried up pieces of corn stalks remain from 1978 in the field. If conventional tillage had been used, they would have been plowed under. The residue helps protect the soil from wind and water erosion.

CASS CITY

CATCHING A BALL in a crowd is one of the requirements that make a good tight end. Ken Martin showed the ability on this catch in the last half against Sandusky. Martin caught four passes for 31 yards.

Improving Marlette next

Defense carries punchless Hawks to win over Sandusky

The best thing that can be said for last Friday's football game against winless Sandusky Redskins was that Cass City won, 6-2. Other than that it was a blah performance by both teams.

Sandusky was celebrating its homecoming and it took a last quarter break to keep the Redskins from celebrating it with their first victory of the season.

And if the Hawks don't improve it's entirely possible that the improving Marlette Red Raiders will spoil Cass City's homecoming this Friday.

If the Hawks are to handle Marlette it's likely that they will have to come up with some semblance of a running attack.

Against Sandusky they showed none. Just 56 yards in 25 attempts ordinarily will not win games.

But the Cass City defense was equally tough, especially in the clutch and held the Redskins scoreless. It's possible that the defense felt it had something to prove after it was handled in the second half by North Branch the previous week.

Coach Don Schelke was far from pleased with the efforts of his offense but did point out that Sandusky has been tough all year on defense.

The Redskins got on the board first with a safety. The center snap sailed over Earney Stoutenburg's head and through the end zone.

For awhile it looked as if the two points would be enough.

The Hawks could do nothing on offense other than complete an occasional pass.

Meanwhile, Sandusky mounted an attack of its own following a fumble by Quarterback Rusty Hoag on his own 45.

Moving primarily on the ground the Redskins pounded to a first down inside the Cass City one-yard line.

It set the stage for the defense's finest hour of the year. On the first play Mike Vatter broke through and smeared the ball carrier for a three-yard loss. The next play lost another yard and after four plays the Hawks took over on their own five-yard line.

For awhile it looked as if the goal line stand would be meaningless. Cass City could do nothing against the stubborn Redskin defense.

The ball changed hands frequently until midway through the final period.

Then the Hawks recovered a fumble on the Sandusky 20. It was the break they needed. On the second play in the series Hoag faded back and hit Tim Fahrner on the one-yard line. Hoag pushed the ball in on the next play for the victory.

Schelke named Mike Vatter Red Hawk of the week for his 27 tackles and blocked field goal attempt. Leading rusher for Cass City was Hoag with a meager 32 yards in 10 carries.

Cagers undefeated in Thumb B

Hawks post 2 league wins

The Cass City Red Hawks stayed on top of the Thumb B Conference with a pair of league wins over North Branch and Sandusky.

Coach Lloyd Schinnerer's charges now are 4-0 in conference play. The Hawks rolled past North Branch last Wednesday, 47-33, and then powered past Sandusky 41-20 Monday.

North Branch stayed with the Hawks for the first period but Cass City found the range in the second quarter to roll into a 26-19 halftime lead and were never headed.

The Broncos missed a great chance to move back into contention as the Hawks scored only four points in the third period but the visitors were able to do little better scoring six points in the quarter. The Hawks entered the final period leading 30-25.

Cass City won going away with an 18-8 final period margin.

Padgett Randall whipped in 17 points and snared 16 rebounds to show the way. Kelly Seurnyck netted 12 for the Hawks while Kim Marsden of North Branch hit for 16 points. Vickie Pobanz and Libby Hartel helped on the boards with 7 rebounds each.

Cass City hit 45 percent from the floor, but only 8 of 20 from the free throw line for 40 percent.

JV WINS EASILY

The North Branch JV was no match for the Hawks as Cass City won, 42-15. Carrie Lautner scored 8 points while Michelle Fahrner and Tammy Heins netted 6 each. Sherry Stec had 5 steals.

SANDUSKY GAME

After a slow first half the Hawks found the range and easily topped the Sandusky Redskins. The Redskins showed almost no offensive firepower. They trailed 14-9 at the intermission and 27-17 at the end of three quarters.

THESE ARE THE winners of the annual punt, pass and kick competition sponsored by Ford nationally and Geiger-Hunt Ford locally at the Cass City Park. The winners competed Saturday in the regional competition. Dave Miller, right, was a winner.

Local winners in the various age groups, from left, front row, were: Mark House, 12, Joe Lopez, 13, and Miller, 10. Back row: Dean Whittaker, 9, Randy Teichman, 11, and Mike Randall, 8.

Bulldogs stay undefeated with win over A-F; prep for Peck

Revenge is sweet. After besting Owen-Gage in the two previous encounters, Akron-Fairgrove proved no match for the Bulldogs Friday night, losing 41-12.

Owen-Gage now has only two more North Central D League hurdles to clear in its quest for the league title, the first being at 1 p.m. Saturday at Peck.

Bulldog coach Arnie Besonen calls the Pirates a much improved squad over last season, which runs a tough defense, anchored by a big and strong interior line. "We've got our work cut out for us."

The offensive line really shone for the Bulldogs Friday at their homecoming game. "Coach (Phil) Gray promised our linemen would do the job against Akron and they did," Besonen said. "We sprung some long gainers."

His squad started scoring early by carrying the opening kickoff 70 yards in 10 plays for its first touchdown, with quarterback Kirk Carolan making the final 2-yard plunge. Pete Klemkowsky's extra point kick attempt was no good.

The Bulldogs scored again when Jeff Hallock intercepted a Viking pass and ran it 66 yards to score. Craig Gettel kicked the extra point.

Akron-Fairgrove got on the scoreboard late in the first quarter on a 5-yard run by Jesse Ruiz to cap a 60-yard, five-play drive. A pass attempt for two more points was incomplete.

With less than three minutes to go in the second quarter, Owen-Gage scored twice, both times on passes from Carolan to Jim Glidden, the first time 33 yards, the second for 28. After the first one, the senior quarterback passed to Alan Haag for two more points. The second PAT attempt, a kick, was unsuccessful.

The Vikings looked like they finally got their act together as the second half started as a series of plays took the ball down to the Bulldog's 3-yard line.

But the Vikings could get no farther and the home team gained possession of the ball. One play later and the Bulldogs were almost to the 50 yard line, courtesy of Brad Erickson. On the second play after that, Jeff Hallock scored on a 44-yard run. Craig Gettel kicked the extra point.

An interception with less than a minute left in the third quarter set up the Bulldog's final TD, made by Carolan on a 64-yard run. Gettel kicked the extra point.

Akron-Fairgrove got its second touchdown with only about 10 seconds left in the game, coming on a 7-yard pass from Gene Curtis to Jim Crosby to cap a 43-yard drive. The PAT attempt was unsuccessful. Erickson again led the Owen-Gage offense with 120 yards in 10 carries. Hallock carried the ball six times for 105 yards and Carolan, eight times for 99 yards.

The Bulldogs gained 359 yards in 34 carries on the ground, combined with Carolan's 114 yards in the air (five completions of seven attempts) for total offensive yardage of 473. Indicative of the team's long gains was that the Bulldogs only made seven first downs in the game, compared to 18 by Akron-Fairgrove.

The losers gained 210 yards on the ground, in 41 carries, led by Scott Lindenburg's 68 yards, plus 51 yards in the air, for a total of 261 yards.

Quarterbacks Gene Curtis and Mike Volk had a terrible night against the Bulldog defense. Curtis completed only four passes of 13 attempts (44 yards) and threw two interceptions. Volk had one completion of seven attempts for 7 yards and threw one interception.

Dan Warack again anchored the Bulldog defense with 21 tackles. Erickson and Miles Thorp each had 14 and Scott Gaeth, 13.

Thursday at Akron-Fairgrove, the Viking JVs clobbered Owen-Gage, 52-0.

CASEVILLE

The Eagles provided one of the closest contests for the undefeated Bulldogs this season, losing by only four points, 42-38. The Oct. 2 game was played at Owen-Gage.

The teams were tied at the half, 15-all, but a strong third quarter by the Bulldogs gave them too big a margin for the Eagles to make up in the final stanza.

Becky Howard led the victors with 19 points and 12 rebounds. Julie Andrakowicz scored 11 points and pulled down 17 rebounds.

Peggy Wilfong scored 20 points for Caseville. Michelle McCormick snared 10 rebounds.

Owen-Gage won the junior varsity game, 22-20.

New books at the library

HEART OF THE HARBOR, by Katrinka Blicke (fiction). Gretchen Drew, art director for Milady magazine, meets and marries Pieter Van der Hoek, a moody artist who lives on a small island in New York Harbor where his family has lived for centuries. Several strange occurrences on their whirlwind honeymoon in Puerto Rico and several more "accidents" when they return to New York cause Gretchen to wonder if her husband is involved with a Puerto Rican terrorist group known as "El Condor."

CONNECTIONS by James Burke (fiction). The theme of this book is that inventions are not solely the work of lone geniuses but are the result of historical pressures, accident, interlocking events, luck, ambition. This approach works well when, for example, Burke shows how the arrival in Europe of the compass needle from China led to research on magnetism, which in turn sparked the discovery of electricity. Among the 138 color and 150 black-and-white illustrations are many unusual old photos and prints.

THE PATH THROUGH THE TREES by Christopher Milne (non-fiction). As he tells of his military experiences, bookstore business, writing, and relationship with his spastic daughter, Milne reveals how he escaped from under the shadow of a famous father, who made him a model for the character, Christopher Robin, to become his own man.

With a membership quota of 31 for the coming year, sixteen memberships have been renewed.

Snover alive and well, say businessmen

Snover residents and business owners believe their town is alive and well and coming back.

All but two businesses in the village of Snover have undergone some type of ownership change in the last three years and this has sparked hope that the small country town in west central Sanilac county is awakening from its dormant state. "I think the town is on its way to becoming a thriving community," said Mrs. William L. Price, 74, a lifelong resident. "I've seen a lot of changes around here but I believe the recent business growth is just the beginning. Snover has arisen."

Many business people in Snover believe that too, especially Barry Teets, owner of Barry Teets Electrical Corp., who runs a TV and appliance store there.

"It's a rebirth of businesses and it's great that this community is experiencing it," Teets said. "We have a young and industrious bank manager and most of the merchants in town are relatively young and assertive."

Some of the more recently developed businesses include J & D's Market, owned and operated by John Brinker; National Agri-Professional Co. (NAPCO), run by John A. Dorman; This-N-That Auction Sales, owned by Ed Keller, and Snover's Market and Baer's Used Car dealership, both owned and operated by David Baer.

"The people here are showing more interest in their own community," Baer said. "They're starting to care about this town and that's what it takes."

Two service groups that are instrumental in helping the Snover community to improve are the Snover Lions Club and the Snover Literary Club. Each one owns a park open to the public that area residents enjoy going to, Teets said.

"The Memorial Park (owned by the Literary Club) is a very nice facility with a well, bathrooms, ball field and a pavilion," he said. "The ladies keep it up constantly and it's one of the prettiest parks in the area."

Teets has been president of the Lions Club for the past three years and was a key factor in getting the organization back on its feet to help it grow.

"When I joined the club a few years ago, it was going nowhere," he said. "Now we have 18 members, and though that might not sound like many, it is definitely growing."

The club owns a park outside Snover that was built some years ago by the school district.

"It still needs work done to it and it will take some time before we get it into good condition," Teets said.

HISTORY OF SNOVER

In 1879, Ervin Harriman with his brother Henry, journeyed from Ontario, Canada, to Moore township to look at land owned by Samuel Moore, who accompanied the brothers on their land inspection tour.

Due to the dense forests in the area, they had to climb a tree to view the property they were interested in. That view delighted them so much they purchased the land extending through what is now the main corners of Snover.

They did not settle on their newly acquired land until three years later, in 1882, when the brothers returned from Ontario to find that the great fire of 1881 had swept over their land, wiping out the timber.

Henry Harriman opened the first general store in 1884 and later his brothers Ervin and Dougal opened the first furniture store and undertaking parlor.

Through the efforts of U.S. Rep. Horace G. Snover of the 7th District, the Snover Post Office was established May 7, 1895 and was named in his honor. Henry Harriman served as postmaster from 1895 to 1914 and the post office was changed from fourth class to third class in 1921.

The village of Snover plat was recorded Sept. 9, 1913 and the first bank in town was founded in 1910. It was called the Snover Bank of Orrin A. Munn and Co. and was located in the Warner Building.

In 1914 the Snover State Bank was organized with A.E. Sleeper as the principal stockholder and Charles L. Bell as cashier. This bank was in operation until 1937, when the national bank holiday was declared and the bank was not reopened. The Snover branch of the Kingston State Bank opened its doors in 1970.

The Peter Carter Lumber & Coal Co. was a lumber yard built in 1912. The Snover Grain Co. started in 1913. In that same year, the Handy Brothers built a railroad line from Bay City to Snover (later extended to Port Huron) and named it the Detroit-Bay City and Western.

One of the engines on the railroad blew up in the early 1950s and the last of the rails were removed in 1953. This was considered a major catastrophe for the businesses of Snover.

At one time, there was a barber shop, bowling alley and pool hall owned and operated by Burns & Buckler Co., a creamery run by John Harriman, a butter maker by the name of John Parks and an elevator owned by Les Mellon.

The town has had several implement shops, a harness shop, a shoe repair, a dress-making shop, a drugstore, grocery stores, cider mills and beauty shops.

In 1905 Snover had a cornet band and up until 1910 they were still giving concerts around the country.

In 1914, the Snover Free Press was printed weekly by Thomas Neumann but it soon went bankrupt and Neumann left town.

The Snover Community Hall was built by public subscription in the early 1920s. It was started in 1924 and finished by 1926. Bricks were sold at $1 each for donations.

The International Order of Odd Fellows and Rebekah Lodges held their meetings upstairs in the community hall and the main floor was used for dances, basketball games and other public meetings. The community hall closed at the time of the "bank holiday" and was later sold to O.C. Jacobs who built the living quarters now attached to the hall.

The Snover Co-operative Elevator was built in 1921 and has been added to several times, along with the company's purchase of the former Snover Grain Co. property as well.

There have been six schools in Moore township: Elmer, Urban, Snover, Thomas, Minard and Wilson. Now all are included in the Sandusky School District.

MODERN TIMES

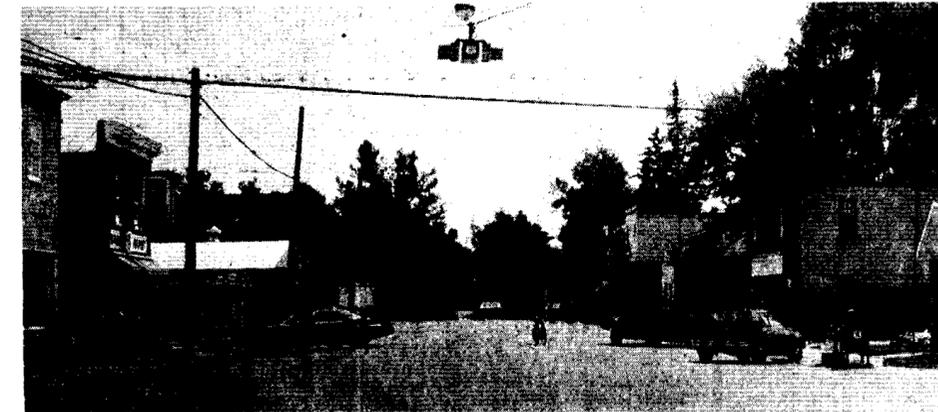

Snover Stamping Co. came to town in June, 1960.

MAIN STREET, SNOVER in October, 1908. This scene appeared on the back of a post card sent to Frank Gruss in Big Rapids. The post card was obtained by Mrs. Price from Mrs. Oscar Buschler, a resident of Snover.

DOWNTOWN SNOVER looked like this near the turn of the century. The town is named after Rep. Horace G. Snover, who established the first post office there May 7, 1895. (Snover historic photos courtesy of Mrs. Violet Price).

DOWNTOWN SNOVER, TODAY looks something like this and if area merchants have their way, the tiny village of about 400 persons in a 1/2 mile square area will expand in the next few years. "The growth of the town will be up to the people who live here," said Barry Teets, a lifelong resident of Snover.

It constructed a new and much larger building last year and employs almost 120 persons.

The other industries in Snover are the Snover Mattress Co., now in the process of constructing a new building, and Marmax Fiberglass Products, manufacturer of camper tops and picnic tables.

In the early 1950s, Snover was still a thriving community with six service stations, one hardware store, meat market with a meat route extending through the county, three general stores and a drugstore.

Now the unincorporated town, after more than 20 years of dormancy, is growing again.

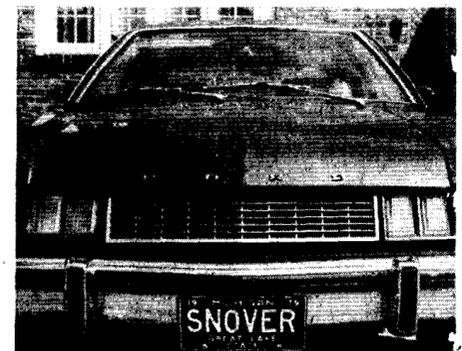

Businesses at the present time include two groceries, one of which last week moved into its new quarters in the ex-roller rink, one party store, two gas stations, used car dealership, one bank, which is planning construction of a new building, appliance and TV store and the elevator.

"I am sure Snover will be here as a popular small town 50 years from now," Teets assured. "Many little communities around today won't be in existence then. I'm sure of it."

He and many other business people in Snover believe that it is up to the people and their willingness to buy things in Snover and put money into area businesses that will result in its growth.

"Snover is coming back," confided one long-time resident of the village. "It's just a matter of time."

VILLAGE PRIDE is displayed by the license plates on the car owned by Carl Gerstenberger, of 1444 Main Street, Snover, who works for the Barry Teets Electric Corp.

Thanks for bringing Godspell

To the Editor:
I would like to thank the Cass City Council for the Arts and the Lions Club for bringing Godspell to Cass City High School.

As a person involved with speech activities, I find the interest in supporting the creative arts encouraging.

I thoroughly enjoyed the highly professional performance and feel fortunate to have experienced such a fine production.

Old license dates from 1919

Dear Mr. Haire,
I noticed the Rabbit Track items on the first drivers' licenses in your Chronicle. I have my father-in-law's first license, dated Aug. 14, 1919.

T. Wilson Spaven lived 4 miles west and 1 1/2 miles south of Cass City. He was 36 years old when the license was issued. He passed away in 1927.

I just thought you would like to know of another one.

Sincerely,
Erma Spaven

Right to vote doesn't include gasoline tax

By Warren M. Hoyt
Mich. Press Association

In our system of government by the people, one tax in Michigan found not to be subject to voter referendum is increased fuel taxes and license plate fees.

According to a recent unanimous state Supreme Court decision, voters do not have the right of referendum for or against the taxes, thus preserving $147.6 million in revenue approved by the Legislature in 1978 as part of a $168 million transportation package.

The state's highest court said (in County Road Association vs. Board of State Canvassers) the constitution and a 1951 law providing for allocation of fuel tax and license plate revenues "make transportation tax legislation unique."

The court said its ruling is rooted in Supreme Court decisions on 1927, 1951 and 1972 tax legislation.

Those decisions barred referenda on the taxes on the basis that they were part of an appropriations process and the constitution does not extend the power of referendum to appropriations.

The court said it declined to modify earlier interpretations on use of the power of referendum since the farmers of the 1963 constitution had ample opportunity to review decisions made up to that time and make revisions they believed necessary.

The decision resulted from a petition drive by a group called People Against Higher Taxes who sought to hold a referendum election on the Legislature's action increasing motor fuel taxes and vehicle registration fees.

Had the petitions been allowed, the tax would have been suspended and the increase in registration fees been refunded until voters made the final decision.

The attorney for the group said he regarded the court's decision as the last word on prohibiting a referendum on transportation taxes. He added the only way a referendum could be held on such issues is if the Legislature specifically provided or if the constitution is changed to permit a referendum when existing programs would not be threatened.

It has always been somewhat comforting to know that the people could have the final say through a vote in matters effecting their lives.

However, with this recent ruling, it appears all the Legislature would have to do to avoid the threat of referendum to any tax increase is to tie it specifically to a program for which an appropriation is made.

BUDGET CUTS

With the uncertainty of the economy, Governor William G. Milliken has ordered directors of the state's principle departments to make plans to trim expenditures in fiscal year 1979-80.

Each director must submit a plan to reach certain goals but each director has total discretion on how to reach individual goals.

Total savings of state tax dollars are expected to reach $100 million.

The largest single amount, $29 million, is being demanded of the Department of Social Services with the Department of Mental Health required to return $20 million of its appropriation to the state general fund.

Excluded from the cuts were K-12 and higher education programs, the other two branches of government — legislative and judicial — and also the Department of Transportation, which is almost entirely supported by money from taxes designated for transportation programs.

Togetherness a way of life for Kappen family of Gagetown - Ma and Pa and 11 kids

People don't believe Catherine Kappen when she tells them she and husband Gerald have 11 children.

They should. Why else would she buy 15 or 16 gallons of milk at a time? Or 30 loaves of bread. Or spend $400 a year for shoes.

The couple lives in an old farm house on Bay City-Forestville Road, east of Gagetown, with Susanna, 16, Joe, 15, Mary, 14, Tim, 13, Mark, 11, Alice, 10, Billy, 8, Peter, 7, Tammie, 5, Matthew, 2½, and Michael, 4 months.

Gerald and Catherine, 38 and 35 respectively, were married Nov. 4, 1961. (They met on a blind date.) They weren't likely candidates to be parents of a large family. He is an only child and she is one of four children.

"I always wanted lots of kids," Mrs. Kappen said with a smile. "I guess I got them."

She also gets lots of reaction when she and her children go grocery shopping. A week's load of milk is 15 or 16 gallons. "You ought to hear the comments people make when they see you with all that milk," she said. "But when you tell them (that she has 11 children), they don't believe you anyway."

When people do see all or most of the family together, the common question is, "Are they all yours?"

The next most common question, Gerald and Catherine agree, is whether each has been married before, with the implication that the children are the result of two marriages.

Another question they sometimes get is whether the family receives welfare. The answer is "no." Mrs. Kappen says with noticeable pride that the family has never received welfare or food stamps and the children have never received free school lunches.

Providing for a family of 13, of course, isn't cheap, especially in these inflationary times, and Gerald Kappen has two jobs. He works the afternoon shift at a millwright at the Chevrolet foundry in Saginaw and he also farms 120 acres of beans, corn, wheat and oats with help from his children.

The family also grows and raises much of its food, including strawberries, apples, beets, carrots and corn. Each of the children, except the very youngest, raises rabbits. Those that the family doesn't eat are sold. They also raise ducks. Inflation has had an impact on the family, Kappen noted, but, "So far, we've been able to keep going."

The big sacrifice that has been made is to cut back sharply on purchase of beef. MUCH OF THE FAMILY entertainment is home-grown. They go for hay rides on their farm, ride horses and go fishing. A couple of times a year, they go picnicking up north.

Two years ago, the family did manage a trip to Cedar Point. Just to get in the gate cost them $88. The first night's motel bill was $120. (No one could recall what it cost the second night.)

The family likes to do things together, be it recreational, eating meals together or attending church (St. Agatha's in Gagetown). All 13, incidentally, fit into one utility-type station wagon.

Television would seemingly be a cheap entertainment, but at the Kappens', it isn't watched much. That's because mother Kappen is dictator of the television, and there are few shows she considers worth watching, thus few get watched. The few she does approve of include "Little House on the Prairie," Walt Disney, "The Muppets," and "Sesame Street."

Because there are few shows they can watch, the Kappen children don't fight over the television. Being normal, however, they do fight over other things. And with their father gone from 1:30 in the afternoon to 12:30 the next morning on workdays, their mother says firmly, "I'm the referee."

The family does have another form of home-made entertainment -- music. Susanna, Mary and Alice are taking piano lessons, Mary and Tim are taking guitar lessons, Joe plays tenor saxophone, Tim, the clarinet, and Sue also plays French horn.

The Kappens have no intention of becoming another Osmond family, however, and taking their band on the road.

AT HOME, ACCORDING to Mrs. Kappen, "We do things on an assembly line around here. Everybody helps."

Vacuuming gets done every day -- "You wouldn't believe what comes out of shoes and pockets."

All the kids know how to bake and 300-400 cookies being made at a time isn't uncommon.

Each family member gets his or her day to do the dishes, done on a rotating schedule. The dishes are washed once a day and are all done by hand. "With all these kids, who needs a dishwasher?" asked Mrs. Kappen. What's it like to be a kid with 10 brothers and sisters.

"There's something different every day," said Joe. "You always have something to do," said Mary.

There are, of course, a few disadvantages. With mother the family chauffeur, to cut down on her running back and forth, the kids in high school are limited to one sport per season. For Joe, it's football; for Susanna, gymnastics.

And after they graduate, Gerald Kappen said, any who want to go on to college will have to earn their own way or receive a scholarship.

Next year, incidentally, when Susanna will be in 12th grade, there will also be a Kappen in 11th, 10th, eighth, sixth, fifth, fourth, and second grade and kindergarten.

And for the curious, the family has four bedrooms (five sets of bunk beds and two cribs for the children) -- a fifth bedroom is used for toy storage and the clothes dryer -- and two bathrooms. Mornings, the women of the family use the one upstairs; the men, downstairs.

TOGETHERNESS - Is Practiced around the Kappen dining table. All 13 were gathered around when this photo was taken, but two don't show. As for who does the dishes afterwards, the family takes turns.

At Deford Community Church

Lewis Tibbits: Starting over at 36 to serve the Lord and his church

Few men at age 36, with a wife and two children, would give up their job and start over.

Lewis Tibbits has done just that.

After 15 years with the Tuscola County Road Commission, he quit to become full-time youth director and assistant to the pastor at the Deford Community church.

It was a decision, he explained, that the Lord had a big hand in helping him make. "I felt God's will for my life was to work for the church for the youth program."

Tibbits and his wife Geraldine, a teacher at Cass City Intermediate School, have been married 17 years. They have two children, Tammy, 16, and Todd, 11, and live at 6317 Houghton Street.

They are charter members of the Deford Community church, founded nine years ago. For eight of those years, he has been youth director in a lay capacity.

He organized all youth activities outside of Sunday school, though for a time he was also Sunday School superintendent. He still teaches 11th grade. (Geraldine teaches 9th-10th grade girls.)

Included in the church's youth activities are the youth programs every Wednesday night, once a month social activity, "after glow" once a month after Sunday evening services, camps and an annual youth convention.

The Deford Community church is a growing church, with average attendance Sunday mornings of 375. Tibbits works with about 100 youngsters at the church.

THE GROWTH OF THE church was a factor in his eventual decision to change careers.

One by one, he found himself giving up various church jobs because he didn't have the time. "Then it was getting to the point the youth work was getting too much along with my full-time job."

"I felt the kids were being deprived socially and spiritually because of lack of my leadership."

His frustrations came to a peak when he and Geraldine attended a church youth work seminar earlier this year in Colorado.

Most of those attending were full-time youth directors and when he heard the things they were doing, "I realized I couldn't do all those things in the position I was in."

He and his wife discussed the situation and when they returned, he told Rev. Gerald Rodgers he would accept a full-time position with the church.

Various church members and the pastor had mentioned the possibility to him before.

THERE WERE STILL two questions to be answered, "to find if I could make the adjustment and to see if the church could handle the expense." He thus took a 90-day leave from his job as a working foreman for the Road Commission.

The 90 days came to an end Aug. 31 and he turned in his resignation. That lifted a great burden from his shoulders.

"Every day of that 90 days I had questions, but I didn't really feel content until I turned in my resignation to the county and didn't have that bridge to turn back to."

Tibbits did like his job with the Road Commission. Giving it up meant a reduction in pay and he admits he couldn't afford to take the position with the church if it weren't for his wife's salary as a teacher.

"I guess everyone wants to be a success in life," he said of his decision. "I have always told my kids my definition of success is not how much material things you can pile up, but to find God's will for your life and then do it."

"I just felt God had called me there to work in Deford in the program."

NOW THAT HE IS WORKING full-time in the church, he will have time to be "more efficient," to get more involved in various activities and to focus on individual needs of church youth.

Counseling is an important part of his job and in the past he couldn't spend as much time as he wanted with those needing special attention. Now he will be able to give them the time "to get them back on their feet mentally or spiritually."

Part of his job is to assist Rev. Rodgers such as by making some hospital calls (in addition to those he makes to youngsters in the hospital), house calls, help with the busing program (the church runs four buses Sunday mornings and Wednesday evenings) and various odd jobs.

As for the future, Tibbits, who has one year of college, is leaving it up to the Lord.

He would like to take some correspondence courses in the Old Testament but beyond that, further religious education is still a question mark.

Whether he might want to some day go to school in order to become a minister isn't something he has considered.

For now, he is very content where he is and doing what he is doing. "I plan to stay in Deford unless the Lord calls me elsewhere."

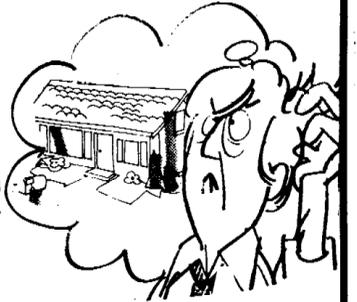

Generally, one good turn builds up hope for another.

Wickware -- There never was much there, but there's even less now

Wickware is so small it doesn't even rate a highway sign.

If it did -- as the old joke goes -- "Enter Wickware" and "Exit Wickware" would have to be on the same sign. The place is marked on Sanilac county road maps, however, and for the unknown, Wickware is on Cass City Road in Greenleaf township, three miles east of M-53 at Leslie Road.

Wickware proper only consists of one store, one house and one old schoolhouse converted into a home.

It never consisted of much more than that, according to Gladys Hichens, 83, who grew up within walking distance of Wickware.

But "walking distance" had a different meaning around the turn of the century when she, her four brothers and three sisters were going to school in Wickware. Their parents were Stewart and Mary Nicol and the family farm was on Cumber Road, east of Germania Road, which meant a 5-mile round trip on foot to and from school each day in Wickware.

Horses were primarily for farming and the primary means of transportation was walking. "I remember my grandmother walking to Cass City (9 1/2 miles) to do some shopping," Mrs. Hichens recalled.

She also recalls the story of her mother, prior to her marriage in 1871, when she was working in Forestville. She (her mother) once bought her grandmother one pound of tea for $2. It was a very expensive gift, since she was only earning 50 cents a week.

WICKWARE WAS named after Albert Wickware, but he wasn't the first settler there.

That honor goes to Stephen Greenman, who moved there in 1858. He also married Mary Jordon that year; it was the first wedding in Greenleaf township.

His land was at the northeast corner of what is now Cass City and Leslie Roads -- it was a wilderness back then. He later donated the land for the school and church.

The school was built right at the corner and the church to the east of it. Mrs. Hichens doesn't know when the school was built but the Bethel Presbyterian church, for which she has the original records, was built in 1882. Prior to then, services were held in the Greenman home. Mrs. Greenman taught in the school.

The church was later sold to the Methodists and was renamed the Wickware Methodist church. Probably around 1940, Mrs. Hichens guesses, it was sold and then torn down, with the lumber being used for a house in Cass City.

The wood school that she attended burned down and was replaced with the brick structure there now. The district eventually became part of the Cass City school system. The old schoolhouse is now used for a house.

MRS. HICHENS' GRANDfather, Alexander Nicol, came to Greenleaf township in 1859. He, like most of the early settlers in the area, were from Scotland. Three of his children died of diphtheria in 1866. It was the first funeral in the township. They were buried on the family farm, which served as the township's first cemetery. There are about 20 persons buried there.

Two early businesses in the area were the sawmill and blacksmith shop. The sawmill was started by Mary Jordon Greenman's brother, Hugh Jordon. It was located about a half-mile south of Wickware.

According to the history of Sanilac county written in 1884, from which Mrs. Hichens obtained some of her information, George Cutting erected his blacksmith shop a mile north of Wickware in 1881.

It closed in September, 1884. His (apparently) long since abandoned house and small barn are still there, but the building that housed the blacksmith shop is gone.

There was, according to the history, a blacksmith shop begun in Wickware in spring, 1883, but no details are given.

A weaver, John Watson, settled about a mile south of Wickware in 1863.

AND THEN THERE WAS Albert Wickware. Born in 1845, he was originally in lumbering. From 1875-78, he had a blacksmith shop at Ellington, then moved to Cass City. He moved to Wickware and started his store in August, 1882. A daughter, Myrtle Wickware, was Mrs. Hichens' teacher.

A postal station was placed in his store but in order to deliver mail there, the "town" needed a name. That's how the community got the name of Wickware.

Mrs. Hichens' uncle, Tom Nicol, eventually took over Wickware's store.

Next door to it, right at the southwest corner of Cass City and Leslie Roads, Charles Sackett built a store. If the stores were in competition, it wasn't for long. It was Sackett's store that Mrs. Hichens remembers as a youngster and where residents of the area gathered on Saturday nights.

Wickware's store stood empty for some years, then was sold to the Ancient Order of Gleaners, which moved it to the south. It was later sold to George Johnson, who moved it to M-81, south of M-81, and converted it into a house. It apparently is still standing.

Sackett's store was eventually sold, changed hands several times and eventually burned.

THE PRESENT STORE, at the northwest corner, was built by Harold Hendrick, its present owner, Jessie Wilson, guesses that was about 1930. She went to work for him in 1947. They also operated a garage business there.

Hendrick died in 1960. Miss Wilson, now 71, bought the business from the estate in 1962. She lives in the rear of the store. The garage was closed about six years ago.

The other building right in Wickware now is a house originally built by Tom Nicol, who took over Wickware's store. The house has been enlarged since it was originally built.

The only other building that was right in Wickware was the Burt home, at the southeast corner. The house is no longer there.

Mrs. Hichens also remembers the gospel hall a mile east of Wickware at Germania Road. It was later moved northeast of Argyle for use as a church.

She married Rev. Herbert Hichens, a Methodist minister, in 1935. They were living in Chelsea, near Ann Arbor, at the time of his death in 1960. He was retired at that time.

Mrs. Hichens began returning to the family home on Cumber Road to spend the warmer months in the late 1960s. She spends the winters in Florida. Two brothers, John and Will, now deceased, farmed it after their father died. The farm was originally 160 acres, later expanded to 200. It's now 60 acres, with the land being rented.

Mrs. Hichens has two sisters still living, Mrs. Annie Pelton of Cass City and Mrs. Margaret Richardson of Berkley.

MRS. GLADYS HICHENS

SCHOOL DAYS are over for the Wickware School. This was the second school at the northwest corner of Cass City and Leslie Roads; the original wood one burned. It is now used as a home.

THE BLACKSMITH SHOP of George Cutting was located a mile north of Wickware on Cumber Road. He was only in business from 1881-84. Mrs. Hichens isn't positive, but believes this was his house and barn, obviously long since abandoned. What was the blacksmith shop is no longer there.

Okay Greenleaf zoning change to pave way for smaller homes

The Greenleaf Township Zoning Board Oct. 1 voted to recommend reducing minimum required floor space for dwellings from 850 to 720 square feet.

The recommended change in the township zoning ordinance must now be approved by the township board in order for it to take effect. The board will probably vote on the measure at its November meeting. The change was made at the request of some township residents or would-be residents who wanted to be able to build dwellings smaller than the 850 square feet presently required in order to save on heating costs.

The zoning board decided against one other proposed change, to eliminate the wording from the zoning ordinance that mobile homes "shall be set on a concrete slab and skirted with concrete blocks or aluminum."

The Sanilac county building code has similar wording, so the deletion was proposed because the zoning provision was felt to be unnecessary duplication.

However, the county code isn't as strict as it only requires a concrete foundation, according to Zoning Board Chairman Phil Brack. The board decided it wanted the definite requirement that mobile homes have to be on top of a concrete slab. The county code would presumably allow a mobile home to be placed on top of a foundation of concrete blocks.

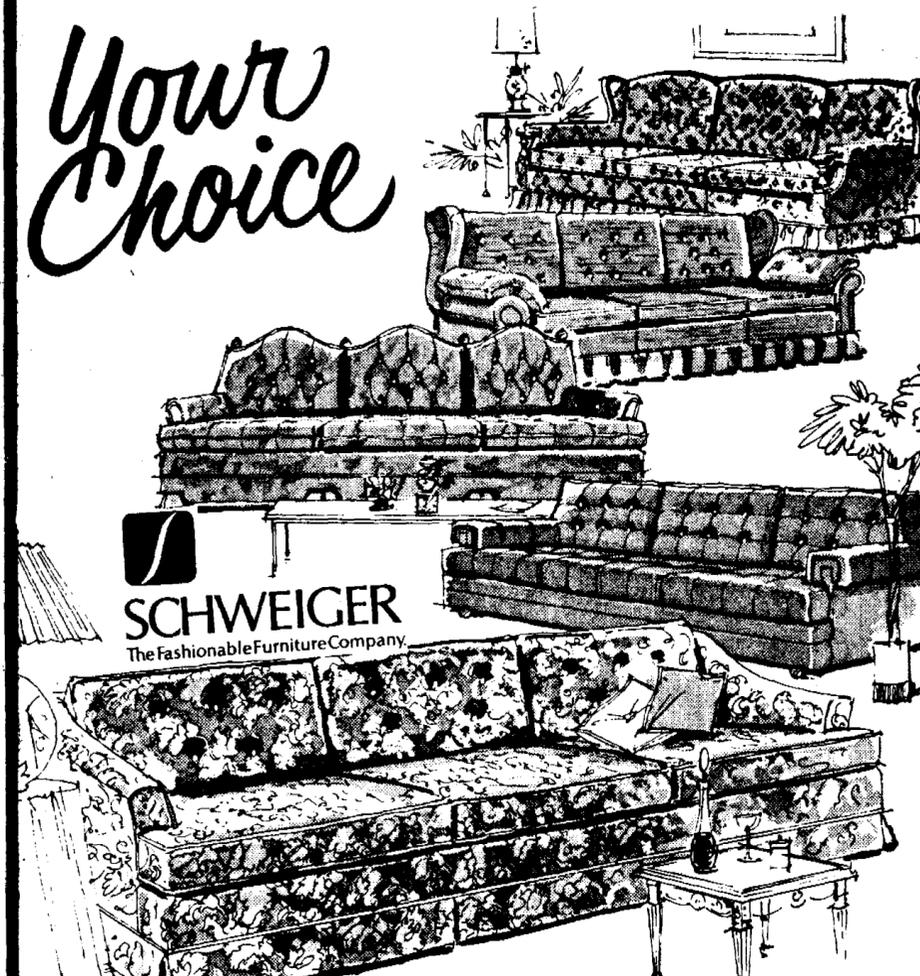

ONE LESS BELL- For a "one-room" schoolhouse, the Freidberger School in Austin township, Sanilac county, was quite a building in its day. The school went out of business about 1964, when the small K-8 district became part of the Ubyly School System. The building is now owned by a Veterans of Foreign Wars post.
