Deer shiners light ire of area residents

By Mike Eliasohn

Some residents of the Shabbona - Phillips - Dodge Road area southwest of Cass City are mad at deer shiners who shine spotlights through their windows and at their livestock and are also mad at law enforcement officials, who they claim are doing nothing about it.

Law enforcement officials say there is little or nothing they can do about the situation. Under state law, the only time shining is illegal is if the shiner has possession of a gun. ("Possession" includes anywhere within the vehicle the shiner is in.)

Probably the most upset is Clayton Harmer of Dodge

Road, who had a horse run into a barbed wire fence several weeks ago after it was spooked by a light being shined in its eyes.

The shiners were even so bold a couple weeks ago that they were driving on the harness racing training track on Harmer's property. He said he called the sheriff's department, showed a deputy the tire tracks, and was told, "You got to catch them.'

Another time, he said he turned in the license plate number of a shiner who has driven past his property several times, but again got no action.

Lights used by some of the could pick up a needle at a half-mile.

Harmer questions what the shiners are seeking, since they obviously won't find deer around his house or barnyard. "What are they looking for? Santa Claus isn't on the roof of my

Tom and Carol McComb of Shabbona Road also question the motives of the shiners.

'They don't even seem to care if a house is there," said Mrs. McComb. "I don't see why they have to do it in people's homes and night after night."

The McCombs and Harmer both mentioned they or family members being awakened at night by lights being shined in bedroom

Mrs. McComb has two horses, which have been spooked by having a light shined in their eyes. "It bothers them as soon as the light hits them.'

"The police won't stand behind us on them harassing our animals," she said.

Like Harmer, she wonders if the shiners are looking for items to steal, as they should know they aren't going to find deer by shining a light on houses, barns, livestock or horses.

But for those who might not realize the consequences of what they are doing who aren't out to poach deer, she said, "Maybe they don't realize what they are do-

NOT ALL SHINERS ARE poachers, Department of Natural Resources conservation officer John Dallas pointed out.

Many are people, including families, who simply "just enjoy looking at deer." Those, however, are off the road by 10 or 11 p.m. (Harmer said the shiners do it from about 9 p.m. until after midnight. The Mc-Combs say the worst problems are between about midnight and 2 a.m.

Dallas is one of only two conservation officers in Tuscola county and between enforcing hunting laws and shining isn't the highest priority.

In fact, he and fellow officer Tim Burke won't necessarily stop a vehicle just because the occupants are using a spotlight.

If they do stop a vehicle, they can search it, including the trunk, if something appears suspicious. Finding hair or blood from an animal would be such a reason.

If the shiners were shining the light where they shouldn't, although no law was broken, Dallas said, "We always give them a mini-lecture, but how much good we do, I don't really know.'

Since shining an artificial light isn't against the law, searching for poachers, the officer said, about the only recourse for those harassed -- if they know who is doing it - is to go to the prosecutor and seek issuance of a warrant charging the person with a civil offense, such as disturbing

He said when conservation officers aren't close by when reports of shining are called in, "We try to help them (DNR officers) out. We don't want people to keep getting pestered.

But his department also has its priorities. "What are you going to do when you've got so many breakings and enterings and bad accidents? You only have a certain amount of help. He ascribes much of the problem to people ''generally looking for deer and when they get to your house, they don't turn their lights off." What will the residents of the area do, since law enforcement officials can't do Harmer said what might happen will be "four or five neighbors will whip out their shotguns." They also have a more long-range solution in mind: Circulating a petition asking State Rep. Loren Armbruster, R-Caro, to introduce legislation that would ban all shining except on HALLOWEEN NIGHT FIRE -- Fed by 1,000 bales of hay and straw, there wasn't much Elkland township firemen could do last Wednesday night as the barn of Charles Ashmore burned, except keep the flames contained so they wouldn't spread to the corn field behind it. Arson was the apparent cause of a Halloween night fire last Wednesday that destroyed a barn along Elkton Road, south of Sebewaing Road in Grant town-

It was on Halloween night, 1974, that Ashmore's barn across Elkton (Cemetery) Road from the one that burned last Wednesday was destroyed in a fire. That fire was also believed to have been started by vandals.

Damage in that one, it was reported at the time, was only $200 as the barn was abandoned.

Firemen got back to the station, in time to be dispatched to the top of the sledding hill in the Recreation Park to extinguish a burning bale of straw.

Area fund drive will top goal

The Elkland-Novesta ganizations. Community Chest appears to have made its goal of $13,500.

As of Tuesday, Community Chest President Iris Tuckey reported, $9,300 in cash had been received.

Yet to come was more than $3,100 from Hills and Dales General Hospital employees, staff and ancillary personnel in outright donations and payroll deduction

Community Chest doesn't count money from payroll deductions until it is actually received. "By spring, I'm sure we'll be over our $13,500 goal," Mrs. Tuckey said. "I think it's safe to say Cass City will reach its goal."

I'm going to sit right down and write myself a letter . . . to our State Senator Al DeGrow

There's been a lot of water over the dam since you were first elected State Senator in one of the giant upsets of all time.

After all, Al, you didn't have any political exper-ience at all before you took on all those candidates in 1968 and walked away with all the marbles.

We were behind you then, Al, and we endorsed you in every successful campaign since that time. You remember my eldest as a member of the cadre of young folks who campaigned for you? Sure you do. When you were elected a lot of us rejoiced. Here was a guy from the Thumb who hadn't been tainted by the political process. To put it bluntly, he didn't owe no-body nothin'.

What's more, Al, we knew you from way back when. When you operated full time that dime store in Pigeon. If ever there was a fellow that should know about the prob-lems of little people and little business, it was you.

That brings me to today, Al. I just wonder if all those years in the power position have changed you some. The other day I read where you were one of the Senators that helped kill John Hertel's proposed legislation asking that 24 cents a year be added to utility bills. The money was to be used to represent us in investigating rate increases ... with the proviso that customers could get the 24 cents back on request if they didn't feel the money well spent. What was wrong with that, Al?

Then there's the business activity tax, Al. After that law was passed there were plenty of meetings because of the outcry of labor intensive businesses. There were a few minor changes after that, Al, but it still collects taxes with very little relationship to profits. I don't protest too much about that, Al, because the Chronicle was hard hit by the tax and obviously we had a personal axe to grind.

I remember when you were first elected. You took positions on controversial issues . . . such as abortion. I admired you for that.

But in recent years I find it a little harder to get a clear picture from you on issues that are unpopular with one or more segments of the district. That could be my fault, of course. I'll admit that I don't keep up with things in Lansing as close as I should.

One thing I'm fairly sure of, Al, is that the problems here in the upper Thumb are much the same today as when you first went to Lansing. The people haven't changed much either. I'm sure that they want the straight talking small town storekeeper they first elected representing them, even if some of the time they disagree with some of the things he does.

As ever,

John

John Wayne, yearning to send a message from heaven in return for 75 percent of all profits realized from the sale of recording and reprint rights, including T-shirts and embroidered pillows.

We were at a dinner party. The hostess pinned the name of a celebrity on the back of each guest. I was John Wayne, but I didn't know it right away. That was the idea of the game. A guest wasn't allowed to look at the name on his or her own back, but was supposed to look at the names on everybody else's back. To find out who he or she was, a guest had to ask the other guests questions that could be answered only by "yes" or don't think so," Burt said. "I think when you get sure of who somebody else is, that's dangerous. I know who I am, and it took me a long, long time to find out. I hope I never really know who the people around me are.

Because Burt Reynolds has always been my favorite philosopher, I was hesitant to read the names pinned to everyone else's back at the dinner party. If Burt doesn't want to know who other people are, neither do I.

But I did want to know who I was, so I could get on with my life. I began to question the worhan standing next to me. She was my wife, but I didn't know who she was.

Through adroit quizzing, I quickly discovered that I was a famous actor who had recently died. After guessing wrong on Bing Crosby and Henry Kissinger, I correctly identified myself as John Wayne. I was quite proud of finding out who I was in less than two minutes. It took Burt Reynolds almost 40 years.

'Now you have to find out who your logical partner is and have dinner with her.

That's why we're playing goodby. I was so tired, I was this game," my wife ex- sick and depressed, so God plained, illustrating her said Elvis, you need a words by pointing to a rest." couple who had just sat down to share a bread plate. According to the tags on their backs, he was Tom Hayden and she was Jane icles and he was protesting the hard butter. "John Wayne was married four times. I can't imagine who his logical dinner partner would be. The only one I can think of is Glenn Campbell," I said. "But it doesn't matter. I'm not going to look for my partner anyway. I don't want to know who any of these people are. Burt Reynolds said it's dangerous to know who someone else is.' So, instead of running around looking at the name tags on people's backs, I amused myself by fantasizing what I would do if I really were John Wayne. I would send a message from heaven to all my fans. I got the idea from a Mt. Clemens woman who recently relayed a poem from heaven sent by Elvis Presley. She relayed it to a Detroit radio station where a disc jockey recorded it in an Elvis-type voice. The record, called "Message from Heaven," is expected to be a big hit. Here is a typical stanza:

"He didn't take me so you would weep and cry, and there was no time to say

All of the big oil companies have filed their quarterly financial reports and apparently the definition of doing well in the oil industry is a minimum of double the profits compared to the same quarter a year ago. Americans shouldn't get upset, the oil companies explained. Most of that profit was made overseas.

Does that mean that European motorists overseas are getting ripped off more than we are? In Europe, gasoline is selling for $2.50-4 a gallon.

It's popular to blame the big increases in the price of gasoline on the Arabs (not that all the members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries --OPEC -- are Arab nations), but that's only part of the reason. There is evidence, some of which has resulted in indictments, that some of the oil companies have violated the laws in order to make extra profits, such as by using subtrefuge to sell domestic oil as imported, for which they can charge a higher

Critics on the liberal end of the political spectrum argue for continued control of gasoline prices. Some say that the federal government should be in charge of importing oil into this country (thus removing such control from the oil companies). There are even arguments that the federal government should get into the oil exploration business and even that the oil companies should be taken over by the government.

Conservatives argue the opposite. Take all the controls off, let the oil companies make as much money as they want and that will give them the incentive to explore for more oil.

Those persons who argue for more government involvement strike me as naive. The number of projects Washington has been involved in and botched is

I even wonder whether President Carter's tax on excessive oil company profits will have its effect, should Congress ever approve it.

The money is to be used for various energy pro-grams, including research on alternative energy sources. Might it possibly be simpler to let the oil companies keep at least some of their excess profits, provided they spend it on energy research exploration, etc.? The government would, of course, have to keep an eye on them to make sure they're doing what they're supposed to be do-

Petroleum is not an infinite resource and the implication gasoline is overpriced bothers me. To me, that's an argument there is no need to conserve, that there is plenty to use and waste. Maybe the fairest way to deal with the energy shortage is for the government to buy every American a share of stock in the oil companies. Then, the more money they make, the more we make. We could use our dividends to buy gasoline.

BIN FIRE -- As smoke poured from the air inlet shaft for the grain bin dryer, Lee Kilbourn used a cutting torch to cut holes so firemen could squirt water inside and to permit extra ventilation. The fireman partially obscured by smoke was using an ax to try to get to the source of the fire. The fire started Monday night at the farm of Arthur and Allan Hartwick.

Hartwick grain bin fire tough one to extinguish Extinguishing of a fire in a grain bin that started Monday night proved to be a tough job for Elkland township firemen.

The fire started in the drying bin of Arthur and Allan Hartwick (father and son respectively) on Cemetery Road, north of Deckerville Road.

Firemen were called at 8:10 Monday night and went back twice Tuesday.

The drying bin blows heated air in underneath the perforated steel floor, which dries the grain above it. Augers circulate the grain and when dry, empty it into nearby storage bins.

According to Arthur Hartwick, his son and the installers of the bin believe the cause may have been corn ground real fine when combined, which when emptied into the bin, fell through the holes in the steel floor to the concrete floor several inches

The fine corn, which wasn't being circulated, eventually got so hot it started burning. The fire then spread to the corn above the floor. The driers, which burn liquid propane gas, ran from about noon Sunday to 4 p.m. Monday, when they ran out of gas. Tanks were refilled and the burners restarted by 6:15. Nothing was noticed about 7:30, Hartwick said, but by 8, smoke and flames could be seen coming out of the heater blowers. Firemen were on the scene Monday night from about 8:15-10. Holes were cut in the sides of the bin near the ground to allow ventilation, find where the fire was burning and to allow water to be pumped in.

Hartwick said his son and helpers then worked all night to empty the bin. There were 3,500-4,000 bushels of corn in it, of which he estimated about half could be saved. Firemen were called back Tuesday morning to hose down the inside of the bin. where burned corn remaining was still smoldering. They went back at 4:40 p.m. for more than two hours for the same purpose. In addition to the loss of the corn, worth about $2 a bushel at current market price, the two burners were destroyed and there was some damage to the bin, mainly from cutting the holes in it. Dollar amount of the loss wasn't immediately

About two years ago, a storage bin on the Hartwick farm next to the bin that burned Monday caught on fire. Cause of that one was corn being piled too high around a light fixture, which got the grain so hot it started

Extensive smoke damage was reported Monday afternoon in a home on Pike Street in Ubly.

Cause of the fire, according to Bingham Township Fire Chief Elmer Brahmer, was a kettle left on a turned on stove while no one was home. Owner of the home was Lambert Jaroch.

The fire was discovered about 2:45 by a neighbor. It was originally thought the fire had burned itself out, but about 4 p.m., a kitchen wall was still smoking and firemen then remained there about two hours

The second of three persons charged in Tuscola county in connection with a large multi-county theft operation was arraigned Monday.

Terry L. Burrows, 29, of 1114 E. Caro Road, Caro, pleaded innocent to a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property over $100. His plea was accepted and pretrial hearing scheduled Nov. 19. Bond was continued.

He is charged with having had possession of a stolen garden tractor Aug. 23 in Vassar township.

Burrows was also originally charged with conspiracy to buy and receive stolen property over $100 in purchasing the tractor from William Payea of rural Vassar. (Payea is charged in Crawford county with breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling in connection with the theft operation.)

In dismissing the conspiracy charge, District Judge Richard F. Kern cited the ruling in a precedent setting case elsewhere that "agree-commit a particular crime cannot be prosecuted as a conspiracy when the crime is of such a nature that it necessarily requires the participation of two persons for its commission.

James F. White, 18, of 7034 Oak Road, Vassar, was placed on two years' probation for attempted breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling. He was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail with credit for two days served, the sentence to start June 22, 1980.

Aerial slides show one mile squares

For the first time, aerial transparencies are available to landowners and farm operators through their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office.

Each transparency covers one square mile and by projecting a slide on a screen, each field and its present land use can be easily identified.

The 35mm slides were taken this past summer to establish wheat and feed grain acreages on farms participating in the 1979 Set-Aside Program.

Any individual or any governmental unit that would like transparencies of any given area should go to their local county ASCS office and select the flight or flights that they wish to have duplicates for.

Then the county office will have the duplicates made and provide them for $1 each. Payment must be in advance.

If dry weather continues in Tuscola county, this will be a good year for deep tillage or subsoiling to loos-en compacted soil. All soils can be excessively compacted, often to depths below 12 inches, if heavy equipment packs wet soil.

Farmers should not deeptill unless their soil is severely compacted. Under average conditions, deep tillage will not increase crop

If there are few or no roots below plow depth, subsoiling is likely to do some good. Standing water, slow infiltration rates, slow drainage by tile or excessive erosion by water may be clues that soil is compacted. Lodging, malformed roots and offcolored leaves are other symptoms associated with compacted soil.

generally Subsoiling should be done in our county in the fall when soil moisture levels are normally low. Tillage of wet soil causes puddling and de-creases yields. Subsoilers also should not be used on soils which do not drain well, for water may collect in the subsoil. This delays subsequent tillage treatments and

A field may require deep tillage one year and not the next. Certain crops, such as sugar beets, and possibly corn or soybeans, are harvested by very heavy equipment, which can compact soil as deep as two feet.

Yields of deep-tilled fields generally increase more on soils which have been artificially compacted than on soils which are compacted naturally. Though the reason for this is unclear, the naturally compacted zone may be too thick for deep tillage tools to penetrate.

DSS probes adult abuse complaints

The Tuscola County Department of Social Services has procedures for handling inquiries or reports of neglect, exploitation, abuse or cruelty to adults who live in nursing homes, homes for the aged, and adult foster care homes.

All inquiries are logged in order to assure prompt action and an inquiry form is used to record the report and results of the investigation.

The investigation and intervention service for residents of adult community placement facilities is a component of the department's total protective services policy.

The department would like to alert everyone to this service, especially residents of such facilities, interested friends and relatives, and other concerned groups and

Any individual, group or ency that wishes to make a report or inquiry may telephone one of the adult services workers at 673-4144 or write or visit the department on M-81, west of Caro.

Discharge review end nears

The Department of Defense has reemphasized that the deadline for discharge review application expires Jan. 1, 1980 for those veterans separated before 1965 with an undesirable discharge (now called "discharge under other than honorable conditions).

This extended period for filing is an exception to the normal 15-year statute of limitations. In order to be considered, the application for discharge review must be postmarked by Jan. 1.

Interested veterans can obtain applications for discharge review (DD Form 293) from any of the following agencies:

-Veterans Administration, American Red Cross, and veterans organizations. --Certain state government departments or county offices of veterans affairs (listed in local telephone directories). --Military installations.

While every effort is being made by the Service Discharge Review Boards to expedite the processing and hearing of current applications, the current workload for the boards is such that an ex-Army applicant may be required to wait as long as one year for hearing if he requests a personal appearance and lesser periods for Navy-Marine and Air Force

Average hearing time for a records review only is within a 90-day period following the receipt of applications by the service board concerned.

There may be a wrong way to do right, but there is no right way to do wrong.

Your Neighbor says

Off-road vehicle limitation wise

Deb Newsome likes to ride a minibike around her parents' farm and in winter, a snowmobile.

That makes her an offroad vehicle rider.

The use of wheeled offroad vehicles (ORVs) -mostly motorcycles in Michigan -- was the subject of public hearings throughout the state this past week, conducted by the Department of Natural Resources.

Present rules ban use of ORVs on state lands where there is no evidence of a trail or road and on forest roads or trails posted against their Miss Newsome thinks that is a good idea. "I think they (off-roaders) should just ride in certain places.

The proposed new rules would separate motorcycle trails from those used by four-wheel vehicles for safety reasons, which she also thinks is a good idea. Part of the controversy concerning ORVs is between those who like to ride such vehicles and nature lovers who claim the noise and smell of the machines ruins their enjoyment of the outdoors.

"There's quite a few who ride them (ORVs) in the woods around our place," according to Miss Newsome. Based on that, she feele nature lovers probably have a valid argument that there need to be further limitations on off-road vehicle use.

Deb is the daughter of Frank and Grace Newsome of Deckerville Road Deford, and is a ninth grader at Case City High School.

Gas bubble has burst, says industry study

There's some good news for fuel oil dealers this week - in the form of bad news for the natural gas industry.

A study commissioned by the Natural Gas Supply Assn. (NGSA), whose members produce more than 95% of U.S. gas, says the gas supply "bubble" has burst, and unless drilling activity doubles by 1985 there'll be gas shortages throughout the coun-Economist Edward Erickson, of North Carolina

State University, in a study for NGSA, says gas supplies are already dwindling. Total gas production fell from a 1973 peak of 22 trillion cubic feet (Tcf) to just 19 Tcf for the past four years.

Along with gas shortages have come rising costs. Erickson says the gas industry has been faced with a tenfold increase in drilling costs for every unit of gas reserves added over the past 10 years.

"Substantially higher prices" will be necessary if the gas industry is to get a large enough return on its investment to make more drilling activity worthwhile, he says.

Erickson says 13,000 wells were drilled successfully last year, but to meet demand at current levels, another 13,000 wells will be needed by 1985 - a growth rate of 12% per year.

Meanwhile, another gas industry expert has warned that industry should not install new boilers that burn only gas.

James Jensen, energy consultant to the manufacturing industry, says the much-heralded gas surplus has disappeared as high oil prices have increased gas demand. In the future industry is likely to experience shortages and interrupted supplies,

Head injuries big killer in accidents

By Frank Chappell, American Medical Association

The head injury is the big killer in traffic accidents. Injuries to the head occur in more than 70 percent of auto accidents involving any kind of injury. And motorcycles and motor scooters contribute their share of the head injuries.

Preventive measures against head injury in motorized vehicles include protective helmets for cyclists, shoulder harness, lap seat belts, cushioned head rests, and auto seats designed with spring so they will give under the force of an impact.

Shoulder harness as well as lap belts are recommended by the American Medical Association. The AMA also endorses safety latches on auto doors, safety hinges, recessed control knobs on dashboards, and padding on visors, corner pillars, dashboards and the back of the front seat.

Objects placed on the car's rear shelf or dangled from the ceiling may become lethal, head-puncturing missiles in a panic stop.

Cass City

Parents are urged to never allow small children to stand on the seats or floors of an auto in motion.

Nor should babies and young children be placed to play on a mat in the rear of a station wagon without proper restraints. The child might become a missile himself in a sudden stop.

The shoulder strap and lap belt will save many serious head injures. The driver rolls with the crashing auto rather than bouncing about inside the vehicle. Head injuries can result from relatively minor auto bumps. Anyone rendered unconscious by a blow should be seen by a physician.

Persistent headache or vomiting, accompanied by increased lethargy after a seemingly minor head injury is cause for medical attention.

That's what we need, says David E. Davis

$2.50 gas would create high mileage cars

Americans should be pay-ling $2.50 per gallon of gas. If they did, says David E. Davis Jr., Detroit would produce truly economical small cars for them to drive. Davis is editor-publisher ুনা: of Car and Driver magazine, and which with a circulation of 71.54 750,000 makes it the nation's ilat second largest car maga-mai . The magazine has its edi-Stú torial offices in Ann Arbor, √ but as co-owner of a house on 80 acres east of Argyle, he is familiar with this area.

Davis, who turns 49 Nov. 7, is an avid hunter, which was one reason for his purchase of the property about five years ago.

The week-end retreat provided the setting for a nonautomotive piece in the magazine's November issue, an article he wrote about the Car & Driver staff's "First Annual Super Giganto Snowmobile Silliness," which took place last February. Ubly, Snover and Argyle all receive mention.

BUT THE MAIN BUSIness of Car and Driver is cars, and Davis has some viewpoints on the subject which won't win him points in a popularity contest. He thinks gas is way too cheap. He quotes a friend at General Motors that, "Energy politics are such in this country, that if we had the last gallon, we would probably sell it for $1." Since the United States supposedly has a free market economy, the price should be allowed to increase to the free market level. In Europe it's $2.50-4 a gallon, so he doesn't feel $2.50 would be unreasonable here. Although there probably will be a need to "reinvent the car" for the future so that they run on something other than gasoline, what's needed for now, he comments, are very small cars, presumably two-seaters, which can get 40-50-60 miles per gallon. Such vehicles are nothing new, and to prove his point, he is going to import from Europe an Italian Fiat Topolino, built in 1953. It has a 500 cubic centimeter engine. smaller than on many motorcycles.

Presumably, it is big enough to accommodate his 6-foot-2, 225-pound frame.

To make building and selling such small cars feasible here, an exemption from federal safety requirements - shock absorbing bumpers, guard beams in doors, etc. -- is necessary here. "If you put all that federal safety stuff on a 600cc car, it wouldn't even

The editor-publisher feels that $2.50 a gallon might mean a change for some persons in the way they get to work, but they would still use their cars with little if any change from present practice for pleasure driv-

Very small cars would allow such driving while still reducing the nation's overall gasoline consumption.

DAVIS WAS RAISED IN Royal Oak and after a stab at college headed for California, which in the mid-"was kind of the promised land for the car enthusiast.

He worked at various odd jobs, including selling cars and men's clothing, to support his road racing. "I was usually the guy fighting it out for sixth place."

A bad racing accident in October, 1955, put him in and out of hospitals for the next 18 months and meant an end to his racing.

He had met John and Elaine Bond, publishers of Road and Track magazine, in California, so after he got out of the hospital for good in 1957, he went to work for them as an ad salesman. Within two months, he was writing odds and ends for the sports car magazine.

He was fired in April 1960 in a disagreement with the Bonds and went to work for the Campbell-Ewald advertising agency in Detroit, writing ad copy for Chevro-

While there, he got to know everyone in the car magazine business and did some free lance writing for Car and Driver. That led to the magazine's hiring him as editor in December, 1962.

After six years there (the magazine was then published in New York City), he finally got tired of seven-day weeks and quit. He left with the magazine "solidly on its feet" financially, which it wasn't when he started.

He went back to Campbell-Ewald and made it up the ladder to creative director and executive vice-presi-

"But it was always in the back of my mind, I should be in the magazine business, he explained, even though he was making much more money in the advertising

The owners of Car and Driver, Ziff-Davis Publishing Co., offered him his old job back twice. The third time he was contacted, he

He went back Dec. 1, 1976. "It was the best thing I ever

The magazine was still located in Manhattan, but Davis eventually persuaded his bosses that New York City was not the ideal location for a car magazine. It was, for instance, 80 miles through traffic to the drag strip used for a test track.

20 seniors end careers with victory over Mayville

The Cass City Red Hawks ended the grid year on a positive note Friday with a non-league decision over Mayville, 27-14.

The Hawks won it by doing something that they haven't done in key games this year. They staged a last half rally to post the victory after leaving the field all tied at intermission, 7-7.

The Hawks scored on a sustained drive in the first period. Mixing runs and passes Cass City moved to the Mayville 22. From there Rusty Hoag hit Mike Stec in the right of the end zone for the marker. Stec caught the hall in traffic and hung on. Brad Hartel's kick was Mayville evened the score with a drive of its own capped by Phil Welcome's three-yard plunge. Mark Colosky's kick tied it.

The Hawks went out in front in the third period as Hoag hit Tim Sontag from 10 yards out. The kick was missed.

Hawk fans were wondering if the narrow defeats that had ruined what could have been a fine season was about to hit again. Mayville thed it on Phil McLane's sneak for a score early in the final period and went ahead en Colosky's conversion,

Owen-Gage rolls easily to state tourney

They made it!

What Owen-Gage coach Arnie Besonen calls the second season starts at 1:30 p.m. Saturday for his Bulldogs at Stamats Field in Caro when they take on Michigan Lutheran Seminary of Saginaw in the first round of the class D state playoffs.

The Bulldogs made it to the post-season tourney by rolling over Manton Saturday, 40-7, to give them a 9-0 mark for the regular season.

Their win combined by a loss by Seminary Friday to Saginaw St. Stephens moved the Bulldogs into first place in the Division III Class D standings. MLS makes it into the playoffs despite a 7-2 record.

Besonen and his fellow coaches scouted the Seminary-St. Stephens game Friday night. His opinion of his upcoming opponent was a painful, "Oooh!" He described the team as "not real big," but quick and aggressive.

The Bulldogs will have to cope with the MLS aerial attack, which last Friday saw it gain 210 yards in the air, compared to only 60 on the ground

O-G allotted 1,400 tickets

Tickets for the Owen-Gage - Michigan Lutheran Seminary game tentatively will go on sale Thursday morning at the high school.

Price will be $2 for both students and adults. They will also be sold at the gate. The game starts at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Stamats Field at Caro High School.

Final arrangements for the game and ticket sales were awaiting a meeting Wednesday night between Owen-Gage Athletic Director James Barr, a MLS representative, and Caro Athletic Director Donald Stamats.

As of Tuesday, Barr was assuming he would have the tickets for sale starting Thursday morning, but wouldn't know for sure until the meeting. The school can get as many as 1,400 tickets to sell. Stamats Field seats

The Owen-Gage band will be playing at halftime, as will MLS, presuming that school sends its band. The Bulldogs are the designated home team, being closest to the game site. That gives their band the honor of playing the national anthem. Owen-Gage gets $300 from the Michigan High School Athletic Association for expenses, Barr said, but no mileage as the team has less than 50 miles to travel to the game.

The MHSAA originally had the game scheduled at Cadillac, but moved it to Caro because of the closeness of the two schools.

The winner Saturday plays the winner of the Region IV game, Norway or Crystal Falls Forest Park, the following Saturday at Traverse City.

> "WE DID IT!," Owen-Gage coach Arnie Besonen (right) seems to be saying to assistant coach Phil Gray at the end of Saturday's game at Manton, which gave the Bulldogs an undefeated regular season and post-season playoff berth. A player at left, apparently about to get a victory kiss, signals what he thinks his team's status should be. No. 7 is Stan Andrakowicz. (Dave Burrows photos).

It's rare in her family that their car is used for grocery shopping. Large side bags are attached to a bicycle to carry the groceries.

If it rains, riders put on rain suits and keep pedaling. Children have to be at least 18 in the Netherlands to even begin taking driving lessons.

THE SECOND BIKE that most people in Holland own, including the members of Miss Swart's family, is a lightweight multi-speed cycle, which is used for pleasure riding.

The exchange student often gets letters from her family which mention, "We just got back from a bike Cycling is not her hobby, however; it's ballet. She has been studying it 13 years and is continuing here, taking lessons once a week in Saginaw, along with Jill Seurynck, who has been studying it a few years.

Extensive bicycle riding is not a new phenomenon in Holland, as a reaction to $2.81 per gallon gasoline. In comparison to what motorists paid in the United States, the price there has always been expensive.

Cycling is also made easier in the Netherlands because of the mild climate. It doesn't snow much or often in her country, Miss Swart explained.

For that reason, "I can't curious what it's like."

BICYCLES AREN'T THE only way to get around in the Netherlands, of course. There are cars and trains and because of them, the exchange student's home town of Heerhugowaard is undergoing a change. It had been a farming community but that is changing as people from Amsterdam are moving there in a desire to get away from the big city, in much the same pattern as is occurring in this country. They then commute to their jobs in Amsterdam by car or train.

After that, the office will be open regular hours, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m.-

The pheasant count, Jarvis said, was "down significantly." At Fish Point, for instance, it was down 50-60 percent.

There was also a big drop in the southeast part of Tuscola county, where numbers had been making a slight increase in past years.

The biologist couldn't account for the big decrease, other than to say it had been a "very poor nesting season," possibly because of the last winter being so cold.

Searching for unusual gift ideas is hardly a new concern.

The Sannac county board was expected to pass a resolution stating that it would participate in the proposed program and requesting a state grant to pay part of the cost.

Instead, commissioners approved a resolution stating that their interest in the program was contingent on the financial aid that would be available from Lansing. Estimated first-year cost of the program (based on inclusion of Tuscola county) was $336,000, of which $200-250,000 would come from various human services agencies which presently spend that amount in transporting their own clients.

The proposal calls for them to pool all their vehicles into a new transit agency, with whom they would then contract to provide transportation for their clients. One of the concerns expressed by the Sanilac commissioners was why the proposed new program will be so much more costly than present programs. (Start-up costs and added service are the supposed reasons.) There was also concern expressed that the original resolution presented indicated Sanilac would participate in the transit program, regardless of how much or how little the state contributes, hence, passage of the revised resolution. Before, he can accumulate

Make changes for telephone books now

General Telephone is now compiling information for the new telephone directory.

"Telephone customers in the communities of Caseville, Cass City, Elkton and Kingston who want to make corrections or additions to the directory must contact the company's service office before Friday, Nov. 30," according to Bob Kowalski, division manager for the company.

During the information compilation period, both residential and business customers can change their listings. There may be a nominal "records change" charge for revisions made to white page listings.

"Most changes can be handled by telephone and a personal visit is usually not required," Kowalski said.

Publication and distribution dates for the new directory will be announced later.

Brickley: opportune time for GOP revival

Political parties, as well as the presidency and the entire political process are in trouble; Lt. Gov. James H. Brickley told Tuscola County Republicans last

That presents, however, an opportunity for the GOP to return to the status of the majority party.

Brickley spoke to a couple of hundred persons at the organization's dinner dance at the Colony House on M-53. Part of the reason for political apathy by the public, Brickley said, is an attitude of "it doesn't matter who I vote for.'

That attitude is partly because electors have an average of 85-90 political posts to vote for - ranging from president down to state and local political offices.

It's not possible for the average citizen to keep track of all those office holders, with one result being that those who do vote tend to vote the incumbent back into office, no matter what his record. In Detroit, last November, a convicted felon was returned to office (Congressman Diggs, whom Brickley didn't mention by name).

Although it's not possible for citizens to keep track of what all their elected officials are doing, the one-time FBI agent continued, special interests can and do.

The result is sometimes the officials are more responsive to the special interests than to the people who elected them.

Although it's not practical to keep track of what individual office holders are doing, "What we can do is track the performance of the two political parties."

Polls show that the majority of Americans, though they vote for Democrats, are "more in line with the general philosophy of the Republican party," accord-

David Seurynck of 4299 Woodland Street told village officers early Tuesday that the driver's side door window of his pickup was broken while it was parked at the Charmont between 1:30 and 2 that morning. Damage was estimated at $75.

Donald Crouse of 6778 Houghton Street told police the detachable centers of the wheel covers were stolen from his car Friday or Saturday while it was parked in his garage. The incident was reported Saturday afternoon. Water department Superintendent Ed Anthes discovered Thursday morning that obscenities had been painted around the base of the Cass City water tower, apparently on Oct. 30 at the earliest. The words have since been painted over.

The present economic turmoil this nation is in, Brickley suggested, may be what brings the GOP back into power, as "We have views consistent with the majority of Americans today.

The nation in the past has gone through a major political realignment about every 40 years and it was the Depression of the 1930s that put the Democrats into power, he explained.

Now that Wayne county has started work on the goal and is trying to balance its budget, the state will pick up the tab for its probation services, as it now does in most other counties. That will save Wayne county about $5 million a year. (Its deficit is about $19.3 m2-

As for his own political future, Brickley said he plans to give "a very serious look" to running for governor in 1982.

His decision partly hing on whether Gov. Milliken decides to run for re-election. Milliken has held the position since 1969. "I would be surprised if he did (run again)," Brickley said.

Car-deer crashes still plague area

Car-deer collisions continued to be numerous on Tuscola county roads.

The most serious during the past week resulted in minor injuries to Joseph A. Nickens, 31, of 4094 S. Kingston Road, Kingston. He sought treatment from a private physician, according to sheriff's deputies.

They reported he was westbound on M-46, west of Cat Lake Road, at 6:20 a.m. Sunday when his car struck the animal. The vehicle then skidded 100 feet before going off the edge of the road.

Other car-deer accidents in the area, all reported by the sheriff's department, Vicky Lynn Sears, 21, of Marlette, while westbound on Deckerville Road, east of Kingston Road, at 7 p.m.

2 to make restitution for damage

Two 19-year-olds responsible for damage to the first hole putting green at Rolling Hills Golf Course have agreed to make restitution.

The damage was done the night of Oct. 12-13 by a vehicle driven over the green several times. The vandals had to remove a portion of a fence to gain entrance to the course.

Course owner John Maharg said someone gave him the names of the two young men responsible. One was the driver, the other his passenger. He subsequently went to them and they admitted doing the damage. They have now signed an agreement stating they will pay restitution of $464 within 60 days.

Maharg said he didn't know either individual prior to the incident and neither had been students of his wife, Kally, a teacher at the intermediate school.

Deputies said he was riding the machine in a gravel pit at Kelly and Warner Roads when it hit a dip and he lost control.

Ronald L. McAlpine, 37, of Owendale, was treated and released from Bay Medical Center, Bay City, Monday night after an accident on McAlpin Road, southwest of Owendale.

Huron county deputies reported he was eastbound, east of Lambert Road, when he lost control on the gravel surface. The car traveled about 100 feet before going off the road.

Two passengers sought treatment from a private physician after an accident at 3:45 a.m. last Thursday. Injured were Mary B. Arellano, 34. of 5442 E. Sanilac Road, Kingston, and Roger Bearinger, 23, of 2325

Elmwood Road, Cass City. Tuscola deputies said they were passengers in a car driven by Wayne R. Wilcox, 37, of 5855 Cemetery Road, Kingston, which went off the west side of Maple Grove Road, east of Mayville, and hit a fence. The car was southbound.

Wilcox was ticketed on a charge of careless driving. Charles D. Boyce, 37, of Unionville, was ticketed by deputies on a charge of failure to yield after an accident at 4:15 p.m. Sun-

Officers reported he was backing from a driveway on River Road, southwest of Cass City, and backed into the eastbound vehicle of Michael R. Corl, 21, of 1920 N. Dodge Road, Deford.

William C. O'Dell, 70, of 5681 E. DeLong Road, Cass City, reported to the sheriff's department that at 8 p.m. Oct. 31 he was eastbound on M-81, east of Watrousville, when an object struck and broke the right side rear window of his

8 area PBB suits pending

Eight upper Thumb farm families are among 69 who have cases still pending against Velsicol Chemical Co. as a result of losses stemming from the 1973 contamination of feed with the fire retardant PBB.

They are Dale E. and Ruth

Ann Gornowicz, Ubly; Michael B. and Joyce A. Messing, Ubly; Delmar, Margaret and Lynn Miller, Owendale; William and Nancy Chappel, Kinde; Douglas and Cordelia Deming, Bay Port; Delmar, Magdelene and Kayeleen Gunden, Bay Port; Herman, Jessie, Michael and Julie Meissner, Minden City, and John, Isabelle, John E. and J. Lucille Partaka, Minden

All are represented by Bad Axe attorney H. Dale

According to him, further developments are awaiting a pretrial hearing for all eight suits Dec. 20 in Huron County Circuit Court. One item that may be determined at that time, he indicated, is whether an out-of-court settlement is possible.

In addition to Velsicol, other defendants in the suits are Michigan Chemical Co., Northwest Industries, Farm Bureau Services, Michigan Salt Co., and the individual elevators that sold the plaintiffs the feed. Michigan Chemical was taken over by Velsicol, which in turn is an operating company of Northwest Industries. Velsicol recently reached an out-of-court settlement with 70 Michigan farm families who had filed suit against the firm as a result of the PBB-animal feed mix-The settlement involved

$2.6 million in cash, plus forgiveness of the families' debts to farm cooperatives from which they had purchased the contaminated feed. In turn, the families waived any personal injury None of those who settled were from the upper Thumb. The settlement leaves 69 who have yet to settle, including the eight represented by Cubitt.

Velsicol, Farm Bureau Services and their insurance companies previously settled 700 PBB-related claims for a total of $40 million.
