July 4 festival set for village

The committee in charge of the Summer Festival in Cass City July 4 is predicting upwards of 10,000 persons will be crowding into the village for the inaugural

To meet this ambitious goal the Cass City Chamber of Commerce is planning a y filled with various ents, Chairman Tom Herron said this week.

We plan to have events non-stop from morning to night, he added, and we want to have what you want to see.

For that reason we welcome suggestions about what interests you. We'll listen, Herron and Aime Ouvry said last week when discussing the event, and we'll do our best to put ideas into action.

<sup>3</sup> Already on the tentative agenda is a big parade. church food and concession stands, swimming events, archery shoot, chain saw carving show, arts and crafts exhibits, tractor pulling, farm show and kids' games.

The committee also sees tours of the community and farms as festival highlights. There will be displays from local factories and sure to be a hit with kids, a visit from Ronald McDonald.

Persons with ideas about the festival can call Herron or Gerald Prieskorn.

With the ambitious program that is planned the committee says it can use all the help it can get.

Volunteers can call Herron or Prieskorn or are very welcome to attend a dinner meeting at the Charmont Feb. 8 at 6 p.m.

There is no doubt that a cooperative effort by the entire community will be needed to put this event across as they have similar events in neighboring communities, Herron said. If we do it right, Herron feels, it can do nothing but enhance the community and

Car total loss in Sunday fire

The 1974 Chevrolet of Jamie Fileccia was described as a total loss as the result of a fire early Sunday in Cass City.

The car was parked in ront of the Pizza Villa, 6637 Main Street, where she works. At about 4:30 a.m., she started the car to warm it up, then went back inside to do a few tasks before leaving.

When she went outside again, it was on fire. She estimated it had been idling seven minutes.

Elkland township firemen, who extinguished the fire, were unable to determine a căuse. Department Captain Milt Connolly said due to extensive damage under the hood and in the front seat and dash area, the car was a total loss.

At 11:35 p.m. Saturday, firemen were dispatched to Walnut Trailer Park on S. Seeger Street because of a possible trailer fire.

The trailer was owned by the park owner, Al Horne, and rented by Terrance Bucholtz.

What happened, firemen said, was a pizza was placed in the oven and by mistake, the self-cleaning oven control was turned on.

The extra high temperature, firemen said, resulted in smoke but no fire, the only loss being a burned pizza.

In the trailer at the time of the incident were Mrs. Bucholtz, a son and another woman.

tiff Owendale-Gagetown has has been held, but the judge failed to carry its burden of proof in this matter and that the temporary restraining order must be dissolved.

Council sets

Village se je plant tax vote March 13

After several delays, the Cass City Village Council Tuesday evening finally set the date for village residents to vote on a millage to pay the local share for expansion and improvement of the wastewater treatment plant.

The election will be Tuesday, March 13. Electors won't be voting on a set millage, but rather to authorize levying of the millage necessary for Cass City to pay off the estimated $1.2 million local share for plant construction.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) will pay 75 percent of the estimated $6 million cost; the state, 5 percent, and the village, the remaining $1.2 million (20 percent).

The legal advisor for the project, William Danhof of Miller, Canfield Paddock and Stone, said his firm and the engineers for the proj-ect, Hubbell, Roth and Clark, are confident that by March 13, the village will have guarantees from the EPA that it will fund the project and from the Farmers Home Administration that it will finance the local Provided voters give their okay, the village will sell its $1.2 million in bonds to the FHA at a low 5 percent interest, to be paid back over 40 years.

Having to sell the bonds on the open market would mean an interest rate of 8-9 percent, Danhof said.

Delays in getting the eeded approvals from the EPA and FHA were the reason for the delay in setting of the election date. The original goal had been in December.

If the measure is approved, the first millage levy will show up on tax bills this summer. As only interest will probably be paid the first year on the borrowed money, Danhof said the levy might be 3 mills.

The next year, with both principal and interest to pay, the levy might climb to 4.5 mills, based on a state equalized valuation of Cass City of $15 million.

But as the SEV increases in future years, the levy will drop each year and toward the end of the 40 years, the attorney predicted, residents might only be paying a half-mill a year.

The village is under orders from the state Water Resources Commission to improve the sewage treatment plant and because of that, council members feel it would be beneficial for voters to approve the project in March.

Provisions of the Headlee amendment to the state constitution relating to bonding proposals have caused a slowdown in municipal building projects, thus officials are looking for favorable bids by contractors eager for work.

"This is the most advantageous time," Councilman James Ware commented. 'It (the project) is going to be imposed on us anyway. This is the cheapest way we'll ever have it."

As for now, "selling" the project will consist of explaining the proposal before any groups that want to hear about it. A public meeting might be scheduled later. If voters reject the proposal, it's almost a certainty council will schedule another election. If voters approve it, estimated start of construction is June 15 with completion date of June 1, 1981.

BUILDING

Nine bids were received for construction of a 60-by-120 foot building to house village equipment and supplies, to be constructed east of the present storage and maintenance buildings

The job was awarded to the lowest bidder, Elmer Francis of Cass City, at a cost of $31,479 for a metalcovered wood pole building. Construction will start in the

The top priority in the plan, for which the village will apply for federal funds for 1980, will be renovation or replacement of the two 30-year-old tennis courts in the recreation park, construction of two more courts, plus lighting and fencing.

A public hearing on the plan was scheduled at 8 p.m. at the next council meeting, Feb. 27. It will probably be held in the township fire

The 1979 village budget of $418,000 was reviewed for a final time. It will be the subject of a public hearing Feb. 27 at 7:30 p.m.

OTHER BUSINESS

A resolution was approved accepting the Ale Street extension. Bulen Drive (between the extension and Seeger Street) and about the north half of Comment Drive (leading to the Charmont) as village streets.

After a scheduled public hearing, at which no one spoke, the council voted to appropriate all of the expected $42,000 in federal revenue sharing funds this year for the police department. That is the same practice as done in past

Kenneth Schott, 27, a Bay county sheriff's deputy, was hired as the new village police officer, replacing William Moore, who resigned. He was one of 10 certified policemen who applied and one of two interviewed. Married, his parents, the Frank Schotts and in-laws, the Ron Geigers, live in Cass City. Village President Lambert Althaver discussed the possibility of the council establishing an economic development corporation. Under state law, the EDC can issue tax-free bonds at less than open market interest rates to finance industry and business construction if it results in new jobs. Further investigation will be made.

Trustee Dorothy Stahlbaum reported that a Bronner Christmas decorations representative from Frankenmuth has estimated it will cost $3,640 for additional Christmas decorations for downtown. The council is considering taking over purchase of such items from the Chamber of Commerce. It will discuss the issue further in February. Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie reported the "mudjacking" to level the tilted final settling tank at the wastewater plant was halted due to cold weather. The project probably won't resume until April.

Purchase of two mobile radios for $1,200, one for the snowplow truck, the other for the front end loader, was approved.

Following past practice, the council decided not to participate in Mayors' Exchange Day of Michigan

Work camp site selection starts

The Tuscola County Planning Commission will make its recommendation on a site for a state Department of Corrections work camp in

The recommendation will be submitted to the county Board of Commissioners. Presuming it gives the recommendation its okay, it will be forwarded to the state.

The Planning Commis-ion, designated by the sion, county board as its site selection committee, met for the first time Tuesday in Caro with state officials to begin the selection process. The meeting was originally scheduled last Thursday, but postponed because of road conditions.

According to commission Vice-chairman Ed Karr of Elkland township, the group will next meet Feb. 8, at which time it will have selected 6-8 potential sites.

It will then narrow it down to three or four sites and meet with residents living near those sites before making a final selection. Visits to state work camps elsewhere are also on the agenda. The committee will be meeting almost weekly until the final recommendation is made. The three state officials present Tuesday, two from the Office of Intergovernmental Relations, the other from the corrections department, discussed much of the same general information presented at a meeting in Caro Jan. 4, plus the specifics involved in the selection

The meeting Tuesday drew about 20 spectators, including four county commissioners.
All of the Planning Commission meetings will be open to the public, with the Feb. 8 session starting at 7 p.m in the courthouse annex.

DEACON Lambert (Bud) Kuhr and his wife Harriet. The first full-time deacon in the diocese of Saginaw, he is serving St. Agatha's and St. Columbkille Catholic Churches in Gagetown and Sheridan respectively.

New deacon is change for Catholic churches

There is still a father living in the St. Agatha's Catholic church rectory, but he is not a priest.

"I'm a father five times. but still not a reverend father," explained Lambert (Bud) Kuhr, the new fulltime deacon at the Gagetown church.

He is also serving as deacon for St. Columbkille church at Sheridan (M-53 and Atwater Road). It has about 100 member families versus about 160 at St.

Kuhr, his wife Harriet, and youngest son, Jim, a 10th grader, are living in the rectory. They have four other children, Mary Kay, in Florida; Donald, in Idaho; Richard, in Saginaw, and Ann Marie, a student at Delta College.

He takes over at St. Agatha's for Father Norman Van Poppelen, who retired at the end of last year. Officially, Kuhr serves under Father Joseph Morales of St. Pancratius church, Cass City, who will be performing mass and hearing confession in Gage-

Father Edward O'Reilly of St. John's church in Ubly has been appointed administrative pastor for St. Columbkille. Father Stanley Kilar, who is retired and lives in Ubly, will continue to perform the mass there and hear confessions, a duty he has been performing the past year, since the priest assigned there left. The reason why another training. priest was not assigned to either church, the deacon the first full-time deacon ap-

POSITION deacon goes back to the beginnings of the Catholic church, Kuhr explained, but its present status is quite

In the early days of the church, deacons were assistants to the bishops and handled the day-to-day operations. The position became quite powerful, however, so was downgraded to the rank preceding the ordination of a man to the priesthood. Now, a candidate to the priesthood usually is ordained as a deacon about a year before becoming a priest. It was at the Vatican II conclave in 1965 that a permanent deaconate was established to serve in lesser areas of the world, such as. Africa and Asia, where there were few priests.

Pope Paul VI established the rules and requirements for deacons in 1968. Three or four years later, the bishops in the United States requested they be allowed to permanent deaconates and their request was granted.

The permanent deaconate is restricted to married men 35 and over and to single men if they agree to remain unmarried.

It is still up to each bishop whether to have deacons and in some dioceses, there are The Saginaw diocese has priest of St. Matthew's church there was in charge of the diocese's new deaconate program. He mentioned it at a meeting Kuhr was at. "I became interested, I investigated and I prayed over it a good while." In 1973, he applied for the program and was accepted. At that time, the program consisted of two years of evening and week-end classes offered by the diocese in such subjects as spirituality. It now runs three years. He was ordained the eighth deacon in the diocese June 4, 1976.

Kuhr continued working. He was an internal auditor for Branch Motors Express until June, traveling to many of its terminals throughout much of the U.S. From June until November, he was self-employed, conducting audits for various trucking firms.

It was in November the diocese asked him to consider serving as a deacon fulltime at a parish without a priest. It wasn't necessarily known at that time it would be St. Agatha's. Kuhr accepted -- he feels strongly the Lord had a role in helping him make that decision -- and in mid-December, he and his wife met with the St. Agatha's parish council.

By Jim Fitzgerald

My friend Ralph, having suffered through several disasteful cocktail parties during the recent holiday season, suggested I tell you readers how he makes the best martini in the world. I accused him of trying to get me in trouble with the Michigan Council on Alcohol roblems.

The council is understandably peeved by newspaper writers who dispense information which might help readers to fall down drunk. A good example of the council's concern is the dap which occurred recently after Michigan's legal drinking age was raised from 18 to

My favorite newspaper published an article detailing how suddenly disenfranbised drinkers are breaking the new law. They are dressing "old" when they go bar hopping, not wearing their high school class rings, and they aren't ordering sloe gin fizzes or other drinks ommonly associated with young drinkers.

The article also described how and where the underage drinkers are obtaining false IDs, and it further noted that many of them are crossing the river to Canada where 'Se legal drinking age is still

"The council has nothing to worry about," he said. "People my age already know how to drink illegally. What they don't know is how to read newspapers.'

After I read him the offending article, Nerd said the alcohol council should praise it, not knock it.

"Bar owners read newspapers," Nerd said. "If they didn't know it before, they know now that underage drinkers usually don't wear diapers into bars. That article reveals all our secrets for drinking illegally. And I know Canada is nearby because I can see it out my window, but a lot of saloon keepers probably didn't know about it until they read it in the paper. "Most kids know how to get false IDs when they are 15. They learn in the school cafeteria from someone 16. They're too thirsty to wait until they're old enough to read how in a newspaper. But now the bar owners have read about it.

"If the alcohol council wants to stop underage drinking, it should reprint that article and distribute it to every bar owner in the state," Nerd said.

So just as underage drinkers already knew how to do it, and didn't have to learn from a newspaper, overage drinkers already know how to drink martinis, and it can't hurt them to read about the best. Here is my friend Ralph's recipe:

Bonnie Cameron, KA8-DDF, formerly of Ubly, has received her novice class amateur radio operator's license.

She and her husband, Ernie, operated C&S Electronics on Germania Road. but have closed the business and moved in January to Arizona, where he will be working in electronics and she will be teaching electronics at a college. Cameron, WD8JQN, was a past president of the Lake Huron Amateur Radio Club.

The novice class license earned by Mrs. Cameron is the first step in U.S. amateur radio.

The objective is to give a newcomer some on-the-air experience so they may develop skills toward a higher grade license more rapidly than by textbook study and audio-oscillator code practice.

Requirements for the novice license are the passing of a Morse Code test at the rate of five words per minute and a written examination in elementary aspects of amateur regulations and theory.

The transmitter used by a novice licensee may not have a power input exceeding 250 watts. The novice may operate only Morse Code, but may communicate with other "hams" around the world.

What happens when the fire bell rings and she is in the midst of a feeding?, I asked myself. How can she protect the property and lives of the residents properly then?

Well, she did it. She was one of the first to answer when she was with her son and the fire alarm summoned. So maybe she can do her

WHAT'S COOKING? - For members of the United Methodist Women Monday evening at Salem Methodist Church, it was a seven-course Korean dinner prepared by church member Yun Jeung, seen here frying shrimp. paragraph reading as follows (from the Jan. '25 Chronicle):

'Remember, a person collecting Social Security is not being paid with money he or she put into the system. The money is coming from people who are presently working."

That paragraph reads as if the retiree did not contribute to Social Security at all! My husband contributed to the fund from the time of its inception until retirement (41 years). In the latter years that deduction was a goodly slice.

As far as I am concerned, I would settle for the return of the money contributed plus interest for the use of the money.

The Social Security program was instituted to supplement the income of the retiree. Pity the poor retiree who does not have a private income or a pension but has to live on the Social Security payment alone. That is not living, it is merely existing.

The reason that the program is in such dire straits is that too many programs are riding piggyback. These programs should be funded separately and not feeding off the Social Security. Many of the programs have nothing to do with retirement.

As far as Medicare is concerned, deductions are made from the retiree's check for Part B (doctors' fees). The retiree has to buy supplemental insurance, also, in order to meet hospital costs.

As far as the hot meal program is concerned, it would have gone down the drain last year but for the help of the local service

There are countless subjects you could write about to arouse the taxpayer's ire, for example — How about the military man who retires and is then employed by the federal government, therefore is dipping twice into the taxpayers pocket by way of pension and salary.

Winter lunacy

Forgive me. I'm suffering from the winter doldrums. (I never have liked the term "cabin fever," but then, I don't think much of "doldrums" either )

I hate the idea of writing about winter as I'm sure most of you reading this are tired of seeing it and living through it, much less reading about it. It's just that I can't think of anything else to write about.

I hate to sound optimistic, it's not my nature, but I can see some good signs. January is usually the worst month of winter and it is now over. The days are usually noticeably longer, though it still gets dark before 6 p.m. And usually, there is one BIG storm each winter and presumably (and hopefully) we have had it.

The big storm was Saturday, Jan. 13, and I had to drive to Lansing that day. As previously stated in this column, I have a passionate dislike of driving in winter when the roads are bad and that day, they certainly

I also wonder about how people kept their driveways (and hopefully sidewalks) cleared of snow before they had gasoline to do it.

Presumably, they used snow shovels and because there was no alternative, they did it without much complaint.

The two directors whose terms were expiring, Leon Keinath of Millington and Charles Wells of Vassar, were both re-elected. Seventy-six landowners cast ballots.

Wells was presented with a plague in honor of his having served 15 years as director. District aide Mary Lou Earl received one for her 10 years of service.

Millington Future Farmers of America members received the first place award for the district soil judging contest last fall, the Caro FFA for second and the Reese FFA for third.

Julie Koepf and Kelly Williams, both of the Sebewaing area, were the winners in the district's poster contest for third and fourth graders.

District Conservationist Jerry Lemunyon reported on conservation practices undertaken in the county during the past year. Included was construction of about six miles of grasslined waterways, seven control systems for animal wastes, planting of 203 acres of trees, soil mapping of nearly 57,000 acres, reduction in tillage and preservation of almost 22,000 acres of farmland under the state Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act (Public Act 116). Out of about 350,000 acres of cropland in the county, about 100,000 are now protected from development for non-agricultural purposes. One of the two guest speakers was Glenn Weesies, soil survey coordinator for the Michigan Department of Agriculture. He presented a slide program on how a soil survey is conducted and once completed, its uses.

Mapping of Tuscola county, financed by federal, state, county and township funds, got underway in August. The survey will be done in 1983, Weesies said, and the published report out two finish.

Uses of the survey formation, he explained, include determining which land is best suited for agric cultural and non-agricultural purposes, road build'ing and "helping farmers make intelligent land use decisions," such as which crops are best suited for the soils he has and needed conservation practices. The other speaker was Lillian Dunlap, who retired last June as principal at McComb Elementary School in Caro after 40 years in education. She was born on a farm in the Shabbona area.

She showed slides of her trip nine years ago to Italy, Greece, Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, Turkey and Israel.

Party time is "on your tuard time." Toddlers guard should be watched carefully. Peanuts are a particular threat if inhaled. Their natural vegetable oils set up a chemical reaction that can destroy young airways and lung tissue.

"Always, no matter what age, teach children to chew food well by setting a good example yourself. Have the child sit down while eating even snacks. Don't let them eat while lying down or running and playing," Dr. Honicky warned.

Parents should take a good look around the home, identifying objects that are of particular danger to youngsters from the crawling six-month-old to the active six-year-old. They should keep pins and other nonedible items away from their own lips. Beaded necklaces and other loose jewelry should be removed before attending small children. Clutching hands are quick, no matter how tiny.

Some parents may be aware of these precautions, but brothers and sisters, babysitters, grandparents, nursery school teachers, and other care-givers should be reminded too.

Both lung associations have a curriculum available for nursery school teachers to teach young children how to breathe, what to put in their mouths, how and what to chew and how to swallow carefully.

With the Bulldogs ahead 42-28 at halftime, Gray let his bench play most of the second half with the result that the final score, 71-63, made the game sound closer than it was.

Bulldog volleyball champs start title defense tonight

The volleyball season starts Thursday for Owendale-Gagetown when it hosts Port Hope and the Bulldogs aren't as prepared as their coach, Judy Campbell, would like them to be.

Practice got underway about a month later than usual because of the basketball team playing in the state semi-finals in early December, plus a desire to avoid a scheduling conflict in the Gagetown gym with the boys' basketball team.

When the girls got into the gym, they found the brackets to hold the net posts had been removed in anticipation the new Owendale gym would be ready. Until brackets were reinstalled, the team practiced without a

It won't practice in the Owendale gym until a few hours before its first game

Only three starters are back from last year's squad. And the team lacks height.

But a cautious Miss Campbell, who has yet to see her volleyball team lose a regular season match in her previous three years at the helm, tends to emphasize the negative.

There are lots of pluses. All of the varsity players have at least two years of experience.

> The Bulldogs finished 22-1 last year, losing in the regional finals.

Miss Campbell doesn't like to predict where her team will finish this year but indicates she expects it will end the league season in its regular top spot.

Caseville will probably be its toughest competition, she predicts, with other strong teams being Port Hope, Akron-Fairgrove, and Port Austin.

Caro, Ubly fall — Hawks gird for Eagle clash

Cass City tuned up for its most important game of the season Tuesday night with a hard fought victory over a stubborn Ubly quintet, 60-53, at Cass City High School.

The win avenged an earlier one-point loss to the Bearcats and Hawk fans are hoping that their team can do the same when it travels to the lair of the Eagles Friday.

For the game against Frankenmuth could well decide the Thumb B Conference championship and certainly will place the winners in the driver's seat as the regular season heads into its nal weeks.

Both the Eagles and the Hawks have lost one conference game.

It looked for awhile in the first half as if the Bearcats were going to repeat the early season victory.

With Tom Block and the rest of his team shooting the lights out from 20 feet the Bearcats went charging into an early lead.

At the end of the first quarter, Ubly led, 18-9. The lead stretched to 10 points midway into the second quarter before the Hawks started hitting and putting more pressure on defensive-

Ubly showed Hawk fans a quick team and an aggressive defense.

Unfortunately for Bearcat fans Ubly doesn't have any height. Ken Martin dominated the game at center for Cass City and the Hawks' domination of the boards proved to be the decisive factor in the game.

CARO GAME

Cass City Red Hawks stayed on top of the Thumb B Conference race with a stirring double overtime victory over the Caro Tigers last Friday, 64-58.

The loss shoved the Tigers into second place behind Frankenmuth and Cass City.

The near capacity crowd came to the game expecting a close hard fought game and it wasn't disappointed.

The margin between the two teams was never more than seven points and most of the time it was even closer.

The Tigers were kept in the game in the first half by Dave Block who ripped off the rebounds and scored 14 of his team's 30 points.

But he picked up his fourth foul in the third period and was forced to sit out until midway in the final quarter and it was a severe blow for the visitors' chances of winning.

In the first quarter Block ripped in four field goals on rebounds and shots from the corner to account for eight of the Tigers' 12 points.

The Hawks were paced by Steve Richards and Todd Comment who each scored a pair of buckets.

Cass City used accuracy from the free throw line to stay in front in the second period. Eight of 11 chances were converted and at the half the Hawks led by a point, 30-29.

That's the way it went until the final four minutes of the game.

When Cass City forged into a four-point lead Coach Ron Nurnberger ordered his team to stall.

It was the same tactic used in the Laker victory but this time the results were not as good.

With the clock showing less than a minute and a half to play, Cass City was guilty of a turnover. Caro converted and the score was tied as the whistle blew. The Hawks jumped into a four-point lead in the first overtime. Again the stall, again without success.

Leading by four with a minute left, Cass City was guilty of a turnover and Caro moved the margin to a single basket. Moments later the Hawks missed a foul shot and Caro tied the

The Hawks jumped into a four-point lead again in the second overtime and this time it paid off. With Ken Martin, Clare Trischler and Comment hitting six of seven from the free throw line, Cass City iced the game and a share of the Thumb B

Conference lead. Martin led the Hawks with 16 points and 14 rebounds. Richards netted 12 and Trischler scored 11 in addition to playing a fine floor game. Comment was in

Cass City bounced back to win the second match. The girls rolled to a 15-2 decision in the first game, lost a

Vandals hit autos in Cass City

Several incidents of vandalism or other incidents involving autos were reported to Cass City police recently.

Dr. William S. Selby, OD, whose office is on Hill Street, reported Friday that three wheelcovers were stolen from his 1977 Chrysler two days earlier when it was parked in the evening at the Charmont. They were valued at $35-55 each.

Orlo J. Wood, of South Street, Gagetown, reported at 11:25 p.m. Jan. 23 that he had filled his gasoline tank prior to going to work at 3 p.m. at General Cable that day. When he got out of work at 11, the tank was half empty. Tire tracks and spilled gasoline could be seen in the snow by the car. On Jan. 24, Rebecca Rockefeller of Sebewaing Road, Owendale, reported that the hood ornament was removed from her Mercury Monarch Jan. 17 in the Géneral Cable lot during the 3-11 shift.
