Sewage plant millage wins big

Cass City voters Tuesday overwhelmingly approved levying of a millage to allow the village to borrow up to $1.2 million to finance its share for improvement and expansion of the sewage treatment plant.

The vote was 179 in favor, 40 opposed and one vote spoiled.

"Good," was village President Lambert Althaver's reaction upon hearing the news.

Although people he talked to prior to the vote were generally favorable, he said, he had no strong feelings beforehand one way or the other on how the issue would do at the polls.

Passage of the levy, Althaver said, indicated "people have faith to go along with what the (village) council feels is right."

The ballot proposal, he continued, represented a "bargain" in that the wastewater treatment plant project would never get cheaper had it been delayed because of a negative vote Tuesday.

Late last week, village officials received good news when they were notified the Farmers Home Administration (FHA) had approved a $1.25 million loan to Cass City to finance the local share.

The loan is to be paid back over 40 years at 5 percent interest.

The loan ensures a maximum millage rate for village residents of an estimated 4.5 percent, with the levy to decrease each year as the valuation of the village increases. With more people and business paying for the project, each will have to pay less.

Without the FHA loan, the village would have had to go finance the project, which would have meant considerably higher interest rates, hence, higher millage.

Total cost of the project will be an estimated $6 million, with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency paying 75 percent and the

According to information presented by Dale McIntosh, president of the Cass City Teachers' Association, Hurt was observed six times. The first three were spaced several months apart and showed no unsatisfactory marks. Another was Feb. 20 and the last two on the fourth and sixth of March. The teacher was not informed of the results of these unfavorable observations until last Friday, according to McIntosh, which gave the teacher no chance to find out about her progress.

Smith said that the teacher has shown poor classroom control, a bad attitude and that she had received several complaints from parents, and asserted she could get signed statements to that effect.

Hurt said that the princi-pal had told her that she was "unfit to be around children" and said that she was being punished because "no one before had ever asked for a transfer from ber school and that she (Hurt) was not going to be the first.'

Smith told the board that these statements were absolutely untrue. She explained that the absence of unsatisfactory markings in the first three of her observations were because she was giving the teacher the "henefi

To comply with a new regulation, the board authorized training up to nine persons as election inspectors. Named chairman was Ann Rogers. Alternate chairman is Mary Knight. The school is for two hours and will be given by the county clerk.

The board approved a request by Principal Russell Richards to indefinitely for the unit with the Federal suspend a special education student from the school.

A roundtable discussion between administrators and the school board will be held was accepted from Brice April 2.

McIntosh was referring to the State Assessment tests which showed that there was a decline in test results for students that were tested in the fourth and the seventh grades.

The tests showed the students to be above average for the Thumb B Conference and the State in the fourth grade and below the confer-about whether the students were falling behind in the school or whether the lower grades were because the teachers were not teaching "towards" the state tests.

A teacher in Cass City from the Detroit area said that in comparison with Detroit or suburb schools, she has no worries about Cass City students.

However, she pointed out, she would put more faith in State assessment tests than in any test result given locally.

The entire situation will be reviewed at a session with administrators and the board April 2.

state, 5 percent. The local share is the remaining 20 percent, or $1.2 million.

The EPA has yet to officially say it will put up the 75 percent but its approval of the project is expected since Cass City is quite high on the priority list. The state's share then comes automatically.

Althaver said the voter turnout was more than he expectéd. Village Clerk yynda McIntosh said turnout was about average or possibly a little more than average for a village election.

About 900 people are registered in Cass City, so the 220 who voted are slightly inder 25 percent of the total. With approval of the millage, the timetable calls for opening of construction bids by May 15, although several interim steps have to be taken before then, including getting approval of the EPA. Construction could get underway a month later. with the estimated completion date being June 1, 1981.

Because of the controversy, the board delayed action until a special meeting April 2.

The village applied for the grant last summer and received tentative notice in December that it would get the money. It had tried to get $310,000, which also would have paid for streets. Official notice of the grant was announced March 7 by U.S. Rep. Bob Traxler, D-Bay City Village Supt. Lou LaPonsie said the village will probably take bids for the project this spring with the work to be done this year.

The FHA previously gave the village $45,000 for sewer and water line extensions in the industrial park. That work was done in 1978.

Property transfers and related matters were on the minds of the Owendale-Gagetown School Board Monday night.

Following on the heels of filing of a $200,000 law suit against the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners and one of its members, Royce Russell of Elmwood township, over allocation of the 1978 Goslin parcel taxes to the Cass City School District, the Owen-Gage board authorized any neces-

Planning Commission Chairman Richard Dehmel explained the original second choice, to the northeast, is no longer in contention because the building there is still being used and is too small.

The third choice, along Cemetery Road in Kingston township, never a very desirable location for various reasons, was dropped after it was discovered it is part of the Deford State Game Агеа approval, which is expected. the department will submit an appropriation request to the legislature.

Normal cost for a new prison camp is about $1.5 million, Groenleer said, but because of the building already there, the cost may be about 20 percent less.

The building contains a kitchen, dining room and two wings with one, two and three-man rooms. An addition will likely be built, probably housing a gymnasium.

The corrections department aim is to get construction underway in August or September. If a building were being constructed from scratch, it would take about a year before the camp is ready.

Because the building is already there, according to Groenleer, the camp may be ready in 8-10 months.

Its first two choices were on the Caro Regional Center "punds, west of Caro. Murhay Hall on the center grounds was the site for the meeting, which attracted, about 80 persons. The ses-sion lasted only 70 minutes. The strongest comment made at the meeting came ' om Jeanette Gremel, who lives across Chambers Road from the No. 2 choice and close to the favored site. "How would you like it in dignantly asked the Planning Commission.

PROPERTY VALUES

Another resident who lives close to the proposed site, who didn't give his name, said a real estate agent had told him his property would be worthless for resale once the prison camp is in operation.

He therefore doubted the comment made earlier by Planning Commission member Ed Karr, that, "We can see no evidence . . . values will increase, but they will not decrease (because of the camp)."

Karr, an assessor for the county equalization department, had polled equalization directors in 10 counties that already have prison

Donna Larson of Caro, a criminal justice student at Saginaw Valley State College, presented results of a study she made of escapes from the work camps.

From 1976 through 1978. she said, there was a total of 14,587 men assigned to the 11 camps in the state and 353 walkaways." Of those, 304 left the camp, 37 failed to return from furlough and 12 on work-release didn't come back from their jobs.

In addition to escape being a crime, which gets them sent back to a regular prison, there were 30 convictions for crimes committed while the walkaways were on escape status. Twenty-seven of those crimes were committed in a county other than where the camp was, from which the inmate escaped. The three "in-county" crimes were a robbery, aggravated assault and a burglary.

Pamela Withrow, supervisor of Camp Brighton, explained the screening procedure. Inmates must have had no serious institutional misconduct during the previous two years before being assigned to the camps, not have a record of previous escapes, not be serving a sentence for sexual offense or drug trafficking, and be in within a few months of their release date. They must be within four years of their parole date.

In answer to another question, Robert Groenleer of the Department of Corrections, said it has been determined that the maximum practical size for the camps is 100 inmates, thus there is no possibility the camp will be expanded to house more people in the future.

Groenleer also pointed out that it costs about $15,000 per bed to build a work camp facility versus $50,000 per bed to build a prison.

The perfect put-down.

It was a church group meeting to say so long to Tom and Judy Woody. Master of ceremonies George Heins was roasting the honored couple without mercy.

Turning to Tom, the golf pro at Scenic Golf & Country Club last summer, he said that he inveigled the Cass City Gelf League to hold its outing there two straight years and then had it rain so hard that it was impossible to play normally.

"George," piped up Judy, "did you remember that both of those outings were on Sunday?'

Speaking of long time subscribers, how about this. Mrs. Elsie Dilman, now of Ann Arbor, has been taking the Chronicle since 1906.

She's 96 now and still reads it all every week. Isn't that just great?

********

Ah! Spring. There was a grass fire Tuesday afternoon.

The words can come back to haunt you. Kim Anthony called last week to ask if I remembered saying that since Crawford Road was repaired my "sure" source for flood pictures would disappear.

No longer will it flood after every heavy dew, I naively asserted.

When I acknowledged that I remembered, you know what followed.

"It's over the road right now," Kim said.

for use by attendants of the Cass City Area Ambulance Service.

Any additional money raised will be held in reserve for other worthwhile causes, according to organizers Dick and Pam Roth.

The auction a year ago raised about $1,300, which was donated to Hills and Dales General Hospital to help purchase a hyper-hypothermia blanket machine.

The machine pumps either very cold or warm water through the "tubes" of the plastic blanket which is placed over and under the patient to lower or raise his or her temperature. ("Hyper" refers to raising temperature; "hypo" to lowering it.)

Following the auction, Dolly Tracy, who works in the hospital laundry department, organized a rummage sale with her fellow employ-

Money still needed after that was contributed by the hospital board out of hospital funds and the $3,200 machine was delivered in late November.

Since then, according to Jane Mitchell, RN and hospital in-service educator, the unit has been used 15-20 times, mainly to lower the temperature of children with high temperatures, such as due to infections. Instances where the blanket would be used to raise below-normal temperatures are when patients are suffering from shock due to blood loss or exposure to extremely low temperatures. Persons with items to donate for the auction can drop them off at the high school the day before the auction, from 9 a.m.-noon. If they want them picked up, they can call the Roths at 665-2589 or Jim Hobbs at 872-3852.

Osentoski auctioneers will be donating their services for the auction. Refreshments will be on a sale.

Fans everywhere could take a lesson from Clare Trischler and Joel Leipprandt.

Trischler is a senior at Cass City High School. He's waited a long time for a shot at the glory that comes from winning.

He had to be among the most disappointed athletes in school when his team was upset by the Lakers last week. For him there is no tomorrow.

When he left the game with the Lakers and Cass City was hopelessly beaten, he knew that this was the last time he would ever play for the school. It was over. What he did was walk over to the Lakers and congratulated them for a job well done You can judge for yourself this second incident. It's a letter written by Joel Leipprandt, a 1978 Laker graduate. Leipprandt was and is a very fine basketball player. But he appears to be an even finer person. It's easy to see that he got something out of sports. The something that makes a sports program

Arrest teens for stealing tires

Three teenage boys, two from Cass City, were arrested by sheriff's deputies Friday night after seven tires reportedly stolen were found inside their car.

Charged with larceny under $100 were Doral K. Lawhorn, 17, of 481/2 Bay City-Forestville Road, Ubly, and Glen D. Spencer, 17, of 7336 E. Kelly Road, Cass City. Lawhorn, the driver of the vehicle involved, was also charged with possession of open intoxicants in a motor vehicle. The third youth arrested was a minor. He was to be petitioned to probate court.

Deputies were summoned at 9 p.m. by Caro police to Frank Street by Schall Elementary School where officers had stopped a car because of defective equipment and for open intoxicants.

Seven used tires were found in the back seat and trunk.

The three occupants of the vehicle were taken to the sheriff's department where subsequent investigation determined the tires were taken from the Howard Bell auto dealership at Frank St. and M-24, where they were stored outside.

Lawhorn and Spencer were later released on bond from the county jail. Their district court arraignments will be Monday.

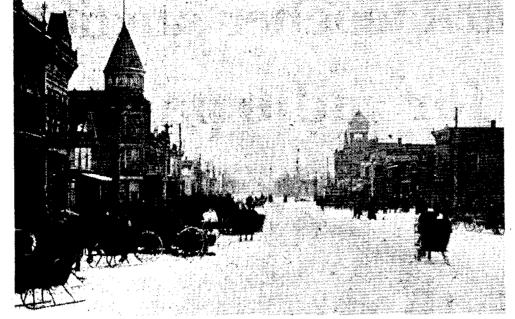

Lynn Albee of Albee Hardware reported to Cass City police Saturday morning that a $210 Homelite chain saw was taken from the store the previous afternoon while a clerk was busy. The chain saw was in a case and was on a shelf near the rear door.

Jim Fox, transportation director for the Cass City schools, reported to village police Monday that fire extinguishers were stolen from three school buses parked behind the intermediate school.

The three extinguishers were valued at $30 each and were taken some time between Friday and Monday.

Aime Ouvry reported to deputies last Thursday night that five chrome lug nuts were missing from a car parked in his auto dealership lot. They were valued at $10 total.

Ouvry apparently sur-prised the thief when driving through the lot at about 10 p.m. A tire iron was found at the car the lug nuts were missing from.

Fights for funds

Owen-Gage files suit

Owen-Gage's claim against the county board and Russell is without foundation and therefore should be dismissed.

The board discussed petitioning the Huron Intermediate School District Board of Education to have possibly 27 square miles of the Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port (Laker) district transferred to Owen-Gage. It then tabled the matter until it can find out the state equalized valuation of the area and the district.

The move would be retaliatory in that Lakers in 1975 petitioned to have part of the Owen-Gage district, the Parker parcel, transferred to it, despite the property owners involved wanting to stay in Owen-Gage. The state board ultimately approved the transfer.

Supt. Ronald Erickson explained the action would educate people that their okay isn't needed for the state board to transfer their property to another district.

The board did approve a motion to petition the Huron intermediate board to have the Elenbaum parcel, now part of Lakers, transferred back to Owen-Gage. It was informed that the appeal before the state board for transfer of the Miller parcel to Cass City, scheduled for a hearing before the board's hearing officer last Friday, was withdrawn. The parcel represented about 9.5 percent of the Owen-Gage district.

Chronicle the appeal was withdrawn because Huron Intermediate School District Superintendent James McBride couldn't find the original petition from 1975 requesting the transfer, hence the hearing scheduled Friday could not have been legal.

About 25-30 petitioners were seeking the transfer, he said, with the parcel making up about 5 percent of the Owen-Gage district if the Goslin parcel is included; a little over 6 percent without

He said the group will now wait for the final outcome in the Goslin case and if transfer of that parcel is approved, petition again for transfer of their property to

It was also informed that the state board's appeal of Kallman's ruling that Goslin still belongs to Owen-Gage will be heard in the Michigan Court of Appeals in Lansing March 20.

Crashes damage vehicles

Two two-vehicle collisions occurred in the county area Friday.

The first happened at 5:30 p.m. when Jerry Blehm, 35, of Bay City-Forestville Road, Unionville, was eastbound on the road and attempted to turn left into a private driveway.

As he was doing so, depu-ties reported, Steven R. Sella, 22, of Unionville, attempted to pass him and their two vehicles collided. The accident took place west of Graf Road.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS -- Robert Groenleer, assistant deputy director for physical plant for the state Department of Corrections, answers a question during the public meeting last Thursday concerning location of a prison work camp in Tuscola county. Others at the front table are state officials and county Planning Commission members. (Story on page 1.)

Insurance usually pays Fires 'free' in Elkland, but most units charge

The Elkland Township Fire Department no longer charges for fire runs.

The practice ended June 30. 1976. but according to Fire Chief Jack Hartwick. firemen still are occasionally told at a fire that the property owner tried to put out the fire to avoid being billed. When the fire got out of control, then the fire department was called. According to township Clerk Carolyn Ware, state Attorney General Frank Kelley ruled in 1974 or 1975 that townships could charge persons whose property burned but they didn't have the authority to take the person to court if he or his insurance company wouldn't pay. "Rather than get into a legal hassle, the board decided to drop it," Mrs. Ware said.

Kelley later reversed himself (or it may have been a change in the state law), but it is now legal for townships to charge for fire runs and to collect, but the board chose not to resume the practice.

Part of the problem was that some insurance companies will pay reimbursement to fire departments and some won't, plus some people didn't have insurance. The board decided the only fair thing to do was not charge anyone. The Elkland department has seven sections covered by Elkland, passes on the cost to the property owner who had the fire. The townrun. ship receives a notice from the fire department, then bills the property owner $150 for the time firemen were there. When Elkland was billing for fire runs, the fees paid a considerable portion of the fire department budget. For the 1975-76 fiscal year, according to Mrs. Ware, collected fees totaled $13,200. The total fire department budget was about $19,000 plus the standby fees collected from townships.

Kingston township, which

For the year before, however, due to fewer fires, only $7,000 was collected in fees. The fire department budget for the current year, which ends at the end of this month is $20,750, of which standby fees collected from townships will total $16,000. Elkland's budgeted contribution was to be $2,750 ($2,000 was left over from the previous year), but that doesn't include any additional money needed if the department ran short. In addition, the township paid almost $63,000 for a new fire truck last October.

Owendale -- There is no charge in Brookfield township.

In Grant township, which doesn't have its own department, the situation is confusing. The township contracts with the Owendale, Elkland, Oliver (Elkton) and Elmwood-Gagetown departments for fire protection.

What I don't like to see is what I call the "it's needed but put it somewhere else" syndrome.

When I worked in Three Rivers, the issue was a home for the mentally retarded. 'Keep them in the state institutions," was the cry.

In Monroe, in addition to keeping out the retarded, the issues were garbage and sludge. More importantly, such state and area facilities -- be they prisons, landfills or homes for the retarded have to go somewhere.

Since we can't eliminate crime, garbage or the retarded, if everyone were allowed to have a veto power, there would be no place to put anything, which obviously is an impossibility.

Meals-on-Wheels wins reprieve

gram in Cass City has won a reprieve.

The home-delivered meals program was scheduled to end this Thursday because the Human Development Commission in Caro no longer had the funds available to subsidize it or the staff time to solicit more contributions.

The local volunteers have now received $450 in donations, enough to keep the program going possibly two more months, according to volunteer driver Marge Tuttle.

The Cass City Lions Club donated $200 and the Elkland-Novesta Community Chest donated $250. The board of the latter organization will review the program at its April 19 meeting, with the possibility of donating more.

Artist unretires in Cass City

Sam Sammons: He's done it all

Lindsey (Sam) Sammons has done about everything. What he hasn't done, he has probably drawn.

The Cass City area resi-dent, 55, has been in the Army, Navy and Air Force, been a Secret Service agent guarding President Lyndon Johnson and was editor of a monthly newspaper. Throughout his varied career, he had engaged in various forms of art as a sideline, something he has never had formal training

His artistic talents came in handy as early as Army basic training in 1943. He got the task of painting names and serial numbers in helmet liners.

"In the military," he explained, "if you've got something no one else can do.

that's a good way to get out . for a minimum of six months of work."

Thus he got such assign-ments as painting road signs and murals on NCO club walls and drawing cartoons for post newspapers. Sammons served in the Army until the end of World War II as the pilot of a spotter plane. After his discharge, in 1946, he joined the Navy. He was a photographer. He transferred the next year to the Air Force. He was a cryptographer, decoding messages and preparing new codes. Most such cryptography is now done electronically, he said, instead of on paper. He left the Air Force in 1965. There was a prohibition against going to work as a civilian for the Air Force so he joined the Secret Service.

He was assigned full-time to President Johnson's Texas ranch, so his duties when the President and or his family were there was mainly keeping the tourists away.

Sammons had been assigned to an Air Force base in San Antonio, to which he commuted home on week ends. After a year-and-ahalf with the Secret Service, he went back to the air base as a civilian, știll as a cryptographer.

He left that job in 1973 and went to work for the Non-Commissioned Officers Association, which has its headquarters in San Antonio.

He helped form the group in 1961. It has about 200,000 members on active duty, retired and in the reserves. Sammons has been on its board of directors since 1965 and from 1961-73 was the only artist for its monthly publication.

He first served the organization full-time as executive vice-president, then for his final year as editor-writerillustrator, etc. of its monthly 40-page newspaper. In 1976, "We just decided to come home for a little while. SAMMONS IS ORIGINALly from Wyandotte and his

He especially likes political cartoons, his idol being political cartoonist Bill Mauldin, who started his career as an Army enlisted man in World War II drawing "Willie and Joe." 'If I were to go into the art

"Stars in Stripes" appears once a month.

Its topic back in August, 1973 was Alex Haley, identi-fied as a Coast Guard commissary steward for 20 years and an author. Among his listed accomplishments were having written the "Autobiography of Malcolm X" and having "traced his ancestors for 270 years." That was before Haley had written about his ancestors in a book called "Roots." Sammons usually retreats to his upstairs drawing

He may draw a cartoon to kid a friend or he may do something on request. "I do what needs to be done when somebody asks me."

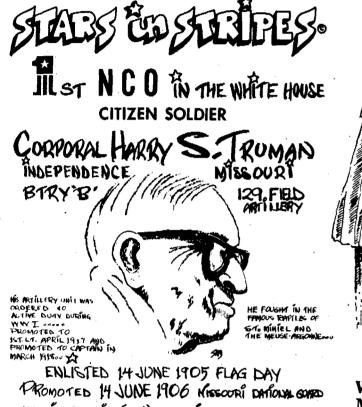

Adds his wife, "He does it for fun, really.

sponsored by State Sen. Alvin J. DeGrow (R-Pigeon), aimed at drying up the The DeGrow bill, introduced a month ago, won unanimous Senate approval March 6. Specifically, the measure amends the Michigan Penal Code to allow county prosecutors to bring criminal charges against persons who knowingly possess or conceal stolen, embezzled or converted property. Present state law allows prosecution solely of those who buy, receive, or aid in the concealment of such property. "Under current law," De-Grow explained, "county prosecutors often find their hands tied when they attempt to bring charges against some persons who are suspected of participating in a stolen goods racket." He noted, "As a result of a loophole in the laws, they can go after those who buy or receive stolen property, but they can't get convictions on people who knowingly possess or conceal these goods."

He said his bill will help dry up the "steal for resale" market, estimated to total more than $100 million each year in Michigan. The bill now goes to the State House of Representatives for its consideration.

No one gets into much trouble if he permits the other fellow to do all the talking.

CASS CITY CHRONICLE-THURSDAY, MARCH 15, 1979

Lakers dash Hawk hope for district cage crown

Cass City's highly successful basketball season came to an abrupt end last Wednesday when an aroused Laker quintet dominated the boards to score a 69-45 win.

The ending was the exact reversal of the previous year when the Hawks bowed twice to the Lakers in the regular season and won in the tournament.

The Lakers broke open a tight game in the third quarter as the Hawks went stone cold from the field and Jeff Smith started grabbing every rebound in sight.

The Hawks led only during the opening moments of the first quarter and for a brief moment in the second period. After that it was the Green and White all the way. Adding to Cass City's woes was its poorest shooting percentage of the season. The Hawks hit just 17 of 56 shots from the floor for a .304 average. The Lakers converted 30 of 59 shots for .504 percent.

The Hawks trailed by five at the half, 30-25, and scored the first basket of the second half to close the gap to three points.

But the Lakers came charging back to take command. At the end of the third quarter the winners had moved in front, 50-28.

With the lead, Coach Bill McLellan had his charges move into a control ball offense, taking only the 75 percent or better shot.

Meanwhile the Hawks were forced to try and play catch up and shot over the Laker zone. When shot after shot failed to fall, the Lakers turned the game into a rout, bouncing into a 60-39 lead. The Hawks went 51/2 minutes in that stretch without scoring Smith led all scorers with 24 points, many of them on rebounds off the offensive boards. Kent McKenzie scored 17 and was also effective on the boards. Cass City was led by Clare Trischler who netted 17 in his final game. Ken Martin scored 12 and was Cass City's most effective rebounder.

average per game scorer with 15. He scored 283 points in 19 games. Ken Martin led in total points with 288 in 21 games. Steve Richards and Tim

Warriors edge Bulldogs in district final, 57-55

The crowd got its money's worth Friday night and North Huron got the trophy as the Warriors won the Bad Axe Class D district crown with a hard fought win over Owendale-Gagetown, 57-55.

It was the second time this season the Warriors defeated the Bulldogs by two points. The win revenged North Huron's loss to Owen-Gage in last year's district finals.

The big difference came at the charity line, where the Warriors collected 15 points "I told the kids before the (of 26 shots, 57 percent), to only nine for the Bulldogs of 21 shots (43 percent). The Bulldogs led at the end of the first quarter, 12-10, and held the lead through most of the second, only to see their opponents edge ahead, 26-25, in the final moments on two free throws by Joe Knoblock. North Huron came out in the third quarter with guns blazing and led 35-27 when Hope last Wednesday, 62-48, frequent fouls. Dianna Smith, a freshman from Cass City, was a member of the women's Asbury College marathon volleyball team of 12 which set a first-ever record Feb. 24 by playing 33 hours and 13 minutes.

The feat is expected to be entered in the Guinness Book of World Records.

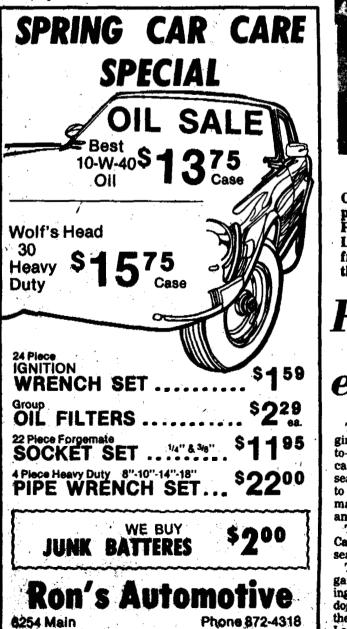

The men's team broke the Guinness record at the same time by playing 51 hours and 40 minutes. The old record was 51 hours and 5 minutes set last summer by GI's in West Germany. Asbury College is in Wil-more, Ky.

Although the marathon was staged to break the record, the primary reason was to raise money to buy new books for the college library.

Through the marathon, more than $5,500 was secured for the Library Excellence Advancement Project (LEAP). The students have set a goal of raising $50,000 by graduation in May. More than $40,000 has already been raised in cash and pledges.

The school has promised to match dollar for dollar any amount the students raise, which could boost the total amount to $100,000.

The Owendale-Gagetown girls' volleyball team's upto-then perfect season became an almost perfect season with a loss Saturday to Potterville in the opening match at the regional tournament at Mount Pleasant. The loss gave coach Judy Campbell's squad a final season mark of 24-1.

The match went to three games, with Potterville taking the first, 15-4, the Bulldogs the second, 16-14, and the tie breaker going to the Lansing area school, 15-10. Owen-Gage called time out. The Bulldogs pulled within two points twice later in the quarter but trailed at the three-quarter mark, 45-39.

The Bulldogs fought back and with 4:10 left in the game pulled ahead, 46-45, on a field goal by Dick Glidden.

The Warriors quickly got a basket and a free throw to go back in front, 48-46.

Jim Hendershot made one charity toss to pull his team within one, 48-47.

With 45 seconds left, the Bulldogs were within two, 53-51. With about 25 seconds left, Glidden got a chance to pull his team even when he was fouled but missed his first attempt.

With only a few seconds left, the Warriors had opened their lead to four points but a Bulldog shot at the buzzer created the final margin of 57-55.

Leading scorers for Owen-Gage were Mark McDonald with 17 points and Glidden with 10. Each collected 10 of their team's 45 rebounds.

Dennis Kennedy collected 17 points for the victors. His brother, Kevin, had 11.

North Huron collected 33 rebounds. The team had 29 turnovers to 21 for Owen-Gage.

The game was the final one for senior Bulldogs Mc-Donald, Glidden, Jim Hendershot, Asa Cervantes. Sean Barr and Tom Howard. The team finished the season with an overall mark of 13-8. It was 9-7, good for a fourth place tie, in the North Central D League.

The win put North Huron into the regional semi-finals Wednesday night against Flint Holy Rosary at Davison High School.

Dear Editor.

I read with personal interest your column entitled "North to Alaska."

Until August, the only thing I knew about Alaska was that it was north of here and cold. Now ask me anything.

In August, our son Bob went "North to Noorvik" to teach. Noorvik is in the Aorthwest Arctic School District with headquarters in Kotzebue.

If Tuscola county school districts think they have it tough negotiating, Bob's school district is the size of Ohio. If the teachers get out of hand, the superintendent could just tell the bush pilot to forget them. This would bring them around in a hurry. There are no roads up #### there and you can't move without a bush plane.

Noorvik is a town of 500 Eskimos, 35 miles from Kotzebue, and about 40 miles north of the Arctic Circle where it is dark all winter and light all summer. Kotzebue is on the Bering Sea just a stone's throw across from Siberia (Russia). Your article mentioned Fairbanks as being - 16 by day and -41 at night. Noorvik is -50 most of the

Two weeks ago, Bob went to Anchorage for a 10-day teachers' in-service gathering and Anchorage had an earthquake while he was there.

He called us Thanksgiving Day and they were having dog sled races in the morning. The whole town eats Thanksgiving dinner together at the church. Everyone takes a dish to pass and they sit on the floor in a circle. No one eats until the grandparents are served. He said they were having sweet and sour moose.

I said to Bob, "You mean they don't put their old folks on an iceberg, and push them out to sea like we've always heard?" He said, they cherish their 'no,'' elders.

Every letter and phone call we get from him ends with "These people are terrific and my students are great. I'm so glad I came and what an experience." I'm sending your article

We both used the fuel applauds in our cars as well as the pickup and got good mileage on it. Those days gas was cheap but we could get team Benzoil a cent or two cheaper. ## HEALTH TIPS Freezing to death in warm weather

Death from exposure can occur in temperatures well above freezing — contrary to what many people believe - according to an expert on outdoor safety.

Cherniawski

"Outdoor enthusiasts are normally cautious about the dangers of ice, snow and sub-zero temperatures, but many people now involved in outdoor activities in remote areas may not be aware of the threat of hypothermia," says Jim Savage, a safety coordinator who advises employees of RJR Archer, Inc. about safety on and off the job.

"Hypothermia, the opposite of a heat stroke, involves a loss of body heat that could lead to death," says Savage.

Most hypothermia deaths occur when the temperature is between 30 and 50 degrees. The malady can strike in spring and early summer so well as fall and winter.

"Hypothermia most often occurs when the weather suddenly changes to rain and wind and a person is far from heated shelter," says Savage. "Wet clothing is the chief hazard, because it takes heat from the body very quickly. For example, wet cotton conducts heat 240 times faster than dry cotton."

Losing heat faster than it can be replaced lowers a person's body temperature. A drop of only three degrees causes uncontrollable shivering and loss of the ability to do tasks such as light a heater or stove to save a life. As body temperature drops, speech and mental processes become impaired and shivering is replaced by extreme muscular rigidity, causing jerky movements. The symptoms continue until a person becomes unconscious.

"The best defense against hypothermia is proper clothing," says Savage. "Outdoor people have always realized that clothing can be a life or death factor where freezing weather is concerned. When the weather is chilly but not downright cold, too many people are lulled by the deceptively mild conditions into a lack of precaution.'

For cool weather with a potential for rain and wind, Savage offers these suggestions for basic protection: --Wear long underwear, either waffle-weave cotton thermal or woolen. In worse conditions, wool longjohns are better, both because they are warmer and steal less of body heat if you do get wet

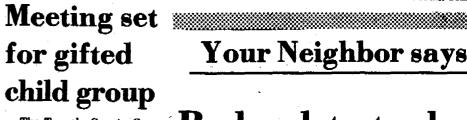

--Wool and flannel are the usual materials for coldweather shirts, but two medium-weight shirts are better insulation than one heavy shirt, and offer the option of removing one if you get too warm. --A medium-weight wool hunting jacket offers warmth and water repellency, particularly if treated with silicone waterproofing spray. Avoid too heavy a jacket - in truly cold weather, you're better off with a down jacket or a down vest under a wool jacket. -For comfort, lightness and durability, leather is the best boot material. But since leather is not completely waterproof, a rubber-bottom, leather-upper shoepack is a good compromise for wet conditions. Wear shoes big enough to allow two pairs of socks for warmth.

Should symptoms of hypothermia occur, the victim needs quick help because he may not know what is happening or be able to help himself.

To restore heat to the sufferent's body, remove all wet clothes and dry the skin. Reclothe the person in warm garments or a prewarmed sleeping bag. If you can't reach heated shelter, get the patient between two or three camp fires, and give the person plenty of hot liquid and food to introduce heat Don't attempt to travel until the patient has recovered enough to be aware of what's going on. Otherwise, he may hurt himself further.

Band in festival Saturday

The Cass City High School band, directed by Thomas Clair, takes part Saturday in the district band festival at Saginaw Arthur Hill High School.

The 15 bands taking part will be rated from 1-5, with 1 being the best rating.

The first part of the competition consists of performing three numbers before three judges. The band has been rehearsing the numbers about two months. The second part, before one judge, consists of playing two numbers for which the band hasn't seen the music until a couple of minutes before the performance.

The rating received by the band is the average of the four judges.

The band starts playing at 10:45 and will be done by lunchtime. The public can watch the performances.

FIVE YEARS AGO

Cass City business and civic leaders made their voices heard during a series of hearings in Detroit which could hold the fate of the village's railroad line in the balance.

Mr. and Mrs. James Batts of Cass City celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. A party was given in their honor by their four children, Steve, Sheryll, Shelby and Stewart, all at home. Former Cass City High School shortstop Gene Salas is one of the 23 players on the Oakland University baseball team currently on a 10-day swing in the sunn, south where they will play five different schools.

The Cass City Red Hawks will move on to the regional finals after a 76-74 victory over Michigan Lutheran Seminary as sophomore Chuck Bliss shot the winning basket with three seconds left on the clock.

TEN YEARS AGO

Voters turned out in record numbers to resoundingly say that they want the Owendale-Gagetown School district to remain intact. A total of 807 ballots were cast and by almost a two to one margin voted against breaking up the district.

Funeral held Sunday for B. McLachlan

Beatrice McLachlan of Cass City died Thursday, March 8, at Provincial House after a long illness. She was born Feb. 26, 1907, in Greenleaf township, Sanilac county, the daughter of Archie and Bessie (Dew) Gillis. Miss Gillis married Archie McLachlan June 27, 1931, in Greenleaf township. Mrs. McLachlan was a member of the Fraser Presbyterian church for 65 years. She was a member and past matron of the Gifford Chapter No. 369, Order of the Eastern Star, of Gagetown. She was also a member of Echo Chapter No. 336 of Cass City. Mrs. McLachlan had been a teacher at the Dickout, Sandfly and Greenleaf Schools.

She is survived by her husband, Archie; two sons, Archie A. McLachlan of Ubly and Robert McLachlan of Cass City, and three grandchildren, Robert, Scott and Beatrice, all of Ubly. Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon from Little's Funeral Home. Cass City, with Rev. Robert Von Oeyen, pastor of the Fraser Presbyterian church, officiating. Burial was in Elkland

things and get out of the home for some fun.

Being 15 and living in a foster home can be difficult. This girl in Vassar is very anxious to have someone to do things with. She likes to swim, go to concerts, go shopping and dance. Showould like a Big Sister to talk with and confide in.

We have two darling boys from Vassar waiting for Bi Brothers. The 10-year-old enjoys basketball, fishing and snowmobiling. The 8-year-old likes to be outdoors, go bike riding, fishing, swimming, and target shooting. Both boys are easy to get to know and would ht lots of fun for any man.

This sweet 13-year-old from Cass City would like a lig Sister to spend time with. Mother works all day and this girl has plenty of free time. She likes music, dancing and being with her friends.
