TY CHRONCLE W, MICHIGAN-THURSDAY, APRIL 19, Twenty Cents Twenty Cents TWENTY-TWO TO THE CONTROLL TO Ok given i ontroversial Wickes fertilizer building

By a 4-0 vote last Thursday night, and after heated discussion by proponents and opponents, the Cass City Zoning Board of Appeals gave the go-ahead to Wickes Agriculture to build a fertilizer storage building close to Main Street.

Discussion wasn't heated on the request by Bauer Candy Co. to be allowed to build an addition close to Garfield Street, but its request for the needed variance was approved 3-1.

The Wickes request boiled down to a debate over the company's alleged poor housekeeping record in Cass City and whether it was possible to build the fertilizer building behind the grain elevators, versus it being able to make best use of its Wickes needed a variance from the appeals board because it apparently violated the zoning ordinance in two regards. The building had to be more than 50 feet from the property line along the Main Street and storage had to be in the rear yard.

The company's original plan called for the building to be within 20 feet of its Main Street property line. As a compromise, it offered to build a six-bin building, instead of the preferred eight bins, which would have made the distance 44 feet. (See photo.)

As for the rear yard storage requirement, which also requires construction of an obscuring wall, fence or greenbelt, James R. Suchodolski, Wickes vice-president of eastern operation. argued that only applied to open storage. The fertilizer building. The ordinance says "all storage" but doesn't define storage.

The most vocal opponent was Ervin Thompson, who lives on Main Street close to the elevator.

He complained that despite the $250,000 Wickes spent for a new dryer to reduce the emission of "beeswings" from drying corn, they still drifted onto his property and that the fertilizer would smell.

Suchodolski responded that the dryer meets air pollution requirements and that the pelletized, coated fertilizer to be stored in the building for sale doesn't smell. "I can guarantee you it won't cause you any additional pollution or Councilman and Walbro vice-president Jim Ware made two basic arguments. "I notice your company hasn't been the best housekeeper, especially on Vulcan Street," he said to the Wickes official, citing as examples a pile of corn stored out in the open some years ago which "stunk" and its dilapidated buildings on Vulcan. "With your housekeeping record, I'm concerned.

He was also concerned about possible congestion on Main Street with the fertilizer storage close to there, as well as the new office building and warehouse. He noted that the Pine Street access to the Wickes complex is via private property which the company doesn't own. The owner, he said, could put up a fence and block access entirely.

Suchodolski admitted his option it once had on the property to the rear for economic reasons. With the space it does have to the rear of its elevators, he continued, there isn't enough room for the fertilizer storage building. If it did buy the property and put the building there, he argued, it would be closer to residential property than if it were on the Main Street side.

The Planning Commission had rejected Wickes' application for a building permit with the recommendation that it buy the property and place the storage facility there.

Some of the appeals board members expressed doubt whether the village could make the company buy more property. "I would think we would have to consider the property as it is," commented member Lynn Albee.

As for the "poor house-keeping," Suchodolski and local Wickes Manager Bob Wischmeyer pointed out the dilapidated buildings on Vulcan Street will be torn down once the new facilities are done.

The Wickes vice-president's ultimate argument was simply that if the village didn't want the fertilizer building where it was proposed, Wickes and its predecessor should have never been given permission to build the present structures there. The storage facility was needed to make the complex complete.

Issuance of a building permit in 1976 for construction of the two large storage silos indicated "people must have thought they wanted Wickes to expand," he said. "I still don't see any reasons it would be objectionable," appeals board Chairman Arlan Hartwick commented as discussion came to an end. He felt that new buildings and paving around them would be an improvement over what is there now.

The variance approved by the board -- Hartwick, Albee, Gerald Prieskorn and Larry Davis voting in favor, with Bernard Freiburger absent -- allows Wickes to build within 20 feet of its Main Street property line.

The 30-by-96-foot all-wood building, along with the new office-warehouse building and scales, is scheduled for completion by harvest time this fall.

BAUER REQUEST

The proposed 40-by-130foot addition on the Garfield Street side of the Bauer Candy Co. building would have been within 8 feet of the property line. The zoning ordinance requires a minimum setback from the side property line of 30 feet.

The firm owns property on the other side of the building, Manager Tom Jackson explained, but layout of the present building prohibits the addition from being built there. The added new structure is to include a recessed truck loading ramp. The one fear expressed by some was that the addition, being so close to the corner of Garfield and Doerr Road. would obstruct vision for motorists turning the corn-

There was also concern about trucks unloading blocking traffic but Jackson said the firm gets no more than three trucks a day and none are there more than about a half-hour.

"I think it would be an improvement. I'd like to see it," said appeals board member Prieskorn, adding that he didn't think there would be a visibility prob-

The needed variance was approved 3-1, with the one dissenter being Larry Davis. He felt there might be a visibility problem and with no guarantee Bauer will be there forever, a future user of the building might have more truck traffic.

Caro man county's 5th fatality; van rams milk tanker on Leland W. Green, 23, became Tuscola county's fifth Laffic victim early Saturday when he was struck by a car on M-24, south of Caro.

Sheriff's deputies reported he was walking along the road headed south, then stepped into the path of a southbound car with the apparent intent of having it stop so he could get a ride.

The driver, Dennis J. Stahl, 34, of Caro, told officers he braked but couldn't stop in time to avoid hitting Green. The victim, who was thrown 72 feet by the impact, was wearing dark clothing, which made it difficult for him to be seen. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Caro Community

As of Tuesday morning, the accident was still under investigation.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Two accidents took place on or near M-53 Friday, both of which resulted in some of those involved being sent to Hills and Dales General Hospital.

The more severe of the two took place at 2:16 p.m. when the van of Daniel T. Lenk, 21, of Warren, ran into the rear tank of the doubletanker milk truck driven by Larry A. Morin, 20, of Elk-Both vehicles were southbound, between Shabbona and Severance Roads.

According to Sanilac county deputies, the impact flipped the Lenk van onto its side and it slid to a halt on the east edge of the road.

(See photo.) The driver was taken to the hospital, from which he was released Sat-

Morin pulled his rig onto the west shoulder, where it needed some temporary repairs before it could con-urday.

Ray Periso, 17, of 4617 State Street, Gagetown, was treated and released from Hills and Dales after a 3 a.m. accident Friday.

Periso was a passenger in a car driven by Jeffrey Guigar, 19, of Freiburg Road, Ubly. According to Bad Axe state police, the car was westbound on Bay City-Forestville Road, west of M-53, when the driver fell asleep. The car went off the north side of the road and struck a culvert.

Guigar was cited on a charge of careless driving. He and the one other passenger, William Koss, 19, of 4833 State Street, Gagetown, both sought their own treatment for minor injuries.

Douglas E. Mills, 19, of 3846 N. Cemetery Road, Cass City, was ticketed by deputies on a charge of failure to stop within an assured clear distance after an accident at 5:16 p.m. last Thursday.

Officers reported Edna Wager, 48, of Gladwin, had turned from Hurds Corner Road onto westbound Deck-

Special millage to help senior citizens being considered Commission on Aging

A millage to support senior citizen activities in the upper Thumb? Maybe.

Such a possibility was discussed last Wednesday afternoon at the "community forum" conducted by the Region VII Area Agency on Aging (AAA) in the Lamotte township hall near Hemans.

The hearing was one of four the agency is conducting in the 14 counties it serves in order to hear suggestions on services it should provide in 1980.

Conducting the hearing were Becky Carlson, a planner for the agency, and Stanley Baldwin, Tuscola county representative on its' board of directors.

About 40 people were pres-

Financing of senior citizen programs led to the discussion about a possible millage.

Ron Cassie, director of explained that the legislature passed a law a few years ago allowing county boards of commissioners to levy up to one mill without a vote of the people for senior citizen services. Some counties have already imposed such a tax.

(TACA, serving Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties)

Levying of one-third of a mill in the three counties, he said, would raise from $400-440,000 a year.

In lieu of county commissioners imposing the tax, senior citizens could conduct a petition drive to put a referendum on the ballot, asking voters to approve the tax. (Not mentioned was whether the Headlee amendment to the state constitution would bar county commissioners from levying the tax without a public vote.) With such a tax, one supporter said, "we would be self-supporting and we services for the Thumb Area wouldn't have to ask anyone for money.

The TACA board has established a finance committee. Cassie explained later, to find some means to make up for the loss of $131,000 in federal comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds as of Sept. 30, hence the interest in the millage.

TACA is divided into two parts. Services, which he heads, includes such programs as transportation (provided by volunteer drivers), fulfilling information requests, monthly newspaper sent to 12,000 senior citizens, blood pressure identification cards and in Sanilac county, a home maintenance and repair program.

For services, the commission gets a total of $28,500 from the three counties, $60,421 in federal funds through the AAA, $75,000 in CETA funds and $30,000 from the federal Green Thumb program.

The other TACA program is nutrition. With an annual budget of about $230,000, it provides an average of 375 meals a day at 13 meal sites throughout the upper Thumb. Of the total, about $170,000 is in federal funds, including CETA, $30,000 in state money and $30,000 in donations from those eating the meals.

That means a total budget of almost $425,000, about the same amount as could be raised from a one-third mill

Not everyone present was in favor of the idea, at least Noting that initially. only two persons raised their hands in support of the millage at the beginning of the discussion, Baldwin commented, "As I see it, we got a selling job right here in this room.

He added that he doesn't like tax increases, but, "If I can see the necessity, I'll support it. He declined to ask for another show of hands after someone suggested it at the end of the discussion, lest someone still opposed be embarrassed.

Ms. Carlson said an increase in federal spending for senior citizen programs is unlikely. The TACA nutrition director. Bonnie Phelps, said that because of inflation, there may be a cutback in federal money available for the meals program. For now, what happens to the millage proposal will be up to the TACA finance committee to pursue. Please turn to page 8.

WAYWARD RABBITS -- Clockwise from left: David Mc-Arthur, Steve Hurley and Billy and Steven Sattelberg found four baby rabbits (one later died) Saturday afternoon in front of Billy and Steven's parents' house, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sattelberg, on Church Street. The bunnies' mother was nowhere to be found, so the boys plan to feed the animals until they get a little larger, then release them.

"If It Fitz..." Financial eunuchs needed

By Jim Fitzgerald

R-Alaska, recently asked: financial eunuchs to come to the Senate?

It might be a great idea. But the senator was typically political. He raised the hope of a worthwhile reform without suggesting how it might be accomplished.

man. Many years ago, eunuchs were employed by Oriental rulers to guard their harems. The idea was that eunuchs wouldn't be too inclined to mess around with the king's wives, which would be to the king's ad-

It is generally suspected that men didn't become harem guards because they were castrated. Rather. they were castrated so they become harem guards. Such barbarism is difficult to envision in today's civilized world, but that's only because the Ayatollah Khomeini doesn't have a harem.

Anyway, it could be said that U.S. senators should guard the public treasury the same way eunuchs guarded the king's harem. And it would be to the public's advantage if the senators weren't too inclined to mess around with the public's money.

It was in this context that Sen. Stevens suggested, in a speech from the Senate floor, that some taxpayers apparently want their senators to be financial eunuchs. Stevens doesn't agree with the idea, but he was at least brave enough to give it a public airing.

Sen. Stevens was defend-ing the senate's recent double-cross which allows senators to add as much as $25,000 in outside income to their annual $57,500 salaries. By a hasty voice vote, leaving a few fingerprints. the Senate approved a resolution reneging on a promise to limit outside earnings to $8,625 as of last Jan. 1.

The promise was made in 1977 when senators voted themselves a $12,900 pay raise. At the time, the Senate majority pointed out that outside income constituted a possible conflict of interest for senators. They said it would be better to

Sen. Ted Stevens, increase their pay than to expect them to make ends 'Do we have to become meet by accepting money for making speeches supporting mandatory pest control to the annual convention of the international Society to Omit Most (STOMP). Most citizens agree it's bad policy for the chairman A eunuch is a castrated of the Senate subcommittee on pest elimination to be on the payroll of the industrialists who sell the stuff that eliminates pests. The $12,900 pay raise seemed like a better deal for taxpayers, not to mention roaches.

> But now the senators, with the $12,900 in pocket, have junked the $8,625 limit, adding a possible $16,375 to their $57,500 salaries. All of this goes along with such juicy perks as a lavish expense account, travel at public expense, free gymnasium, discount meals and wellkissed fannies.

> Senators obviously enjoy spending taxpayers' money on themselves. But the average taxpayer makes much less than $57,500 a year. Many of them make less than $12,900. So it's not surprising that taxpayers would see considerable merit in the suggestion that senators should be financial eunuchs, unable to enjoy other people's money.

Why shouldn't the public treasury get the same sort of protection that prevented harem guards from enjoying other people's wives?

nary spendthrift senator be to be that way.

transformed into a financial eunuch? Even if it weren't too barbaric, simple castration wouldn't have the required result except in the most narrow cases, such as a senator tempted to put his paramour on the public payroll. It's easier to prevent the rape of a king's wife than to prevent the robbery of the public purse. I have one idea. The senators who broke the outside-income promise say they can't live on only $57,500 a year. But millions of their constituents live on much less. Perhaps a senator should be required by law to spend one year of his first term supporting a family of four on $8,000 a year. After this experience in imaginative budgeting, the senator would appreciate his $57,500-plus income, and he. would feel no need to moonlight for STOMP. He would become a financial eunuch, unable to enjoy messing around with money belonging to people who must live on $8,000 a year every year. Onward and Upward.

It was in the summer of 1968 and I was home in Lansing on leave from the

The Republicans had held their national convention and nominated Nixon. The Democrats had yet to nominate their candidate (it was to be Hubert Humphrey), so the campaign had yet to get into full swing.

Nixon was on a fence mending tour to unify the Republicans in preparation for the campaign ahead. One of his stops was in Lansing to see then Gov. George Rom-

It was announced beforehand that after the meeting, Nixon would speak from the steps of the capitol, so my mother, sister and I went to see him.

When we got to the capitol, my mother and sister elected to stay on the lawn but I decided to get as close as possible. I started climbing the steps and got to within about 10 feet of where the President-to-be spoke.

Now, let me digress. I was dressed in civilian clothes because almost (the "almost" is important) no one in those days would have been caught dead wearing his uniform while home on leave. Bad enough we had to walk around with our heads practically shaved.

It was different back when I was in high school and before. (I graduated in 1963.) The term hadn't been invented yet, but wearing a uniform in your home town then was very macho.

If a guy home on leave was wearing his military threads, all the boys in school would envy him and the girls would fall all over each other in an effort to go out with him. The ultimate status symbol was for a girl to have a boy friend in the service

I don't think that changed because of the Vietnam war but because of the change in hair styles. When longer hair became in and the military still required (and still does) short styles, it was bad anough to go around "back home" with short hair. Wearing a uniform only attracted more attention. So there I was on the capitol steps, a few steps above Nixon while he spoke. Standing one step lower was a fellow who hadn't gotten the "message." He was uniform, he also would have

It was in January or February, 1967, as I recall and the then vice-president was speaking at Eastern Michigan University, where I was then a student. That was, I might add, back in the days when the anti-war picketers outside the auditorium where he spoke were imported from nearby Ann Arbor Radicalism didn't come to EMU until a few years later.

After the speech was over, I got into the line outside the auditorium of people wanting to shake hands with Humphrey. With big crowds like that, politicians don't really shake hands, they sort of gently grasp them. It's more of a touch than a handshake, so without trying to sound silly, I can say that I was touched by Hubert Humphrey.

If there is any symbolic meaning in all this, I'll let you readers figure it out.

Pat Chambers dies April 11

Charles A. (Pat) Chambers of Owendale died Wednesday, April 11, at Hills and Dales General Hospital after a long illness.

He was born Feb. 20, 1902 in Ohio, the son of John and Nancy Jane (Mulholland) Chambers.

Chambers married Fay Groves Feb. 12, 1921 in Highland Park. Following their marriage, they made their home in Warren, retiring to Owendale in 1964.

He was a life member of the Centerline Lodge F & AM No. 550 of Warren.

Chambers is survived by his wife, Fay; one son, Robert Chambers of Warren; four sisters, Mrs. Clara Gilmore and Mrs. Lillian Martin of Ohio, Mrs. Ora Brair, both of Pennsylvania; two half sisters, Mrs. Mary Sander of San Mateo, Calif... and Mrs. Joyce Ann Sommers of Bristol, Fla.; two half brothers, Ray Chambers of Greenland, Del., and Carylin Chambers of Gannonsburg, Penn.; two grandsons and three great-grandchildren. Committee for gifted sets meet

The Tuscola County Committee for the Gifted is holding a meeting Tuesday, April 24, at 7 p.m.

It will feature speakers on the needs of gifted children and the ways these needs are being met in nearby communities. The meeting will be held at the Intermediate School District building, 1385 Cleaver Road, Caro.

The Tuscola County Committee for the Gifted seeks to unite interested people, share information, coordinate local efforts, and implement programs to challenge and develop the special abilities of gifted and talented students. At the April meeting, the group will be formally organizing and forming committees to meet the needs expressed by par-ents, teachers and other interested persons. Interested people unable to attend the April meeting who would like to be placed on a mailing list should call the Intermediate district office at 673-2144.

County Road Commission overspends $16,486 in 1978

The Tuscola County Road Commission spent $16,486 more than it had in 1978, according to its annual report, spending a total of $5.57

The road agency used all the money it took in plus the balance it had at the start of the year of $540,064 and still went into the hole.

The "knock on the door" was avoided, however, according to Clerk James Miklovic, because some bills didn't have to be paid until this year.

As for 1979, the threemember Road Commission was counting on a 25 percent increase in revenue when it drew up its budget last October.

How much money it will get is still a question mark. The projected increase was due to the state legislature increasing motor fuel tax and license plate fees starting this year.

Since the Arab oil em-bargo of 1973-74, which sent asphalt and fuel costs skyrocketing, plus other inflationary factors, Road Commission officials have said, expenses have been climbing about 10 percent a year while revenues have been increasing only about 3

New cars getting better mileage (less gasoline tax collected) and weighing less (reduced license plate fees) have been the reason for the slackening off of revenue.

Opponents launched a petition drive to repeal the increases until the public could vote on them in 1980. The taxes would then only go into effect if voters ap-

Enough petition signatures were collected to get the measures on the ballot. but supporters of the tax increases then went to court. The Michigan Court of Appeals recently ruled the fuel tax increase is not subject to referendum, but the license voted on. The petition drive backers have now appealed that decision to the Michigan Supreme Court, thus the revenue picture for the Road Commission will remain unclear until the high court plate fee increase can be makes a ruling. Another variable is the amount of work townships will contract for with the Road Commission this year.

Thus, whatever revenue the agency gets this year, Miklovic said, "we'll have to live within our budget."

In 1978, $2,138,674 was spent on primary roads, $3,378,766 on local roads and the remaining $56,742 into what is defined as the Road Commission fund, for a total of $5,574,182.

Of revenue, $1,883,486 came from the state Motor Vehicle Highway Fund fuel taxes and (motor license plate fees); $1,345,-267 in federal funds: $291.647 from the state for maintenance of state highways; $1,466,434 in county raised revenues (bridge millage, township and other contributions), and $30,798 in miscellaneous revenues. The balance left over from 1977 of $540,064 was also used.

An item which has attracted considerable attention of late is snow and ice removal. In 1977, the Road Commission spent $326,757 for the purpose on local and primary roads (state highways not included). In 1978, it only spent about $4,000 more, $330,917.

PRIMARY ROADS

A total of $1,166,236 was spent on primary road construction last year. There was $311,077 spent for maintenance lincluding snow and ice removal).

There were two primary road construction projects in 1978 in the Cass City area, both repaying: 3.01 miles of Cemetery Road from Milligan to Bay City-Forestville ($72,365 in federal funds, $29,987 in Road Commission money), and 5.46 miles of Hurds Corner Road from M-81 to Bay City-Forestville ($123,811 federal, $50,544 Road Commission).

LOCAL ROADS

A total of $2,326,755 was spent for local road construction, of which $1,015,686 came from the Road Commission, $913,023 from the townships and $398,046 from the countywide one-mill bridge levy.

There was $728,658 spent for local road maintenance, considerably less than the $921,576 spent last year.

Local road construction totaled $80,194 in Elkland township in 1978, of which $68,416 was in township funds. The three biggest projects were grading, base and drainage work on one mile each of Richie, Milligan and Crawford Roads, at a cost respectively of $25,645, $15,813 and $26,126 (mostly township funds).

A total of $657,232 was spent in Ellington township, but $647,834 of that was for new bridges on Murray, Hurds Corner (one south of Broadway, another south of Dutcher) and Dodge Roads. road Commission funds paid $448,808; county bridge millage, $203,014, and township,

A total of $24,935 was spent in Elmwood township, with the biggest project being $11,894 for grading, base and drainage work on Huron Line Road between Green and McEldowney Roads. The township contributed $10,210 for the project.

There was $116,377 spent in Kingston township, of which $101,442 went for the new bridge on Mushroom Road, west of Phillips. Road Commission funds paid $68,956 of that; the bridge millage, $32,486. The biggest township project was aggregate surface course on 2.03 miles of Gilford Road between Dodge and Kingston Roads, with the township paying $4,421 of the $5,360

The biggest project in Novesta township was also a bridge, $147,025 for one on Dodge Road, north of Deckerville. Road funds totaled $92,609; bridge millage, $54,153, and township funds, $263. The biggest township projects were $3,898 for final sealcoating of Severance Road between Cemetery and Englehart ($3,808 of $3,898 total cost) and $3,614 (all township funds) for final sealcoating of Phillips Road between Deckerville and

Legislature debating jobs vs. environment

The Legislature is struggling to strike a delicate balance between protecting the environment and making sure future development of the state and its economy will not suffer.

Although environmentalminded members of the Legislature were successful in getting anti-environmentalist people removed from key committees, they are finding there are genuine concerns about so-called environmental legislation that could lead to stifling the

One prime example now pending in both houses is the so-called wetlands preservation bill.

Supporters, mostly from highly populated urban areas, say wetlands must be immediately preserved to protect them from the ever encroaching pavements of highways, shopping centers and parking lots.

They charge development with killing certain species of fish, waterfowl and aquatic plants. Further, filling in natural wetlands in their areas has caused a shifting of the floodplains causing massive flooding problems in areas where the high waters never reached.

environmentalists The also insist the wetlands provide a natural water filtering system and without them, local units of government must construct water purification plants to take care of the process that is normally done by the mere existence of these areas. On the other side of the coin are members representing less populated areas whose constituents rely on the land for survival.

The most vocal opponent is Sen. Joseph Mack of the Upper Peninsula who maintains his whole area relies on the mining and logging industries which must use and alter such wetlands to continue the business pursuits.

Mack is urging the Legislature to leave his people and businesses that support those people alone. He says there is a difference when comparing a few acres in populated areas to 4.5 million such designated areas in the U.P.

There is not a simple answer to such a complicated problem.

Arguments from both sides have merit. Conservation and preservation is necessary for future generations but that has to be tempered when protective legislation could affect the lives of people whose existence depends on the lands targeted for protection.

What needs to be realized is that each area of the state has its particular problems and to solve one area's problems cannot bring about a more severe problem else-

Timothy F. Johnson, 17, of 4286 Oak Street, Cass City, was ticketed by deputies on a charge of improper lane usage after a 5:06 p.m. mishap last Thursday.

Johnson was turning south from westbound M-81 onto Koepfgen Road, according to officers, but turned the corner too sharp and struck the car of Garald Bennett, 34, of 6288 Brenda Drive, Cass City, which was approaching the intersection.

At 8 p.m. last Thursday, according to deputies, James O. Dorland, 24, of 691 E. Deckerville Road, Cass City, was westbound on Deckerville, west of Phillips, when his car struck a

Cass City police reported three minor accidents within 21/2 hours of each other last Thursday:

At 4 p.m., Kathleen Vargo, 16, of 6733 Schwegler Road, was backing from a parking place at Erla's Food Center and started turning too soon. Her car struck the right side of the auto parked alongside. Owner of the other car was Keith Little of Kelly Road.

At 6:15 p.m., Sharon M. Lowe, 17, of 4965 N. Germania Road, Snover, was exiting the alley south of Main Street and ran into the left side of a car northbound on Pine Street. She told officers she didn't see the other car because of the sun shining in her eyes.

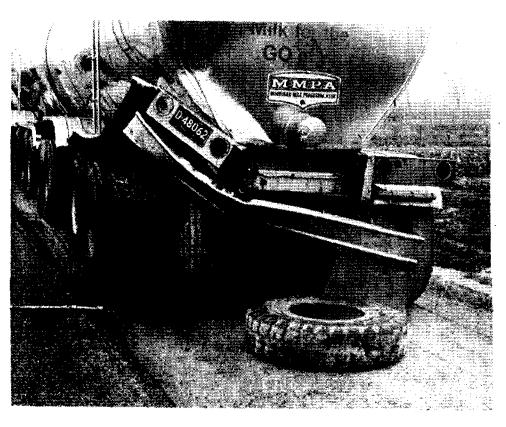

Driver of the other auto was Tamara Vatter, 16, of 6556 Pine Street.

At 6:30 p.m., Winifred Sue Houghton, 18, of 6728 Houghton Street, backed from her driveway, turned, and backed into a car parked by the south side of the street. Owner of the parked car was Mark Tuckey of Koepf-

Thomas S. Ponder, 20, of Warren, was cited by Caro state police of a charge of violation of the basic speed law (too fast) after an 8 a.m. accident Friday.

They said Judy Babcock, 40, of Hurds Corner Road, Cass City, headed west on Deckerville Road, was waiting to turn left onto M-81 when the Ponder auto ran into the rear of her car.

Probation for country club embezzler in Caro

The former manager of Arrowhead Country Club, who embezzled more than $8,000 from the Caro establishment, was placed on five years' probation Monday by Circuit Judge Martin E. Clements.

Walter R. Oliver, 25, of Saginaw, was also sentenced to three days in the county jail, fined $100, assessed $250 court costs and ordered to pay restitution of $8,336.

He pleaded guilty March 19 to attempt to embezzle funds over $100 in connection with the incident.

He was employed as assistant manager, then as manager, at the club from last summer to November. The money taken was receipts from the business which were supposed to have been deposited in the club's bank account.

Also Monday, William A. Primeau, 45, of Lexington, was placed on three years' probation for manslaughter.

He was also sentenced to 120 days in the county jail, with no credit for time already served, fined $200 and assessed $200 court

Primeau pleaded guilty March 19 to the charge in connection with the Aug. 29 traffic death of Werner Muehl, 44, of Sandusky, in an accident near Kingston.

He was originally charged with two counts of manslaughter but in a plea bargain with the prosecution, the second charge, in connection with the death of Muehl's 12-year-old daughter Katherine in the same 'accident, was dismissed.

Probation was continued for David M. Confer, 19, of 5696 S. Phillips Road, Clifford, who pleaded guilty April 5 to violation of proba-

The other major concerns expressed at the hearing concerned transportation and the nutrition program.

Some support was expressed for some type of public transportation, such as dial-a-ride, where people could call the transportation service and be picked up at their home. The Michigan Department of Transportation is presently conducting a study of the feasibility of some type of public trans-portation system in the upper Thumb.

TACA presently operates transportation service, staffed by volunteer drivers using their own cars, who receive 17 cents per mile. A complaint was expressed that that amount is no longer adequate because of the high cost of gasoline. The service is restricted to persons 60 and over with no other means of transportation and only for trips to the doctor, to drug stores to pick up prescriptions, grocery shopping and for important appointments. Cassie said the volunteer drivers will probably log between 80,000 and 100.000 miles this year. Much of the discussion about the TACA meals program was devoted to those who donate little or nothing for their meals even though they could afford to do so. Ms. Phelps, the nutrition program head, explained that commission personnel cannot keep track of what persons contribute or even watch them closely when they go by the collection box. that federal regulations prohibit putting any pressure on those eating the meals to contribute. There were enough donations to fund opening of a meal site in Mayville (th) 13th), she added, so increased donations could help expand the program.

(There is no such meal program in Cass City. She explained after the meeting one reason is because no group here ever pushed fc establishment of one.)

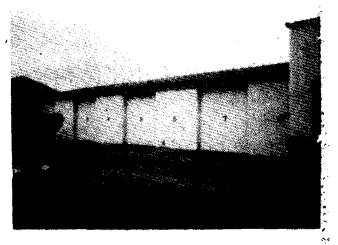

Comments made at the hearing will now be considered by the AAA in writing up its annual plan for the fiscal year starting in September. The federal and state funded agency doesn provide services of its own but contracts with organizations such as TACA to provide them.

3 Cass Cityans face charges

Three Cass City youths concealing stolen property have been charged in connection with the breaking open of the coin box of a game machine at the Charmont at 12:05 a.m. Friday.

Randal D. Ramsey, 18, of 6764 Main Street, charged with breaking and entering of a coin machine, faces prepreliminary examination in district court April 23 and preliminary examination May 4. He was arraigned Friday before the district court magistrate and released on $3,000 personal recognizance bond.

Kevin R. Smith, 18, of 6325 Main Street, charged with receiving and concealing stolen property under $100, faces arraignment before the district judge April 30. He is free on $1,000 bond.

Jimmy Lee Anderson, 18, of 6551 Ritter Road, also charged with receiving and

Fires minor near Ubly

The Ubly-Bingham Fire Department was called out twice last Thursday morning for two minor fires.

Fire Chief Elmer Brahmer said the first was at 7 a.m., about 21/2 miles southeast of Ubly at the Nugent Road home of Robert Bensinger

A family member called the fire department when the family awoke in a smoke-filled house. The fire chief thought a transformer on a nearby electric pole may have blown out, causing a low-voltage fire that generated the smoke.

Firemen were at the scene about 15 minutes.

The other fire was about 10 a.m. at the home of Robert Peruski, 31/2 miles east of Ubly on Atwater Road. Brahmer said a blower on a wood stove in the basement blew out, filling the house with smoke.

The only reported damage was to the blower.

under $100, faces a pretrial hearing May 8. He is also free on $1,000 bond.

Charmont manager Doug Parker told Cass City police shortly after the incident happened that four youths broke open the coin box, then started running.

He caught one of them, who gave officers a description of the car the remaining three were in.

A "be on the lookout" was broadcast over police radio and about 12:30 a.m., deputies stopped the car on Deckerville Road.

One of the three occupants was a 16-year-old from Detroit, who was turned over to the custody of the parents of one of those arrested.

The other two, plus the one caught at the Charmont, were taken to the county jail for questioning and booked, being later released on bond.

Under the seat of the car was found $4.35 and one of the youths arrested removed $2 from his boot, all said to have come from the coin

Three days earlier, on April 10, Charmont owner Clare Comment reported to police that the coin boxes of a pool table and a pinball machine had been broken into. An estimated $40 was taken, apparently some time that afternoon.

Some suspects and possible witnesses were questioned by officers but no arrests were made.

Last Thursday, Charles Bliss of 5855 Cass City Road reported to village police his wallet was taken the previous evening from the locker room at Cass City High School while he was playing basketball. The wallet contained $100.

Martha Nicholas of 4493 Maple Street told village officers Monday afternoon that someone apparently tried to break into her house the previous night as pry marks were discovered on a

Industrial arts students qualify for state meet

Seven Cass City High School industrial arts students qualified for the Michigan Industrial Education Society state competition as a result of the first or second place their entries earned in the MIES regional awards

The regional meet took place April 6-8 at Birch Run Middle School. State competition takes place April 26-28 in Traverse City.

Placings of Cass City students, with only first or second qualifying them for the state meet, were:

Machine drawing -- Jeff Hanby, first, Duane Ertman, third; Earney Stoutenburg, fourth; Todd Alexander, sixth, and Rob Clarke and Mark Guinther, both honorable mention Architectural drawing -Kathy Vargo, first; Rochelle Messer, second; Suzanne Little, second.

Advanced architectural drawing - Ray Piaskowski, second; Bob Brown, sixth; Larry McKee and Denise Okerstrom, both honorable Mechanical drawing Dale Cleland, fifth: Greg Hutchinson. sixth. and Sandy Guinther and Brian Schember, both honorable mention.

Woodworking --Brian Schember, first; Jeff Hartsell, second, and Bob O'Dell and Earney Stoutenburg, both honorable mention.

Development corporation hearing on Tuesday before village council

Formation of an Econom-(EDC) in Cass City probably won't mean a big industry knocking on the door coming to town to build a big plant

The first project to be financed here through the use of an EDC is likely to be an indoor racquetball court.

Formation of an EDC here will be the subject of a public hearing at Tuesday's village council meeting, starting at 7 p.m. in the municipal building.

The advantage of an EDC in encouraging local development is that it can finance a project through issuance of tax free bonds, which carry a lower interest rate.

What that means is that the bond purchaser doesn't have to pay taxes on the interest he earns.

The developer saves -- and thus is given an incentive to build the project -- because such bonds carry an interest rate maybe 3-4 percent lower than money borrowed conventional

That means a savings to the developer, who repays them. The bondholder is usually secured by a first mortgage on the project. The organizing municipality is not responsible for the debts of the EDC.

Information

service in operation

The Human Development Commission (HDC) has installed a toll-free telephone line and is now offering information and referral services to the public at no charge.

The service is available by calling 1-800-292-3666, Monday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m.

The Human Development Commission identified and mailed survey forms to over 290 different service providers in Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac and Lapeer count-

To date, 134 providers have returned the surveys and have been added to the information and referral

The information callers can receive is the name of agencies that provide the service requested, address, area served, service hours, fees, intake process, and other services that each agency provides.

The types of providers now on our system range from ambulances, police departments and social services agencies, to libraries, nursery schools and recreational parks.

Attempts are now being made to contact providers that have not returned their surveys to ask if they will mail them back or if the HDC can be of assistance in filling them out. Service providers that did not receive a survey form should call Karen Kopka, information and referral specialist, at either 673-4121 or 1-800-

The legislature authorized ic Development Corporation creation of economic development corporations in 1974 and their creation has been increasingly popular.

Communities Thumb that have established EDCs or are in the process of doing so include Caro, Sandusky, Ubly, and Gagetown.

With so many communities having EDCs that removes a competitive advantage one community might have over another in attracting new business.

On the other hand, it might help attract industry that otherwise would build in another state. That undoubtedly was a major factor in the legislature passing the law to permit establishment of EDCs.

WHAT IS AN EDC?

EDCs, according to the law, may acquire, develop and maintain all lands, buildings, machinery, furnishings and equipment necessary to complete a project. Property may be obtained by gift or through purchase with proceeds of the corporation's borrowing.

Financing may be obtained through the issuance of revenue bonds or notes, interest on which is exempt for all federal, state and local income taxes.

The EDC can enter into lease-purchase leases. agreements or installment sales contracts with any person, firm or corporation for the use or sale of any project. The EDC cannot operate a project itself, other than as a lessor. As a public corporation, any surplus earnings are paid to the municipality.

The EDC is governed by a board of directors with at least nine members. They will be appointed, in the case of Cass City, by the village president with the advice and consent of the village council.

THE HEARING

The purpose of the hearing Tuesday is twofold. Members of the public can comment and any competitive applications for establishment of an EDC can be presented.

The hearing was scheduled as a result of Mike Weaver, Herbert Ludlow and Bill Kritzman filing an application with the village to create the EDC. All serve on the board of the Cass City Development Corp.

According to Superintendent Lou LaPonsie, submission of the application is a formality. The three have nothing to gain from being the incorporators. There is no guarantee they will be named to the EDC board and he could see no reason why it would be to someone else's benefit to submit a counter-applica-

Following the hearing, the council can approve the application to incorporate any articles of incorporation. The applicants then have 90 days from the effective date of the ordinance (approving the EDC) to incorporate. The final step is then for the village president, with the okay of the council, to appoint the members of the EDC board.

HOW IT WORKS

According to a state Department of Commerce brochure, a private company usually proposes a project to the EDC board, which the asks the local governing body (village council) to appoint two additional directors from the neighborhood to be affected by the project.

The EDC works with the company to develop a proposed project plan, which 3 submitted to the village council for review.

The village planning commission must then review the project and recommend approval or disapproval to the council. The council then holds a public hearing and votes on the proposal. Provided the go-ahead is given, the EDC and company can then implement the plan.

The first to take advantage of an EDC here may be Clare and Jeanne Comment They are considering building an indoor racquetball court, plus sauna, whirlpool and exercise room on their property. The Comments would own the building, the only difference being the financing. They presently are in partnership with another individual in the building of a bowling alley in Sandusky, which is being financed through the EDC there.

Vacation gyp brings suit

Attorney General Frank J. Kelley has filed suit agains a Chicago-based firm which' the attorney general's office alleges has been cheating Michigan residents by falsely advertising bogus vacation trips.

A formal suit has been filed in Ingham Circu Court against the Columbia Research Corporation and its President Raymond Anderson for alleged violations of the Michigan Consumer Protection Act.

The attorney general con-tends that the corporatios. and its president violated the consumer protection act by mailing advertisements to Michigan residents promising "on-the-house" vacations in Florida, Las Vegas, Reno or Lake Tahoe for a minimal $15.95 fee.

Kelley charges that the advertisements falsely state that the recipients have been selected by a computer to enjoy a vacation trip that includes free drinks, free meals, gambling benefit (where appropriate) and other amenities.

He contended the advertisements state that the vacations are provided because of an agreement with innkeepers and businessmen who believe a "word-oxmouth" campaign will result in a number of new customers.

Kelley said a number of Michigan residents have mailed their "deposits" of $15.95 without ever agair, hearing from the company or getting their money back.

St. Agatha preps for 100th anniversary

Former altar boy returns to remodel church

It's a homecoming of sorts for Joe Mosack The ex-altar boy at St. Agatha's Catholic church in Gagetown is now charged with remodeling its sanctuary in time for the church's 100th anniversary June 24. The work started Wednesday, April 4, and will include wall-to-wall carpeting, repainting, a new altar and reconciliation room and a new chapel for the Holy

The approximately $60,000 project has been paid for by bequests by parishioners. Until it is completed, mass is being held in the church basement.

Mosack, 52, heads Mosack's Design Consultants in Fairport Harbor, Ohio, a Cleveland suburb, a firm which has its roots in Gage-His father, Anthony Jo-seph, started the business in 1946, selling church goods ranging from candles to vestments. He had done that work previously, but as an employee for someone else. He was also at one time the village president in Gage-(Joe is Anthony Joseph Jr.) When he died in 1963, his son was the firm's salesman for all of Ohio and was calling on every Catholic church in that state. Mosack moved the business to Ohio the next year and in 1965 added the interior design and fabrication operation. He employs two designers for that end of the operation.

The firm does both design work and installation, both in new churches and old ones, such as St. Agatha's. The work can include artistic appointments, such as wood carvings (designed in Ohio but made in Europe), interior decorating, stained glass (done in the firm's studio), carpeting and furnishings, such as pews. Mosack's does 8-10 such jobs a year and has handled ones costing as much as $300,000. Most of its work is in Ohio and surrounding states but it does range further. One big job was in New Jersey.

A change in the mass in the 1960s was good for business. In addition to it now recited in English instead of in Latin, the priest says it facing his parishioners. Up to then, the altar was at the rear of the platform and the priest had his back to the congregation when reciting mass. For some churches, the change meant an extensive remodeling in relocating the altar, which they called upon Mosack's firm to do.

The company does do work in other Christian churches and its owner said " he would like to be able to do a Jewish synagogue some

The original part of the operation, sale of church equipment, continues, for which it puts out a thick full-color catalogue of the many items it sells. Originally, the firm dealt only

Shabbona hit by power loss

Youngsters who attend Evergreen Elementary School got an extra day of vacation because of a power outage in the Shabbona area last Thursday.

The outage began at 6:24 a.m. and it took 6 hours and 16 minutes until power was restored to the 392 customers without electricity, according to Dennis O'Brien, director of customer and marketing services for the Detroit Edison Thumb divi-

Cause of the outage, he said, was a pole top fire, which in turn was caused by a wire breaking loose from an insulator, probably from the wind, and then lying on the crossbar.

Repairmen had to replace several sections of wire plus repair the damage on the

There were customers without power on Wheeler, Argyle, Atwater, Pringle, Deckerville, Van Dyke, Stone, Shelden and Ubly Roads, O'Brien said.

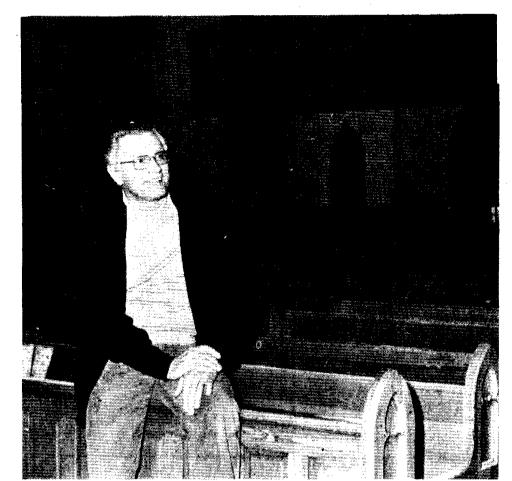

with Catholic churches but it now sells to all Christian denominations.

Mosack's remains very much a family operation. wife, handles the books. Son Steve is the on-site supervisor for the construction and installation projects and will be at St. Agatha's full-time. (His father was there only the first few days to see it get underway). His other son, Tony, works in sales and daughter Betty works in the office. The only offspring not involved in the company is Marguerite, an artist in Arkansas. A brother, Al, also works in sales in the Ohio office.

There's a total of eight on the staff full-time, with workers hired for church interior work as needed. Harold Goslin of Gagetown, for instance, will be doing the painting at St. Agatha's.

Mosack attended St. Agatha's School through the eighth grade and then attended a Catholic boarding school in Windsor, Ontario. He received his bachelor's degree from the University of Detroit.

His mother, Mildred, still lives in Gagetown and sister Mary (Mrs. Gerald) Kerbyson, lives in Cass City.

JOE MOSACK inside the church he once served as an altar boy. Now his Ohio firm is handling the remodeling job.

Eligibility clamp down underway

Food stamp use climbs after they become free greatly increased the number of people receiving them in Tuscola county.

New regulations now in effect restricting eligibility, however, will reduce that

Prior to Jan. 1, recipients had to buy the stamps. For instance, a family might pay $60 for $100 in food stamps. for a gain of $40 in food

Some eligible recipients, however, were so poor they afford to buy the stamps. In Michigan, only about 82 percent of eligible recipients bought them.

Congress thus changed the regulations to make the stamps free. The so-called zero-purchase program went into effect Jan. 1. The family that previously paid $60 for $100 in stamps, for instance, now receives $40 in stamps without paying any-

In Tuscola county in December, there were 804 households receiving food stamps, according to Susan Woern, assistant payments supervisor for the county Department of Social Serv-

In January, due to the new rules, the number increased to 1,007. Prior to then, notices were sent to all welfare and food stamp recipients notifying them of the change in the rules.

Statewide, the number of eligible households receiving stamps increased from the previous 82 percent to 97 percent in February, a total of 321,675 households.

The trend is going to be reversed, however, with the tighter eligibility requirements that went into effect March 1.

The Tuscola DSS has six months to phase in implementation of the new regulations, Ms. Woern said, so it's Making food stamps free too early to say how many persons will be dropped from the food stamp rolls. She did say "quite a few" cases have already been closed, but no figures are > available yet. The statewide prediction is that as many as 20,000 welfare recipients will become ineligible, plus an additional number who presently receive only food stamps. There are 54,000 now in the latter category.

> Prior to March, all recipients of Aid to Dependent Children, general assistance or Supplemental Security Income were automatically eligible for food stamps. That is no longer true.

Persons eligible cannot have an income above the national poverty level. There now are tighter restrictions on deductions that can be made to determine net income.

A family of four is allowed maximum monthly income after deductions of $542 to be eligible for food stamps. An example of the new restrictions cited by Mrs. Woern is that of a woman driving to Flint each day for job training. She is being paid $60 a week in federal Comprehensive Employ ment and Training Act funds to cover the cost of transportation. Previously, the money wasn't counted as income, but now it is, which makes her too "rich" to qualify for food stamps.

There is now a maximum deduction allowed of $80 to cover child care and shelter expenses (rent and heating bills). Previously, the total amount spent by a parent for child care (such as for a mother enrolled in job training) was deductible and the amount spent for shelter expenses that was deductible depended on income.

The new regulations also prohibit participation by families owning luxury cars, eliminate some students and require most students remaining eligible to register for work or leave the program.

Present food stamp recipients are finding out whether they are still eligible when their cases routinely come up for review, with the exception of those whose review date would normally come up after the six month implementation period for the new eligibility requirements. Their review dates will have to come sooner than they otherwise would.

Normally, according to Ms. Woern, food stamp cases are reviewed on a regular interval ranging from 1-12 months.

Senior citizens on fixed income might have their cases reviewed once a year, while someone capable of working might have his or her case reviewed monthly.

Bulldog girls seek 4th straight league crown

The Owen-Gage girls' softball team has two pluses and two minuses as it sets out toward what it hopes will be its fourth consecutive North Central D League softball title. The season starts Monday at Carsonville-Port Sanilac.

The pluses, according to coach Judy Campbell, are that the two leading hitters from last year are back, Laurie Andrakowicz and Howard, both of whom hit around the .600 mark last season.

The minuses are that the top two pitchers from the super season that took the team to the state semi-finals are gone, Dawn Erickson and Mary Lenhard.

Slated for the top spot on the mound staff is Andrakowicz, who has never before. Back-up pitched pitchers will be Laurie's sister, Julie, and Becky Howard, the only one with any previous pitching exper-

The pitching staff will have a heavier load to bear this year as the league is switching to all doubleheaders this year instead of the previous single games.

Although Miss Campbell will have nine players back from last year - five of them starters -- she describes this as a rebuilding year "because I'm shoving everybody around."

The only player in the same position as last year -when she isn't pitching - will be catcher Julie Andrakow-

There are 20 girls out for the team this year, versus about 16 usually, which gives the coach more players to pick from for her starting line-up, as well as putting more pressure on the starters to perform well in order to stay there.

The Bulldogs were 16-1 last year, not losing until the state semi-finals, when they

Seek summer work now

Entry-level jobs are expected to be more plentiful in the Michigan labor market this summer.

But State Labor Director Pat Babcock cautions that competition for these jobs will be stiff.

'The wrong time to start looking for a job is the day school gets out" he said "Nearly 700,000 youths, ages 14-17, will be looking for jobs. The ones with the best chance of landing a job are those who know how to go about it and are there first." He advises youths looking for summer jobs to be wary of employers that abuse summertime employment. Don McGrath, head of the labor department's Wage Hour Divison, which is responsible for monitoring violations of the wage hour law, said the majority of the state's employers follow the regulations, but those few that don't create problems.

"Youths should be par-ticularly careful of jobs that send them away from home," he said.

"These are the kinds of jobs where most often you can end up with a deficit at the end of summer.

"The ad that reads, 'Waiter, waitress wanted, spend summer in beautiful surroundings, play free tennis, and have access to pool, sometimes means that you'll also be doing the gardening, be required to play tennis with guests and wait on pool side customers.

"These jobs look glamorous now, but a lot of youths are disappointed each summer when in the middle of that great summer job they have to write home for money.

McGrath suggests youths watch out for a job that requires what is commonly called a preemployment agreement. If you sign such an agreement you may be signing away some of your ers try to guarantee that an employee will stay throug. the end of the season, usually the Labor Day week end.

This practice is illegal.' Also, avoid employers wanting you to be your "own company" or independent contractor by declaring that you are conducting business under an assumed name.

McGrath said this is a common guise to avoid paying overtime. It is illegal.

Employers in Michigan are required to pay minimum wage of $2.90 an hom and overtime at the rate of one-and-one-half for hours in excess of 40.

Minimum wage is required for anyone 18 and older and also for youths 16 and 17 that are working ir establishments that self alcoholic beverages.

Another problem area is deductions from employees' checks. State law limits the deductions that can be made from an employee's check to 25 percent of the state'. minimum wage. That includes meals, lodging and tips. Some employers have been known to quote federal law which takes the limit to 50 percent. In this instance state law supersedes the federal law. McGrath said the labor department has run across employers fining waiters and waitresses for having a button missing. "It is patently illegal."

Pooling of tips also is restricted. Some restaurants supplement a cook's salary by pooling tips. This can't be done. Tips can be only pooled with persons directly in contact with customers, like waiters, waitresses, bus persons or hosts. Employers cannot charge for breakages, shortages or walkouts -- people skipping without paying their bill.

"The employer is responsible for these items. It has been determined that these are within the scope of the cost of doing business, McGrath said.

If a youth has a question regarding an employer's practice, they should contact the Michigan Department of Labor, Wage Hour

Division, 7150 Harris Drive, Box 30015, Lansing 48909. Others Get Quick Results With The World War II vet seeks plane crew

Wednesday that the B-17 that Robert Speirs was flying in was shot down in a bombing mission over

He and the other nine crew members, all of whom parachuted to safety, spent the rest of World War II in a German prison camp.

The Akron Road, Cass City, resident has been able to locate seven of his fellow crew members and is hoping

It was 35 years ago this they will be able to have a

In addition, he is assisting the Michigan "search and rescue commander" of the 94th Bomb Group Memorial Association in tracking down men who belonged to the unit during the war. The association is planning its third reunion at Orlando, Fla., in October. The 94th Bomb Group was a B-17 unit (four-engined heavy bombers) based in Bury St. Edmunds, England. It was only in existence from 1942-45.

The memorial association was organized some years later. Speirs, 56, discovered the existence of the group little more than a year ago when he read a "seeking former members" article about the 94th in the Bay City Times.

IT WAS FEB. 5, 1943, when the then 20-year-old Speirs entered the Army. He was assigned to the Air Force (then part of the Army) and was trained as a gunner.

He and the other nine men he would be flying with on a B-17 received their final training together in the United States and arrived in England via B-17 in February, 1944.

The crew consisted of a pilot, co-pilot, navigator, bombardier (all officers) and six gunners (all enlisted men), one of whom was also radio operator and another who was engineer.

Speirs was the ball turret gunner, manning two .50 caliber machine guns mounted in a turret hanging from the bottom of the

HIS STAY AND THAT OF his fellow crew members with the 94th didn't last long. It was on his 14th mission, April 18, 1944, that his plane, nicknamed the "Belle of the Brawl," was shot down.

The mission was to bomb some factories outside of Berlin. The plane Speirs was in was brought down by German fighter planes. Of 21 B-17s on the mission, eight didn't make it back.

The "Belle of the Brawl" didn't go down instantly. Three engines were knocked out and the tail damaged. The pilot was hoping to make it to Sweden, but by the time it got to within sight of the Baltic Sea and with it continually losing altitude, it obviously wasn't going to make it to safety on the other side.

The crew bailed out. All parachuted to safety and all were captured. They eventually were transferred to Stalag 17, a prison camp about 30 miles from Vienna, Austria. The men were separated and officers were kept in a different camp. STALAG 17 WAS LATER the title of a book and then a movie. Speirs saw the movie several years ago, but feels it was a composite of all German prison camps "because it didn't resemble the camp I was in."

'I never was handled roughly," he said of his experience there. "If you just kept to yourself, they didn't bother you."

The worst aspect of prison camp life was lack of enough food. "We learned to do without eating." Without the Red Cross food packages that arrived once a week, he doubts he and the others would have made it. It was supposed to be one package per person, but towards the end, supplies were so scarce, the contents had to be split four ways.

The Cass Cityan did have his limits. There was a cat that had the run of the camp. Whenever it gave birth to kittens, the offspring ended up on some prisoners' dinner plates. Not Speirs', however. "I never was that hungry," he said with a smile.

The POWs kept track of the war's progress via homemade crystal radio sets built by radio operators. "Those guys could build radios out of anything." The sets were "illegal," so had to be kept hidden.

There were 4,000 prisoners in the camp and with the Russians closing in, the camp was evacuated. The men marched for 18 days and were close to the German border when they were liberated by Gen. George Patton's 3rd Armor Division May 2, 1945.

The war in Europe ended about that time. Speirs was sent home on a 60-day furlough and while home -his parents moved from Cass City to Detroit while he was in the service -- the war with Japan ended. He was discharged Oct. 29, 1945.

MARRIED HIS wife, Norma, the following year. They have five children, Ron, Jane and David, all married, and Skip and Rebecca, both at home. Speirs is a maintenance worker at General Cable.

In the years after the war, he kept in contact with only one of his fellow crew members, Gerald Apple of Garrettsville, Ohio, who was a waist gunner (turret on the side of the plane).

Since joining the 94th association, he has come in contact with six other crew members and hopes are to have a reunion, possibly in Dyersburg, Tenn., where they underwent much of their training. He is also hoping to attend the 94th Bomb Group reunion in October.

He and the others have been unable so far to locate or find out what happened to the pilot and the other waist gunners on their plane.

SPEIRS WAS ASKED A couple of months ago to help the Michigan search and rescue commander, Robert Tower of Warren, in finding

AROUND THE FARM

Yard and garden tips

By Don Kebler

This week's report is on yard and vegetable garden

I am not going to elaborate on the actual planting of trees and shrubs. This is because most people know that the roots must be spread out and the soil packed well around the roots. They know the planting soil must be loamy and, if necessary, mix some peat, sand, barn manure or compost with heavy soils. They know the fill soil, if dry, needs to be wet when packing around the roots and the best way to do this is put water into the planting hole before putting in the fill soil and packing out the air spaces around the roots. The two least followed planting practices are planting too deep and not headingback the stock. If one doesn't plant the stock so the soil line is the same place on the trunk as it was before the stock was dug up, growth may be seriously retarded if not having plant mortality occur.

Heading-back means reducing the branch volume. This practice reduces the chances of severe root weakening. Lastly, I want to pass on this reminder. It is unlawful to take an uninspected tree or any perennial from its natural growing area and transplant it at another location unless the removal and transplanting is all done on the same property. There is one exception - that is to have the specimen inspected and cleared by a Michigan Department of Agriculture Plant Industry Division in

All of us who have home vegetable gardens hate to pull weeds. We would like to find a universal herbicide we can apply once and have a seasonally weed-free vegetable garden. Sorry to say there is no such universal herbicide. This is because our herbicides are not only selective in the weeds killed but also selective of the vegetables they don't kill. In other words, some herbicides for sweet corn weed control will kill the vegetables growing beside the corn.

There are selective herbicides used by commercial vegetable producers. However, most of us are not desirous of mixing a pint or gallon of one herbicide to use for corn weed control, a small batch of another herbicide to control weeds insnap beans, etc. If you are, there is Extension Bulletin No. 433, "1979 Weed Control Guide For Vegetable Crops," available at my office for your weed control information.

Mission next week at St. Michael's

Starting with mass this Sunday, Capuchin Father Michael Zuelke will be preaching at the Christian Renewal Mission that will run through Friday at St. Michael Catholic church in Wilmot.

In his sermons Sunday, he will explain the purpose of the mission and outline the areas of faith that will be discussed at the special services each evening.

"In the course of these six days, we will help people to examine their consciences to see if they have integrated their Christian faith into their daily lives," he said.

As well as parishioners from St. Michael's and St. Joseph's in Mayville, the public is invited to the mission programs.

ence.' Tuscola county does not have a paid staff as some neighboring counties do. "All work is done by volunteers and we are fortunate to be able to use a large percentage of money collected for service to our cancer patients. We hope to reach every home in our county,' said Crusade Chairman Sandy Gaudreau of Vassar. Rudy Petzold of Caro is honorary crusade chairman. Persons who would like to help can contact Mrs. Gaudreau at 823-3126.

The American Cancer Society has invested nearly $500 million in cancer research. In Michigan, there is currently more than $1.5 million at work in research labs at Michigan State University, University of Michigan and Wayne State University.

energy and would be lots of fun for any person.

A darling seven-year-old with lots of energy would like a Big Sister to teach her new things. She lives in the Millington area and likes to play with dolls, play outside and be around people.

This super active nineyear-old from Vassar needs a man to help him use some of his energy. He is very friendly, outgoing and enjoys swimming, reading and bike riding.

We have two super nice, twin 16-year-olds from Caro. They like to be outside, roller skate and bowl. They are both very friendly and really polite boys. Either one would be fun for any

Big Brother-Big Sisters in Tuscola county is located at 230 N. State Street in Caro, telephone 673-6996; in Sanilac county at 26 Lexington Street, P.O. Box 1, Sandusky, telephone 648-4433. Huron County Big Brothers-Big Sisters is no longer in operation.

Weight loss class starts May 7

A "Lose It and Love It" weight control class is being offered for area residents.

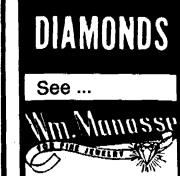

The Cooperative Extension Family Living Program will be offering the six-week class through Marlette Community Education Program. The class will be on May 7, 14, 21 and 29 and June 5 and 12 from 7-9 p.m. Registrations and class fee of $3 per person can be made through the Marlette Community Education Program.

The program zeroes in on calorie control, changing food habits and increasing activity level, according to Peggy Houck, extension home economist for Tuscola and Sanilac counties. A total of 450 pounds have been lost by class participants. The class also gives participants the opportunity to learn good nutrition information.

The program is open to all people. For more information, call the extension office in Caro, 673-3161, or Sandusky, (313) 648-2515.
