

Elkland finishes year in black, meeting routine

Elkland township finished the 1978-79 fiscal year in the black.

Other than presentation of financial report and approval of the new budget, for the fiscal year that started Sunday, there wasn't much that happened at the annual township meeting Saturday.

The financial report showed general fund revenue for the fiscal year ending Saturday of $95,307 and expenditures of $110,366.

However, the township started the fiscal year with a balance on hand of $30,193 (not included in the $95,307 revenue). The township ended the year with $17,817 in its checking account, $20,294 in savings and $89,000 in certificates of deposit, although $50,000 of the latter amount is earmarked for payments on the new fire truck.

Biggest expenditures in 1978-79 were for roads: $16,873 for maintenance, $34,020 for construction, and $3,583 for roadside brush cutting and grass cutting.

The 16 electors present approved a 1979-80 general fund budget projecting expenditures at $98,900, to be matched by that amount in revenue.

The big budget items are again for roads: $17,535 for maintenance, $38,840 for construction and $1,000 for roadside brush and grass cutting.

Treasurer Art Randall, who presided in the absence of Supervisor Jack Gallagher, who was out of town, said the township board is looking at having one or two miles of roads rebuilt this year by the county Road Commission. Three miles were done last year. The board has yet to decide which roads.

The work to be done will be ditching, cutting down hills, grading and graveling, but not paving, the board having decided a few years ago, he explained, that blacktopping was too expensive.

Salaries remained the same: $6,000 for the supervisor; $4,500 each for clerk and treasurer; and $600 each for the two trustees.

There is $10,000 budgeted for the ambulance service.

The revenue side of the ledger shows $19,000 in property tax revenue (of $39,000 collected, $20,000 was applied to last year), $34,000 in state sales, income and intangible tax revenue and $4,500 in revenue sharing, $6,500 balance on hand as of March 1 at the end of the previous fiscal year, $5,000 in interest income, $25,000 in cashed certificates of deposit (for the fire truck), $8,000 in tax collection fees and $1,400 in miscellaneous revenues.

At the request of Village President Lambert Althaver, electors appropriated $500 for the Cass City recreation program, with the township board to consider increasing the amount. The same amount was included in last year's budget, Althaver pointed out, but the village never got the money.

Jack Esau, Cass City Area Historical Society president, was given authority for his group to proceed with its application to have the Cultural Center designated as an historic site.

The aim is to have an historic marker outside the building dedicated in 1981, the 100th anniversary of the building.

In addition to the general fund budget presented Saturday, the fire department budget is $53,050, of which $29,500 will be the payment for the fire truck, including interest. In addition to the fire truck payment, $7,210 will be transferred from the general fund for operational expenses.

The cemetery budget is $17,325, of which $4,555 is transferred from the general fund.

Of the anticipated $15,063 in federal revenue sharing funds the township is to receive, $6,063 is to be spent for roads, $4,500 for the Rawson Memorial Library and $4,500 for the village landfill subsidy.

OUCH! - Kim Lantz obviously can think of more pleasant things to do than to receive a measles vaccination from Tuscola County Health Department nurse Anita Harrand. The 15-year-old Kingston High School eighth grader was one of 149 youngsters receiving needed inoculations and/or polio vaccine in the clinic there Sunday for youngsters from Kingston, Mayville and Deford. A total of 250 shots or vaccine were given.

Students to feel the needle in vaccination crackdown

Get your shots or you may have to stay out.

That's the message school children and their parents are getting as area school districts cooperate in a state Department of Public Health initiated program to get all school students immunized.

The health department undertook the program after discovering that about 30 percent of all measles cases in the United States are occurring in Michigan. Nineteen percent of the nation's rubella cases are in Michigan.

On a local level, the program means school personnel are combing through student records to determine which students are lacking all their required shots.

If the students have had shots not listed on the records, their parents are asked to get the records updated. Otherwise, their children will be having a date with the needle.

State law, according to Cass City school nurse Barbara Malone, RN, requires every new student - entering kindergarten or transferring from another state - to show proof that he or she has had one DPT shot (diphtheria, pertussis and tetanus), one shot for measles and rubella and one dose of oral polio vaccine.

Although school districts have been fairly effective in enforcing that requirement, not all have been as proficient in making sure that students later got their required booster shots and that transfer students were in compliance.

"Our problem has not been with children who started here for the large part," Mrs. Malone said, "but students who transferred in and didn't have their shots or were not on their records."

Although state law at present doesn't give school districts authority to force parents to have their children get the booster shots - the law only applies to students entering school - such a law has been proposed.

But parents shouldn't need a state law to make sure their children are immunized, Mrs. Malone emphasized. "My whole job is for the kids, that we don't have a measles outbreak or some kid comes down with polio."

"The whole purpose is to prevent kids from getting these terrible diseases."

Many young parents today have never seen the terrible effects of such diseases, such as someone confined to an iron lung because of polio, she explained, thus don't realize the importance of making sure their children have been immunized. So far, Mrs. Malone with some clerical assistance, has gone through the records of all elementary and high school students. Letters were sent to parents in all elementary grades by the end of last week if records showed their children were lacking all their required shots.

Sixty letters went to Campbell parents (of 528 students), 29 to ones at Deford and 20 at Evergreen.

Letters went out this week to parents of high schoolers whose records showed they were lacking shots. They should be going out to intermediate school parents in a week or so.

The form letters specify which immunizations records show the student is missing. "If you are certain that your child is completely immunized," it continues, "and the school is missing some of this information, please bring a copy of the complete immunization record to the principal's office."

If the parents don't have the records, it may require contacting the doctor who gave the immunizations, who should have a record.

That's if the child received the required vaccinations. If he or she didn't, needed vaccinations can be obtained from the family doctor or at a county health department clinic. (See sidebar story.)

OTHER SCHOOLS

The Kingston schools completed their review of student immunization records prior to the Tuscola County Health Department clinic Sunday. All parents received one letter to update them on what was being done. Parents of those needing inoculations received a second letter.

Secretary Cathie Curry, who handled the high school records, said "almost everyone" in grades 7-12 was found to be in need of booster shots. In the elementary grades, only about 25 were in that category. As of the official count last fall, there were 428 students in grades 7-12; 409 in the elementary.

In the Uby schools, elementary Principal Kenneth Sweeney said, all parents have been sent a request to update their children's immunization records.

Three car crash in Cass City, another car flips

Accidents in or near Cass City last week sent four persons to the hospital, one of whom remained there Tuesday.

The one at 12:30 p.m. Saturday at Oak and Main Streets sent the three occupants of one of the three vehicles involved to the hospital.

Two of them, the driver, Patricia Sue Ferguson, 19, and her father, Alex Ferguson, 60, were treated and released from Hills and Dales General Hospital. Her mother, Lucille, 58, was transferred to McKenzie Memorial Hospital, Sandusky, where she was reported in satisfactory condition Tuesday afternoon. The Fergusons live in Peck.

Cass City police reported that Gregory R. Roy, 18, of Unionville, was southbound on Oak. After stopping at Main, he pulled into the intersection, where his car was struck in the right side by the eastbound Ferguson auto.

The Roy auto then slammed head-first into the front end of the vehicle of Edward M. Mozdzen, 21, of 6137 Deckerville Road, Deford, who was stopped on northbound Oak, waiting to turn left onto Main Street.

Roy was later ticketed by police on a charge of failure to yield.

The other severe accident took place at 9:15 a.m. last Thursday. It sent Wanda F. VanVliet, 53, of 6868 Moriarty Road, Decker, to Caro Community Hospital and from there to Saginaw General Hospital, where she was treated and released.

Sheriff's deputies reported Leo Ware, 69, of 6314 Main Street, Cass City, southbound on Cemetery Road, was turning left into a driveway and his pickup hit the left side of the northbound VanVliet auto.

The impact flipped her car onto its roof and it slid about 50 feet before coming to a halt.

Ware, who sought his own treatment for injuries, was ticketed on a charge of making an improper turn.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Three cars were damaged last Thursday in an 11 a.m. mishap in the Cass City IGA Foodliner parking lot.

Deputies reported Thomas J. Mitchell, 27, of Saginaw, driver of a semi-truck hauling food was circling cars in the lot, presumably on his way out.

The left rear wheel of the trailer hit the right front of the parked car of Marion Rabideau, of 4299 Leach Street, pushing her car against the car parked next to it, belonging to Charlotte Kritzman, 6944 Cemetery Road. In turn, that car was shoved against the parked car of Elizabeth M. Lefler, 6718 Houghton Street.

At 12:45 p.m. last Wednesday, according to Caro state police, Janet C. Rix, 37, of Clifford, was westbound on Marlette Road, east of Slatery Road, when her vehicle was struck in the rear while she was turning left into a driveway.

Driver of the other car involved was William E. Sullivan, 17, of 5691 S. Kingston Road, Kingston, who was attempting to pass her at the time.

Cass City police reported that at 2 p.m. last Thursday, Lenora M. Gingrich, 50, of 4770 Koeppigen Road, backed into the car of Richard Dula of Pontiac in the Provincial House parking lot.

At 10:30 p.m. Friday, they said, John E. Blades, 16, of 4745 Hurley Road, northbound in the Cass City High School lot, clipped the right rear of a parked car when he was turning left. Owner of the parked car was William Bader of Cass City.

At 9:35 p.m. Monday, according to village police, Joseph M. Wood, 17, of 4703 South Street, Gagetown, backed into the car of Harold D. Sweeney, 26, of 6206 Milligan Road, who was northbound in the Charming parking lot.

Cass City board dismisses teacher

Before a large group of interested teachers and parents the Cass City School Board held a special meeting Monday night and fired Karen Hurt, a teacher at Evergreen School, by a vote of 6-1. Against dismissal was Trustee Dean Hoag.

The action came after several letters in defense of both Miss Hurt and Principal Ruth Smith were read and testimony from spectators was aired.

The action was taken one month after a tenure hearing was held at the regular meeting of the board. In the interim Supt. Donald Crouse sent Cass City Elementary Principal Jacqueline Freiburger to Evergreen to make three evaluations of Miss Hurt's classroom ability.

Mrs. Freiburger reported that discipline was bad, teaching was not good and class organization was poor.

Mrs. Freiburger said that suggestions she made after the first evaluation resulted in improvement but that it had "slipped back" by the time of her third visit.

The added evaluations came after the evaluations by Principal Ruth Smith were questioned by Dale McIntosh, speaking as president of the Cass City Teachers' Association, and other interested teachers, at the regular meeting.

The pro-Hurt group contended that the evaluations by Mrs. Smith were unfair. In her first years at Evergreen the evaluations listed Miss Hurt's teaching abilities as fair to good.

Then suddenly, just before the board was to decide tenure, three evaluations were given in a space of a few days.

The teacher was not made aware of the results of them until two days before the board was to meet and decide whether or not she was to be rehired.

Mrs. Smith said that in her system a grade of "fair" was not satisfactory for rehiring a teacher.

A petition with over 200 names of Evergreen area residents was presented supporting Mrs. Smith.

A letter from Evergreen teachers supporting Miss Hurt was read. The letter was unsigned but one of the teachers who composed it was present. She said that the letter did have the support of the teachers on the staff.

McIntosh then questioned the board about the way the evaluations were conducted and pointed out that the teacher had virtually no time to make adjustments after the Smith evaluations because they were not discussed with her.

He suggested that perhaps the contract between the teachers and the school had been violated.

Monday he said he did not know whether or not the decision of the board would be appealed by the CCTA.

Trustee Hoag said that he was voting against dismissal because he felt that the Evergreen principal had been lax in the evaluation procedure.

PROTEST SUSPENSION

Duane Kern spoke to the board to protest the three-day suspension of his son.

He said he was told on Friday that his son was improving and on Monday he was expelled.

Principal Robert Stickle said that it was the second suspension for Kern and was made because the youth spilled varnish over a desk and other equipment on the teacher's desk.

He explained that suspensions were not handed out. Please turn to page 3.

High school names top two students

Valedictorian and salutatorian honors for the Cass City High School class of '79 have been announced.

Leading her class of 149 with a grade point average of 4.0 is Mary Jo Lockwood, daughter of Dr. E. Paul Lockwood of Cass City and Mrs. Bonnie Williams of Midland.

Rabbit Tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Dropped in to Jim Schwanitz's, manager of B & W, Monday and found him busy writing the state tax tribunal. If you'd had his experience you'd have been writing, too.

Schwanitz owns land in Bay Port. Not crop land and not on or near water.

Last year it was assessed under $4,000. After a tax survey the land was assessed over $25,000. That's right, $25,000.

After he appealed to the board of review it was cut to about $11,000. That's why he was writing the letter. He feels it's still too high.

There has to be something wrong, doesn't there, when a tax makes such wide swings from one tax authority to another?

It makes the hefty increases suffered by business property owners here pale in comparison.

Is it because I'm older that much of the glitter has tarnished at Las Vegas?

After four days there last week I was happy to get home. I was tired of the gambling scene after the first two days. (Okay, I lost. But that's not the reason.)

The weather was perfect, the golf was fun and there's still no better place in the world to see your favorite star perform in person.

But it's doubtful if I'll return at least for a couple of years. Besides the reasons listed there's another. Vegas is no longer cheap if you don't gamble.

They have loss leaders, such as a breakfast for 99 cents. But at the hotel where I stayed one evening I purchased a bowl of soup, a corned beef on rye, milk and a single scoop of strawberry ice cream. The cost? $9.05 without tip.

Jet lag is real. The nature of the newspaper business required that I swing back into the harness Monday and go full tilt.

The only catch was that I couldn't. Everything appeared to go wrong and I caught myself making more than the usual number of silly mistakes all day.

What's more, several of the group from Cass City, younger than I, reported the same malaise.

No wonder sports teams have such trouble winning on the road.

case, he added, it probably was that the suspension period was too short.

Kern said that he felt that the teacher wasn't doing her job and the board should look into the way she conducts her classes.

"LET GO OF HER!" -- Cries hero Horace Beemer (Kevin Hobart) to villain Slick Mason (Malcolm House), who has no intentions of letting go of heroine Julie Harper (Deanna Britton) in "Shoot-Out at Hole-in-the-Wall." Hospital has disaster drill

A pretend explosion last Wednesday served as a disaster drill for Hills and Dales General Hospital and other emergency personnel.

The drill, according to Genevieve Crowley, hospital operating room supervisor and chairman of its disaster committee, "gives an idea how we can function in a real disaster."

In addition to the hospital staff, others participating were the Elkland Township Fire Department, Cass City Area Ambulance Service and village police.

The fire department and ambulance were summoned to the Charmont at 1 p.m., scene of the supposed explosion. Firemen got to go back to the station immediately but the ambulance personnel had to sort through 20 tags, each representing a victim. The tags were marked with different symptoms, such as "no apparent injuries," "hysterical," "lacerations," or "fractures." The personnel had to decide which "victims" would go to the hospital first were it a real emergency and whether additional help would be needed. Their role in the drill then ended.

Meanwhile at the hospital, staff members were going to their assigned stations to be ready to take care of the incoming wounded and getting equipment and supplies out, such as litters and bandages.

"My main concern was were we ready for the patients," Ms. Crowley said. The answer was "yes" as everyone at the hospital was ready within 10 minutes.

The total drill lasted about 20 minutes. It was followed by an evaluation by participants of what went wrong and right, which lasted about an hour.

The main problem encountered, according to the emergency committee chairman, was in communications, both in dispatching by the sheriff's department -- there was a delay, apparently because it was busy dispatching for real-life situations -- and within the hospital itself.

The hospital usually conducts four such emergency drills a year, she said. The next one, with real people serving as "victims," is scheduled in May.

The Haire Net

The firing of Karen Hurt, a teacher at Evergreen School, has revealed a weakness in the evaluation system by the principal.

Whether this is system-wide or merely at Evergreen is not known because evaluations of this type are rarely exposed to the public. There's no criticism here for the action of the school board Monday night.

As Trustee J.D. Tuckey said, the board has to depend on the administration for evaluation in its decision making.

The school board can't really hire or fire any teacher on any other basis. They aren't in the classroom. They are not trained. Few of us would vote for a board that would make a capricious decision in the face of negative reports.

But the board does have an obligation to make sure that the evaluations they look at when voting to hire or fire are the best available and professionally secured.

It appears that there is work to be done in this area.

At least two trustees, Dean Hoag and Tuckey, said as much at Monday's meeting.

Given the glut of teachers in the job market these days, firing a teacher is tantamount to ending her job opportunities in the field.

That's another reason why there should be no doubt that any decision was reached after careful consideration and after the teacher was given a reasonable opportunity to improve. The way the evaluation process worked for Miss Hurt, there is doubt.

A suggestion was made by a supporter of Miss Hurt that an outside professional be brought in for evaluation ... by innuendo suggesting that a personality conflict between Hurt and Principal Ruth Smith could be the cause of the firing.

That's unworkable of course. An employee has to get along with the boss or neither can do their job right.

Keep in mind that if Hurt was rehired she automatically would be granted tenure, virtually assuring that she would be immune from firing.

That's why the board had to fire her. Its first responsibility is to the students and they just can't in good faith take a chance on being stuck with a below average teacher.

The decision reached was the right one. The way it was reached leaves a lot to be desired.

"If It Fitz..." Gramps pulls old strings

By Jim Fitzgerald

It has been written by historians that many people who survived the Great Depression emerged the better for the experience. That is, they learned valuable lessons in the 1930s which served them well in later years, enabling them to prosper financially, to grow spiritually and to pass down the wisdom born of poverty to their children and to their children's children.

Just last week end I realized there is much truth to this Depression dictum. My three grandchildren were visiting and I made their eyes bug with what I learned during those terrible years of deprivation. I showed them how to rock the baby in the cradle with a Yo-Yo.

This is no small trick. While the Yo-Yo is fully extended at the end of its string, and spinning swiftly, I use the hand not tied to the Yo-Yo to grasp the string about four inches above the Yo-Yo. I then quickly manipulate the rest of the string into a triangle shape, using both hands. The Yo-Yo is still spinning as it hangs from the four-inch section of string. While it spins, I rock it from the apex of the triangle, back and forth through the center of the triangle, for several seconds. The Yo-Yo continues to spin as I let the triangle collapse and the Yo-Yo is once again fully extended, almost touching the floor, and STILL spinning. I then flick my middle finger imperceptibly and the Yo-Yo jumps up into my hand, tightly wound, with no loose string showing.

At this point, I pause for applause. When it finally subsides, for an encore I walk the baby across the floor. A Yo-Yo spinning on a linoleum floor makes a splendid rat-a-tat-tat sound. I used to drive my mother buggy.

How did I learn these marvelous tricks? It is a talent born out of the pain of the Depression, by way of the Philippines, thanks to Duncan, the manufacturer of the Yo-Yo.

When I was a boy, Duncan sent teams of Filipino men into city neighborhoods to teach kids how to do more with a Yo-Yo than simply make it go up and down. At the time, I thought those Filipinos had the best job in the world. When I grew older, I realized it was probably the only job they could get. In fact, I suspect the word "Yo-Yo" subsequently became a term of disparagement because a grown man would have to be a Yo-Yo to make a living playing with one on street corners.

Whatever. I was a good Yo-Yo student and I practiced all the time because there was nothing else to do during the Depression. There was no Little League and my father was too poor to buy me the Detroit Tigers. It was all he could do to buy me my own Filipino. Little did I suspect, when I was a 10-year-old winning playground Yo-Yo contests, that some day my skill would make me a hero to my grandchildren. In fact, I had given up trying to impress them. Their father is a skilled athlete with a shirt-full of muscles. I don't have strength enough to blow up their balloons. The last time I tried, the children had to help me to bed.

But then my wife bought me a Yo-Yo. She'd heard me brag about my childhood accomplishments. I took it into my bedroom, alone, to see if I could still rock the baby in the cradle. My son, Nerd, walked in while I was practicing and he fell down laughing. I walked the baby across his nose.

I was as good as ever. That evening I staged a Yo-Yo show as my contribution to the International Year of the Child. It was held in the kitchen so I could rat-a-tat-tat. I rocked the baby and walked the baby and looped the loop. I would have gone around the world except the ceiling was too low. For a full performance, I really need something like the Silverdome.

"Do it again, Grandpa." That's what they said, over and over. And when their jock dad got home from the basketball tournament, they told him what I'd done. He can barely make a Yo-Yo go up and down. Poor fellow.

My father lost his business during the Depression. It was an unhappy time for many people. Certainly those Filipino men would rather have been somewhere else than on school playgrounds playing with Yo-Yo's. But the historians are right when they say some good things came out of those bad years.

It's not only that I learned how to do Yo-Yo tricks which, 42 years later, impressed my grandchildren. The Yo-Yo is a silly toy and I wouldn't seriously suggest my skill with it was the most valuable lesson I learned from the Depression. I learned more than that.

Because I had four sisters, I also learned how to play a great game of jacks. The grandchildren will see me do eggs in the basket behind my back the next time they come visiting.

Onward and Upward, with no loose string showing.

Certain types of people think they have a dynamic personality if they explode occasionally.

If you grow more than just a lawn on one to 20 acres, you need a tractor that will do more than just mow. You need the versatility and power of Power King Tractor.

Not a toy, this rugged tractor has extra weight and traction to give you more push and pull-power, yet uses less gas per job. Automotive all-gear drive converts nearly 100% horsepower to workpower. Electromagnetic clutch gives you full control of powered attachments simply by pushing or pulling the dashboard switch. And for added safety, an electric interlock prevents tractor starts while attachments are clutch-engaged.

Mount attachments easily with new quick-hitch. Flow with ease. Prepare seed beds with 32" tiller. Plant, cultivate, fertilize and spray. Mow 2 to 3 acres an hour with the 60" rotary mower. Bulldoze with the 48" angling blade. Load gravel or dirt with the 1/2-ton bucket. Or cut a path through deep snow with the 48" snowblower. Handle all your garden and yard chores with over 20 attachments.

Annual sheriff's report reveals crime down, accidents up

Crime apparently decreased in Tuscola county in 1978, compared to the previous year, according to the Sheriff's Department annual report; however, the number of accidents increased. The department made 474 arrests last year, compared to 554 the previous year. Charges in 1978 totaled 774, resulting from some persons charged with more than one crime when arrested, for instance, driving under the influence of liquor and fleeing and eluding a police officer.

The greatest number of arrests, 164, were for traffic violations, followed by obstruction of justice, 63, family offenses, 48, juvenile probation, 28, and disturbing the peace, and assault, 16 each.

Cass City police made arrests resulting in a total of 48 charges being brought (no 1977 comparisons in report); Caro state police, 222 charges; Galetown police, 4 (October through December) and Kingston police, 2 (in June and December).

Calls concerning criminal matters to the sheriff's department totaled 7,352, down from 7,796 in 1977. The greatest number concerned traffic, such as to report accidents or drunk drivers, which totaled 2,731, down 276 from the previous year.

Next came larcenies, 767 (down three); vandalism, 731 (up 65) disorderly conduct, 479 (down 128); domestic problems, 454 (up 11); burglaries, 348 (down 65), and assaults, 273 (up eight).

Complaints phoned in from area townships were: Columbia, 155 (169 in 1977); Elkland, including Cass City, 750 (746); Ellington, 132 (146); Elmwood, 150 (146); Kingston, 230 (217); and Novesta, 167 (208).

In contrast to most crime categories being down from 1977, the number of traffic accidents increased substantially, from 892 up to 1,022 in 1978. December was the worst month for accidents, with 154 being recorded, followed by November with 121 and October with 115. Those are only accidents where the Sheriff's Department did the dispatching; state police statistics aren't included.

In area townships, the number of accidents (1977 figures in parentheses): Columbia, 22 (19); Elkland, including Cass City, 41 (26); Ellington, 32 (29); Elmwood, 18 (24); Kingston, 23 (32); and Novesta, 36 (49).

Of the 1,022 accidents, there were 18 fatalities and 460 injuries. There were a total of 25 people killed in county traffic accidents last year (the others being handled by different police agencies).

There were 1,550 traffic tickets issued last year, 31 less than the year before. Of those, 687 were issued for speeding, 146 for operator's license violations, 138 for stop sign violations and 61 for defective equipment.

There were 173 appearance tickets issued (to appear in District Court) compared to 286 in 1977. Seventy-seven were for transporting open intoxicants in a motor vehicle (given to the driver) and 51 for possession of open intoxicants in a motor vehicle (given to passengers).

Deputies patrolled 328,590 miles last year, 35,748 miles less than the year before, and consumed 33,628 gallons of gasoline (9.77 miles per gallon).

There were 1,383 persons lodged in the county jail, 77 more than in 1977, of which 110 were women and 773 were repeaters.

The Sheriff's Department spent $573,190 last year, compared to $502,595 in 1977.

In addition, driver's license bureau expenses were $19,729 ($18,674 in 1977); marine safety patrol, $6104 ($5,895); snowmobile patrol, $1,019 ($811); technical investigation unit, $33,650 (1977 figure not available), and civil defense, $13,716 ($17,900).

David W. O'Dell Reader sends "first hand" report from Alaska

Dear Editor, specifically Mike Eliasohn,

Your column on Alaska in the March 8 issue of the Chronicle was intriguing, particularly because it was secondhand reporting.

I thought some firsthand comments might be enlightening to your readers since there are so many misconceptions held by people of the "lower 48." Even the geography books are sometimes misleading.

I have lived and worked among Alaskan Eskimos and Indians for nearly eight years and have yet to have one tell me they've ever seen an igloo, for example. In fact, there is a joke going around that the definition of an igloo is "the substance that holds igs together."

Again, should you mention Alaska to someone Outside, which, by the way, is a term meaning the lower 48, they will immediately conjure up ideas of cold and snow and hard-to-survive conditions.

Certainly we have our share of that, but did you know that the past three winters have been easier and more pleasant here than in many of the states, including Michigan?

There may be some negative aspects about living in Alaska, but there are also compensations. I can leave Anchorage and drive 250 miles to the tip of the Kenai (pronounced Keen-eye) Peninsula - about the size of the state of Ohio - without seeing a stoplight or having to stop at a stop sign. There is no rush hour traffic except in Anchorage and Fairbanks and even that can't compare with any of the major cities in the lower 48.

There may be some discomforts in having long, dark winter days - the sun rising at 10:30 a.m. and setting at 3:30 p.m. (where we live) - but we make up for it in the summer when it stays light enough to do such things as read all night or get extra hours in working on your house or play baseball at midnight as is done in Fairbanks.

In addition to those advantages, we have the enjoyment of having moose browse around the house during the winter, although during the hunting season they have the uncanny ability of disappearing for several days.

Many times the Fish and Game Department has been accused of disseminating hunting information to the moose to read before it is given to the hunter. After the season is over, the moose become friendly again, and occasionally too friendly as they have been known to charge anything that disturbs them.

We had some excitement last fall when a small black cub bear accidentally got into our enclosed play area and after struggling for some time created a hole in the fence and escaped.

Few people realize the immense size of the state. If you were to superimpose Alaska on the continental U.S., it would reach from the east coast to the west coast. Alaska is not only the northernmost state but is the westernmost as well. In fact, it is the easternmost state as it crosses the international date line.

Because of its size, it is necessary for high school teams to travel up to one thousand miles to play their games. Usually several games are scheduled to justify the expense of chartering a plane for such athletic contests.

Politically, Alaska is stewing over President Carter's recent withdrawal of 56 million acres for national monuments. If the vote for statehood were held today, instead of 20 years ago, there would be no question as to the outcome. Some organizations are murmuring secession, others are initiating litigation against the federal government.

Yours truly,

David W. O'Dell

Dear Editor,

The Tom Proctors have taken me to Detroit Tiger games for eight years to watch the team play ball.

I'm one of the Tigers' biggest fans. With the season starting this Thursday, I would like to see people support the team and not knock them because they're all young kids playing.

PEDALING AROUND Downtown living

By Mike Ellasohn

As I am a former resident of downtown - I lived upstairs in the Chronicle building until the space was needed for newspaper and printing purposes - I'm glad to see that the village council is going to be reevaluating the Cass City zoning ordinance as it pertains to apartments in downtown store buildings.

The downtown area is zoned "community business" or "general business," thus apartments are prohibited unless they were in existence at the time the ordinance went into effect and are in use. If the apartment has been vacant more than six months, it cannot be used again for living quarters.

I know of a couple of downtown apartments which can't be used now for that reason, though their owners could have gone to the village council to request a zoning variance if they had wanted to use them (with no guarantee the variance would be granted, of course.)

The idea of zoning, of course, is to eliminate incompatible uses, for instance, a factory in the midst of a residential neighborhood. The council's rejection last week of a request to rezone residential property to allow erection of a walk-up snack bar was an example of its adherence to the present zoning ordinance.

But apartments in the upstairs of store buildings don't present the same kind of conflict. The outsiders of the buildings won't be changed and the only problems inside will be if the tenants are noisy or let their garbage accumulate - problems which can happen anywhere.

There are several advantages to allowing more apartments downtown:

-It would produce more revenue for the building owners and directly or indirectly mean someone else to help pay the heating bills (granted, more of the building would have to be heated.)

-Availability of upstairs living space would make downtown buildings easier to sell. It would give the new owners more rental income or, if the business downstairs was also changing hands and the new owners were from out of town, it would give them a place to live.

-People living upstairs would serve as an "alarm" in case of break-ins or fire.

-It would relieve the presumed shortage of apartments in Cass City and also make use of what is presently in many buildings, wasted space.

While I'm on the topic of downtown, let me add that I'm sorry to see what is happening here, which is the spreading out of the shopping district.

When I came here, less than two years ago, everything was within five blocks (excluding supermarkets). For those not within walking distance of downtown, everything was still within walking distance of wherever they parked their car.

But if the Pinney State Bank someday uses its property at the corner of Sherman and Main for a new bank building, the Saturday morning go-to-town scenario might be like this:

First stop, Pinney bank. Then get into the car and park near Seeger Street for shopping in "old downtown." Then get back in the car and drive to one of the new stores, on the west edge of town.

Admittedly a cynical viewpoint, but I don't consider a "downtown" more than four-fifths of a mile long as progress.

Trees are big energy savers

You probably never thought of trees, hedges or ivy as energy savers or that they could put money in your pocket. Research, however, has shown that these items, properly planted, can produce energy savings of ten to thirty percent.

Shade trees are major energy savers. On a sunny, 80° day, shade trees can reduce a home's inside temperature by as much as eight degrees! Natural cooling such as this means less hours or even days that your air conditioner has to operate. With today's utility rates, that can mean big dollar savings during the summer months.

GHOSTLY EXPERIENCE -- Government official Jay Richez (foreground) doesn't get a friendly reception when he tells the residents of the retirement home for ghosts they will have to leave. If the book thrown by Lori Mandich misses, Miles Thorp will make sure his shot doesn't miss. "Your Guests are Ghosts" is the name of the Owendale-Gagetown High School junior class play to be presented at 7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in the Gagetown gym. Senior citizens will be admitted free.

Local ambulance service short of volunteers

The Cass City Area Ambulance Service is facing anew old problem -- lack of enough volunteers, either certified emergency medical technicians or those willing to take the EMT course.

The brighter news at the Monday night meeting of the ambulance board was presentation of a check for $916 from Cass City teachers and one for $166 from Tuscola County REACT.

Ideally, a minimum of 16 EMTs are needed so that none have to be on stand-by duty too many hours a week, according to Jack McDaniel, co-operator of the ambulance service.

At present, there are five EMTs (plus two drivers) and two will be leaving, one because she is pregnant and one because he is moving.

For the EMT class starting at Hills and Dales General Hospital April 16, only nine or 10 have signed up, one of which is McDaniel.

In contrast, the Bingham Township Ambulance Service (Uby) will have about 20 graduates from its EMT class in about a month. The class started last October.

The Cass City class will run Monday and Wednesday nights, four hours a night, for 17 weeks. There will also be two all-day Saturday sessions. Instructor will be Sally Eyer, an EMT for the Cass City ambulance. There is space for 25 enrollees.

The two night a week sessions are necessary, McDaniel said, because as of July 1, the ambulance service won't have enough EMTs to be in compliance with state regulations. Since the EMT class will not have graduated by then, an exemption has been attained.

The need for EMTs will be even more acute come Jan. 1, McDaniel said, when the law requires two EMTs to go on ambulance runs. Only one has to go now.

EMTs are paid by the ambulance service. $7.50 per run plus $5 per hour beyond the first hour. Driver-attendants get $5 per run plus $5 for each additional hour.

Persons interested in taking the EMT course can contact McDaniel at 872-3353 (home) or 872-2101 (work) or

Mrs. Eyer at 872-4403.

The check for $916, proceeds from the Cass City teachers' auction March 25, was presented to the ambulance board by Dale McIntosh and Dick and Pam Roth.

The check for $166, raised at a raffle March 17, was presented by Tuscola County REACT President Ron Voss of Deford and his wife. REACT is a citizens band radio group that monitors emergency channel 9.

Of the donated money, according to Jack Gallagher, ambulance board chairman and Elkland township supervisor, $400 will be used to buy an inverter to convert from 12 volts to 110 volts inside the ambulance.

That will enable such hospital equipment as an incubator (during transfer of a baby to another hospital) or a heart monitor (for transferring heart patients) inside the ambulance.

The rest of the money will be used to buy two papers for EMTs or driver-attendants. The ambulance service presently has five of the units.

Cass City Area Ambulance Service, which started operation Jan. 3, receives a subsidy from the four townships it serves, Elkland, Novesta, Evergreen and Greenleaf.

Corrion has low bid on four drains

John Corrion of Pigeon was low bidder on four of five drain projects in northern Tuscola and southern Huron county for which bids were opened Friday.

Tuscola County Drain Commissioner Edward Goodchild said Monday the bids were being reviewed and provided they meet specifications, will be awarded some time this week.

The drainage work consists of cleaning, deepening and widening, along with some bridge and farm crossing construction. There will be no straightening. The work is to start as soon as weather permits, Goodchild said, and is to be completed by the end of the year.

On the Columbia Drain,

Corrion was lowest of two bidders at $49,869. For the Columbia Extension and Branch No. 1 Drain, he was lowest of three at $79,154. The drains are in Brookfield, Sebawaing, and Grant townships in Huron county; Elmwood and Elkland in Tuscola. Total length for the three is 13.68 miles.

For the Brookfield and Brookfield Extension Drains in Brookfield, Elmwood and Elkland townships, a total of 7.43 miles, Corrion was lowest of two bidders at $99,816.

The Carlton Drain in Sebawaing, Brookfield, Columbia and Elmwood townships, 5.5 miles long, had five contractors bidding. Corrion was lowest at $73,664.

Don Tietz of Sebawaing was lowest of seven bidders on the Haldydz McNeil Drain in Elmwood township. He bid $37,260 for the 3.8 mile project.

On the inter-county drains, the contractor has to supply the pipe for farm crossings and bridges. The McNeil Drain was the only in-county project, for which the Drain Commissioner has to supply the pipe. Beach Manufacturing of Charlotte, Mich., was lowest of five bidders for that at $5,969.

Goodchild said the McNeil Drain bid came in under the amount estimated by the engineers for the project. Bids on the other projects were about 1 percent over the estimates.

Property owners who will be assessed for the drain projects can find out the amount they will be paying at the day of review in Goodchild's office in the courthouse annex, Caro, from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Tuesday, April 24. Those affected have been notified by letter of the review date, Goodchild said.

The assessments will first appear on their December tax bills.

Two sentenced to state prison

Two persons received prison sentences Monday when they appeared before Circuit Judge Martin E. Clements.

William Juhasz, 19, of Frankfort Road, Caro, was sentenced to 18-24 months in the State Prison of Southern Michigan at Jackson for attempted felonious assault. He was credited with time already served.

He pleaded guilty to the charge Feb. 5, in connection with his having fired a .22 caliber rifle shot near the feet of his father-in-law, Roy Fritz Sr., Nov. 18, outside Juhasz' mobile home.

Timothy P. Walker, 36, of Hurds Corner Road, Caro, was sentenced to 1½-4 years in Jackson prison for felonious assault. He was credited with time already served.

A Circuit Court jury found him guilty of the charge Feb. 15, in connection with an assault with a rifle on a woman in Wells township Aug. 11, 1978.

Last Wednesday during a Circuit Court trial, Judge Norman A. Baguley granted a prosecution motion for dismissal of a charge of unlawful sexual conduct against William Gandert III, 24, of Clare.

Assistant Prosecutor Kathleen Boyle said she moved for dismissal after the complaining witness changed her story on the witness stand from what she had said previously.

The alleged illegal incident supposedly took place July 17 in Koylton township.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE.

FIVE YEARS AGO

The possibility of an employee walkout at Hills and Dales General Hospital began to loom larger as negotiations toward a new contract between local 2642 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees and the hospital board bogged down.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Shagena marked their 40th wedding anniversary.

The couple make their home in rural Ubyly.

Over 500 teenagers are already signed up and knocking on doors to walk in the Teen Ranch Walk-a-thon. Teens throughout the Thumb Area are raising sponsors at $1.00 per mile for the 20 mile walk.

TEN YEARS AGO

Four of six area townships increased salaries for township officials at meetings held in the various town halls.

Brewster Shaw Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Shaw of Cass City, was awarded a Master of Science in engineering Mechanics by the University of Wisconsin.

Donald H. Swallow of Kingston was among the 51 graduating State troopers of the Michigan State Police. He has been assigned to the Ithaca State Police post.

Eighty-six of the 107 Cass City seniors plan a five-day jaunt to New York City, visiting Fifth Avenue, Cathedral of St. John the Divine, the United Nations Building, Radio City Music Hall, Chinatown, and others.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Qualified electors of school district number five, Cass City Public Schools, will have an opportunity to discuss the proposed bond issue for an addition to the grade school at a special meeting slated at the Cass City High School auditorium.

New officers for the Cass City Rotary Club were elected. Heading the organization will be Fritz Neitzel, vice-president, Dr. Delbert Rawson, secretary, Jack Hullen, treasurer, Al Stevens, and sergeant-at-arms, Cliff Ryan.

A fire of unknown origin, burned the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wood for the ground although most of the contents were removed.

The assessed valuation of Cass City dropped approximately $59,000 this year, according to a report submitted to the Cass City Village Council by Harold Jackson, village assessor.

Barn owl sightings needed

The Department of Natural Resources is conducting a census of the state's barn owls -- and it needs help.

John Lerg, the DNR's endangered species program assistant coordinator, says the barn owl was fairly common in the state during the 1930s and 1940s, but declined drastically since then, and is now listed as a threatened species in the state.

"Small towns and family farms years ago provided barn owls with their favorite nesting places in church towers, silos and barns," Lerg explained. "The birds are vanishing now, as the Michigan countryside changes."

The barn owl, sometimes called monkey-faced owl, stands approximately 16 inches tall, has a creamy white, heart-shaped face patch, long legs, and black eyes.

"This owl should not be confused with the smaller screech owl," he pointed out. "The screech owl is gray or reddish-brown, stands about eight inches tall, has yellow eyes, short legs, and ear tufts."

Plans to help the species will require observations of barn owls to determine their numbers in Michigan, whether they are nesting, and their location, Lerg says.

The public can report observations of barn owls to the DNR's Wildlife Division, Box 30028, Lansing 48909. Exact location of the owls is not needed, but include your name and address so the DNR can contact you later for more information.

Animal group petitions county board

The recently organized Protective Animal Welfare Society of Tuscola county presented petitions to the county Board of Commissioners last Wednesday asking that shipment of dogs from the county animal shelter by private dealers be stopped. The dealers sell some of them to laboratories for experimental purposes.

PAWS President Sue Maxwell of Caro presented the petitions, which bore 527 names. Her group prefers that excess animals at the shelter be disposed of by use of a chemical drug injection.

The request was referred to committee for study. PAWS will next meet Thursday, April 12, at 7:30 p.m. in the basement of the county jail.

Also referred to committee was the request of Prosecutor Artis Noel that he be allowed to hire an additional assistant prosecutor. There presently are three assistants, one of whom works mainly in the cooperative reimbursement program to make negligent fathers pay child support.

Don't change ban on throwaways

"Don't change it," is Ephraim Knight's reaction to the soon-to-be underway petition drive to repeal Michigan's four-month-old ban on non-returnable soft drink and beer containers.

The executive director of the Associated Food Dealers of Michigan, Ed Deeb, said March 25 that official announcement of the petition drive, aimed at getting the repeal on the ballot in 1980, would be announced in three weeks. His organization will be providing $10,000 to aid the drive.

"Every spring, I used to pick up three bags (of bottles and cans) in front of my farm," Knight said in support of the ban on throwaways. "This spring, I didn't pick up a dozen."

He feels the next step in the clean-up process should be getting fast food restaurants to get rid of their throwaway soft drink cups and napkins that he finds alongside the road.

"I always took an inventory of what I picked up and there were just as many pop bottles as beer bottles," he said of when non-returnables were legal. The split between bottles and cans was also about 50-50.

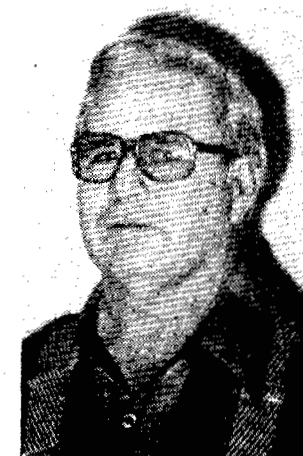

Now that there is a deposit on each container, he has seen people stop their cars and pick up bottles and cans along the road in order to get the money for them.

He and his wife, Mary Ann, don't drink much soft drinks, so returning the containers hasn't been a problem.

"I can see where merchants are inconvenienced," he added, "but if you want a nice road side, you have to have a little inconvenience."

The Knights live on S. Elkton Road, Grant township. They have two children, both married, and three grandchildren. In addition to farming, Knight has been township treasurer for 23 years.

John Bush top carrier

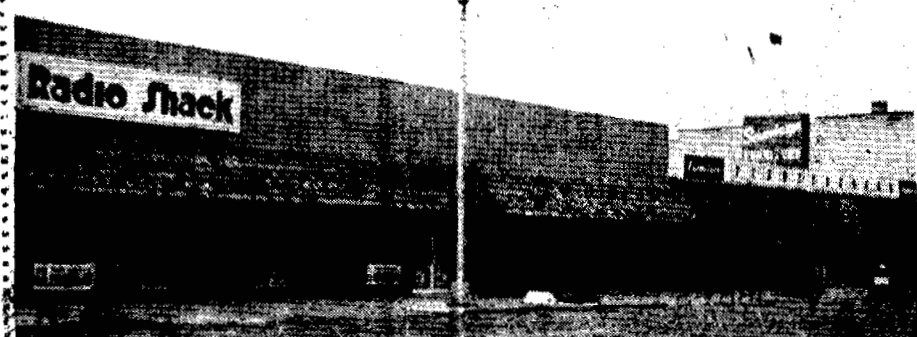

John Bush, 12, has been named Detroit Free Press district carrier of the month of February, based on prompt payment of his bill, new sales and good customer service.

John is the son of David and Barbara Bush, 4606 N. Seeger Street and has 52 customers in the northern half of Cass City. He has been a carrier since September.

The district from which he was named top carrier consists of part of Tuscola and Huron counties.

Lutherans set Holy Week services

Holy Week services at Good Shepherd Lutheran church will begin Palm Sunday, April 8, when the Sunday School children will sing special songs during the morning worship hour.

Maundy Thursday, April 12, a potluck supper will begin in the fellowship hall at 6:30 p.m. and a special communion service will be held in the church.

Good Friday, a special worship service will be held starting at 1:30.

A sunrise service at 7:00 a.m. will be held Easter Sunday. The youth group will serve breakfast. The regular 9:30 worship service will be highlighted with music by the junior and senior choirs.

Lenten services have been held each Wednesday evening.

Bessie Woods dies at 87 in Bay City

Bessie Woods of Gagetown, formerly of Owendale, died March 29, at the Samaritan Hospital in Bay City after an illness of four days.

She was born May 13, 1891 in Oak Hill, Ohio, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stroth.

Miss Stroth married William Woods in 1911, in Oak Hill. In 1942, they moved to Owendale from Oak Hill. Woods passed away in April, 1963.

Mrs. Woods attended the Gagetown Nazarene church. She is survived by three sons, Roy Woods of River Rouge, Clyde Woods of Dearborn Heights and Jerry Woods of Taylor; two daughters, Mrs. Juanita Warack of Gagetown and Mrs. George (Ruth) McKay of Wyandotte; three half brothers, Ralph Woodruff and Cleo Woodruff, both of Oak Hill, and Newt Woodruff of Omar, W. Va.; 34 grandchildren, and 64 great-grandchildren. Five sons, two daughters and one sister preceded her in death.

Funeral services for Mrs. Woods were conducted Sunday afternoon from Little's Funeral Home, Cass City, with Rev. Harry Capps, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Cass City, officiating.

Burial was in Grant cemetery, Huron county.

CCHS

Congratulations to the cast members of "Rock-N-Roll." All the hard work and extra hours put in at school sure paid off... the play was a great success!!!

A last call for driver education registration forms has been announced. Students must turn in their forms to Mr. Carroll or Mr. Stickle by Friday, April 6.

Career day was held Wednesday at CCHS. Students chose four different careers and talked to local people who are currently involved in that job. Careers such as nursing, secretarial, Army, Navy, mechanics, broadcasting (radio and TV), modeling, medicine, etc.

The Boys' Varsity Club sponsored the Cass City vs. Caro Faculty basketball game last Wednesday. Over 300 people attended the game as the Cass City teachers crushed Caro, 102-82. Next year, the Hawks will travel to Caro.

Wednesday, April 4, the Cass City Faculty will take on the mighty seniors at 7:30 in the Cass City High School gym. Don't miss the fun!

INTERMEDIATE

Monday, a play, "Sara Crewe - the Orphan Princess," written by Francis Hodgson Burnett, was held for the Jr. High, Campbell, Evergreen and Deford students. The play was presented by the Detroit Youth Theater and the Cass City Arts council. The performers were from the Repertory Theater of New York.

CAMPBELL

The Campbell Elementary school held their first tornado drill last Wednesday. After school, Mr. Frank Kroswek, Tuscola County Civil Defense Director, met with all teachers and aides and showed a film on "Tornadoes." He explained what types of clouds can develop into tornadoes. He toured the building and explained that with the new addition, there are much safer places to go during a severe weather alert.

School Scribbles

By Diane McAlpine

like to remind all parents who have children eligible to start school this fall that pre-kindergarten round-up will be held next week, April 10 and 11 at 6:30 p.m. in the Campbell gym.

Boys in grades 1, 2 and 3 are invited to participate in "Biddy Basketball." It is an introduction to basketball fundamentals, instructed by Varsity Basketball Coach, Ron Nurnberger. Biddy Basketball will be held Saturday, May 5, 12, and 19 from 10:30 a.m. to 12 noon. Come and join the fun.

The elementary staff is doing a study on social science programs. So far, it has been narrowed down to three companies. Silver Burdett and Scott Foresman have done presentations. After Easter vacation, the Ginn Co. will present their program. Then a final decision will be made.

Miss Bruner's first grade class is doing a study on Florida. Mrs. Bouck, a student's mother, came to the class to share some home movies about their recent trip to Florida. Beth Powell also has been to Florida this winter and the two girls are sharing their pictures, experiences, souvenirs, shells, fruits, etc. with the rest of the class.

DEFORD

The third graders have been learning the parts of a letter and how to address an envelope correctly. The students have written letters to friends and relatives in many cities and states and are anxiously awaiting answers. They also talked about the post office and the many workers who help our letters reach their destination.

Robert Venema, from the fourth grade room has left to go to Holland for a three-week trip to visit his grandparents and other relatives.

The children enjoyed the play at the Intermediate School Monday morning. The performance was terrific.

EVERGREEN

Mrs. Rose's second graders have been working on suffix endings. They have been working with changing "y" to "i" and adding the ending.

The third graders have been working on prefixes as well as suffix endings.

Miss Kilmer's third and fourth graders have been working on the study of planets in science and finding it very interesting. Penmanship has also been a main factor. Everyone has earned a certificate for perfect penmanship. They have been working very hard and can see a great deal of improvement.

Each day the students are watching for new signs of spring and reporting them to class.

COUNTDOWN

As of Thursday, April 5, there are 38 scheduled days of school left!!!

District BPW meet at Davison

The Business and Professional Women's meeting of District 11 was held Sunday at Davison. The meeting started with dinner at 1:30 followed by the business meeting.

Mrs. Verna Mae MacRae, of the local club, was installing officer for the meeting. Retiring officers included two local club members, Mrs. Martha Putnam, district director, and Beverly Hurley, treasurer. The new district director is Ruth McConnell of Caro.

Selected as "young careerist" from five candidates was Carol Roudier of Lapeer. She will be a contestant at the state convention in May at Dearborn.

Eleven members of the local club attended the meeting including Mable Wright, Martha Putnam, Theda Seeger, Betty Jo Agar, Gerry Fischer, Verna Mae MacRae, Normalene McIntosh, Gloria Hartwick, Leota Anthes, Clara Gaffney and Beverly Hurley.

Young singers at Mizpah church Sunday

The Mizpah Missionary church, 4631 N. Van Dyke Road, Cass City, is sponsoring a singing youth group Sunday morning.

The group of 14 gospel singers comes from the United Brethren in Christ church of Bridgeport. Under the leadership of Gary Vanderveen, it is known as "The Lord's Express."

They will take part in the Sunday School program at 10 a.m. and have charge of the morning service at 11. Everyone is welcome.

Lutheran women plan events

An evening rally and a two-day retreat are on the April calendar of the Thumb Zone of the Lutheran Women's Missionary League.

The annual Spring Rally to be held at Peace Lutheran church, Sandusky, April 17 will have Rev. Edward Azam as guest speaker sharing experiences of his ministry as institutional chaplain of the Flint Area.

The rally begins at 6:30 p.m. with registration and opening devotions led by the host pastor, Rev. Ocie Behringer. A short business meeting will be held following Rev. Azam's presentation.

A quilt made for Bethesda Lutheran Home by the district officers will be on display and serve as a collection center for gifts to Bethesda.

"Involved? or Involved?" will be the theme of the April 25-26 zone retreat at Lake Huron Methodist Camp at Jeddo, near Lexington.

Rev. Gordon Light, pastor at Cross of Christ Lutheran church, Bloomfield Hills, has been invited to be keynote speaker and Bible study leader. Mrs. Dennis Glander will also be a study leader.

The program also includes small group discussions, singing, fellowship and a Bible book store. An informal communion service will conclude the retreat.

Registration should be made by April 17 and sent to Mrs. Earl Wagner, 1300 N. Gates St., Sandusky 48471. Cost is $17 for the two days and $9 for one day.

IT'S THE ELECTION OF THE YEAR!

WINNERS WILL VISIT...

Plus many other surprises!

FILL OUT THIS ENTRY TODAY!

A. Election is open to any boy or girl, age 10 through 14 years. Boys and girls who receive the highest number of votes in each store will win. B. Vote for your favorite boy or girl by writing his or her name on the back of each gold cash register tape you receive at all participating stores. C. The number of votes on each tape is determined by the total purchase shown on it. Your candidate will receive one vote for each 10¢ purchase. For example, a $10 purchase shown on your gold cash register tape would be worth 100 votes for your favorite boy or girl. (Beer, wine or cigarettes are not included in eligible purchases). D. Votes (tapes and bonus vote forms) must be placed in the official ballot box in each store in order to be counted. Each store will post the number of winners it is sponsoring in the store. E. Votes are not transferable between stores and all candidates must be registered by the end of the 4th contest week. F. "Jet Journey" elections will start the week of April 2, and close Saturday, May 26, 1979. Election is not open to children or employees of the participating store owners and employees; nor personnel of any agency or supplier which services or sells to the store. G. The decision of sponsoring stores in judging the winners are final. Sponsoring store management is solely responsible for tie-breaking procedures and any prize other than the posted decision tape.

Owen Pierce takes course in management

Owen Pierce, 4721 Seeger St., Cass City, third shift supervisor, General Cable Corporation, completed the Unit I course Friday in Wittenberg University's Management Development Program. The university is located in Springfield, Ohio. The series of five-day on-campus courses are designed to strengthen the management competency and provide new insights into the management functions of supervisory personnel in industry. The courses concentrate in four areas - behavioral studies and motivation, communications and leadership, management functions and methods, and economics and personnel relations. During the past 27 years, more than 975 different companies representing a wide variety of industrial, commercial and medical concerns have released over 18,000 supervisors from their normal responsibilities and sponsored their participation in the management program.

There has been considerable publicity about the advantages of alfalfa seed coated with a liming material. The word I have from Michigan State University is they have not seen any conclusive research that shows any advantage or disadvantage to planting lime-coated alfalfa seed.

I have heard grower comments as to what they have observed on their alfalfa fields where they have planted this coated seed. However, no one left a check strip in his field where non-coated alfalfa seed of the same variety was planted, so they really did not have anything to use as a standard for comparison.

My comments are that if you plant lime-coated alfalfa seed, do the following: Be sure there is adequate lime in the soil to insure the critical calcium needed. A soil P-H level of at least 6.5 should be had. Secondly, leave a check strip as a basis for comparison.

I would be most hesitant in trying to establish an alfalfa seeding on soil of 6.6 P-H or lower. This is because alfalfa does not grow well and stands die out on low calcium soils. Low calcium level soils have low P-H and are referred to as acid soils. The lower the P-H number below 7.0, the more acid the soil will be.

It is possible for an alfalfa seedling germinating from a lime coated seed to have a better start on acid soils. However, the larger plant may not have sufficient soil calcium to grow thrifty enough to maintain its vigor. In other words, it always pays to lime a legume soil when soil tests say so.

Did you know there is a Michigan regulation that red oak and elm firewood must be burned by April 1 of each year unless you store it as follows?: The bark of both woods must be removed when storing between April 1 and Sept. 15. The second storing alternative for red oak is if the oak has wilted on the stumps after July 1 and is cut into firewood during the winter, it may be kept that following summer if it is wrapped securely in four mil plastic from April 15 to July 1. This second alternative applies only to red oak and not elm.

The best alternative is to debark your red oak and elm firewood right after you cut the tree down.

Road group meeting on Monday

Citizens for Decent Road Conditions (CDRC) have scheduled a meeting Monday in the Caro High School cafeteria, starting at 7:30 p.m.

Written invitations have been sent to the three members of the Tuscola County Road Commission, Road Commission engineer Robert Wellington, and the seven members of the county Board of Commissioners asking them to come to the meeting to answer questions from the public.

The group is conducting a petition drive in support of an elected Road Commission. A proposal to do that would have to be put on the ballot by the county Board of Commissioners, who presently appoint the Road Commission members.

Sally Wood, one of the CDRC organizers, said her group is hoping to present its petitions to the county commissioners at the meeting.

The group's first meeting, March 26, at Caro High School, drew about 150 persons from all townships in the county.

It's when people do not know how to play, that they forget how to think and how to live.

HEALTH TIPS

Vaccinations give disease protection

By Frank Chappell,
American Medical Association

Vaccines are now available against a variety of infectious diseases. Most youngsters are started on their preventive medicine route at around two months of age with immunizations against four different childhood diseases.

Diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis (whooping cough), known as DPT, is given in one dose combining all three at age two months up to the seventh birthday, says an immunization pamphlet from the American Medical Association.

Usually three doses are administered, at age 2, 4 and 6 months, with a fourth dose at 18 months. Booster doses are recommended for children 4 to 6 years, with one DPT injection before entering school. Adults should have tetanus and diphtheria boosters every 10 years.

DPT vaccine has been used since the early 1950s and is highly effective. Diphtheria is still a threat to the unvaccinated, and can result in paralysis, heart failure or death. Whooping cough continues to occur in the unvaccinated, especially infants less than a year old. Untreated, it can cause brain damage.

A person without tetanus immunization can become seriously ill if the spores get into a puncture wound. Physicians recommend booster shots every ten years throughout the life span.

The Sabin oral vaccine against polio is administered by mouth on a lump of sugar or in sweet liquid. It is given in two doses, at 2 and 4 months of age, with another dose at 18 months and a booster before entry to school.

Adults subject to unusual risk of polio should receive two doses of Sabin oral vaccine 6 to 8 weeks apart, followed by a third dose in eight to 12 months. Routine immunization of adults in the United States is not recommended.

Livestock 4-H Expo in August

The new Michigan 4-H Livestock Expo Aug. 20-23 at Michigan State University will be the place to be for 4-H members and leaders who like fun and livestock, according to Tuscola County 4-H Youth Agent Bernard Jardt.

The Expo reaches past the show ring and exhibition hall. There will be fun, learning, and prizes available for everyone interested in livestock whether they own an animal or not.

Scholarships of up to $1000 and educational trips can be won by participants in the Expo's "Trifecta," which features nine competitions within three major livestock categories - showmanship, judging, and communications. To be eligible for trifecta awards, participants must compete in at least four competitions within two of the three major categories.

To keep the emphasis on youth education, some unusual approaches will be used. For instance, once the animals arrive on campus, the 4-H members will be totally responsible for all hands-on care, fitting, and showing. There will be no auction of the market animals but there will be scholarships of up to $500 for champions and reserve champions in beef, sheep, and swine.

A number of just-for-fun events are also being planned, including a bale toss, egg throw, and a milk drinking contest.

New books at the library

THE RAILWAY KING, by Margaret Mayhew (fiction). Born into poverty in the Yorkshire countryside, Kirby craved wealth. He and the railroad empire he built thrived in the high-pressure world of ruthless competition. When a dying man's request made him guardian to a stern, plain Quaker girl, Kirby smiled to think how indignant she'd be to find herself the ward of a selfish tycoon. But young Hester proved too independent to accept Kirby's domination, and her role in his life grew more complicated and important than he would ever have imagined.

HOMEOWNER'S GUIDE TO LANDSCAPE DESIGN, by Timothy M. Michel (non-fiction). Other books are more detailed and approach landscapes with more sophistication, but Michel's book is excellent for those owners of newly built homes who might be overwhelmed by all the landscaping they must do. His drawings are simple, and his advice is stripped to the bone — just right for those who need definitions for site features, earth forms, elevation, and so on. A brief chapter deals with mobile home and condominium landscaping.

ADVENTURES OF A BYSTANDER, by Peter F. Drucker (non-fiction). From his privileged childhood in Vienna to his early days in this country, Drucker has rubbed shoulders with eminent men. Here he sets them down in meaty portraits: Sigmund Freud, Henry Luce, the eccentric Polanyi family, IBM's Tom Watson, banker Ernest Freedberg, Alfred Sloan, the Nazi butcher Reinhold Hensch, Marshall McLuhan, Fritz Kraemer ("the man who invented Kissinger"). The same qualities of mind that made Drucker an authority on business management — he is critical, independent, forthright, even standoffish — make him an exceptional observer of the notable men and women whose paths have crossed his own.

VA spending up $3 million in Michigan

Veterans Administration expenditures in fiscal year 1978 in Michigan were up $3 million over 1977, according to Frank Kilcullen, VA regional office director in Detroit.

For direct benefit payments and hospital and regional office operating costs, the VA spent $564.156 million in Michigan last year.

In Tuscola county, the VA spent a total of $1.86 million; in Huron, $1.29 million, and in Sanilac, $1.18 million.

Direct payments to veterans and dependents for compensation and pensions amounted to $1.29 million in Tuscola; $894,247 in Huron, and $817,259 in Sanilac.

In Tuscola county, veterans taking G.I. Bill training or vocational rehabilitation received $440,603; in Huron, $304,490, and in Sanilac, $278,276.

Payments of insurance and indemnities amounted to $128,292 in Tuscola; $88,660 in Huron and $81,027 in Sanilac.

Lamotte fire leaves couple homeless

A fire Tuesday morning, March 27, left Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Moraniec of 4821 Downington Road, Lamotte township, at least temporarily homeless.

Township Fire Chief Art West said the fire started in the chimney, apparently from built-up creosote catching on fire. The chimney led to an oil furnace and wood burning stove.

Most of the damage was to the upper floor and attic of the home. There was also considerable water damage.

The fire started about 11 a.m. Firemen returned to the station at 1:20 p.m. They were assisted at the scene by firemen from Moore township.

Mr. and Mrs. Moraniec, who are retired, are temporarily staying with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Loeding and family on Deckerville Road, Evergreen township, pending a decision on what is to be done with their house, which partly depends on the insurance estimate for needed repairs.

BREAK-UP -- Cass City streets are in worse shape than usual after winter, according to Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie. Season nears for barbecues Buying a grill? There are a lot of choices to suit every need and lifestyle. Before you buy, heed these tips from the Barbecue Industry Association.

Be size wise. A hibachi's perfect for small-scale cookouts. But when crowds or appetites are big, a large brazier kettle, or wagon type grill's for you.

Food for thought. Steaks, burgers, hot dogs? Most any grill will do. For turkey, roasts, other large cuts of meat, choose a grill with attached rotisserie.

Where will you grill? If right,...

backpacking or picnicking's your thing, go for a small, lightweight, easy-to-carry grill. For backyard barbecues, a wagon-type grill complete with warming oven or a covered cooker with a spit is on target.

What's in store? When cookout time's over, you should store your grill in a dry, covered area. Then it'll be ready next time you're raring to go for something well-done or rare.

NO COMPROMISE

It's human to think that if we do it, it can't be wrong -- if others do it, it can't be right.

Part of the problem, both he and Huron County Health Department nurse Mary Jo Farmer indicated, is that present school records only list the year students received their shots, not the month and not how many shots were received in the year.

Parents should be receiving notice if their children need booster shots.

In Owendale-Gagetown, high school Principal James Barr said, all student records are presently being checked. Parents will receive a letter if their children need to have their records updated and/or receive vaccinations.

Children as young as two months old can start receiving required vaccinations.

The sequence is as follows:

The first time, the child receives a DPT shot (diphtheria, pertussis and tetanus) and oral polio vaccine. Two months later comes another DPT shot and oral polio vaccine. Two months after that comes a third DPT shot. One year later comes another DPT shot and oral polio vaccine.

Only one shot is needed for protection against measles and rubella and if a preschooler, protection against mumps is included in the same shot. The shot can be given any time after the child is 15 months old.

Children who received the shot that young are probably in grades 6-8, it being later discovered that the vaccination isn't effective when children are one year old or less. Measles inoculations aren't given now until children are at least 15 months old.

After the initial sequence, all that is required in the future is a DPT shot once every 10 years.

Parents can take their children to their family physician for the shots and polio vaccine or to their county health department.

The Tuscola County Health Department holds its immunization clinics at its office on M-81, west of Caro, every Thursday from 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 1-3:30 p.m., with the afternoon session on the first Thursday of each month running until 7:30. Call first for an appointment.

It is also conducting Sunday clinics in various parts of the county. One such clinic was held at Kingston High School Sunday. Mrs. Malone said a clinic may be held in Cass City in May.

The Sanilac County Health Department holds its clinics in its office at 115 N. Elk Street, Sandusky, twice a month, from 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. Clinics this month will be April 10 and 18. Those whose last name starts with A-M should attend the first day; N-Z on the second.

The Huron County Health Department, which had been running clinics twice a month, is now conducting them every Tuesday because of the "rush." Hours are 9-11 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. Its office is in the county building in Bad Axe.

Health department immunizations are given free.

as to whether they want to continue.

Her children also had to assume a lot of responsibility inside the house, such as cooking meals, canning, washing clothes and cleaning. "I have to praise the Lord I have beautiful children. They assumed responsibilities. If it weren't for them, I don't think I would have made it."

Of her 14 children, ages 9 to 28, four are still at home, Mary, 9, Patrick, 10, Matthew, 16, and Laura, 17. Six are married and she has six grandchildren.

"Home" is an old stone farmhouse at English and Bevins Roads.

WHEN MS. CHERNIAWSKI, her then husband, Alex -- their divorce became final in 1976 -- and family moved there in 1965, they had 80 acres and lots of mouths to feed.

Cherniawski had an off-the-farm job so Ms. Cherniawski and her children went into the truck farming business, both to feed themselves and for income.

They grew mostly pickles, sweet corn, and berries, which were sold at the Eastern Market in Detroit. For her and one child, that meant leaving at 1:30-2 a.m. to get to Detroit, usually three days a week from July to October, while the rest of the family stayed home to tend the crops and pick another truckload to go to market.

"It's been a good experience," Ms. Cherniawski said of her farming days, both for her and her children. It enabled them to spend a lot of time together and taught the children to assume responsibility.

The truck gardening has slackened off the last few years and last summer she and-or her children only went to the Eastern Market two or three times a week for about two months.

Last fall, she (herself) planted most of her 80 acres in wheat. The future of the farming, she indicated, will mainly be up to her children and sometimes part-time until February of this year, when she got the job at Oakdale.

The first year of college proved too much. The difficult nursing program, raising a family, an operation, strains in her marriage, work. She contracted tuberculosis, which she feels was partly due to the strain, and didn't go to school for a year.

She decided not to continue the nursing program and graduated from Delta in May, 1974 with an associate of arts degree.

She then started at Saginaw Valley, majoring in social work and minoring in psychology.

STILL, IT WASN'T EASY. There were times when she dropped out but a letter or phone call from someone offering encouragement got her back to school.

Her deep religious faith helped. "I always had a faith and trust in God."

There were also her chil-

Of her 14 children, ages 9 to 28, four are still at home, Mary, 9, Patrick, 10, Matthew, 16, and Laura, 17. Six are married and she has six grandchildren.

"Home" is an old stone farmhouse at English and Bevins Roads.

WHEN MS. CHERNIAWSKI, her then husband, Alex -- their divorce became final in 1976 -- and family moved there in 1965, they had 80 acres and lots of mouths to feed.

Cherniawski had an off-the-farm job so Ms. Cherniawski and her children went into the truck farming business, both to feed themselves and for income.

They grew mostly pickles, sweet corn, and berries, which were sold at the Eastern Market in Detroit. For her and one child, that meant leaving at 1:30-2 a.m. to get to Detroit, usually three days a week from July to October, while the rest of the family stayed home to tend the crops and pick another truckload to go to market.

"It's been a good experience," Ms. Cherniawski said of her farming days, both for her and her children. It enabled them to spend a lot of time together and taught the children to assume responsibility.

Laura Cherniawski of Kingston

Starting over at 48 -- Mother of 14 gets degree and job

Laura Cherniawski has toyed with the idea of writing a book about her experiences.

It would make quite a story. At age 48, the divorced mother of 14 children and ex-vegetable grower earned her college degree and is starting a new career.

The Kingston area resident received a B.A. degree from Saginaw Valley State College in December. About five weeks ago, she started working as a program monitor at Oakdale Center, a state home for the mentally retarded in Lapeer.

It was in 1970 that Ms. Cherniawski started her college career, enrolling in the nursing program at Delta College. "I stayed home about 20 years before I decided to go to school."

The year before, she started working as a nurse's aide at Marlette Community Hospital, hence her decision to go into nursing. She continued working as an aide there, sometimes full-time and sometimes part-time until February of this year, when she got the job at Oakdale.

The first year of college proved too much. The difficult nursing program, raising a family, an operation, strains in her marriage, work. She contracted tuberculosis, which she feels was partly due to the strain, and didn't go to school for a year.

She decided not to continue the nursing program and graduated from Delta in May, 1974 with an associate of arts degree.

She then started at Saginaw Valley, majoring in social work and minoring in psychology.

The truck gardening has slackened off the last few years and last summer she and-or her children only went to the Eastern Market two or three times a week for about two months.

Last fall, she (herself) planted most of her 80 acres in wheat. The future of the farming, she indicated, will mainly be up to her children and sometimes part-time until February of this year, when she got the job at Oakdale.

ing. "Mom" usually did her studying at school as once she got home, she found she didn't have much time for it.

HER NEW JOB AT THE Oakdale Center, which she started about five weeks ago, consumes about as much time as when she was going to school, but she prefers it over being a student. "It's just that I don't have to bring home-work home."

Ms. Cherniawski is a program monitor at the state institution. Her duty is to sort of serve as go-between between residents, direct care staff and the professional staff to ensure that the proper care programs are being carried out. "My job," she explained, "is to see that patients get better quality care."

It is a job that she is still getting used to. "I haven't been doing any hard physical work but I come home exhausted."

The position at Oakdale wasn't her first choice. She would have preferred to work for the Department of Social Services in either child protective services or foster care and hopes some day she may be able to do so.

"I've had a chance to grow up and reevaluate my life," Ms. Cherniawski said in looking back on her arduous college career. It has meant changes in some of her values, a different outlook, and more responsibility in having to make decisions herself.

"I'm more satisfied with what I'm doing now."

STILL STUDYING -- Laura Cherniawski is done studying schoolwork -- the 48-year-old mother of 14 earned her bachelor's degree in December -- but is still studying her catechism.

Electors okay raises for township officials

Presentation of annual budgets highlighted most township annual meetings Saturday, with roads taking the spotlight in a few. Some township board members received pay raises.

Turnout ranged from a low of two electors plus four board members in Greenleaf township to about 25 in a few townships.

Highlights in area townships are as follows:

TUSCOLA COUNTY

Ellington - The 1979-80 budget projects revenue of $43,210. Combined with the carryover from the last fiscal year, the township plans to spend $60,385 this year.

There is $30,000 budgeted for roads, but the township may not spend that much, according to Clerk Lona Wilson. It will spend at least $13,000.

Annual salaries were increased as follows: Supervisor, from $2,200 up to $2,420, plus from $1,980 up to $2,178 for assessing; clerk, from $2,310 to $2,541; treasurer, from $2,530 to $2,783, and trustees, from $284 to $290.

The township presently pays a "head tax" for each township resident to Cass City to enable them to use the village's landfill. The amount totals $3,200 a year and discussion was held about trying to find a less costly alternative. The township board will check into other possibilities.

Nine people were present plus board members.

Elmwood - The budget projects revenue of $61,000 and expenditures of $57,180.

There will be $20,000 of that spent for roads, plus an additional $5,000 in federal revenue sharing funds.

Salaries were increased as follows: Supervisor, from $4,800 to $5,000 plus $3,500 for assessing, and clerk and treasurer, each from $2,000 to $2,500. Trustees remained the same at $30 per meeting.

A resolution was approved commemorating former treasurer Royce Russell for the 18 years he served in that position.

The monthly board meeting date was changed from the first Monday to the third Wednesday of every other month, starting at 7:30 p.m. with the April 18 meeting.

Six residents and five board members attended.

Kington - The meeting drew 25 persons, most of whom were concerned about roads.

After some discussion, the budget was approved as presented, including $28,000 earmarked for roads and bridges. According to Clerk Victoria Wolak, most persons seemed satisfied with what is being done on the township level concerning roads.

The total budget calls for $77,518 in expenditures. Other large items are $16,000 for drains-at-large and $3,800 to buy property adjacent to the township hall (if possible) for parking.

Salary of the supervisor was increased from $3,504 to $4,000; clerk and treasurer from $2,004 to $2,300 each, and trustees from $20 per meeting to $25.

Novesta - Of the $60,000 budget, half is to be spent for roads. Fire protection will cost a projected $4,500.

Only the clerk and treasurer received raises, $250 each to $1,750.

Supervisor Bill O'Dell said there was a good discussion about roads, with an apparent majority in favor of electing the members of the county Road Commission.

Real estate broker Bill Zemke, representing the Novesta Church of Christ, offered its building for sale for use as a township hall and community building. Its present building is bordered by the township cemetery. The church will be constructing a new building. The proposal was turned over to the Planning Commission.

Fifteen persons attended, including board members.

SANILAC COUNTY

Argyle - Expenditures are projected at $61,725, with that coming from $31,614 in new revenue plus a carryover of $30,400 from last year.

There will be $21,000 spent for roads, $4,000 for drains-at-large and $3,000 for fire protection.

The supervisor got a raise from $600 to $1,200 annually. The $1,500 he will get for assessing is the same as last year. Pay for trustees was increased from $15 per meeting to $30. Salary for clerk and treasurer remained the same.

Twelve people attended. Austin - Expenses of $18,900 will include $4,000 for fire protection and $1,800 for ambulance service.

Salaries were changed for the supervisor, clerk and treasurer from per diem (for each day worked) to annual, with the total of $6,300 being $17 less than paid last year. The supervisor will get $2,400; clerk, $1,800, and treasurer, $2,100. Trustees will continue to get $20 per meeting.

In addition to the $20,000 for roads raised by the 2½ mills special levy, $6,500 in federal revenue sharing funds will be used for that purpose.

Eleven persons attended, including board members.

Evergreen - The five board members asked the 14 electors for either a pay increase or expenses.

The electors chose to pay expenses, 17 cents per mile for travel outside of the township, plus reimbursement for other costs, such as telephone calls.

The supervisor continues to get $2,000 annually ($1,200 plus $800 for assessing), clerk and treasurer, $1,000 each, and board members, $20 per meeting.

The total township budget of $44,000 includes $7,000 for road patching, $3,000 for brining and $12,000 for drains-at-large for the Stoney Creek Drain project.

The Rawson Memorial Library in Cass City and the village recreation program will each get $250.

Greenleaf - Of the $56,663 budgeted, $40,000 is earmarked for roads. The high amount is because of some road work budgeted for last year which wasn't completed, hence there is some carryover.

A new project, it was decided, will be rebuilding of two miles of Greenland Road north from M-81, provided the Sanilac County Road Commission can get to it this year.

Salary increases approved were $2,110 for the supervisor, up from $2,000; from $1,200 to $1,500 for the clerk, and from $1,300 to $1,800 for the treasurer. Trustees' pay remained the same at $25 per meeting.

Rawson Memorial Library will get $233; Cass City recreation, $100.

Lamotte - Of the $80,400 budget, $15,000 will go for paving Germania Road between Snover and Downing Roads. Another $15,000 will go for new bridge construction. The board has yet to decide which bridge. Brining will cost $4,500 and $3,000 will be spent for road patching.

Drains at large will consume $12,600.

Board members, who didn't get a pay raise last year, will get 20 percent this year. That means the supervisor will be getting $1,150 (plus $1,500 for assessing, a $500 increase), and clerk and treasurer, $1,680 each. Trustees will continue to get $350 annually, but they will now also get $7 per meeting attended.

Sixteen attended, including board members.

HURON COUNTY

Bingham - Total budget is $127,000, of which $58,000 will go for roads. Some of that will go for paving one mile of Jurgess Road north from Atwater Road and preparing the one mile north from there for paving. Graveling roads will cost $15,000.

Proposed for 1980 is grading and graveling one mile of Stambaugh Road and for 1980 or 1981, preparation of a third mile of Jurgess for paving.

Annual salaries were increased as follows: Supervisor, from $3,300 to $3,597; clerk, from $1,500 to $1,800 because of duties involving the ambulance service, and trustees, up $2.50 to $27.50 per meeting. The treasurer gets the 1 percent collection fee.

Twenty-six attended, including board members.

Brookfield - Of the $103,000 budget, $56,000 is to be spent for road construction - the township board has yet to decide which roads - and $21,000 for patching and grading.

Salaries remained the same.

It was announced that the new park commission has applied for a $30,000 federal grant. If the grant is received, the township will have to put up an equal amount, with the money to be used to purchase property for a park and some development.

Twenty-five people attended.

Grant - The $50,000 budget includes $30,000 for roads and $5,500 for fire protection.

The supervisor, clerk and treasurer each got $500 raises, to $2,500, $2,000 and $2,300 respectively. Trustees will continue to get $22.50 per meeting or $45 per day. Nine electors and three board members attended.

50 hear gifted child program

The Cass City branch of the American Association of University Women and the Cass City Parent Teachers' Organization sponsored a special meeting Tuesday, March 24, in the high school speech room.

About 50 parents, teachers and other interested persons attended.

The program explored the topic, "Challenging our Children," concentrating especially on the gifted students, and how they are being challenged and educated in schools today.

The speaker was Harriet O'Brien, special reading consultant for the Vassar school district. She was introduced by Kathleen O'Donnell, community education director for the Cass City schools.

Mrs. O'Brien explained new programs being planned in her school system. She also showed a film entitled "Shut up, Sit down, and Be Quiet!"

A discussion period followed the film.

Hostesses for the evening were Marianne Walpole, Trudy Muszynski, Bonnie Bruner, Barbara Tuckey, and Betty Murphy.

Committee recommends more affirmative action

A special House committee has recommended a new statute be enacted to compel state and local governments, state universities and state boards to maintain affirmative action employment for minorities and women.

Additionally, the report recommended that state universities be compelled to actively recruit and retain more minority students.

The special committee was formed last year after statistics were released indicating the state was behind in its affirmative action goals. The committee held hearings in each department of state government and on campuses of state colleges and universities.

Goals for minority and women's employment in state government were set in 1977 by the Michigan Equal Employment Opportunity Council at 14.5 percent minorities, 42.5 percent women and 11.5 percent handicappers.

Minority and women's employment, as of October, 1978, actually totalled 18.3 percent and 51.9 percent, respectively. However, minorities and women only account for about 16 percent of officials and administrators in state government.

The committee's final report also declared new minority personnel in various state departments often come from other departments instead of from outside state government.

The final report recommends a wide-sweeping bill to ensure that affirmative action plans be developed and followed by virtually every governmental unit in the state, including all units of local government, school districts, universities, junior college districts, commissions, boards, departments or any other body created by statute.

The bill would also require that all affirmative action plans be approved by the Civil Rights Commission and that the plan describe jobs available, minority populations and numerical goals for minority hiring.

Further, the report said as an incentive to minority and female owned businesses, the state should distribute a number of its purchase orders to those businesses. There was a caution the state should be careful to determine the businesses were legitimately owned by minorities and not operations with minority fronts.

Citing lower numbers of minorities enrolling in colleges, the report also calls for legislation to provide control over state colleges to ensure colleges will actively recruit and retain minority students.

INVESTIGATION URGED INTO INCREASING BEER-SOFT DRINK PRICES

The state's attorney general's office has been asked by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, one of the major supporters of the state's non-returnable bottle and can ban, to investigate beer and soft drink prices to see if higher prices are "politically motivated" to discourage other states from adopting similar bans.

Thomas Washington, executive director of MUCC, in making the requests of the attorney general's office, said since not all distributors have had to spend money to comply with the state law and since many distributors are gaining additional income from recycling, it is questionable whether any price increase due to the deposit law is justified.

Washington suggested that price hikes are designed to make the bottle ban, approved by the voters in 1976, appear ill-advised and unworkable. "This might discourage other states, as well as the U.S. Congress, from passing similar legislation in their jurisdictions," he suggested.

According to Washington, Michigan beer prices are reportedly higher than in neighboring states, but said prices remained competitive in Oregon and Vermont which also adopted bottle deposit laws. In Maine, which also has a deposit law, Washington said an attorney general's investigation resulted in a price decrease.

Returnable containers should be cheaper than non-returnable containers because of lower packaging costs, Washington maintained.

Chief Assistant Attorney General Stanley Steinborn said the department will have to examine the charges to see if there is an actual basis for an investigation. He said higher prices in one state may not be a crime. "If they want to charge $2 for a bottle of pop and people are willing to pay for it, then they can do it," Steinborn said.

Thefts, vandalism, shoplifting plague businesses in Kingston, Cass City

Replacement cost was estimated at $850 for windows at a Kingston business which were damaged by either BBs or pellets from a pellet gun.

A total of seven shots were made in five windows at Barden's Hardware on Washington Street. Three windows were 6-by-7-feet, one 4-by-5-feet and the other, 18-inches-by-6-feet.

The damage was discovered by store owners Donald and John Barden last Wednesday.

In investigating, Kingston police officer Thomas Kolb discovered other businesses had similar "bullet" holes but none of the incidents had been reported.

Cass City police were to seek warrants this week for four persons for shoplifting or related charges, after which names of non-juveniles could be released.

The first incident took place at 5 p.m. last Wednesday. Three youths, one 17, the other juveniles, were inside Kritzman's Clothing Store. While one of them was talking to clerk Donna Profit, the other two went out the back door. The third person then left, after which the clerk noticed a pair of shoes missing. They were valued at $28.

She ran outside and found the trio inside a car with the doors locked. The driver took off, with one of the occupants making an obscene gesture at Mrs. Profit.

She then contacted police.

Officer Donald Miller stopped a car matching the description on Pine Street. One of the occupants subsequently turned over the stolen shoes.

The second incident took place at Kristy's Kiosket Monday afternoon. Store owner Chris Hughes told police the woman to be charged with shoplifting had come into the store to pick up a box of large sugar Easter eggs, which had been on layaway.

The woman stopped by the front window and slipped into the box a ceramic doll which was on display. The doll was valued at $2.

The woman was in a car across the street when police arrived. She was informed of her legal rights, after which she got the box out of the trunk. Inside were the eggs and the doll.

A $300 air conditioner was stolen late Saturday or early Sunday from a window at Cass City Floral, 6450 Main Street.

Sheriff's Deputy Wayne Newton, working for the Cass City police, noticed the open and damaged window while on patrol at 10:45 Sunday morning.

The owner of the store, Warren A. Kelley, later told him the unit was taken some time after 5:30 p.m. Saturday. In addition to the loss of the air conditioner, damage to the window from which it was removed was estimated at $50.

The sixth or seventh armed robbery of a Tuscola county business this year took place at 2:05 a.m.

YOUTHFUL ENTERTAINMENT - Cass City school children in grades K-8 Monday saw the Detroit Youtheatre production of "Sara Crewe: The Orphan Princess," performed by the Performing Arts Repertory Theatre of New York City. The group performed the next day in Ubyl. The Michigan Council for the Arts finances the performances statewide, with the school district, Cass City Arts Council and American Association of University Women chapter sharing the cost locally.

Community booster

Comments to expand business

Editor's note: this is one of a series sponsored by the Cass City Chamber of Commerce about community boosters who are members of the organization.

Clare Comment and his wife, Jeanne, have been in business in Cass City only since Aug. 25, 1976, but his Cass City affiliation goes much farther than that.

Comment, a lifelong resident of the Gagetown area, is a graduate of Cass City High School and was a booster of the school before he entered business here.

The Comments own the Charmont, a 12-lane bowling alley with modern lounge and dining room.

Comment is now in the midst of an expansion. On the immediate agenda is an enclosed racquet ball court with facilities for sauna, whirlpool and exercise room. It will be started this summer.

In addition to his expansion in Cass City, the Comments are in partnership with Jim Bennett to erect a 16-lane alley in Sandusky, which will be completed in August.

Since moving into the business community, the Comments have been supporters of all efforts to improve the community.

The couple has three children, daughters, Lori and Lisa, and son, Todd, all students at Cass City High School.

Walbro declares 10¢ dividend

At their regular March meeting, the board of directors of Walbro Corporation declared a first quarter cash dividend of 10 cents a share on Walbro common stock.

This dividend is payable April 30 to stockholders of record, March 30.

The annual meeting of the company will be held at 11:00 a.m. April 23 at corporate headquarters in Cass City.

Schelke seeks pitchers

Veterans to spark Hawk 9 in Thumb B baseball race

If coach Don Schelke can find some pitching to back up fireballing junior Earnie Stoutenburg the Cass City Red Hawks could win it all in the Thumb B Conference this season.

Stoutenburg was one of the aces of the staff last year with a high hard one that has been clocked at 76 miles per hour. He figures to improve on his 4-3 record in his sophomore year.

Injuries to key performers have cut into the strength of the team. It's doubtful if Clare Trischler will be back from ankle surgery in time to help.

Trischler is a fine pitcher and good stickman with two previous years of varsity experience.

Also sidelined by injuries are Tim Johnson, a regular at second as a sophomore, and Tim Fahrner who was counted on to fill in some of the losses by graduation.

And the losses were substantial. Start with Jeff Hartel, an all-conference performer. He was an outstanding catcher and the anchor man on the pitching staff. He hit .339.

Hartel and Clarke Haire were three-year regulars on the team. Haire covered the shortstop position and hit .357 last year.

Also graduated was Dean Severance, first sacker who provided the long ball and hit .227. Another graduate was the leading sticker on the team last year. Gary Warju, .442 average, covered center field like a blanket for the Hawks.

That's the bad news. The good news is that there are eight lettermen returning.

Start with Tony Doerr. He's a sure fielder whether at first base or in the outfield and one of the best, if not the best, hitters in the Thumb B Conference. He hits for average and for distance.

Tim Severance took over posing pitching this season. Randy Ferris, a transfer, will get a long look for one of the outfield positions.

The remainder of the squad will be developed from a talented group of sophomores.

Certain to receive a long look from Schelke will be Todd Comment, Brad Hartel, Scott Murphy, Dave Nye, Randy Severance, Craig Tonti and Phil Zawilinski.

Schelke sees Bad Axe, Caro and the Lakers as the top teams in the Thumb B this season. Talent appears divided so that any team that gets hot could end up with the coveted championship banner this spring.

Dick Glidden receives grant

See boys' team photos next week at third base as a junior and is a fixture at the position this spring. He's got baseball savvy and gets his share of hits.

Other letter winners include Todd Alexander, and Ray Piaskowski, outfielders, and Ken Martin.

Martin is a junior. He's an excellent defensive catcher, who hits the long ball. With a little better patience at the plate he could terrorize op-

Girls need more offense to climb in softball race

Dave Hoard's Cass City High School softball team is looking to improve on its 5-9 record posted last year. If the team does, Hoard will have to find replacements for several key players lost via graduation.

Gone are Judy Luana, Cheri Martin, Linda Sieradzki, Paula Butler and Brenda Goslin.

There are several players up from last year's JV squad that are expected to help, Hoard feels.

They include Vickie Pobanz, Sherry Bader, Julie Helwig, Denise Okerstrom and Tammie McKee.

In addition there are eight letter winners back this year.

Other letter winners counted on to contribute include Rochelle Messer, Pat Otulakowski, Lori Opanasenko, Tammie Root and Kelli Winter.

To become a genuine threat for the title, Hoard feels that more punch must be generated at the plate. Work on offense will be the emphasis in early practices.

In the Thumb B Conference, Hoard feels that Marlette and Sandusky are the teams to beat with Cass City and Frankenmuth in a challenging position.
