Council scrounges funds for new street project

The Cass City Village Council decided Tuesday evening there was too much federal money to turn down. It thus voted to spend about $70,000, which will be the local share for an estimated $235,000 street rebuilding project.

At stake was federal funds which will pay 77 percent of the cost for rebuilding Doerr Road from Main Street to Garfield and Garfield from Doerr to the railroad tracks. The project will include widening to 40 feet, curb and gutter and blacktopping. Estimated cost is $235,000, which would mean Uncle Sam will pay $181,000; the village, $54,000. There are a few "ifs," however.

In addition to the $54,000, the village will also have to pay from $14-18,000 in engineering costs. If the successful bid is under $235,000, the 77-23 cost split remains. If the bid is over the estimate, however, the federal government will still pay only $181,000. Cass City will have to pay any "overage." The $235,000 estimate from Hubbell, Roth and Clark, the village engineers, is deliberately high for that reason.

The money comes from a special highway safety program, thus it couldn't be used for any street project. Bids will be taken by the state Department of Transportation, which administers the federal funds, but it probably won't do so before August. That means the project won't be finished until 1980. The village has a verbal assurance it will get the money.

The council "got" the money for the local share from four sources:

-An expected $18,000 increase in revenue this year, $14,000 in property taxes and $4,000 in state sales tax revenue.

-Dropping the planned sealcoating of streets in the village park, a savings of $12,000.

-Not paving three streets until next year. Budgeted for this year were the complete rebuilding of Houghton St. between West and Brooker and Downing and Brooker Streets, both between Main and Church.

Now, only curb and gutter will be installed this year, along with removal of the old pavement and graveling. That will save $15,000, with the added benefit of allowing the street to settle for a year before paving in 1980. Some other village streets have been rebuilt over a two-year period, it was pointed out. Later in the meeting, the council authorized advertising for bids for installation of the curb and gutter. They will be opened at the regular May 29 meeting.

-Planned establishment of a special assessment district to pay for the curb and gutter along the affected portions of Doerr and Garfield. At $6 per foot, that will bring in $33,000. Property owners will have three years to pay and prior to establishment of the district, there will have to be a public hearing.

The total of $78,000 won't all be needed this year as it will be a two-year project, thus any "extra" money this year can be saved for next year.

Although Doerr and Garfield weren't on the top of the council's priority list for street rebuilding, council members felt they should take advantage of the funds while they are available, since the two streets are in need of repair now and would have needed more in the future.

Also, by rebuilding them now, that frees more funds in the future for other street rebuilding projects.

OTHER BUSINESS

The council decided to ask the Department of Transportation to consider installing an added lane on Main Street at Comment Drive (to the Charmont) and Doerr Road to alleviate traffic congestion from cars turning at those two corners.

A petition was received, signed by 10 property owners adjacent to the alley south of Main Street between Brooker and West Streets, asking that it be paved.

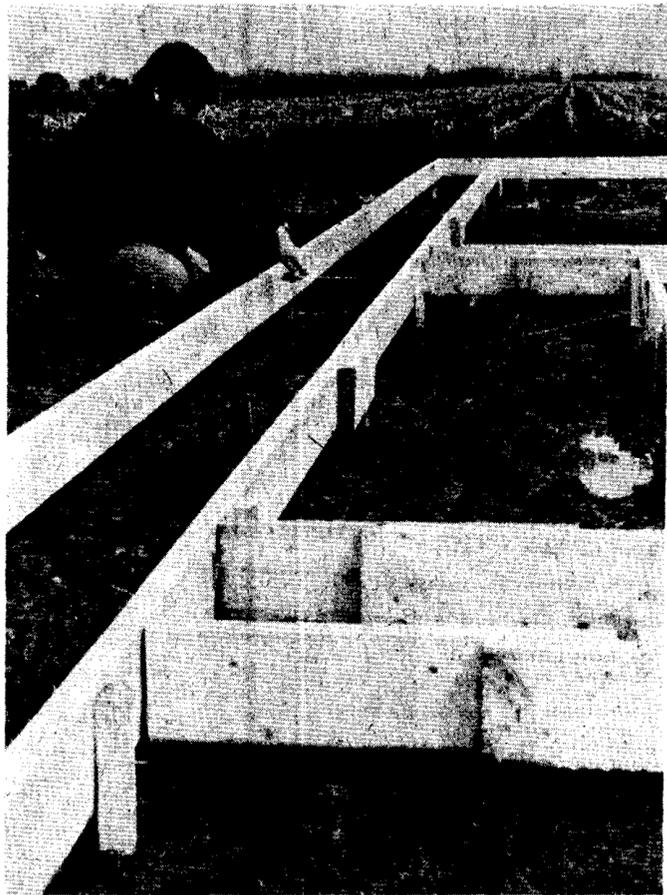

An agreement was approved with the Rotary Club and JC Penney Co. for establishment of an exercise trail in the village park. The village will be providing the space and the Rotary the funds and manpower to erect the equipment. JC Penney, which is doing so nationwide, provides the signs at each station along the course, describing what exercises are to be done.

Expenditure of $2,679 was approved for purchase and installation of a central air conditioning unit in the village offices by Ryland and Guc.

Members of the newly established board of directors of the newly established Economic Development Corp. were appointed.

Serving six-year terms will be Lambert Althaver, William Kritzman, Gary Jones and Gary Christner; five years, Lou LaPonsie; four years, Elwyn Helwig; three years, Mike Weaver; two years, Dr. Delbert Rawson, and one year, Herbert Ludlow.

MEASURING UP - County Building Inspector Mike Popp measures the depth and width of the forms for the footings of a building before cement is poured. These footings are for a house under construction along Bay City-Forestville Road, west of Gagetown.

Cass City turns over 'enforcement'

Codes help, not hindrance, says county building official

Paul Lefler doesn't like the word "enforcer." "We don't look at ourselves as enforcers," said the head of the Tuscola County Building Codes Department. "We're here to see that safe construction is going on."

His department took over building code inspections in Cass City April 28. It had been conducting plumbing and electrical inspections here since October, 1975 and February, 1976 respectively.

The county department, which Lefler has headed since its inception, goes back to May, 1975, following passage of a state law intended to eliminate the mumbo-jumbo of each community in the state having its own building code. They were given a choice of four nationally recognized codes to utilize.

Counties were given the responsibility for code enforcement, with local government units having the option to assume such duties themselves.

Now that Cass City has joined the fold, that leaves only Denmark, Arbel and Millington townships and Vassar city and Fairgrove doing their own enforcement.

They enforce the Building Officials and Administrators Code (BOCA) however, the same one as used by the county.

Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie had been the building inspector in Cass City but the press of other duties left him little time to keep up to date on revisions in the code, which led to the council's decision to have the county take over building inspections.

Cass Cityans still need to get a zoning permit at the village hall before applying for the building permit in Caro.

Permit fees are based on the value of construction. For a $50,000 house, for instance, and assuming not too many reinspections being needed, the fee would be $126. (State law says the fees must pay the cost of running the building department, basically salaries, and excluding the value of the office space provided.)

LEFLER, WHO WAS IN the construction business, primarily commercial buildings, prior to becoming building codes administrator, admits many people resent the idea of building codes. "They feel government is telling them what they can do with their property."

Understandably, Lefler doesn't see it that way. "The average person is not a builder and they don't understand things," he said.

A lot of electrical fires start because of faulty wiring, he cited as one example. He and his three inspectors (one each for structural, plumbing and electrical) spend a lot of time with do-it-yourselfers.

They also can "go to bat" for consumers victimized by disreputable builders.

THE FIRST BUILDING inspection is to check depth and width of footings.

After the footings are in, but before dirt is piled around them, comes the second inspection. After the walls are up and roof on, but while the studs are still exposed, comes a third building inspection, plus electrical and plumbing inspections.

The final inspection comes when the building is ready for occupancy.

Any time an inspector spots a violation, he writes a field correction, noting what's wrong. The builder must make the correction and the inspector returns to make sure it is done.

If the builder doesn't make the correction, the building codes department can impose a stop construction order. If construction continues, the next step is a court warrant, arrest by a sheriff's deputy and appearance in district court. That has happened 10-12 times during the time Lefler has been administrator.

Most builders are responsible, he said, but there's the proverbial 10 percent who aren't. It's the same people who cause the same problems. "Those guys we watch close because we have to." He describes the BOCA code as flexible. "Anyone who can't build according to these codes shouldn't be building."

He also says that although it's possible to "walk on any job and write a field correction... we're not picky."

The BOCA code, for instance, specifies how close together the nails holding down floorboards are supposed to be, but as long as they are nailed down securely, the inspector isn't going to get down on the floor with their tape measures to measure the nail spacing.

PERMITS ARE NEEDED for all new construction, of course, plus any time a structural change is made, such as knocking a hole in a wall for a new doorway or something more complex, and for plumbing and electrical work. All agricultural buildings are exempt by state law from permit requirements.

For new construction projects or where use of a present building is being changed, the builder must first get a zoning permit from his local authorities. He then goes to Caro to get the building and other permits.

Lefler realizes that a lot of people don't get permits and that, "The crime is in getting caught." Responsible builders and licensed plumbers and electricians presumably realize they need a permit. (They are the ones responsible for getting them, not the person who hired them to do the work.)

Many do-it-yourselfers don't bother to get a permit, either deliberately or out of ignorance. Getting a homeowner's permit also allows the subterfuge of hiring someone not licensed to do the work, for instance, someone handy at doing plumbing but who isn't licensed and couldn't get a permit directly.

What happens if an inspector stumbles on a project for which no permit was obtained but is needed? Probably nothing, except a construction stop order (if the work is being done by a hired contractor) until the permit is obtained.

"Our biggest concern is that the work is done properly," Lefler stressed.

The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners decided Tuesday to give the county Road Commission a chance to "get their house in order."

Six representatives of the Deford-Kingston area based Citizens for Decent Road Conditions (CDRC) presented the board with petitions asking commissioners to put on the ballot a proposal to allow election of the three Road Commission members. They presently are appointed.

The petitions bore 1,956 signatures from all over the county.

The response of the county commissioners, after about an hour of discussion with the group, was to vote unanimously to place the petitions on file.

Shirley Beddow of Crawford Road, who did most of the speaking for the group along with Sally Wood, said the signatures show "that people are definitely dissatisfied, that it just wasn't the two of us."

She expressed doubts that the Road Commission has improved since the two heavily attended meetings the group held earlier this year, one of which was attended by the road commissioners. "I don't feel there is anything being done more than was done before."

She was cynical that the road commissioners were really listening and responding to the complaints. "They say they're listening, but are they actually?"

"I think they are listening, but they can't change things overnight," responded county board chairman Paul Nagy of Vassar. "I'm willing in my mind to give them a chance. Let's see if they can get their house in order."

He apparently spoke for the board as members later voted to give the Road Commission a chance by filing the petitions.

Mention was made during the discussion of the meeting last week of township supervisors and county commissioners. Commissioner Margaret Wenta of Fostoria said the Road Commission indicated it will be changing its priorities and that the township supervisors "seemed satisfied."

After the meeting, Commissioner Royce Russell of Elmwood township said the CDRC's efforts were not in vain. "I think a lot of this came out because of their efforts." He also felt the county board will continue to keep an eye on the Road Commission "and try to keep things moving."

Even if the county board had agreed to put the Road

Commission proposal on the ballot - and it still has lots of time to do so - it probably would not have appeared there until the August or November, 1980 election.

Mrs. Wood later told the Chronicle that in the future, "We'll be watching them (Road Commission)" but as for now, "We feel we've done as much as we can do."

Although the group won't be spending as much time on that issue, it may consider tackling other issues under the new name which it has registered, Citizens United for Good Government.

OTHER BUSINESS

With 18 county employees paid primarily with federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds scheduled to lose their jobs Sept. 30, the board voted to pay them with county funds until at least Jan. 1.

The board will have to determine the 1980 county budget before then during which time it will have to decide which employees it can afford to keep.

The appropriation for libraries in the county of 25 cents per person in its service area was increased to 30 cents. For Rawson Memorial Library, that will mean an annual increase from $1,379 to $1,654.

Auto smashes church statue

The statue of the Blessed Virgin Mary in front of St. Columbkille Catholic church at M-53 and Atwater Roads is no more.

Whether it can be restored is yet to be determined. The marble statue, a gift from the McEachin family to the church many years ago, was shattered when struck by a car Sunday.

Shirley A. Sadro, 20, of Ubyly, told Huron county deputies she was northbound when she lost control of her car. The vehicle went off the road and struck the statue, which was mounted on a brick platform.

Deacon Lambert Kuhr said he has since learned that marble statues can be repaired in some instances, though he had doubts the St. Columbkille statue is repairable.

It will have to be crated and shipped to an expert for examination, however, thus it is too early to say whether it will be repaired or replaced.

The parish council discussed the statue at a meeting Monday night. No one there knew how old it was, Kuhr said. It was reportedly made in Italy.

Novesta cracks down on junk

The Novesta Township Board Monday evening decided to start strictly enforcing the township's junk ordinance.

The ordinance will be published in the Chronicle next week, after which township residents will be given a "reasonable amount" of time to remove junk from their premises, especially old cars.

The ordinance basically requires dismantled cars and other junk to be kept inside buildings.

The resignation of Sexton Frank Spencer due to other interests was accepted with regret. He had been in charge of the township cemetery about two years. The board is now advertising for a new sexton.

It was reported that the cemetery has been surveyed for purposes of installing tile to improve drainage. It is hoped the work will be done in a month or two.

The board decided to have Knoblet and Tuckey Roads, both a half-mile each, graveled this year.

It was announced C.R. Hunt Construction Co. will start work on Severance Road, east of Cemetery, as soon as weather permits.

The board appropriated $384 to Rawson Memorial Library and $250 to the Cass City summer recreation program.

DOWN ON THE FARM - State Rep. George Cushingberry Jr. (D-Detroit), chairman of the House Agriculture Committee (right), was a visitor to Sanilac county farms Friday and Saturday as a guest of the county Farm Bureau. Among farms he visited were two in Lamotte township, the hog farm of Willard Smith and cash crop farm of Allan Shaw and Sons. Here, he discusses farm legislation with State Rep. Quincy Hoffman (R-Allegate and minority vice-chairman of the Agriculture Committee) and Allan Shaw (center).

Rabbit Tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

The recent reprint and picture of Sam Wheaton, Cass River area miner, was of particular interest to Edsel Connell of Cass City.

Connell dropped in to the office to say that Wheaton was a neighborhood hero of his.

Not because he was a miner, Connell confided with a grin, but because he could peel an apple and have one unbroken peel when he was finished.

The first name added to the list of area residents older than the Chronicle's 88 years was reported by Linda Leeson. He's 90-year-old Ed Mark.

Barnum was right. There IS a sucker born every minute. After Monday I joined that lengthy list and I wasn't alone. It was at the Lions annual car raffle where the last name drawn gets the car.

The side action at the banquet comes when ticket holders bet $5 with each other on who will last the longest in the drawing. First out loses.

One of the guys taking all kinds of bets was Dick Hunt. The raffle started and name after name was called. One by one after another came sauntering up to Dick to pay off as the envelope with their name was drawn.

If Hunt hadn't come up with an attack of conscience and returned the $5 I'd never have known I had been conned, but good. (And neither would a dozen other guys.) Besides that, Dick would have lost a chance to have a big chuckle at our expense.

The kicker in this seemingly fair bet was that Hunt was there as a representative of Geiger-Hunt Ford, Inc., who furnished the car.

He didn't have a ticket with his name on it in the drawing.

Mother-daughter fete

Trinity United Methodist church held a mother-daughter banquet April 25. The men of the church with Tom Proctor as leader prepared the meal and served it.

Janet Christner was the mistress of ceremonies.

Bev Nieboer led everyone in singing "Hello Mothers and Daughters," accompanied by Pam Ross. Opal Schneberger gave a toast to the daughters.

Ruth Baker gave a toast to mothers.

A quartet, Bev Nieboer, Chris Weippert, Tom Proctor, and Harold Guinther sang "My God and I."

Kurt Proctor, Deb Paladi, Frances Kozan and Steve Corcoran, from Denise Gorsline's forensics class at Cass City High School, presented a program.

Prizes were given from a drawing for adults, with a surprise for each child.

Paula Marshall sang "We Have This Moment, Today." For the benediction, everyone sang "He's Got The Whole World In His Hands."

It takes men with unusual ability to make the usual unusual.

Arrest juveniles in car theft from church lot

Two juveniles have been apprehended in connection with the theft of a car Friday from the Deford Community church parking lot.

Lynn Babich of Gilford Road, Deford, reported the stolen car to Caro state police at 9:40 p.m. The keys had been in it.

A Department of Natural Resources officer spotted the car at 3 p.m. Saturday at Mushroom and Phillips Roads. There were two juveniles by the car, who ran into the woods when they saw the officer.

A state police tracking dog was brought from West Branch. He followed the scent left by the two, which after about a mile led to the home of one of the youths. The pair were found hiding inside.

As of Tuesday, it was still undetermined whether they might be petitioned into probate court.

Cass City police apprehended four youths Saturday involved in an incident of throwing objects, one of whom broke a window. The incident took place shortly before 8 p.m.

A witness told officers he saw the four throwing wood at the Wickes Agriculture construction site on Main Street. They then went to Merchant Farm Supply on Doerr Road and started throwing objects there. The witness found a broken window.

He then contacted police, giving officer Ken Schott a description of the four. Schott found them on Garfield Street.

One of them, 14 years old, admitted breaking the window when a stone he threw at a sign missed. He was taken to his father, who agreed to pay restitution, which was $18 to replace the window.

Monday, police found four windows broken by stones at the Wickes site. The four

"If It Fitz. . ."

A lofty solution

By Jim Fitzgerald

In a recent newspaper interview, Mayor Young defended the $1 million remodeling project now in progress on his floor of the City-County Building. He said it is needed because of full laps.

For the mayor, the improvements will include expanded space and such bare-bone necessities as a $3,500 desk with a $700 chair behind it. A reporter was crass enough to ask if, in view of the city's currently tight budget and bleak financial future, the mayor wished he had polished his public image by postponing the remodeling until happy days are here again.

"Not really . . . Right now I have staff people sitting on each others' laps, literally," Mayor Young answered. "They have no office . . ."

A few days later, there was more alarming news from the City-County Building. Councilman David Eberhard threatened to move out. He said his office is too small and he'd be more comfortable doing business in his car.

"I am therefore obtaining an outside office, office equipment and phone services for me at my home on Lodge Drive and charging the same to the City of Detroit. Since individuals cannot talk to me in private, nor can I 'think' in private, I must take this action," Eberhard said in a letter to the council president.

Councilman Eberhard didn't say exactly when he will get up and move, but I assume he is simply waiting until someone gets off his lap.

It won't be long before larger offices are ready for the mayor and his staff, thus freeing dozens of laps for more important tasks than being sat on. For instance, it's expected that a few top aides, finally able to stand up and put their hands in their pants pockets, will be assigned to search those pockets for several thousand dollars somehow mislaid three years ago during the city's bicentennial celebration.

The picture isn't so encouraging for Eberhard and other council members. The remodeling currently under way doesn't include their offices, which aren't on the same floor as the mayor's. Expansion of council quarters has been stalled by bickering with other city departments over who gets what space on what floor. No one can say for sure when Eberhard will get an office big enough to think in. A temporary solution is needed. Taxpayers have already paid for the huge City-County Building. They shouldn't be forced to also pay for ping-pong desks and maple paneling in government officials' basements.

If Eberhard succeeds in his threat to move home, there's no doubt other council members will demand similar accommodations. For the sake of the public purse, some way must be found to keep them in their downtown offices, even if they can't call their laps their own.

I have a lofty suggestion, Lofts. I got the idea when my son recently visited Michigan State University and inspected the dormitory where I lived 30 years ago. He reported that my old room now has two floors, which is one more than when I slept there.

Today's live-in students have devised a simple way to relieve traffic congestion and provide privacy in the traditional two-person dormitory rooms. They build lofts, reached by ladders.

All it takes is a little lumber, hammer and nails, and lots of cushions. Lofts are cheap, easy to construct and easier to tear down in case a basketball center moves in.

"The kids say lofts are great to crawl into for studying or making phone calls or making out," my son said.

If more youngsters can accomplish all that in a loft, Councilman Eberhard should be able to think in one. He could think about all the money his loft is saving taxpayers.

The ceilings in council offices are about 10 feet high. Most council members, including Eberhard, aren't any more than six feet tall. They could stand straight beneath their lofts. Taller council members could stoop. As Mayor Young would certainly agree, from behind his $3,500 desk, round shoulders are better than full laps.

P. T. Barnum said it best, "There is a sucker born every minute."

I won't go as far as Barnum and say that the list of 30,000 customers that two auto mechanics in Florida have are suckers, but they certainly believe in being first at all costs.

Maybe it's my age that keeps me from jumping on the "Moodymobile" band wagon. I'm old enough to remember the Tucker. The Tucker? Yes. The Tucker was a post World War II vehicle that was going to revolutionize the auto industry.

A demonstration model was shown around the country. Dealers were established, orders taken. How they were taken.

Orders, orders, orders. Money, money, money. How much I can't remember now. But it was enough to send Preston Tucker to jail when months later the bubble burst and car one never was produced.

Wonder cars and wonder engines pop up year after year, decade after decade. It's no wonder when you consider how America is wedded to the auto.

One story that keeps going the rounds is a wonder carburetor that dramatically increases mileage that has been gobbled up by (take your choice) one, the oil companies; two, the auto companies.

How something like that could be successfully withheld for more than a few years has never been explained to me. The big companies did it, period. That's always the story line.

In this time of energy crisis everyone wants to believe. Even me. Especially me. A car that gets 84 miles to the gallon. Wow!

But I keep asking myself. How can that be? American Motors is fighting to stay in the traditional auto business today. Literally hundreds of other companies have fallen since Ford started mass producing the family car.

If there were an auto or an engine like this one of these companies' surely would have been moved to save their business with it.

From what I read there is little doubt that a car with a modified engine did go 84 miles on a gallon of gas.

That was at 40 miles per hour. For one trip from Daytona Beach, Fla., to the outskirts of Washington.

It may be all that the inventors say it is. The answer.

But I'll wait to place my order. There's one thing that's sure. If the "Moodymobile" is the answer, one or more of the Big 3 will have it for sale . . . or one patterned after it that will run as good or better and cost less.

Pros and cons for voting by mail

The Michigan House of Representatives recently approved a bill, now before the Senate, that would allow all voters to cast ballots by mail.

The right to cast absentee ballots is presently restricted to the elderly, the ill and people who will be out of town on election day.

Supporters, basically Democrats, say the measure will increase voter turnout, make voting easier and lead to more informed voting by letting citizens study complicated ballot proposals and then vote at home.

Opponents, primarily Republicans, say the measure will make vote fraud easier, result in increased costs for local governments and slow counting of election results.

Jane Fuester of Decker Road, Decker, has mixed emotions about the proposal. She and her husband Elmer were out of town during the election last November so they voted absentee.

That was the election with 11 ballot proposals and she said in that instance, being able to vote at home made voting easier. "In that particular case it was, but I don't know if it would be for every one."

Mrs. Fuester had no opinion whether allowing anyone to vote absentee might increase voter turnout.

As for the possibility of voting by mail increasing fraud, she commented, "I know when you go to the voting booth, they check, so they would have to have a similar way of doing it (for mail voting)."

In small towns, where people tend to know one another, it would probably be hard to cheat, "but in big cities, there probably would be more chances for fraud."

A homemaker, Mrs. Fuester and her husband have four daughters, all married, and 13 grandchildren.

Name winners of young authors' school contest

The Thumb Area Reading Council sponsored a young authors' contest this year, which involved students in grades 4-6 in six school districts.

Winners at Cass City Intermediate School, selected by teachers, were Matt Jones, Jeff LaBelle, Todd Stahlbaum, Matt Clara, Angie Churchill, Dave Miller, Tom Stimpfel, Jeanne Marshall, Kerry Mellendorf, Michele Mika and James Kritzman.

The contest aimed to provide an opportunity for elementary school students to write and illustrate a book and then enter it in a contest.

In addition to Cass City, 11 winning authors in each of the other districts: Caro, Vassar, Unionville-Sebewaing, Mayville and Millington districts, were selected.

The 66 winners will be honored at a banquet Saturday at Mayville High School.

The books were judged primarily on originality and creativity, but also on grammar and neatness.

In addition to the young authors' contest, the entries of Cass City's fifth and sixth graders were judged in a separate contest. Five top books were chosen from each of the four fifth grades and the five sixth grade classrooms.

Fifth grade winners, name of the teacher given first, were:

Sally Goodall's class -- Tom Schmidt, Beth Tuckey, Virginia Mills, Shelly Nicholas, Trina Spencer.

Karen Sider -- Andy Jeung, Amy Lovejoy, Tammy Iseler, Michelle Bush, David Lockard.

Rosemary Galloway -- Barb Merchant, Sabrina Moran, Elizabeth Fisher, Sara MacRae, Shelly Wright.

PEDALING AROUND

Bringing them back

By Mike Eliasohn

I must not spend much time looking at roadsides.

I don't have the slightest idea from personal observation whether Michigan's beverage container deposit law is resulting in less litter.

But based on occasional comments I hear from people who do look, from what I read and on common sense, apparently the law is having the desired effect.

The Grosse Ile Island Beautification Committee has always conducted a count of the items picked up in its annual cleanup along the island's 20.15 miles of roads. Bottles and cans traditionally made up 60 percent of the total, but this year the figure was down to 35 percent and none of the containers were of the deposit type.

The law went into effect last December and the benefits won't really be known until this summer, the peak period for beer and soft drink drinking -- at least outdoors.

Presumably, that is also when the worst of the headaches will appear for store owners, especially those in tourist areas who probably will be deluged with empty containers which were purchased elsewhere when full.

To me the major advantage of the law is energy saving.

It has always struck me as somewhat silly to take a perfectly good bottle or other glass container, smash it into little pieces, melt it down and then make a new glass container.

Why not wash the old one and reuse it?

On the other hand, having to handle the returnables has no doubt required beer and soft drink distributors to put more trucks on the road so more energy is being consumed in the distribution and pickup process.

There is a gain and loss in jobs. The one glass container manufacturing facility in Michigan, in Charlotte, has made, I believe, substantial layoffs. On the other hand, new jobs have been created by distributors and large supermarkets in order to deal with the increased workload imposed by the returnables.

There is also the question of price. No one doubts that there was a need to increase prices initially in order to pay for such items as bottle washing equipment and increased storage capacity, but how much is too much?

The Michigan United Conservation Clubs, backers of the petition drive that put the returnable proposal on the ballot, has asked Attorney General Frank Kelley to investigate whether the beverage businesses raised their prices more than was necessary, then blamed it on the new law.

Prices in Oregon and Vermont, which adopted deposit laws before Michigan did, are competitive with neighboring states which require no deposits, the MUCC noted.

United Press International reported in March about a Niles party store owner who between what he had to pay his distributor, his markup and deposit of $1.30 (5 cents per bottle plus 10 cents for the case), was charging $11.80 for a case of Stroh's. A few miles south, in Indiana, the same case was selling for $5.99.

Lastly, for the lady who asked me at least three months ago to print the rules regarding return of containers to merchants, here they are:

Merchants can refuse to redeem broken, unusable bottles; bottles or cans for brands they don't sell, and bottles and cans which are not labeled as being a Michigan returnable container.

Merchants must accept damaged, scratched or dented cans and bottles without caps. (My source of information didn't say, but I don't think they have to accept completely flattened cans.)

They must redeem bottles and cans if they handle that brand. They cannot require that they have been bought there.

Consumers can demand cash, not merchandise, for their deposits. That rules out merchants requiring purchase of new soft drinks or beer or other merchandise in return for redeeming the empties.

Consumers can return cans or bottles individually in boxes, cartons or bags. They do not have to be in the original carrier.

Dr. Dizon is currently chief of pediatrics at Huron Memorial Hospital, Bad Axe.

Generic drug use fizzles

Michigan's generic drug law has not been as widely used as originally expected.

To find out why, a special House committee will be created to investigate the reasons why consumers are not taking advantage of the drug substitution law, thus not taking advantage of a possible savings of $18 to $20 million statewide each year.

The committee will study the results of a study conducted by Theodore Goldberg of Wayne State University that showed that only some 2.8 percent of approximately 15 million new prescriptions were filled with the lowest cost generic drug.

Prescriptions using lower cost generic drugs save consumers an average of 21-23 percent a prescription, which translates roughly into a savings of $1.15.

Possible solutions being considered include either giving pharmacists part of the savings to be sure consumers are aware of available generics, making it mandatory that generic substitutes be used or improving consumer education on the generic drugs.

College Week at MSU June 18-21

College Week, the only event of its kind in the nation, takes place June 18-21 at Michigan State University.

Its sponsors are the Family Living Education Program of the MSU Cooperative Extension Service and the MSU College of Human Ecology. It is open to women and men.

The 4 1/2 hours of daily classes are taught by university professors, extension specialists, government leaders and representatives from business and industry. Classes span a wide range of topics. This year's curriculum includes an examination of the displaced homemaker, a microwave cooking course, analysis of television's impact on the American family and tips on fighting "foodflation."

This year, College Week will again feature an outdoor chicken barbecue for all participants, with state legislators attending as guests of honor.

Earlier that same day, the keynote address will be delivered by Eleanor McGovern, wife of the South Dakota senator, whose talk is titled,

"For Children, For All," in honor of the International Year of the Child.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

A certificate of appreciation was sent to the Cass City High School Band signed by President Richard Nixon. The certificate received, lauded the band for its performance during Nixon's visit to Cass City. Labor peace was assured at Walbro Corporation when members of the UAW ratified a contract which calls for increases in wage and fringe benefits that were hammered out by union and management bargainers. The Cass City Police Department began using some $7,000 worth of new radio equipment along with a new radar gun costing $1,000 designed to aid in apprehending speeders. Mrs. June Fahrner, who has been teaching physical education to elementary students at Gagetown the last 44 years, plans to retire at the end of the current school year.

TEN YEARS AGO

If the majority of schools in the Thumb area feel the way the Cass City Board of Education does, there will be sex education offered via television during the second term next year at the Intermediate School. There will be competition for the two open school board posts in the Cass City School District and petitions for four candidates were submitted. The candidates are Horace Buien, Don Koepfgen, Mrs. Alice Guernsey and Tom Herron. Three essay winners were announced at Owen-Gage School when they wrote on the topic of hometown improvement. Gagetown president, Elery Sontag, presented cash prizes to the winners - Dennis O'Connell, Cindy Lorenz and Larry Ziehm.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Two Huron county communities, Elkton and Bay Port, will decide whether to okay propositions that will enable authorities to build a new school and an addition to present facilities.

Einar Honell, village president of Schoolcraft, Mich., who took over as president for the day in the mayor's exchange highlighting Michigan Week, told residents of Cass City that he would take back many new ideas that might prove advantages to his community.

Fire destroyed a small feed shed at the farm of Mrs. Fanny Hutchinson, destroying an estimated $175 worth of stored feed.

New officers for the Woman's Society of Christian Service were named: Mrs. Earl Douglas was named president; Mrs. Ellwood Eastman, vice-president; Mrs. Stuart Merchant, recording secretary; Mrs. Harry Crandell, treasurer and Mrs. William Profit, promotion secretary.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Mrs. Joseph Frutchey was hostess at a dinner at the Home Restaurant honoring the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Atwell.

The congregation of the First Baptist church extended a call to Rev. Arnold Olsen of Howard City to serve as pastor here. Rev. Olsen has accepted and, with his wife and small son, will take over duties here soon.

Richard Patnaude has been selected as valedictorian of the Gagetown high school graduating class of 1944. Christina Leiterman was named salutatorian.

Group meets

Forty-three members and one guest, Dorothy Heckman, were present for the May 3 Senior Citizens meeting at the Gagetown Municipal Building.

Blood pressure readings were taken by Pat Miller. After the business meeting bingo and cards were played. Pearl Albrecht and Lloyd Finkbeiner won the door prizes. Get well cards were sent to Elma Severn and Leslie Munro.

A donation of $50 was made to the Little League baseball players of the Owen-Gage Schools.

May 17, instead of the regular potluck lunch, the senior citizens will meet at 10:30 a.m. at the Owendale Community Building. They will then tour the new addition to Owen-Gage High School, followed by lunch in the school cafeteria. After that, they will return to the community building to play cards.

Meals-on-wheels needs helpers

The Cass City Meals on Wheels program, which now has enough donations to stay in operation until close to the end of the year, is in need of volunteer drivers.

One driver is needed for Mondays and another for Tuesdays and if they can't work every week, they can do so on a substitute basis.

The work takes about a half-hour a day and consists of picking up prepared meals at the hospital and then delivering them to homes. Only five or six meals a day are delivered. Drivers must provide their own cars and pay for the gasoline. Persons interested in volunteering should call Marge Langmaid at 872-3657.

The Elkland-Novesta Community Chest recently donated $1,000 to the program, in addition to $250 donated earlier. That plus a $100 donation from Mary Vago should keep the program going until close to the end of the year, according to treasurer Ron Keegan.

Earlier donations, including the $250 from the Community Chest, totaled $1,000. Recipients are also paying part of the cost of their meals, usually half.

Those eligible for the meals are senior citizens, low income and in need of a special diet, such as no salt, bland or cut into small pieces. There are about a dozen recipients at present, most of whom receive a meal only two or three times a week.

They are: Deb Milligan - flute, Suzanne Little - piccolo, Frances Kozan - oboe, Lynn Hartwick - alto saxophone, Diane McAlpine - alto saxophone, Carrie Carpenter - bass clarinet, Carol Little - clarinet, Todd Alexander - cornet, and Bob Potrykus - percussion. May 8. The fourth graders were to have gone to the Chippewa Nature Center in Midland, Wednesday.

EVERGREEN

Miss Kilmer's third and fourth graders have been studying the history of Michigan and doing many other interesting projects for Michigan Week, which will be coming up. They have also been working on a Creative Writing Book in Language. During their spare time they are to create poems and short stories to add to their books. Another project that has kept them busy, is a book that each student is writing about her or him-self, entitled "All About Me." It includes stories and pictures about their feelings and what makes them what they are.

Friday afternoon, the sixth graders enjoyed listening to Mr. Wilson Peters talk about India. He shared much about the history and culture of his homeland.

Fred Hecht

Weighmaster protects roads from overloads

Fred Hecht has a weighty job in more ways than one. He is the Tuscola county weighmaster.

What does a weighmaster do? In very simple terms, he weighs trucks and if the truck is heavier than allowed, the driver or owner gets a ticket.

The purpose of such enforcement is to protect road surfaces from breaking up because of excess weight.

With the amount of money for road repairs getting ever tighter, that makes his job even more important, he explained.

Hecht, 31, drove his patrol car about 30,000 miles last year and issued about 60 tickets resulting in total fines of $10,000.

That may not seem like a lot, but, "If I wasn't here, it would be unreal."

The weighmaster is an employee of the county Road Commission, but is also deputized by the sheriff's department. He carries a handgun on his hip and if he happens to be the closest patrol car to an accident or crime, can perform the normal duties of a deputy.

All counties in the state have their own weighmasters plus the Michigan Public Service Commission has its own. One of the latter, who lives in Caro, primarily works in Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties.

Hecht was a police officer in Vassar for three years. He has been weighmaster since February, 1974.

ABOUT 80 PERCENT OF his time is spent patrolling the county's 1,700 miles of roads.

He usually stays on the primary roads, where most of the truck traffic is. A favored location is close to gravel pits.

The main problems he has had, he said, is with gravel trucks and ones hauling sugar beets, although he has fewer troubles with the latter than he once did.

He routinely pulls over heavy trucks for weighing.

A driver cannot refuse to have his truck weighed if Hecht pulls him over. If the driver does refuse, he gets arrested. That has happened twice during his time as weighmaster. Other arrests have been made when drivers harassed him.

HECHT WEIGHS trucks with four scales he carries in the trunk of his car. The scales weigh about 70 pounds each. "They get heavy," he said with a smile.

He can weigh two axles at a time, one scale going in front of the wheel at one end of the axle, the other scale going at the other end of the axle. The driver must then pull the truck onto the scales.

Adding the weight for the two scales gives him the total weight per axle. Adding the weights for each axle gives the total weight of the truck.

Once the weights are recorded off the four scales (for two axles), the driver backs the truck off and the scales are moved, axle by axle, until the total weight is recorded.

Michigan law permits up to 11 axles on a truck (tractor and trailer combined).

On a Class B road, for instance, on other than the steering axle, the weight limit is 13,000 pounds per axle. The maximum total weight allowed is 160,000 pounds, which is the most allowed of any state in the nation.

THE SCALES ARE A few inches high and if a truck is too overloaded, geared too high or doesn't have enough power, it may not be able to climb onto them.

In such an instance, Hecht must escort the truck to the nearest state scales, which are at Birch Run, about mid-way between Saginaw and Flint.

That's what he had to do with the heaviest truck he has ever weighed, a double-bottom hauling gravel. It had a gross weight of 209,000 pounds, 50,000 more than allowed. The owner eventually paid a fine of $3,439.

According to the weighmaster, about 90 percent of truckers he comes in contact with are honest. Among those with the greatest temptation to cheat are gravel haulers paid by the cubic yard or tonnage, instead of by the hour. The more they haul in a load, the more they get paid.

THE MAXIMUM FINE IS 10 cents per pound overweight, if the truck is at least 5,000 pounds overweight. A truck 10,000 pounds overweight, for instance, could result in a fine of $1,000.

Drivers or owners pleading guilty appear before Magistrate Joan Maki. If they plead innocent, they are tried before District

Judge Richard F. Kern and Hecht must testify.

In addition to checking weights, Hecht also checks the permits, logbooks, driver's license and for possible arrest warrants.

He works a 40-hour week but sets his own hours. He normally is on the road weekdays during daylight hours, which is when most truck traffic is heaviest, but a few times a month, he will work at night or on week ends. When road weight restrictions are in effect each spring, it's a seven-day a week job. Fall, when sugar beets are being hauled, is another busy season.

Hecht keeps his patrol car at his Vassar area home when off-duty as he can get a call at any hour from a police officer asking him to come weigh a truck the officer has stopped.

ANOTHER TASK FOR Hecht is to issue permits, either for trucks hauling overweight cargo, such as a bulldozer, or for wider than the normally allowed 8 feet.

The weighmaster actually only records the weight or dimensions. The driver or owner then goes to the Road Commission office to get the permit.

Shops building special heavy-duty freight trailers request Hecht to come and test weigh the rig.

But most of his time, as mentioned, is spent on patrol and there he feels he has made an impact.

"When I first took the job, there were quite a few violations," he commented. Now, he doesn't find as many.

WEIGHING IN -- Tuscola County Weighmaster Fred Hecht records the weight off the scales holding up two wheels of this trailer, which was hauling a bulldozer. After recording the weights off the two scales at the other end of the axles, he will know the total weights for the two axles. Block under wheel closest to camera keeps it at the same level as those wheels on the scales.

Nelson mute in armed robbery

Michael B. Nelson, 23, of Clarkston, stood mute Monday to a charge of armed robbery in connection with the March 15 robbery of the Ku Ku Kow Restaurant in Caro.

Circuit Judge Martin E. Clements entered a plea of innocent and scheduled hearing of pretrial motions June 4.

Nelson, who is also facing charges in an Alpena armed robbery, is being held in lieu of $25,000 bond.

A charge against his supposed accomplice in the Ku Ku Kow robbery, Charles Mersino, 22, also of Clarkston, was recently dismissed by District Judge Richard F. Kern who ruled at the preliminary examination that a confession he had given in Alpena was not given voluntarily.

Prosecutor Artis Noel is appealing Kern's ruling. Mersino was sent back to Alpena, where he is charged in the same robbery with Nelson. The two were arrested in the northern Michigan community.

The pair are also believed to have been involved in several other robberies in various communities across the state.

Also Monday, Paul M. Corba, 20, of 6370 Gunnell Road, Millington, pleaded guilty to taking and using a motorcycle without authority.

His plea was accepted and sentencing scheduled June 19. Bond was continued.

The motorcycle was taken March 13 in Arbelia township.

The charge of attempted larceny in a building against Lee V. Latimer, 20, of Akron was dismissed.

He pleaded guilty in April, 1978 to attempted larceny in a building in connection with the theft of two snow tires, after which sentencing was delayed a year. The charge was dismissed as Latimer complied with all the provisions of his probation during the past year.

DISTRICT COURT

Randal D. Ramsey, 18, of 6764 Main Street, Cass City, pleaded guilty Friday to larceny under $100 in connection with breaking into the coin box of a game machine at the Charmont April 13.

Judge Richard F. Kern accepted the plea and scheduled sentencing May 21. Ramsey is free on personal recognizance bond.

May 2, Jeff Auvil, 20, of 3825 Pringle Road, Snover, pleaded guilty to failure to stop and identify at a property damage accident.

His plea was accepted and he was fined $25 and assessed $30 court costs or in lieu of that, sentenced to two days in the county jail.

He was arrested on the charge Feb. 3 in Gagetown.

Nutrition activities scheduled in Sanilac

The Sanilac County Nutrition Council has several activities planned for Nutrition Week, May 14-18.

At 1 p.m. Monday, the Commission on Aging will sponsor a lunch at Sandusky High School. Noted commentator and humorist Bud Guest will be the guest speaker, starting at 2. Reservations are needed.

Wednesday, the La Leche League will present a program from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. in the Detroit Edison building in Sandusky.

From 6-9 p.m. that day at Sandusky High School will be the nutrition fair.

Topics or programs will be blood pressure checks, infant nutrition, March of Dimes film festival, home gardening, microwave cooking demonstration, "nutrition while taking chemotherapy treatments," canning and food preservation, women-infant-child nutrition, "all the questions you wanted to ask about food stamps" and breast feeding.

During the week, the Farm Bureau speaker series will be presenting the "Fabulous Food Machine" to fourth, fifth and sixth graders. The Family Living Program of the Cooperative Extension Service will also be presenting nutrition programs before senior citizen groups and nursery schools.

The Nutrition Council is composed of the county Health Department, La Leche League, Cooperative Extension Service, Commission on Aging, Migrant Ministries, Farm Bureau, Department of Social Services, home economics teachers and others.

Reach compromise on sugar bill

U.S. Rep. Bob Traxler (D-Bay City) announced last week that the House Agriculture Committee has completed action on a bill which will assure sugar beet producers reasonable prices over the next three years.

"As soon as the House Ways and Means Committee completes its deliberations, we should have a bill on the floor of the House for a final vote," he said. Traxler expects that this vote will come before the middle of May.

Under the terms of the Traxler-supported measure, sugar growers in the 1979 crop year can expect a market price objective of 15.8 cents per pound, raw basis, and an additional direct payment of up to a half-cent per pound.

The payment provision was adopted as a compromise with the Administration, in order to hold down any price increase that consumers might face. There will be a payment limitation of $50,000 per grower per year, as with other crop support programs.

In crop years '80 and '81 producers can expect increases in the market price objective equivalent to increases in the cost of production, but not more than 7 percent in one year. This limitation is in keeping with the President's anti-inflation program. Payment authority will continue in each of these years.

Authority for the current loan program will continue under the new bill. In this way producers who find the market price to be lower than the price objective can choose to place their sugar under loan rather than sell it at depressed prices.

Traxler also reported that "standby" authority is provided in the bill, which mandates the use of import quotas on foreign sugar should the use of import fees be insufficient to bring the price of sugar up to the market objective level.

Kindergarten round-up set in Kingston

Kingston Elementary School round-up will be at 9 a.m. Friday.

Parents of children who are or will be age five by Dec. 1 should attend.

This year, students will be tested for hearing and vision problems prior to the start of school.

In addition to bringing their child to get acquainted with the room, parents should bring birth certificate or hospital record and immunization record.

Pleasure mad people are mad because they find no pleasure.

Group meets

Forty-three members and one guest, Dorothy Heckman, were present for the May 3 Senior Citizens meeting at the Gagetown Municipal Building.

Blood pressure readings were taken by Pat Miller. After the business meeting bingo and cards were played. Pearl Albrecht and Lloyd Pinkbeiner won the door prizes. Get well cards were sent to Elma Severn and Leslie Munro.

Meals-on-wheels needs helpers

The Cass City Meals on Wheels program, which now has enough donations to stay in operation until close to the end of the year, is in need of volunteer drivers.

One driver is needed for Mondays and another for Tuesdays and if they can't work every week, they can do so on a substitute basis.

The work takes about a half-hour a day and consists of picking up prepared meals at the hospital and then delivering them to homes. Only five or six meals a day are delivered.

Drivers must provide their own cars and pay for the gasoline. Persons interested in volunteering should call Marge Langmaid at 872-3657.

The Elkland-Novesta Community Chest recently donated $1,000 to the program, in addition to $250 donated earlier. That plus a $100 donation from Mary Vargo should keep the program going until close to the end of the year, according to treasurer Ron Keegan.

Earlier donations, including the $250 from the Community Chest, totaled $1,000. Recipients are also paying part of the cost of their meals, usually half.

Those eligible for the meals are senior citizens, low income and in need of a special diet, such as no salt, bland or cut into small pieces. There are about a dozen recipients at present, most of whom receive a meal only two or three times a week.

Congratulations to Angel Harmon on her performance in Saturday's State Finals tournament in Individual Events. Angel placed 14th in the state in Original Oratory.

Congratulations to Suzanne Little, who was given the Harold Ferguson award Monday night at the "Evening with the Arts." This award is presented every year to the most outstanding and most devoted senior band member. Along with Suzanne, the other senior members were recognized. They have all been with the band since fifth grade. They are: Deb Milligan - flute, Suzanne Little - piccolo, Frances Kozan - oboe, Lynn Hartwick - alto saxophone, Diane McAlpine - alto saxophone, Carrie Carpenter - bass clarinet, Carol Little - clarinet, Todd Alexander - cornet, and Bob Potrykus - percussion. The girls were each given a rose and both guys received a carnation.

May 8. The fourth graders were to have gone to the Chippewa Nature Center in Midland, Wednesday.

EVERGREEN

Miss Kilmer's third and fourth graders have been studying the history of Michigan and doing many other interesting projects for Michigan Week, which will be coming up. They have also been working on a Creative Writing Book in Language. During their spare time they are to create poems and short stories to add to their books. Another project that has kept them busy, is a book that each student is writing about her or him-self, entitled "All About Me." It includes stories and pictures about their feelings and what makes them what they are. Friday afternoon, the sixth graders enjoyed listening to Mr. Wilson Peters talk about India. He shared much about the history and culture of his homeland.

Weighmaster protects roads from overloads

Fred Hecht has a weighty job in more ways than one. He is the Tuscola county weighmaster.

What does a weighmaster do? In very simple terms, he weighs trucks and if the truck is heavier than allowed, the driver or owner gets a ticket.

The purpose of such enforcement is to protect road surfaces from breaking up because of excess weight.

With the amount of money for road repairs getting ever lighter, that makes his job even more important, he explained.

Hecht, 31, drove his patrol car about 30,000 miles last year and issued about 60 tickets resulting in total fines of $10,000.

That may not seem like a lot, but, "If I wasn't here, it would be unreal."

The weighmaster is an employee of the county Road Commission, but is also deputized by the sheriff's department. He carries a handgun on his hip and if he happens to be the closest patrol car to an accident or crime, can perform the normal duties of a deputy.

All counties in the state have their own weighmasters plus the Michigan Public Service Commission has its own. One of the latter, who lives in Caro, primarily works in Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties.

Hecht was a police officer in Vassar for three years. He has been weighmaster since February, 1974.

ABOUT 80 PERCENT of his time is spent patrolling the county's 1,700 miles of roads.

He usually stays on the primary roads, where most of the truck traffic is. A favored location is close to gravel pits.

The main problems he has had, he said, is with gravel trucks and ones hauling sugar beets, although he has fewer troubles with the latter than he once did.

He routinely pulls over heavy trucks for weighing.

A driver cannot refuse to have his truck weighed if Hecht pulls him over. If the driver does refuse, he gets arrested. That has happened twice during his time as weighmaster. Other arrests have been made when drivers harassed him.

HECHT WEIGHS trucks with four scales he carries in the trunk of his car. The scales weigh about 70 pounds each. "They get heavy," he said with a smile.

He can weigh two axles at a time, one scale going in front of the wheel at one end of the axle, the other scale going at the other end of the axle. The driver must then pull the truck onto the scales.

Adding the weight for the two scales gives him the total weight per axle. Adding the weights for each axle gives the total weight of the truck.

Once the weights are recorded off the four scales (for two axles), the driver backs the truck off and the scales are moved, axle by axle, until the total weight is recorded.

Michigan law permits up to 11 axles on a truck (tractor and trailer combined).

On a Class B road, for instance, on other than the steering axle, the weight limit is 13,000 pounds per axle. The maximum total weight allowed is 160,000 pounds, which is the most allowed of any state in the nation.

THE SCALES ARE A few inches high and if a truck is too overloaded, geared too high or doesn't have enough power, it may not be able to climb onto them.

In such an instance, Hecht must escort the truck to the nearest state scales, which are at Birch Run, about mid-way between Saginaw and Flint.

That's what he had to do with the heaviest truck he has ever weighed, a double-bottom hauling gravel. It had a gross weight of 209,000 pounds, 50,000 more than allowed. The owner eventually paid a fine of $3,439.

According to the weighmaster, about 90 percent of trucks he comes in contact with are honest. Among those with the greatest temptation to cheat are gravel haulers paid by the cubic yard or tonnage, instead of by the hour. The more they haul in a load, the more they get paid.

THE MAXIMUM FINE IS 10 cents per pound overweight, if the truck is at least 5,000 pounds overweight. A truck 10,000 pounds overweight, for instance, could result in a fine of $1,000.

Drivers or owners pleading guilty appear before Magistrate Joan Maki. If they plead innocent, they are tried before District

Judge Richard F. Kern and Hecht must testify.

In addition to checking weights, Hecht also checks the permits, logbooks, driver's license and for possible arrest warrants.

He works a 40-hour week but sets his own hours. He normally is on the road weekdays during daylight hours, which is when most truck traffic is heaviest, but a few times a month, he will work at night or on week ends. When road weight restrictions are in effect each spring, it's a seven-day a week job. Fall, when sugar beets are being hauled, is another busy season.

Hecht keeps his patrol car at his Vassar area home when off-duty as he can get a call at any hour from a police officer asking him to come weigh a truck the officer has stopped.

ANOTHER TASK FOR Hecht is to issue permits, either for trucks hauling overweight cargo, such as a bulldozer, or for wider than the normally allowed 8 feet.

The weighmaster actually only records the weight or dimensions. The driver or owner then goes to the Road Commission office to get the permit.

Shops building special heavy-duty freight trailers request Hecht to come and test weigh the rig.

But most of his time, as mentioned, is spent on patrol and there he feels he has made an impact.

"When I first took the job, there were quite a few violations," he commented. Now, he doesn't find as many.

Nelson mute in armed robbery

Michael B. Nelson, 23, of Clarkston, stood mute Monday to a charge of armed robbery in connection with the March 15 robbery of the Ku Ku Kow Restaurant in Caro.

Circuit Judge Martin E. Clements entered a plea of innocent and scheduled hearing of pretrial motions June 4.

Nelson, who is also facing charges in an Alpena armed robbery, is being held in lieu of $25,000 bond.

A charge against his supposed accomplice in the Ku Ku Kow robbery, Charles Mersino, 22, also of Clarkston, was recently dismissed by District Judge Richard F. Kern who ruled at the preliminary examination that a confession he had given in Alpena was not given voluntarily.

Prosecutor Artis Noel is appealing Kern's ruling. Mersino was sent back to Alpena, where he is charged in the same robbery with Nelson. The two were arrested in the northern Michigan community.

The pair are also believed to have been involved in several other robberies in various communities across the state.

Also Monday, Paul M. Corba, 20, of 6370 Gunnell Road, Millington, pleaded guilty to taking and using a motorcycle without authority.

His plea was accepted and sentencing scheduled June 19. Bond was continued.

The motorcycle was taken March 13 in Arbelia township.

The charge of attempted larceny in a building against Lee V. Latimer, 20, of Akron was dismissed.

He pleaded guilty in April, 1978 to attempted larceny in a building in connection with the theft of two snow tires, after which sentencing was delayed a year. The charge was dismissed as Latimer complied with all the provisions of his probation during the past year.

DISTRICT COURT

Randal D. Ramsey, 18, of 6764 Main Street, Cass City, pleaded guilty Friday to larceny under $100 in connection with breaking into the coin box of a game machine at the Charmont April 13.

Judge Richard F. Kern accepted the plea and scheduled sentencing May 21. Ramsey is free on personal recognizance bond.

May 2, Jeff Auvil, 20, of 3825 Pringle Road, Snover, pleaded guilty to failure to stop and identify at a property damage accident.

His plea was accepted and he was fined $25 and assessed $30 court costs or in lieu of that, sentenced to two days in the county jail.

He was arrested on the charge Feb. 3 in Gagetown.

Nutrition activities scheduled in Sanilac

The Sanilac County Nutrition Council has several activities planned for Nutrition Week, May 14-18.

At 1 p.m. Monday, the Commission on Aging will sponsor a lunch at Sandusky High School. Noted commentator and humorist Bud Guest will be the guest speaker, starting at 2. Reservations are needed.

Wednesday, the La Leche League will present a program from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. in the Detroit Edison building in Sandusky.

From 6-9 p.m. that day at Sandusky High School will be the nutrition fair.

Topics or programs will be blood pressure checks, infant nutrition, March of Dimes film festival, home gardening, microwave cooking demonstration, "nutrition while taking chemotherapy treatments," canning and food preservation, women-infant-child nutrition, "all the questions you wanted to ask about food stamps" and breast feeding.

During the week, the Farm Bureau speaker series will be presenting the "Fabulous Food Machine" to fourth, fifth and sixth graders. The Family Living Program of the Cooperative Extension Service will also be presenting nutrition programs before senior citizen groups and nursery schools.

The Nutrition Council is composed of the county Health Department, La Leche League, Cooperative Extension Service, Commission on Aging, Migrant Ministries, Farm Bureau, Department of Social Services, home economics teachers and others.

WEIGHING IN - Tuscola County Weighmaster Fred Hecht records the weight off the scales holding up two wheels of this trailer, which was hauling a bulldozer. After recording the weights off the two scales at the other end of the axles, he will know the total weights for the two axles. Block under wheel closest to camera keeps it at the same level as those wheels on the scales.

Reach compromise on sugar bill

U.S. Rep. Bob Traxler (D-Bay City) announced last week that the House Agriculture Committee has completed action on a bill which will assure sugar beet producers reasonable prices over the next three years.

"As soon as the House Ways and Means Committee completes its deliberations, we should have a bill on the floor of the House for a final vote," he said. Traxler expects that this vote will come before the middle of May.

Under the terms of the Traxler-supported measure, sugar growers in the 1979 crop year can expect a market price objective of 15.8 cents per pound, raw basis, and an additional direct payment of up to a half-cent per pound.

The payment provision was adopted as a compromise with the Administration, in order to hold down any price increase that consumers might face. There will be a payment limitation of $50,000 per grower per year, as with other crop support programs.

In crop years '80 and '81 producers can expect increases in the market price objective equivalent to increases in the cost of production, but not more than 7 percent in one year. This limitation is in keeping with the President's anti-inflation program. Payment authority will continue in each of these years.

Authority for the current loan program will continue under the new bill. In this way producers who find the market price to be lower than the price objective can choose to place their sugar under loan rather than sell it at depressed prices.

Traxler also reported that "standby" authority is provided in the bill, which mandates the use of import quotas on foreign sugar should the use of import fees be insufficient to bring the price of sugar up to the market objective level.

Kindergarten round-up set in Kingston

Kingston Elementary School round-up will be at 9 a.m. Friday.

Parents of children who are or will be age five by Dec. 1 should attend. This year, students will be tested for hearing and vision problems prior to the start of school.

In addition to bringing their child to get acquainted with the room, parents should bring birth certificate or hospital record and immunization record.

Pleasure mad people are mad because they find no pleasure.

Tuscola county wins national award

Tuscola county has been honored by the National Association of Counties (NACo) for its solid waste management plan.

Tuscola was named a 1979 achievement award winner by NACo President Charlotte Williams. Achievement awards are presented to counties who have developed new programs which enhance or expand county services to citizens.

In making the announcement, Williams congratulated the 1979 achievement award counties for their "special sensitivity to citizen needs and their efforts to strengthen county government."

Williams explained that achievement award case studies "are distributed by NACo to other counties to serve as examples of innovative programs."

The National Association of Counties is the spokesman for county government in the United States. The nation's counties represent approximately 98 percent of the United States population.

County achievement awards will be presented at NACo's 1979 annual conference in Kansas City, Mo., July 14-18.

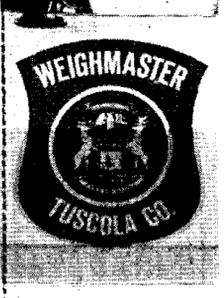

The Tuscola county plan has each township or village having their own sanitary landfill (only two do, one of which is Cass City) or contracting for use of one by their residents.

In addition, some allow contract with refuse disposal firms to pick up their residents' trash.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE IN WHO'S WHO TO KNOW WHAT'S WHAT, by Sam Levenson. Here - with commentary by best-selling author and entertainer Sam Levenson - is a delightful collection of folk humor, a blend of comedy and common sense in which the world's VUPs (Very Unimportant People) express themselves. On the population explosion ("Somewhere on this globe, every ten seconds, there is a woman giving birth to a child. She must be found and stopped!"). On the UN ("They sure get along like brothers - Cain and Abel.") On doctors ("House calls are now made only by burglars.") And on just about everything else in our modern age - from automation to women's lib.

THE YOUNG ACTORS' WORKBOOK, by Judith Seto (non-fiction). "The young actor's workbook" is an acting tool which will be invaluable to all junior high-teen-age-young adult thespians. It is comprised of scenes especially selected for young actors to help them learn to act through roles appropriate to youngsters. The selections are taken from major and important plays ranging from "The effect of Gamma rays" to "Member of the Wedding," "Manchild in the Promised Land" to "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" - over 50 plays altogether. Each scene is explained in detail, with acting tips, direction and exercises included for each one, making this not just an anthology but a real workbook.

A NECESSARY WOMAN, by Helen van Slyke (fiction). The chance winning of a door prize - a cruise to the South Pacific - changed the life of 38-year-old Mary Farr Morgan and those nearest to her. A thousand uncertainties preceded that bleak winter morning when she sailed from San Francisco, leaving behind the charming, unrealistic husband she'd loved and supported for 15 years. When she returned she would have made the most important decision of her life: whether to stay married to a man she pitied but could not respect. So begins Helen Van Slyke's eighth novel, her most compelling and richly romantic story to date.

BLOOD DRIVE - Cass City High School students donated more than 60 pints of blood during the Student Council sponsored blood drive Monday. Among those giving a pint was junior Doug McArthur. Taking it was Red Cross nurse Ming Rockafellow.

Pupil search ruled illegal

Attorney General Frank J. Kelley has ruled that public school administrators may not search student lockers or cars without first obtaining search warrants.

In an opinion written for Rep. Bela Kennedy, (R-Bangor), Kelley said school administrators may want to search lockers or student cars on school property in an effort to find weapons, narcotics or other illegal substances, but court opinions have clearly established that students have constitutional rights while at school.

"It's indeed unfortunate that the presence of narcotics, weapons or other materials may prompt school administrators to want to search lockers or cars, but the law clearly protects the constitutional rights of students and requires a search warrant," Kelley said.

However, it was noted a search warrant may not be needed if there are "exigent circumstances . . . which make it impractical to obtain the warrant" or the student has waived right to warrants.

"Students have a reasonable expectation of privacy where the school grants them use of school property for a locker or a parking space . . . Therefore, to invade this privacy, a search warrant is required unless exigent circumstances are present," the attorney general concluded.

Spring is fix-up time

Spring fix-up time provides an ideal opportunity for homeowners to complete energy-saving improvements that will make their homes cooler this summer and warmer next winter.

"Better weather makes it easier to start those winter-delayed jobs such as installing insulation, storm doors and windows, weatherstripping and other improvements which add to home comfort and cut fuel bills," according to David Froh, Acting Director of the Michigan Department of Commerce Energy Administration.

Froh emphasized the state's "Project Conserve" program is still operating and can provide homeowners with individualized energy-saving steps tailored to their homes.

Already 55,000 Michigan homeowners have taken advantage of the computerized energy audit which includes consideration of the location of the home, area weather conditions and local fuel, material and labor costs.

Homeowners are asked to fill out a questionnaire about their homes' heating and cooling conditions and return it in a postage-paid envelope. They get back a computerized "Homeowner Report" analyzing their homes' energy use along with suggested improvements for greater energy savings.

Michigan citizens who have not yet participated in Project Conserve can do so by calling 1-800-292-1556, toll-free, or by writing Project Conserve, Energy Administration, Michigan Department of Commerce, P.O. Box 30228, Lansing, Mich. 48909.

Gagetown has new policeman

The village of Gagetown has a new police officer, James Southworth of Sebewaing.

The former police officer in that community was hired Monday night by the council. He will be working 30 hours a week and will start as soon as his uniform is ready.

The council authorized expenditure of $18,094 to Frank Strausberg & Son of Saginaw for paving on Third Street and Dodge Road, which was done last week.

It agreed to pay $1,240 as its 50 percent share for the new fire siren. Elmwood township will pay the other half. The siren has been installed but as of Tuesday, was still being tested.

Councilman David Abbe and Chuck Wright were appointed to go to Bronner Christmas Decorations in Frankenmuth and purchase $1,000 in Christmas decorations for the village.

Paced by Steve Richards who scored a double win in the 880 and mile runs the Cass City Red Hawks finished third in the boys' division of the first annual Cass City Invitational Saturday.

Bulldogs rack up 3 more victories

Owen-Gage won two baseball games from visiting North Huron Monday, 15-0 and 6-0.

The wins put the Bulldogs at 7-4 for the season, 4-2 in the North Central D League.

Winning pitcher in the first game was Dick Glidden, who gave up one hit, no walks and struck out 11. The game ended after five innings because of the 10-run mercy rule. He had a no-hitter going until the fifth, when Merrit Ligrow got the Warriors' lone hit, a bunt single.

Losing pitcher was Gerald Krajenka, relieved after three innings by Kevin Kennedy. They combined for 12 walks, three strikeouts and nine hits.

Contributing to the Bulldog output were Jim Hendershot with two singles, Mark McDonald with a single and a triple, Glidden with a single and a double and Doug Laurie with a double.

In the nightcap, sophomore pitcher Jim Kuhr won his first game, striking out nine, walking one and giving up two hits.

Ligrow was the losing pitcher. He gave up seven hits and two walks and struck out three.

Jeff Hallock hit a double and a single for the winners, Hendershot had two singles, as did McDonald, and Pete Klemkowsky had a triple.

It's a busy week ahead for Phil Gray's squad, which plays at Caseville Thursday, against Lakers in the Port Austin tournament Saturday, hosts Kingston Monday and plays makeup games at Peck Tuesday, postponed from May 3 because of rain.

Bad Axe hit a double and a single for the winners, Hendershot had two singles, as did McDonald, and Pete Klemkowsky had a triple.

Bulldog 9 keeps winning

Coach Judy Campbell is still experimenting with pitchers, but while she is experimenting, her Owen-Gage Bulldogs keep winning.

The team took two from North Huron at Gageton Monday, 13-4 and 13-3, to run their season mark to 8-0 overall, 6-0 in the league.

Jan Rapson went the distance on the mound for the Bulldogs in the 13-4 first game without giving up a hit. She struck out eight and walked seven.

Becky Howard went two-for-three, a single and a home run, and Bonnie Lamirande also went two-for-three, both singles.

Losing pitcher was Kelly Moore, who also pitched the whole game. She gave up nine hits and six walks and struck out three.

Winning pitcher in the second game was Dana Laurie, who had never been on the mound before. She pitched the entire game, gave up two hits, walked seven and struck out five.

Kelly Moore was again the losing pitcher, striking out three and giving up 14 hits.

Taking advantage of her were Julie Andrakowicz, two doubles; Dana Laurie, two singles and a double; Laurie Andrakowicz, two singles and a double; Karla Kretschmer, two singles; Leeann Ellicott, two singles, and Terri Sontag, two singles.

The Bulldogs are at Caseville Thursday, entertain Kingston Monday, and are at Peck Tuesday, the last game being a makeup of a rainout last Thursday.

Grant Hutchinson's '30 Ford all rebuilt

Grant Hutchinson has a brand new car -- built 49 years ago.

It's a 1930 Ford Model A 4-door deluxe sedan which he restored over the winter months and finished a few weeks ago.

It's the second Model A Hutchinson, 59, has owned. The first was a roadster, which he owned in high school. He bought it for $50 and sold it for $75. "I wish I had held onto it."

The Rolling Hills Airport owner restored a plane last summer, basically recovering the wings and some minor other items, and decided it was finally time to fulfill his long-time ambition to restore a car. The latter was more difficult, he said.

Hutchinson paid $2,600 for the car, which had most of the parts, although some were in boxes.

The car's recent life is rather interesting. It was owned by an Ohio man, who sold it to a man in Florida. He didn't get around to restoring it, so sold it to a man in Caro. He also couldn't find the time, so sold it to the man in Vassar, who had the same problem, who sold it to Hutchinson.

The Cass Cityan got the car last September and started work the next month. He worked on it quite steadily for about three months. So steadily, in fact, his wife, Mary, commented, "I thought I had lost him to the car."

Except for the engine, Hutchinson took the car apart down to the bare frame rails. The engine was supposedly rebuilt by one of the previous owners, but "doesn't sound too good," so he plans to give it some future attention.

The toughest parts of the job were the sanding and upholstery. "I thought the sanding was bad but the upholstery was worse."

The body had some rust spots but wasn't too bad. The fenders were in much worse shape and required a lot of patching. New replacement steel fenders can be purchased, "but at $185 apiece, you can afford to fix them (the old ones)."

Hutchinson did all the body preparation work, with Al Seeley doing the painting (black, of course).

The restorer described the upholstery work as the "fussiest" job he had to do. Adrian Hutchinson, a distant relative, helped him. The upholstery, which comes in a kit, was ordered last October but didn't come until April, which delayed completion of the project.

The only other part of the job he had help on was in building the top bows to support the fabric roof. They also can be purchased in a kit, but Hutchinson made them from scratch with the help of Fay McComb, who usually builds larger things, such as houses.

Including his original $2,600, Hutchinson figures he has put about $4,000 into the car. Considering the car cost less than $800 new -- and it was one of Ford's top models

-- that sounds like a lot. On the other hand, he has seen the same model cars in restored like-new condition advertised for $7,000 and up.

The owner describes the 40 horsepower 4-cylinder car as very easy to drive and Mary Hutchinson says it is very quiet inside.

On the agenda for this summer are a couple of antique car meets. And then? -- Hutchinson is looking for a Model A coupe to restore, preferably with a rumble seat.

LIKE NEW -- A proud Grant Hutchinson and his 1930 Ford Model A 4-door deluxe, then one of Ford's top models. The Milligan Road resident has about $4,000 invested in his car but could probably sell it if he wanted to for at least $7,000.

INSIDE -- The interior of Hutchinson's Model A, although spartan by today's standards, was fancy in comparison to standard model Fords in its day. It's all in brown and duplicates the original.

Bill Spencer in Spain for study program

"Adios, amigos," may have been what William Spencer of Ublly exclaimed to his colleagues at Alma College as he departed for a four-week intensive spring term program in Madrid, Spain.

He and two other students traveled to Spain May 2 to study Spanish conversation and composition at Estudio Internacional Sempere (EIS) in Madrid, a private school established in 1951.

Alma College in cooperation with EIS has organized this program which lasts through May 25.

The students participate in morning intensive language classes conducted by native Spanish teachers. Lectures on topics of interest in Spanish civilization are held in the afternoon.

When not in the classroom, the students visit Old Madrid, the Rastra, monuments, the Prado Museum, Toledo (El Greco), Segovia (Roman ruins) and other points of interest. Before each excursion, students are informed of the history and interesting facts pertaining to the important sights, historical events, and art work.

Plays and current films are also an integral part of the experience.

The students reside in homes where they are further exposed to the Spanish way of life, foods and customs.

Bill, a 1969 graduate of Cass City High School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Spencer of Germania Road, Ublly. He is a French major at Alma.

HEALTH TIPS
High blood pressure can kill

May is designated as National High Blood Pressure Education Month. This is a cooperative effort of 150 national organizations, including the American Red Cross. The goal is to reduce the prevalence of hypertension, which is often called the "silent killer" because high blood pressure usually has no symptoms. According to the national high blood pressure education program developed by the National Institutes of Health, the first step in controlling the disease is knowing the blood pressure reading. "We always take each donor's blood pressure as a part of our regular pre-collection medical history at all bloodmobiles," explained Dr. Frank Hodges, blood center medical director for Flint Red Cross Blood Services. "This is just one of the steps we take to be sure it is safe for the donor to give blood on that day," he added.

No recommendation or diagnosis about the blood pressure reading of the donor is made by the registered nurse taking the reading. However, should the donor be deferred because of a too-high reading, he/she is given a card with the numbers noted and urged to consult with his/her personal physician.

According to the National Institute of Health, 23 million Americans have high blood pressure and only a handful of these are adequately controlled. Without proper control, high blood pressure can lead to heart failure, stroke, kidney disease, or a number of other killers. If discovered in time, however, high blood pressure can be treated under a physician's recommended program.

High blood pressure cannot be cured, but it can usually be controlled. The treatment will probably last the person's lifetime and may consist of medication, diet modification, weight control, and exercise. In many instances, therapy may be as simple as one pill a day.

The American Red Cross, a United Way member agency, reminds everyone that a donor may be deferred on one occasion because of a high blood pressure reading, but this does not permanently keep them from giving blood.

The reading may be lower the next time they come to give, and if they are controlling their blood pressure with two or less doses of medication a day, they will generally be accepted.

Anyone can make money, but few know how to spend it wisely.

Huron commissioners ok valuation of $523 million

The Huron County Board of Commissioners last Thursday approved a total equalized valuation for the county of $523.14 million. The amount, approved 6-1, is $69 million more than the 1978 total. The 1979 valuation consists of $69.435 for real property and $26.71 million for personal property. Although property taxes are based on valuation, tax increases this year will be limited due to provisions of the Headlee amendment to the state constitution.

The new valuation is based on values compiled by Great Lakes Appraisal Service of Lansing in a county-wide reappraisal of all real property.

Because the figures are expected to represent true cash value, no factor is expected from the State Tax Commission. A factor imposed last year raised valuations about 14 percent.

Although there was only one dissenting vote, from the commissioner from Harbor Beach, other commissioners weren't necessarily pleased with the Great Lakes study and others involved in the equalization process.

Bruce Kuhl of Bay Port said his Fair Haven township farm was assessed $300 per acre higher than what sales in the township show. He claimed sales in the three surrounding townships were used to determine farmland values in his township.

"I'll vote for this because it's the best we have come up with," he commented, "but that's not equalization."

The now approved study, which goes to the State Tax Commission, included valuations for the following townships (1978 figures in parentheses): Bingham, $15,908,900 ($14,694,797); Brookfield, $24,365,000 ($21,402,733); Grant, $10,589,224 ($9,615,405); and Sheridan, $10,298,230 ($10,051,032).

Alfalfa management

By William Bortel

Farmers can get increased alfalfa yields of higher quality by knowing five key factors to good forage management.

To get higher yields of good quality, alfalfa must be a good hardy variety, fertilized annually, harvested early, kept free of pests and stored properly.

Good stands of alfalfa on well drained soil must be fertilized annually to replace potash (K<sub>2</sub>O) and phosphate (P<sub>2</sub>O<sub>5</sub>) losses due to harvest. At least 10 pounds of P<sub>2</sub>O<sub>5</sub> and 45 pounds of K<sub>2</sub>O are removed with every ton of alfalfa harvested from a field.

Early harvest is the single most important factor in forage quality. Cutting should begin on established stands at the late bud to early bloom stage when the farmer can see one or two flowers when he is in the field. In Tuscola county, the first cuttings should be around June 1 and consecutive cuttings every 35 to 40 days afterward.

Special immunization clinics set

The Sanilac County Health Department has scheduled two special immunization clinics this month.

They will be Thursday, May 17, and Thursday, May 31, from 3-7 p.m. both days.

The regular clinics are this Thursday and Wednesday, May 16, from 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m.

All school age children needing to update their immunizations are invited to attend the special clinics.

Immunizations against diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, measles, mumps, rubella and polio will be available free of charge.

Those attending any May clinics should make sure it is at least four weeks since their last immunization. The clinics are at the Health Department office, 115 N. Elk Street, Sandusky.

A parent or guardian must accompany their children and parents are asked to bring a record of their previous immunizations.

Advantages to early harvest include increased cuttings per year, usually three or four, which could mean a potential yield of up to eight tons per acre per year. Early harvest increases levels of total digestible nutrients (TDN), protein and consumption by animals. Each day harvest is delayed, these quality factors decrease by one-half of one percent.

Pest control is important to better alfalfa yields. Pest problems are minimized when the field is properly fertilized and harvested early.

Proper harvest and storage depend on the moisture content of the forage. Farmers should strive to bale hay at the highest moisture possible (15 to 18 percent) without mold or heat damage resulting.

Haylage should be cut at 50 to 60 percent moisture to ensure good packing and exclusion of air for proper fermentation. Storage in vertical silos has proven to be more effective in maintaining good quality than storage in bunker silos.

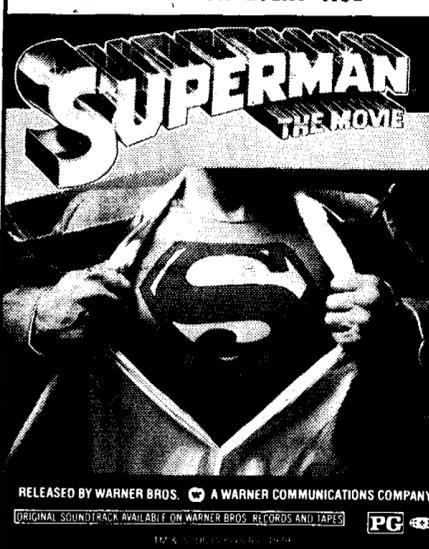

Correct moisture content in alfalfa has been hard to judge. There are moisture meters on the market, but few are very accurate. Some accuracy has been noted with forced hot air dryers that weigh freshly cut forage, dry it for 20 minutes and reweigh it.

One should strive to make the best quality forage possible, because there's always plenty of poor quality forage to go around.

Committee for gifted hears parents from Lakeville

"Ask for the gifted child what every parent wants for his child -- the opportunity to learn all he is able to learn."

That was the advice given to members of the Tuscola County Committee for the Gifted April 25 by parents of the Lakeville School District.

Sharon Rassumen and Karen Bell outlined the steps by which the Lakeville parent group worked for the support of their school board which last year implemented two full-time classrooms for academically talented children. They stressed working with the school board, administration, and staff in a positive way for a program which meets the special needs of the bright student. These academically talented children often become bored and frustrated in the regular classroom. Mrs. Rassumen stated that 17 percent of school drop outs are gifted children.

The Tuscola county committee is taking memberships from interested persons who wish to learn more about education for gifted children. Committees are being formed to plan programs, compile a newsletter and write a constitution.

For more information, write to the Tuscola County Committee for the Gifted in care of: Business Office, Mayville High School, Mayville 48744, and give your phone number. A member of the steering committee will telephone.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, May 15, at 7 p.m. Mary and Bill Carroll from Millington will talk about opportunities for summer activities at Camp Lumenquest and ways in which parents can stimulate and encourage their gifted child.

The meeting will be at the Tuscola Intermediate School District, 1385 Cleaver Road, Caro. All interested persons are invited.

Dance slated at Sandusky

The YMCA Singles Club of Sandusky will have a dance Saturday evening at Sandusky High School.

Music will be by Calvin Weltin. Anyone who is over 25, single, widowed or divorced can join the club.
