

Fair still scheduled

Arson suspected in fairgrounds blaze

There will be a Tuscola County Fair this year.

There will also be a place for spectators to sit.

Other than that, there hadn't been too much decided by Tuesday in the aftermath of the apparently arson-caused fire Monday afternoon that destroyed the grandstand, restroom building and two food stands at the county fairgrounds in Caro.

Caro Fire Chief Don Berry estimated the loss at about $100,000.

Arson is suspected, he said, as the woman who reported the fire to the sheriff's department at 3 p.m. said she had seen two youths running from the grandstand just before she noticed the fire.

As of Tuesday afternoon, investigation by Caro police and the sheriff's department was still underway.

The fire started, Berry said, under the seats at the east end of the structure.

By the time his department arrived at the scene, there was no hope of saving the structure. The cantilever roof fell within 22 minutes. Firemen were there until 6:30 p.m., then came back at 9 for an hour-and-a-half to spray hot spots.

Ironically, the grandstand was built in 1937 to replace one which had burned — also about six weeks before the fair, according to fair Manager Walt Jackson. The fair this year is July 29-Aug. 4.

The grandstand had a seating capacity of 3,000. Bleachers in front held another 500. About two-thirds of the bleachers were aluminum and were not damaged.

Strong winds helped spread the flames from the grandstand to the cement block restroom right behind and also to two closely food stands, one owned by the Fairgrove Methodist church and the other by 4-H. Paint was blistered on the Lions Club food stand.

THE DAMAGE WASN'T only to buildings.

The fairgrounds and all structures except the food stands are owned by the village of Caro, which leases it to the fair association.

Lost was all the equipment stored underneath the grandstand. That consisted of a dump truck, trencher truck, truck used for transporting work crews, truck-mounted air compressor, antique tractor, leaf vacuum, sickle bar mower, tires, lumber and some odds and ends — all village owned — and a county-owned trailer-mounted generator.

The grandstand was insured for $40,000, according to Caro Village Manager Don Dugger, which is what he felt it was worth.

He estimated value of the village-owned trucks, which were old, and other equipment at $10,000.

He thought the total $100,000 loss estimate by the fire chief might be a little high.

REGARDLESS OF THE accuracy of the estimate, the problem for the village and fair association board of directors is that insurance won't cover the replacement cost of what was lost.

A covered grandstand, Dugger speculated, might cost $250,000 "but that's probably out of reach."

Jackson said bleachers might have to be installed now, with a roof to be possibly added later.

Prior to the fire, he added, the fair association had been in good shape financially, but, "When you're talking about building a grandstand, then we're not sitting too well."

Yet to be explored is whether the fair association will have to bear all the cost beyond what is recovered from insurance or whether the village will pay part.

Normally, the association is responsible for paying for building improvements, Dugger said, with the village in charge of doing routine maintenance.

ALSO TO BE EXPLORED is whether bleachers or a grandstand can be permanently installed in time for the fair or whether temporary portable bleachers will have to be rented or borrowed.

Both Jackson and Dugger were making telephone calls Tuesday to bleacher manufacturers and suppliers.

They both indicated that the restroom building will also have to be replaced by fair time. Replacement of the two food stands will be up to the organizations that owned them.

A meeting was tentatively scheduled Wednesday night of village council and fair board members to explore various options and decide what to do.

RUBBLE and four burned out trucks were all that remained after the grandstand in Caro burned Monday. Aluminum bleachers, part of which can be seen at lower right, were not damaged. The destroyed restroom building is at upper left.

Bids under estimate, vocational center underway

Cost of the county vocational education center will be slightly under the estimate, the Tuscola Intermediate School District (ISD) Board of Education learned Tuesday evening.

With the board approving most bids at its special session then, survey work by the excavator, the first step in construction, was to start Wednesday.

The bids approved, plus low bids on a few categories to be awarded later, totaled $2,732,034.

With $28,000 in various alternates added, Michael Stowe of the construction management firm of Elzinga and Volkers said, the cost will be $44,000 under his firm's estimate.

Including engineering fees and miscellaneous expenses the total will be close to $2.8 million.

Federal funds administered by the state Department of Education will pay part of that cost and it appears more likely the state will contribute more than its original intended share, ISD Supt. Bruce Dunn told the board.

At the time county voters approved a 1.75 mill levy for construction and operation of the vocational center, in April, 1978, the state was guaranteeing it would contribute $1.066 million in federal funds for construction. That was based on a total cost of $25 per square foot, with the state's share being half. The other half was to come from the millage.

Even then, $25 per square foot was considered too low, Dunn said, which was borne out when bids were opened June 12.

Now that the exact cost is known, he explained, the district can go to Lansing and ask the state to pay half the difference between $2.132 million (two times $1.066 million) and the final construction cost.

Since the Department of Education committed its original share, a federal judge ordered $5 million in additional federal vocational education funds — originally intended for outstate areas — to all be spent for building vocational centers in Detroit. The ruling was part of the school integration case that has been going on for several years.

Detroit is to put up $5 million of its own funds, but it now appears the building program there won't be far enough along by the end of the federal and state fiscal year, Sept. 30, for the $10 million total to be spent.

That would free some of the federal money to be spent elsewhere, and with Tuscola second on the priority list behind the Motor City, Dunn said, "every day it looks more encouraging" that the ISD will get some of the federal money.

If none of that revenue is received, the ISD will have to pay the approximately $700,000 extra out of the county millage, which would mean less money from that source will be available to operate the center after its scheduled opening in September, 1980.

That might mean not all of the 24 skill job areas would be open the first year in order to save money.

With or without the state picking up half the excess, the situation isn't as grim as it was at one time, as the ISD has received about $100,000 in state vocational education aid that it never qualified for until it started levying the vocational millage, plus increased interest rates have contributed about $100,000 more than originally anticipated to the building money sitting in the bank until it is spent.

Bids for the project were opened in 39 separate categories, of which only a few were not awarded.

Among major bids awarded were excavation and grading, Owens & Stroman Excavating, Imlay City, $359,519; bituminous paving, Valley Asphalt, Saginaw, $122,623; concrete, R.C. Hendrick & Son, Saginaw, $197,100; masonry, Edgar Boettcher Mason Contractor, Saginaw, $382,780; structural steel and erection and joists, Zanner's Products and Sales, Tawas City, $158,538; roofing, Kawkawlin Roofing, Kawkawlin, $137,960; plumbing, heating and air conditioning, Davanay Plumbing and Heating, Flint, $478,000, and electrical, K & H Electric, Free-land, $326,471.

The only category in which only one bid was received was for excavating, but seeking new bids, Stowe of the construction management firm explained, would have delayed the project and there was a good chance no additional bids would have been received.

Otherwise, low bids were awarded with a couple of necessary exceptions.

He also said local contractors were contacted and encouraged to bid but the job was apparently too big for them to handle without giving up other work or they were already scheduled to work on other projects.

Bids for excavating and paving included work to be done at the special education center, for which construction bids are to be opened July 3.

When completed, the structure will provide job training for about 900 youngsters per day.

Celebration Sunday in Gagetown

100th anniversary at St. Agatha's

It was on June 21, 1879 that Bishop Caspar H. Borgess appointed Father Clement T.B. Krebs as resident priest in charge of "the mission of Gagetown... embracing the townships of Sebawaing, Brookfield, Grant and Sheridan in Huron county and all the Catholics of Tuscola county."

That day marked the beginning of St. Agatha Parish.

Parishioners of the church in Gagetown will be celebrating its 100th anniversary Sunday with a rededication of the church. Bishop Francis F. Reh will be celebrating mass Saturday and Sunday. (See accompanying story.)

Father Krebs, 27, had only been ordained two weeks before receiving his assignment.

When he got to Gagetown, he found a community of about 40 Catholic families in the immediate vicinity, although the parish covered a much larger area.

Sunday masses were conducted in the Anthony Mosack wagon shop on State Street, with Mosack hanging sheets to cover the dingy walls.

The first church, a 30-by-50 wood structure with seating for 300 persons, was dedicated Oct. 9, 1881 in honor of St. Agatha by Bishop Borgess. The church was on approximately the same site as the present structure.

A parsonage was built at about the same time to the east and was used until 1971.

AN AMBITION OF FATHER Krebs came true in 1886 when a brick three-story school was built. In August of the following year, four nuns from the Order of St. Dominic arrived to take charge. By 1890, there were 80 youngsters enrolled.

Father Krebs was in Port Huron from 1890-92 as first pastor of the new parish there.

He had more building projects in mind on his return. Echo Hall, which was the church hall and community building, was constructed on State Street to the northwest of the church.

The church was made cruciform in shape in 1893 by building of an addition across the back of the original building. The parish cemetery was enlarged the following year.

In 1897, he oversaw construction of St. Columbkille church at Sheridan Corners.

Father Krebs left Gagetown in 1900, 21 years after he had arrived. He died in 1927 in Detroit but is buried in the St. Agatha cemetery.

Father Michael J. Crowley was priest at St. Agatha from 1900-1904, during which time St. Pancratius church in Cass City, a mission of Gagetown, was begun.

FATHER PATRICK J. Dwan arrived in Gagetown in 1904. The parish was growing rapidly and he was charged with building a new church. Planning by architects, started in 1913 and construction began April 1, 1914.

Before then, the old church had to be moved to the area that is now the parking lot.

Due to interruptions because of lack of funds and difficulty in securing materials, the new building wasn't ready for dedication until Oct. 23, 1917. Capable of seating nearly 800, it had cost the parishioners close to $45,000. There wasn't enough money to complete the south tower and install all stained glass windows.

During the tenure of Father William T. Hennigan, excavation of the church basement was completed, aided by a special cart to remove dirt, which the priest had devised.

Availability of the church basement proved beneficial. A massive fire in 1925 destroyed 30 buildings in Gagetown, including the original church, which was being used as the parish hall.

FATHER JOHN G. McCullough arrived July 11, 1929. He was to remain more than 21 years, the longest a priest has served St. Agatha's.

During his time there, a new heating plant to serve the church, school and rectory was installed (1932); stained glass windows were put in in 1935; the interior was completed in 1938, and the south tower was erected in 1940.

Shortly after the installation of the first bishop of Saginaw, Most Rev. William F. Murphy, in 1938, St. Agatha was made the Deanery Parish of Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties. Father McCullough thus received the title of vicar forane or dean of the Thumb and in 1945, was invested with the robes and title of right reverend monsignor.

Strongly interested in the school, the priest managed to get state aid for it from 1942-47 and in 1945 began to raise funds to build a new school.

Built at a cost of almost $100,000, it opened for classes in March, 1950. The third floor of the old school had been the convent, so a house was moved onto the church property for the nuns to live in and the old school torn down.

The church was refurbished inside and out in time for its 75th anniversary in 1956. The cemetery was enlarged around that time.

A LOW POINT IN THE history of the church came in June, 1969, when St. Agatha School closed after 82 years of providing Catholic education. The parish still used the building after that for church classes and for a couple of years, rented it to the Owendale-Gagetown schools. Because of high heating bills, it no longer is used and is for sale.

Groundbreaking for the new rectory, built for $35,000, was in October, 1971. It replaced the original one built in 1881.

Renovation of the St. Agatha sanctuary, at a cost of approximately $60,000 was completed in time for Sunday's celebration.

The last full-time priest to serve the parish was Father Norman VanPoppelen, who served from 1974 through the end of last year before retiring.

Because of a shortage of priests, a deacon, Lambert Kuhr, was named to serve the parish full-time, which was a first in the diocese. Father Joseph Morales of St. Pancratius in Cass City conducts mass and holds the title of temporary administrator.

Including him, 22 priests have served St. Agatha's since its founding, during which time there have been 3,895 baptisms, 837 marriages and 1,043 funerals. The church presently has 210 member families or individual members.

Road levy rejected in Grant twp.

Voters in Grant township Monday overwhelmingly defeated a proposed two-mill levy for three years to finance road improvements.

The vote was 45 opposed to only 28 in favor. There were 74 votes cast — one vote was spoiled — which is a turnout of only 19.5 percent, there being about 380 registered voters in the township.

The township board will discuss at its July 16 meeting whether it wants to have another special election, but township Clerk Donald Reid doesn't think it will. "I doubt if they'll try again, not with the overwhelming rejection and the poor turnout," he commented.

If approved, the special millage would have brought in $21,178 the first year (1980) for road improvements and repairs. Grant's road budget for this year, as of the annual meeting, was $30,000, all of which comes out of the general fund.

Injuries minor in boat mishap

A boating accident on Murphy Lake Saturday sent three persons to the hospital and resulted in heavy damage to both boats involved.

Treated and released from St. Joseph Hospital in Flint after the 5:50 p.m. accident were Rev. Gilson Miller of 3442 Washington Street, Kingston, and Bruce Bowman, 19, of Millington, the two boat drivers, and Beth Ann Ruggles, 15, of 5721 E. Sanilac Road, Kingston, a passenger in the Miller boat.

Murphy Lake straddles the Millington-Watertown township line, northeast of Millington.

According to the Sheriff's Department Marine Division, Rev. Miller was driving an outboard towing two water skiers. He had turned around in the west end of the lake and was starting to head east when Bowman, headed west in his outboard, tried to cut in front of the Miller boat. Instead, his boat struck the left side of the other boat.

Bowman was ticketed by deputies on a charge of careless operation of a boat. The water skiers being towed were Dave, 14, and Doug Peter, 16, of 3074 Kingston Road, Kingston.

Owner of the boat was their mother, Jan Peter, of the same address. Marine deputies said the whole left side was broken off and estimated damage at $5,500.

Right side damage to Bowman's boat was estimated at $2,800. According to David Peter, both boats sank.

"If It Fitz. . ." We trusted Jimmy Allen

By Jim Fitzgerald

When I was a small boy, around 1935, my grandfather's horse barn was torn down and replaced by a Hi-Speed gasoline station. That's when Jimmy Allen entered my life.

Jimmy Allen starred in a radio show sponsored by Hi-Speed. In those days, Jimmy Allen was to Hi-Speed what Jack Armstrong was to Wheaties and Little Orphan Annie was to Ovaltine. If you don't remember any of those connections, you shouldn't be reading this column without parental guidance.

Jimmy Allen was an airplane pilot. He wasn't an airline captain with 22 assistants and a movie theater in his fuselage. Jimmy's head protruded permanently from an open cockpit. He flew by the seat of his control tower.

Little boys were enthralled by the dashing image of Jimmy Allen. I badgered my father to buy gas at the Hi-Speed station so I could get a free picture of Jimmy Allen's plane, or some such lagniappe. But it wasn't only the freebies that enticed me. I was convinced that any gasoline associated with Jimmy Allen had to be the most powerful propellant since Buck Rogers was goosed. It seemed entirely possible that Jimmy Allen's brand could put my dad behind the wheel of the world's first airborne Essex sedan.

Jimmy Allen disappeared beyond the horizon many years ago, along with Hi-Speed gas. If he were still around today, I don't know who he'd work for. I can't picture Jimmy doing loop-the-loops while apologizing for Exxon or Mobil.

Gasoline advertising has changed greatly since Jimmy Allen's picture was pasted to pumps. In large newspaper ads, Exxon recently said, in full:

"Exxon is not holding back products awaiting higher prices. In fact, in May of this year our deliveries of gasoline in the U.S. were slightly greater than our May deliveries last year. We can't keep this up because crude oil supplies are tight — but we're doing the best we can with what we have."

Jimmy Allen could never have been associated with such a wimpy message. He would never alibi. He would never cop out of an aerial dog-fight by whining that he was doing the best he could with what he had but he couldn't keep it up unless he got more money for his flying services.

A current Mobil advertisement urges motorists to write their congressmen in favor of a Mobil plan for relieving the energy squeeze. The plan, says Mobil, would "stimulate new U.S. petroleum exploration and production, and defuse the political rhetoric over alleged 'windfalls.'"

Jimmy Allen could defuse a rhetoric while flying upside down over a windfall, but he would do it only to combat crime and prevent pestilence. He would never do it simply to solicit mail for congressmen.

Jimmy Allen wore goggles and a leather helmet that fastened under his chin. Today, spokesmen for the oil industry wear their hearts on the outside of their morning coats so the public can see them cross their hearts and spit to die.

When Jimmy Allen's theme song said "Hi-Speed will get you there," people believed it. They were willing to pay 20 cents a gallon to get from here to there and back here again.

Today, people are told they must be charged over $1 a gallon in order to stimulate petroleum exploration and shorten lines at gas stations. People don't believe it. They think they are being hosed at the pumps. And they hesitate to drive from here to there for fear there won't be any gas there and they'll never get back here again.

What the gasoline companies want today is to be trusted the way I trusted Jimmy Allen. But it's not happening. It's too late for oil barons to slip into goggles.

Another thing that isn't happening is an alternative to gasoline-powered cars. And it's too late for my grandfather to get his horse barn back from the Hi-Speed company.

Wherever you are, Jimmy Allen, come walk with me.

Twenty years ago there would have been no doubt. Better make that 25 years ago.

When the big hot air balloon came drifting in, I'd have been one of the first in line to take a ride. Selling rides on the balloon will be a feature of the July 4 Festival, they tell me.

That really appeals to me. Finding out what it's like to drift into the air at the mercy of a capricious breeze. That's romantic, adventurous, a real thrill.

But it's 10 to one that I will never set foot in the basket attached to that big bubble.

It's taken awhile but I've finally learned to be a little cautious. I learned the hard way by experience.

I've had several lessons. The first was during one of Cass City's homecomings that were the last regularly scheduled celebration to be held here.

With the help of Warren Wood, Cass City, I was going to take a picture of the event. All went well for about the first half hour or so.

Then on the way home the plane hit a few air pockets and started to go up and down, up and down. It didn't take but about 10 minutes of that before I was leaning over the side wishing the plane would crash. I lost everything including my glasses on that trip.

Lesson number two didn't have anything to do with airplanes. It was during the

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Five more names of area residents older than the Chronicle's 88 years have been submitted by friends and relatives. That makes 16.

Mrs. William Profit of Cass City called to say that her mother, Mrs. Eliza Gilbert, 95, rightfully feels that she should be a member of the elite group. She lives in Grand Rapids but she was born and raised in Cass City. Her interests are here, too, and she reads the Chronicle every week, her daughter says. That's enough right there to make her a member in good standing.

Stanley McArthur says that Mattie Clement, who now lives at the Tuscola County Medical Facility, was 90 in May. Another member in good standing has to be Tillie Kloc of Deford. She'll be 90 June 24, Nursie Kloc, Novesta township clerk, reports.

Thelma Jackson brings us the name of Mrs. Emma Decker of Cass City. She was 93 last October.

All of these members are mere youngsters to Mrs. Clara Bird who was 97 in April, according to Mrs. Clayton Root of Cass City.

Thursday was Flag Day. Two stores were flying flags early in the morning, L & S Standard and Richard's TV and Appliance.

This information came our way from Mrs. Pat Gee who conducted her own survey.

Two were flying early Thursday but a lot more were on display before the day ended.

That's because Mrs. Gee took the time to call Main Street businesses and remind them what day it was.

Maynard Helwig scored an ace on the short par 3 number 5 hole at Rolling Hills Sunday. Playing with Jerry Toner he used a pitching wedge for his hole-in-one. It was his third at the course, all on the number 5 hole.

Helwig, who is a member of the Cass City Golf League, undoubtedly wishes that the shot could have been delayed one day. If he made the same shot on league day, Monday, each member would pay him $1 and there are about 75 members.

Speaking of golf, John Maharg, Rolling Hills owner, says that the lesson session slated Monday for ladies is staged on the practice area, not the regular course and that's why the Monday date is used. Last week the day was questioned in this column of trivia.

A former coach here was the subject of a feature in the Port Huron Times Herald. Irv Claseman who teaches at Port Huron Central is the baseball and freshman football coach there. His overall career record is 347-147. His first love, he says, is basketball which he coached at Cass City, winning district titles in six of the nine years he was here.

It's also the sport he cares the most about. He reluctantly gave it up after suffering a heart attack.

He's been gone now about 15 years but three years ago he was in town during the districts and slipped into the Cass City gym to watch the Hawks play.

And pull for them.

Rites held for Mrs. Richardson

Lorena May Richardson of Snover died Sunday at her home on Shabbona Road. She was born Aug. 25, 1906, in Greenleaf township, Sanilac county, the daughter of Edgar and Rachael (Colling) Jackson.

Miss Jackson married Nellin Richardson Oct. 12, 1929 in Greenleaf township. They moved from Uby to Shabbona Road, Snover, in 1947. Her husband died Sept. 15, 1975.

Mrs. Richardson attended the Shabbona RLDS church. She was a member of the Shabbona Extension Club, Snover Farm Bureau, Pioneer Club of Shabbona and a life member of Miriam Chapter No. 214, Order of the Eastern Star, of Uby.

She is survived by two sons, Lyle Richardson of West Bend, Wis., and Elwin Richardson of Snover; one brother, Clifford Jackson of Uby; two sisters, Mrs. Willis Brown of Cass City and Mrs. Floyd Shubel of Dearborn; five grandchildren, and one great-granddaughter.

An OES memorial service was held Tuesday evening. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from Little's Funeral Home, Cass City, with Elder Dean Smith of the Shabbona Reorganized Church of the Latter Day Saints, officiating. Burial was in Novesta cemetery.

It is estimated that there are now some 10.4 million girls in the 15-19 age group. By comparison, under the age of five, there are only 7.4 million girls.

PEDALING AROUND

Rolling in dough

By Mike Eliasohn

If only I were 12 years younger and 14 inches taller. If so, I probably wouldn't be writing this right now. Instead I would be tooling around town in my $35,000 Mercedes-Benz, spending money I hadn't earned yet.

If only I had been born with the skills of a great basketball player. All I would have to do is sweat in the professional ranks for 10 years, smelling other players' armpits, and I would be fixed for life.

As an example, I point to Larry Bird, late of Indiana State, who signed with the Boston Celtics for $650,000 a year over five years.

I assume he will get the money even if he stubs his toe in the first game of his professional career and never plays another one.

Then there are the Michigan State University marvels, Earvin (Magic) Johnson and Greg Kessler.

At a ceremony at MSU a couple of weeks ago to retire their jerseys, each showed up driving a new $35,000 Mercedes-Benz 450 SEL.

Presumably their credit is good, since neither has signed yet with a professional team. Hopefully they didn't earn enough money while playing college basketball to buy cars like that. If they did, I think the National Collegiate Athletic Association better put MSU back on probation.

Johnson is supposed to be signing with the Los Angeles Lakers for slightly less than what Larry Bird will get.

(the gas station line will be just as long for his Mercedes as it will be for Joe Blow's '67 Chevy), while the National Basketball Association champion Seattle Supersonics are, to quote the newspapers, "interested" in Kessler.

That's confidence. He doesn't even have a job yet and he buys a $35,000 car. There are lots of people with jobs, and they're driving 10-year-old clunkers. (Mine is only nine years old.)

I can't call the collegiate basketball stars who sign for such money greedy. If the owners of the NBA teams want to be saps and pay their players such big sums, who can blame them for taking it.

That is what the team owners are, saps, though it's hard to feel sorry for them since they are all millionaires. If they want to throw away their hard earned millions on round ball players, that's their problem.

Let me use Larry Bird as an example.

There used to be two professional basketball leagues, bidding against each other for the top players. Now there is only one league, the NBA.

The teams in the NBA conduct a draft of players so that only one team has the right to negotiate with a player. (The draft is June 25.)

Now along comes superstar Larry Bird, asking for $700,000, or something like that. The Celtics only offered him $500,000 at first, so they eventually raised their offer $150,000, while Bird came down $50,000.

But where else was he going to go? He could have gone to Europe, where round basketball is getting increasingly popular. The game isn't so big there, however, that a team could afford to pay him $650,000.

According to our summer reporter, who knows more about sports than I do, college players who complete their eligibility can sit out a year if they don't like the offer from the team that drafts them. After that, they can negotiate with any team.

So Bird could have twiddled his thumbs for a year and maybe got his $700,000 a year or whatever he wanted. But still, the owners wouldn't have to offer him such a fabulous sum if it didn't want to. They could have made an under the table agreement not to bid against each other.

Of course, that wouldn't happen. What can you expect from a group of men who think people are still interested in basketball in June, which is when the NBA playoffs end.

Presumably the owners can afford it, otherwise, they wouldn't pay the fantastic salaries, but maybe they don't have to be able to afford it. After all, it's the fans who buy the tickets who get stuck with the bill.

GETTING ALONG

A really good education would include a course in human nature and human conduct.

Help wanted

Herron asks community residents to lend a hand in festival preparation

"We've got to have more community cooperation and help," said Tom Herron, chairman of the Fourth of July Festival at an informal meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night.

Herron not only encouraged area clubs, groups and organizations to offer their help in setting up for the festivities, but he stressed that other members of the community who do not belong to any group should assist in any way they can.

"This celebration is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, but its fate will depend on whether members of the community will get involved and make this thing a success," Herron said.

He encouraged anyone who is willing to help set up tables, chairs and booths for the festivities at the recreation park to meet at the football stadium at 7 p.m. Monday night, July 2.

"Anyone with a pickup truck is badly needed to haul the tables and chairs," Herron said. "We would like to see the entire community of Cass City have a hand in this."

People over the age of 21 are also needed the day of the festival to help work in the Chamber's beer tent at the Charmont.

"We're not asking that people work the entire day, just a couple of hours to spread the work load around so that everyone will be able to have an enjoyable time," Herron said.

Other areas where workers are needed include the tractor and pony pulling events, parking and directing traffic and help in the clean-up after the festival.

"We would like to encourage organizations and clubs to send members to help in these areas," Herron said. "We need the entire city to cooperate on this event if the first one is going to be successful."

Lighted match starts gas fire in Kappen camper

Les Kappen learned Friday afternoon what he already knew -- don't check for gas leaks with a lighted match.

Kappen, of 4297 Ale Street, had just installed a new propane gas tank in the compartment of his pickup camper.

He didn't feel like going back into his house to get some soap. Soap plus water would form bubbles where there were any leaks.

Instead he lit a match and found the fittings were less tight than he had thought. There was a fire and his right thumb was burned. Kappen managed to get the gas turned off and had the fire extinguished with a garden hose by the time Elkland township firemen arrived.

He then went to Hills and Dales General Hospital, where he was treated and released. The only damage to the camper was some scorched paint.

Since then, Kappen did what he had intended to do before. His camper had metal lines to the propane tank, which meant he had to put the tank in the compartment, then screw on the fittings, which were hard to get to with a wrench.

He has now installed flexible lines, which allow him to tighten the connections outside the compartment and then install the tank inside.

He also said he won't be checking connections for leaks with a match again.

The incident happened about 2:45.

There had been two men in the area picking up scrap wood, who possibly could have started it, presumably accidentally.

Although fire fighters were there almost two hours, according to fireman Jim Jezewski, the area that burned was only equal to about two city lots.

RIF program distributes 167 books in year

The Cass City branch of the American Association of University Women held its final Reading is Fundamental book distribution of the school year May 31.

Members Ann Craig and Marianne Walpole distributed books in Virginia Crawford's second grade class at Deford Elementary and in Linda Rose's second and third grade class at Evergreen Elementary.

Each child received two paperback books. A total of 167 books were distributed during the past school year.

In addition to the final book distribution, graduating senior Frances Kozan read two stories, one of which she wrote and illustrated herself, "The Prince Who Couldn't Stop Sneezing."

The Elkland-Novesta Community Chest helps support the Reading is Fundamental program locally.

Community booster

Colony House owner

Marv Winter in trucking since 13

Editor's note: this is one of a series sponsored by the Cass City Chamber of Commerce about community boosters who are members of the organization.

Marv Winter is always ready to lend a helping hand to community projects and chances are in one way or another he will be active in Cass City's July 4 Festival.

That's because he has skills and equipment necessary for a variety of jobs. He's an accomplished heavy equipment mover and is called on by businesses many times in this capacity.

He's also a source for used farm and automotive parts which he's been handling since he was 13.

He is the owner of Winter's

Truck Sales which he purchased from his father in 1970.

To the general public, Winter is probably more well known as the owner of Colony House. That's because the building has been used for weddings, special meetings, township meetings, reunions and any other type of gathering that requires a pleasant decor and a modern kitchen. Colony House has two separate rooms that can be opened to seat 1,000 people.

Helping in the business is Janice Winter. The Winters have three children, Kelli, a 1979 graduate from Cass City High School; Kirk, a 10th grader, and Kent, starting kindergarten.

Musical at Holbrook church

Rev. and Mrs. Milton Gelatt. Haslett is a suburb of Lansing.

The church is located 8 miles east and 3 miles north of Cass City on Germania Road.

Your Neighbor says

Sparky Anderson will do better job

When Tiger owner Jim Campbell fired Les Moss last week as manager and replaced him with Sparky Anderson, the move surprised many Detroit area baseball fans.

But it didn't surprise Wilbur L. Morrison.

"I figure he (Campbell) thinks Sparky will do a better job," Morrison said. "Anderson was a great manager with the Cincinnati Reds for years and led them to a couple of world championships. Maybe Campbell thinks he'll do the same with the Tigers."

Morrison thought Campbell made the move because it would boost team morale and improve the Tigers' fifth place position in the American League Eastern division.

"Moss wasn't doing a bad job with the team," Morrison said. "Campbell just thought Anderson could do better, so he hired him. Sparky's a good man to be with the Tigers."

"I don't think Moss' firing was anything personal. He just wasn't taking the team anywhere and the front office felt they needed new blood in the manager position."

Anderson signed a five-year contract with the Tigers and he declared he would bring a world championship to Detroit in two years.

"I don't know if he's going to be able to do that," Morrison said, "but he's got a lot of young players to work with and seems to get along with everyone. He's a very likeable guy."

Morrison said he's been following the Tigers for many years and believes Campbell made the right move to hire Anderson.

"If Sparky doesn't work out, maybe Campbell will think about rehiring Moss," Morrison chuckled.

Morrison is retired and lives alone at 4221 Doerr Road. He is a widower and has one son who is married and lives in Saginaw.

Kathy Dillard on dean's list

Mrs. Kathy Dillard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Clarke of 3475 Cemetery Rd., Cass City, was among 600 students at Harding College, Searcy, Ark., named to the dean's list for the spring semester.

To be on the dean's list, a student must carry at least 12 semester hours of credit, have no grade below a "C" and have no incomplete hours. Upperclassmen must have at least a 3.50 average on the 4.0 scale and freshmen must post a minimum 3.25 average.

A DIFFERENCE

Saving is fine, but it's better to spend all you have than not to make all you spend.

Grasshoppers may be big problem

At the end of last summer, Michigan State University Extension entomologist Bob Ruppel predicted that this year could be the "year of the grasshopper" in Michigan.

"What we'd need," he said, "is a slow, gradual warmup in the spring with no late spring freezes and plenty of hot, dry weather beginning in June."

What we've had in many parts of the state is a slow, gradual warmup with no late spring freezes and plenty of hot dry weather.

Now, in some areas, large numbers of nymphs - young grasshoppers - are being found in weedy areas adjacent to fields and gardens. Ruppel has already received a report of grasshoppers damaging alfalfa in Wexford county. Large numbers are being seen now in Benzie county, too.

One thing farmers can do now is pray for rain. "If the weeds stay nice and moist and succulent, the grasshoppers may be content to stay and feed on them," Ruppel says. "But if it gets dry and they start moving into crops, we're going to have some problems."

Grasshoppers prefer to feed on weedy grasses - hence their name - but they'll eat anything once they start to move. Ruppel received one report last year that grasshoppers were eating the binder twine off baled hay in the field.

Growers should check their fields and adjacent weedy areas frequently, he advises. Effective chemical controls are available but must be applied when grasshoppers are about eight or more per square yard to prevent serious damage.

Many men who pass for liberals are just too lazy to kick.

DETROIT EDISON OFFERS EIGHT IMPORTANT TIPS TO HELP YOU GET THE MOST OUT OF YOUR AIR CONDITIONER THIS SUMMER.

Fortunately, Detroit Edison customers have plenty of electric power available. Now and in the future. It's the result of planning, development and investment and the fact that over 84 percent of Detroit Edison's power is generated from coal, the nation's most abundant fuel. The balance is generated from other fossil fuels. Even so, none of us should waste energy. So follow these tips and stay cool and comfortable all summer long.

1 Keep your air conditioner on a moderate setting. When leaving home, set the temperature higher.

2 Pull down shades and close draperies to keep out the hot sun.

3 Be careful not to block the flow of cool air.

4 Shade windows from outside with ventilated awnings, solar screens, trees or shrubs.

5 Keep air filter, coils, registers and return ducts clean.

6 Cool off hot attic at night with an attic exhaust fan.

7 Use heat and humidity-producing appliances — such as your oven, washer and dryer — early in the morning or in the evening.

8 If you're buying a new air conditioner, you'll save electricity if you select one with an energy efficiency rating (EER) of 8 or higher. The EER is figured by dividing the BTUs by the watts.

Accident round-up

Troy Caverly injured in one-car crash Friday

A 7:20 p.m. accident Friday sent Troy B. Caverly, 21, of Rossman Road, Kingston, to Hills and Dales General Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Sheriff's deputies said he was northbound on White Creek Road, south of Legg Road, when he lost control of his car. It went off the east side of the road and rolled over, coming to rest on its wheels.

Caverly was ticketed on a charge of careless driving. Dale R. Kent, 19, of Mayville, was treated and released from Hills and Dales after a 5:50 p.m. mishap Sunday in Elkland township.

Deputies reported he was northbound on a private driveway east of Buehly Road when he lost control of his motorcycle. The machine crossed Reed Road and landed in a ditch.

Two drivers backing from opposite driveways backed into each other at 3:05 p.m. Monday.

Cass City police said Janice M. Ciesielski, 26, of 6180 Lamton Road, was backing northward from a driveway at 6532 Third Street, east of Seeger Street.

Dolores McAlpine, 41, of 6943 N. Cemetery Road, was backing from the opposite driveway and the two cars collided.

At 6:30 p.m. June 12, village police reported Lynda Kay Guinther, 37, of 6633 Voss Road, was westbound on Main Street, west of Sherman Street, and sideswiped a parked car. Owner of the parked car was Wesley Walker of Ewart.

Jess W. Story of Sebe-waing, injured in a June 8 accident in Saginaw in which Arthur S. Cooley Jr. of Gagetown was killed, was reported still in critical condition Tuesday afternoon at St. Mary's Hospital, Saginaw.

OFFICERS OF THE Cass City Retail Committee were at a breakfast session last week to discuss business promotions for the community. The first will be sidewalk days July 19-21. From left, clockwise: Cindy McConkey, secretary; Richard Jones, vice-president; Mike Weaver, treasurer, and Tom Proctor, president.

Kelly urges election of Public Service Commission

Attorney General Frank J. Kelley has offered what he thinks is a solution to holding down utility rate increases. Under a plan devised by the attorney general, members of the Public Service Commission would be directly elected and staff members of the PSC would come under control of the legislature. As now constituted, Kelley charges the commission does not serve the public, but guarantees profits to the utilities and "in many cases

(the staff) asks for higher rate increases for the utilities than they petitioned for."

Kelley noted currently the commissioners are appointed by the governor for six year terms and they "become faceless bureaucrats." Instead, the commissioners should be directly accountable to the electorate and elected to their posts, he said.

Fourteen states currently provide for the election of public utility commission members.

If the commissioners still become "faceless" even after being elected, then it's the people's fault.

Kelley indicated the commission staff should be put under legislative control to ensure its independence from the utilities. He said now several commission staff members are former utility employees who seek to favor the utilities over the public.

In previous years, measures have been introduced requiring election of commissioners and prohibiting commission staff members from being employed by utilities, and have failed. Kelley, however, said he believed his proposal will pass the legislature this year because consumers are fed up with utility rate increases.

Other proposals offered by Kelley aimed at holding down utility rate increases would provide a $5 per day credit for all utility customers whose service is disrupted for more than three hours on any day and require utility stockholders to assume the costs of "white elephant" power plants that cost more than originally estimated.

HARRISON RETIRES

Michigan is losing a valuable public servant at the end of June with the resignation of Gus Harrison, the developer and director of the Michigan State Lottery - the nation's most successful state-run lottery.

Harrison, who will embark on a new career as a consultant to state lotteries, has now completed two successful public service careers. For 19 years before taking over the helm at the lottery, he was director of the Michigan Department of Corrections and served as warden of the Southern Michigan Prison.

Under the direction of Harrison, the lottery is averaging well over $1 million a week in profits and has added funds to the state's general fund that would have otherwise had to come from taxpayers' pockets.

Since Nov. 13, 1972, when the first state lottery ticket was sold, Harrison's leadership has produced numerous new games to continue to hold the interest of Michigan citizens.

Never has such a dedicated state employee single-handedly brought more funds into state coffers to prove his worth as director of the Michigan State Lottery.

David Williston joins Walbro

Victor M. Guernsey, senior vice-president of Walbro's automotive products group, announced that David F. Williston has joined them in a sales-service position. His responsibilities involve customer service follow-up as well as keeping Walbro accounts and representatives currently informed about product developments. He will also assist with trade shows, merchandising, and promotional activities for the firm's Autopulse electric fuel pump and Dupree fuel pump lines. During the past six years, Williston has gained experience in management and retail sales with various companies, including an automotive parts dealership.

David F. Williston

Having earned his Associate's Degree in Merchandising and Management from Northwood Institute in Midland, Williston is presently working on his BA degree. He also studied commercial art and sales training in Detroit.

A member of both the National Retail Management Association and the Retail Merchants Association, David, his wife, and their two children are in the process of moving to Caro.

Michael Yens took the boy to Caro Community Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival. The body was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw for an autopsy.

Thieves nab $500 generator

Donald Moore of Decker-ville reported to Caro state police Friday that a 5 horsepower generator was stolen some time Wednesday from a shed on property owned by his son, Duane, on Elmwood Road near Cass City.

The generator was valued at $500.

Mrs. Vern Galloway of 4198 Sherman Street reported to Cass City police Saturday that the rear window of her car was broken by someone who threw a beer bottle through it. Loss was estimated at $150-$200.

The damage was done between 9 p.m. Friday and 7 a.m. Saturday.

Dayl Orton, no available address, told village police that Saturday evening, the four tires of her car were slashed while it was parked behind the Colonial Inn, 6436 W. Main Street.

At noon last Thursday, Scott Hendrian of 6567 Church Street told village police someone had stolen his bicycle, which was parked at the intermediate school.

About 20 minutes later, police spotted a boy riding the bike into the park. The bike was returned to its owner and the 15-year-old boy who took it was turned over to the custody of his parents.

Bob Wischmeyer of 4890 Schwegler Road reported to village police Monday that while his son, Kent, had his car parked on Herron Drive Friday evening, someone broke off the outside rear-view mirror and antenna.

HEALTH TIPS

Little strokes can alter personality

By Frank Chappell,
American Medical Association

An often unsuspected cause of mental and physical incapacity is a series of "little strokes."

A stroke occurs when the blood supply to a part of the brain is reduced or completely cut off.

This can be caused by a blood clot or by hemorrhage—bleeding from an artery in the brain. When the nerve cells of a part of the brain are deprived of their blood supply, the part of the body controlled by these nerve centers cannot function normally.

Little strokes may start when a person is in the 30s or 40s, striking silently at night, or passing almost unnoticed as a sudden dizzy spell, a momentary blackout, or just a few moments of confusion.

The stroke itself is not severe enough to compel the patient to seek medical aid, but some permanent brain damage remains just the same, the American Medical Association reminds.

A formerly kind, gentle person may become highly impatient and irritable. Judgment often is impaired. A strong man may become weak and prone to tears. Suspiciousness is common.

A person with a tendency to emotional instability, held in check heretofore by will power, may suddenly develop a psychosis. Some become sloppy in dress and befuddled in thought, others lose part of their moral sense.

Sometimes the sufferer loses interest in family and friends, and lives secretly, constantly hiding things that through forgetfulness he or she cannot find later. When the symptoms are mild, as they often are, the person may get along fairly well.

The problem of small strokes is one of the most difficult ever tackled by medical science.

The most hopeful research approach is that of finding ways of preventing stroke. Science seeks to learn more about how to recognize early symptoms so that treatment can be instituted promptly.

Ex-Cass City teacher retires

Donald Borg of Vassar, who began his career in education 32 years ago in Cass City, retired June 8 from the Saginaw County Intermediate School District (ISD).

He had been employed there seven years as in-service and graphics consultant.

He began his career at Cass City High School as instrumental and vocal music teacher. He then went to North Junior High School (then Intermediate School) in Saginaw and from there to Saginaw High School.

In 1965 he became director of the District Instructional Materials Department at Bridgeport-Spaulding and after seven years there, went to work for the Saginaw county ISD.

A major part of his job there was giving demonstrations and training the 3,000 teachers in the county in the use of media equipment. Borg is a Navy veteran and attended Central Michigan University, as did his wife, Beatrice.

The couple has lived in Vassar a year. Mrs. Borg is a native of that community.

In his retirement, Borg plans to keep giving media equipment workshops for teachers and to open a photography studio in Vassar.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Cass City's Police Department went back to full strength when Patrolman Bob Smith officially began work for the department. He comes to Cass City from Petersburg, where he served three years on the force.

The Hills and Dales General Hospital ended the year $164.00 in the red, according to the report issued at the annual meeting of the non-profit organization.

The Human Development Commission will receive a grant of $162,002 to operate a summer neighborhood Youth Corps Program in Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties. This grant will make it possible for 300 young people to receive employment for the summer.

The Cass City High School Class of 1949 held their 25th reunion at Wildwood Farms. About 35 of the 81 graduates attended the gathering. John Douglas of New Jersey received a wood door signed by former classmates for traveling the farthest. Jim Wallace of Midland was master of ceremonies.

TEN YEARS AGO

Voters in the Cass City School District will be asked for the third time to approve extra funds for operating at a special election.

The Cass City Chapter of the Michigan Education Association succeeded in securing substantial economic benefits in its new one-year contract. The teachers yielded on several non-economic bargaining positions while earning a raise estimated at 8 percent for the year.

State milk output down in May

Total milk output from Michigan farms in May declined to 414 million pounds, a 1 percent decrease compared to a year ago, according to the Michigan Agricultural Reporting Service.

The number of milk cows declined to 394,000, down 3 percent from last year. Milk production on a per head basis is up though, with a 2 percent increase to 1,050 pounds for May. Per cow production has been greater than the same month in the previous year for each month since October, 1978.

Nationally, May milk production of 11.2 billion pounds is virtually unchanged from a year earlier. Offsetting changes in milk cows (down 1 percent) and production per cow (up 1 percent) cancelled each other.

2,000 helped in Thumb

Commission on Aging: many served from Cass City office

"There are certain needs that exist. It's as simple as that."

That is the philosophy of Ron Cassie, executive director of the Thumb Area Commission on Aging (TACA), an agency that directly serves about 2,000 senior citizens a month in the three upper Thumb counties.

The agency recently closed its office in Port Sanilac, which handled the meal program, and Caro, which was in charge of all other services, and consolidated them into a single office in Cass City.

The office, which shares space with Zemke Realty, which owns the building, is at 6410 Main Street.

TACA still maintains offices in Caro, Bad Axe and Sandusky to directly serve residents in the respective counties. Cass Cityans in need of assistance are encouraged to still deal with the Caro office, telephone 673-4175.

TACA, which began December, 1974, offers a wide variety of services to senior citizens, defined as persons 60 and over.

IN TERMS OF NUMBERS, its biggest program is its monthly newsletter, sent free to 12,000 persons.

In terms of dollars, its biggest program is nutrition.

Noontime meals are served two, three, four or five times per week, depending on the site, in Fairgrove, Caro, Kingston, Mayville and Vassar in Tuscola county; Bad Axe, Caseville, Harbor Beach and Port Austin in Huron county, and Crosswell, Deckerville, Port Sanilac and Sandusky in Sanilac county.

Some meals are also delivered to the homebound. In May, 5,038 meals were served at the meal sites and 1,454 were home delivered.

Senior citizens aren't charged for the meals but may make donations. In May, the average donation was 47.6 cents per meal, with cost of the meal averaging $1.28 for the food (not including cost of labor in preparing it).

Federal money pays for the nutrition program and federal guidelines prohibit encouraging those eating to donate other than putting out a collection box. There are no maximum income requirements.

The TACA nutrition budget for the fiscal year that started last Oct. 1 totals $269,314 from three different federal programs. Labor donated by volunteers is estimated to be worth $23,230 for the fiscal year.

Donations for meals was lumped together with donations for transportation service, with the estimate being $47,000 to be received in 1978-79.

The nutrition program director, Joan Andrakowicz of Owendale, says the benefits of the program are twofold.

The senior citizens get a well balanced meal, something they might not get eating at home, and they get to socialize, important because they might otherwise rarely get out of their house.

"I was looking at four walls, ready to scream," she said one senior citizen told her. But since she started going to the meal program, the woman goes out at night and has become a foster grandparent. "She's a completely different person," Mrs. Andrakowicz said.

Marlette, Millington, Kinde and Sebawa representatives have requested establishment of meal sites in their communities, but expansion of the program to those communities or elsewhere isn't likely, she explained.

Not only is federal funding for senior citizen programs at a standstill, there may even be a cutback.

IN ADDITION TO THE meal sites, TACA has 11 other programs, not all of which are offered in all three counties.

Funding for the other programs comes from three sources. About $86,000 in 1978-79 will come from various federal programs; $5,023 is state funds, and Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac each contribute $10,670 (assuming Huron county commissioners go along with their counterparts in the other two counties and approve a requested supplemental increase of $1,170. They vote June 26. The original per county appropriation was $9,500.)

One service already mentioned is the newsletter.

Another is transportation, to the doctor, drugstore for prescription drugs, food shopping, and important appointments, such as to the Department of Social Services, provided the rider has no one else to take them. Volunteer drivers, who are reimbursed only for mileage, provide the service in their own cars.

Outreach workers visit senior citizens in their home to help them solve problems they cannot solve at home. There is also a telephone information and referral service to answer questions on such topics as Social Security, health problems, financial concerns and housing.

Once-a-month blood pressure testing, done by volunteer nurses, is done at more than 25 sites in the three counties.

Various recreational activities are offered at drop-in centers in Millington, Port Sanilac and Marlette.

Identification and discount cards entitle the holders to discounts given by more than 300 area merchants.

Medical equipment, such as walkers, wheelchairs and hospital beds are provided by TACA in cooperation with the Easter Seals Society.

Two services presently offered only in Sanilac county are the handyman service—lawn cutting, window washing, wrapping water pipes for winter, minor home repairs, etc.—and telephone reassurance, daily calls to senior citizens living alone to make sure they are okay.

Legal Services of Eastern Michigan, in cooperation with TACA, offers free legal advice to all senior citizens and free legal representation to those at or below the poverty level. Its only office, however, is in Caro.

TACA has about 15 full-time employees and almost 50 part-time ones, the majority of whom are employed at the meal sites as cooks or helpers.

THERE ARE ABOUT 19,000 senior citizens (60 and over) in the three counties and for many of them, according to Cassie and Mrs. Andrakowicz, the traditional sources of assistance, their families, have disappeared.

Many senior citizens have moved to this area from elsewhere to retire, leaving their children who could help them in their old age behind.

There is also the opposite pattern. There aren't enough jobs in this area so children move away to find jobs elsewhere, leaving their parents in the future to face their retirement years alone.

As mentioned, most of TACA's funds come from Washington, but to Cassie, his agency's programs represent a way for senior citizens to get their money back.

"It isn't federal money," he said. "It just gets laundered down there. It belongs to them (senior citizens) in the first place."

Build a solar greenhouse

If you've discovered the advantages of greenhouse gardening, take the next step and construct a solar greenhouse which not only traps sunlight but retains heat to keep your plants warm and cozy.

The principle is simple. According to the new Ortho book, "How To Build and Use Greenhouses," the solar greenhouse contains a mass, like a barrel of water, a rock pile or a pumice block wall, which soaks up heat during the day.

Heat enters the greenhouse in the form of short waves, which strike and heat the mass; warmth is then radiated back into the greenhouse in the form of long waves, which don't escape through the greenhouse covering. These waves are stored, thereby cutting heating costs.

The solar heat storage principle can be used in a variety of greenhouses, like the Attached Solar Greenhouse or Angled-wall Greenhouse, which can be built according to directions in the Ortho book. Or you can design a more basic structure that also retains heat—the Sun Pit.

The Sun Pit is somewhat like the cold frame, but it is situated beneath the ground with a clear overhead roof.

This subterranean garden requires little or no additional heating because the Sun Pit uses the natural insulation of the ground. Little heat will be lost through the walls to the soil.

Build the Sun Pit close to your house and you can use extra heat from the pit to warm your home.

You can build your own Sun Pit by following directions in Ortho's new book, "How To Build and Use Greenhouses." Money saved on heating bills can be invested in flowers and plants to keep your underground garden beautiful all year round.

Male stands mute to charges

Sixty-five-year-old John Vassar Road, Vassar, Male stood mute to two counts of assault with a dangerous weapon when he appeared Monday before Circuit Court Judge Martin E. Clements.

Male, of 5683 Bond Road, Wilmot, is charged in connection with a May 18 incident on the road in front of his home in which he shot at two cars.

The eastbound car of Sheriff's Department Lieutenant Paul Megge, who was off-duty at the time, and the westbound car of Robert Groosbeck were side-by-side when shots were fired from about 100 yards away with a .22 caliber rifle.

Groosbeck testified at the district court preliminary examination that Male swung the butt of his rifle at his (Groosbeck's) car as he drove by. The shots were fired after he was farther down the road.

Clements entered a plea of innocent for the defendant and scheduled a pretrial hearing July 2. He granted a defense motion for setting of bond, which he set at $1,000.

Also Monday, Anthony R. Grzymkowski, 56, of 2283

Vassar Road, Vassar, pleaded guilty to uttering and publishing.

The plea was accepted and sentencing scheduled Aug. 6. Bond of $3,000 was continued.

The guilty plea was in exchange for a reduction of charge from the prosecution. He was originally charged with uttering and publishing over $50, in connection with writing a bad check for $1,123 to Gageton Oil and Gas Aug. 31, 1978.

DISTRICT COURT

Willis LaBlanc, 43, of 3771 Cemetery Road, Cass City, was sentenced Monday by Judge Richard F. Kern to 25 days in the county jail for impaired driving.

As an alternative, he can serve the sentence at Friendship House in Bay City. He was also placed on probation.

LaBlanc pleaded guilty to the charge May 1. He was originally charged with driving under the influence of liquor, for which he was arrested March 13 in Cass City.

It was a quiet graduation for Jennifer Zimba, but life for her is quiet.

The 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Zimba of Mushroom Road, Deford, has never heard a sound. She was born deaf.

She received her high school diploma June 10 from the Michigan School for the Deaf (MSD) in Flint, which she had attended for the past 14 years.

It was, at best, a time of mixed emotion, according to her mother, Rita, who must translate for her through the use of sign language.

She was "quite blue," Mrs. Zimba explained, because it meant saying goodbye to friends who spoke her "language" and whom she had grown up with.

On the other hand, graduation meant coming home to stay -- at least for a while. Jennifer spent all her week ends and vacations at the family dairy farm so grew up in a rural environment and never cared for the big city of Flint. (She grimaced when asked what she thought of Flint.)

As for going out into the world, she shrugs her shoulders when asked if she is afraid. She really doesn't know.

An immediate concern is finding someone she can "talk" to outside of her family, preferably about her age. She has a friend in Caro who attends MSD, but she knows of no one else closely who "signs."

There is also her future. At this point, she hasn't decided whether to get a job or get more schooling.

She is thinking of attending Madonna College in Livonia, which has special services for the deaf in counseling, note taking and tutoring and provides interpreters in classrooms.

"She thinks it (MSD) helped her, but if she went to college, it would help her find a better job," Mrs. Zimba said.

Her daughter feels she learned a lot at the school, but admits, in the words of her mother, "because there is nothing else."

If she does decide to try to find a job, she is considering factory work or a clerical job. She had training in the latter and likes to type.

JENNIFER WAS TWO years old before her parents realized she was deaf. "Sometimes she would turn when we called and sometimes she didn't," Mrs. Zimba explained, thus it wasn't immediately apparent their daughter had no hearing.

At age three, she started going to Bay City once a week for training and her mother corresponded with a school for the deaf to learn how to raise her youngster.

At age 4 she started attending the Michigan School for the Deaf. It was a terrible time for her, her mother said. "She couldn't understand why we were leaving her. She hugged and cried when we would go."

When she got older, "she knew it had to be."

MSD is a state school, with the state paying room, board and tuition.

Students at MSD are strongly encouraged to spend their week ends at home so for Jennifer and Mrs. Zimba it became a 14-year ordeal. She picked her daughter up on Friday afternoons and returned her Monday mornings.

There was only one accident in that time. Mrs. Zimba makes it very plain she is glad her travels to Flint are over.

OTHER THAN THAT the students live there in dormitories, MSD is in many respects a normal school.

There are, of course, many courses oriented toward the deaf, such as in signing and teaching vocational skills, but there are also the three R's and normal school activities.

Jennifer's favorite extra-curricular activity was athletics. She played basketball and softball for four years and volleyball for one year. She would like to play on a girls' softball team this summer. At MSD, she was a left fielder.

The teams she played on generally didn't have sterling records -- the basketball team her senior year was 2-17, for instance -- but had to play many teams from schools much larger in size.

Jennifer didn't know the total enrollment at her school but the senior class only had 32 in it.

THE TEENAGER IS totally deaf and cannot speak. According to her mother, deaf persons who can speak usually have a small amount of hearing.

Jennifer wears a hearing aid, but it only picks up sounds, not conversation. She can read lips sometimes, but it is not something she can do with anyone.

Other than through writing, her primary means of communication is signing, a mixture of hand signals and gestures which spell out words and phrases.

There are two forms of signing. Siglish (signed English) follows the English grammatical system. Ameslan (American sign language), which Jennifer uses, uses the same hand signals, but arranges them in a different order.

Miss Zimba taught signing to her mother (who finally took a course in it last year to improve her skill) and her sister, Lisa, a student at Oakland University.

Her two brothers at home, Ed and Matthew, both know finger spelling, spelling out each letter of a word. (There is a different position for the fingers for each letter. It's not the same as spelling letters in the air.)

Her father's fingers aren't as nimble as they once were so he and his daughter communicate via a combination of finger spelling and gestures. (Mr. and Mrs. Zimba have a total of seven children. The three oldest are married.)

Although she can't hear, Jennifer does like to watch television, especially shows with lots of action and sports. She keeps track of the plot by asking via sign language.

She can listen to music if it is loud enough that she can feel the vibrations.

She can also drive a car, which requires extra visual alertness. "Their (deaf drivers) eyes are their ears," her mother explained.

Education for deaf has changed

Education of the deaf has changed since Jennifer Zimba started in school, according to Elton Mahan, director of special education for the Tuscola Intermediate School District.

Whereas Jennifer started attending the Michigan School for the Deaf at age 4, hearing impaired youngsters now attend a program in the county through the seventh or eighth grade.

After that, most youngsters will attend MSD, as most can only receive the special training they need to prepare them for their years after high school at the state school in Flint. A few may be able to attend a regular high school.

This year, Mahan said, there were 14 youngsters enrolled in the intermediate district's program for the hearing impaired and four county youngsters attending MSD.

Letter to the Editor

Standards down, teacher says

Dear Mr. Haire:

We are not regular readers of the Detroit News but it appears they've been running letters to the editor on today's educational system.

This past Sunday, June 10, a friend called to our attention a letter published, which was written by our daughter. I enclose a copy.

We found it quite interesting and thought it might be of interest to many in this area who know her.

She graduated from Owen-Gage High School in 1962 and did her college work at Central Michigan University.

She teaches elementary art in the Huron Valley School district near Milford.

Yours truly,
Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kehoe

Detroit News
To the Editor:

Standards have gone down in every aspect of our society, so why should education be an exception?

Shoddy workmanship is commonplace. Slang and poor grammar mingle into our new form of English. There is no respect for authority. A policeman is a pig. Government leaders are crooks.

Bring children from this society into the classroom and problems begin.

I work with teachers who spend endless after-school hours coming up with interesting activities and learning games and field trips to stimulate students, only to be rewarded with the statement, "I don't want to do that, it's no fun."

Discipline is a major problem. Our hands are tied in the name of freedom. Johnny has the freedom of speech. He can call me a bitch. He has a constitutional right to privacy, not to have his locker searched. He can hide his dope there. But he will sue me if I touch him; he can meet me in a doorway and push me out of the way.

Please reserve judgment until you sit on the other side of the desk.

Suit seeks $250,000 in damages

John and Clarke Haire of 4172 S. Seeger Street are defendants in a law suit filed by the victim in a 1976 traffic accident.

The plaintiff, Marie T. Male, also known as Marie T. Mocan, is seeking $250,000 in damages, plus court costs and attorney fees.

She and Clarke Haire were involved in a collision July 15, 1976 at Elmwood and Dodge Roads, in which she claims in the suit she suffered "severe, painful and permanent" injuries and that Haire was negligent.

The then Miss Mocan of Cass City was ticketed after the accident by sheriff's deputies on a charge of failure to yield at a signed intersection.

John Haire is listed as a defendant in the suit because he was owner of the car driven by his son.

The suit, filed Friday, has been assigned to Circuit Judge Martin E. Clements. A jury trial has been demanded.

THE ORIGINAL St. Agatha's school, built in 1886 and torn down in 1950. The nuns lived on the third floor. The old rectory, at right, was torn down in 1971.

Will conduct 2 masses

Bishop Reh to attend church's centennial

Bishop Francis F. Reh of the Diocese of Saginaw will be present Saturday and Sunday for the 100th anniversary observances at St. Agatha.

He will be conducting the 4 p.m. mass Saturday and 11 a.m. mass Sunday.

In addition to Father Joseph Morales of St. Pancratius Catholic church, Cass City, administrator of St. Agatha's, all former pastors at the Gagetown church have been invited to be co-celebrants of the mass Sunday.

As of early this week, it wasn't known which priests will be able to attend.

At the Sunday mass, Joseph Mosack, whose firm did the remodeling of the sanctuary, completed this week, will address the bishop and parish, pointing out what the new church expresses in its art and its own special design.

Those who have been involved in the remodeling will symbolically hand over the building to Bishop Reh and Fred Sullivan, president of the parish council, will give a key to the church to the bishop.

The leader of the diocese will perform a special penitential rite. A Litany of the Saints will be performed. The special portion of the mass will conclude with the anointing, incensation and lighting of the altar, all performed by the bishop.

Following the mass, at 1 p.m., will be a catered luncheon in the church hall for present and past parishioners.

On display in the basement chapel Sunday will be memorabilia of the church's history.

THIS WAS THE ORIGINAL St. Agatha's church, dedicated in 1881. It was the first Catholic church in Tuscola county. The rectory is at left. The church was used for its original purpose until 1917, then as a parish hall until destroyed by fire in 1925.

INSIDE -- Although the present St. Agatha Church was dedicated in 1917, the interior decoration wasn't completed until 1938, when this photo was taken. The sanctuary has been remodeled twice since then, the last time for Sunday's 100th anniversary celebration.

Energy bills reduced with tree planting

Want a beautiful way to reduce your gas and electric bills? Plant some trees.

Research shows that planting deciduous trees at the west and south sides of the house can reduce summer cooling bills and winter heating bills by 10 to 20 percent.

Savings vary depending on climate. In South Dakota, a plains state with high winter winds, fuel consumption was measured for two identical houses, one with a windbreak of trees and the other exposed. The tree-protected house had 25% less fuel consumption.

In the more sheltered Eastern states, savings are less dramatic, measuring about 10 percent, according to "The World of Trees."

SOMETIME between April, 1914, when construction started and October, 1917, when the new St. Agatha church was dedicated, workmen stopped long enough to have their picture taken. Parishioners donated many hours of labor to help build the structure, which cost almost $45,000.

THE MAN DOWNSTAIRS, by William F. Hallstead (fiction). Don Ellison's troubles begin when he decides not to pay a "voluntary" contribution to his political boss, "The man downstairs." Don works for the city of Milbury, but he's been promised a better job out of state. If he stays in the civil service another year or so, he'll have enough money saved to move out of Milbury and take that new job. When his supervisor issues a memo soliciting political contributions, Don's fellow employees warn him that he'll be fired if he doesn't kickback 5 percent of his salary. But Don refuses, and the heat is on. He is snubbed by his co-workers, threatened by late-night phone calls, and harassed by the police. He fights back by telling his problems to a reporter friend, and the resulting coverage brings about a state investigation. This fast-paced novel gives an authentic picture of corrupt city politics.

SIMPLE FOLK INSTRUMENTS TO MAKE AND TO PLAY, by Irene Hunter (non-fiction). Historical background information supplements step-by-step illustrated directions for making percussion, string, and wind folk instruments using such readily available objects as metal cans, cardboard packaging and plastic bottles.

Adam dreams unrealistically of running away with Fox to join his own father in Australia, but the loving support of the Darke changes his plans. Set in Scotland.

San-Cass League

Unbeaten Snover leads the pack

Snover Merchants have taken a stranglehold on the lead in the American Division while Paul's holds a narrow half game lead in the National Division of the San-Cass League.

Snover has an 8-0 mark to lead second place Thumb National by three full games. Paul's with a 6-2 record leads McGraw with a 5-2 mark.

Osentoski Realty got off to a slow start losing their first three games and then bounced back this week with three wins.

Thursday, June 14, Auslander was even better. He hurled a one hitter in a 9-1 Osentoski decision over Sanilac Dairy Farms.

Lowe rapped three triples and Ron Ouvry slammed a circuit clout and collected three hits.

Monday, June 18, Charmont was defeated in a slugfest, 13-8. Ed Lowe, Auslander, Don Galbraith, Todd Alexander and Ken Lowe rapped two hits each. Ken Lowe hit for the circuit.
